Another clash between regular army and Volkssturm units was reported. Moscow said 23 SS troops were killed and as many wounded in a fight with a citizens' army unit in the Pomeranian battle line. The Volkssturm unit complained it was not equipped properly, the report said, and when the Volkssturm unit's commander refused to lead his men into battle, a special SS commando unit was sent to deal with them.

Berlin Boasts Of Its Hedgehog Radial Defense

'Spikes' Fan Out From City, Says Radio, Emphasizing Measures Against Tanks

LONDON, March 17 (AP).—The Berlin radio declared today that invading forces would find Berlin "is not a pocket, but a giant hedgehog protected by its spikes."

"Defense sectors radiate fanwise from the city and battle-seasoned officers from the eastern front are in command," a broadcast said. "The sectors are studded with extensive defense positions which make use of natural obstacles such as belts of lakes, chains of hills and canals."

The broadcast said exposed flanks would be defended by tank blocks and that attacking tank forces would be channeled into lanes lined with these defenses. "Using the technique for plotting the approach of enemy aircraft, an 'achtung' (attention) tank-ring will warn against the approach of any spearheads," the broadcast said.

Beaming abroad an article that will appear in tomorrow's papers, the German radio said that the war was "about to enter its decisive phase" on both the eastern and western fronts. Robert Ley, Nazi labor chieftain who has been touring the Rhine front, asserted in a broadcast message: "I repeat what I said earlier in Berlin—we fight in front of the Rhine, on the Rhine and behind the Rhine. Our enemies have not broken us, and they will not break us."

Moscow broadcast a report that the Nazis were turning an area in south Germany into a "small but super-strong" defense region for their last stand. At the same time, a Russian military commentator declared that high commands of the Red Army and the western Allies had agreed on a co-ordinated win-the-war strategy which would soon result in a "simultaneous blow of stupendous force which will effect the juncture of our armies somewhere in central Germany."

Colonel Kolomeitsev, a Russian commentator, wrote in an article later broadcast that "Allied blows at Germany are becoming ever more effective and everything seems to point to a strictly elaborated and timed plan of co-ordination between the Allied fronts."

Another Moscow broadcast said Bavaria and Austria had been chosen definitely for the Nazis' last stand and that large quantities of weapons and food had already been moved in. Field Marshal Wilhelm Keitel and General Alfred Jodl were reported to have inspected the set-up.

REPARATIONS HINTED AT 4 BILLION YEARLY

LONDON, March 17 (AP)—The weekly Economist said today that "there is reason to believe that the Big Three are thinking in terms of exactin greparations (from Germany) to the tune of about £1,000,000,000 ($4,000,000,000) a year for 20 years, in addition to restitution of what has been stolen."

President Roosevelt, Prime Minister Winston Churchill and Marshal Joseph Stali nannounced after the Yalta Conference that Germany would be required to make compensation "in kind" for damage caused to Allied nations.

The Economist's statement was included in an article which discussed the advisability of creating an independent Ruhr-Rhine state, on the ground that Germany "could not fight an aggressive war without control of the heavy industries" of that region. The Economist held that an independent Rhineland policy should be adopted "only if it stands more than an even chance of working."

"And this in its turn means that it must not outrage too far the accepted principles and beliefs of the Western democracies who will be responsible for it," the article said. "They are not likely to continue for long to make the effort of supporting it if the people of the Rhineland are actively hostile, or if it involves a radical impoverishment for what was one of the richest areas of Europe."

Speculating on the billion-pound reparations report, "The Economist" wondered whether any part of it would be levied against a new Rhineland state.

"If so," it asked, "will it make possible the attainment of a standard of living that will breed even passive acceptance of their lot among the Rhinelanders?"

Money Believed Ruled Out

WASHINGTON, March 17 (AP).—The Yalta agreement to exact reparations "in kind" from defeated Germany is interpreted by officials here to mean that reparations in money have been ruled out.

This was the reaction of diplomatic authorities today to the statement of the London weekly "The Economist" that "there is reason to believe" that the Big Three are thinking of exacting reparations of $4,000,000,000 a year for twenty years.

So far as could be determined, this figure, even as a financial measure of the reparations which might be exacted in goods and services, indicated, officials said, that the total mentioned by "The Economist" is probably too large.

It is not expected here that the United States will take much, if any, German reparations.

Queen Plans Visit To Free Dutch Area

London, March 17 (AP)—After five years' exile in London, Queen Wilhelmina is expected to visit the liberated section of Holland soon, it was learned here today.

The visit of the 64-year-old Queen will be cloaked in secrecy.

Holland, once the happiest and richest little country in Europe, now is one of the poorest. Hundreds of thousands of her people still are under the grip of the Nazis.

[Queen Wilhelmina, now sixty-four years old, has been in war-enforced exile from her country for almost five years. When the Germans invaded Holland in the spring of 1940, they planned to kidnap her with an air-borne detachment at The Hague and only the arrival of a British destroyer enabled her to escape to England.

[She has remained in England most of the time since then, but has visited the United States and Canada. Her daughter, Princess Juliana, who is to inherit the throne, resided for a long period in Canada in recent years.]

U.S. AIRMEN POUND NAZI RAIL LINES

LONDON, March 17—(AP) More than 2,000 American bombers and fighters roared over Germany today in weather described as the worst of the winter, raining bombs by instrument upon five key rail communications and oil plants in the 33rd day of the non-stop aerial assault.

The RAF joined in the daylight attack today and Mosquito bombers attacked Berlin again tonight, the 26th consecutive night the Reich capital has been bombed. Friday night the RAF unloosed a 1,000-plane assault on Germany but there was no immediate indication of the strength of the forces ranging over the Reich tonight.

More than 1,300 heavy bombers and 750 fighters of the U. S. Eighth air force split into five groups over Germany today, striking synthetic oil refineries at Bohlen on the southern outskirts of Leipzig, and Ruhland, 30 miles north of Dresden; benzol plants at Moblis, also near Leipzig; a large railyard at Muenster; and a tank factory at Hannover.

Bohlen and Moblis are "war boom" towns which have sprung up around the refineries and benzol plants supplying the German war machine.

Clouds covered most of Germany, making instrument sighting necessary. There was no indication of serious Luftwaffe opposition.

"We expected some bad weather but what we ran into was worse than anything I saw this winter," said Maj. Charles V. Bordener of Stephenville, Texas, who led the attack on Bohlen.

Because of severe flying conditions, some bombers landed in France, U. S. Army air force headquarters said, making it impossible to tabulate immediately the number of planes missing from the attacks. Losses, however, were expected to be small.

RAF Spitfire bombers kept relentless attacks on V-2 rocket sites and feeder railway lines in Holland as other British bombers joined in the hammering of German oil supplies.

The RAF daylight attack was made on two small benzol plants in the middle Ruhr, one of them near Dortmund and the other at the crossroad town of Huls, 10 miles northeast of Recklinhauen.

Ninth Air Force fighter and medium bombers supported the 3d and 7th armies in the Moselle-Rhine triangle south of Coblenz by blasting road junctions behind the Nazi lines and strafing infantry and motorized columns.

Nuernberg Bombed

In the night attack, which the Air Ministry said was aimed "to destroy what remains of the German war industry," 1,000 RAF planes massed against Nuernberg, scene of Nazi party rallies, war plant center and rail hub with trunk lines running to all fronts; and Wuerzburg, Bavarian city with a large number of engineering and textile plants 55 miles northwest of Nuernberg.

The Air Ministry said 30 RAF bombers were lost in the operation.

Friday night was the twenty-fifth consecutive night that Mosquitos attacked Berlin.

Meanwhile, the Air Ministry reported that its 11-ton bomb which made its debut Thursday night against the double viaduct at Bielfeld had been more effective than at first believed.

With three spans of one of them destroyed in an earlier raid, the ministry said now both viaducts had "been wrecked over a length of more than 100 yards—nearly one third the over-all length of the structure."

Reconnaissance photographs showed, the Ministry said, that "great piers supporting seven spans of the southern viaduct have entirely disappeared. Only the stumps remain of piers which carried seven spans of the other."

The Italy based 15th Air Force, which yesterday damaged three refineries in the Vienna area and bombed Linz, Regensburg and Munich, today bombed Brenner Pass-Po Valley communciation objectives for the twelfth consecutive day.

Mitchells hit rail fills south of Trento, at San Michele and a rail bridge northeast of Vicenza. Three locomotives were destroyed and 22 others damaged at Novara. An ammunition dump was blown up at Alessandria.

Lightnings struck rail targets in Yugoslavia, including a bridge at Ptuj, southeast of Maribor. One formation led by Lieut. Col. Thomas R. Kelly, of San Antonio, Texas, knocked out a train in the same area.

Rail, Oil Targets In Reich Hit

Jameson

London, March 17 (AP)—More than 1,300 heavy bombers and 750 fighters of the United States 8th Air Force surged over the Reich today in attacks upon rail communications and oil plants a few hours after 1,000 RAF night bombers had blasted German industrial targets.

Objectives of the American daylight raiders included synthetic oil refineries at Bohlen, on the southern outskirts of Leipzig, and Ruhland, 30 miles north of Dresden; benzol plants at Moblis, also near Leipzig; large railroad yards at Muenster and a tank factory at Hannover.

At the same time, the German radio reported Allied planes from Italy again were swarming over southern Austria in the Vienna area.

150-Mile Fleet

The huge fleet of daylight bombers and fighters from bases on Britain stretched out over 150 miles. The fleet split into two main sections over Germany, one striking into the northwest and the other roaring on southeast.

Close to 1,000 British warplanes attacked Nuernberg and Wuerzburg as the chief targets in Germany last night and RAF Mosquitos raided Berlin for the twenty-fifth consecutive night. The Air Ministry declared the purpose of the raids was "to destroy what remains of the German war industry."

30 Bombers Lost

Thirty RAF bombers were lost in last night's operations, with the fiercest opposition coming from German night fighters at Nuernberg. Nine Nazi planes were shot down.

"Fighters cropped up everywhere near Nuernberg and their flares were spread out for miles on our track," said one Lancaster gunner.

Both Nuernberg and Wuerzburg were bombed by moonlight. Smoke soon blurred the targets, but the glow of fires could be seen for miles.

Nuernberg, war center and Nazi meeting place in southern Germany, has one of the largest railroad yards in the Reich, with trunk lines running to all war fronts. Some of its armament plants and tank factories are still producing on a reduced scale.

Wuerzburg, Bavarian industrial city 55 miles northwest of Nuernberg, has a large number of engineering and textile plants.

Nazis Ban Mourning Clothes

LONDON, March 17 (AP).—A Berlin broadcast today told the German home front that because of shortages of material women must do without black stockings and men without black ties, "even in case of the death of the closest relatives." Mourning bands for the arm are permitted.

Nazis to Tell People Decision Is Near

London, March 17 (A. P.).—The German people will be told tomorrow that "on both the eastern and western fronts the war is about to enter its decisive phase." An article saying this, written for Sunday papers, was broadcast tonight in part outside Germany.

Fewer Pay Days, Berlin Warns Nazis

London, March 17 (A. P.).—Pay days are going to be fewer and farther between for the Germans now, according to a Berlin home radio broadcast today. The broadcast said "competent authorities" had approved a plan whereby those previously paid weekly "will get their wages every four or five weeks and those paid monthly will get their salaries every three months"

No reason was offered, but it was assumed the change resulted from transfer of clerical office workers into the Volkssturm.

...ot Landed Plane 800 Miles Behind Nazis

Delivered Agents to Patriots in Poland, Flew Others Out

LONDON, March 17 (AP).—How a Royal Air Force pilot found his way in February, 1944, from an Italian base to a Polish beet field, at that time 800 miles behind the German lines, delivered two important persons and flew out other agents with valuable intelligence reports was disclosed tonight.

Through the Polish underground, elaborate plans were made for patriots to seize and hold three different landing fields, two of them within thirty miles of Warsaw and one in the Lublin area. Despite the fact he had to fight storms and fly wholly by instruments most of the way, Lieutenant E. J. Harrod brought the plane down on the Lublin field forty seconds before the estimated time of arrival.

As soon as he had flashed identification signals, the Polish patriots laid out an avenue of red, green and yellow lanterns through the beet field, with a cluster of red lights indicating where he should stop.

QUESTIONS WINDSOR MEMO

Laborite to Seek Explanation of Press Advice on Duke

LONDON, March 17 (AP)—Laborite Emanuel Shinwell said today that he would ask Prime Minister Churchill in the Commons Wednesday why the Government had issued what Mr. Shinwell called a guidance notice to the press "on how to deal with the Duke of Windsor's resignation."

The resignation of the Duke as Governor of the Bahamas was announced Thursday night.

Mr. Shinwell said that the notice "has no relation to the war, for which the censorship and guidance system was set up," and added that he would attempt to find out who had ordered it issued.

He alluded to a "private and confidential memo" issued at the British Ministry of Information which said that there was no cause for surprise over the resignation inasmuch as the Duke's five-year "normal tenure of office" was nearly up. The note also suggested that the press might wish to say that the Bahamas had enjoyed a greater measure of prosperity since the Duke took office.

1,000 Nazi Soldiers Executed

LONDON, March 17 (AP).—A Nazi home radio broadcast recorded by Reuters said today that 1,000 men and officers of the German Army have been executed by mobile courts martial created at key centers to deal with cases of desertion "and other grave military offenses."

USLO STATION BLOWN UP

Germans Shoot 14 Norwegian Patriots as Sabotage Grows

LONDON, March 17 (AP)—The Germans shot fourteen Norwegian patriots yesterday as the wave of sabotage sweeping Norway was marked by the blowing up of Oslo's main railroad station, the Norwegian Telegraph Agency said tonight.

Norwegian home forces, increasing their campaign to hamstring German communications, are working in close cooperation with the Allied command, the agency said. It added that the Germans were getting "more and more jumpy, desperate and brutal" under the accumulating effect of military setbacks in Germany and the stepped-up activities of Norwegian patriots.

The Allied air and sea blockade has prevented the transportation to Germany of the more than 200,000 enemy soldiers remaining in Norway, the agency said, adding that the eGrmans are expetced to continue fighting in Norway after Germany collapses.

SMALL NATION PACT EXPECTED

London Looks For France To Line Up With Neighbors

Paris

London, March 17 (AP)—A belief was expressed in London diplomatic circles tonight that France, championing the proposals of small nations at the forthcoming San Francisco conference, might join the Netherlands, Belgium, Luxembourg and possibly Norway in a regional security pact.

There were indications that the groundwork had been laid among some of these western European nations for such a regional pact, to be fitted within the framework of the general world peace plan of the future.

Meanwhile, the Manchester Guardian, in a criticism of the voting procedure decided upon by the Big Three at the Crimean conference, said the projected plan for a world security organization did not, in its present form, guarantee the frontiers of smaller countries and gave them little to say in debates.

Regarded As "Slightly Sinister"

"The very unwillingness of the great powers to accept conditions laid down for other and smaller nations must appear slightly sinister," the Liberal newspaper said, adding that it would almost seem that the great powers "have no confidence in their own virtue."

"If peace is to be kept by a concert of great powers well and good, but why should small nations be made responsible for an organization in which they have no rights but only duties?" the Guardian asked.

The newspaper said that it was fortunate that France, which had no share in Dumbarton Oaks and the Crimean conference, has reserved full freedom of action at the San Francisco conference next month.

Van Kleffens's Paris Visit

The imminent departure of Dr. E. N. Van Kleffens, Foreign Minister of the Netherlands, for talks in Paris with French Foreign Minister Georges Bidault underlined the indications that some western European countries might be working toward a regional security pact. He also will see the Belgian Foreign Minister, Paul Henri Spaak.

Most diplomats here say they believe that Van Kleffen's visit will result first in an economic union agreement between France, the Netherlands, Belgium and Luxembourg, providing for consultation and co-operation in the rehabilitation of the economic life of the four countries.

In recent talks with Bidault in Paris, Spaak made it plain that Belgium favored a regional security alliance and emphasized that Dumbarton Oaks had made particular reference to regional arrangements. Luxembourg's Foreign Minister, Joseph Bech, has kept in close touch with French, Dutch and Belgian officials.

BRITISH CENSORSHIP HIT

Civil Liberties Group Asks Full News on Political Actions

LONDON, March 17 (AP)—The executive committee of the National Council for Civil Liberties urged today that the Government give "full facilities to all newspapers to report not only military events but political and social developments in liberated countries."

The request, in the form of a resolution, will be submitted to the council's annual general meeting March 24. It will ask the Government to limit censorship to the bounds of military security.

Another proposed resolution would demand that the British Government refrain from interfering "to hamper the efforts" of liberated countries in working out their own democratic development.

11-Ton Toll Estimate Up

London, March 17 (AP)—Britain's new 11-ton volcano bombs, used for the first time last Tuesday, caused greater damage than was at first realized, the Air Ministry said today.

The target was two parallel railway viaducts at Bielefeld, on the main line between Hannover and the Ruhr. Three spans of one of them had been destroyed in earlier attacks.

"Now, as a result of the March 14 attack, both viaducts have been wrecked over a length of more than 100 yards—nearly one third the overall length of the structure," the Air Ministry reported after studying reconnaissance photographs.

"Great piers supporting seven of the spans of the southern viaduct have entirely disappeared," it said. "Only the stumps remain of piers which carried seven spans of the other."

STRICTER RATIONING ASKED FOR BRITAIN

LONDON, March 17 (AP)—The British Council of Churches appealed today to Britons to accept "even more stringent" rationing to relieve the ill-clothed millions in liberated areas of Europe.

The council appealed "to the members of the churches represented on the council, and beyond them, to all men of good-will to regard this as a matter of personal responsibility and to make known to his Majesty's Government through their members of Parliament or otherwise their readiness to accept such restrictions as may contribute to a speedier relief of the sufferings of liberated peoples."

The appeal added:

"The disturbing facts remain that the standard in calories per head per day officially aimed at for the liberated areas is substantially lower than that which governs British rationing and that the rationing as yet achieved in those areas falls far below even the standard aimed at.

"Moreover, immediate military exigencies might quickly become entangled with political problems, the difficulties of the military commands being accentuated by the attitude of the inhabitants embittered by prolonged sufferings."

London, March 17 (AP)—The British Department of Overseas Trade estimated today that United States export trade by 1948 would be one third more than it was in 1938 and imports would be $4,500,000,000, compared with $7,000,000,000.

In a survey designed to aid British firms with their postwar export plans, the department concluded that America will "emerge from the war more nearly self-sufficient industrially and more export-minded."

It advocated that Great Britain develop a new range of exports "based upon recent inventions in order to tap new areas of potential sales" and urged revision and improvement of British merchandising methods.

Rich, Difficult Market

"It is essential," the department said, "that the United Kingdom exporters insure that their goods shall be presented by methods similar to and wholly as efficient as those used by U.S.A. distributors operating in the U.S.A.

"The U.S.A. offers a rich but not an easy market. Competition for the consumer's dollar is intensive. 'Made in Britain' is a useful starting point in favor of sale of United Kingdom goods, but increased volume can be attained only by combination of this initial advantage with what is most modern and effective in sales technique."

SKAGERRAK ACTION HINTED

British Warships Said to Have Seized Six Swedish Boats

LONDON, March 17 (AP)—The Berlin radio said today British warships were operating in the Skagerrak, strategic waterway between Denmark and Norway through which the Germans have been withdrawing troops from Norway.

The broadcast, quoting a Transocean news agency dispatch from Stockholm, Sweden, said the warcraft were clearing the waters of fishing boats. It said six Swedish fishing craft had been seized and towed to England.

The report said the chief of the Swedish Navy had ordered all fishing boats to proceed to waters east of the German blockade zone, which extends to within sight of the Swedish coast. There was no confirmation of any such Allied naval activity in London or Stockholm.

Mystery Collier Saves 57 In Ammo Ship Fire

London, March 17 (AP)—A gasoline and ammunition-laden ship collided recently with an anchored vessel in the English Channel.

As an 80-mile-an-hour gale buffeted the ships, gas and munitions on one ship exploded and burned and bullets ricocheted in all directions. Coastal towns shook from the blast.

As townspeople watched, an unknown collier came alongside the "floating furnace." Ignoring the flying bullets and flaming falling debris, men of the unknown vessel saved 57 of the crew. Five were lost.

Fireboats fought the fire on the ship for six days before bringing it under control.

Bad News In Two Letters

Bradford-On-Avon, England, March 17 (AP)—Mrs. W. E. Sadd, widowed mother of eight children, received two War Office letters today. Each reported a soldier son killed—Private Eric, 21, in Burma, and Private Ronald, 28, on the Western front.

Dublin Celebrates A Dry St. Patrick's

Dublin, March 17 (AP)—The shamrock-wearing Irish jammed the streets of Dublin today in celebration of St. Patrick's Day that was gay, but dry.

All saloons were closed and citizens who wished to "drown the shamrock" in traditional style had to partake of a previously acquired private supply.

Every flagstaff in the city bore the national colors. There were military parades and games.

Premier Eamon de Valera and all his ministers were cheered by the holiday throngs as they went to the Cathedral.

TANK FORCE FIGHTS FOR ITALIAN TOWN

1st Armored Division Shelled Out After Taking Buildings

Rome, March 17 (AP)—Patrols of the Allied 5th and 8th armies engaged in sharp clashes with German units all along the rapidly drying Italian front today after forces of the United States 1st Armored Division made an unsuccessful effort to capture Salvaro, a small town just east of the Bologna-Pistonia highway.

The 1st Armored, which took part in the breakout at Anzio and the swift pursuit of the Germans through Rome, gained temporary control of a number of buildings in Salvaro, which is only a few hundred yards from the highway at a point well behind the stubbornly defended German positions at Vergato.

Heavy German mortar and small-arms fire from the town and adjacent hill positions forced the withdrawal later.

Centers Around Church

The main fight centered around a thick-walled church, to which the Germans clung stubbornly although the Americans at one time held a portion of the building.

Today's mention of the 1st Armored Division was the first official word in months of the famed tank outfit, which has been immobilized by the weather and terrain. Some of the tankmen had been helping supply infantrymen up in the hills, often carrying packs of ammunition and food on trails which mules could not negotiate.

On the 8th Army front a German patrol made a strong raid on Allied positions on the east bank of the Senio River at San Polito, but was driven off with heavy casualties. Eighth Army mortars harassed German positions in the hills south of Highway 9.

YANKS LOSE SALVARO

Rome, March 17 (A. P.).—Troops of the United States First Armored Division yesterday broke into the village of Salvaro near the Bologna-Pistoia highway behind the German-held road-crossing town of Vergato, but later were forced to withdraw, Allied Headquarters announced today.

The Germans have clung stubbornly to Vergato for months. It controls the southwest approaches to Bologna. Allied capture of Salvaro would virtually isolate the Vergato garrison.

The Americans entered the town after driving from Serra, captured the day before. For a time they controlled a number of buildings in the town. They withdrew after suffering a number of casualties.

Northern Italians Warned

ROME, March 17 (AP)—Italians in northern Italy who obey German orders and destroy or dismantle industries may be held liable for trial as traitors when the region is liberated, the Italian government warned today.

Col. Hine Receives DSC in Italy

With the Fifth Army, Italy, March 17, (A. P.)—Col. H. C. Hine, Jr., of Livingston, N. J., has received the DSC, the nation's second highest military honor, for extraordinary heroism in action onthe Fifth Army front in Italy. Col. Hine, a West Point graduate and Commander of the 168th (Rainbow) Regiment of the Thirty-fourth (Red Bull) Division, was cited for tactical brilliance and personal disregard for heavy enemy fire during the five successive days his regiment spearheaded the Thirty-fourth Division's drive toward the Po valley.

Illness Forces Pope To Cancel Audiences

Vatican City, March 17 (A. P.).—A slight illness forced Pope Pius XII to suspend audiences today and remain in his private chambers, where he worked on an address which he will deliver tomorrow from a balcony overlooking St. Peter's Square in a ceremony marking the end of missions held by Rome parishes. The address, mainly religious in nature, is expected to last about twenty minutes. It is scheduled to be delivered about 4:30 P. M. Rome time (11:30 A. M. Eastern war time) and will be broadcast by the Vatican radio.

Benes, en route to his homeland after a six-year exile in Britain, was greeted by Soviet Foreign Commissar Vyacheslav M. Molotov on the snow-covered airfield here.

"The path to a free Czechoslovakia lies through Moscow and the Soviet Union, whose gallant armies, with the aid of their allies, are liberating Europe," Benes said. "I am confident our complete liberation is near."

Flags of the Soviet Union and Czechoslovakia flew over airport buildings. A Red Army band struck up the national anthems of the two countries and an honor guard of infantry marched past with fixed bayonets.

Officials Joined Party At Baku

Two representatives of the Soviet Foreign Affairs Commissarat, F. F. Molochkov and A. M. Abramov, traveled with the party to Moscow from Baku. The Czechoslovak Ambassador, Zdando Fierlinger, also had joined the party there.

Benes was accompanied by Premier Jan Sramek, Foreign Minister Jan Masaryk and the Ministers of Justice, Agriculture, Social Security and Economic Reconstruction.

Benes expects to stay in Moscow a week or ten day, but hopes to reach his own country by April 1. Most of the provisional Government's personnel is en route from London to Kassa (Kosice) via Romania, together with the diplomatic missions of the United States, Britain, France and China.

Anticipating rather crowded conditions in Kassa, temporary government seat in eastern Slovakia, the Czechoslovaks are looking forward to spring operations by the Red Army that may free rapidly most of Moravia and Bohemia from the enemy. A Czechoslovak army corps formed in the Soviet Union now is fighting alongside the Red Army in central Slovakia.

A considerable reorganization of the Government is believed certain to occur when Benes reaches Kassa. He has pledged to effect changes upon returning home to give more voice to those who had stayed in the country and fought the Germans.

Liaison With Both Councils

Slovak affairs have been largely in the hands of the Slovak National Council since last summer's revolt against the Germans. The Carpatho-Ukraine or Ruthenia, the easternmost province in Czechoslovakia, has been administered by the Carpatho-Ukraine National Council, and the London Government in exile has maintained liaison with both councils through a delegation dispatched from London last September.

The Slovak National Council includes both Communists and advocates of private enterprise. Spokesmen said they were agreed on support for a strong independent democratic Czechoslovakia state in which Slovaks would obtain a proportionate share of government posts and would staff public services within Slovakia.

United States Ambassador W. Averell Harriman, British Ambassador Sir Archibald Clark Kerr and Canadian Ambassador Dana Wilgress also exchanged greetings with the Czechoslovaks.

Third Ship Leaves Odessa

MOSCOW, March 17 (AP).—A third Allied transport has sailed from Odessa with American, British and French troops freed from German prison camps, the Russian Tass agency said today.

Press Freedom Mission Reports on Moscow Stay

Leaving Soviet Capital, Editors See 'Progress in Understanding'

MOSCOW, March 17 (AP).—The committee representing the American Society of Newspaper Editors left Moscow yesterday "with a definite belief that progress has been made in the field of mutual understanding and international newspaper relationships," its statement, released tonight, said.

The three committeemen, who spent a week in the Soviet capital conferring with government and newspaper officials, said they were told by "a high Soviet official" after an exchange of views:

"Having found a common ground on which to join in fighting Germany and having found common ground to join in building an international organization for world security, I don't see why we can't find a common ground on which to solve this problem which, in my opinion, is one of the lesser problems when compared to the other two."

The committee members are Wilbur Forrest, assistant editor of the New York Herald Tribune; Ralph McGill, of "The Atlanta Constitution," and Dean Carl Ackerman, of Columbia University Graduate School of Journalism.

SPANIARDS TALK OF WAR ON JAPAN

Lequerica Flies To Madrid To Confer With U.S. Envoy

Madrid, March 17 (AP)—Foreign Minister José Felix Lequerica interrupted a tour of southern Andalusia today and flew back here to confer with United States Ambassador Norman Armour, as Spaniards talked freely of going to war against Japan.

Armour will present his credentials to Generalissimo Francisco Franco next week, and preparations being completed pointed toward the ceremony as the greatest gesture of cordiality shown a United States envoy yet by this Government.

Touched Off By Jap Atrocities

Japanese atrocities and their raiding of the Spanish consulate in Manila touched off public belligerent talk and the anti-Japanese bitterness was reflected particularly in the press.

Francisco Lucientes, New York correspondent for the Spanish agency E.F.E., wrote that during their occupation of the Philippines, the Japanese "particularly in Manila, robbed, violated, tortured, burned and killed hundreds of thousands of innocent persons who didn't even belong to nations at war with Japan."

At "War With Civilization"

"It appears from Japanese activities that they are not fighting any particular nation, but are directly and cruelly at war with the occidental Christian civilization," he concluded.

Another writer said the "present outrage comes while the Spanish Government is trying to improve her relations with the Allies and might well serve as the motive for a Spanish declaration of war on Japan."

Spaniards Reported For War With Japan

Madrid, March 17 (AP)—Jose Felix Lequerica, Foreign Minister, cut short a tour of southern Andalusia today and flew back to Madrid to confer with Norman Armour, United States Ambassador, as Spaniards talked openly of war with Japan.

The press gave special prominence to articles by their correspondents in America on Japanese activities in the Philippines, especially the raiding of the Spanish consulate at Manila.

Arriba, organ of the Falange (state) party, recalled that Generalissimo Francisco Franco "expressed his disgust" to the former United States Ambassador, Carlton J. H. Hayes, over "Japanese activities in the Philippines, although for one reason or another he did not condemn them publicly."

SPAIN LIMITS CIRCULATION

Ceiling of 18,000,000,000 Pesetas Set by Finance Minister

MADRID, March 17 (AP)—Finance Minister Joaquin Benjumea, for the first time since the end of the civil war, has set by decree a ceiling of 18,000,000,000 pesetas for Spanish fiduciary circulation, it was announced today.

This will permit an increase in banknotes of 270,753,672 pesetas over the circulation given in the Bank of Spain balance as of last Dec. 31, amounting to 17,729,246,328 pesetas. The latter was an increase of 1,347,908,676 pesetas over the balance at the end of 1943. (The Spanish peseta before the World War was quoted in New York foreign exchange transactions at the equivalent of slightly more than 9 cents.)

The decree, signed by Señor Benjumea and Generalissimo Francisco Franco, said it was the government's right to establish a ceiling on circulation at any time "in order to keep alive public vigilance on such an important function" of the central bank.

1,200 FREED GI'S HEAD FOR HOME

Were Held In Poland—Boat Arrives In Middle East

Cairo, March 17 (AP)—Approximately 1,200 Americans who were freed from German hands by the Russian advance, arrived at a Middle East port five days ago and are now en route to the United States, it was permitted to be disclosed today.

Happy scenes occurred as the repatriation ship docked. The Americans and about 400 British ex-prisoners jammed the vessel's rails and were perched high in the rigging.

Exuberantly they hurled requests for special numbers to the British service band which greeted them with a blare of music on the dock. The bandsmen did not know many of the newest swing tunes demanded by the repatriates—and where the Americans had learned them, words and all, was a minor mystery.

In Winter Fur Caps

The liberated men appeared in good physical condition, despite the hardships and dangers they had but recently survived while escaping from Nazi guards or prison pens and making their way in the midst of battle to the Red Army lines. They were outfitted in the patchwork remains of Allied uniforms, including items of Red Army issue. In the latter category, most noticeable were the winter fur caps with upturned flaps.

When the ship docked, a pontoon bridge was rigged from the quay and across this the British fled ashore. The Americans remained aboard.

Sudden German Panic

Some of the United States soldiers had been in German hands for more than two years. Others, who were caught during the winter Ardennes offensive, had been held by the Nazis for only a little more than a month.

Generally their stories were the same. They told of a sudden German panic as the Soviets approached and a decision to march the prisoners back into Germany across Poland's frozen plains. Their nervous guards themselves were afraid of being captured by the Russians and did not attempt to hunt for those who managed to escape from trains and marching columns.

Palestine Statement At Arab Parley Likely

Cairo, March 17 (AP)—The conference of Arab nations beginning today in Cairo is expected to produce a statement on Palestine and a demand that Syria and Lebanon be included in the World Security Conference at San Francisco next month.

The conference also is expected to approve the establishment of Arab propaganda bureaus in Washington, London and possibly the Vatican.

Nazi Gauleiter Takes To Cave in Denmark

Stockholm, March 17 (A. P.).—The Free Danish Press Service said today that S. S. District Chief K. B. Martinsen, commander of the Nazis' so-called Danish Free Corps at the eastern front, and his adjutant had fled from the front and now were living under ground on the Danish island of Fyn. Martinsen attempted to make contact yesterday with the Danish Freedom Council and offered to provide secret information if the underground would assist his escape, but the council refused, the agency said.

BRITISH REPORTED INSIDE SKAGERRAK

Stockholm, March 17 (A. P.).—A Swedish Foreign Office spokesman said today the Government had no information concerning a report that British warships operating in the Skagerrak had seized six Swedish fishing boats and towed them to English ports. The report was first published in the Goteberg Posten. The Stockholm newspaper Tidningen said that discussions would be started immediately in London for release of the boats and crews.

POLLING PLACES JAMMED IN FINNISH ELECTION

HELSINKI, March 17—(AP) The Finns jammed polling places in great numbers today and political observers predicted that at least 70 per cent of the qualified 2,200,000 persons would cast ballots in an election generally considered "crucial" for Finland's future.

No incidents were reported anywhere in the country and the polls will remain open until 8 p. m. Sunday in this first parliamentary election in almost six years.

Premier Juho Paasikivi, who has demanded that the voters throw out of the 200-member parliament all those responsible for taking Finland into war on the side of Germany, waited in line at his polling place for an hour and a half.

Helsinki Crowds Sing Red Anthem

Helsinki, March 17 (A. P.).—Singing the "Internationale," 5,000 or more persons marched through Helsinki's downtown streets last night on the eve of a two-day election at which a new Finnish parliament will be chosen. The voting today and tomorrow represents the first parliamentary election the country has since 1939.

INDO-CHINA LINK IN PERIL

Chinese Capture Of Funan Threatens Japs' Route

Chungking, March 17 (AP)—Chinese press dispatches said today that Japanese communications with French Indo-China were seriously threatened by the recapture of Funan, 30 miles southwest of Nanning, by Chinese forces.

The Chinese high command said Chinese troops had reached the outskirts of Kanhsien in eastern Kiangsi province and that the Japanese were retreating from the town.

Other press reports said a Japanese attempt to land troops March 9 on Pingtan Island, southeast of Foochow in Fukien province, had been repulsed. Three enemy landing barges were declared captured and a fourth sunk.

Chinese sources said patriots on the night of March 7 blew up the Japanese consulate at Ichang, a Yangtze River port, killing fourteen Japanese officers and a radio operator and destroying a radio station.

Other advices reaching Chungking said some inhabitants of Formosa cities most likely to be raided by American bombers had fled to the countryside and that Japanese authorities on the island were executing anyone breaking new defense regulations.

France Recognizes Korean Government

Chungking, March 17 (A. P.).—France has extended recognition to the Korean Provisional Government at Chungking, heretofore not recognized by any other nation, Korean Foreign Minister Tso Jo-wang announced today. He appealed to other nations to follow suit and said his regime would insist on representation at the San Francisco conference.

FOE IN MANDALAY LOSES SOUTH ROAD

CALCUTTA, India, March 17 (AP)—The Second and Twentieth Divisions of the British Fourteenth Army, advancing on the south bank of the Irrawaddy River against disorganized Japanese resistance, have captured Ava and cut the main southern communications from Mandalay, Southeast Asia Command headquarters announced today.

Indian Thirty-third Corp troops were reported to have occupied Sagaing, opposite Mandalay. The enemy in this area was described as bewildered by the swift British thrusts and completely lacking centralized control.

The cutting of the main highway south of Mandalay is the third block thrown across enemy escape routes to the south by the Fourteenth Army. East of Mandalay the Japanese also are blocked at Maymo and Lashio, and another block is about to be thrown across the road at Hsipaw, where Chinese troops are within three miles of the highway and meeting light resistance.

With these southern and eastern routes sealed, the Japanese trapped in the Pakokku-Mandalay-Meiktila area of central Burma face the prospect of a long trek through jungle without supplies or a battle to the death in the Irrawaddy bend region.

Another threat to the beleaguered Japanese garrison at Mandalay developed as British troons worked their way across the areas southeast and southwest of Fort Dufferin. Opposition from within the fort seemed to be slackening under assaults by artillery and rocket-firing planes.

British troops north of Mandalay on the Lashio Road are approaching Mogok, their progress delayed by Japanese suicide parties.

A determined enemy attack from the north on one of the eight airfields now held by the British in the Meiktila area was broken easily by tanks which overran the Japanese posittions.

Mandalay Highway Cut By British

Calcutta, March 17 (AP)—British 14th Army troops have cut the main highway due south of Mandalay and have advanced from a bridgehead on the left bank of the Irrawaddy into Fort Ava, about 4 miles southwest of the city, after a stiff battle, the Southeast Asia Command announced today.

Other troops continued pressure on the area southeast and southwest of Fort Dufferin inside Mandalay. Fighter planes struck the fort yesterday with rocket projectiles, and repeated attacks were made on enemy positions. Buildings on the city's outskirts were destroyed and troops and road traffic were heavily bombed and strafed below Mandalay.

Arms Dump Blasted

Twenty-five miles south of Mandalay planes attacked enemy positions on the rail line to Rangoon, causing a big explosion in an ammunition dump.

In the Meiktila area south of Mandalay Japanese forces counterattacked British troops from the north, achieving some infiltration, but yesterday British armored columns restored the situation completely, inflicting heavy casualties, the communiqué said.

AMERICAN TROOPS INVADE BASILAN

Jap Casualties in Philippines Total 282,000, MacArthur Reports.

MANILA, Sunday, March 18 — (AP) American invasion of Basilan island, across a 12-mile strait from captured Zamboanga on southwest Mindanao, was announced today in a communique showing Japan has lost 282,000 troops thus far in the five-month Philippine campaign.

Basilan, northernmost island in the Sulu archipelago which stretches between Mindanao and Borneo 215 miles to the southwest, guards the southern approaches to Zamboanga, where American aircraft already are using the airfields.

Japs Lose 145,000 Troops

The Japanese lost 145,000 troops dead and captured in the first nine weeks of the campaign on Luzon island alone.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur, making the announcement in a communique today, said this is the equivalent of 11 Japanese divisions, including supply and other auxiliary troops.

American losses for the same five-months were given as 3,813 killed, 196 missing and 14,570 wounded—a total of 18,579.

The communique announced general advances on all Philippine fighting fronts and widespread bombing operations.

On Luzon the 25th and 32nd Infantry Divisions were meeting increasing resistance in their converging drive on the Balete pass, which leads into the extensive Cagayan valley of northern Luzon.

Shell Baguio Positions

Artillery shelled enemy positions around Baguio, reported headquarters of Japanese Lt. Gen. Tomoyuki Yamashita, but spared the city, which is the Philippine Summer capital. Attack and fighter planes raked enemy installations in the area and set a truck concentration afire.

On Mindanao, Maj. Gen. Jens A. Doe's 41st Division infantrymen steadily reduced enemy positions in a general advance and quickly repulsed counterattacks in the Pasonanca sector, five miles inland from the invasion beach.

Announcement that American planes were using the airfields near Zamboanga meant heavy bombers were, or soon would be, based within easy range of the Japanese-held petroleum centers and airdromes on northern Borneo.

Drop Half-Ton Bombs

The heaviest aerial blow reported in the communiqué was against Formosa and the adjacent Pescadores Islands. Thousand-pound bombs, included in the 243 tons dropped on the Ansan naval base and other installations at Mako, Pescadores, caused large explosions. Flames and smoke spurted 6,000 feet high.

Patrol bombers winging north of Formosa sank two large coastal vessels in the Okinawa Island region of the Ryukyus, set a 2,000-ton freighter afire and damaged four smaller cargo vessels. They destroyed or damaged five enemy torpedo boats.

Baguio In Range Of Big Guns

lery to within 8 miles of Baguio and today can drop shells into the former Philippine Commonwealth's summer capital.

The 33d—a former Illinois National Guard division—has tightened its nutcracker by pushing toward the famed mountain city from both west and south.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur's communiqué reports that the 32d Division is probing the mountains from the southeast.

Maj. Gen. Leonard F. Wing's 43d Infantry Division meanwhile is delivering a smashing double-pronged blow against the Japanese in the Shimbu Line east of Manila, while an amphibious operation has been made in southern Luzon.

Yamashita's HQ

Installations around Baguio, Lieut. Gen. Tomoyuki Yamashita's headquarters, have been bombed and shelled heavily. As yet the city has been spared.

The advance of the 33d has been slow—13 miles in a month—but the methodical gain has been made through difficult mountain terrain filled with Japanese ambush parties. The going has been made more difficult by the systematic blowing up of bridges, although the 300-foot steel-and-concrete Aringay span was captured by a surprise night move.

More than 50 Liberator bombers dropped 243 tons of explosives on the Ansan naval base at Formosa and on adjacent islands. Some planes from MacArthur's Southwest Pacific theater ranged up to Okinawa, midway between Formosa and Japan.

General Wing's 43d has destroyed the entire south flank of the Shimbu Line around Antipolo. Other elements bypassed Teresa, which is on a highway between Antipolo and Laguna de Bay, then swung back to the highway at Maybancal. Combined with the seizure of a road network around Teresa, the action cut Japanese escape routes toward southern Luzon.

Water Jump

In the amphibious operation, elements of Brig. Gen. Hanford MacNider's 158th Regimental Combat Team made a water jump from Lemery on Balayan Bay to land 9 miles south at Dagatan, on the west coast of Calumpan Peninsula. This action, a little over 50 miles south of Manila, extends American domination over Verde passage, along the main sea supply route through the Philippines.

Today's communiqué reported an advance of 2 miles north of San Ramon in the Zamboanga area of Mindanao.

Sixth Takes Heavy Toll.

The deadly effectiveness of heavy American artillery and mortar fire was shown today on the Sixth Division's front where one mountain ravine yielded 175 dead Japanese after a barrage.

The same division killed and counted 341 Japanese yesterday for its best day's score in twenty-three days fighting east of Manila.

A big artillery duel is under way now. Japanese heavies fired 360 rounds into the division's sector yesterday while the Sixth's artillery is answering with hundreds of rounds. Aircraft is also giving effective and concentrated support.

O. W. I.'s Manila Paper Suspends, Its 'Job Done'

Move Follows Protests Over Commercial Policy

MANILA, March 17 (AP).—The Office of War Information newspaper "Manila Free Philippines" announced today it would suspend publication next Tuesday because "our job is done." Saying that its function was the temporary dissemination of news until local papers appeared regularly, it added that at least fourteen newspapers now are publishing in Manila, including three in English, seven in Chinese, two Tagolog and two Spanish.

The announcement came five days after the "Free Philippines" turned commercial, thereby precipitating a small controversy in Manila newspaper circles. Some local editors asserted the commercial policy meant unbeatable competitoin from a government agency and consequently hampered attempts to re-establish Manila's press.

NINE KOBE PLANTS LEVELLED IN RAID

Superforts Set Great Fires in 12 Square Mile Area

21ST BOMBER COMMAND HEADQUARTERS, Guam, Sunday, March 18—(AP) Great fires set in a 12 square mile vital area of Kobe, Japan's leading shipbuilding city, by more than 300 Superfortresses yesterday still cast [illegible] smoke pall for photographic checking but latest evidence on last Wednesday's raid on Osaka showed nine of its 14 vital war installations wiped out.

Headquarters disclosed today that new reconnaissance photographs of the destruction wrought by 300 B-29s with more than 2,000 tons of incendiaries at Osaka showed conclusively that seven and eight tenths of a 10 square mile target area was burned out.

Hit War Industries

Among installations destroyed were the Osaka metal industry, Kubota iron and machine works, Nakahama steel company, Nitta leather belt manufacturing works, the Hatsudoki engine works, Japan diestuff manufacturing company and the Fukuzaki steam power plant.

However, the great Osaka arsenal was still standing making it evident that the explosions which bounced the 60-ton Superforts high in the air over the target came from some other source, possibly a chemical plant, more probably an ammunition ship.

The fact smoke still obscured Kobe, where docks, a locomotive works and an aircraft plant were among targets hit with 2,500 tons of incendiary bombs, was regarded by the command as encouraging.

The only target identified in a completely devastated one and nine-tenths square miles of Kobe, photographed through a clear spot in the smoke pall, was the Kawasaki locomotive and power company.

Fires raged for more than seven hours after the Superforts hit Kobe.

The Kobe raid, fourth great air assault on Japanese cities in eight days by Marianas-based planes, was the second of the day on vital Nipponese war centers.

B-29s Hit Rangoon

About 100 B-29s of the 20th Bomber Command in India, pounded Rangoon, enemy-held supply base in Burma. The Rangoon strike, fourth against this city, produced "good results."

Japan's imperial headquarters said the flames in Kobe were "practically" under control seven hours after the mass attack by Superforts of the 21st Bomber Command.

Returning fliers reported the Kobe fires were visible 150 miles as they departed Nippon's biggest port on the Japan inland sea.

The bomb load dropped on Kobe brought to 8,800 the total tonnage of incendiaries cascaded on four cities in eight days. Tokyo, Nagoya and Osaka were the previous targets.

Fires in Kobe swept over the big Mitsubishi aircraft plant, the Kawasake locomotive factory and the dock area.

Maj. Gen. Curtis E. LeMay, commander of the 21st Bomber Command, said reports of fliers and of Col. W. H. Blanchard, operations officer who remained over the target for two hours, indicated one nine-square mile area was in ashes and another three-square miles was badly hit.

12-Square-Mile Area Of Kobe Set Afire

21st Bomber Command, Guam, March 17 (AP)—Twelve square miles of Japan's greatest shipbuilding center, Kobe, was set afire or reduced to ashes by more than 300 Superforts today. Fires were visible 100 miles.

The conflagration, created by 2,500 tons of incendiaries, was second only to Tokyo's 17-square-mile holocaust in the 21st Bomber Command's intensified war on the Japanese homeland.

In only eight days, Superforts also have destroyed five square miles of industrial Osaka and two square miles in the heart of Nagoya. That 36-square-mile area of devastation in four enemy cities is nearly equal to the combined total area of Albany, N.Y., nineteen square miles, and Jersey City, N.J., 21. It equals 65 per cent of Pittsburgh's 55 square miles.

Observation Flight

Col. W. H. Blanchard, operations officer of the 21st Bomber Command, who flew over Kobe from 4 to 6 A.M. (Japan time) while the raid was in progress, reported that even as his observation B-29 left the target several square miles already had been reduced to ashes. Flames were devouring more miles of factories, shipyards and other war plants.

That 12 square miles represented about 75 per cent of long, narrow Kobe's total area. The city, which has a population of 1,000,000, extends 10 miles along the inland Japanese sea and is 1 to 3 miles wide.

Among the flaming targets were the Mitsubishi airplane plant and Kawasake locomotive plant, both fired by direct hits from the third B-29 over the city, and the dock area, set blazing by the second Superfort.

City Blacked Out

Great fires immediately lighted up the city, which was blacked out as the raiders approached.

Blanchard made his report to Maj. Gen. Curtis E. Lemay, commander of the 21st Bomber Command, after checking the burning sectors of densely crowded Kobe against maps held in his lap while he flew over the target.

Lemay cautioned that the report was not conclusive.

He also reported that a reconnaissance plane today observed two large fires still burning in Osaka, presumably the result of Wednesday's incendiary attack on that city.

Osaka Near Kobe

Radio Tokyo said Osaka also was the target of B-29's again today, but that report was not confirmed here. Bomb-jittery Osaka, only 15 miles from Kobe, probably screamed a false alarm as the Superforts neared its sister industrial center.

The raid on Japan's sixth largest city was dedicated to Brig. Gen. Laverne (Blondie) Saunders, hero of the early Solomons aerial war and commander of the first Superfort force ever to attack Japan. Saunders, injured in an aircraft accident, is recuperating in Walter Reed Hospital, in Washington, D.C.

Jap Fighters In Action

Japanese fighter pilots, who showed no willingness to intercept the B-29's as they devastated great sections of Tokyo, Nagoya and Osaka, finally took to the air in strength as the first of the raiders were leaving Kobe.

Although first returning pilots said 45 to 50 fighters harassed them none of the American plants was known to have been lost. Clouds helped hide the Yanks speeding homeward.

Until the B-29's began their present highly destructive series of raids on Tokyo, Nagoya, Osaka and Kobe, they had been bombing from 25,000 to 35,000 feet altitude. But on their record eight-day firing of industrial centers they have bombed from only 5,000 feet, so low that the Japanese appear to have been baffled by the change in tactics.

Few Modern Buildings

Highly inflammable buildings covered about 90 per cent of the Kobe target area. Only ten per cent of the buildings—chiefly war factories—were of modern construction.

Kobe, unlike Tokyo, Nagoya, and Osaka, has no large rivers or canals. Three large reservoirs upon which it depends for water were believed dangerously low for fighting fires.

Japan's largest concentration of shipbuilding and marine engine factories is in Kobe. Other prime targets were its warehouse stores along the water front, and steel, rail, ordnance, chemical, machinery and rubber plants. The city is also an important railroad center.

SUPERFORTS DROP LEAFLETS ON JAPAN

HONOLULU, March 17—(AP)—Superfortresses, breaking through Japan's tight censorship, have dropped thousands of leaflets on the Nipponese homeland, telling civilians how to end the disastrous bombings of their cities.

Two of the leaflets were prepared in the Honolulu branch of the Office of War information.

"Force your leaders to bring an end to a hopeless war," one leaflet said.

"That is the best prevention against bombing."

The leaflets were scattered across Japan by B-29s on such fiery missions as the incendiary attacks on Osaka, Tokyo, Nagoya and Kobe.

Kuriles Hammered By Yank Warships

U. S. PACIFIC FLEET HEADQUARTERS, Guam, Sunday, March 18—(AP) Pacific fleet units bombarded Matsuwa island in the Kuriles Friday, causing a large explosion ashore and starting several fires, Adm. Chester W. Nimitz reported in today's communique.

Meantime, 150 Japanese survivors of the bloody conquest of Iwo Jima attempted to organize, presumably for a Banzai charge, but were dispersed with mortar fire, the Fleet Admiral added. The Japanese were discovered on the northern end of the island, where organized resistance ended two days ago with the Fifth and Third Marine divisions meeting.

Nimitz also said Iwo Japanese attempted to booby trap American installations.

Nimitz Awaits Details

As is customary while he awaits details of any naval action, Nimitz gave only the meagerest information regarding the strike at Matsuwa by warships. The ships engaged in the action probably were destroyers, although cruisers may have participated.

Japanese shore batteries fired at the U. S. Task force off Matsuwa, but failed to damage any American ships.

Matsuwa is an oyster-shaped island 200 miles southwest of Paramushiro in the center of the Kuriles chain of islands. It is about 10 miles long and five wide and its rugged terrain rises steeply to a peak of nearly 5,000 feet.

It is 1110 miles north of Tokyo.

It has been shelled twice previously by surface units of the U.S. 9th Pacific fleet, which made Friday's strike. Matsuwa first was shelled on June 12 and 13, last year, as Army and Navy bombers harassed Japanese on several of the Kurile islands.

Smash Japs On Iwo

Nimitz said smashing of the attempt by 150 Iwo Japanese to reorganize occurred at noon yesterday. Normally, Japanese make such attempts at night.

The attempt to booby trap American installations on Iwo occurred in rear areas. That possibly meant as far south as the Suribachi volcano area, where a sniper's bullet missed Marine Lt. Gen. Holland M. Smith by only 6 inches a few days ago. It was further proof of the Japanese ability to live many days in holes or caves and prove troublesome many days after an area has been militarily secured.

Marines Mop Up Jap Remnants On Iwo

Fleet Headquarters, Guam, March 17 (AP)—Volcanic little Iwo, won at a cost of 4,189 Marines killed, 15,308 wounded and 441 missing, already is paying off with quick dividends.

The Navy disclosed today that two airfields are in combat operation there within fighter plane range of Tokyo. The second one, in the center of the eight square mile island, was completed by engineers while the bloodiest engagement of the Pacific raged about them.

21,000 Japs Killed

Engineers finished it yesterday, the same day three Marine divisions crushed the last organized enemy resistance after 26 days of fighting in which more than 21,000 Nipponese were killed.

The big southern bomber field, captured on the second day of the invasion, has been in operation since February 26 and already 30 Superfortresses have made emergency stops there—halfway between bases in the Marianas and bombing targets in Japan.

Remnants Mopped Up

This morning's communiqué reported mopping up of enemy remnants on the north end of Iwo. Such operations probably will continue for some time.

CAMERA MAN HAILS IWO JIMA MARINES

SAN FRANCISCO, March 17 (AP)—Joe Rosenthal, Associated Press photographer, who saw Iwo Jima's bloodiest fighting and took a famous picture, came home today humble, he said, before the gallantry of the marines.

Mr. Rosenthal, member of the war-time still picture pool, made the historic picture of the marines raising the Stars and Stripes at the crater rim of Mount Suribachi. He had no chance to see the picture which he had taken of the flag raising or of the original landing operation. All films were sent undeveloped to a forward base.

When a radio message came from the base, "Fine pix flag raising," Mr. Rosenthal was pleased, but he thought the message referred to a picture which he had taken of the group of cheering marines under the flag. Several days afterward, at Guam, he learned that the flag raising picture was being acclaimed over the country.

"After looking at it, I think it is a good picture," he said. "I think it reflects credit on the marines. It symbolizes their gallant action. That was the toughest fight they ever had."

Mr. Rosenthal hit the beaches with the marines at Iwo Jima, as he had previous in other island assaults.

"On D-day plus 4," the photographer continued, "on the way back to the beach from the communication ship, a man pointed to the cliff of Suribachi. Marines, he said, were going up to plant the flag there. This was a very important strategic point, and it most significant that it had been captured.

"So, ashore, I hiked through the casually marked mine fields. Near the base of the mountain I met two Marine Corps photographers, and the three of us started up."

Men were preparing to raise the six-foot banner with its twenty-foot staff, the symbol for which Americans died.

"I pushed over to the inner edge of the crater rim," Mr. Rosenthal said, "so as to get a full angle of the pole being raised. I put two large rocks together and placed a ap sandbag on top, a place on which to stand so obstructions would be cleared.

"I waited and as the men swung the pole upward I took one shot at a fast exposure. As the pole straightened up I took another as the marines looked up at their accomplishment, and a third, of the full group gathered at the base, cheering."

Wants Memorial Like Flag Pho...

SAN FRANCISCO, March 17 (AP) —The Chronicle proposed editorially today that Joe Rosenthal's photograph of the Marines raising the United States flag atop Mount Suribachi be transformed into a war memorial for San Francisco. The newspaper observed: "We do not believe that because Joe Rosenthal made a great picture a great piece of sculpture necessarily will ensue. But without inspiration there can be no great memorial art."

Plot To Kill Cuban President Held Foiled; Dozens Arrested

Havana, March 17 (AP)—President Ramon Grau San Martin told a press conference today that a revolutionary plot, which was foiled yesterday with the arrest of the former army chief, Gen. Jose Eleuterio Pedraza and several dozen others, had as its primary aim the assassination of himself and the present army chief of staff, Maj. Gen. Genovevo Perez.

The President said he had no positive proof of the identities of all persons involved in the plot, but he ascribed the attempt to "capitalists" who had business deals with the régime of his predecessor in the presidency, Fulgencio Batista, now visiting in the United States.

"I have no positive proof of his (Batista's) participation," he added, "but neither do I have any that he is not involved."

Gratified At Bloodlessness

The President appeared calm as he told the newsmen in his usual soft-spoken manner that he was extremely gratified that the plot had been uncovered without the firing of a shot or any bloodshed.

He charged that members of Congress also were implicated, but he named neither the legislators nor the business men to whom he referred.

According to the President, the plotters had prepared their coup for today and had believed they could count on some army officers to support them with troops under their command.

Known Of For 20 Days

Grau confirmed reports that his Government had known of the preparations for the coup for twenty days and, at one time, had considered declaring a state of emergency in order to arrest some of the congressmen involved, whose parliamentary immunities prevent their being taken in ordinary circumstances.

The plan, he continued, began with a press campaign aimed at stirring dissatisfaction in the Army when several commanders were retired by order of the President, and large sums of money were spent in this phase.

The Government has not yet learned how Pedraza, who had been in Mexico, managed to return to Cuba, but it has proof that he had interviews with former officers and civilian supporters of the Batista regime.

Grau said Pedraza invited Gen. Abelardo Gomez, adjutant general of the Army, to take a hand in the revolt and that General Gomez had informed the President of what was afoot.

Col. Ruoerto Cabbera, commander of the 6th Regiment, also was invited to join the plot and, at Grau's request, pretended to do so and had an interview with Pedraza.

Grau said the accused would be brought before civilian courts.

Not To Interfere

Although he was critical of the part played by the press in the abortive revolt, the President said he did not wish to interfere with freedom of opinion, adding:

"My detractors want me to take severe measures so they can say abroad that there is a new dictator in Cuba. I know I have not taken over a bed of roses. My Government is in an open fight to the death between collective virtue and shamelessness."

Asked whether ex-President Batista would have guarantees that he could come back to Cuba after his foreign tour, Grau said, "Everybody has guarantees to come to Cuba and I give them guarantees to explain their behavior to the people—but the people also have guarantees to question their former rulers regarding their conduct."

Cubans In Plot Will Get Trial

Havana, March 17 (AP)—President Grau San Martin said last night that a fair trial will be given 30 former army and police officers, arrested yesterday in what the Government described as a plot to overthrow the administration.

The President, speaking from a terrace of the Presidential Palace, told a crowd of several thousand demonstrators that the alleged conspirators, including Col. Jose Eleuterio Pedraza, former army chief, would receive the punishment they merit.

Dr. Grau made the statements in reply to shouts from the crowd demanding Pedraza be killed. He asked the crowd to "be patient" and urged them to observe a "sensible and correct" attitude.

The Cuban Army and police had rounded up the men 48 hours after a close friend of former President Fulgencio Batista had been assassinated.

Absurd, Says Batista

SAN FRANCISCO, March 17 (AP).—General Fulgencio Batista, former President of Cuba, declared tonight it was "absurd—but you really could use the word stupid"—to think him connected with the recent abortive revolutionary attempt in his country, and said he wished deeply that order could be re-established.

Batista, here on a tour of the Americas that began last October when he lost the election to Dr. Grau, told The Associated Press "it is absurd to think me connected with such movements". He interrupted himself to say, "You really could use the word 'stupid,' although I would rather use the word 'absurd'," and then went on:

"It is absurd (for the revolutary) to conspire or pretend to start a revolution against a government elected by the people only six months ago, functioning with the Congress, with organized political parties and with the Constitution in force.

"It is absurd to think me connected with such movements after handing over the government to those whom the Cuban people elected.

"It also is absurd to pretend to involve in such a nuisance a man who has been guest of honor of the various American countries, a man who has visited them as a former president and who loved and loves democracy and freedom.

"Three times 'stupid,' but I would rather use the word absurd."

Batista expressed an urgent desire "that order be re-established, that individual rights be repected, that crimes be clarified, and that the people of Cuba have peace and progress."

Batista appeared clearly concerned over the turbulent political situation in his homeland, and expressed disgust that some of his former friends and associates had been involved in "this absurd business."

Brazil Adopts Subsidy Plan

Rio de Janeiro, March 17 (A. P.).—Official announcement was made today that the Brazilian coffee conference at its final session adopted a committee report providing for a subsidy plan under which coffee exports to the United States will be resumed at United States ceiling prices.

Under the plan the Government will subsidize coffee now held by exporters at 36 cruzeiros ($1.80) a sack, paying various subsidies to planters on their coffee.

Drought Cuts All Grain Crops Of Argentina

Buenos Aires, March 17 (AP)—Argentina is nearing the end of one her most disappointing crop years in recent times, as a result of prolonged drought, which has cut production of virtually all grains.

Excessive heat and lack of rainfall in late November, December and January knocked out prospects for normal yields of cereal crops which form the bulk of Argentina's exports.

Drought also has brought a reduction in meat production since animals died for lack of water or pasturage, or were sent to market before being properly finished.

Paraguay Accepts Parley Bid

ASUNCION, Paraguay, March 17 (AP)—Paraguay has accepted the invitation to the World Security Conference at San Francisco April 25. It was understood the delegation would be headed by Foreign Minister Cotor Horacio Chiriani.

Peruvian General Resigns

LIMA, Peru, March 17 (AP)—Gen. Eloy G. Ureta has resigned as inspector general of the Peruvian Army six months ahead of election day to enable him to run for the Presidency in accordance with the Peruvian Constitution requiring such resignations by a Presidential candidate.

REPRESENTATIVE GIVEN TO 3 JAP TERRITORIES

SAN FRANCISCO, March 17 — (AP) Japan's privy council today approved representation in the Nipponese diet (Parliament) for Korea, Formosa and Karafuto.

This wartime move, obviously aimed at encouraging loyalty to the Empire of the long-conquered peoples, was reported in a Domei news agency dispatch, recorded by the Federal Communications commission.

Korea and Formosa were seized by Japan long before the present war. Karafuto is the Japanese half of Sakhalin island, taken from Russia in the Russo-Japanese war. The northern half is still Russian.

NAVY PLANES HIT KYUSHU, SHIKOKU, JAPANESE REPORT

Two Southern Islands of Japan Pounded by Mitscher's Task Force.

AIR BATTLE RAGING

Enemy Says Planes Launch Heavy Attacks Against U.S. Carriers.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 17 — (AP) Suggesting the likelihood that Vice Adm. Marc A. Mitscher's carrier task force—the world's largest—has made its third close approach to Japan, the enemy radio reported carrier-based attacks Sunday, Japanese time, on Kyushu and Shikoku islands.

These two southern islands of Nippon are immediately south of Honshu, which was the object of the two previous Mitscher assaults, concentrated on Tokyo.

Planes Continue Attack

The unconfirmed enemy broadcast made it clear it was a continuing operation, Domei saying the carrier planes had "begun" the attack at 5 a. m. Sunday.

The broadcast added that an "enemy task force" is in waters south of Kyushu.

"Our air defense forces intercepted the enemy raiders and have already scored considerable war results," said the dispatch, recorded by the Federal Communications commission.

Domei said the Japanese air force had "caught up" with the task force and was "launching heavy attacks."

Germans Shuffle West Front Chiefs

A British broadcast today said German Gen. Johannes Blaskowitz had been transferred from the southern sector to an army group on the northern sector of the western front, and that Gen. Paul Hauser of the Waffen SS had succeeded him as commander in the south.

The broadcast, recorded by the OWI and reported by the Associated Press, said Hauser was the first SS general to command a German army group. Blaskowitz succeeded Gen. Kurt Student in a northern army command, it added.

Superforts Raid Rangoon

Washington, March 17 (AP)—Up to 100 B-29's hit Japanese military storage areas in Rangoon, Burma, today with what the 20th Air Force described as "good results."

It was the fourth assault on Rangoon and was carried out within a few hours of the devastating incendiary strike against Kobe, on the Japanese mainland.

All of the Rangoon bombers returned to their bases in India. The crews reported encountering no Japanese fighters and only meager flak.

The Burma raid, made by a sizable force from Brig. Gen. Roger M. Ramey's 20th Bomber Command, was a further step in a systematic blasting of military targets in Malaya, in which Singapore and Kuala Lumpur have felt heavy blows.

Liberators Used With B-29 Forces

Washington, March 17 (AP)—The Army Air Forces disclosed today that the two Superfortress commands are using B-24 Liberators to supplement the operations of the giant bombers.

A list of aircraft "in current use in the various theaters" included Liberator bombers for both the Marianas-based 21st Bomber Command and the Asia-based 20th Command.

The fact that the 21st Command—operating from Saipan, Tinian and Guam—also has B-24's is significant in view of the newly won American position on Iwo Jima, 750 miles south of Tokyo. The suggestion is that the 21st is ready to begin using Liberators against the Japanese homeland as soon as the airstrips on Iwo are ready.

When the Iwo airstrips are in full operation, they can be of use also for fighter planes escorting bombers attacking the enemy's home islands.

The announcement also shows that both the B-29 commands are using F-13 Superfortress reconnaissance planes—apparently a stripped-down version of the B-29.

Manila Letters Reveal Killing Of U.S. Civilians

Business Men and Woman Social Worker Among Pre-Liberation Victims

SAN FRANCISCO, March 17 (AP).—A wave of wanton killings of Americans by the Japanese in Manila in which two prominent business executives, a leading woman social worker and many others were executed during the week just prior to the arrival of American liberation forces is reported in letters reaching the United States from the Philippines.

Among those who were said to have met untimely death because they sought to aid fellow Americans and keep them from starving were:

Carroll C. Grinnell, of Albany, Far Eastern representative of International General Electric.

A. F. Duggleby, of Colorado and California, vice-president and general manager of the Benquet and Balatoc Gold Mining Companies.

Mrs. Blanche Jurika, the former Blanche Walker, of Los Angeles.

Californian Executed

The reports said among those executed with Grinnell and Duggleby was Clifford Larsen, of Los Angeles, assistant sales manager of the Atlantic Gulf and Pacific Company of Manila, a construction concern.

Mr. Grinnell was head of the internee executive committee at the Santo Tomas camp in Manila for more than a year. Mr. Duggleby was one of the chiefs of supply and finance in the camp food organization. Mrs. Jurika was widely known as a social worker, author and radio commentator.

A letter just received from Professor V. V. Clark, a mining engineer, well known in the West and South America, said Mr. Grinnell, Mr. Duggleby and a dozen other American internees were taken from the Santo Tomas camp, led to a vacant lot and shot into a common grave. Later the bodies were recovered by American soldiers.

Other Americans Vanish

Mr. Clark, who passed more than three years in the camp, wrote, "They were real men of the highest type and their end was so unjust." He added that the other bodies recovered from the trench grave "may clear up the disappearance of other Americans lately."

Other letters said Mr. Grinnell, Mr. Duggleby and Mrs. Jurika "died as heroes, trying to aid their suffering fellow men."

Mrs. Jurika, held as a special political prisoner, was executed by the Japanese just two days before American soldiers raided the place where she was confined.

Another ruthless execution by the Japanese was that of George Louis, twenty-seven years old, of San Jose, Calif., a Pan American Airways employee. He slipped out of the Los Banos camp one night in search of food. A Japanese sentry shot and wounded him. He was executed the next morning by order of the camp commandant.

Japan lost 145,000 troops dead and captured in the first nine weeks of the Luzon campaign, making a total of 282,000 in the entire Philippine operation covering five months, General Douglas MacArthur announced in a communique today.

This is the equivalent of eleven Japanese divisions, including supply and other auxiliary troops, MacArthur said.

American losses for the same five months were given as 3,813 killed, 196 missing and 14,570 wounded—a total of 18,579.

MacArthur also announced an American landing on Basilan Island, across a twelve-mile strait from captured Zamboanga on southwest Mindanao.

Basilan, northernmost island in the Sulu archipelago which stretches between Mindanao and Borneo 215 miles to the southwest, guards the southern approaches to Zomboanga, where American aircraft already are using the airfields.

Of the 10,000, only about 250 are United States citizens recruited in this country, but all are entitled to benefits under the Missing Persons Act passed by Congress in March, 1942. Many of them are entitled to three years' back pay. In the case of deceased employes, payments due to the victims will be paid to their beneficiaries.

American Civilians Freed in Philippines

Additional names of American civilians from the New York area released from internment camps in the Philippines were announced by the War Department yesterday through The Associated Press as follows:

EGNER, DORIS CHAPMAN; sister, Mrs. John T. Kast, Albion, N. Y.

Swedes Join Allied Shipping Pool

Washington, March 17 (AP)—Sweden has notified Washington and London of a decision to join the United Maritime Authority, which will put her ships more or less at the disposal of Allied war and postwar controls.

In so far as hauling war materials is concerned, however, the shipping will not become available until after Germany's defeat.

Put At Million Tons

The chief effect of Sweden's joining the shipping pool, therefore, will be to bring Swedish shipping into line with Allied postwar shipping plans and prevent unsupervised competition between the Swedes and the Allies.

Whereas London reports estimated Sweden's total shipping resources at 2,000,000 tons, authorities here placed the available tonnage at a little more than 1,000,000 tons. Many Swedish ships are now operating under Red Cross charter and some are sailing under charter to the United States in the Pacific.

Only Neutral Member

Stockholm already has sent a note stating its intention to join the UMA, but various formalities will have to be complied with first.

Then Sweden will become the ninth and only neutral member of the United Maritime Authority. Already in the pool are the United States, Britain, Belgium, Canada, Greece, the Netherlands, Norway and Poland.

Navy Hunts 10,000 Aides Freed From the Japanese

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 17—The Navy has started a "manhunt" for about 10,000 missing persons, former civilian employes, who were interned by the Japanese in Guam and the Philippines.

A mobile unit of the Bureau of Supplies and Accounts and representatives of the United States Employes Compensation Commission have left Washington for the Western Pacific in an effort to square the pay accounts of employes who were caught when the Japanese invaded those islands.

The Navy said that some of the captives had been transferred to Japan and were still out of reach, but many have been released by the advance of General MacArthur's forces.

Washington, March 17 (AP)—At least sixteen full-scale American air forces are carrying fire and destruction to the enemy around the globe.

Theater announcements have identified that number of major operating units.

And in Europe there is a "First Tactical Air Force" of different category.

Identified Forces

Identified and located air force numbers run consecutive through 15, then skip to the 20th, which is the B-29 Superfortress organization which General of the Army H. H. Arnold, air forces chief, personally heads.

Here are the major air force organizations and commanders in various areas:

Air Forces

Gen. H. H. Arnold, commanding general.

20th (Superfortress) Air Force, Washington, D.C., Gen. H. H. Arnold, commanding general.

21st Bomber Command (Marianas), Maj. Gen. Curtis E. Le May.

Continental (United States) Air Forces, Camp Springs, Md., Brig. Gen. Eugene H. Beebe, commanding general.

1st Air Force (Mitchel Field, N.Y.), Maj. Gen. Frank Hunter.

Far East Air Forces, Southwest Pacific, Lieut. Gen. George C. Kenney, commanding general.

5th Air Force, Maj. Gen. Ennis C. Whitehead.

13th Air Force, Brig. Gen. Paul Wurtsmith.

13th Air Service Command, Col. Thomas R. Lynch.

Caribbean Defense Command, Canal Zone, Lieut. Gen. George H. Brett, commanding general.

6th Air Force (Canal Zone), Maj. Gen. William O. Butler.

7th Air Force, Maj. Gen. Robert W. Douglass, Jr.

European Theater

9th Air Force, Maj. Gen. Hoyt S. Vandenberg.

9th Troop Carrier Command, Maj. Gen. Paul L. Williams.

Southeast Asia, Maj. Gen. George E. Stratemeyer, commanding general.

Alaskan Department, 11th Air Force, Maj. Gen. Davenport Johnson.

12th Air Force, Maj. Gen. John K. Cannon.

15th Air Force, Maj. Gen. Nathan F. Twining.

Phillips Resigns As American Envoy to India

Ambassador Was Reported Unwelcome to British After Plea for Freedom

WASHINGTON, March 17 (AP).—William Phillips, reports in the Senate last summer to have incurred British antagonism because of a free-India attitude, has resigned as President Roosevelt's personal envoy to India.

The White House offered no reason today in announcing Mr. Phillips's resignation, but it was recalled that "urgent family reasons," 'ncluding his wife's illness, were cited last fall when he returned to his Beverly, Mass., home.

It was said today that Mr. Phillips will continue to work with the State Department "in connection with important matters relating to the department and the foreign service."

Senator Albert B. Chandler Democrat, of Kentucky, replying on Sept. 2 to official denials that any request had been made for Mr. Phillips' recall, released what he described as a British telegram from New Delhi to London saying the envoy was unwelcome in India.

Both the State Department and British Ambassador Earl Halifax had denied at the time that Mr. Phillips was persona non grata because of reports that he had urged complete freedom from India in a letter to Mr. Roosevelt.

Senator Chandler made public reports of what he said was a letter from Mr. Phillips to the President asserting that the United States has a military stake in what happens in India and declaring: "It is high time they (the British) should make an effort to improve conditions and re-establish confidence among the Indian people that their future independence is to be granted."

Remarked Senator Chandler:

"If the British are going to be able tc force the recall of our diplomats merely because they submit truthful reports, I think we ought to know about it."

Mr. Phillips, regarded as one of this country's outstanding diplomats, was appointed to the New Delhi post in December, 1942, with the rank of ambassador. Before returning home he served briefly as political adviser to General Dwight D. Eisenhower in London.

1,200 Casualties Return Daily

Washington, March 17 (AP)—Battle casualties are being returned from overseas at the rate of 1,200 a day and there are approximately 50,000 more sick and wounded soldiers than there were three months ago. This was reported today by the Army in an appeal for more dietiicans and occupational therapists.

TARIFF MOVE SEEN AIMED AT BRITISH

Senators View Reduction Plan As Weapon Over English

Washington, March 17 (AP)—The Administration's bid for tariff-reducing authority looks to some senators like a move in the campaign to trade the British out of their empire-preference system. But that doesn't popularize it with the high-duty group.

With resumption of postwar international commerce in view, the State Department has asked for power to cut tariffs as much as 50 per cent under levels of last January 1, along with extension of trade agreements authority.

Chairman George (D., Ga.) of the Senate Finance Committee said it is his understanding the primary objective is to put the United States in a position where it can urge Britain to junk the scheme by which members of the Commonwealth give tariff preferences to each other.

Would Please Other Nations

In return, the State Department could promise tariff reductions that might be pleasing to the British, Australians, Canadians and others. But George said he expected the request for duty-cutting power to "aggravate" the usual Senate fight on reciprocal agreement authority.

Duties on some items which already have been reduced by one half from the level fixed by Congress in the Smoot-Hawley Act—last direct action by the legislators on tariff schedules—could be halved again under the proposed new authority. Thus they would represent charges only one fourth of what Congress approved in 1928.

While Administration leaders seem confident they can obtain House approval, there are signs of strong Senate opposition.

Senator Taft, of Ohio, chairman of the Republican Steering Committee, predicted that most minority members will fight extension of the trade agreements authority.

STETTINIUS ENDORSES FREE WORLD NEWS

WASHINGTON, March 17 (AP)—Secretary Stettinius "earnestly" hopes that the principle of free exchange of news will be included in international peace plans adopted by the United Nations at San Francisco in April.

He declared in a letter made public today by Joseph Leib of Arlington, Va., that international acceptance of the idea would be an important contribution toward lasting peace.

Mr. Leib, vice commander of the Vincent B. Costello Post of the American Legion, sponsored a resolution urging that "free press principles advocated by Kent Cooper, general manager of The Associated Press," be included in the peace treaty. Mr. Leib, who made public Mr. Stettinius' comment, had sent the Secretary a copy of the resolution. Mr. Stettinius' reply said:

"The whole question of freedom of information has been under study in the Department of State for some time. It is our view that the acceptance by the United Nations of the principle of free access to and free exchange of information would be an important contribution toward establishing a permanent peace."

Recalling that the inter-American conference at Mexico City adopted a resolution calling for free exchange of information, the Secretary added:

"I think you will agree that the acceptance of the principles urged by the United States delegation at this conference is a long step forward."

WORLD ORDER SEEN NEARER BY TRUMAN

Chicago, March 17 (A. P.).—Vice-President Harry S. Truman said today that the Big Three meeting at Yalta and the approaching United Nations conference at San Francisco "indicate progress along the road to world order." However, in an address prepared for a St. Patrick's Day meeting of the Irish Fellowship Club, the Vice-President added these cautions:

"Such an international organization must be created as soon as possible. We dare not postpone building storm shelters until storm clouds gather. We must not wait for a perfect international plan. Modern wars do not wait while statesmen plan future utopias. We must act and act promptly to check wars before they can get started. As we united in victory, we must unite in peace."

Mr. Truman said he felt confident that "just as the end of isolation in Ireland in St. Patrick's time was beneficial, so will the new era of international co-operation be a blessing for America and for the world."

"No nation on this globe should be more internationally minded than America," because it was built by all nations, he continued, and "in the light of history, it is not surprising that America has finally assumed world leadership."

Stating that "today America needs the benevolent aid of another St. Patrick," Mr. Truman said:

"Evil doctrines of discrimination frequently imported from gangster nations plague certain areas in America. Racial and religious intolerance is being preached and practiced here by agents of our enemies, as well as by innocent victims of their propaganda. With relentless determination, our deadly opponents still seek to apply the ancient doctrine of 'divide and rule' in their drive for world domination.

"Unfortunately, propaganda poison is exceedingly difficult to remove from our national bloodstream. The after-effects of this poison may be felt for years to come, especially if we do not recognize its danger and actively combat its spread. No nation on earth is more vulnerable to intolerance and bigotry than America, for no nation is composed of more diverse races and differing creeds than this land of the free."

backing these proposals with enthusiasm and conviction" as the best that can be attained now.

"Not A Peace Conference"

Grew expressed optimism over the forthcoming United Nations meeting at San Francisco, which he said "will not be a peace conference."

"There is no intention to consider at the San Francisco conference any specific issue, such as frontiers, or the terms of individual peace settlements."

The purpose of the conference, he continued, is to "establish machinery" for world security.

The Under Secretary, who spent ten years as Ambassador in Japan, warned against losing sight of the objective of peace by concentrating on details of carrying it out.

"Prone To Worship Medicine"

"The Americans are especially prone to worship the machine," he said. "Often we become so fascinated with its mechanism, so intent on improving it that we forget it is only a device."

Grew went back to Wendell Willkie for the keynote of his talk—"the discovery that the world is one."

"The men who died during the past five terrible years . . . would never have died if we had understood the meaning of one world. I think we understand it now."

U.S. Planes Best Nazi Jet Craft

Washington, March 17 (AP)—The War Department said today that since German jet-propelled fighter planes appeared in action last July only four American bombers and seven fighters have been lost to such attacks.

On the other side of the picture, American bombers and fighters have knocked out of the air 49 jet planes, with fighters destroying 55 more on the ground.

The Army added that in spite of the jet planes' great superiority in speed "our fighters have frequently bested them in aerial combat, through specially developed tactics and greater familiarity with the capabilities of their own aircraft."

Grew Decries Perfectionism

New York, March 17 (AP)—Joseph L. Grew, Under Secretary of State, called today for acceptance of the Dumbarton Oaks proposals because "they represent the greatest measure of agreement possible among ourselves and our great allies."

In a St. Patrick's Day address, Grew said, "we realize that the proposals are neither complete nor perfect."

However, he added, "we are

Return of MacArthur For Parley Is Predicted

Service Journal Says Enemy Push Is Expected in China

WASHINGTON, March 17 (AP).—"The Army and Navy Journal" predicted today that General Douglas MacArthur will come to Washington for conferences as soon as the situation in the Philippines allows.

General MacArthur, said the unofficial service journal, was the "one prominent figure absent from Washington" during recent conferences of military and diplomatic leaders of the Pacific and China theaters.

Discussing conditions in Asia, "The Journal" said there is "expectation that the Japanese will once more attempt to capture Kunming, the headquarters of our activities, cut the Burma Road and seize Chungking."

In this connection "The Journal" said that "thanks to the tact of Ambassador (Patrick J.) Hurley and General Wedemeyer (Lieutenant General Albert Wedemeyer, commander of American forces in China) there has been eradicated the ill-feeling which necessitated the recall of the blunt and able soldier," General Joseph Stillwell. The latter returned from his command in the former China-Burma-India theater after what President Roosevelt described as a difference of personalities involving Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek.

ATHLONE AND PRINCESS TO VISIT WHITE HOUSE

WASHINGTON, March 17 (AP)—The Earl of Athlone, Governor General of Canada, and his wife, Princess Alice, will arrive in Washington Thursday to be guests at the White House for three days.

The White House, in making this announcement today, said the visitors would be received with all the honors accorded the head of a State.

The reception to the Governor General will follow closely on the visit to the White House of Prime Minister Mackenzie King of Canada, who a few days ago returned to Ottawa after discussing Canadian-American relations with President Roosevelt.

Crown Princess Juliana of the Netherlands is due at the White House today to be a week-end guest.

DRAFT TO CALL MORE OVER 30

Need For Older Men Due To "Vital Deferments"

Washington, March 17 (AP)—Heavier drafting of men 30 and older from essential jobs was foreseen by selective service tonight as it authorized deferment of some 145,000 younger men in five vital war industries.

The Government broke its rule that not more than 30 per cent of workers in the 18-29 age group could retain deferments, for the benefit of the steel, coal mining, transportation, synthetic rubber and nonferrous mining industries, including copper, lead and zinc.

"It is obvious that if we don't get them under 30, we'll have to take the older men," said a selective service headquarters spokesman. "The draft calls are not being reduced."

From Lesser Lines

It is reasonable to expect, he stated also, that the older men drafted as combat replacements will not be drawn from the five preferred industries but from others rated less critical.

The new selective service instructions to state draft directors mean that the five industries named will get more than half as many deferments of young men as all essential industries previously were scheduled to receive. About 870,000 men aged 18-29, it is estimated, now are in the deferred 2-A and 2-B classes in industry.

Selective service punctured the 30 per cent ceiling upon recommendation of the inter-agency committee on deferments created by James F. Byrnes, War Mobilization Director, last month.

Navy Seeking Aid

The committee obviously is in for more trouble. Pressure for similar relief already is being exerted by the Navy in behalf of its critical production programs, and aircraft manufacturers are reported hammering for more protection of their young craftsmen.

The Federal agencies which control the five industries now will be permitted to issue deferment certificates to local draft boards, for men under 30, as follows:

War Production Board—60 per cent of young workers in steel and foundry operations, or 60,000 men; 67 per cent in copper, lead and zinc mines and smelters, or 10,000 men.

Solid Fuels Administration—"Almost all" young coal miners, or around 30,000 men, according to the National Coal Association.

85 P.C. On Railroads

Office of Defense Transportation—Possibly 85 per cent on the railroads, or some 41,500 men; 90 per cent in air transportation, or about 4,300 men; 90 per cent for Great Lakes shipping, and 80 per cent for inland waterways.

Rubber Reserve—Just twelve chemists and chemical technicians in synthetic rubber—the only deferments sought in that industry.

MacArthur Parley In D.C. Forecast

Washington, March 17 (AP)—The Army and Navy Journal predicted today that General MacArthur will come to Washington for conferences as soon as the situation in the Philippines allows.

MacArthur, said the unofficial service Journal, was the "one prominent figure absent from Washington" during recent conferences of military and diplomatic leaders of the Pacific and China theaters.

Discussing conditions in Asia, the Journal said there is "expectation that the Japanese will once more attempt to capture Kunming, the headquarters of our activities, cut the Burma Road and seize Chungking."

Lauds Hurley, Wedemeyer

In this connection the Journal said that "thanks to the tact of Ambassador (Patrick J.) Hurley and General Wedemeyer (Lieut. Gen. Albert Wedemeyer, commander of American forces in China) there has been eradicated the ill-feeling which necessitated the recall of the blunt and able soldier," Gen. Joseph Stilwell.

The latter returned from his command in the former China-Burma-India theater after what President Roosevelt described as a difference of personalities involving Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek.

NAVAL POWER UP THREEFOLD

At Least Nine American Fleets Range Oceans

Washington, March 17 (AP)—American naval might, grown threefold in striking power since war began, has pushed the nation's battle lines in ever-widening circles away from her home shores.

At least nine fleets now range the Atlantic, Pacific and Mediterranean waters, carrying the war to the enemy—a far cry from the days of the late twenties and early thirties when the three fleets, Atlantic, Pacific and Asiatic, then existing on organizational tables, scarcely mustered the strength of a single modern fleet.

Strength Military Secret

Strength and disposition of individual fleets remain a closely guarded military secret. An innovation of modern naval warfare which also contributes to the fluidity of seapower is the "task force," organized out of available forces to carry out a particular mission. Such a task force could range in size from a task unit, the smallest possible self-sufficient force, to a consolidation of two or more entire fleets.

All under Fleet Admiral Ernest J. King, commander in chief United States Fleet and chief of naval operations, the nine fleets which have been identified by the Navy are:

PACIFIC

Fifth Fleet, under Admiral Raymond A. Spruance.

Seventh Fleet, under Vice Admiral Thomas C. Kinkaid, who is also commander of Southwest Pacific Force.

Ninth Fleet, under Vice Admiral Frank Jack Fletcher, who is also commander of the Alaskan Sea frontier and the North Pacific area.

Four Fleets In Atlantic

ATLANTIC

Second Fleet, under Admiral Jonas H. Ingram, who is also commander in chief Atlantic Fleet.

Fourth Fleet, under Vice Admiral William R. Munroe, operating in South Atlantic waters.

MEDITERRANEAN

Eighth Fleet under Vice Admiral Henry K. Hewitt, who is also commander of United States naval forces in northwestern African waters.

Added Title For Nimitz

Fleet Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, commander in chief Pacific Fleet and Pacific Ocean areas, under whom is concentrated all Pacific naval operations, also has the title of commander of the 1st Fleet, though such a unit is not now in being.

No public announcement has been made of the existence of a 6th or an 11th Fleet.

A third major tactical naval organization is the amphibious force, which conducts the actual landing operation against enemy land bases.

Amphibious Commanders

Among the commanders of the more famous task groups were Vice Admiral John S. McCain, carrier task force of Admiral Halsey's 3d Fleet; Vice Admiral Willis A. Lee, Vice Admiral Marc A. Mitscher and Vice Admiral Jesse B. Oldendorf.

Other sea frontier commands include: Vice Admiral John H. Hoover, commander, Forward Area, Central Pacific; Vice Admiral Herbert F. Leary, commander, Eastern Sea Frontier; Vice Admiral David W. Bagley, commander, Hawaiian Sea Frontier and 14th Naval District; Vice Admiral Robert C. Giffen, commander Caribbean Sea Frontier and commandant 10th Naval District; Rear Admiral W. S. Anderson, commander Gulf Sea Frontier and commandant 7th Naval District, and Rear Admiral H. F. Kingman, commander Panama Sea Frontier.

NEW AIRFIELD MATS AID ALLIES IN EUROPE

JACKSON, Miss., March 17 (AP)—Airfields for Allied armies in Europe are provided rapidly through use of a new landing mat.

The mat is made of burlap, impregnated and coated with an asphalt material which is called PBS. It was partially developed by the United States waterways experiment station at Vicksburg, Miss. Called the "Hessian mat" in the European theatre of operations, it is a quarter-inch-thick surfacing which has been placed on more than 100 landing strips since D-day.

The material has taken the steady pounding of heavy military traffic, fighters, cargo planes and medium bombers, without the failure of a single field.

"An extraordinary feature of PBS is its simplicity of repair," said Brig. Gen. M. C. Tyler, president of the Mississippi River Commission, who also operates the Vicksburg station.

"Small repairs can be made by two men with a mop, a bucket of asphalt and a strip of PBS. Swab it, lay it, walk across it and the patch is made."

For larger repairs, such as bomb damage or soft spots formed by trapped water, the surface material is slit and folded back while the holes are filled in, then restored and sealed by the addition of fresh strips.

SPEED UP DRAFT OF MEN OVER 30

Deferments Eased for Young Men in Five Vital Industries.

WASHINGTON, March 17—(AP) Heavier drafting of men 30 and older from essential jobs was foreseen by Selective Service tonight as it authorized deferment of some 145,000 younger men in five vital war industries.

The government broke its rule that not more than 30 per cent of workers in the 18-29 age group could retain deferments, for the benefit of the steel, coal mining, transportation, synthetic rubber, and non-ferrous mining industries, including copper, lead and zinc.

"It is obvious that if we don't get them under 30, we'll have to take the older men," said a Selective Service headquarters spokesman. "The draft calls are not being reduced."

It is reasonable to expect, he stated also, that the older men drafted as combat replacements will not be drawn from the five preferred industries but from others rated less critical.

The new Selective Service instructions to state draft directors mean that the five industries named will get more than half as many deferments of young men as all essential industries previously were scheduled to receive. About 870,000 men aged 18-29, it is estimated, now are in the deferred 2-A and 2-B classes in industry.

Selective Service punctured the 30 per cent ceiling upon recommendation of the inter-agency committee on deferments created by War Mobilization Director James F. Byrnes last month.

The committee obviously is in for more trouble. Pressure for similar relief already is being emitted by the Navy in behalf of its critical production programs, and aircraft manufacturers are reported hammering for more protection of their young craftsmen.

The Federal agencies which control the five industries now will be permitted to issue deferment certificates to local draft boards, for men under 30, as follows:

War Production board — 60 per cent of young workers in steel and foundry operations, or 60,000 men; 67 per cent in copper, lead and zinc mines and smelters, or 10,000 men.

Solid Fuels administration: "almost all" young coal miners, or around 30,000 men, according to the National Coal Association.

Office of Defense Transportation —possibly 85 per cent on the railroads, or some 41,500 men; 90 per cent in air transportation, or about 4,300 men; 90 per cent for Great Lakes shipping, and 80 per cent for inland waterways.

Rubber reserve—just 12 chemists and chemical technicians in synthetic rubber — the only deferments sought in that industry.

Selective Service made its invariable reservation—that local draft boards still are autonomous and will use their own judgment in following the new formulas.

MEAT SUPPLIES CUT 12 PER CENT

Allotments for Civilians Reduced for Three Months Starting April 1.

WASHINGTON, March 17—(AP) Civilian meat supplies will be cut 12 per cent next quarter and steps taken toward ironing out unequal distribution.

The home table allotment is reduced to "the lowest point in 10 years" for the three months starting April 1, the government said. At the same time, subsidy payment adjustments to balance competition among slaughterers become effective.

This together with a plan soon to be formulated to apportion live animals among slaughterers eventually is expected to alleviate shortages in such areas as congested war production centers.

Less Beef, Pork Available

Less beef and pork will be available, said the announcement issued by the Office of War Information, but the civilian table will get more veal, lamb and mutton.

The War Food administration allotted meat to civilians for the April, May, June quarter at rate of only 115 pounds per person a year, compared with 130 pounds in the quarter now closing.

Simultaneously OWI announced a "substantial reduction" in Lend-Lease shipment of meat, and increased supplies for U. S. Army and Navy use.

Britain will get only 25,000,000 pounds of Lend-Lease meat next quarter, or about 12 1-2 per cent of present shipments. This evidently was based on the theory that British reserves are large enough to sustain England without great American assistance.

To head off dire shortages in this country in the east and far west resulting from the curtailment, OWI said the government was undertaking to parcel out live cattle more equitably among slaughterers and packers over the country.

At a meeting with War Mobilization Director James F. Byrnes, six government agencies agreed to the writing of regulations doling out available livestock among all slaughters of pork, beef, veal, mutton and lamb, and concurred in changes of subsidy payments designed to equalize the competitive position among slaughterers.

The subsidy adjustments start April 1.

The civilian allotment is 3,793,000,000 pounds, the military allotment, which went up four per cent is 1,381,000,000 pounds.

Hits All-Time Low

"This," said OWI, referring to the civilian portion is "approximately 30 pounds a year less than the record high of 1944 and is about 10 pounds less than was eaten in the average peacetime years 1935-39."

The new distribution scheme "will not increase the overall civilian supply which will remain tight in any event," the statement declared, noting that the meat deficit areas would still feel the pinch of shortages despite the new program.

Quoting WFA, OWI reported:

"Total supplies, which are six per cent lower than during the first quarter will continue to be shorter and no substantial improvement can be expected before the fall months when livestock marketing seasonally increases.

"The end of the war in Europe will not materially affect the meat situation and will result neither in lighter military demands nor in increased civilian supplies."

Lend-Lease shipments from April through June will be held to 325,000,000 pounds. This takes care of the long-standing agreement with Russia by providing 300,000,000 pounds—slightly more than the present allotment—and the deeply curtailed British allotment.

THE LATEST OFFENSIVE, REPORTED BY NAZI COMMENTATOR COL.ERNST VON HAMMER ON THE BERLIN RADIO AND NOT CONFIRMED BY MOSCOW, ERUPTED ON A BROAD SECTOR IN A FLAT CORRIDOR BETWEEN LAKE BALATON AND THE DANUBE RIVER ABOUT 35 MILES SOUTHEST OF BUDAPEST.

MARSHAL FEODOR I.TOLBUKHIN, CO-CONQUEROR OF BUDAPEST, COUNTERATTACKED AFTER A 12-DAY BATTLE WHICH HALTED A NAZI OFFENSIVE APPARENTLY AIMED AT A BREAKTHROUGH TO THE DANUBE IN ORDER TO DELAY A SOVIET PUSH TOWARD AUSTRIA.

ACCORDING TO VON HAMMER, POWERFUL SOVIET FORCES STRUCK AFTER THE FAMILIAR MASSIVE ARTILLERY BARRAGE. HE SAID ONE RED ARMY PRONG STRUCK TOWARD SZEKESFEHERVAR, A COMMUNICATIONS CENTER 32 MILES SOUTHWEST OF BUDAPEST, BUT THAT ITS DRIVE "PETERED OUT UNDER GERMAN FIRE" AND CLAIMED THAT THE SECOND PRONG FARTHER NORTH WAS "SEALED OFF."

"THE RUSSIAN AIM," VON HAMMER SAID, "IS TO ENCIRCLE THE GERMANS FIGHTING EAST OF LAKE BALATON."

NEITHER GERMAN NOR RUSSIAN ACCOUNTS REFERRED TO THE STRUGGLE ON THE ODER RIVER FRONT EAST OF BERLIN, WHERE THE GERMANS YESTERDAY SAID MARSHAL GREGORY K.ZHUKOV'S FIRST WHITE RUSSIAN ARMY WAS BATTLING FIERCELY TO ENLARGE BRIDGEHEADS WEST OF THE RIVER.

THE GERMANS ADMITTED FURTHER "WITHDRAWAL OF OUR LINES" EAST OF THE ODER AT STETTIN, BUT DID NOT GIVE LOCATIONS.

MOSCOW DISPATCHES SAID THE RUSSIANS HAD SEIZED AN IMPORTANT CROSSROADS LESS THAN TWO MILES SOUTHEAST OF ALTDAMM AND HAD CAPTURED THE VILLAGE OF FERDINANDSTEIN, EIGHT MILES UP THE RIVER FROM ALTDAMM.

AT GREIFENHAGEN, ON THE ODER 11 MILES SOUTH OF STETTIN, THE RUSSIANS APPARENTLY WERE PREPARING TO CROSS THE RIVER, WHICH, AT THAT POINT HAS TWO CHANNELS. THE GREIFENHAGEN BRIDGE HAS BEEN DESTROYED BY THE ENEMY, BUT ZHUKOV WAS BRINGING UP PONTOONS. A SUCCESSFUL CROSSING WOULD OUTFLANK BOTH STETTIN AND BERLIN.

IN EAST PRUSSIA, THE RUSSIANS WAGED A BATTLE OF ANNIHILATION AGAINST GERMAN REMNANTS PINNED AGAINST THE SEA SOUTHWEST OF ISOLATED KOENIGSBERG. A DISPATCH FROM MOSCOW QUOTED THE ARMY NEWSPAPER RED STAR AS SAYING THE ENEMY THERE WAS JAMMED INTO AN AREA "ONLY A FEW MILES IN LENGTH AND BREADTH--SUCH CONSTRICTED AREA WHERE THE LOSS OF EVERY HAMLET IS BEGINNING TO COUNT." KOENIGSBERG ITSELF WAS REPORTED AFLAME WITH FRESH FIRES AND THE RUSSIANS SOUGHT TO CLOSE A NARROW CORRIDOR RUNNING 25 MILES WESTWARD FROM THE CAPITAL TO PILLAU, ESCAPE PORT.

AT KOLBERG, THE DESPERATE GERMAN GARRISON CONTINUED TO BATTLE IN THE HARBOR AREA WHILE THE RUSSIANS PUSHED THROUGH THE SHATTERED AND BURNING TOWN.

FAR TO THE SOUTH IN UPPER SILESIA, THE GERMANS SAID, NEW GAINS WERE MADE BY RED ARMY TROOPS WHICH LAUNCHED A TWO-PRONGED OFFENSIVE FRIDAY FROM THE AREA OF RATIBOR, ON THE UPPER ODER, AND FROM GROTTKAU, WEST OF OPPELN, STRIKING FOR THE CZECHOSLOVAK BORDER AND THE PASSAGES TO PRAGUE AND VIENNA.

SWEDEN IS ESTIMATED TO HAVE LOST A THIRD OF HER PRE-WAR TOTAL OF 1,500,000 TONS OF SHIPPING FROM WAR AND OTHER CAUSES, BUT NEW CONSTRUCTION DURING THE PAST FIVE YEARS IS BELIEVED TO HAVE INCREASED HER MERCHANT FLEET TO ABOVE THE 1939 FIGURE.

THE BUREAU ESTIMATED MILITARY CASUALTIES SINCE THE START OF THE WAR AT 1,045,000 AND CIVILIAN CASUALTIES AT 9,000,000. POINTING OUT THAT THE CASUALTIES REPRESENT MORE THAN 28 PER CENT OF POLAND'S POPULATION, THE BUREAU SAID THE LOSSES, FIGURED ON A POPULATION BASIS, EXCEEDED THOSE OF ANY OTHER UNITED NATION.

THE POLES SUFFERED 831,000 MILITARY CASUALTIES DURING THE CAMPAIGN IN POLAND AND 32,000 CASUALTIES IN THE NORWEGIAN, FRENCH, LIBYAN, ITALIAN AND WESTERN FRONT CAMPAIGNS, THE BUREAU SAID. AIR FORCE AND NAVAL CASUALTIES AMOUNTED TO 2,400 AND 180,000 MEMBERS OF THE POLISH UNDERGROUND ARMY HAVE BEEN KILLED OR WOUNDED OR ARE MISSING.

INCLUDED IN THE MILITARY FIGURES ARE THE LOSSES SUSTAINED DURING THE 63-DAY BATTLE OF WARSAW, WHICH ALSO RESULTED IN 200,000 CIVILIAN CASUALTIES, THE BUREAU SAID.

THE GERMANS SAID THE ARMORED SPEARHEADS HAD CROSSED THE NAHE RIVER, THE LAST REAL BARRIER TO THE DRIVE TO CUT OFF THE TWO ENEMY ARMIES, AT BAD KRUEZNACH, WHICH SEEMED LIKELY SINCE THE SPEEDING COLUMNS STILL WERE UNDER A PARTIAL NEWS BLACKOUT.

BAD KRUEZNACH, GENERAL HEADQUARTERS FOR THE GERMAN ARMY IN THE FIRST WORLD WAR, IS 21 MILES WEST OF MAINZ, CITY OF 110,000 WITH TWO RAILWAY AND ONE HIGHWAY BRIDGE ACROSS THE RHINE, OVER WHICH THE GERMANS ALREADY WERE FLEEING UNDER THE WHIPLASH OF SWARMS OF WARPLANES.

STILL UNCHECKED, THE TANK COLUMNS WERE BLAZING AHEAD TOO SWIFTLY TO GIVE EITHER THE GERMAN SEVENTH OR THE GERMAN FIRST--THE LATTER PINNED INTO THE SIEGFRIED LINE BY THE SEVENTH ARMY--MUCH HOPE OF ESCAPE UNLESS THE ENEMY RALLIES QUICKLY.

AT MAINZ, THE THIRD ARMY WOULD BE AT THE RHINE ELBOW AND COULD VEER SOUTH, KNOCKING OUT ALL GERMAN POSITIONS REMAINING WEST OF THE RHINE IN THE SAAR, THE PALATINATE, AND THE WESTERN CORNER OF THE RHENISH PROVINCE OF HESSE, OF WHICH MAINZ IS THE CAPITAL.

A3
THE GERMANS DECLARED PATTON WAS ATTACKING WITH 15 ARMORED AND 25 INFANTRY DIVISIONS AND TOGETHER WITH THE SEVENTH ARMY HAD COMMITTED 750,000 TROOPS TO THE STRUGGLE BEWEEN COBLENZ AND HAGUENAU, NORTH OF STRASBOURG.

THE ARMORED COLUMNS WERE MOVING AT SUCH A TERRIFIC PACE THAT BRIDGES WERE CAPTURED INTACT, UNMANNED ROADBLOCKS WERE OVERRUN, AND GERMANS WERE CAPTURED ASLEEP IN THEIR BILLETS.

THE MOSELLE BRIDGEHEAD FROM WHICH THE FOURTH ARMORED DIVISION BURST TWO DAYS AGO WAS BUILDING UP AS FAST AS THE 90TH AND FIFTH INFANTRY DIVIONS COULD ADVANCE.

BOTH SCORED GAINS OF FOUR MILES OR MORE SOUTHWEST OF COBLENZ, MOPPING UP BY-PASSED VILLAGES, AND SOME FORCES HAD MOVED WITHIN A FEW MILES OF SIMMERN, 18 MILES SOUTH OF THE BRIDGEHEAD, WHICH THE ARMORED FORCES SWEPT THROUGH YESTERDAY IN THEIR SOUTHWARD DASH.

PATTON'S TROOPS FAR TO THE WEST WERE ROLLING UP THE WESTERN FLANK OF THE SAAR, WHERE THEY WERE HELD UP LAST FALL AND WINTER BEFORE THE SAVAGELY-DEFENDED SIEGFRIED LINE.

BREAKING INTO THE SAAR BASIN PROPER FROM THE NORTHWEST, ONE FORCE OF TANKS IN ADVANCES OF TWO MILES OR MORE CAPTURED LOSHEIM, ONLY 13 MILES NORTH OF THE THIRD ARMY'S LONG-HELD SAAR RIVER BRIDGEHEAD AT SAARLAUTERN.

OTHER FORCES FARTHER WEST WERE WITHIN THREE MILES NORTH OF MERZIG, ANOTHER SAAR STRONGPOINT NORTH OF SAARLAUTERN WHICH DEFIED FRONTAL ASSAULT LAST YEAR.

WITH TROOPS OF LT.GEN.COURTNEY H.HODGES FARTHER NORTH THREATENING A BREAKTHROUGH INTO THE NORTH GERMAN PLAIN BEYOND THE RHINE, THE ENEMY WAS RUSHING UP ALL AVAILABLE RESERVES, MOST OF THEM THE RAGTAG OF DIVISIONS WHICH MANAGED TO ESCAPE ACROSS THE RHINE.

THE FIRST ARMY NOW HELD POSSESSION OF, OR CONTROLLED BY CLOSE RANGE FIRE, A FOUR AND A HALF MILE SEGMENT OF THE SUPER MILITARY HIGHWAY, WHICH LEADS TO THE RUHR AND JOINS ANOTHER TO BERLIN.

THIS STRIP RUNS FROM ITTENBACH, SEVEN MILES NORTHEAST OF REMAGEN BRIDGE, FOUR AND A HALF MILES SOUTHEASTWARD TO HALLERBACH.

ONE FORCE BATTERED MORE THAN A MILE BEYOND THE HIGHWAY INTO HUESCHEID, WHERE IT STOOD AT THE VERY EDGE OF THE RUHR PLAIN.

IT WAS IN THIS AREA THAT THE GERMANS INSISTED THE NEW U.S. 15TH ARMY HAD GONE INTO ACTION.

ON THE NORTH FLANK ALONG THE RHINE, THE AMERICANS WERE DRIVING STEADILY THROUGH KOENIGSWINTER WITHIN THREE MILES OF THE PLAIN AND THE GERMANS SAID THEY HAD EVACUATED THE TOWN.

MAR 18 1945

FORCES DRIVING DUE EAST SCORED AN IMPORTANT TACTICAL VICTORY WITH THE CAPTURE OF STRODT, SIX MILES FROM THE BRIDGE.

NEARBY VETTELSCHOSS ALSO FELL. BOTH HAD BEEN CONVERTED INTO STRONGPOINTS GUARDING THE SUPER HIGHWAY.

HOENNINGEN, ON THE SOUTHERN FLANK, WAS CLEARED BEFORE NOON AND INFANTRY PUSHED OUT EAST OF TOWN, BEAT OFF A COUNTERATTACK, AND CAPTURED HIGH GROUND.

LT.GEN.ALEXANDER M.PATCH'S SEVENTH ARMY FOUGHT A HALF-MILE INTO THE SIEGFRIED LINE FOUR MILES EAST OF THE SAAR'S CAPITAL OF SAARBRUECKEN, HAMMERING AT THE HINGE WHERE THE FORTIFICATIONS DIVIDE INTO TWO BELTS.

THE APPARENTLY DOOMED GERMAN FIRST ARMY WAS BATTLING TO KEEP THE SEVENTH ARMY OUT OF THE FRONT DOOR OF THE SAAR AND PALATINATE WHILE THE THIRD ARMY ALREADY HAD BROKEN IN FROM THE REAR DOOR.

ON PATTON'S FRONT "SAARBRUECKEN IS NOW EXPOSED."

THE SEVENTH WAS INTO, AGAINST, OR WITHIN SMALL ARMS' RANGE OF THE SIEGFRIED LINE INSIDE GERMANY FOR 26 MILES STRETCHING EASTWARD FROM VOLKLINGEN, WHICH IS FOUR MILES WEST OF SAARBRUECKEN.

TOWNS FELL BY THE DOZENS, AND GAINS UP TO THREE MILES WERE REGISTERED AS THE GERMANS WITHDREW FROM STRONG NATURAL POSITIONS IN THE FOREFIELD OF THE FORTIFICATIONS.

ONE FORCE EAST OF SAARBRUECKEN WAS SIX MILES INSIDE THE SAAR AND WAS FIVE MILES SOUTHWEST OF ZWEIBRUECKEN, A KEY CITY IN THE SIEGFRIED LINE.

FARTHER EAST THE 42ND DIVISION SCORED THE BIGGEST GAINS OF THE DAY, A THREE-MILE PUSH THROUGH THE HARDT MOUNTAINS WHICH CARRIED IT WITHIN TWO MILES OF THE GERMAN BORDER.

AMERICAN TROOPS DROVE THE LAST GERMAN FROM HAGUENAU, NEAR THE RHINE 15 MILES NORTH OF STRASBOURG, AND DROVE ON NORTH A MILE OR TWO INTO THE DENSE HAGUENAU FOREST.

FRENCH UNITS ASSIGNED TO THE SEVENTH ARMY, MOVING A MILE NORTH ALONG THE RHINE, CAPTURED SCHIRRHEIN, FIVE MILES EAST OF HAGUENAU, BUT THEY WERE UP AGAINST SOME OF THE STOUTEST OPPOSITION FROM GERMAN FORCES HOLDING OPEN AN ESCAPE ROUTE THROUGH THE KARLSRUHE CORNER.

IN THE CENTER OF THE FRONT, AMERICAN TROOPS WHO CAPTURED THE ANCIENT FORTRESS OF BITCHE FRIDAY PUSHED ON EAST TWO MILES AND WERE THROUGH THE OLD MAGINOT LINE FORTIFICATIONS.

WITH THE 100TH DIVISION IN BITCHE, MARCH 17-(AP)-THE 100TH DIVISION WALKED STRAIGHT DOWN THE ROAD YESTERDAY AND CAPTURED THIS HISTORIC TOWN AND CITADEL WHICH NEVER HAD FALLEN TO ENEMY FIRE BEFORE.

ITS CAPTURE STILLED THE RANKLES OF THE DIVISION WHICH HAD FOUGHT FOR MORE THAN A WEEK LAST DECEMBER TO CRUSH THE CITY'S RING OF PILLBOXES, ONLY TO BE CALLED OFF BY FIELDMARSHAL VON RUNDSTEDT'S ARDENNES OFFENSIVE.

"I DON'T THINK THE GERMANS EVER EXPECTED US TO COME STRAIGHT AT THEM, BUT WE'D RATHER WALK DOWN A ROAD THAN WADE THROUGH THOSE MINE FIELDS," SAID SGT. PHINEAS WHARTON, OF 445A ALABAMA ST., MEMPHIS, TENN.

STAFF SGT. EDWARD CAVANAUGH OF YOUNGSTOWN, OHIO, WHO HAS HAD TWO YEARS SERVICE IN THE SOUTH PACIFIC, TOLD OF MEETING SOME SHELLFIRE AS HE ENTERED THE TOWN AFTER THE MAIN FORCE OF THE 398TH REGIMENT HAD PENETRATED, BUT QUIET REIGNED THROUGHOUT THE CITY DURING THE DAY.

ONLY ABOUT 60 PRISONERS WERE TAKEN IN THE TOWN AND IF THEY WERE LEFT BEHIND BY THE RETREATING ENEMY TO FIGHT A DELAYING ACTION, THEY MADE A MISERABLE JOB OF IT.

CAPT. T.H.GARAHAN OF 227 DEAN ST., BROOKLYN, N.Y., SAID HE BELIEVED THE REASON NO GERMAN'S WERE FOUND IN THE LOFTY CITADEL TOWERING ABOVE THE BUSINESS AND RESIDENTIAL PART OF THE TOWN WAS BECAUSE "THERE'S ONLY ONE ROAD UP THERE AND IF ANYONE WENT UP THERE THEY NEVER COULD HAVE GOTTEN OUT ONCE WE HAD THE TOWN."

THE CITADEL, RISING ON A BALD KNOB IN THE CENTER OF THE CITY, WAS BUILT IN THE MIDDLE OF THE 18TH CENTURY BY LOUIS XV AND WITHSTOOD THE GERMANS THROUGHOUT THE FRANCO-PRUSSIAN WAR.

WITH THE U.S. THIRD ARMY, MARCH 17-(AP)-THE MOMENTUM AND IMPACT OF THE FOURTH ARMORED DIVISION'S THRUST SOUTH OF COBLENZ LEFT THE GERMANS CONFUSED AND BEWILDERED.

THE BEWILDERMENT WAS REFLECTED YESTERDAY IN THE DUST-CAKED FACES OF PRISONERS STREAMING TO THE REAR. THE GERMANS' SURPRISE ALSO WAS SHOWN IN THE ABSENCE OF DEFENSIVE PREPARATIONS ALONG THE TWO-FINGERED ROUTE BLAZED BY THE FOURTH'S COMBAT COMMANDS A AND B.

IT WAS SOMETHING LIKE A COOK'S TOUR FOR TANK MEN ROLLING THROUGH SCENIC HILLS AND PAST SCATTERED ROADBLOCKS, MANY OF THEM UNFINISHED AND VIRTUALLY ALL UNMANNED, AND AGAINST ONLY SCANT OPPOSITION. THROUGH SOME OF THE GORGE-LIKE VALLEYS, A SINGLE STICK OF DYNAMITE COULD HAVE SENT TONS OF ROCK TUMBLING DOWN ON THE ROADS, BUT NOTHING LIKE THAT HAPPENED.

IN SOME TOWNS, ARMOR CLATTERED UP YESTERDAY MORNING TO BILLETS WHERE GERMAN SOLDIERS STILL WERE SLEEPING. THEY HAD TO BE AWAKENED AND TOLD THE WAR WAS OVER FOR THEM.

AT ONE TOWN, 600 GERMANS WERE HERDED INTO THE BARBED WIRE ENCLOSURE OF A CONCENTRATION CAMP WHERE RUSSUAN SLAVE LABORERS HAD SPENT THE NIGHT UNDER GERMAN GUARDS. THE PRISONERS INCLUDED SOME OF THE SAME GUARDS.

"THE GERMANS DON'T KNOW WHAT THE SCORE IS," SAID CAPT.WILLIAM CAREY OF HOMER, NEBR., STAFF OFFICER OF THE FIFTH INFANTRY DIVISION WHICH IS CLEANING UP BEHIND THE ARMOR. "THEY HAVE BEEN TRYING TO MAKE THEIR WAY TO MAINZ WHERE BARGES WERE REPORTED ASSEMBLED IN AN EFFORT TO TAKE THEM ACROSS THE RHINE. BUT AFTER THE ARMOR THUNDERBOLT STRUCK, THEY D DN'T KNOW WHICH WAY THEY WERE GOING."

CAPT.ALPHONSE HACKAL, 728 RICHMOND AVE., SILVER SPRING, MD., SAID THE PRISONERS INCLUDE "EVERYTHING HITLER HAS FROM BROKEN DOWN VOLKS-STURMERS TO HARD-BITTEN MOUNTAIN TROOPS."

NEVER BEFORE HAVE ARMOR, INFANTRY, AND AIR TEAMWORK CLICKED BETTER. WITH TANKS BLAZING THE WAY, AND INFANTRY MOPPING UP BEHIND, THE FLIERS GAVE EVERYBODY A HAND. BOMB-TOTING FIGHTERS BEAT UP TARGETS AHEAD OF THE ARMOR, AND BOMBED AND STRAFED POCKETS LEFT BEHIND.

SOLDIERS WORKING UP A HILL AT ONE POINT RECEIVED THIS RADIO MESSAGE FROM THE LEAD PILOT OF A FIGHTER GROUP:

MAR 18 1945

"HOLD UP A SPELL, CHUMS, WHILE WE GO TO WORK ON SOME ARTILLERY UP AHEAD."

THE SOLDIERSHLAITED, AND WATCHED THE SILVERY FIGHTERS GO TO WORK.

A FEW MINUTES LATER CAME ANOTHER MESSAGE FROM THE FLIGHT LEADER:

"O.K., BOYS, WE GOT 'EM. IT'S ALL YOURS NOW."

PACING THE ARMORED PLUNGE WAS COMBAT COMMAND B UNDER LT.-COL. CREIGHTON W. "ABE" ABRAMS OF WEST NEWTON, MASS., AN OLD HAND IN THE FOURTH DIVISION BUT NEW IN THIS POST. HE WAS PROMOTED AFTER SPEARHEADING THE RHINE THRUST AS COMMANDER OF THE 37TH TANK BATTALION, WHICH TEAMED WITH THE 10TH ARMORED INFANTRY UNDER MAJ.HAROLD COHEN, SPARTANBURG, S.C., TO MAKE UP COMBAT COMMAND B.

"IT WOULD MAKE A GOOD STORY IF YOU COULD SAY THE 'MASTER RACE' WAS BEING CHASED BY TWO MEMBERS OF WHAT HITLER CALLS 'THE INFERIOR RACE,' BUT IT AIN'T SO," COHEN LAUGHED. "I'M THE ONLY JEWISH MEMBER OF THE FIRM. ABE'S A PRESBYTERIAN."

BY HOWARD COWAN

WITH THE AMERICAN FIRST ARMY EAST OF THE RHINE, MARCH 16--(DELAYED)--(AP)-THE COLONEL TOLD HIS STORY RELUCTANTLY. HE KEPT INTERRUPTING HIMSELF WITH "OH, THIS IS TOO LONG--YOU'RE NOT INTERESTED IN ALL THIS."

BUT IT WAS THE FIRST GRAPHIC OVERALL PICTURE OF THE REMAGEN EPIC I HAD HEARD. NOW, NINE DAYS AFTER IT HAD OCCURRED, THE COLONEL FITTED THE PIECEMEAL FRAGMENTS TOGETHER AND THE VICTORY WON THERE SEEMED ALL THE MORE REMARKABLE BECAUSE OF THE CIRCUMSTANCES, SOME OF WHICH HE DISCLOSED FOR THE FIRST TIME.

LT. COL. LEONARD ENGEMAN, REDWOOD FALLS, MINN., WAS THE LEADER OF THE TASK FORCE ASSIGNED TO CAPTURE REMAGEN AND KRIPP ON THE RHINE. THIS FORCE INCLUDED A COMPANY OF ENGINEERS, THE 14TH TANK BATTALION, THE 50TH CAVALRY RECONNAISSANCE SQUADRON, A COMPANY OF TANK DESTROYERS AND THE 16TH FIELD ARTILLERY.

SINCE THE NINTH ARMORED DIVISION CROSSED THE ROER RIVER ON FEB. 28 ENGEMAN'S TANKS HAD LED A SWIFT SPRINT TO THE EAST, WHICH SIX DAYS LATER FOUND THEM AT STADT-MECKENHEIM, ABOUT NINE MILES FROM REMAGEN AND THE RHINE. IT HAD BEEN A GRUELING WEEK. THE MEN WERE WEARY FROM LOSS OF SLEEP. THE SHOW HAD BEEN ON A CATCH-AS-CATCH CAN BASIS.

"ABOUT FIVE OR SIX O'CLOCK GENERAL HOGE (BRIG. GEN. WILLIAM M. HOGE, DEPUTY COMMANDER OF THE NINTH ARMORED DIVISION) CALLED ALL OF HIS UNIT COMMANDERS TOGETHER," ENGEMAN SAID. "HE HAD WANTED TO PUSH ON TO THE RHINE THAT NIGHT BUT WERE WE WERE JUST EXHAUSTED.

"WE DECIDED TO JUMP OFF AT 7 O'CLOCK IN THE MORNING. OUR OBJECTIVE WAS TO TAKE REMAGEN AND KRIPP. THE OTHER WING WAS TO SWING SOUTH OF US AND GET TO BODENDORF, SINZIG AND THE AHR RIVER. WE HAD SOME TEN-IN-ONE RATIONS AND WENT TO BED IN THIS OLD, BOMBED OUT HOUSE ABOUT 10 O'CLOCK. THE PLACE WAS FULL OF PLASTER AND JUNK BUT WE FOUND THE CELLAR.

B66

"WE GOT UP AT 5 A.M. AND STARTED MOVING AT 7 A.M. A PLATOON OF INFANTRY WAS IN THE LEAD. STADT MECKENHEIM WAS IN SUCH A MESS A TANK DOZER HAD TO CLEAR A PATH FOR US AND IT WAS ABOUT 8 A.M. BEFORE WE GOT ON THE ROAD.

"IT WAS ABOUT 9:30 A.M. WHEN WE WENT THROUGH ADENDORF, ABOUT TWO MILES TO THE EAST," HE CONTINUED, PROMPTING HIMSELF WITH A JOURNAL ENTRY POINTED TO BY CAPT. CECIL ROBERTS, 2000 ASHLAND, FORT WORTH, TEXAS.

"WE HAD A LITTLE SCRAP WITH SOME SMALL ARMS AND MORTAR BOYS IN THREE PATCHES OF WOODS. BY NOON WE ENTERED THE WOODS EAST OF BIRRESDORF, NOT THREE MILES FROM REMAGEN.

"I TOOK MY GLASSES AND SAW A COLUMN OF OUR VEHICLES TO THE SOUTH. IT WAS THE OTHER OUTFIT, AND IT MADE ME A LITTLE MAD A FEW MINUTES LATER WHEN I GOT A MESSAGE THEY WERE AT GIMMIGEN AND GETTING AHEAD OF US.

"I DOUBLEBANKED THE COLUMN AND WE WERE ON IT FROM THEN ON.

"WE WERE JUST ABOUT 200 YARDS ABOVE REMAGEN. I NOTICED A PHONE LINE RUNNING INTO TOWN AND I HAD A TANK DOZER KNOCK IT OVER.

"IT WAS A LITTLE AFTER 1 O'CLOCK WHEN WE EMERGED FROM THE WOODS AND COULD SEE THE WHOLE PICTURE. THERE WERE VEHICLES AND MEN CROSSING THE BRIDGE AND NO MOVEMENT IN REMAGEN. THERE WERE TWO TRAINS ON THE OTHER SIDE OF THE RIVER, ONE HAD STEAM UP. I ASKED THE ARTILLERY TO PUT SOME TIME FIRE ON THE BRIDGE, BUT THEY WOULDN'T DO IT--AFRAID OF HITTING OUR OWN MEN. THE WEST SIDE OF THE BRIDGE SHOWED SIGNS OF RECENT REPAIR.

"WELL, AT 1:30 WE GOT A COMPANY OUT OF THE HALF-TRACKS-- THAT'S LIEUTENANT TIMMERMAN'S COMPANY--AND STARTED THEM DOWN INTO TOWN. WE MOVED THE EMPTY HALF-TRACKS OVER TO THE SIDE OF THE ROAD AND LET GRIMBALL (LT. JOHN GRIMBALL, 530 KILBOURN ROAD, COLUMBIA, S.C.) TAKE HIS PLATOON OF TANKS ON IN. I TOLD HIM TO GET TO THE BRIDGE AND COVER IT WITH FIRE.

"GENERAL HOGE CAME UP A LITT[illegible] AND WE LOOKED AT THE BRIDGE AND I REMEMBER SOMETHING BEING SA[illegible] IT SURE WOULD BE NICE IF WE COULD GET THAT BRIDGE. BUT WE STILL DIDN'T HAVE ANY IDEA OF DOING IT. I KEPT THINKING IT WOULD BLOW UP RIGHT IN OUR FACES.

"IT WAS ABOUT 12 MINUTES PAST 3 WHEN THINGS STARTED POPPING. OUR ARTILLERY STARTED PLASTERING THE EAST BANK WITH SMOKE SHELLS. THE TANKS PULLED UP TO THE WEST END OF THE BRIDGE AND SHOT UP THE KRAUTS ON THE BRIDGE.

"AN EXPLOSION WENT OFF ON THE BRIDGE. THE INFANTRY HAD STARTED GOING OVER, BUT CAME BACK. I GRABBED MY GLASSES AND SAW THE BRIDGE STILL STANDING. WE SENT A RADIO MESSAGE TO THE ENGINEERS AT 3:17, 'RUSH ALL AVAILABLE MEN'

"THREE MINUTES LATER WE GOT PRISONERS WHO SAID THE BRIDGE WAS TO GO AT 4 P.M. IT WASN'T A COUPLE OF MINUTES MORE UNTIL A SECOND BLAST WENT OFF BUT THE BRIDGE STILL WAS STANDING [illegible] INFANTRY WAS CROSSING.

"ACK-ACK GUNS, SMALL ARMS AND MACHINE GUNS OPENED UP NOW ALL AROUND--BEHIND US, AHEAD AND ON TOP FROM THAT BLUFF. OUR TANKS WERE FIRING INTO THE TUNNEL AND GRIMBALL GOT A HIT ON THE FIREBOX OF A LOCOMOTIVE THAT KNOCKED IT OUT.

"I TOLD MOTT (LT. HUGH MOTT, 1403 WOODLAND STREET, NASHVILLE, TENN.) TO CHECK THE BRIDGE AND LET ME KNOW HOW LONG IT WOULD TAKE TO GET READY FOR THE TANKS. MOST OF THE 27TH INFANTRY WAS ACROSS BY NOW.

"AT 4:45, I REPORTED BACK TO GENERAL HOGE, 'BRIDGE INTACT. AM PUSHING DOUGHS TO OTHER SIDE. WHAT ARE PLANS? ADVISE SOON AS POSSIBLE.'

"MOTT REPORTED BACK AT 5:30 THAT HE NEEDED ABOUT 40 EIGHT-BY-EIGHT TIMBERS TO FIX THE FLOOR OF THE BRIDGE. I TOLD HIM TO USE WHAT THERE WAS ON THE BRIDGE--SOME BIG PIECES OF STEEL TORN LOOSE BY THE EXPLOSIONS-- AND THEY STARTED TO WORK UNDER HEAVY SNIPER FIRE.

"IN THE MEANTIME, WE GOT A MESSAGE BACK FROM HEADQUARTERS, 'DEMOLITIONS OFF BRIDGE AND SECURE HIGH GROUND. WE WILL PROTECT YOUR REAR AND SUPPORT YOU WITH ADDITIONAL TROOPS. DIG IN WELL AND ESTABLISH ROAD BLOCKS. MINE WELL ON EAST SIDE OF RIVER.' WELL, WE HAD ALREADY BEEN DOING THAT.

"IT BEGAN TO GET DARK AND I STARTED SCREAMING FOR MORE DOUGHS. THE TANKS HAD KNOCKED OUT A COUPLE OF ACK-ACK GUNS, BUT THERE STILL WAS A LOT OF SNIPER FIRE. WE DIDN'T KNOW HOW MUCH THERE WAS IN ERPEL. I EXPECTED A HELL OF A FIGHT THERE.

"WE WENT IN A CELLAR AND DEEVERS (MAJ. MURRAY DEEVERS, HAGERVILLE, ARK.) AND I MADE PLANS TO DEFEND THE BRIDGEHEAD. WE DECIDED TO ESTABLISH ROAD BLOCK AT KASBACH AND AT THE NORTH EDGE OF ERPEL. THE HIGH GROUND WAS IMMEDIATELY BEHIND THE BRIDGE AROUND THE LITTLE TOWN OF ORSBERG. I ASKED DEEVERS IF HE COULD GET TANK DESTROYERS UP THERE. I REMEMBER HIS EXACT WORDS--'I'LL GET THEM UP THERE IF WE HAVE TO PULL THEM UP BY HAND,' HE SAID.

B68

"WELL, IT WAS 11:30 BEFORE MOTT REPORTED THE TANKS COULD COME ACROSS. THE FLOOR HAD BEEN FIXED SO WE COULD TAKE OUR M-4'S OVER. I TOLD HIM TO GUIDE THEM ACROSS THE BRIDGE. IT WAS SO BLACK YOU COULDN'T SEE YOUR HAND IN FRONT OF YOUR FACE. NOBODY DARED SHOW A LIGHT. FIRST I TOLD HIM TO BLOW UP THE RAILROAD TRACK IN TWO PLACES NORTH AND SOUTH OF THE BRIDGEHEAD. I WAS SCARED OF EVERYTHING AT THE TIME.

"WHEN I HEARD THE BLASTS THAT WAS TO BE THE SIGNAL FOR THE TANKS TO START. WELL, WE WAITED AND WAITED AND DIDN'T HEAR ANY EXPLOSIONS, SO, AT 12:15 A.M., WE CANCELLED THAT AND STARTED THE TANKS OVER ANYWAY."

SGT. WILLIAM GOODSON, 832 WEST THIRD STREET, RUSHVILLE, IND., TOOK THE FIRST ONE OVER AND LT. CHARLES W. MILLER, 4001 GARRISON STREET, WASHINGTON, D.C., THE SECOND. THE ENGINEERS HAD STRUNG WHITE TAPE ACROSS THE BRIDGE TO GUIDE US, BUT ONE MAN HAD TO WALK IN FRONT OF THEM, TOO.

"AT 12:40, WE HAD NINE TANKS ACROSS. AT 12:53 THEY WERE IN POSITION ON BOTH SIDES OF THE BRIDGEHEAD, GUARDING THE ROADBLOCKS. AT 3:30 A.M., WE GOT SOME MORE INFANTRY ACROSS. MILLER HAD HOLLERED A COUPLE OF TIME FOR SOME MORE TANK DESTROYERS AND A SECOND TIME FOR MORE DOUGHS TO TAKE THE PRISONERS. THE GERMANS WERE HANGING AROUND WANTING TO SURRENDER, BUT WE HAVE FOUND IT ISN'T HEALTHY TO GET OUT OF A TANK IN A SITUATION LIKE THAT. I TOLD HIM TO STAY THERE UNTIL THE LAST TANK WAS SHOT UP. HE CAME BACK WITH 'ROGER' AND I DIDN'T HEAR ANY MORE FROM HIM.

"OUR BIGGEST PROBLEM NOW WAS TRAFFIC. AT 4:35 A.M., A TANK DESTROYER GOT STUCK IN A HOLE ON THE BRIDGE. IT TOOK US TWO HOURS TO GET IT OUT. TRAFFIC WAS PILING UP IN REMAGEN AND WE WERE USING A LOT OF OUR MEN TO WAKE UP THE DRIVERS AND GET THEM MOVING. AS I SAID, EVERYBODY WAS DEAD ON HIS FEET. YOU CAN'T REALIZE THE EFFORT IT TOOK JUST TO KEEP AWAKE.

SOON AFTER DAYLIGHT ENGEMAN TURNED HIS JOB OVER TO HOGE, FOUND A CELLAR IN WHICH HE COULD ESCAPE THE RAIN OF SHELLS AND SAT DOWN TO RELAX.

"I LOOKED IN ON HIM A MINUTE LATER AND HE'D GONE SOUND ASLEEP IN A CHAIR WITH A CIGARETTE IN HIS MOUTH," ROBERT SAID. "IT WASN'T EVEN LIT."

HAGUENAU, ALSACE, MARCH 17-(AP)-RED AND YELLOW SMOKE SCREENS AND PROTECTIVE MACHINE GUN FIRE SO HOT IT BURNED OUT BARRELS HELPED THE U.S. 36TH INFANTRY DIVISION (THE TEXAS DIVISION) DOUGHBOYS TO ROOT OUT THE ENEMY'S HAGUENAU GARRISON WHICH FOUGHT STUBBORNLY IN A HOPELESS TRAP BETWEEN AMERICAN STEEL AND ITS OWN MINEFIELDS.

EXPLAINING THE PLIGHT OF ABOUT 300 GERMAN SOLDIERS WHO FINALLY WERE DRIVEN FROM A THIRD OF THE TOWN ON THE NORTHERN SIDE OF THE MODER RIVER, MAJ.H.E.EITT (CO) OF SAN ANTONIO, TEXAS, 141ST REGIMENT OPERATIONS OFFICER, SAID:

"THEY WERE FIRST ORDERED TO WITHDRAW, THEN THIS WAS COUNTERMANDED AND THEY WERE TOLD TO HOLD AS LONG AS POSSIBLE BUT WERE WARNED THEY COULD EXPECT NEITHER REINFORCEMENTS NOR FRESH SUPPLIES.

"MEANWHILE, OUR ENGINEERS NORTH OF THE TOWN PUT DOWN BLOCKS ACROSS THE ROADS, SUPPLEMENTING EXTENSIVE MINEFIELDS WHOSE LOCATION THE ENEMY GARRISON DIDN'T KNOW--SO THEY COULDN'T RETREAT EVEN IF THEY HAD WANTED TO."

STRANGELY ENOUGH--IN VIEW OF THE GERMANS' RECENT DISPOSITION TO QUIT WHEN THE ODDS WERE HOPELESS--THE ENEMY GARRISON FOUGHT IT OUT SO WELL IT WAS NECESSARY FOR THE AMERICAN DOUGHBOYS TO CLEAR OUT THE TOWN HOUSE BY HOUSE TO ITS NORTHERN EDGE SO A BRIDGE COULD GO ACROSS THE MODER AND TANKS ROLL TO JOIN THE SEVENTH ARMY'S OFFENSIVE.

WHEN THE 41ST REGIMENT'S SECOND BATTALION WAS GIVEN THE JOB OF GOING ACROSS THE RIVER, ITS COMMANDER, LT.COL.JAMES H.CRITCHFIELD OF FARGO, N.D., WANTED HIS MEN TO HAVE ALL THE HELP THEY COULD GET.

IT WAS PLENTY.

"WE CROSSED ON MARCH 13 WITH "E" COMPANY (COMMANDED BY LT.EDWARD T. PAWLOWICZ, ADDRESS UNAVAILABLE) ON A PLANK FOOTBRIDGE TO TAKE UP POSITIONS IN FIVE HOUSES, WHICH WAS ALL WE HELD ON THE NORTH SIDE AT THAT TIME.

"OUR JOB WAS TO SHOVE THE ENEMY BACK SO A BAILEY BRIDGE COULD GO IN

TO PUT TANKS ACROSS BUT WE KNEW WE WOULD HAVE AN ARGUMENT AND WE GOT EVEN MORE THAN WE EXPECTED.

"THE GERMANS HAD ABOUT SIX TANKS IN TOWN AND FOR THE FIRST 36 HOURS WE HAD NONE ON THE NORTH SIDE OF THE RIVER, ALTHOUGH OURS HELPED ALL THEY COULD BY FIRING ACROSS THE STREAM. BY ALMOST CONTINUOUS ARTILLERY, MACHINE GUN AND MORTAR FIRE WE KEPT THEM FROM RUNNING US OUT, ALTHOUGH THEY COUNTERATTACKED ALL THROUGH OUR FIRST NIGHT OVER AND TRIED A STRIKE AGAIN THE NEXT DAY.

"'G' COMPANY, (COMMANDED BY LT.ADAM A.WARZOCHA, ANOTHER 'TEXAN' FROM VERMONT) GOT ACROSS UNDER HEAVY FIRE IN TIME TO HELP 'E' COMPANY WITH THE COUNTERATTACK AND 'F' COMPANY (UNDER LT.DENNIS H.BLALOCK OF 2203 VANCE ST., ALEXANDRIA, LA.) JOINED IN THE CLEANUP FIGHTING OF THE FINAL TWO DAYS.

"DURING THE FIRST DAY, EIGHT HEAVY MACHINE GUNS MOUNTED ON BUILDINGS ON THE SOUTH SIDE OF THE RIVER POURED A PROTECTIVE BARRAGE OVER THE HEADS OF OUR MEN WITH EACH OF THE EIGHT WEAPONS FIRING BETWEEN 4,000 AND 5,000 ROUNDS AND BURNING OUT THEIR BARRELS IN THE PROCESS.

"AT THE SAME TIME, HEAVY MORTARS WERE PLASTERING THE KRAUTS WITH 4,360 ROUNDS AND SOME OF THOSE MORTARS BURNED OUT TUBES. BUT THAT SCREEN OF FIRE, PLUS THAT THROWN BY ARTILLERY, REALLY SAVED US UNTIL THE BRIDGE WAS PUT IN ON THE SECOND DAY AND WE GOT TANKS ACROSS.

"OUR ARTILLERY LIAISION OFFICER (CAPT.ERNEST L.SAMPLE OF BRYANT, TEXAS) STAYED UP ALL OF THE FIRST TWO NIGHTS DIRECTING FIRE WHICH WAS BEING CALLED FOR THROUGH A FORWARD OBSERVER (LT.JERRY D.LUPTAK OF LINCOLN PARK, MICH.) WHO KEPT RIGHT UP THERE WITH THE INFANTRY COMPANIES.

"WHEN THE THREE COMPANIES STARTED WORKING THROUGH THE TOWN WITH TANKS FIRING INTO HOUSES, WE TRIED A TRICK BY HAVING INFANTRYMEN DROP A SMOKE GRENADE IN FRONT OF EACH BUILDING AS IT WAS CLEARED SO THAT OBSERVERS DIRECTING TANK AND ARTILLERY FIRE, BY REFERRING TO A PLOT WHICH NUMBERED EACH BUILDING, COULD TELL EXACTLY WHERE OUR FORCES WERE AND WHERE OUR FIRE SHOULD BE DIRECTED.

"IT WAS QUITE A SIGHT AS COLUMN AFTER COLUMN OF SMOKE WENT UP, GIVING A PRETTY BOXSCORE ON OUR PROGRESS.

"WE HAD TO KNOCK THOSE FELLOWS OUT OF ALMOST EVERY HOUSE WITH GRENADES OR SHELLFIRE--RIGHT TO THE NORTHERN EDGE OF TOWN--AND IF OUR COVER AND COOPERATION HADN'T BEEN SO GOOD OUR LOSSES COULD HAVE BEEN REALLY ROUGH. WE LOST TOO MANY, OF COURSE, BECAUSE ONE IS TOO MANY, BUT IT WASN'T NEARLY AS BAD AS IT COULD HAVE BEEN.

THIS DISCLOSURE CAME AT THE CLOSE OF A DAY OF GENERAL GAINS WHICH SAW THE PRISONER COUNT MOUNT TO 4,000 IN THE DRIVE THAT STARTED THURSDAY.

THE 45TH DIVISION UNDER YOUTHFUL MAJ.GEN.ROBERT T.FREDERICK SHOVED THREE MILES TODAY TO NIEDER-WUERZBACH IN THE SIEGFRIED LINE NINE MILES WEST OF SAARBRUECKEN TO GIVE THE "THUNDERBIRD" DIVISION A TOTAL ADVANCE OF EIGHT MILES SINCE ITS JUMPOFF ACROSS THE BLIES RIVER IN THE HABKIRCHEN AREA.

DOUGHBOYS OF MAJ.GEN.JOHN O'DANIEL'S THIRD DIVISION PUSHED TWO MILES NORTH TO CLEAR HORNBACH AND THE NEIGHBORING VILLAGE OF DIETRICHINGEN ON THE FRINGE OF THE SIEGFRIEND LINE. THIS GAVE THE "ROCK OF THE MARNE" OUTFIT MORE THAN SIX MILES SINCE THEIR START ALONG THE GERMAN BORDER.

MOSCOW, MARCH 17-(AP)-AN AMERICAN OFFICER CAPTURED BY THE GERMANS AT BASTOGNE, BELGIUM, CHARGED TODAY THAT GERMAN TANKS LAID DOWN HEAVY FIRE ON A FIELD HOSPITAL FILLED WITH AMERICAN WOUNDED DURING MARSHAL VON RUNDSTEDT'S ARDENNES BREAKTHROUGH.

"DURING THE GERMAN COUNTEROFFENSIVE NEAR BASTOGNE," HE SAID, "OUR HOSPITAL WAS STATIONED ON A HILL QUITE ISOLATED FROM THE REST OF THE POSITIONS AND THE GERMANS COULDN'T HELP SEEING OUR RED CROSS FLAG. NEVERTHELESS, A DETACHMENT OF 22 TANKS OCCUPIED THE HILL AND OPENED HEAVY FIRE AT THE TENTS WHERE THE WOUNDED LAY AND MANY OF THEM WERE SERIOUSLY WOUNDED AGAIN."

CRANDALL'S HOME ADDRESS WAS NOT OBTAINED.

THE NEWS AGENCY ALSO SAID THE CITIZENS OF THE POLISH BORDER CITY OF KATOWICE HAD SENT THE WARSAW GOVERNMENT A STATEMENT "EXPRESSING THEIR WISH TO INCORPORATE UPPER SILESIA WITH THE MOTHERLAND AND ASKING MATERIAL ASSISTANCE."

UNDER AGREEMENTS REACHED BY THE BIG THREE, POLAND IS TO TAKE OVER CERTAIN EASTERN GERMAN TERRITORY.

HODSON, WHO BY A REMARKABLE COINCIDENTS TURNED OUT TO BE THE HUSBAND OF A HIGH SCHOOL FRIEND OF THIS WRITER IN KANSAS CITY--

THE JHEN JANE DARLING WHO ATTENDED EAST [illegible] HIGH--WAS THE

FIRST AMERICAN I SAW AS I CLIMBED ABOARD THE REPATRIATION SHIP.

I WAS HURRYING TO GET TO TALK TO AT LEAST A FEW AMERICANS

BEFORE IMPOSITION OF SECURITY REGULATIONS PROHIBITING THEM FROM

TALKING TO NEWSMEN WHEN UP WALKED HODSON. I TOLD HIM I WAS AN

ASSOCIATED PRESS CORRESPONDENT AND WOULD LIKE TO HAVE HIS STORY.

"YOU'RE NOT FRANK O'BRIEN?" HE ASKED.

ASTONISHED, I SAID I WAS AND HODSON, WHO APPEARED IN EXCELLENT HEALTH, GRINNED AND SAID, "YOU AREX A HIGH SCHOOL FRIEND OF MY WIFE; REMEMBER JANE DARLING?"

THE COINCIDENCE CARRIED FARTHER WHEN THE NEXT MAN I MET TURNED OUT TO BE A CLOSE FRIEND FROM ANOTHER STATE, BUT I'M STILL NOT ALLOWED TO MENTION HIS NAME.

HERE'S THE STORY HODSON TOLD AFTER WE GOT THE HOMETOWN TALKING OFF OUR CHESTS:

"I/CAPTURED/BOLGERINI, ITALY, WHILE LEADING A COMBAT PATROL (MARCH 12, 1944.) ONE YEAR AGO TODAY. I GOT A STOMACH WOUND AND THE GERMANS TOOK ME TO A HOSPITAL NEARBY WHERE THEY TREATED ME DECENTLY AND AFTER A MONTH, WHEN I HAD RECOVERED, THEY TOOK ME TO GERMANY. WITHIN A SHORT TIME THEY TOOK US TO OFLAG 64 AT SHUBEN, NEAR BROMBERG ON (BYDGOSZCZ) ON THE POLISH E FRONTIER.

"LIFE THERE WAS NOT BAD AS PRISON LIFE GOES EXCEPT THAT THE FOOD WAS AWFUL. I BELIEVE I GOT THE MOST FROM RED CROSS PACKAGES.

WHEN PANIC STRUCK THE GERMANS AS THE SOVIET WINTER OFFENSIVE ROLLED WESTWARD INTO TERRITORY THE GERMANS BELIEVED THEY COULD DEFEND, HODSON AND THE REST OF THE INMATES AT THE CAMP WERE ORDERED EVACUATED TO X CAMP, "HEAD WEST." IT WAS BITTERLY COLD THE MORNING OF JAN. 21 WHEN CAMP BROKE UP.

"WE JUST TRAMPED WEST THROUGH SNOW HOPING NOT TO FREEZE TO DEATH AND WONDERING WHERE WE WERE GOING AND HOW FAR WE'D HAVE TO MARCH," HE ADDED. "THE MEN WERE STRUNG OUT IN A LONG, UNEVEN LINE ACROSS THE SNOW-COVERED PLAINS."

EITHER STARVATION OR EXPOSURE. HOWEVER, "ON THE SECOND DAY OF THE MARCH IT GOT PRETTY EVIDENT THE GERMAN GUARDS WERE THINKING MORE ABOUT THE POSSIBILITY OF GETTING CAUGHT WITH US THAN ANYTHING ELSE AND WE DECIDED THAT IF WE JUST DROPPED OUT, THEY'D NEVER WASTE TIME LOOKING FOR US."

SO, HODSON ADDED, "WE JUST DROPPED OUT ON THE WAYSIDE BY THE HUNDREDS, HIDING IN ANYTHING AT HAND, BARNS MOSTLY."

THE POLES TOOK CARE OF THEM, HE ADDED, FOR THREE WEEKS UNTIL THEY WERE CERTAIN THEY HAD MOVED EAST FAR ENOUGH. THEN THEY HITCHHIKED INTO WARSAW, A COLLECTING POINT FOR PRISONERS. THEY WERE THERE TWO WEEKS AND FINALLY MOVED TO THE "FOREIGNERS' CAMP" AT ODESSA WHERE THEY WERE PICKED UP BY THE REPATRIATION SHIP.

"NOW WE'RE ON THE ROAD HOME--OH, BOY!" HE SIGHED.

HODSON SAID HE WAS WELL RECOVERED FROM THE WOUND, AND LOOKED IT.

MOSCOW, MARCH 17-(AP)-THE LAST THING CAPT. RICHARD ROSSBACH, NEPHEW OF HERBERT LEHMAN, FORMER GOVERNOR OF NEW YORK, SAW WHEN HE ESCAPED FROM THE GERMAN WOLLSTEIN HOSPITAL PRISON WAS "SEVERAL GERMAN JAILERS BEATING RUSSIAN PRISONERS WITH RIFLE BUTTS RIGHT UNDER MY WINDOW."

ROSSBACH'S STORY WAS TOLD TO SOVIET CORRESPONDENTS AT ODESSA, WHERE THREE ALLIED SHIPS HAVE EVACUATED APPROXIMATELY 5,000 SOLDIERS OF THE UNITED STATES, THE BRITISH EMPIRE, FRANCE, BELGIUM AND NORWAY WHO HAVE BEEN LIBERATED FROM THE GERMANS.

"WE HAD 600 OR 700 RUSSIAN PRISONERS AT WOLLSTEIN, WHICH IS ABOUT 40 MILES FROM POSNAN," ROSSBACH SAID. "MOST OF THEM SUFFERED FROM TUBERCULOSIS AS A RESULT OF OVERWORK AND STARVATION IN GERMANY. THEY WERE TREATED THE WORST OF ANY OF THE PRISONERS."

MADRID, MARCH 17-(AP)-A U.S.PURCHASING COMMISSION CONTRACTED WITH THE SPANISH FRUIT SYNDICATE TODAY FOR PURCHASE OF 1,000 TONS OF LEMONS, RAISING AND DRIED FIGS FOR THE ALLIED FORCES IN THE EUROPEAN THEATER AT A COST OF APPROXIMATELY $1,300,000.

ANOTHER LEAFLET ENCOURAGED JAPANESE CIVILIANS TO STAY AWAY FROM THEIR WAR PLANT JOBS AND CEASE RESISTANCE.

"AMONG THE AMERICANS WHO SERVED ON IWO ISLAND," THE ADMIRAL ADDED, "UNCOMMON VALOR WAS A COMMON VIRTUE."

IWO COST MORE AMERICAN CASUALTIES THAN ANY OTHER ISLAND YET INVADED ACROSS THE CENTRAL PACIFIC, TOPPING THE PREVIOUS HIGH PRICE OF 16,525 IN THE 24-DAY CONQUEST OF SAIPAN IN THE MARIANAS.

"THE UNITED STATES MARINES BY THEIR INDIVIDUAL AND COLLECTIVE COURAGE HAVE CONQUERED A BASE WHICH IS AS NECESSARY TO US IN OUR CONTINUING FORWARD MOVEMENT TOWARD FINAL VICTORY AS IT WAS VITAL TO THE ENEMY IN STAVING OFF ULTIMATE DEFEAT," NIMITZ SAID.

"WITH CERTAIN KNOWLEDGE OF THE COST OF AN OBJECTIVE WHICH HAD TO BE TAKEN, THE FLEET MARINE FORCE SUPPORTED BY THE SHIPS OF THE PACIFIC FLEET AND BY ARMY AND NAVY AIRCRAFT FOUGHT THE BATTLE AND WON."

FRITZ MARQUARDT, HEAD OF THE OWI FIELD STAFF, SAID THAT THE DECISION TO SUSPEND PUBLICATION WAS NOT PROMPTED BY REACTION TO COMMERCIAL POLICY. MAR 18 1945

SOME LOCAL EDITORS ASSERTED THE COMMERCIAL POLICY MEANT UNBEATABLE COMPETITION FROM A GOVERNMENT AGENCY AND CONSEQUENTLY HAMPERED ATTEMPTS TO REESTABLISH MANILA'S PRESS. 21ST BOMBER COMMAND HQTRS, GUAM--NIGHT LEAD KOBE RAID INSERT FOLLOWING AFTER FIRST GRAF X X X ADMITTED TODAY.

RECONNAISSANCE PHOTOS TAKEN AT NOON YESTERDAY SIX HOURS AFTER AMERICAN CREWMEN BACK AT THEIR BASE ESTIMATED 12 SQUARE MILES OF THE CITY WERE IN FLAMES OR ASHES, SHOWED MOST OF THE CITY OBSCURED BY SMOKE. ONLY ONE AND NINE-TENTHS SQUARE MILES WERE CLEARLY VISIBLE IN THE PICTURES, AND THIS AREA WAS TOTALLY DESTROYED. MAR 18 1945

THE JAPANESE, WHO HAVE ATTEMPTED TO MINIMIZE THE NUMBER OF SUPERFORTS IN THE MASS RAIDS RECENTLY, SAID THE KOBE STRIKE WAS MADE BY 60 PLANES, WITH THE NIPPONESE BRINGING DOWN 20 OF THEM.

LEMAY SAID HE HAD RECEIVED NO REPORTS OF THE LOSS OF ANY GUAM-BASED B-29, BUT NINE OF THE BOMBERS MADE EMERGENCY LANDINGS AT IWO JIMA ON THE RETURN TRIP. IWO IS THE MARINE-CONQUERED ISLAND MIDWAY ON THE 1500-MILE ROUTE BETWEEN THE MARIANAS AND JAPAN.

THE YANK FLIERS SAID JAPANESE PILOTS TOOK THE AIR IN STRENGTH OVER KOBE, BUT THE ENEMY WAS RELUCTANT TO ATTACK THE HEAVILY ARMED SUPERFORTS AND CLOUDS HELPED CONCEAL THE B-29S FROM THE INTERCEPTORS.

BLANCHARD SAID A STRONG WIND FANNED THE KOBE FLAMES AND THAT THE FIRE WAS SPREADING RAPIDLY, WITH SEPARATE CONFLAGRATIONS JOINING.

"IT LOOKS LIKE WE REALLY RAISED HELL," HE SAID.

AS IN THE STRIKES AT TOKYO, NAGOYA AND OSAKA, THE B-29S WENT OVER KOBE AT AROUND 5,000 FEET IN ACCORDANCE WITH A CHANGE IN TACTICS. IN EARLIER ATTACKS ON JAPAN THE PLANES WENT OVER AT 25,000 TO 35,000 FEET.

PILOTS SAID KOBE'S FIRES WERE VISIBLE FOR 100 MILES.

FOR THE FIRST TIME IN THE SERIES OF 300-PLANE RAIDS ON TOKYO, NAOYGA, OSAKA AND NOW KOBE, JAPANESE FIGHTERS MADE THEIR APPEARANCE IN STRENGTH--BUT APPARENTLY DID LITTLE IF ANY DAMAGE TO THE B-29S.

FORTY-FIVE TO 50 ENEMY FIGHTERS TOOK TO THE AIR AS THE FIRST SUPERFORTS DUMPED THEIR BOMBS.

"JAPANESE FIGHTERS SEEMED TO HAVE DEVELOPED MORE SAVVY," REPORTED CAPT.J.W.O'NEILL, BROOKLINE,MASS., A PILOT. "THEY WAITED FOR OUR PLANES TO GET OVER THE CITY AND MANY FLEW HIGH TO GET US FROM ABOVE AS WE LEFT THE TARGET.

"WE RAN INTO OPPOSITION AT 8,000 FEET WHEN 10 TO 15 FIGHTERS MADE PASSES AT US. WE WENT UP AND RAN INTO MORE AT 10,000 FEET.

"HOWEVER, WE BLACKED OUT AND WITH THE HELP OF CLOUDS LITERALLY FLEW THROUGH A GROUP OF FIGHTERS WITHOUT THEIR SEEING US."

THE CITY IS AN IMPORTANT RAILROAD CENTER, ON TXO MAIN LINE BETWEEN TOKYO AND OSAKA. DESTRUCTION OF RAIL YARDS AND LINES WOULD INCREASE GREATLY THE EMPIRE'S COMMUNICATIONS PROBLEM, ALREADY MADE CRITICAL BY DAMAGE TO FACILITIES IN THE CAPITAL AND OSAKA.

THE ATTACK PROBABLY SET BACK JAPAN'S SHIPBUILDING AND SHIP REPAIR PROGRAM MANY WEEKS IF NOT MONTHS. THE EMPIRE'S SHIPPING PROBLEM ALREADY WAS CRITICAL, WITH THE NAVY REDUCED TO PROBABLY NOT MORE THAN ONE-FOURTH ITS PRE-WAR FLEET BY REPEATED DEFEATS AT SEA AND HUNDREDS OF ITS MERCHANT SHIPS BLASTED TO THE BOTTOM BY SUBMARINES, PLANES AND WARSHIPS.

TONNAGE OF THE KOBE RAID--2500--WAS THE GREATEST OF THE PACIFIC WAR. TOKYO WAS HIT WITH 2300, NAGOYA AND OSAKA WITH 2000 EACH. THE GREATZR WEIGHT TODAY WAS ATTRIBUTED TO EAGERNESS OF CREWS WHICH EACH TIME OUT "DECIDE THEY CAN TAKE ON HEAVIER LOADS," SAID A SPOKESMAN.

TOTAL TONNAGE OF THE TOKYO, NAGOYA, OSAKA AND KOBE RAIDS IS 8800 OR MORE---17,600,000 POUNDS OF FIRE BOMBS.

A JAPANESE IMPERIAL COMMUNIQUE CLAIMED 20 SUPERFORTS WERE SHOT DOWN OVER KOBE AND ASSERTED FIRES WERE EXTINGUISHED BY 10:30 A.M.

LEMAY SAID HE HAD RECEIVED NO REPORTS OF ANY GUAM-BASED B-29S BEING LOST. NINE BOMBERS MADE EMERGENCY LANDINGS ON THE RETURN TRIP AT IWO JIMA, MIDWAY BETWEEN THE TARGET AND THEIR

MARIANAS ISLAND BASES. "IWO IS REALLY MAKING THE JOB EASIER," THE GENERAL SAID.

AFTER QUESTIONING PILOTS, LEMAY SAID THE RAID "LOOKS LIKE A GOOD ONE."

BLANCHARD ADDED THAT A STRONG WIND WAS BLOWING THE FLAMES TOWARD THE CONGESTED HARBOR AREA WHEN HE STARTED FOR HOME.

"THE FIRE WAS SPREADING VERY RAPIDLY," HE SAID, "AND THE SEPARATE CONFLAGRATIONS WERE RAPIDLY BEING JOINED. IT LOOKS LIKE WE REALLY RAISED HELL."

MANY B-29S CAME BACK WITH FLAK HOLES FROM ANTIAIRCRAFT FIRE, BUT BLANCHARD SAID "IT LOOKED LIKE THE JAP INTERCEPTORS WERE NOT TRYING VERY HARD TO CATCH US."

LT.WARREN R.(SMOKY) AYLSWORTHY, OF EMPIRE, MICH., COMMANDER OF THE SUPERFORT "PURPLE SHAFT" SO DESCRIBED IT AFTER SATURDAY'S 2,500 TON INCENDIARY ATTACK.

IT WAS HIS PERSONAL IMPRESSION THAT THE DAMAGE DONE WAS GREATER THAN THAT AT TOKYO--ALTHOUGH THE OFFICIAL REPORTS MAKE CLEAR IT WAS NOT AS EXTENSIVE.

THE NAVIGATOR OF THE "PURPLE SHAFT," LT.ALBERT M.SKEA, (EIGHT SOUTH ARLINGTON ST.) EAST ORANGE, N.J., CELEBRATED HIS 29TH BIRTHDAY IN A B-29 OVER KOBE.

HE HEARD THE "HAPPY BIRTHDAY" SONG ON THE INTERPHONES AND THE CREW SHARED A CAN OF ICE CREAM. ON THE WAY BACK, WHAT ICE CREAM HAD BEEN LEFT OVER WAS EATEN IN HONOR OF LT.FRANCIS E.WILLIAMSON, THE BOMBARDIER, OF (1335 MADISON AVE.,) NEW YORK. IT WAS HIS FIRST WEDDING ANNIVERSARY.

DOZENS OF IRISHMEN IN THE MORE THAN 300 SUPERFORTS CELEBRATED ST.PATRICK'S DAY OVER THE TARGET. SGT.WALTER C.CALHOUN, OF LAKEVILLE, ILL., HAD FOUR CANS OF BEER IN THE CAMERA HATCH, COOLING. BUT THEY SLIPPED THROUGH AND "ARE PRESUMED IN THE HANDS OF THE ENEMY," HE SADLY REPORTED.

SECOND LT.HERMAN "CHUCK" DRIZIN, OF 1953 FRANKFORD AVENUE, PHILADELPHIA,PA., IN HIS FIRST ATTACK, LED THESE MEN OF THE SECOND BATTALION, 23D MARINES, IN THE DEEPEST CONCENTRATION OF THE JAPS' "STONE-WALL" DEFENSE ZONE EAST OF IWO'S SULPHUR PITS.

THEY WERE 15 STRONG, INCLUDING ONE HOSPITAL CORPSMAN, WHEN THEY WERE FIRST CUT OFF FROM THEIR UNIT BY FIRE FROM A JAP GUN. TWO MEN HAD BEEN WOUNDED. AS THE JAP GUN OPENED FIRE, THE MARINES DOVE FOR THE NEAREST SHELTER IN THE NIGHTMARISH TERRAIN. SHELLHOLES AND BLOOD-SPATTERED DUGOUTS PROVIDED SOME PROTECTION.

LIEUTENANT DRIZIN GOT HIS MEN TOGETHER IN A SHELL HOLE. HE DISPATCHED TWO RUNNERS FOR AID, REDUCING HIS STRENGTH TO 10 ABLE-BODIED MARINES, TWO WOUNDED MARINES AND THE CORPSMAN. ONE OF THE TWO RUNNERS. SGT.EDWARD A.ALDRIDGE, OF 24 FREELAND STREET, FAIRMONT.

DECIDED NOT TO WAIT FOR HELP. THEY MOVED OFF THE EDGE OF THE AIRFIELD AND BEGAN CIRCLING TO THE RIGHT, INTO ENEMY TERRITORY WHICH THE MARINES HAD BEEN TRYING VAINLY TO REACH FOR THREE DAYS.

DODGING FROM HILL TO HOLE, HIDING FROM BEHIND BLASTED TREE STUMPS AND ROCK PILES, THE PATROL HAD TO FACE NOT ONLY ENEMY FIRE, BUT ALSO STRAFING, BOMBING, AND ROCKETS FROM U.S.PLANES, WHICH COULD NOT KNOW THAT THE SMALL GROUP 300 YARDS AHEAD OF THE FRONT LINES WAS A MARINE PATROL.

SUDDENLY, THEY WERE BROUGHT UP SHORT BY A BLAST FROM A MACHINE GUN DIRECTLY AHEAD OF THEM. THEY HAD RUN HEAD-ON INTO A JAP TANK, DUG IN SO THAT ONLY ITS CAMOUFLAGED TURRET WAS EXPOSED. THE NEAREST MARINES, ONLY 10 FEET AWAY, HAD NO IDEA IT WAS THERE UNTIL THE JAPS OPENED FIRE.

THE MARINES CIRCLED THE TANK. SOME OF THE ENEMY TANK CREW, DUG IN AROUND THE EMPLACEMENT, THREW GRENADES, WOUNDING A MARINE. HE WAS TREATED BY THE NAVY CORPSMAN, ANTHONY B.LORENZO, 50 STONE AVENUE, BROOKLYN, N.Y., AND WAS ABLE TO PROCEED.

"WE HAD THE JAP TANK CREW SURROUNDED," RECALLED LORENZO, "AND THE JAPS HAD US SURROUNDED."

THE NEXT MOVE WAS MADE BY MARINE PRIVATE FIRST CLASS EUGENE J.FREDERICKS JR., OF 57 BAYTON STREET, PATERSON, N.J., CARRYING A BAZOOKA. RUNNING TO WITHIN 20 YARDS OF THE TANK, HE LAID A ROCKET SQUARELY INTO THE TURRET, SILENCING THE MACHINE GUN AND DRIVING THE GUNNERS OUT. THEY WERE QUICKLY DISPOSED OF BY RIFLE FIRE.

CORP. HARRY T.PRICE OF 3328 OLYPHANT STREET, SCRANTON,PA., FINISHED OFF THE TANK WITH A BUNDLE OF SHORT-FUSED TNT. PRICE RAN TO WITHIN FOUR FEET OF THE SILENT TANK AND TOSSED HIS TNT. IT HAD A 15-SECOND FUSE, BUT SOMEHOW EXPLODED IMMEDIATELY. PRICE WAS KNOCKED HEAD OVER HEELS BY THE EXPLOSION, BUT WAS UNHURT.

A FEW HUNDRED YARDS FURTHER, ANOTHER DUG-IN TANK OPENED FIRE ON THE PATROL. FREDERICKS SCORED A BULLS-EYE ON THIS ONE WITH A ROCKET.

FINALLY DRIZIN DECIDED TO RETRACE HIS STEPS, RUNNING THE GAUNTLET OF JAP AND MARINE FIRE. THE LAST 150 YARDS, ALONG THE OPEN AIR-STRIP, THEY WERE CHASED BY MACHINE GUN AND SNIPER FIRE. HOBBLING, STUMBLING, DODGING, THEY MADE IT BACK TO THE POINT OF DEPARTURE, CASUALTIES AND ALL.

THERE THEY FOUND THE REST OF THE PLATOON STILL PINNED DOWN BY FIRE FROM THE 47MM. GUN. THE ENEMY GUN WAS LOCATED ON ANOTHER DUG-IN TANK. FREDERICKS AND PRICE PICKED UP MORE BAZOOKA AMMUNITION, TOOK SOME RIFLEMEN TO COVER THEM, AND WENT OUT AND GOT THEIR THIRD JAP TANK.

A FINAL COUNT SHOVED 1,231 JAPS DEAD AND SCORES NEVER WILL BE COUNTED BECAUSE THEY ARE SEALED IN BLASTED PILLBOXES AND BLOCKHOUSES. THE MARINES SUFFERED ALMOST 1,000 CASUALTIES BUT ONLY A LITTLE MORE THAN 100 OF THEM WERE FATALITIES.

WHILE THE PRICE PAID FOR SURIBACHI WAS HIGH, IT MIGHT HAVE BEEN HIGHER WHEN ENEMY FORTIFICATIONS AND GUN EMPLACEMENTS ARE CONSIDERED.
THESE OTALLED MORE THAN 200, INCLUDING 108 PILLBOXES, 40 MACHINE GUNS, 26 ANTIAIRCRAFT GUNS, 22 COVERED ARTILLERY EMPLACEMENTS, 14 BLOCKHOUSES, 12 LIGHT MORTARS, SIX DUAL PURPOSE GUNS, FOUR COAST DEFENSE GUNS, THREE ANTITANK GUNS, ONE THREE-INCH GUN, TWO 70 MM. GUNS, ONE 105 MM. GUN AND THREE 75 MM. PIECES.
ALTHOUGH NAVAL AND AERIAL BOMBARDMENT KNOCKED OUT MANY OF THE LARGER INSTALLATIONS, SCORES OF PILLBOXES WERE DEMOLISHED BY MARINES WITH FLAMETHROWERS AND DEMOLITIONS.
"I" COMPANY ALONE, UNDER FIRST LIEUTENANT THOMAS G. MAHONEY, JR., OF 130 FIFTH AVENUE, SAN FRANCISCO, CALIF., WHO TOOK COMMAND WHEN THE COMPANY COMMANDER WAS WOUNDED, ACCOUNTED FOR AT LEAST 25 PILLBOXES.
"G" COMPANY, UNDER THE COMMAND OF CAPTAIN ROBERT B. CARNEY, JR., OF 4501 CONNECTICUT AVENUE, WASHINGTON, D.C., FIGHTING IN WHAT WAS PROBABLY THE MOST HEAVILY FORTIFIED AREA ON THE APPROACHES TO SURIBACHI, DID EQUALLY WELL.
CARNEY IS THE SON OF REAR ADMIRAL ROBERT B. CARNEY, CHIEF OF STAFF OF THE THIRD FLEET.
INDIVIDUAL FEATS OF HEROISM DURING THE FOUR DAY CONFLICT WERE SO NUMEROUS AS TO BECOME COMMONPLACE.

NAVY HOSPITAL CORPSMEN WALKED UP TO THE VERY MUZZLES OF ENEMY GUNS TO GET THE WOUNDED.
OUT OF MORE THAN A 100 CORPSMEN ATTACHED TO THIS UNIT, 30 WERE CASUALTIES. DESPITE THE EFFORTS OF THE CORPSMEN, SCORES OF WOUNDED LAY ON THE BEACHES FOR AS LONG AS 36 HOURS BEFORE THEY COULD BE EVACUATED TO HOSPITAL SHIPS.
"EVACUATION WAS OUR BIGGEST PROBLEM," SAID NAVY LIEUTENANT WILLIAM F. LYNN, 36, OF 1102 BEVERLY WAY, ALTADENA, CALIF., THE ACTING REGIMENTAL SURGEON.
EVACUATION OF WOUNDED FROM THE BEACH WAS UNDER THE TERRIBLE HANDICAP OF CONTINUOUS MORTAR FIRE. IN THIS RESPECT THE WOUNDED PROBABLY WERE SAFER AT THE FRONT THAN AT THE BEACH.
BUT NO PLACE ON IWO JIMA WAS SAFE.
HERE, WHERE THIS IS WRITTEN, WE HAD 12 CASUALTIES. FOUR MEN WERE KILLED, AMONG THEM A COMBAT CORRESPONDENT, MY COLLEAGUE, STAFF SERGEANT WILLIAM T. VESSEY, 24, OF OREGON CITY, ORE. THE MORTAR BLAST THAT KILLED VESSEY WOUNDED SEVEN OTHERS.

MAJ.GEN.CURTIS E.LEMAY, COMMANDER OF THE 21ST, SAID THE BOMBARDIERS HAVE PRECISE, CAREFULLY CHOSEN AIMING POINTS WITHIN THE TARGET AREA. THESE ARE SELECTED SO THAT FIRES SET BY THE INCENDIARIES WILL LINK WITH OTHERS AND FORM A VAST SEA OF FLAME, SWEEPING THE ENTIRE AREA.
THESE FIRES DESTROY NOT ONLY FACTORIES BUT HOME WORKSHOPS, POWER COMMUNICATIONS AND TRANSPORTATION. EVEN WHEN A FACTORY ITSELF IN SUCH AN AREA IS UNSCATHED, OFFICERS BELIEVE IT CANNOT BE PRODUCTIVE WITHOUT ALL THE SERVICES IN THE SURROUNDING AREAS WHICH THE FLAMES DID DESTROY.

OFFICIAL FIGURES ON THE REDUCTION OF MEAT SUPPLIES ARE NOT AVAILABLE, BUT PRIVATE SOURCES SAID THE DROUGHT HAD BROUGHT A DROP OF ABOUT 27 PER CENT IN THE NUMBER OF CATTLE AVAILABLE FOR SLAUGHTER AT PACKING PLANTS.

LATEST ESTIMATES BY THE MINISTRY OF AGRICULTURE PLACE WHEAT PRODUCTION FOR THE 1944-45 CROP YEAR AT 4,249,000 TONS OR 37.5 PER CENT LESS THAN IN THE PRECEDING SEASON.

OFFICIAL ESTIMATES OF RYE PRODUCTION THIS YEAR ARE 259,000 TONS OR NEARLY 50 PER CENT LESS THAN THE PRECEDING YEAR'S 557,000 TONS.

THE WORST SHOWING WAS MADE BY LINSEED, WHICH ACCORDING TO OFFICIAL CALCULATIONS IS NOT EXPECTED TO EXCEED 767,500 TONS. THIS REPRESENTS A 51.2 PER CENT DECREASE FROM LAST YEAR'S YIELL AND WOULD BE THE SMALLEST CROP SINCE 1918.

THE SMALLNESS OF THE LINSEED CROP IS CONSIDERED A PARTICULARLY HARD BLOW IN VIEW OF ITS IMPORTANCE AS A SUBSTITUTE FOR FUEL OIL.

LINSEED FORMERLY WAS A PRIME EXPORT TO THE UNITED STATES BUT EXPORTATION WAS BANNED SEVERAL MONTHS AGO BECAUSE OF DOMESTIC REQUIREMENTS.

THE ONLY BRIGHT SPOTS IN THE CROP PICTURE ARE FOR OATS AND MAIZE (CORN). THE OATS CROP IS ESTIMATED AT 1,047,000 TONS, WHICH WOULD MAKE IT THE ONLY CROP SURPASSING LAST YEAR'S YIELD. ARGENTINA HARVESTED 924,800 TONS A YEAR AGO.

HEAVY RAINS IN FEBRUARY IMPROVED PROSPECTS FOR THE LATE MAIZE CROP, ALTHOUGH THEY CAME TOO LATE TO HELP EARLY PLANTINGS. THERE HAVE BEEN NO OFFICIAL CALCULATIONS ON THE SIZE OF THE MAIZE CROP BUT PRIVATE SOURCES EXPECT THE YIELD TO RUN AROUND 3,000,000 OR 3,500,000 TONS, ABOUT 70 PER CENT OF PREVIOUS EXPECTATIONS.

STRONGLY FORTIFIED COBLENZ, AT THE CONFLUENCE OF THE RHINE AND MOSELLE RIVER, IS ONE OF THE GREATEST PRIZES YET REACHED ON THE WESTERN FRONT BECAUSE OF ITS COMMAND OF HIGHWAY, RAIL AND RIVER TRAFFIC.

ANOTHER AMERICAN THIRD ARMY OCCUPIED THE CITY OF 58,322 FROM 1918 UNTIL JAN.24, 1923, WHEN COLORS FINALLY WERE STRUCK FROM THE SULLEN FORTRESS OF EHRENBREITSTEIN, WHICH OVERLOOKS COBLENZ FROM ACROSS THE RHINE.

THE STRATEGIC CITY IS THE CAPITAL OF PRUSSIAN RHINE PROVINCE. IT LIES 49 MILES SOUTHEAST OF COLOGNE, 41 NORTHWEST OF MAINZ, 75 FROM LUDWIGSHAFEN AND MANNHEIM AND 100 FROM KARLSRUHE--ALL RHINE CITIES.

THE ROMANS FIRST FORTIFIED COBLENZ, REPUTED TO BE THE MOST BEAUTIFUL CITY ON THE RHINE. IT CENTERS A GREAT WINE DISTRICT. ITS SPRAWLING RAIL YARDS HANDLED 6,500 CARS DAILY BEFORE THE BOMBERS CAME; ITS RIVER PORT TEEMED WITH COMMERCE.

THE RHINE THERE IS FROM 900 TO 1,200 FEET WIDE AND THE MOSELLE IS 600 TO 900 FEET ACROSS. MOST OF THE CITY LIES ON THE RHINE'S WEST BANK, PROTECTED BY THE MOSELLE.

IN THE FIRST WORLD WAR AS NOW, THE FRENCH, AMERICAN AND BRITISH TROOPS WERE ARRAYED ON THE WESTERN FRONT FROM SOUTH TO NORTH. FRENCH [illegible]UPATION HEADQUARTERS WERE AT MAINZ. THE BRITISH USED COLOGNE.

[illegible]NE OF THE AMERICAN JUNIOR OFFICERS AT COBLENZ IN 1918 WAS HUGH [illegible]FFEY, AUSTIN, TEXAS. CAFFEY NOW IS THE HANDSOME, WHITE-HAIRED [illegible] GENERAL WHOSE FOURTH ARMORED DIVISION CUT THE WAY FOR THE BREAK[illegible]H TO COBLENZ. THE BLUE-EYED FORMER CAVALRY OFFICER WAS CHIEF [illegible]F TO LT.GEN.GEORGE S.PATTON, JR., OF THE THIRD ARMY, IN NORTH [illegible]AND SICILY.

THE U.S. THIRD ARMY WHICH OCCUPIED COBLENZ IN 1918 WAS FORMED ESPECIALLY FOR THE OCCUPATION AND WAS COMMANDED BY MAJ.GEN.HENRY T. ALLEN.

IN OCTOBER, 1923, SEPARATISTS IN COBLENZ PROCLAIMED A RHINELAND REPUBLIC AND DECLARED THAT THEY HAD BEEN RECOGNIZED AS A DE FACTO GOVERNMENT BY THE FRENCH HIGH COMMISSIONER. THE MOVEMENT COLLAPSED IN THE FOLLOWING FEBRUARY.

EMPEROR HENRY II GAVE THE CITY TO THE ARCHBISHOP OF TRIER IN 1018 AND IT REMAINED UNDER THE TRIER ARCHBISHOPS UNTIL THE CLOSE OF THE 18TH CENTURY. TROOPS OF THE FRENCH REVOLUTIONARY ARMY TOOK COBLENZ IN 1794 AND IN 1814 IT WAS OCCUPIED BY THE RUSSIANS. THE CONGRESS OF VIENNA ASSIGNED IT TO PRUSSIA. Hodges' Troops Reach Edge of Rhine Plain in 2-Mile Advance.

YANKS ENTER BINGEN

80,000 Germans Face Trap from Closing Jaws of Two Armies.

PARIS, Monday, March 19.—(AP) U. S. Third army tanks and troops, overrunning one-third of Germany's doomed Saarland, swept unchecked Sunday across the Nahe river 21 miles southwest of Mainz, vital exit for 80,000 enemy troops in frantic retreat to the Rhine.

The U. S. First army, robbed of one important lifeline by collapse of the Ludendorff bridge, nevertheless drove nearly two miles north along the Rhine's east bank close to the edge of inner Germany's plain.

The U. S. Seventh army was smashing through the Saarland's Siegfried Line on a 25-mile front as the German First army fled before the mounting peril from the Third army in its rear.

Nazis Chased from France

On the 30-mile eastern segment of that front, American troops with their French Allies along the Rhine were rapidly chasing the Germans from their last foothold on French soil.

American fighterbombers spread ruin along highways clogged with German troops fleeing the closing jaws of the Third and Seventh armies, now possibly 25 to 35 miles from snapping shut in the heart of the Saar after the Third racked up new gains of 13 miles.

It appeared that the western Saar was well emptied of German troops, and that industrial basin which Germany took back by plebiscite when Hitler began to rearm, was falling swiftly to American arms.

The Nahe river,—last important barrier in the path of the Fourth Armored division's rush, was crossed at Bad Krueznach, a health resort famed as German army headquarters in the First World war.

While tanks were overrunning most of this city of 28,000 population on the Nahe's east bank the 90th infantry a few miles north pushed eastward six miles and entered the west bank town of Bingen, 17 miles west of Mainz.

Have Hold on Rhine

Lt. Gen. George S. Patton's armor and tanks now were on the Nahe river at points along its entire length, and held 25 miles of the Rhine's west bank for 25 miles southeastward from conquered Coblenz.

Patton's blows at the Saarland from the west were dealt with equal force.

The Third army captured the western anchor of Merzig and came crashing through the basin's northern border in a push promising a speedy junction with the Seventh in the heart of the Saar.

(A BBC broadcast said the armies were but 15 miles apart after the Third had cracked into St. Wendel, 18 miles northeast of Saarlautern.)

The German communique said the Third army's flying tank columns, which unhinged all defenses west of the Rhine with a breakthrough along the valley, had broken across the Nahe river at a second point 24 miles southwest of Mainz, through which two beaten enemy armies are fleeing.

In the midst of these smashing successes west of the Rhine came the bad news that the great Ludendorff bridge, seized by the First army in crossing the Rhine March 7, had collapsed.

Without regard for this loss, the First army drove nearly two miles northward, broadening its east bank grip to 15 1-2 miles. The First captured an airfield almost six miles east of the Rhine, and widened to six miles its hold on the Superhighway to the Ruhr.

It was announced officially that loss of the bridge, which gave way Saturday afternoon, before engineers could repair it fully, would not impair the First army's ability to hold the bridgehead, now about eight miles deep.

Pontoon Bridge Remains

It was known that Lt. Gen. Courtney H. Hodges had one pontoon bridge across, and this probably is supplemented by other emergency structures and ferries to keep men, tanks and guns rolling over the river.

The U. S. Seventh army battered halfway through the southern Saar's Siegfried line east of the province's capital of Saarbruecken while the Third army crashed through the roof in a seven-mile surge 35 miles to the north.

Third army troops were pouring into the western Saar across the Saar river, and the quiek fall of fortified Merzig, a city of 10,000 population, testified to the want of resistance.

Lt. Gen. George S. Patton's first invasion of the Saar last fall ground to a stop in front of Merzig, which was a keystone in the Siegfried line.

It was 28 miles north east of here that the Tenth armored division was driving 35 miles from a junction with the Seventh in the very center of the Saar.

The tanks roared into Birkenfeld, a highway control point 35 miles north of last reported Seventh army positions south of the Saar city of Zweibruecken.

Thirty-five miles farther east, the German communique said the Fourth Armored division had crossed the Nahe river, last natural barrier before Mainz, at Bad Muenster.

This is three miles south of where enemy broadcasts Saturday said the rampaging tanks had crossed at Bad Kreuznach. Here, deep behind the lines of the German Seventh and First armies, the enemy said the Third army was hurrying up reniforcements for renewed blows.

RHINE SPAN WEAKENED BY GERMAN BOMB

1,200-Foot Structure Can Be Repaired; Scores Of GI's Rescued

(Censored by United States)

With the Americans Across the Rhine, March 13 (AP)—The central span of the 1,200-foot Ludendorff bridge at Remagen collapsed yesterday, carrying many army engineers to death in the Rhine, but it was announced officially tonight the gap can be repaired and the bridge soon will be in operation again.

The collapse, blamed on a weakened main supporting girder that had been damaged by a German demolition charge before the Americans seized the bridge March 7, proved to be less of a catastrophe than had first been indicated.

Many Are Rescued

Many of the 200 engineers who were working on the bridge and fell into the river when the span gave way were rescued, it was announced. There was no official tally of the dead and injured.

The German explosives damaged a lower-arch girder ten days ago when the span was seized, and failure to repair or replace it proved to be the real reason for loss of the bridge. Stresses and strains on remaining girders became too much.

But the first task was to build up the bridgehead and throw over supplementing pontoon spans. Engineers were working to strengthen the girder when the bridge gave way.

Central Span Collapses

There was no explosion or shellburst when the bridge tumbled down, at 3.10 P.M., and enemy action was not directly responsible.

Lieut. Gen. Omar N. Bradley's headquarters said the main central span, 512 feet long, toppled into the water as a result of cumulative strains and stresses which American Army engineers had been trying to offset with repairs.

The span had been closed for repairs except for brief intervals, and no traffic was passing over at the time of its collapse.

About 200 engineers were working on the structure, frequently damaged by blast and shellfire, when it gave way without warning. Some were killed, others drowned and many were injured.

Dozens Of Lives Saved

Heroic work by soldiers saved the lives of dozens of engineers who, after days of toil in a hail of shellfire, had the historic road and railway span ready for traffic.

Loss of the bridge did not immediately imperil the Americans' steadily expanding bridgehead, since pontoon bridges are in operation.

But the supply of reinforcements and tanks now is limited to spans which are easy prey for floods, and the Rhine frequently surges out of its banks with spring rains. The terrain already seized east of the Rhine is rugged, and ill-suited for landing fields.

The whole steel framework of the bridge collapsed, leaving three stone piers and the approaches intact.

GI Tells How Bridge Fell

A section leading from the center to the east bank went under water, and the section leading to the west side fell partly on the bank and in shallow water.

Sergt. George L. Wolsey, of Highland Park, Mich., was working on one side of the bridge, and looked east when it started to sway.

"She started to give it this," he said, waving his hand slowly from side to side. "Then it fell over to the south. There wasn't a lot of noise, just a deep rumble like somebody sawing wood. Men fell over into the water like dominoes. I ran to the west side and barely cleared to the pier."

Men Bob To Surface

Moments later downstream dozens of men bobbed to the surface. Many, injured, swam weakly toward twisted timbers swirling in the current. They were swept toward a pontoon bridge which engineers had thrown across the Rhine some distance north of the original crossing site ten days before.

Some of the men were mangled and pinned between steel girders. Others were buried in debris under the water.

Two signalmen, Private George Arnold, of Oil City, Pa., and Private Joe Battista, of Pence, Wis., were stretching wire across the bridge, but had gone to a jeep off the span and escaped injury.

Typical of the coolness with which Americans met the emergency, they tapped the line and summoned ambulances and medics to the scene.

Aid Station Set Up

In a matter of seconds, lines of Red Cross vehicles were streaking up to the bridge on both sides of the river. An aid station was set up in a windowless, shell-torn building.

A division chaplain, Capt. George Barber, of Montebello, Cal., administered last rites to the fatally wounded. He walked down among the wreckage to be with one man who died under tons of steel and lumber ground into the muddy banks at the water's edge.

Scores of troops raced onto a pontoon bridge to pull men from the water. Some were taken from the cold river before they were swept into the cables and pontoons.

Engineers on the pontoon bridge also were busy shunting splintered pieces of timber away from the vulnerable pontoons.

In the middle of rescue operations, a German shell landed near by, and fragments cut down several men.

An outstanding hero was Sgt. George Aneson of Brooklyn, N. Y. He helped a lieutenant colonel and a captain pull a corporal from the water at a pontoon, but left when he saw two men struggling to keep hold of wreckage about midway between the pontoon and the wrecked bridge.

Without stopping to throw off his heavy combat boots, Aneson yanked off his trousers and swam into the water with a heavy rope which Pvt. Theodore Gates of Presto, Pa., had tried vainly to throw to the men from his position waist-deep in the water on the edge of the bank.

[illegible] had been weakened

Weakened By Charges

The bridge had been weakened by two charges which the Germans exploded, and more by shells which gouged chunks out of three vertical beams several days ago.

The Germans started throwing heavy shells into the general area of the bridge yesterday, and although none of them hit anywhere near the span, some soldiers advanced the theory that deep vibrations caused by their blast might have started a shift in weight which sent the bridge down.

There had been no enemy planes in the neighborhood for 36 hours before the collapse.

On the day Sergt. Alexander Drabik, of Holland, Ohio, led the rush across the Ludendorff Bridge, a German demolition crew set off a charge that blew out a section of the decking and severed a lower arch girder at a pier 270 feet from the eastern bank of the Rhine.

This girder, 32 by 40 inches, was made of ¾-inch steel plates. It was severed at a point where the main center arch of the bridge tied into the pier supports just below the decking.

Engineers knew of this grave weakness, but the first thing that had to be done was to get troops, armor and heavy equipment across into the bridgehead, and take the chance the girder would hold. It did, for ten days.

Then the strain proved too great, since in those ten days nothing was done to replace the severed girder.

Nazis Execute Four For Rhine Blunder

London, March 18 (AP)—Three German majors and a lieutenant were executed after court-martial for cowardice or neglect of duty in American seizure of the bridge at Remagen over the Rhine, the German high command announced today.

A fifth officer, Captain Brathke, who commanded the Remagen garrison, was sentenced to death in absentia, the Nazi command added, implying he had fled or been captured.

Sentences Carried Out

The five were sentenced, "some on charges of cowardice, others on charges of grave neglect of duty in the field, for neglectful failure to blow up the Rhine bridge at Remagen in good time, or else to defend it with determination," the broadcast communiqué said.

Sentences on all but Brathke were carried out immediately, it added.

The officers were "Major Strobel, of a sappers regimental headquarters; Major Scheller, adjutant of an army corps; Major Kraft, of a land-sapper battalion, and Lieutenant Peters, in command of anti-aircraft forces" deployed for protection of the span.

Blunder Aided 1st Army

The blunder gave the United States 1st Army a firm bridgehead on the east bank of the Rhine without a bloody, contested crossing.

The announcement came in a supplement to the regular German communiqué. The supplement customarily singles out individuals and units distinguishing themselves in battle.

YANK PLANES FLY FROM NAZI SOIL

(Censored)

AN AMERICAN AIRFIELD IN GERMANY, March 18—(AP) U. S. fighter planes, operating on German soil only 45 minutes from Berlin, today were using this expansive airfield built by the Germans in 1941 as a base for their London-bound bombers.

American Thunderbolts making their first organized mission Friday whipped across the Rhine and destroyed or damaged 65 enemy boxcars south of Mulheim.

The field came into operation the day when 14 Thunderbolts rocketed down onto the 5,000-foot runway. Actually, two American Mustang pilots flew a reconnaissance mission from the field six days ago and a fighter pilot who earned his spurs by shooting down eight Zeros in New Guinea landed on the strip the day before engineers announced that the runway was ready for operation by Brig.-Gen. Richard E. Nugent's 29th tactical air command.

Under German domination, two strips and miles of revetments, all surfaced, had been laid down by laborers forced to work for their Nazi masters.

Last September when the Allied groud forces began to sweep to the Siegfried line, the U. S. Strategic Air forces were given the task of knocking out this airfield. Two or three heavy Liberator and Flying Fortress raids demolished the buildings and left the runways pocked with 128 craters.

The Germans abandoned the field, blowing up remaining installations, but it did not come into American hands until two weeks ago when a hard-driving American division overran the sector during the Ninth army's smash from the Roer to the Rhine.

Tactical Planes Aid 3d Army

(Censored)

ADVANCE HEADQUARTERS, United States Ninth Air Force, March 18 (AP)—Fighter-bomber planes supported the United States Third Army's drive with fierce energy today, peppering the cities of the German Palatinate with record quantities of ammunition.

The Nineteenth Tactical Air Command, which dominates the air immediately ahead of Lieut. Gen. George S. Patton's forces, shot more than a half-million rounds of ammunition and hundreds of rockets—enough to fill fifteen 2½-ton trucks. Much of it was expended to harass the Germans on the roads moving eastward.

Eight American planes were lost to flak. German air activity was relatively weak, but seven Nazi planes destroyed and two probables were chalked up in scattered encounters.

Eisenhower Visits Patton

3d Army Now Employs Equivalent of 6 Divisions of Armor

WITH THE UNITED STATES 3D ARMY, March 18 (AP).—Lieutenant General George S. Patton jr. was visited today at 3d Army headquarters by General Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Patton disclosed that his army now has four complete armored divisions plus ten tank battalions participating in the present offensive, giving him the equivalent of six divisions of armor to team with his numerous infantry divisions.

The famous 4th Armored, 10th Armored and 11th Armored Divisions previously have been mentioned in stirring advances, and today a new armored division, as yet unidentified, threw its power into the attack.

Reds Topple Kolberg, Ending 13-Day Siege

Russians Narrow East Prussian Pocket Southwest of Koenigsberg—Berlin Reports New Battles Between Dresden, Belgrade—Noose Tightened on Danzig.

LONDON, Monday March 19—(AP) Red army assault troops captured the shell-torn ruins of the German Baltic naval port of Kolberg yesterday, ending a 13-day siege of the city, as other Russian forces narrowed the Germans' evaporating East Prussian pocket southwest of Koenigsberg to a mere 126 square miles in gains of up to four miles.

Far to the south in Czechoslovakia's Tatra mountains, Soviet troops won control of a 70-mile stretch of the east bank of the strategic Hron river west of Bratislava and Vienna. Berlin reported violent battles flaring along almost the entire 375-mile length of the southern half of the Eastern front.

Some 125 miles east of captured Kolberg, Soviet men were grinding into the perimeter defenses of the twin pre-war rival ports of Danzig and Gdynia, Berlin said. The Moscow radio said that the former free city of Danzig was in flames after attack by Soviet heavy bombers.

The Russian radio said that the Nazis were frantically trying to evacuate by sea residents of Danzig bay coastal towns imminently threatened by the Red army, although German naval communications were described "in a precarious position." Thousands of residents were reported fleeing blazing Danzig toward Gdynia, only to jam with "tens of thousands" of refuges from Pomeranian cities, camping in the open awaiting sea transport.

Collapse of enemy resistance in Kolberg, ancient Pomeranian seaport with a pre-war population of 33,170, was announced by Premier Stalin in an order of the day. The highly-fortified citadel, surrounded by the Red army on land, was taken by Marshal Gregory K. Zhukov's First White Russian army, including Polish units.

The port, lying 63 miles northeast of imperiled Stettin, had been under assault since March 6, when it was cut off from the west by a swift Soviet thrust to the coast. The Germans desperately tried to prolong the battle for the town since it lies astride the important Pomeranian coastal supply railroad.

The Germans, conceding loss of the city, claimed that the Nazi garrison had been evacuated by sea early yesterday morning. Moscow's midnight war bulletin said Zhukov's artillery had shelled the port from the west, sinking several German ships trying to enter the harbor to evacuate troops.

Fighting later shifted to the eastern part of the town, where the Russians launched their decisive attack. "Thousands" of enemy dead lay in the streets after resistance ceased, the communique said.

In East Prussia, the bloody battle for the elimination of trapped enemy forces southwest of Koenigsberg was nearing its end as the Third White Russian army narrowed the coastal strip held by the enemy to a length of 21 miles, averaging six miles in width, and at no point more than nine miles from the sea.

Converging on the last enemy strongholds of Heiligenbeil and Braunsberg the Russians hammered within four and a half miles southeast of Heiligenbeil by winning the highway junction of Rehefld. Six miles south of Heiligenbeil, Soviet infantry captured Grunenfeld, five and a half miles east of Braunsberg.

Thirteen miles southwest of Koenigsberg, the Third White Russians cleared a five-mile strip of the Prussian coast on the west bank of the Frisching river opposite captured Brandenburg, taking Patersorth in a four-mile advance.

Less than two miles southeast of Patersorth, the five-way road and rail center of Ludwigsort fell as the Russians advanced on a 10-mile front in this sector, killing more than 3,000 Nazi troops and capturing another 800. The Soviet communiques quoted German prisoners as saying Nazi units were losing 80 per cent of their effectives.

Clear Banks of Hron

Meanwhile in Czechoslovakia, Marshal Rodion Y. Malinovsky's Second Ukrainian army cleared the entire 70-mile east bank of the Hron river between the Czechoslovak town of Zvolen and its confluence with the Danube at Esztergom, 19 miles northwest of Budapest.

This was effected when Malinovsky's troops won the last 16-mile stretch of the river bank between Ostroluka, four miles west of Zvolen, and Hlink-Nad-Hronom and Vyhne, 19 miles west. These towns were taken, along with the fortified stronghold of Horne Opatovca, the village of Sasov Podhradie and five mountain peaks.

The upper reaches of the Hron river already were in Russian hands, the German holding only a 30-mile stretch of the east bank behind the mountains before the key Czechoslovak stronghold of Banska Bystrica.

Moscow was silent on the battle for the Baltic port of Stettin, northern anchor of Berlin's Oder river defense line. The enemy said, however, that a hail of artillery was ripping German positions on a narrow front south and east of the naval base where Zhukov's army continued an all-out attempt to wipe out a 25-square mile Nazi bridgehead across the Oder southeast of Stettin.

Berlin said German reserves had halted Russian blows on the outskirts of Altdamm, key suburban stronghold three and a half miles from Stettin.

RUSSIANS TO OPEN BERLIN ASSAULT IN EARLY SPRING

MAR 1 9 1945

MOSCOW, March 18—(AP) The Red army will attack toward Berlin again as soon as it has dealt with the three-fold problem of "Kessels," logistics and weather.

Russian frontline correspondents make it fairly clear that an all-out drive from the Oder toward the Elbe is due to begin in early Spring. "A gathering storm" is their favorite description.

Must Clean Up Kessels

"Kessels" are the chief unfinished business which four huge Soviet army groups must wind up before they concentrate on cracking central Germany. "Kessel" is a German word meaning "cauldron," applied to isolated but stubbornly-resisting troops.

These "Kessels" extend in the current fighting from Breslau to Koenigsberg. Here is the way the situation seems to stack up!

Breslau—this is Marshal Ivan S. Konev's baby .He has been smashing it yard by yard for weeks. It may take another month before his First Ukrainian army can break the core of enemy strength which the Luftwaffe still is trying to support with airborne supplies.

The Germans' Stettin bridgehead east of the Oder—this is now about five miles wide and four miles in depth with Marshal G. K. Zhukov's First White Russian army pressure threatening to wipe it out in a few more days.

Kolberg, Pomeranian naval base—Zhukov's troops have forced a motley garrison of German sailors, Volkssturmers and army regulars to hole up in a small section of the town. They have a nuisance value because Kolberg is astride the important coastal railroad across Pomerania which otherwise is mostly in Russian hands. It is doubtful whether they will hold out much longer.

(Marshal Josef Stalin announced today that the last enemy resistance had been smashed and the seaport captured.)

Danzig and Gdynia—these pre-war rival ports lie in a 25-mile long coastal strip as narrow as five miles. Marshal Konstantin K. Rokossovsky's Second White Russian troops have been throwing their Sunday punch trying to split the "Kessel" in two. They almost made it last week and there is little doubt they will make it at the next try. After Danzig and Gdynia have been separated and encircled the time it will take to storm them depends on whether Rokossovsky shifts his major forces to the Oder river.

East Prussia—the province now is divided into a little "Kessel" centered around the coastal towns of Braunsberg and Heligenbeil, and another centered around the capital city of Koenigsberg and the Samland peninsula to the west, which is an extremely formidable defense position.

East Prussia's little "Kessel" should disappear entirely within a few days; but Koenigsberg is a knockdown, drag out fight which seems liable to be prolonged indefinitely even though the Russians soon may encircle the city and sever its communications with the naval base of Pillau, 24 miles to the west.

Has Logistic Problem

Logistics and weather are questions to which the Red army seems to get an answer as seasily as looking into a crystal ball. The Red army always has been a good "mudder" and Spring thaw now is turning the eastern Reich into a sticky gumbo. But it should be less of an obstacle than the Ukrainian mud in the Spring offensive a year ago.

Thaw combined with some 300 miles the Red army has traveled from Polish bases since mid-January would have made a colossal headache for any but the Soviet quartermaster general.

The "Kessel" type of fighting uses up big tonnages of ammunition which the Russians would rather employ in another breakthrough. But there is no doubt large reserves now are assembled near the Oder and Niesse rivers, earmarked only for a new offensive.

Tremendous strides have been made in western Poland, restoring the main east-west railroad and laying new tracks for Russian-gauge rolling stock. Where one line existed before there are likely to be two operating today.

Dozens of German warplants captured virtually intact in Brandenburg, Pomerania and Silesia and the frontier provinces of Poland now are producing for the Red army, thereby easing the transport problem. Many workers are submissive Germans.

Besides this, the Red army acquired considerable food stocks from the enemy and, for the most part, the Soviet soldier appears to live off the land where he fights.

Shells and gasoline are the things which the Red army puts highest in logistics. When the Red army starts moving west again there will be more than enough of these on hand to reach Berlin.

BERLIN BOMBED FOR 34TH DAY

MAR 1 9 1945

RAF Rains Blockbusters After Record U.S. Attack

Chamberlain

New York, March 18 (AP)—Edward R. Murrow, CBS correspondent, said today in a broadcast from London that American planes have sunk at least six Spanish ships attempting to get supplies to German troops trapped along the Atlantic coast of France.

London, Monday, March 19 (AP)—RAF Mosquitos rained two-ton blockbusters on Berlin last night, striking by the glow of raging fires started by an American air armada which blasted the Reich capital in record strength of more than 1,300 bombers yesterday.

It was the twenty-seventh consecutive night that Berlin had been attacked by the "fire-stoking" Mosquitos. The American raid was the thirty-fourth in as many days against the Reich.

Wheeling through flak-spotted skies and formations of enemy jet planes, the United States heavy bombers, escorted by 700 fighters, by daylight dumped 3,000 tons of high explosives and fire bombs—50 tons a minute for an hour—on railroad yards near the heart of Germany's capital and armament plants in the industrial suburbs.

Salute Soviet Pilots

There was no immediate announcement of American losses.

Several American Mustangs, ranging beyond Berlin, flew side by side with Russian fighters and exchanged salutes. One squadron of Mustangs teamed up with some fifteen Russian fighters in defense of a Russian airfield east of the Oder River from dive-bombing attacks by four Focke-Wulfs.

United States 19th Tactical Air Command planes, ranging ahead of American 3d Army troops, peppered Germany's Palatinate with record quantities of ammunition, firing more than 500,000 rounds of ammunition and hundreds of rockets.

This force destroyed seven Nazi planes and probably destroyed two others, while eight American planes were lost, all to anti-aircraft fire.

13 Interceptors Downed

Thirteen Nazi interceptors, including several jet planes, were shot down over Berlin, a United States Strategic Air Force communiqué said. The war bulletin said Saturday's attack by 1,300 United States bombers and 750 fighters on five German rail communications and oil plants cost eight bombers and two fighters.

Rail Center Target

The noon-hour assault yesterday by the American air fleet surpassed in strength the 1,200-bomber attack of February 26. The heaviest RAF night assault on the capital was made about a year ago by 900 big bombers.

The Schlesischer railway center and North Station freight yards, both within 2 miles of the capital's center, were the targets of about 1,000 heavy bombers of today's fleet.

The remainder of the force attacked the Rheinmetal Borsig plant at Tegel, 6 miles northwest of the city, and a tank factory at Henningsdorf, 11 miles northwest of Berlin's center.

Air Fleet 300 Miles Long

The German air-raid warning system said the American sky-train stretched 300 miles over the Reich as the bombers and fighters roared toward the Nazi capital.

Before the American Berlin bombers had returned to their bases in Britain, an RAF armada of some 400 big Lancasters, with escorting Mustangs, attacked two Ruhr benzol plants—one 10 miles east of Bochum and the other north of Hattingen.

In a 24-hour period seven big fuel targets from the Ruhr to the Leipzig-Dresden area had been assaulted by more than 2,000 Allied heavy bombers.

12,400 Bombs In Day

With approximately 3,500 tons of high explosives and fire bombs cascading down on the targets in the Berlin area yesterday, the 8th Air Force has dumped well over 20,000 tons of bombs on the Reich capital.

The rail targets in Berlin received more than 12,400 high-explosive bombs yesterday—many of them 1,000-pounders—and 650,000 small incendiaries.

Half-ton and large fire bombs—some 8,500 in all—were dumped on the armament targets at Tegel and Henningsdorf.

Yank Pilots Help Reds Fight Nazis

London, March 18 (AP)—United States 8th Air Force Mustangs and Russian Yak fighters flew side by side in battle today, defending a Russian airfield east of the Oder River from attack by four German fighters.

In a dogfight over the field, Capt. Ralph Cox, Robstown, Texas, 25-year-old squadron commander of the 359th Fighter Group, shot down a Focke-Wulf, and said the Russian planes drove the other three away.

Cox said he led his squadron on patrol after escorting bombers to Berlin and spotted German planes dive-bombing an airfield.

"The Russians were defending their 'drome against four Focke-Wulf 190's which already had started strafing the west end of the field. I led my flight directly in behind the Jerries as they turned for another attack and began firing on the lead plane.

"My first burst struck the wings and fuselage and flames broke out. I pulled above the Jerry, and my wingman saw him crash near the field. By this time some fifteen Russian Yaks had joined the battle, and as there were no enemy aircraft in view, we waggled our wings and headed for home."

EISENHOWER WARNS REICH RAIL WORKERS

LONDON, March 18 (AP)—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower warned German railway workers in the area of Frankfort on the Main and the Mannheim-Ludwigshafen area tonight to "get out of the battle zone," because "to remain at your posts is suicide."

The Supreme Allied Commander, who yesterday served grim notice to all civilians of coming bombardments of the Rhineland cities, directed his new warning to the rail workers, who are taking almost daily poundings from the Allied war planes.

A broadcast directed to Germany told the Germans that the Nazis were "using the railways to supply armies to prolong a lost war, and to evacuate high officials and their property."

"For you railway men above all to remain at your posts is suicide," the message said.

"Your work brings you into constant danger. Your homes for the most part are in specially dangerous areas.

"Railway men, get out of the battle zone!"

MAR 1 9 1945

London, March 18 (AP)—The Moscow radio said tonight that Juliu Maniu has resigned the chairmanship of the Romanian National Peasant party and that Nicolas Lupu, vice chairman, has been named his successor.

Sofia Sentences Reported

D. N. B. Says 30 Bulgars Have Been Doomed for Aiding Nazis

LONDON, March 18 (AP).—Thirty Bulgarian military leaders have been sentenced to death and sixty-five to prison terms of five years to life after having been convicted by a people's court of leading Bulgaria into the war on the side of Germany, a German D. N. B. news agency report from Vienna said today.

Those sentenced to death included Lieutenant General Constantin Lukash, former chief of the general staff. D. N. B. said thirty-eight were acquitted and that the property of those convicted would be confiscated.

U. S. PLAN TO CUT SUPPLIES OF MEAT ALARMS BRITISH

Housewives Startled by Lend-Lease Slash; Officials Predict Crisis.

RESERVES DWINDLE

Months Ahead Shape Up as Leanest of War for U.S. on Home Front.

LONDON, March 18—(AP) English housewives, startled by a Washington announcement that Lend-Lease meat supplies from the United States would be cut 87 per cent during the next quarter, saw themselves tonight on the brink of perhaps the greatest food crisis of the war.

Newspapers treated the announcement as sensational news and the Sunday Dispatch, devoted all its editorial space to a discussion of British needs and a continuance of American generosity, which it said was necessary in this sixth year of the war.

Food Minister J. J. Llewellin said this would be the tightest year of the war for food, adding:

"Out of our accumulated stocks we have made substantial amounts available for liberated areas, and we are now in nearly every instance down to a minimum for proper distribution in this country."

That was Llewellin's comment on reports that England was hoarding Lend-Lease supplies.

Ounce A Person Per Week

London newspapers said that under the new allotments of 25,000,000 pounds in the next three months, contrasting with 200,000,000 pounds in the present quarter, the ration of American meat would break down to less than one ounce a person weekly, compared with a former ration of about half a pound.

They added that hundreds of millions of pounds of food had been released from British emergency reserves and sent to liberated areas in France, Holland and Belgium in answer to appeals from General Eisenhower, and that fats and meats were important components of those shipments.

Claim Reserves Gone

There seemed little disposition here to go along with what was reported from America as one apparent theory behind the cut—that British reserves were large enough to sustain England without any great American assistance.

"In these islands," the Sunday Dispatch said, "civilian morale has been, and still is, subject to stresses that America has been spared."

Despite cautious statements by Llewellin that he was doing his "very best" to see that the nation's meager meat ration was not cut further, public agitation over rumors to the contrary may force some announcement in Commons shortly.

Allies Blamed For Food Crisis

London, Monday, March 19 (AP)—The London Daily Herald said today that the machinery of co-operation set up by the Big Three was "not working properly" and cited Romanian troubles and the food crisis in Europe as examples.

In Romania, the Herald said, the Russians took "certain political steps" to protect their communications without consulting Britain and the United States.

Referring to the food crisis and the possible reduction of meat rations in Britain, the newspaper said, "Incredible though it sounds" the United States State Department a few months ago assured the Foreign Office that in the event of a British economic break with Argentina the United States could easily replace meat supplies Britons draw from that country.

"Now at the very end of the European campaign," the Herald said, "the United Nations find themselves suddenly faced by the gravest food crisis of the war. It is a crisis . . . due simply and solely to inadequacy and inefficiency of interallied economic organization, to a lack of foresight and above all to a lack of co-operation."

Last 3 Of 70 Escaped Captive Nazis Retaken

London, March 18 (AP)—The last three of 70 German prisoners of war who escaped from a Welsh camp a week ago were captured last night, ending one of England's most extensive manhunts.

The three were taken by an unarmed man who dashed after them down a dark road. The trio said they had been eating well and remarked their brief freedom was "good sport."

525 RESCUED FROM NORWAY

British Destroyers Go In For Patriots Driven From Home

London, March 18 (AP)—Four destroyers of the British Home Fleet, driving in daylight down a fiord behind the German lines at North Cape, have rescued 525 Norwegian patriots, who told how the Nazis destroyed their homes and food in a vain effort to force them into slavery.

An official Norwegian communiqué tonight disclosed the rescue.

Most of those rescued were women and children who had been hiding in caves and huts on the snow-covered mountains of bleak Soroy Island since late last autumn, moving constantly to keep out of the reach of German patrols that chased them through the bitter Arctic winter.

As the Germans began withdrawing last November, the patriots related, the Norwegians were ordered to leave their homes and move south. To make certain the order was obeyed, the Nazis methodically burned down every house on the island, slaughtered all animals and destroyed food stocks. Two old women too ill to be moved were roasted alive in their flaming house, the Norwegians related.

The Germans held 1,200 of the healthiest men and women for slave labor, while other patriots took to caves and snow-huts and contrived to live through the cold months.

Many had eaten nothing in the last twelve weeks except some mush and reindeer meat. Their clothes were in rags.

RUNDSTEDT'S BID FOR PEACE?

French Hear He Offered To Surrender To West Allies

Paris, March 18 (AP)—Some Paris papers today published uncredited dispatches, datelined Washington, outlining terms of an armistice request which they said German Marshal Karl Gerd von Rundstedt had reportedly made to the western Allies and which they said had been flatly rejected.

These reports, without any Allied confirmation, said von Rundstedt had proposed a surrender plan under which the American and British armies would occupy all of Germany up to the present Russian front.

No Peace Until Allies Join

Some other Paris papers published dispatches, datelined London, quoting Reuter as saying, "Some military experts at Washington declare that even if Germany offered unconditional surrender over this week end, the Allies would refuse acceptance until Russian and Anglo-American troops had made their junction in the center of Germany."

L'humanite, organ of the French Communist party, asserted flatly that "the directors of Hitlerite Germany are multiplying their advances to the English and American allies."

It added that the wives of Reichsmarshal Hermann Goering and Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop were in Switzerland and that Frau Goering had visited the wife of the British Minister in Bern.

Swiss Deny Ribbentrop Is There

[The Swiss radio denied rumors that von Ribbentrop himself was in Switzerland, saying, "Competent authorities are completely in the dark about any such journey and declare that such rumors belong to the realm of fantasy."]

L'humanite said von Rundstedt was calling on the western Allies to save Germany from Russian occupation. The paper warned against any peace involving less than full extermination of the present leadership of Germany.

It declared that behind the German moves was "the will to save Germany from punishment, to conserve its general staff and all its possibilities of resuming its war policy after a few decades."

2 OF 3 GERMAN SHIPS ARE SUNK

British Destroyers Attack Convoy Off Tip Of Corsica

Rome, March 18 (AP)—Two large German ships out of a three-vessel convoy were sunk last night by British destroyers off the tip of Corsica, Allied headquarters reported today in an announcement which said there was "no change" on the long northern Italian battle line.

The enemy vessels, which were described as destroyers or large torpedo boats, were spotted by the British destroyers Lookout and Meteor north of Cape Corse. Two of the German vessels were sunk and the third escaped but was being hunted.

Five Craft Sunk Near Venice

Allied headquarters reported that on the nights of March 15 and 16 British torpedo boats operating close inshore near Venice sank five enemy auxiliary craft.

During the last ten days, headquarters said, Allied warships have carried out successful bombardments of enemy installations along the French-Italian frontier and in the Gulf of Genoa.

The only land activity reported along the Italian front was the wiping out of a German stronghold 5 miles south of Imola by an Italian patrol. Twenty German parachutists were killed, fifteen wounded and ten captured.

Brenner Line Again Hit

On the 5th Army front an enemy attempt to retake a small village in the central sector south of Bologna was repulsed, headquarters reported.

Although heavy bombers in Italy were grounded by the weather, more than 1,000 fighters and medium bombers attacked the Brenner Pass rail line and storage dumps in northern Italy today on the sixth anniversary of the first meeting of Hitler and Mussolini at the pass, which has now been blocked for the fiftieth straight day.

Fire Damages Naples Palace

ROME, March 18 (AP).—The Royal Palace at Naples suffered damage in a fire of undetermined origin, the newspaper "Il Tempo" reported today.

Information Officer Decorated

WITH THE 5TH ARMY IN ITALY, March 18 (AP).—Lieutenant Colonel George L. Walker, of Saginaw, Mich., received the Legion of Merit today for the "manner in which he organized and directed the flow of information from the enemy so it could be utilized to the maximum advantage" during the Italian campaign since Rome fell. He is an officer of the 88th Division.

Pope Pius Warns Of Shadows That Cover Road To Peace

Vatican City, March 18 (AP)—Pope Pius XII, addressing tens of thousands of Romans in St. Peter's Square today, warned that the road to peace "still was covered with shadows which perhaps might conceal surprises and dangers."

The Pontiff declared that no matter how man strove to plan for a stable future, often he spied "a malignant spirit" across his path which disturbed, at least for the moment, the best of plans.

The Pope was greeted by a wild ovation from the massed throng, including many Allied troops Many women in the thickly pressed crowd fainted and some Vatican attachés said the gathering surpassed that which witnessed the Pope's coronation six years ago.

Heralded by Silver Trumpet

The Pontiff's appearance at the loge overlooking the square was heralded by a papal gendarme who blew a silver trumpet. The Pope's address marked the conclusion of Lenten missions held throughout Rome.

The Pontiff said: "The reconciliation of peoples cannot have the guarantee of stability" if it is not accomplished liberally and with generosity. He declared that after the great conflict it would be difficult to believe that anyone would seek to use the peace organization for his own advantage.

"Such a man," he declared, "in fact might well appear for the moment as a benefactor of humanity. But history later would classify him among those who, in a great, grave and decisive hour, have deluded the hopes of the peoples."

Extreme Nationalism Deplored

Pride, ambition and greed were the roots of the present war, he added, appealing to those "seduced" by extreme nationalism, racism and theories of violence to embrace the ideals of a Christian fraternity.

[The Vatican broadcast as recorded in London quoted the Pontiff as saying:

["We must return to the spirit of brotherhood, of real Christian brotherhood, and turn away from the doctrines of race and blood.

["Many are suffering without homes, but much suffering would be relieved if all men stood by God.

["The organization of the peace must be based on justice. God alone can move the spirit of the men who think that they have the destiny of the world in their hands. That is why we should lift our hands and eyes in penitence and humility to Him who alone can relieve us of this suffering and present destruction."]

Profiteering Italians Denounced

The crowd cheered him when he denounced Italians who he said were using the nation's present economic devastation for their own profit by raising prices. Italy's plight, he added, would be greatly aided if Italians strove to help each other fraternally.

He called for formation of a "pure, healthy youth" through education, sports and recreation to lift up the human family from its depths of great misfortune.

The address was preceded by a procession led by Federico Cardinal Tedeschini bearing sacred relics. A huge cross hung on red tapestry was placed over the main door of St. Peter's. Before the Pope appeared the crowd chanted litanies. Hours before the ceremony, lines of parishioners filed from their churches throughout the city reciting the rosary.

The diplomatic corps at the Holy See was well represented.

Pope's Message Urging a Charitable Peace

WASHINGTON, March 18 (AP)—The text of an address today by Pope Pius XII in St. Peter's Square, Vatican City, as received by the National Catholic Welfare Conference:

The prompt devotion with which, beloved sons and daughters, you have come here in great numbers from every part of Rome, our Episcopal See, affords a living testimony to your willing response to the exhortation which the Church addresses to all the faithful on Passion Sunday. Would that you would hear His voice today (Psalm 94, 7). This voice of the Lord, which the bells of your churches and the resonant chimes of this patriarchal basilica bring to you even as a murmuring echo, has resounded during the past weeks of Lent in your innermost hearts as, while gathered around the pulpits of your churches, you have listened to the words of zealous Lenten preachers in the course of the missions which we had ordered.

These preachers, like their predecessors in past centuries, have impressed upon you with a burning zeal, and sometimes also with a loving severity, the duty of giving serious thought to and providing for the "unum necessarium" (Luke, x, 42), the one thing necessary—namely, your own personal spiritual salvation and sanctification.

Parents, Children Exhorted

In this blessed time, the Divine Sower has passed amongst you and has abundantly sown the seed of His word in your souls, which by constant prayer and penance, had been made ready to receive it as upon good and fertile soil. And now, in the presence of the true Cross, from which Christ with arms extended invites and awaits you, we, His unworthy vicar, beseech you, beloved sons and daughters, "that, denying ungodliness and worldly desires, we should live soberly, and justly, and godly in this world, looking for the blessed hope and coming of the glory of the great God and Savior Jesus Christ" (Titus, ii, 12-13).

Henceforward, let none of you fail with each passing day to raise his heart and hands to God in humble and confident prayer of adoration, praise, impetration and thanksgiving. Keep holy Sunday, the Lord's day, as the faithful of Rome, your fathers, have given example from the time of the Apostles.

Let all of you assist faithfully at the sacrifice of the mass, partake in large numbers of eucharistic banquet and conduct yourselves in a manner that the God of Peace and Love may dwell amongst you in your domestic and social life. Parents, remember always that you are responsible before God, before the Church, before all of human society, for the spiritual and temporal welfare of your children. And you, sons and daughters, renew in yourselves that proper respect and obedience toward those who have given you life and hold in your regard the place of God.

You, O husbands and wives, be mindful of the moment in which before the altar of God you solemnly promised to one another inviolable fidelity. Keep it and guard it integrally without the slightest stain or shadow, and it will be until the end for you and your family a source of the most abundant blessings. For if, on the other hand, the fatal canker of marital infidelity should spread and become general in a people, malediction and misfortune would be called down upon them for their great guilt. All of you, together in generous competition, strive in all things to reintegrate and restore the uprightness of moral conduct.

Profiteering Condemned

In all things: In the education of offspring, in the formation of youth, chaste, sound, sincere, holily proud and jealous of its virtue. In all things: In the life of labor, in recreation, in amusements, in athletic activity. Otherwise the Christian honor of the people and human dignity itself will be no more, for "God hath not called us unto uncleanness but unto sanctification" (I Thessalonians, iv, 7).

Let none of you be numbered amongst those who, in the midst of the terrible calamity in which the human family finds itself at present, see in that tragedy only a propitious occasion to enrich themselves through dishonest means, by taking advantage of the suffering and need of their neighbor and raising prices without limit in order to procure profits that are scandalous.

Look at their hands: They are besmirched with blood; the blood of widows and orphans; the blood of children and youths, whose physical development is impeded or retarded by malnutrition and hunger; the blood of thousands and thousands of unfortunates of all classes whom they have sacrificed at the altar of their despicable trade. This blood, like that of Abel, cries to heaven against the new Cains. And on their hands the smirch remains indelible, just as down deep in their conscience their crime must remain unforgivable until they shall have recognized it and through tears and expiation made amends to the extent to which reparation of so great a crime is possible.

Do not shut your hearts to the voice of the Divine Master: "Blessed are the merciful," he said, "for they shall obtain mercy" (Matthew v, 7). For the love of Christ, join together in the spirit of brotherhood, lend a helping hand to one another, you who enjoy still, or who have recently acquired, a measure of the world's goods, and you who have tragically lost everything, in order that through mutual support you may overcome the economic crisis into which the country has fallen and which would be ever so quickly relieved were all men united by truly human solidarity and by a real divine Christian charity.

Material Force Rebuked

Listen today, then, to the voice of God, and do not harden your hearts. That voice counsels: "Let the wicked forsake his way and the unjust man his thoughts, and let him return to the Lord." (Isaiah lv, 7).

To those who would turn a deaf ear to this invitation of the Almighty, to those who would not listen to the persuasive voice of the shepherds of souls, even in the face of the clear and commanding call of conscience, another voice, the savage and atrociously real voice of the cruel events of our times, makes itself audible to announce and warn that war is the fruit and the wages of sin.

The sinner well may try to bury his head in the sand, the wicked man well may insist on following obstinately the ways of evil, far removed from God: But that tragic voice will become ever louder, ever more terrifying, will penetrate the innermost recesses of their heart, even through the immediate cause and responsibilities of the inhuman conflict and through the mist of external acts and words, to seek out and expose the profoudn cause which has given rise to and nourished the horrible conflagration, the spirit which has aroused and embittered the strife, which is the spirit of pride of ambition and of greed.

It is the spirit of evil which wars against the spirit of God and which would banish from the earth the kingdom of Christ and deity material force, in order to drive out of the lives of peoples and still more to abolish from international relations, every essential distinction between good and evil and between what is just and what is unjust.

To those who have allowed themselves to be seduced by the advocates of violence and who, after having thoughtlessly followed them, begin finally to reawaken from their deception, in consternation at seeing to what their servile docility has led them, there remains no other way to salvation than that of repudiating definitely the idolatry of absolute nationalism, the pride of race and blood, the desire for hegemony in the possession of worldly goods, and to turn resolutely toward that spirit of sincere fraternity which is founded on the worship of the Divine Father of all men and in which those ideas, for too long a time opposed, of right and of duty, of advantage and of disadvantage, are reconciled in justice and in charity.

History Counsels Forgiveness

But the reconciliation of peoples will only be able to guarantee stability if it is carried out faithfully and with large-mindedness. We cannot even suppose that after so many sorrowful events there is anyone who might give in to the temptation of profiting by the present situation of affairs to turn the organization of peace to his own advantage against the dictates of justice.

He, in fact, would be for the moment in a position indeed to present himself as a benefactor of humanity, but later history, which judges in the light of higher principles and vaster experience, will classify him not among those who have contributed to redeem the world from oppression and violence, but rather among the deceivers who in a grave and decisive hour have betrayed the expectations of peoples to whom indescribable suffering conferred a new title to respect for their inviolable rights.

Let us not forget that before God (for whom every heart is open and to whom every will speaks) vootive mass of the Holy Ghost (hearts hold no darkness, nor wills secrets). Teacher and Sovereign Lord, He holds in His hands and can move at will the spirit of the men who believe they have in theirs the destinies of the world. He can cause the birth, the sprouting and the blossoming of thoughts and sentiments that will inspire a peace corresponding to his designs and to the hopes of men of good-will.

He can do it but He awaits our cooperation and desires that we supplicate and pray to Him. And that is the reason why the whole of Christianity, and why on this day the children of the Eternal City, with a contrite and humble heart in repentance and expiation, in prayer and penance, raise eyes and hands to Him Who alone can cause the serenity and pacification of all peoples to follow Him from the horrors of discord and hatred, the innumerable anxieties of peoples, especially in those countries that are still fields of battle.

And that is why also, mindful that the Lord and Father "manifests His omnipotence above all in mercy and forgiveness" (Oration Mass of Tenth Sunday After Pentecost), we beg Him to put an end to so mighty a scourge, to bring about the great and much desired regeneration of deeply wounded humanity and to hasten the coming of a true and lasting peace. The path that will have to lead from the conflict to the suspension of hostilities, from the truce of arms to peace, is still in each of its stages covered over with shadows that may perhaps conceal surprises and dangers.

The more that man endeavors with his reflections and calculations to foresee and prevent conflicts, so much the more he at times perceives an evil spirit across his path to upset, at least momentarily, his best thought out plans. But at long last—and may it be soon—the hour shall come, the hour determined by God and hastened by the merits and prayers of the elect. May that hour find you ready, especially you beloved children of our Rome, seeing you in this moment thronged at the foot of the great obelisk which was witness to the passion of Peter. Our thoughts go back to your ancestors whose grateful faith chiselled on the granite pedestal of that obelisk the joyful acclamation "Christus vincit" (Christ conquers). Your fathers, before chiseling in stone the memory of this triumph of Christ, pledge of consolation and hope, had exalted it with valor in battle and with generosity in suffering.

This, indeed, is the honor of Christian Rome, which is now entrusted to you; an honor which is embodied not so much in the stones of its basilicas and monuments as in the faith, in the love and in the virtue of its children. Woe betide us if the children of Rome should leave the care and conservation of that faith to the marble, the canvasses, the memories of ancient glory.

Sons and daughters of Christian Rome, be proud of the heritage that your fathers have deeded to you, hold it aloft in honor, in honor before a past that recalls and summons to heroism, in honor before future generations for whom you must prepare in this anguished present the way of orderly progress and of true and unephemeral greatness for the achievement of earthly and eternal happiness.

BUCHAREST LITTLE SCARRED BY WAR

Gilmore

BUCHAREST, March 18—(AP) On the surface, the Romanian capital is a gay, glittering city, little scarred by the war, and full of luxuries at reasonable prices.

But behind this facade, one senses there is a more practical segment of Bucharest's population which wishes to set Romanian's house in order, to take the war seriously, and seek a better future.

But this is Bucharest on the surface:

There are thick, juicy beef steaks for 50 cents, three eggs and bad coffee for breakfast for 25 cents; unrationed shoes from $10 to $20, French perfume for $1, typewriters for $35, cigarette lighters for $1.25, silk stockings by the crate for $1 to $3 a pair, electric toasters for $4, French wines, champagne, cognac and liqueurs for $2 to $8 a bottle, well-stocked grocery stores, fresh fruit, jazz music, night clubs and taxicabs.

Bucharest has automobiles for $400, and chauffeurs to drive them for $75 a month, gasoline for 15 cents a gallon, and everything milady desires from jeweled garters to fur coats.

Shelves in some of Bucharest's stores are getting a little thin. But so much money is being made that nobody appears particularly worried about the future.

To the traveller here only briefly, there appears ample evidence that the Allies have good reason for concern whether there are Fascists and pro-Germans about.

Some persons just shrug their shoulders and say, "It's the war," when you mention such things as 900 Americans buried in Romania as the price of raiding the Ploesti oil fields, that there is still loot from Russia in Bucharest stores.

Russian names on cameras and dozens of different articles are changed to trademarks of other countries to conceal the fact that the goods were looted from the U.S.S.R., an American member of the Allied Control commission told me.

Since the armistice, 13 to 16 Romanian divisions have gone to the front, and by Russian account they are fighting well. But all Romanians to whom I talked, exclusive of government officials, seemed not the slightest bit interested in the war.

FINNS FINISH FIRST ELECTION SINCE 1939

HELSINKI, March 18—(AP) Finland's first parliamentary election since 1939 ended tonight amid indications that a clear-cut picture of the political complexion of the new national assembly might not be known for several days.

Voting was generally far heavier than in the election six years ago, ended at 8 p. m. and election boards throughout the country began counting ballots, but various factors indicated the process would be slow.

One circumstance—displacement of hundreds of thousands of persons as the result of German devastation of Lapland and the ceding of eastern border areas to Russia under the armistice—made the counting by unfamiliar election boards the more difficult.

NEW MADRID FIELD FOR U.S.

Pact Signed for Air Base to Feed Policing Armies and Others

MADRID, March 18 (AP)—Spain and the United States have completed an agreement for the development of a new airfield opposite the Madrid airport to enable large planes to handle American supplies for Allied armies of occupation and for liberated countries, it was announced today.

Under the agreement, the field eventually will be converted to civilian use for American and other transport planes, augmenting the facilities of the Barajas field.

Another agreement expected to be announced soon is on a plan to establish huge stockpiles in northern Spain from which the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration and other organizations can draw supplies for liberated nations and armies of occupation.

Spaak Heads Belgian Delegation

BRUSSELS, March 18 (AP).—Foreign Minister Paul Henri Spaak will head Belgium's delegation to the conference at San Francisco next month, it was announced today. The names of the other delegates will be announced later.

'Tired' Germans Sail To Sweden

Stockholm, March 18 (AP).—A boat with eight German men and women who said they were "tired of war" arrived at a small Swedish port near Goteborg today.

CHINESE AID FRENCH FORCE

Guerrillas Make Contact Near Indo-China Border

Chungking, March 18 (AP)—Chinese guerrillas have made contact with French forces resisting the Japanese at Moneay, a town on the northeastern tip of Indo-China, and the 14th United States Air Force is aiding the French in every way possible, Chinese reports said to-

Fighting between Japanese and French troops was precipitated by Japanese seizure of control of Indo-China.

Report Kiangsi Gains

Meanwhile, the Chinese claimed new successes in the Hunan-Kiangsi province areas tonight, asserting that in Kiangsi their troops had made progress in attacks against the suburbs of the lost airbase city of Kanhsin. The American airbase was destroyed to prevent its use by the enemy after a Japanese offensive overran the city.

In Hunan, the Chinese broke into Anjen, 38 miles east-southeast of Mengyang, overcoming stubborn Japanese resistance in street fighting.

Progress was also reported by Chinese troops compressing the bulge in which the enemy battered east of the Canton-Hankow railroad town of Chensien, 80 miles south of Hengyang, to safeguard their hold on the railroad.

CHINESE FORCES CAPTURE HSIPAW

CALCUTTA, March 18.— (AP) Chinese troops under [redacted] Gen. Daniel I. Sultan have captured Hsipaw, important Burma road junction 45 miles west of Lashio, seriously threatening Japanese escape routes eastward from northern Burma.

South of Mandalay, where Japanese forces still are resisting desperately from the southwest corner of Fort Dufferin, Allied forces control all major routes to the south, leaving the enemy only tortuous mountain trails eastward to Thailand from central Burma.

The Chinese column which took Hsipaw moved southward from Namtu and entered the town after a brisk battle with the Japanese garrison. An enemy counterattack was beaten off with heavy losses for the Japanese, the reports said.

The Allies now hold Maymyo, Hsipaw and Lashio, the three most important towns on the Mandalay-Lashio road, with the complete fall of Mandalay imminent.

In continuing operations to liquidate the Japanese north of the Burma road, the British 36th division, which also is under Gen. Soultan, was reported nearing Mogok, 77 miles northeast of Mandalay. Enemy troops were reported strongly entrenched northeast of the town.

The combined B-24 and B-29 raid yesterday on Japanese storage dumps near Victoria Lake, north of Rangoon, caused widespread damage to vital Japanese war goods, [illegible] reconnaissance photographs showed.

The target was hit squarely and secondary explosions and large fires were caused throughout the area. More than 650 tons of bombs were dropped on the area in which it is believed more than half of Japanese supplies in Burma are stored. It was the heaviest raid of the war on Rangoon.

Hundreds Of U.S. Carrier Aircraft In Kyushu Attack

Fleet Headquarters, Guam, Monday, March 19 (AP)—Hundreds of American carrier planes (the Japanese counted 1,400) from the world's mightiest task force swept targets on the enemy's southernmost main island of Kyushu yesterday in the third devastating carrier attack on the Japanese homeland in little more than a month.

Admiral Chester W. Nimitz said a "strong force" of carrier planes attacked airbases and other installations on Kyushu, but the Tokyo radio claimed that Shikoku Island and southern Honshu also were raided in an attack lasting eight hours.

Japs Report Monday Blow

The Japanese radio said the raids went into a second day. It reported the carrier force resumed its attacks on the same targets at 6 A.M. this morning and at 9 A.M., "our interceptor forces are at this time engaged in fierce battles with the enemy attacking planes."

Nimitz's reference to a strong force would indicate the attack was carried out by at least as powerful an air fleet as the more than 1,200 planes which swept the Tokyo-Yokohama area February 16-17 and again February 25-26.

It was the first carrier strike of the war on Kyushu.

'Strong Force' Carries Out Third Carrier Strike at Jap Homeland.

U. S. PACIFIC FLEET HEADQUARTERS, Guam, Monday, March 19 — (AP) Hundreds of American carrier planes (the Japanese counted 1,400) from the world's mightiest task force swept vital targets on the enemy's southernmost main island of Kyushu yesterday in the third devastating carrier attack on the Japanese homeland in little more than a month.

Adm. Chester W. Nimitz said a "strong force" of carrier planes attacked air bases and other installations on Kyushu, but Tokyo radio claimed that Shikoku island and southern Honshu also were raided in an attack lasting eight hours.

Nimitz's reference to a strong force would indicate the attack was carried out by at least as powerful an air fleet as the more than 1,200 planes which swept the Tokyo-Yokohama area Feb. 16-17 and again Feb. 25-26.

First Blow at Kyushu

It was the first carrier strike of the war on Kyushu.

The island, long isolated by a careful Japanese barrier of silence, is known to provide much of Japan's war machinery. It is the site of the great Yawata steel works, one of the largest in the world, and many other important industrial plants.

Farms Barrier To Honshu

Populous Kyushu also is thickly studded with airfields and constitutes a strong military barrier on the southern road to the main island of Honshu.

Admiral Nimitz's communiqué gave no results of the strike, but the mention of airbases as prime targets meant that Japan's diminishing airforce again was under heavy attack. A total of 892 enemy planes were destroyed or damaged in the two previous carrier raids.

The heavy carrier strike against the Japanese homeland was the third in recent weeks by Vice Admiral Marc A. Mitscher's task force, the world's largest. In the two previous attacks 892 enemy planes were destroyed or damaged and 67 Japanese vessels sunk or damaged.

Says Raid Lasts 8 Hours

The Tokyo radio report said the 1,400-plane force was over the three southwestern Japanese islands for eight hours early Sunday.

The enemy broadcast said the American flyers concentrated on airfields, with Kumamoto and "other cities" on Kyushu taking the heaviest pounding.

Japan claimed its aircraft were attacking the raiders and said three United States warships had been sunk, including two carriers.

Admiral Nimitz's announcement of the raid was given in a communique which reported that the Marines on Iwo Jima mopped up isolated remnants of the enemy garrison which once numbered more than 20,000 troops.

Japs In Yank Uniforms

Nimitz said that on Iwo Marine uniforms again had been found on Japanese soldiers.

One enemy soldier, he reported, "stopped one of our ambulances, shot and wounded the driver and escaped."

Snipers still were active on Iwo's rugged northern end where the few remaining Japanese are entrenched in caves and lateral tunnels.

Army fighters bombed and strafed Chichi Jima, in the Bonins. Barge concentrations were hit and radio and radar facilities disrupted.

Heavy bombers bombed Shimushiri in the Kuriles on Saturday.

Nagoya Bombing Fifth Heavy Raid Within Nine Days

Headquarters, 21st U.S. Bomber Command, Monday, March 19 (AP). More than 300 Superfortress bombers hit Nagoya, Japan's third city and largest aircraft production center, in a predawn low-level attack today, showering down around 2,000 tons of incendiaries to "finish up" the March 12 fire raid.

The Marianas-based B-29's in the previous raid delivered 2,000 tons of incendiaries on the factory metropolis of Honshu Island. A two-square mile area was devastated and seven war plants damaged, but the results were not all that were expected.

Fifth Massed Attack

Today's attack on the densely populated city of 1,500,000 was the fifth massed strike by 21st Bomber Command Superfortresses on Japan's principal cities in nine days.

Tokyo was hit March 10 with 2,300 tons, burning 16 square miles; Nagoya the first time March 12; Osaka March 14, with 2,000 tons burning 7.8 square miles; Kobe last Saturday, with 2,500 tons which left 12 square miles in flames, and then Nagoya again today.

In today's attack on Nagoya the "bombs away" signal came at the earliest hour in this series of strategic bombings to knock out Japanese war industries.

May Equal Kobe Tonnage

The raid tonnage may equal or exceed the 2,500-ton blasting of Kobe, which was the heaviest single aerial strike in the Pacific war.

Damage in the first mass attack on Nagoya was not inconsiderable, said Maj. Gen. Curtis E. Le May, commander of the 21st Bomber Command. The flames, however, may have made firebreaks against new conflagrations.

Nagoya, 165 miles west of Tokyo, is considered the Japanese city most vulnerable to incendiary attack. In the heart of the city the population density is as high as 75,000 per square mile, more than three times that for the city as a whole.

Probably one fourth of Nagoya's workers are employed in some phase of aircraft production. The city's factories also turn out railway equipment, machine tools, tanks and metal alloys.

Kuriles Shelling Said To Have Blasted Dump

At An Aleutians Base, Alaska, March 17 [AP—Delayed]—North Pacific warships apparently blew up a Japanese ammunition dump and started many fires, some of them heavy, in a surprise bombardment at dusk Friday against the important Japanese base on Matsuwa Island in the northern Kuriles.

Both Japanese military and air installations on the island, 960 miles from Tokyo, were targets of a cruiser and destroyer task force commanded by Rear Admiral John L. McCrea. No damage was inflicted on the American force, although shore batteries returned the fire after the first few of the thousands of shells that struck the island were fired.

The raid was the third against Matsuwa and the seventh American surface bombardment of the Japanese Kuriles. Observers saw a tremendous explosion, which was taken to be the ammunition dump.

Cone-shaped Matsuwa forms the key point in the Kuriles defense system and is the site of an airfield and numerous garrison buildings.

Iwo Mop-Up Continues; Snipers Remain Active

Tokyo Lags in Breaking News of Defeat to Homeland

GUAM, March 19 (Monday) (AP).—Admiral Chester W. Nimitz announced in a communique today that the marines on Iwo Jima continued to mop up isolated remnants of the enemy garrison, which once numbered more than 20,000 troops. Snipers still were active on the rugged northern end of the island where the few remaining Japanese are entrenched in caves and lateral tunnels, he said.

Marine uniforms again had been found on Japanese soldiers on Iwo, Nimitz said, and one enemy soldier, he reported, "stopped one of our ambulances, shot and wounded the driver and escaped."

[The Tokyo radio lagged in telling the Japanese of the loss of Iwo, but a home broadcast said the Americans had "gradually" broken into the island strongholds and that as a result "communications have more or less the tendency to stop."]

Army fighters bombed and strafed Chichi Jima, in the Bonins to the north of Iwo, Nimitz announced. Barge concentrations were hit and radio and radar facilities disrupted. The airfield was cratered by Army Liberators which met no opposition.

Heavy bombers also bombed Shimushiru, in the Kuriles, on Saturday.

Yank Forces Land on Talaga; Heavy Bombers Blast Baguio

MANILA, Monday, March 19—(AP) Elements of Brig. Gen. Hanford MacNider's 158th regimental combat team landed Saturday at Talaga, on the northwest shore of Batangas bay of southern Luzon in a move to secure the Calumpan peninsula while heavy bombers poured a terrific 337-ton load of explosives on targets at Baguio, Philippine Summer capital.

The Yanks pushed quickly north from Talaga to reach the town of Mabini, eastern terminus of a road severing the peninsula, which juts into the Verde island passage between Balayan and Batangas bays.

A counterattack in the area was repulsed.

The heavy aerial pounding of Baguio, possible Japanese army headquarters, caused extensive explosions and fires.

American forces fighting in the watershed area east of Manila pushed rapidly through difficult terrain into secondary Japanese defenses, sweeping to a point about five miles east of Antipolo, once the southern anchor of the bitterly-held Shimbu line.

On Mindanao, the 41st division, with close air support, drove northward in the hills above captured Zamboanga, bloodily turning back several counterattacks in the area north of Pasonanca, some five miles inland.

Heavy bombers raked Formosa with 300 tons of explosives, sweeping Taihoku town in the north and the important air bases of Heito and Okayama in the southwest sector. Fires and explosions were observed in buildings and among packed aircraft. Two American planes were lost.

Mitchell medium bombers hit a Japanese convoy off Swatow, China, leaving a destroyer and a destroyer escort in flames. One bomber was lost.

Borneo's northern airdromes took a 100-ton bombing, and covering fighters shot down at least four out of five interceptors in the Balikpapan area.

Airdromes on Jolo in the Sulu archipelago also were bombed. Striking deeper into the southern Philippines, have seized another island—the 24th island the Yanks have hit in the archipelago since their invasion of Leyte last October.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur, reporting that his Doughboys have taken over Basilan island, a dozen miles south of American-held Zamboanga on southwest Mindanao, disclosed that Japan has already lost 282,000 soldiers in the Philippines in five months of operations.

Basilan, on the southern flank of Zamboanga city and the southwestern tip of Mindanao, was invaded Friday by soldiers of Lt. Gen. Robert Eichelberger's Eighth army. They were unopposed. To the southwest of Basilan stretch other islands of the Sulu archipelago, stepping stones leading to oil-rich Borneo, only 215 miles from Zamboanga. Basilan stands guard over an important waterway leading from the Southwest Pacific through the Celebes sea to the Sulu Sea and thence to the strategic South China sea. It is on the normal shipping lane from the southern Pacific to Borneo and Singapore.

FIRST CAVALRY CITED FOR LEYTE FIGHTING

MANILA, March 18 (AP) — The First Dismounted Cavalry Division has been cited by Maj. Gen. F. C. Sibert, commanding general of the Tenth Corps, for outstanding performance of duty in action against the Japanese on Leyte Island from Oct. 20 to Dec. 25.

The citation said:

"During the period of Oct. 25 to Nov. 10 the Japanese had succeeded in landing large forces at Ormoc. Captured documents indicated the Japanese planned to seize high ground separating Leyte and Ormoc valleys as a line of departure for an attack to retake Leyte. The First Cavlary Division was given the mission of securing and holding the western exits of these mountains.

"For forty-two grueling days, subjected to incessant tropical rains, receiving food and ammunition only through most ingenious and resourceful employment of all means of supply, including air drop, native carrier trains and carabao, battling almost impassable terrain, climbing and crawling over narrow, slippery trails, wading through waist-deep rivers and streams, and constantly subjected to artillery, mortar and small arms fire, the courageous soldiers of the First Cavalr repeatedly and vigorously attacked and drove the enemy from his positions crest by crest and mountain by mountain."

The citation declared that, "for each of its own soldiers killed, the division accounted for more than twenty-four of the enemy."

Free Press All Over Brazil Urged

Rio de Janeiro, March 18 (AP)—Newspapers opposing the administration of President Getulio Vargas are waging an active campaign for abolition of censorship throughout the country, asserting that Brazil's newly won freedom of the press still is limited principally to the Rio de Janeiro and Sao Paulo areas.

Dispatches from the states of Sergipe, Alagoas and Pernambuco report that papers there have been closed by state branches of the national department of press and propaganda, which since 1937 has exercised tight control over the Brazilian press.

There has been complete freedom of expression in Rio de Janeiro and Sao Paulo newspapers since February 22, when the Cabinet recommended that Vargas call elections and the press was told it was free to "criticize" as it saw fit. The Rio de Janeiro press previously had defied the tight control and criticized Vargas.

Canadian Parliament Tackles Problems Today

Ottawa, March 18 (AP)—Parliament tomorrow opens a short session which is expected to present Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King with new difficulties in keeping the lid on Canada's boiling domestic political pot.

The conscription issue, still unsolved, may well be aired again, with possibly explosive repercussions despite efforts which King and his government aides will make to keep the session limited to its two main avowed objectives.

These are to unite Parliament and the country behind Canada's plans for the forthcoming world security conference at San Francisco, and to vote on routine finanial measures for operation of the government until after election of a new Parliament this summer.

Aussie Force Assigned For Use By MacArthur

San Francisco, March 18 (AP)—Australia has assigned additional troops—"a splendid striking force"—to Gen. Douglas MacArthur for use when "strategically practicable," Francis M. Forde, Australia's military minister, disclosed today.

"Their objective is defeat of Japan," he said.

Addressing a press conference after his arrival from the Antipodes, Forde explained the troops were in addition to the Australian expeditionary forces engaged in eliminating an estimated 250,000 Japanese in bypassed islands of the Southwest Pacific.

Forde and Herbert Evatt, Australia's Minister of External Affairs, are to be Australia's representatives to the world security conference here next month.

Japanese Admit Losing Contact With Iwo Jima

San Francisco, March 18 (AP)—Radio Tokyo indicated in a domestic broadcast to the Nippon people Sunday that Japan is losing contact with Iwo Jima. It said American Marines had "gradually" penetrated Japanese strongholds on the little island and that "consequently the communications have more or less the tendency to stop."

TOKYO RADIO REPORTS TWO ADMIRALS KILLED

SAN FRANCISCO, March 18—(AP) Two Japanese vice admirals have met "gallant death" in action against the United States Navy, Tokyo radio said Sunday, bringing to 94 the total of Nipponese officers of admiral's rank whose deaths have been announced in enemy broadcasts since last May.

Domei, Japanese news agency, said Adm. Kiichi Endo, 55, was killed in the South Pacific in May, 1944, and Takeo Takagi, 54, died in battle in the Central Pacific last July. The broadcast was monitored by the FCC.

Endo was head of the research board on "total war" when hostilities opened Dec. 7, 1941, Domei said. In March, 1943, he commanded a fleet in action in the Yangtze river, China, and later participated in fighting in the New Guinea area.

Takagi commanded fleets that participated in the occupation of the Philippines area and the Netherlands East Indies, and later in the Coral Sea battle, and in operations off Guadalcanal. His last assignment was in counter-submarine warfare and in "the difficult battle of transportation and reconnaissance."

All Jap Schools Closed For Year

San Francisco, March 18 (AP)—All schools, colleges and universities in Japan have been ordered closed for a year, Radio Tokyo reported Sunday, and the students as well as teachers will be mobilized for war work and food production.

The closing order, effective April 1, was issued by the Cabinet of Premier Kuniaki Koiso. The only exception was the first grade of primary schools, indicating that from 7-year-old second-graders up the students will go into Nippon's war machine.

Tokyo said the students also will be used for air-raid defense and "other urgent undertakings that are immediately and directly concerned with the prosecution of the war." The information board termed the student mobilization as "in strict consonance with the tense

Tokyo also announced that Emperor Hirohito personally inspected the wreckage left in the Japanese capital by some 300 incendiary bomb-dropping American Superfortresses March 10.

The broadcasts were recorded by the FCC.

Count Hideo Kodama, education minister, reported the school closing decision to the lower house of the Diet after it was approved by the cabinet of Premier Gen. Kuniaki Koiso.

For an hour, Tokyo said, the Emperor looked over the devastated areas of the capital. It added that Shigeo Odachi, home minister, declared "it was an awe-inspiring gesture and our hearts are simply overwhelmed as we humbly observe his majesty's sentiments.

"We, the 100,000,000 people, are renewing the determination to defend the sacred national structure with all our might and are pledging ourselves that his imperial majesty's mind shall be eased."

(Official American reports on the Tokyo fire raid said more than 16 square miles of the city were reduced to ash).

Jap Premier Asked To Free Firemen From Armed Forces

San Francisco, March 18 (AP)—Japan's Parliament, called back into session to discuss "emergency measures dealing with the current grave war situation," heard a demand today that firemen be exempted or discharged from military service to cope with large-scale incendiary fires set by American bombers.

Representative Masazumi Ando demanded more firemen and also voiced charges of inadequacy and inefficiency in the evacuation of civilians from crowded metropolitan centers.

Wants Evacuation Speeded Up

In a directive to Premier General Kuniaki Koiso, Ando asserted that the number of persons evacuated from cities "amounts to only about a little more than twenty per cent of the total population, and certainly less than 30 per cent."

He urged the Government evacuate civilians "on a much greater scale." He declared:

"Evacuation of the old and the young, with the exception of essential people, must be made compulsory and a measure must be effected to receive these evacuated people."

Says Cities Are Being Cleared

Ando said "those people who cannot relocate by themselves" should be evacuated in groups of 100, and "these groups should be made into a sort of farm militia and put to work in the development of agricultural areas."

Premier Koiso, in answer to these demands, said measures for the decentralization of major cities had been put into effect long ago and "right now, the buildings, as well as the people, are being swiftly decentralized and evacuated."

Emperor Inspects Wreckage

Tokyo also announced that Emperor Hirohito personally inspected the wreckage left in the Japanese capital by incendiary bombs—dropped in the American Superfortress raid on March 10.

Heretofore the Emperor has received reports on air-raid damages from the imperial chamberlain.

[Official American reports on the Tokyo fire raid said more than 16 square miles of the city were reduced to ash].

British Subs Sink 274 Jap Vessels

New York, Monday, March 19 (AP). Submarines of Great Britain's Far Eastern Fleet operating in enemy-controlled waters in the last eight months have sunk a total of 274 Japanese ships—an average of more than one a day, the British Information Service announced today.

The figure included both supply and warships, but took no account of vessels damaged by submarine attack.

"This heavy toll of Japanese seaborne supplies of food, fuel, ammunition and medical necessities has had a marked effect upon the conduct of the Burma campaign which will become increasingly apparent as the drive south of Mandalay continues," the announcement said.

Two Earth Shocks Recorded

New York, March 18 (AP)—Two "fairly severe" earth shocks in the Central America area were recorded on the Fordham University seismograph last night, the Rev. Joseph Lynch, S.J., reported today. He said the tremors, 2,350 miles south of here, were registered at 8.04 and 8.10 P.M.

Converted Freighter Qualifies As New 'Queen of Mercy Fleet'

By LEO TAFFE AP

AT SEA ABOARD THE U.S.A.-H.S. LOUIS MILNE, Mar. 12—(delayed) A converted freighter today qualified as "Queen of the mercy fleet" of the United States Army.

In a day-long trial run, the vessel, named in honor of the late Col. Louis Milne, port surgeon at New York, passed the rigid tests and on Friday she will be commissioned as the largest hospital ship afloat.

The Milne has beds for 966 patients. She can accommodate 300 cots in covered areas. On a short trip she can handle 2,000 casualties She has facilities only for the medical staff, patients and crew.

She has the personnel and equipment to care for surgical, medical or mental cases.

Up to now, the average hospital ship has carried 500 persons. A few could accommodate up to 800.

It cost $7,000,000 to convert the freighter Lewis Luckenbach into the Louis Milne. Except for the hull and engines, everything is new—modern to the highest degree.

Truly, the Louis Milne is a medical man's Paradise. Her Merchant Marine skipper declared her operating equipment was "excellent."

Lieut. Col. Vincent A. Amato, M.C., of Astoria, Long Island, N. Y., commands the military personnel.

Today he took newsmen on a tour of the Louis Milne. Sixty-three wards, having from 18 to 68 double-decker bunks each were spread on all decks and all were on the outside of the ship. A glass-enclosed deck was ready for those who wanted exercise.

A special gadget holds plasma bottles in place at the head of bunks. There is a piano in each ward and a loud speaker connected with the ship's public address system.

A two-chair dental parlor, a two-chair barber shop and a post exchange that is stocked high also were on display.

Modern Operating Rooms

Col. Amato waxed enthusiastic over his operating rooms, declaring they were on a par with any on land—and better than many.

He showed a laundry that can, among other things, clean 3,000 bed linen daily. A Navy-trained personnel uses salt water for all but the rinsing.

There was a galley (kitchen to a landlubber) that might well have been in a leading Metropolitan hotel.

And the storerooms, wherein is kept the life-giving plasma and sulpha drugs.

There was no vibration in the ship, which is 527 feet long and has a beam of 68 feet. It is equipped with Diesel engines.

The skipper, who has transported more than 40,000 casualties in the war, added that "We have the most modern instruments on the bridge."

The ship carries 12 motor launches, each capable of carrying 135 persons. In addition, rafts dangle from the sides.

Major Edward A. Jackson, of Merced, Calif., executive officer and chief surgeon, summed it up when he said: "Any doctor would be happy to work with the equipment we have. Many hospitals on shore aren't fitted out as well."

The 44 nurses and two Red Cross workers are commanded by Captain Genevieve G. Thorpe of Clarksburg, W. Va., a dark-haired veteran of the European theater of war.

"Most of the nurses are new to hospital ship duty," the principal chief nurse asserted, "but many of the enlisted men, the corpsmen, have had that experience."

Emphatically, she thinks nurses should be drafted into the Army if they don't come in of their own volition, she declared in answer to a question.

"The boys need them. Enlisted men can help a great deal but they cannot replace a nurse. Our boys are coming home. They'll want nurses and lots of them."

She laughed outright when a newsman commented, after looking at some of the nurses, who wear trousers instead of dresses, that a soldier might not want to get well too fast.

"Aren't they a nice looking bunch, though?" she asked.

BRITISH POLICY TURN DESCRIED

Balance Of Power In Europe On Way Out, Survey Says

Washington, March 18 (AP)—Recognizing Russia's new power in eastern Europe, Britain "appears to be abandoning its olde concept of the balance of power" on the Continent, the Foreign Policy Association said today.

A survey prepared by Grant S. McClellan, association research economist, said, "Britain is intent on insuring its security by the most realistic methods." The twenty-year alliance with Russia is cited as the standout illustration of the British shift.

Different View In Orient

This accommodation to Russian influence in Europe, the survey continued, "does not hold true, however, in the Far East. While recognizing that the war has revealed British dependence on United States power in this (Oriental) area, Britain may be expected to pursue the balance-of-power concept in Asia with respect both to the United States and Russia.

"In the Near East Britain is also faced with the fact that American and Russian power will inevitably extend into what has been heretofore a sphere of special British interest."

England also seeks security in the economic realm, McClellan said, and "American decisions of the most fundamental nature are necessary if Britain and the United States are to enjoy security and prosperity in the future."

Expanding World Trade

He suggested that "doubt about the feasibility of restoring a multilateral system of trade and finance would be eradicated by the knowledge that an expanding world trade would provide competitive choice rather than competitive disadvantage in transport services, investments and markets."

"In such an atmosphere also," the survey continues, "it would be possible to remove present barriers to free trade, or find that within the scope of increased opportunities in foreign trade the problem of tariffs and preferential schemes ceased to command importance. If we have an expanding world economy, it will be easier for British interests to recoup their lost investments abroad and thus further stabilize their balanec of payments."

SHORT CIVILIAN SUPPLY FACED

Even Victory In Europe Seen As Offering Slow Relief

Washington, March 18 (AP)—Even if victory in Europe comes by midyear, the months intervening—and probably a period following—shape up as the leanest of the war for the home front.

This became evident—in weekend bad news on food, tires, shoes and manpower—as reliable informants disclosed that the Army and War Production Board have filed confidential and pessimistic new forecasts of munitions cutbacks following V-E-day.

The Army Service Forces estimate, as hinted in official quarters, shows a drop of only about 10 per cent in six months following German collapse, gradually deepening to around 33 per cent in the six to twelve months thereafter.

Slow Cancellation Forecast

WPB statisticians, similarly forecasting a slow start on contract cancellations, reportedly figure a 35 per cent drop in all munitions and reckon that the tapering will extend over a year's time.

Both estimates are based on the assumption of an end to German resistance in June, but it is emphasized that the date is more or less arbitrary to give statisticians a basis for figuring and not a reflection of the views of the military command.

The 35 per cent cutback almost tallies with last fall's optimistic forecasts, but would not be reached until much later than was then expected.

Flush Of Normandy Victory

In the flush of the Normandy breakthrough last year, officials predicted a rush of war-contract cancellations promptly after V-E-day and a sweeping release of industrial controls. A good start on reconversion was expected in three months.

In announcing a twelve per cent cut in meat for April, May and June—to the lowest point since the drought and hog-control period ten years ago—the War Food Administration observed last night:

"The end of the war in Europe will not materially affect the meat situation, and will result neither in lighter military demands nor in increased civilian supplies."

Notice To World Implied

By implication the Government served notice also that United States resources are strained and the world cannot look to America as an inexhaustible Santa Claus.

Lend-lease shipments of meat to Britain were cut a whopping 87½ per cent.

The pressure showed up in tires also. Civilians will get only 1,000,000 tires in April, the OPA said yesterday, a 37½ per-cent cut to the lowest ration in twelve months.

Army demands for shoes which, if met, would have taken the country's whole cattle-hide supply, were pared down by the WPB so that civilian shoe manufacturers will get a few hides next quarter, but perhaps not much more than fifteen per cent of the January, February and March supply.

Manpower And Draft

Topping it all were new manpower troubles. Five vital industries proved to the Government's satisfaction yesterday they could not meet war contracts if only 30 per cent of their young men got deferments. Selective service therefore broke its flat 30 per cent formula to let coal mines, transportation, steel, synthetic rubber and copper, lead and zinc producers keep more men under 30.

This means, selective service said, that more men 30 and older must be drafted for combat replacements.

April 1 will bring a new low in civilian manufacturing activity generally. To cope with the shortages of metal, the WPB will invoke its sternest stroke to date against the "spot reconversion" plan.

"Spot" Approvals Voided

The agency has voided all authorizations for the purchase of steel and copper previously granted to spot manufacturers for April, May and June. The plants must scrape for idle or surplus material, use aluminum or other metals if possible, find war work or quit.

Since new "spot" approvals already are banned in about 130 major industrial areas, the whole plan—which was intended to give the country a head start on reconversion—next month becomes about as close to a dead letter as possible without wiping it off the books.

Dumbarton Pact Change Offered By Vandenberg

MAR 19 1945

Senator Wants Wartime Political Decisions Threatening Future Peace To Be Reviewed

Pope Pius calls for peace of justice and moderation to remove "shadows covering the road".....Page 4

Washington, March 18 (AP)—Senator Vandenberg (R., Mich.) has filed with the State Department proposals to amend the Dumbarton Oaks agreements to provide, among other things, for review of wartime political decisions threatening future peace.

The Michigan Senator declined to discuss the proposed amendments, but he declared today the world security conference in San Francisco faces "the tremendous responsibility" of deciding if the projected international organization will be limited in its operations to enforcement of peace-table decisions without change.

Two Different Functions

Vandenberg is a member of the American delegation to the United Nations meeting opening April 25.

"Peace-making and peace-keeping are two totally different functions," he said. "The San Francisco conference will deal only with peace-keeping. It must be followed by another conference which does the actual peace-making.

"But there is this collateral relationship. The San Francisco conference will have the tremendous responsibility of deciding whether peace-keeping is to be confined to the status quo which the peace-makers dictate, or whether the new peace league shall have jurisdiction broad enough to explore and recommend correction of errors and injustices in the peace itself which could again threaten ultimate war."

Delegation To Get Proposals

Vandenberg said he expects the proposals, which he has filed with the State Department, to be laid before the American delegation in advance of the international meeting.

It is his understanding that the delegation will decide whether they and any amendments proposed by others of the American group are to be laid formally before the United Nations delegates. There is no provision, he added, for individual action in the conference if the Americans as a unit decide against submitting any proposal.

Supporters have contended the Dumbarton Oaks agreements leave the way open for the proposed league to review such political decisions as European boundary definitions if they threaten to provoke aggression.

But it is Vandenberg's position that, under the tentative agreements reached here last summer, the organization could not act until some specific threat of aggression is cited to it.

He fears that even if it becomes obvious a year or two afterward that some decision of the peace-makers is going to cause conflict a decade later, the Security League may find itself unable to start its review machinery in time to prevent another war.

It is understood Vandenberg hopes to clothe the proposed league, as he said when he accepted appointment as a delegate, with "a constant, conscious mandate to seek and to maintain 'justice' as the basis of peace."

Does Not Mention "Justice"

He pointed out that the Dumbarton Oaks formula, except for its brief world court chapter, "does not once mention justice as a guiding objective or a rule of conduct."

Chairman Connally (D., Texas), of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, another of the eight American delegates, said he expected the group to meet again within a week or two.

Thus far, in meetings with Secretary of State Stettinius and President Roosevelt, the delegates have discussed largely the mechanics of conference operations, leaving until later the real work of trying to get together on an American program.

IWO CASUALTIES REACH AMERICA

SAN FRANCISCO, March 18—(AP) The first wounded Marines from Iwo Jima reached the Naval receiving hospital here, the Marine corps announced today.

Approximately 100 Leathernecks got in yesterday from the Volcanic island 750 miles from Tokyo and all of them told how Japanese snipers kept ceaseless vigil over the battle zones, harrying every Marine that showed himself.

"Iwo Jima was a lot of hells rolled into one and it was a lot worse than anything I had been in before," said Cpl. Michael Thomas Longo, 24, whose parents live at Lawrence, Mass. He was a veteran of the battles for the Marshalls and Saipan and Tinian in the Marianas.

A mortar shell fractured his left arm and right leg the second day of the Iwo fight.

Japanese snipers "never lost an opportunity to let us have it," declared Pfc. Simon Braslaw, 25, son of Harry Braslaw, Philadelphia, Pa. "a sniper winged me in the right arm the third day. Those guys were so well protected it was almost impossible to get at them.

"We had been told it wouldn't be easy. It wasn't. We were told, however, it was vital Iwo Jima be taken for strategic reasons and we were determined. But I never want to go through anything like that again if I live to be a thousand years old."

"They got me the third day, "said Pfc. Robert J. Hertko, 19, son of Joseph Hertko, Joliet, Ill. "Japanese artillery was raking us fore and aft from Mt. Suribachi. I was a flame thrower and was just getting ready to pour a little hot fire into a pillbox when a shell fragment battered my right knee."

One of the first things the wounded did on arrival at the hospital here was to phone their parents. Most of them will be moved to other hospitals for extended treatment.

Stimson Gives Marines Praise For Iwo Victory

Says Conquest Is One of the Most Brilliant in History of the Corps

WASHINGTON, March 18 (AP).—Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson congratulated the Marine Corps today on its conquest of Iwo Jima and said the feat "has brought closer the day of our final victory in the Pacific."

His letter follows:

"The Honorable, the Secretary of the Navy.

"Dear Mr. Secretary:

"The announcement that all organized Japanese resistance on Iwo Jima ceased last evening has brought to a close one of the most brilliant and decisive campaigns in the entire history of the Marine Corps. This mission was given the higest importance by our Chiefs of Staff in the scheme of operations planned to bring us within striking distance of the Japanese homeland. This island bastion across the route to Tokyo was vital to provide us with forward bases from which to prosecute with the greatest intensity our assault on Japan itself. Never has the Marine Corps been called upon to overcome an enemy entrenched in such well-placed and stubborn fortifications. Never has the Corps acted more heroically.

"I extend to you and to the gallant members of the Marine Corps who took part in this campaign my personal congratulations and the congratulations of the entire Army. The price has been heavy, but the military value of Iwo Jima is inestimable. Its conquest has brought closer the day of our final victory in the Pacific.

"Sincerely yours,
"HENRY L. STIMSON,
"Secretary of War."

BOARD IS URGED TO CLASSIFY ALL DRAFT OBJECTORS

WASHINGTON, March 18—(AP) Establishment of a board for classifying conscientious objectors was advocated today by Attorney General Francis Biddle.

Purpose of the board, the attorney general said in his annual report to Congress, would be to divide the various types of objectors into groups and then assign them to "suitable and useful work."

Difficulties in carrying out conscientious objector legislation have arisen, he said, because the objectors vary from "artful dodgers" to persons who have genuine scruples against war, from "absolutists who object to all forms of conscription" to those who are willing to assist in the war effort so long as they are not required to kill.

Urges Overseas Duty

Biddle recommended also that certain types of objectors be permitted to volunteer for overseas relief work and that money paid the government by private employers of conscientious objectors be used as allotments to dependents.

The report said that "the largest numerical group commonly included in the objector category are the Jehovah's Witnesses, of whom 3,000 have been convicted, constituting roughly three-fifths of all those convicted who professed some form of conscientious objection," and added:

"The special difficulty posed by this group is that they generally decline to accept a conscientious objector classification, maintaining that they are entitled to the absolute exemption accorded to ministers. This difficulty can hardly be resolved unless Congress is willing either to alter the ordinary concept of ministers or to grant absolute exemption to conscientious objectors."

The report also recommended:

1. Easing of educational requirements of certain persons over 50 years of age who are seeking naturalization and of other requirements pertaining to enemy aliens who have children in the armed forces of the United States. It suggested also that the citizenship law be eased for children born abroad when one parent is a citizen and the other is not.

Asks Sabotage Be Amplified

2. The "crime of sabotage should be more comprehensively defined and should include conspiracies to commit the offense." Also that the offense of aiding an escaped prisoner of war be separated from that of treason and be made an offense in itself with suitable penalties.

3. Permit imposition of indeterminate prison sentences. This recommendation, made previously by Biddle, would authorize the study of a prisoner by a board of corrections before final sentence is imposed by a judge.

Reviewing the work of the department's anti-trust division Biddle said that prosecution has been aimed principally at preventing hindrance to the war effort and "preserving for the postwar period the opportunity for free and competitive enterprise."

Negro Tank Destroyer Officer Awarded D.S.C.

Washington, March 18 (AP)—Award of the Distinguished Service Cross to Capt. Charles L. Thomas, 24, Negro commander of a tank destroyer company in France, was announced today by the War Department.

Thomas, a former Detroit molder and the second Negro soldier to win the D.S.C., earned the decoration during an attack on a strong German position at Climbach, France, last December.

Thomas's scout car, leading the advance, was struck by the first fire from the Germans and he was wounded. Nevertheless, he helped crewmen out of the car and then, still under enemy fire, directed emplacement of two anti-tank guns which began blasting at the Nazis.

Lieut. Stephen T. Early jr. Is Wounded in Europe

Father, on Mission Abroad, Visits Him in Army Hospital

WASHINGTON, March 18 (AP).—First Lieutenant Stephen T. Early jr., son of President Roosevelt's secretary, was wounded slightly in the European theater of operations recently. Announcing this today, the War Department said he was visited at a hospital by his father, who is in Europe on a mission for the Army.

The senior Early, White House press secretary, went overseas several weeks ago in a civilian capacity to serve as a consultant on Army press relations.

Lieutenant Early, an infantry officer, is twenty-one years old. He entered the Army as a private in February, 1943, attended an officer candidate school and was commissioned in October last year. He went overseas several months ago.

MAY SUE TO STOP MINE STRIKE VOTE

WASHINGTON, March 18 (AP)—Edward R. Burke, spokesman of the southern coal operators, said tonight that a Federal court petition was ready for possible filing in an effort to block the strike vote in prospect for March 28.

The southern operators failed in a petition to the National Labor Relations Board to stop the vote. The NLRB, with the War Labor Board and Labor Department, said that since John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, had filed notice that a dispute existed, the law required that the 400,000 miners be polled.

The main union demand, a royalty of ten cents a ton for a union health and rehabilitation fund, faces a legislative threat. Senator Bailey, chairman of the Commerce Committee, has introduced a bill to prohibit such a royalty, as well as the one gained by James C. Petrillo, president of the AFL musicians' union.

Contract negotiations between the bituminous operators and miners will resume tomorrow. Mr. Lewis and his policy committee rejected operator proposals Friday and the negotiating committees started Saturday to discuss the union's original eighteen demands, first submitted March 1.

Georgia Plant Builds Barracks For Bombed-Out French, British

GREENVILLE, Ga., March 18—(AP) Prefabricated houses to shelter bombed-out French and British families are being turned out on an assembly-line basis in a new factory set in the center of the Georgia pine belt.

Some 300 farmers, housewives, filling station operators and others are on the payroll of the new plant which has contracts from the Federal Housing Authority for 500 barracks to be shipped to France and 500 houses for Britain.

Each of the barracks will house 30 French shipyard workers. They are being turned out at the rate of ten daily. The plant will begin work shortly on the British contract calling for the 500 houses consisting of living room, two bedrooms, kitchen and bath.

C. Eugene Tovell selected this farming center for the site of the plant because of the region's supply of pine lumber, availability of labor and rail facilities. It is the town's first "big payroll" industry.

Few of the workers have had factory experience but Tovell said many, including women, had mastered buzz saws and other tools since the plant began operations a month ago.

Barracks for the French workers consist of 32 panels. When set up they form a building 20 feet wide by 48 feet long with 16 windows. The windows will be screened with a semi-transparent plastic glass.

Each barracks fills 47 packing cases. Along with each unit goes three gallons of paint, a brush, and a package of bolts and nuts. The units are bolted together except for a few places where nails are necessary. Double-headed nails are provided, one head just beneath the other, so that the house can be disassembled and reconstructed, using the same nails.

FILM STRIKERS ARE CONFIDENT

Leaders Not Disturbed By Break Of Two Unions

MAR 1 9 1945

Hollywood, March 18 (AP)—Leaders in the week-old film industry strike insisted today the strike would continue despite a serious break in their ranks by two unions.

Hundreds of film employés prepared to attend a mass meeting to review events in the controversy, but Herbert K. Sorrell, president of the conference of studio workers, predicted there would be no further serious change in the lineup.

Second Union Withdraws

The strike leaders received a heavy blow early today when the Screen Office Employés Guild voted to return to work tomorrow. With 3,000 members, the Guild voted 691 to 261 to end its sympathy walkout.

Yesterday more than 200 Screen Publicists Guild members voted to go back to their jobs tomorrow. Both guilds are members of the Nine-Guild Conference of Studio Unions.

Sorrell declared the main membership, notably the painters and machinists locals, would "stand like a rock and see that this controversy is won."

Cause Of Walkout

The strike was precipitated when the painters local sought recognition by film producers as the bargaining agent for set decorators. Opposing them for control was the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employés, which has thirteen unions under its banner employed in the studios.

Spokesmen for the publicity men and office employé said they felt the two craft unions—painters and IATSE—were hopelessly deadlocked and further participation in the strike was useless.

Revised figures indicated the idle film-worker ranks had been reduced from 17,000 to 14,000.

LaGuardia 'Extends' Curfew to 1 A.M.; Byrnes Silent; Other Mayors Dissent

NEW YORK, March 18—(AP) With a blunt statement that the month-old midnight curfew on amusement places would not work in New York city, Mayor LaGuardia announced today an additional "hour of tolerance," extending the closing time to 1 a.m., effective immediately.

The Mayor, making his surprise announcement during his weekly radio talk, declared the midnight closing had resulted in nightly transportation jams and in "other vices," such as the illegal sale of liquors and the mushrooming of speakeasies.

In Washington, official silence followed the Mayor's action. War Mobilization Director James F. Byrnes, whose original request had established the nationwide curfew, could not be reached for comment. Paul V. McNutt, War Manpower commissioner, who was delegated power to enforce the closing regulations, said he had nothing to say.

Byrnes' associates were unable to state whether he had been consulted by LaGuardia in advance.

Officials of the larger cities throughout the nation, however, were emphatic in their decisions not to follow LaGuardia's action. Some pointed out that the New York Mayor had made a vigorous but futile attempt previously to have 1 a.m. established as the curfew hour for New York city.

Cafe Owners Elated

Elated night club owners here, who had been severely hit by the loss of the lucrative after-theater trade, immediately began rescheduling their late shows.

A few minutes after the Mayor's announcement, made in his weekly broadcast over WNYC, police orders went out permitting "one-hour of tolerance after midnight."

Asked after his broadcast if his ruling meant that customers could go into a place at or after midnight and order food or drinks, LaGuardia said: "They can go in any time they want, as long as they're out by 1 o'clock."

Cites Transportation Jam

The Mayor said that the midnight closing had resulted in a nightly transportation jam and that the additional hour would give the city several more police hours for enforcement.

"If this hour of tolerance is abused," he said, "we will shove it right back. But I don't think it will be abused."

The mayor did not say whether he had consulted Federal authorities on the move.

The enforcement situation may be complicated, one source said, by the fact that compliance has been on a request basis, depending on voluntary cooperation.

The mayor asserted that the midnight closing had resulted in "too much rapid drinking" which in turn had created a tendency toward illegal sale of liquor.

"How of Tolerance"

"To meet the situation and carry out the real purpose of the curfew," he continued, "it is reasonable to extend one hour of tolerance at midnight—one hour to allow payment of bills and other matters.

"If the places are actually closed one hour after midnight, that will be full, reasonable and bona fide compliance."

The extension, he said, would become effective at once. The Mayor authorized Police Commissioner Lewis J. Valentine to issue police orders immediately.

Asked whether he would recommend an amendment to a local law, passed recently, which set the closing time for places selling liquor at 12 midnight, the Mayor replied: "We won't worry about that. We just won't report any violations until 1 o'clock."

Leaders in the city's entertainment industry were jubilant—and profuse in their thanks to the Mayor. Most night club proprietors and operators of other places of amusement lost no time in readjusting their schedules to agree with the new closing time.

"The Mayor's hour of tolerance is the first step in the right direction," declared Barney Josephson, owner of the Cafe Society Uptown and Cafe Society Downtown, nightclubs, "and will certainly help to eliminate some of the evils he mentioned. Let's face it, we want laws to be helpful, not harmful."

Liquor Dealers Applaud

"The tavern keepers of Manhattan and the Bronx are appreciative and are thankful to the Mayor for his action," said Joseph Maguire, president of the United Restaurant [illegible] had been [illegible] purpose except to increase crime and bring about chaotic conditions.

Mrs. Anna Rosenberg, regional War Manpower commissioner, whose office is charged with the enforcement of the curfew in New York, was reported "out of town for a week" and there was no statement from her office on the Mayor's proclamation.

San Francisco Unmoved

In San Francisco, Mayor Roger D. Lapham indicated he had no intention of following Mayor La Guardia's action in extending the curfew.

"The City of San Francisco as a matter of course will respect the government's wishes," the Mayor told the Associated Press. "If the government continues to insist that the war effort demands midnight closings, we will continue to abide by that decision."

Newspaper surveys have indicated that little additional transportation hardship was due to the early folding. Smaller night crowds were noted immediately after the curfew took effect. Principal complaint was that it had complicated the city's police manpower problems, resulting in nine-hour night shifts to get the extra man-hours needed to enforce compliance.

In Chicago Mayor Edward J. Kelly refused comment on La Guardia's extension of the curfew, but said the midnight curfew will remain as is in Chicago.

"I'm going right along with the order of the government," Mayor Kelly said, "and I don't care what they do in New York."

William H. Spencer, regional director for the War Manpower commission, the curfew enforcing agency in Chicago, said:

"I don't know why La Guardia should feel that he has a different situation than anywhere else. I know the situation there and I don't know by what authority La Guardia took such action. I don't see any reason why such action should be extended to Chicago."

Mayor Fletcher Bowron of Los Angeles asserted there that "we're much more serious about winning this war than the people in New York who apparently are concerned with having a good time after midnight."

Commenting upon La Guardia's announcement, Bowron told a reporter:

"I think Los Angeles is as modern a city as New York but apparently the people here comply with the law voluntarily far better than they do in New York.

"I think that's due possibly to the fact that we're in the war much more than New York is. We're in the center of one of the most vital war production areas in America—it's probably second to none—so we, of course, take the war very seriously here."

The Los Angeles Mayor said he didn't think that a mayor should take the curfew matter too much to himself because "it's entirely a Federal regulation and must be enforced through the War Manpower commission."

In Miami, Fla., Mayor Leonard K. Thomson said that the curfew was "in the best interest of the city as a whole" and that Miami would continue to abide by the midnight closing edict.

He pointed out that a midnight closing for bars and night clubs had been in force in Miami previous to the Byrnes ruling.

"I believe the curfew should be maintained for the duration, or until the government decides it is no longer necessary," Thomson asserted.

"Besides," he added, "midnight is late enough for people to be out when they're working hard."

BRITISH HOUSEWIVES, STRUGGLING TO FEED FAMILIES ON JUST 24 CENTS WORTH OF MEAT PER PERSON EACH WEEK---BOUT ENOUGH FOR ONE MEAL--HAVE BEEN TROUBLED BY PERSISTENT REPORTS OF A SERIOUS FOOD SHORTAGE.

THE GENERAL LIVESTOCK SITUATION OVER THE WORLD IS PICTURED HERE AS SO SERIOUS THAT BRITISH BUTCHERS EXPECT MEAT RATIONS WILL HAVE TO BE SUPPLEMENTED BY CANNED CORNED BEEF AS IT WAS FOR A SHORT PERIOD IN 1943. AUSTRALIA AND NEW ZEALAND, FROM WHICH ENGLAND HAD ORDERED A LARGE AMOUNT OF BEEF FOR THIS YEAR, HAVE UNDERGONE SEVERE DROUGHTS.

THE HOUSEWIFE WHO OFTEN WAS FORCED TO DRAW HER WEEKLY RATION IN AMERICAN "FAT" PORK, WHICH HAS A 25 PER CENT WASTE, STILL IS ABLE OCCASIONALLY TO BUY ENGLISH LAMB OR BEEF, BUT THE PRICE IS SO HIGH THAT, UNDER THE 24-CENT RATION, SHE BARELY IS ABLE TO GET ENOUGH FOR ONE MEAL, LET ALONE EXPECT ANY LEFTOVERS.

MAR 1 9 1945

A BRITISH PRESS ASSOCIATION CORRESPONDENT CALLED THE REDUCTION A "THUNDERBOLT FOR THE MINISTRY OF FOOD AND FOR LONG-SUFFERING BRITISH CONSUMERS."

HE ADDED IT IS ALMOST CERTAIN TO RESULT IN THE VALUE OF THE WEEKLY MEAT RATION BEING CUT FROM 24 TO 20 CENTS WORTH SOON BECAUSE THE NEXT THREE MONTHS IS A PERIOD IN WHICH ONLY A SMALL SUPPLY OF BEEF IS KILLED HERE.

RECALLING THAT AT ONE STAGE OF THE WAR A GOVERNMENT OFFICIAL WARNED THAT IF THE MEAT RATION FELL BELOW A SHILLING (20 CENTS) BRITAIN WOULD HAVE LOST THE WAR, THE CORRESPONDENT ADDED:

"WHILE THERE IS LITTLE DANGER OF THAT NOW X X X WE ARE ON THE RAZOR EDGE OF SAFETY IN THE MATTER OF PROTEIN FOODS GENERALLY, AND REDUCTIONS IN OUR CHEESE SUPPLIES FROM AMERICA HAVE COMPELLED RELUCTANT CUTS IN THE RATION OF THIS VALUABLE SOURCE OF PROTEIN."

A RECENT INCREASED DEMAND FOR GRAIN HAS LED TO REDUCTION OF CANADIAN HOG RAISING, HE ADDED, "AND THERE WAS SOME INDICATION FROM CANADA THAT SHE MIGHT NOT BE ABLE TO REACH HER PLANNED QUOTA OF HOG SHIPMENTS TO BRITAIN THIS YEAR."

THERE ALSO HAVE BEEN REPORTS THAT ARGENTINA WAS SUSPENDING SHIPMENTS OF CANNED MEAT.

LONDON, MARCH 18-(AP)-POPE PIUS XII TOLD A LARGE CONGREGATION ASSEMBLED IN ST.PETER'S SQUARE TODAY THAT "WE MUST RETURN TO THE SPIRIT OF BROTHERHOOD, OF REAL CHRISTIAN BROTHERHOOD, AND TURN AWAY FROM THE DOCTRINES OF RACE AND BLOOD." THE ADDRESS WAS BROADCAST BY THE VATICAN RADIO.

"IT IS AN EVIL SPIRIT WHICH HAS PRODUCED THE PRESENT CONFLAGRATION," THE POPE SAID.

MAR 19 1945

"MANY ARE SUFFERING WITHOUT HOMES BUT MUCH SUFFERING WOULD BE RELIEVED IF ALL MEN STOOD BY GOD.

"THE ORGANIZATION OF THE PEACE MUST BE BASED ON JUSTICE. GOD ALONE CAN MOVE THE SPIRIT OF THE MEN WHO THINK THAT THEY HAVE THE DESTINY OF THE WORLD IN THEIR HANDS. THAT IS WHY WE SHOULD LIFT OUR HANDS AND EYES IN PENITENCE AND HUMILITY TO HIM WHO ALONE CAN RELIEVE US OF THIS SUFFERING AND PRESENT DESTRUCTION."

LONDON, MARCH 18-(AP)-A V-BOMB STRUCK BETWEEN A CATHOLIC CHURCH AND A SCHOOL USED AS A REST CENTER SOMEWHERE IN SOUTHERN ENGLAND, KILLING TWO ADULTS, A MONTH-OLD BABY, AND INJURED SEVERAL PRIESTS AND A NUN--BUT A SCHEDULED WEDDING WENT ON JUST THE SAME.

PART OF THE PLAYGROUND EQUIPMENT WAS HURLED TO THE SCHOOL ROOF. THE PRESBYTERY LOST ITS ROOF AND FIRE BROKE OUT. DOCTORS CRAWLED OVER SMOKING DEBRIS TO ATTEND THE INJURED. ALSATIAN DOGS WERE USED TO FIND VICTIMS.

THE ROOF OF THE CHURCH ITSELF WAS RIPPED FULL OF HOLES, ITS INTERIOR STREWN WITH WRECKAGE, ONLY HALF THE ALTAR LEFT STANDING, AND THE ORGAN BLOWN OUT ENTIRELY.

BUT THE WEDDING WAS PERFORMED IN THE SHELL OF THE CHURCH AND UNDER THE OPEN SKY.

LONDON, MARCH 18-(AP)-T. ARCHIE GARGAN OF 374 GRANGE ST., PONTIAC, ILL., SHOT DOWN TWO GERMAN FOLKE WULF PLANES TODAY, BUT SAID HE THOUGHT LUFTWAFFE PILOTS WERE BECOMING MORE AGGRESSIVE.

"AT LEAST THOSE JERRIES I TACKLED WERE MORE AGGRESSIVE THAN A LOT I'VE ENCOUNTERED," SAID THE U.S. 8TH AIRFORCE PILOT. "I HAD A DOGFIGHT WITH ONE FOR ABOUT 10 MINUTES BEFORE SENDING HIM CRASHING INTO A BARN. I TRAILED ANOTHER TWO MILES BEFORE HIS PLANE EXPLODED FROM MY BULLETS."

ANOTHER GROUP OF 20 FOLK WULFS WAS DISPERSED EASILY, HOWVER IN THE VICINITY OF DUMMER LAKE AS THEY HEADED IN TO ATTACK 1,300 HEAVY BOMBERS HEADING TOWARD BERLIN.

"THE 190 K KNOCKED DOWN DIDN'T GIVE ME ANY TROUBLE AT ALL," SAID LT. JEROME BALLARD OF 1831 KENTUCKY AVE., DETROIT. "THE PILOT BALED OUT AT 10,000 FEET AFTER I POURED A FEW BURSTS INTO HIS PLANE."

OVER BERLIN SGT. CLYDE WALLICK OF DOVER, O., BALL GUNNER ON A FORTRESS, CELEBRATED HIS 21ST BIRTHDAY AND HIS 21ST MISSION.

"OUR BOMBS BURST RIGHT IN THE TARGET AREA, HE SAID, "AND I SAW INCENDIARY FIRES STARTING ALL OVER THE PLACE."

MAR 19 1945

LONDON, MARCH 18-(AP)--VETERAN AMERICAN AIRMEN TAKING PART TODAY IN THE RECORD 1,300-BOMBER RAID ON BERLIN REPORTED SOME OF THE THICKEST FLAK BARRAGES OVER THE CAPITAL THAT THEY HAVE EVER ENCOUNTERED.

"THAT BERLIN FLAK CAUSED A LOT OF DAMAGE," RELATED LT.LEWIS ORSI, 3215 SOUTH NORMAL AVE., CHICAGO, ILL. "ONE PIECE OF THE STUFF CAME UP UNDER MY SEAT BUT MY FLAK SUIT STOPPED IT."

LT.HAROLD M.HUTCHCRAFT, MEDIAPOLIS, IOWA, A LIBERATOR CO-PILOT, SAID A PIECE OF FLAK CHEWED A HOLE ABOUT SIX INCHES IN DIAMETER IN THE WING OF HIS PLANE.

"BERLIN WAS WIDE OPEN FOR A BEATING AND SHE GOT IT, ALTHOUGH THE GROUND GUNNERS WERE NOT RATIONING SHELLS," SAID LT.COL.LAWRENCE GILBERT, PLEASANT LAKE, IND., A LIBERATOR COMBAT WING LEADER.

TO THE WEST, THE ELEVENTH ARMORED DIVISION LAST WAS REPORTED IN THE VICINITY OF THE ROAD HUB OF KIRCHBERG, SIX MILES SOUTHWEST OF SIMMERN, THROUGH WHICH THE FOURTH ARMORED DIVISION SPED IN ITS BREAKTHROUGH FROM THE MOSELLE RIVER BRIDGEHEAD.

PATTON WAS DISCLOSED TO HAVE HURLED AN ADDITIONAL ARMORED DIVISION INTO THE BATTLE, GIVING HIM A TOTAL OF FOUR IN ACTION, AND WAS EMPLOYING THE BLAZING TACTICS WHICH OVERRAN FRANCE.

WITHOUT REGARD TO THE FLANKS OR REAR, HIS TANK SPEARHEADS WERE RIPPING THROUGH THE GERMAN LINES, GIVING THE ENEMY NO OPPORTUNITY TO RALLY.

NORTHWARD, THE FINAL SHOTS WERE BEING FIRED IN THE CONQUEST OF COBLENZ, AT THE JUNCTION OF THE RHINE AND MOSELLE RIVERS. A FEW GERMANS STILL HELD OUT IN THE NORTHEASTERN QUARTER OF THE CITY NEAR THE RHINE.

SEVEN MILES SOUTH OF COBLENZ, BOPPARD WAS CAPTURED AND PATTON'S TROOPS HELD A TEN-MILE STRETCH OF THE RHINE'S WEST BANK FROM BOPPARD SOUTHEAST TO OBERWESEL.

THE AIRFIELD CAPTURED BY THE FIRST ARMY WAS SOUTH OF WINDHAGEN, SEVEN MILES NORTHEAST OF THE REMAGEN CROSSING. IT HAD BEEN USED BY THE GERMANS WHEN THE AMERICANS FIRST BROKE ACROSS THE RHINE.

FORCES WHICH SEIZED IT IN A GAIN OF MORE THAN A MILE ALSO WERE WITHIN A MILE AND A HALF OF ANOTHER FIELD FARTHER NORTH.

ON THE EXTREME NORTHERN TIP OF THE BRIDGEHEAD, THE 78TH DIVISION DROVE ALMOST TWO MILES NORTH FROM KOENIGSWINTER INTO DOLLENDORF, ON THE RHINE OPPOSITE CAPTURED BAD GODESBURG. THIS ADVANCE PLACED THE AMERICANS ABOUT A MILE AND A HALF FROM THE PLAINS LEADING TO INNER GERMANY.

THE BRIDGEHEAD WAS STEADILY SPREADING OUT EAST, NORTH AND SOUTH.

THE NINTH INFANTRY CROSSED THE WIED RIVER NEAR HOPPEN, EIGHT MILES EAST OF THE LUDENDORFF BRIDGE. THE WIED FORMS PART OF THE GERMAN DEFENSES ON THE EAST EDGE OF THE BRIDGEHEAD.

SMALL GAINS WERE REGISTERED ON THE EXTREME SOUTH FLANK BEYOND CAPTURED HOENNINGEN, AND AMERICANS FOUR MILES EAST OF HOENNINGEN FOUGHT UP, AND CAPTURED, AN IMPORTANT HEIGHT.

AN ADDITIONAL 1,508 PRISONERS WERE ROUNDED UP IN THE BRIDGEHEAD AREA IN THE LAST 24 HOURS.

THE GERMANS WERE IN RETREAT UNDER AN AERIAL WHIPLASH BEFORE THE U.S. SEVENTH ARMY, PULLING OUT MEN, TANKS AND GUNS IN A SWIFT WITHDRAWAL THAT KICKED UP CLOUDS OF DUST FOR HUNDREDS OF SQUARE MILES.

LT. GEN. ALEXANDER M.PATCH'S FORCES DROVE FIVE TO SEVEN AND A HALF MILES THROUGH ROWS OF DRAGON TEETH AND PILLBOXES IN A PUSH THAT WAS HEADING NORTH PAST SAARBRUECKEN.

THE 63RD INFANTRY DIVISION PLOWED DEEP INTO THE FORTIFICATIONS AT HECKENTHALHEIM, SIX MILES EAST OF SAARBRUECKEN.

THREE MILES TO THE NORTHEAST, INFANTRY WAS SEVEN AND A HALF MILES INTO THE DEFENSES AFTER REACHING THE VICINITY OF NIEDERWUERZBACH.

THIS PUSH, IN CONCERT WITH ONE FARTHER EAST, WAS OUTFLANKING THE SIEGFRIED FORTRESS OF ZWEIBRUECKEN, 15 MILES EAST OF SAARBRUECKEN.

A62

THIRD DIVISION INFANTRY WERE TWO MILES SOUTH OF ZWEIBRUECKEN WHILE THE 100TH INFANTRY DIVISION, MOVING UP ON THE EAST FLANK, WAS THREE MILES AWAY. THE 100TH ALSO MADE A THREE-MILE GAIN TO THE EAST AND ENTERED GERMANY SEVEN MILES NORTHEAST OF BITCHE.

AMERICAN AND FRENCH TROOPS EAST OF HERE WERE DRIVING THE GERMANS

FROM THE LAST SOIL OF NORTHEASTERN FRANCE.

THE 42ND DIVISION ADVANCING THROUGH THE MINE FIELDS IN THE HARDT MOUNTAINS CLEARED PHILLIPSBOURG, 20 MILES SOUTHEAST OF ZWEIBRUECKEN, AND DROVE BEYOND THE MAIN LATERAL HIGHWAY LEADING 15 MILES SOUTHEASTWARD TO HAGUENAU.

FOUR MILES SOUTHEAST, THE 103RD DIVISION CAPTURED NIEDERBRONN.

EASTWARD NEAR THE RHINE THE 36TH DIVISION CLEARED THREE VILLAGES FIVE TO SIX MILES NORTH AND NORTHWEST OF HAGUENAU IN THE HEAVILY-MINED FASTNESSES OF HAGUENAU FOREST.

FRENCH TROOPS IN A THREE-MILE ADVANCE ALONG THE RHINE CAPTURED SOUFFLENHEIM AND RUNTZENHEIM, EIGHT MILES EAST OF HAGUENAU, AND ON THE RHINE BANK FOUGHT TO THE EDGE OF FORT LOUIS, ONE OF THE ANCHORS OF THE FRENCH MAGINOT LINE.

BOMBERS AND FIGHTERBOMBERS FLEW MORE THAN 1,000 SORTIES BEFORE NOON, LASHING AT GERMAN COLUMNS WITHDRAWING ACROSS THE RHINE BEFORE THE TWO-ARMY OFFENSIVE.

PILOTS CLAIMED TEN TIGER TANKS WERE KNOCKED OUT ALONG THE NAHE RIVER, WHERE THEY WERE HOLDING UP THE ADVANCE OF ONE OF PATTON'S COLUMNS.

THE EFFECT OF CONCENTRATING THE AMERICAN AIR ATTACK ON GERMAN TRANSPORTATION WAS DEMONSTRATED BY THE NAZIS' INCREASING USE OF HORSE-DRAWN VEHICLES--303 OF WHICH WERE DESTROYED TODAY, INCLUDING TEN MOVING ARTILLERY PIECES. THIRTY-EIGHT LOCOMOTIVES, 624 TRUCKS, AND 336 MOTOR TRUCKS WERE ALSO SMASHED BY THE AMERICAN AIRMEN.

AN EXAMPLE OF THE CLOSE COOPERATION BETWEEN AIR AND GROUND FORCES WAS REPORTED BY LT.PAUL HAYES OF LANSING, MICH., WHO DESCRIBED THE DESTRUCTION OF THREE BUILDINGS FROM THE AIR AFTER TANKMEN HAD MARKED THE TARGET WITH SMOKE. Add Adv. HQ, U.S. 9th A.F. (Stenhart) x encounter

MUCH SCRAMBLING BY THE GERMANS WAS REPORTED SOUTH OF COBLENZ, BUT A THUNDERBOLT SQUADRON LED BY COL.JOSEPH L.LAUGHLIN OF OMAHA, COVERED THE AREA WEST OF MAINZ AND CALLED IT A REGION OF QUIET AND DESOLATION.

"IT WAS A GHOSTLY SIGHT--ABANDONED AND WRECKED EQUIPMENT EVERYWHERE, WOODS JAMMED WITH JUNK, BUT ALMOST NO SIGN OF LIFE OR RESISTANCE," HE SAID.

NINTH AIR FORCE BOMBERS SMASHED AT BAD DURKHEIM SOUTHWEST OF MANHEIM, THE KRUEZTAL RAILYARDS EAST OF COLOGNE, RETZLAR, AND WORMS. MODERATE FLAK WAS REPORTED EVERYWHERE EXCEPT AT WORMS.

AN AMERICAN AIRFIELD IN GERMANY--1ST ADD EUNSON'S AIRFIELD (TOP AYE) XXX TO THE RHINE.

FIVE DAYS AFTER LT.-COL.ARLON HAZEN'S 852ND AVIATION BATTALION WENT TO WORK, THE FIELD WAS DECLARED READY FOR USE. HAZEN, FROM STILLWATER,OKLA., PAID TRIBUTE FOR THE SPEED TO CAPT.JAMES SMITH OF 4111 GRAYIST., DETROIT, WHOSE COMPANY BORE DOWN ON THE TASK DAY AND NIGHT, BRINGING BERLIN THAT MUCH CLOSER TO OUR FIGHTER LINE.

THE DAY BEFORE, HOWEVER, MAJ.JAMES W.EGAN OF HILL CITY,S.DAK., "HAD SOME VERY IMPORTANT BUSINESS" ON THE NEW FIELD, "AND JUST HAD TO LAND."

BEING FIRST IS SOMETHING OF A HABIT WITH THIS YOUNG MAJOR, WHO WAS A MEMBER OF THE FIRST AMERICAN FIGHTER GROUP IN AUSTRALIA AND ALSO IN NEW GUINEA, AND SHOT DOWN HIS FIRST ENEMY PLANE ON HIS FIRST MISSION.

THE FIRST MISSION FROM HERE WAS FLOWN BY MAJ. O.W.HANSEN, COLLEGE SPRINGS,IOWA, AND CAPT.LEO J.SOMMER, 3245 MAYFIELD,LA CRESCENTA, LOS ANGELES, WHO TOOK OFF ON MARCH 12 UNDER A MEAGER 2,000-FOOT CEILING TO GET SOME MUCH-NEEDED PHOTOGRAPHS FROM THE EAST SIDE OF THE RHINE. HANSEN AND SOMMER ARE MEMBERS OF THE 363RD TACTICAL RECONNAISSANCE GROUP COMMANDED BY COL.JAMES W.SMELLEY OF ARCADIA,LA.

ON FRIDAY, COL.JAMES MCGEHEE OF BIRMINGHAM,ALA., SAT IN HIS BRIEF-

CAPT.HAROLD W.DIFFENWIERTH, DADE CITY,FLA., LED THE FIGHTER-BOMBER STRIKE WHICH OFFICIALLY INITIATED THE FIELD.

DIFFENWIRTH SAID THE PILOTS WERE "ALL PLEASED WITH THE TAXI STRIPS."

ONE MAN ON THE LOG WAS AN ENGINEER SEVERELY HURT WHEN THE BRIDGE COLLAPSED. THE OTHER WAS CORP.ROY LARSON OF 340 WEST SECOND ST., ERIE, PA., WHO HAD SWUM OUT TO HELP THE WOUNDED MAN, BUT HAD BECOME EXHAUSTED AND NUMBED WITH COLD.

ANESON SWAM 100 YARDS, FIXED THE ROPE TO THE PIECE OF WRECKAGE, AND THE THREE MEN WERE HAULED TO SAFETY BY GATES AND LT.-COL.FRANK HEIKKILA OF COOPER, TEX. THE COLONEL HAD STRIPPED TO HIS UNDERWEAR, READY TO ENTER THE WATER.

MAR 19 1945

NARROW ESCAPES WERE LEGION.

SGT.HANSEL B.PAYNE OF 233 MAGNOLIA COURT, TRUSSVILLE, ALA., WAS CAUGHT BETWEEN TWO GIRDERS.

"TWO MEN FROM MY SQUAD LIFTED ONE OF THE BEAMS ENOUGH TO GET ME OUT," SAID PAYNE, WHO ESCAPED WITH MINOR CUTS AND BRUISES.

PVT.EDWARD FRIEDEL, 17 COLONIAL AVE., LANCASTER, N.Y., SAID, "I WAS ABOUT 20 YARDS FROM THE STONE PILING AT THE EAST END OF THE BRIDGE. I WAS THROWN INTO THE WATER, BUT GRABBED A GIRDER. IT BENT AS THE BRIDGE FELL AND THREW ME INTO THE AIR."

SGT.MERLE WILLIAMS, COWANSVILLE, PA., AND PVT.RICHARD MYREN, 1838 WINCHESTER, ST., MADISON, WIS., CLIMBED DOWN THE PILING AND BEAMS AND LIFTED A MAN, UNCONSCIOUS BUT STILL ALIVE, FROM WHERE HE WAS PINNED IN THE WATER.

GAVE WAY.

PFC.WILLIAM JOHNSON, 210 FIFTH ST., SANTA ROSA, CALIF., WAS IN THE MIDDLE OF THE SPAN, AND RODE IT DOWN. HE SUFFERED NO MORE THAN A SCRATCHED LEG.

THE BRIDGE HAD BEEN HIT SEVERAL TIMES BY GERMAN ARTILLERY FIRE BUT NONE OF THE HITS DESTROYED ANY OF THE BASIC STRUCTURE, ALTHOUGH THEY UNDOUBTEDLY CONTRIBUTED TO ITS WEAKNESS, SAID LT. COL. KENNETH FIELDS OF 125 PLYMOUTH ROAD, NEWTON HIGHLANDS, MASS.

FIELD'S ENGINEERING UNIT DID NOT HAVE THE RESPONSIBILITY OF BASIC REPAIRS, BUT WAS CHARGED ONLY WITH KEEPING THE SUPERFICIAL STRUCTURE REPAIRED TO HANDLE ARMOR AND HEAVY VEHICLES.

CAPT. FRANCIS GOODWIN OF 65 POMONA PLACE, BUFFALO, N.Y., HAD GONE DOWN TO THE BRIDGE YESTERDAY TO CHECK WITH HIS UNIT ON THEIR SUPPLY SITUATION. HE HAD JUST LEFT EN SPAN ON THE EASTERNSIDE WHEN IT GAVE WAY.

"IT JUST FELL IN," HE SAID. "I HEARD A SWISHING SOUND AND SAW THE ARCHWAY CRUMBLING. IT MUST HAVE TAKEN 45 SECONDS FOR THE SPAN TO SETTLE INTO THE WATER. THE ARCH DROPPED FIRST ON THE EASTERN PIER AND TOPPLED UPSTREAM.

"I JUST DIDN'T BELIEVE IT AS I STOOD AND WATCHED. IT DIDN'T SEEM POSSIBLE. THE WHOLE BLASTED THING AND ALL WE HAD BEEN DOING FOR DAYS WAS GONE IN A FEW SECONDS.

"FUNNY THING. THERE WASN'T A SOUND FROM THE MEN ON SHORE WATCHING THE BRIDGE COLLAPSE. THERE WAS NO YELLING OR SHOUTING AND I REMEMBER THINKING HOW STRANGELY QUIET IT WAS.

"SOME MEN ON THE BRIDGE BETWEEN THE PIERS AND THE SHORES SAW WHAT WAS HAPPENING AND RAN TO SAFETY. THOSE ON THE CENTER SPAN DIDN'THAVE DIDN'T HAVE A CHANCE, AND WENT DOWN WITH THE BRIDGE."

GOODWIN DASHED INTO THE TOWN OF ERPEL AND GOT AMBULANCES GOING TO THE SCENE, AND THEN STARTED MOTOR LAUNCHES OUT INTO THE RIVER TO PICK UP THE SURVIVORS.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY ACROSS THE RHINE,MARCH 12-(DELAYED)-(AP)-TO MOST DOUGHBOYS AN MP IS JUST A GUY WHO MAKES TROUBLE FOR SOLDIERS WHO GO "OUT OF LIMITS" IN CAPTURED CITIES -- BUT ANYONE WHO HAS CROSSED THE RHINE AT REMAGEN KNOWS BETTER.

HERE THE MPS ARE MEN WHO STAND DAY AND NIGHT ON THE LUDENDORFF BRIDGE, SPLOTCHED WITH THE BLOOD OF COMRADES.

THEY STOOD THERE DIRECTING TRAFFIC AND KEEPING IT ROLLING ACROSS THE ONLY LIFELINE TO THE VALIANT TROOPS WHO GRABBED THE BRIDGE, WHICH WAS TO BECOME THE TARGET OF ONE OF THE MOST FURIOUS, SUSTAINED ARTILLERY BARRAGES OF THIS WAR.

THEY RAN OUT ON THE SPAN WHERE THE SHELLING WAS HOTTEST TO PULL WOUNDED IN OR TO DRAG THEM OUT OF THE WAY SO THAT OTHERS MIGHT RACE ON TO BATTLE IN THE HILLS TOWERING AT THE OTHER END.

MAJ.CLAIRE H.THURSTON OF BELFAST,ME., WHO WAS WITH THE MAINE STATE POLICE BEFORE THE WAR, SAT IN A LITTLE ONE-STORY SHACK NOT FAR FROM THE BRIDGE TODAY AND TOLD ME A STORY OF THOSE MPS.

"WE HAD TO KEEP TRAFFIC MOVING," HE SAID QUIETLY AND GRIMLY. "IT WAS THE MOST CONCENTRATED FIRE I'VE SEEN SINCE D-DAY."

"IT WAS THE HUMAN ELEMENT THAT MADE THE JOB TOUGH. MAYBE SOME FELLOWS HADN'T BEEN UNDER SUCH HEAVY FIRE BEFORE. - THEY'D FREEZE AT THE WHEELS OF THEIR VEHICLES. SOME WOULD TRY TO CRAWL UNDER JEEPS FOR COVER. WE'D HAVE TO GET THEM OUT AND GET THEM MOVING TO KEEP THE STUFF FROM PILING UP. IT WASN'T ONLY SHELLS --IT WAS BOMBS," HE SAID.

"ORDINARILY ON A JOB LIKE THIS -- WE HAD IT TOUGH AT ONE CROSSING OF THE MEUSE -- WE WORK THREE MEN IN EACH SPOT. THEY WORK THREE HOURS AND TAKE SIX OFF. WE HAVE HAD 20 PER CENT CASUALTIES IN OUR OUTFIT AND NOW WE ARE WORKING TWO MEN TO A POST. THEY ARE ON TWO HOURS AND OFF TWO. THEY'VE BEEN GOING AT IT NIGHT AND DAY.

"I'M RECOMMENDING A DECORATION FOR HUGHES AND HATFIELD," HE SAID. HE REFERRED TO PVT.I.C.HUGHES, 4919 MONROE STREET, HYATTSVILLE,MD., AND CORP.JOHN HATFIELD, 2301 SOUTH 12TH BOULEVARD, ST.LOUIS,MO.

"HUGHES WAS WORKING AT THE WEST END OF THE BRIDGE", THE MAJOR RESUMED. "TIME AND TIME AGAIN HE WENT OUT TO BRING IN THE WOUNDED. ONE NIGHT FOUR ENGINEERS WERE HURT BY A SHELL. HUGHES WAS DOG-TIRED ON HIS FEET AND BUSY WITH TRAFFIC. HE LOOKED AROUND AND ASKED FOR VOLUNTEERS TO GO GET THOSE BOYS OFF THE BRIDGE. THERE WEREN'T ANY TAKERS. HUGHES GOT IN A JEEP AND WENT OUT BY HIMSELF AND BROUGHT THEM IN.

"ANOTHER TIME, A SHELL HIT A TANK AND KNOCKED OUT THE DRIVER. HUGHES WENT OUT ALONE AGAIN AND PULLED THE FELLOW OUT -- BUT HE WAS DEAD.

"HATFIELD HAD ONE OF THE HOTTER JOBS. HE HAD TO STAND IN THE MIDDLE OF THE BRIDGE TO KEEP THINGS MOVING. HE STAYED OUT THERE THROUGH THICK AND THIN AND DID HIS JOB."

THE MAJOR SAID HE WAS RECOMMENDING OTHER HEROES FOR DECORATIONS.

B2

"THERE'S PVT.GERALD ROWAN -- HE'S FROM CHICAGO, BUT I DON'T HAVE HIS STREET ADDRESS -- WAS POSTED AT THE WEST END OF THE BRIDGE. HIS RELIEF WAS KILLED INSTANTLY -- BLOWN TO PIECES -- BUT ROWAN STUCK TO HIS POST ALL NIGHT.

MAR 19 1945

"THEN THERE'S MOYER AND POSEY. BRUCE MOYER, HE'S FROM DETROIT (8130 JEFFERSON STREET) AND ALVIN POSEY FROM COUSHATTA, LA., NEAR ALEXANDRIA. WE HAD TO HAVE COMMUNICATIONS BETWEEN BOTH ENDS OF THE BRIDGE. DOZENS OF TIMES DURING DAYLIGHT AND DARKNESS THE WIRE WAS CUT BY SHELL FRAGMENTS. EVERY TIME, ONE OF THEM WALKED OUT THERE AND SPLICED THE LINE SO COMMUNICATIONS COULD BE RESUMED. MOYER WAS OUT THERE FIXING IT ONCE WHEN A SHELL WENT OFF. HE WASN'T SCRATCHED BUT PIECES OF SHRAPNEL CUT THE WIRE AGAIN ON BOTH SIDES OF HIM. HE WAS LEFT HOLDING A PIECE OF WIRE ABOUT THREE FEET LONG."

THURSTON SHIFTED IN THE CHAIR WHERE HE SAT. HE TOLD HOW PVT. ROBERT ALLSOP, 15025 CLEVELAND AVE., ALLEN PARK,MICH., WAS STANDING 30 FEET FROM A BOMB WHICH MISSED THE BRIDGE BUT BLEW UP IN A TREMENDOUS SHOWER OF MUD AND ROCKS.

"HE WASN'T HURT -- JUST DAZED FROM THE CONCUSSION AND HIS NOSE BLED A LITTLE. BUT HE REALLY WAS OUT ON HIS FEET," THE MAJOR SAID.

"BUT HE WOULDN'T BE RELIEVED -- HE STAYED AND KEPT PITCHING."

"THERE IS DAMN LITTLE THAT IS FUNNY IN BUSINESS LIKE THIS," THURSTON SAID. "ESPECIALLY WHEN YOU FIND 17 DEAD SOLDIERS -- AMERICAN SOLDIERS -- LITTERING THE APPROACHES TO THE BRIDGE WHEN DAYLIGHT COMES. THE ONLY TIME I THINK ANY OF US SMILED WAS WHEN WE TROTTED GERMAN PRISONERS ACROSS THE BRIDGE.

"WE HAD COLLECTED THEM IN A TUNNEL ON THE EAST END OF THE BRIDGE. WE STARTED THEM ACROSS AND, BROTHER, YOU DIDN'T HAVE TO MAKE THOSE BOYS HURRY. THE GUARDS HAD A HARD TIME KEEPING UP WITH THEM."

THURSTON DID NOT SAY MUCH ABOUT HIMSELF. BUT THE MEN HE COMMANDS TOLD HOW HE MADE AS MANY AS 30 TRIPS A DAY ACROSS THE SPAN THAT SENDS YOUR HAIR ON END TO CROSS.

THE MPS STILL ARE KEEPING TROOPS AND VEHICLES MOVING ACROSS THE REMAGEN BRIDGE 24 HOURS A DAY, ALTHOUGH THE SHELLING LIGHTENED CONSIDERABLY TODAY.

OTHER MPS WHO WORKED ON THE BRIDGE AND ARE DUE FOR BRONZE STARS FOR DEEDS JUST AS HEROIC AS THOSE ABOVE INCLUDE CORP., GEORGE F. BLOCKLEY, 8830 205TH STREET, HOLLIS,LONG ISLAND,N.Y.; PVT.MARION SKINNER, ROUTE 1, BARTLESVILLE,OKLA.; PVT.EDMUNCH TRYBALA, 1318 S. 33D STREET., PHILADELPHIA,PA.; CPL.EMIL FAABRY, GROVE CITY,PA.; PVT.JOHN BERRYMAN, ALTO,TEX.; LT.ROBERT COSTELLO, 214 GARFIELD PLACE., BROOKLYN., N.Y., AND PVT.JOHN POWELL, 1371 W. 85TH ST., CLEVELAND, O.

TWO OTHERS WILL GET BRONZE STARS BUT THEIR NAMES CANNOT BE MENTIONED. THEIRS ARE POSTHUMOUS DECORATIONS AND WILL GO TO THEIR NEXT OF KIN.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY EAST OF THE RHINE, MARCH 16-(DELAYED5-(AP)-THREE ENGINEERS WHO SAVED THE REMAGEN BRIDGE WERE FOUND TODAY DEEP IN AN AIR RAID SHELTER UNDER A BUILDING IN THE SHADOW OF THE VITAL SPAN.

BIG SHELLS WERE DROPPING OUTSIDE.

"WE ARE JUST SWEATING OUT OUR NEXT JOB," WAS THE QUIET REMARK OF LT.HUGH MOTT, NASHVILLE, TENN. "IT LOOKS LIKE A LONG WAR."

MOTT AND HIS TWO SERGEANTS, EUGENE DORAN, 227 COLORADO STREET, MANHATTAN, KANS., AND JOHN REYNOLDS, LINCOLNTON,N.C., ARE THE THREE SOLDIERS WHO PUSHED HUNDREDS OF POUNDS OF TNT INTO THE RHINE MARCH 7 AFTER THEY HAULED IT OUT OF THE STONE PIERS AT EACH END OF THE REMAGEN BRIDGE.

"THE TWO BIGGEST CHARGES WERE WIRED TO GO OFF ELECTRICALLY," MOTT SAID. "THEY WERE HOOKED UP TO THE MAIN POWER LINE. IF THERE HAD BEEN JUICE IN THAT CABLE, THERE WOULDN'T HAVE BEEN ANY BRIDGE HERE TODAY.

"I DON'T UNDERSTAND ABOUT THE OTHER CHARGE. THE CAP HAD GONE OFF BUT THE TNT DIDN'T. THAT'S JUST ONE OF THOSE THINGS."

MOTT WAS RELUCTANT TO TAKE CREDIT FOR SAVING THE BRIDGE, INSISTING THAT IT GO TO THE TWO SERGEANTS.

"THEY WERE THERE ON THE BRIDGE ALL THE TIME," HE SAID. "I WAS RUNNING BACK AND FORTH."

"THERE WASN'T A LOT SAID AS WE WORKED ACROSS THE BRIDGE," HE CONTINUED. "WE JUST KEPT THROWING PLIERS BACK AND FORTH, CUTTING WIRES AS FAST AS WE COULD FIND THEM. WE WERE ABOUT 100 YARDS OUT WHEN IT SUDDENLY DAWNED ON US THAT WE HAD BETTER JERK EVERYTHING LOOSE FROM THE FAR END AND WORK IN FROM THERE."

THE SERGEANTS HAD BUT LITTLE MORE TO ADD.

"WE FELT FAIRLY SAFE AFTER WE PULLED THE SWITCH AND GOT THE CABLE TAKEN CARE OF," DORAN SAID. "THE CLOSEST SQUEAK I HAD WAS WHEN I JUMPED THROUGH THE FLOOR OF THE BRIDGE ABOUT 10 FEET TO THE SCAFFOLDING WHERE THE GERMANS HAD BEEN DOING REPAIR WORK. I THOUGHT IT WAS SOLID BUT ONLY FOUR ROPES WERE HOLDING IT UP. I WAS SWINGING AROUND THERE FOR A MINUTE AND ALMOST FELL IN THEIR DAMN RIVER."

REYNOLDS WAS JUST GLAD DORAN HAD BROUGHT THE PLIERS, SAYING,

B4

"HE ALWAYS THINKS OF EVERYTHING.. WE FIGGERED AT FIRST WE WERE JUST GOING TO MAKE A RECONNAISSANCE TO SEE IF TANKS COULD GET ACROSS THE BRIDGE."

MOTT'S WIFE LIVES AT 1403 WOODLAND ST., NASHVILLE,TENN. HE ATTENDED HIGH SCHOOL IN NASHVILLE AND MARION MILITARY INSTITUTE AT MARION, ALA., WHERE HE PLAYED FOOTBALL, BASEBALL AND WRESTLED. HE WAS EMPLOYED IN PRODUCTION CONTROL AT THE VULTEE AIRCRAFT PLANT IN NASHVILLE BEFORE THE WAR.

"I'M THINKING ABOUT GOING INTO BUSINESS WITH MY DAD AFTER THE WAR," HE SAID. "HE HAS A LUMBER MILL."

DORAN WAS A TRUCK DRIVER FOR BODNER & SON IN CHICAGO,ILL. REYNOLDS WORKED IN THE MASSAPOAG MILL AT LINCOLNTON WITH HIS FATHER AND WAS THE ONLY ONE OF THE THREE WITH PREVIOUS EXPERIENCE MESSING WITH DYNAMITE.

"I FOOLED WITH IT SOME WHEN I WAS IN A CCC CAMP IN THE WESTERN PART OF THE STATE," HE SAID.

THESE ARE THE THREE WHO SECURED THE BRIDGE BUT THE REST OF MOTT'S PLATOON WORKED THROUGH SHELLFIRE AND SNIPERS ALL NIGHT LONG AND INTO THE NEXT DAY BEFORE THEY WERE RELIEVED.

THEY INCLUDED:

ANTWERP, BELGIUM, MARCH 18-(AP)-SECTIONS OF THIS ANCIENT CITY HAVE SUFFERED FROM GERMAN V-WEAPONS AS BADLY IN SOME LOCALITIES AS LONDON'S MOST V-BOMBED BOROUGH.

A WALK THROUGH ANTWERP STREETS TODAY DISCLOSED MANY GREAT BLOTCHES WHERE WHAT ONCE WERE BUILDINGS NOW ARE ONLY HUGE PILES OF RUBBLE. FOR TWO OR THREE BLOCKS IN EACH DIRECTION FROM THESE SCENES OF DESTRUCTION, THERE ISN'T A SINGLE WINDOW INTACT. HUNDREDS OF BUILDINGS HAVE BEEN WRECKED.

WHILE THE LOCATION OF V-BOMB HITS CANNOT BE GIVEN NOW, NOR DAMAGE TO HISTORIC BUILDINGS SPECIFIED, IT IS PERMISSIBLE TO DISCLOSE THAT GERMANS FLUNG V-WEAPONS INTO THIS GREAT PORT CITY FOR FOUR MONTHS ENDING JAN. 31 OF THIS YEAR.

THE V-BOMB ATTACKS STARTED SOON AFTER THE CITY FELL LAST AUGUST TO ALLIED FORCES. THE GERMANS WERE ATTEMPTING TO DESTROY THE PORT'S USEFULNESS FOR THE ALLIED SUPPLY BUILDUP WHICH THEY KNEW WAS INEVITABLE.

DESPITE THE GERMAN EFFORTS, THE PORT WAS RESTORED.

WITH THE U.S. THIRD ARMY IN GERMANY, MARCH 18-(AP)-THE U.S. FOURTH ARMORED DIVISION HAS BROKEN ACROSS THE NAHE RIVER AND ENTERED BAD KREUZNACH, 21 MILES SOUTHWEST OF THE RHINE CITY OF MAINZ.

RUNNING WILD THROUGH THE ENEMY'S REAR DEFENSES, LT. GEN. GEORGE S. PATTON'S TANKS AND INFANTRY SEIZED OR CLEARED 20 MORE TOWNS AND ENTERED 11 OTHERS.

THE 90TH INFANTRY NORTH OF THE FOURTH'S TANK COLUMNS FOUGHT INTO THE RHINE CITY OF BINGEN, ONLY 17 MILES WEST OF MAINZ.

(THE BBC SAID THE THIRD ARMY NOW WAS WITHIN 15 MILES OF A JUNCTION WITH THE SEVENTH ARMY.)

FIGHTING FOR PATTON NOW ARE FOUR ARMORED AND NINE INFANTRY DIVISIONS. OF THESE, THE 94TH INFANTRY AND THE ELEVENTH ARMORED ALONE REPORTED TAKING 1,300 PRISONERS TODAY.

THUNDERBOLTS SWARMED OVER THE DIAMOND FROM DAWN TO DUSK, LASHING RELENTLESSLY ON THE FOLDING GERMANS HEADED EASTWARD AND SOUTH-EASTWARD FOR THE RHINE.

REPORTS FROM 57 MISSIONS SHOWED 544 SORTIES WITH 400 MOTOR TRANSPORTS, 35 ARMORED VEHICLES AND TANKS, 69 BOXCARS, 29 LOCOMOTIVES AND 184 HORSE-DRAWN VEHICLES WERE DESTROYED.

KAISER WILHELM AND FIELD MARSHAL HINDENBURG HAD THEIR GENERAL HEADQUARTERS AT BAD KREUZNACH IN WORLD WAR 1 LONGHBEFORE IT WAS MOVED TO SPA, BELGIUM.

ITS SALT SPRINGS ARE ESPECIALLY BENEFICIAL TO PEOPLE SUFFERING FROM THROAT TROUBLE. THE FOURTH ARMORED VISION WAS MOPPING UP THERE TONIGHT.

A MAP SHOWING PATTON'S STABS INTO THE SAAR-MOSELLE-RHINE DIAMOND TRIANGLE RESEMBLE A JIG-SAW PUZZLE SINCE THE FOURTH ARMORED'S BLAZING BREAKTHROUGH.

BINGEN, THE FAMOUS CITY WHERE THE RHINE RIVER BENDS NORTHEAST, WAS A MESSA FOR PRE-WAR TOURISTS BECAUSE OF THE SCENIC GRANDEUR OF THE AREA NEARBY AND THE LEGENDS AND ROMANTIC ASSOCIATIONS WHICH HAVE CENTERED AROUND THIS PART OF THE RHINE VALLEY.

SOUTH OFHNOBLENZ WHERE THE 87TH INFANTRY IS MOPPING UP THE LAST FEW BLOCKS OCCUPIED BY GERMANS, THE THIRD ARMY NOW CONTROLS 17 MILES OF THE WEST BANK OF THE RHINE FROM SOUTH OF BOPPARD TO SIX MILES NORTHWEST OF BINGEN.

THE RAINBOW'S ADVANCE CAME IN THE CENTER OF ITS HARDT MOUNTAIN SECTOR AND RESULTED IN THE CAPTURE OF THE GERMAN TOWN OF LUNDWIGSWINKEL, AT THE EDGE OF THE SIEGFRIED LINE, A MILE AND A HALF ACROSS THE REICH BORDER AND NINE MILES SOUTHEAST OF PIRMASENS.

JUST TO THE EAST OF THE RAINBOW'S LINE, THE 103RD DIVISION CARRIED ITS CACTUS PATCH INSIGNIA SIX MILES NORTHWARD FROM WOERTH TO WITHIN A HALF MILE OF THE BORDER WHILE THE 36TH DIVISION MOVED THREE MILES INTO SOULTZ, NINE MILES NORTHEAST OF HAGUENAU AND EIGHT MILES FROM THE BORDER.

BOTH THE 103RD AND THE 36TH MOVED FORWARD RAPIDLY AS ENEMY OPPOSITION WAS CONFINED ALMOST ENTIRELY TO LAND MINES, BLOWN BRIDGES AND TREES FELLED ACROSS HIGHWAYS.

A TWO-MILE NORTHWARD ADVANCE CARRIED THE THIRD INFANTRY DIVISION WELL INTO THE SIEGFRIED DEFENSES TWO MILES SOUTH OF ZWEIBRUECKEN WHILE THE 100TH DIVISION, IN A THREE MILE JUMP, ENTERED GERMANY SEVEN MILES NORTHEAST OF BITCHE.

IT WAS DISCLOSED THAT THE 71ST INFANTRY DIVISION, RECENTLY ARRIVED FROM THE UNITED STATES, HAD BEEN PUT INTO ACTION IN THE HARDT MOOUNTAI AREA.

UNDATED JAPANESE-U.S. RAID (450)

(SAN FRANCISCO, MARCH 18-(AP)-) AN AMERICAN CARRIER TASK FORCE UNLEASHED 1400 PLANES IN AN EIGHT-HOUR ATTACK ON THREE SOUTHWESTERN JAPANESE HOMELAND ISLANDS EARLY TODAY (SUNDAY) JAPAN TIME, TOKYO RADIO SAID WITHOUT CONFIRMATION FROM U.S. SOURCES.

THE TOKYO DOMESTIC BROADCAST, HEARD BY THE FCC, SAID THE YANK FLIERS CONCENTRATED ON AIRFIELDS, WITH KUMAMOTO AND "OTHER CITIES" ON KYUSHU ISLAND BEARING THE HEAVIEST PART OF THE ATTACK, BUT WITH ASSAULTS ALSO MADE AT MATSUYAMA, ON SHIKOKU ISLAND, AND ON WAKAYAMA PREFECTURE ON SOUTH HONSHU ISLAND.

THE RAID, IF IT TOOK PLACE AS REPORTED, WAS THE THIRD HEAVY ATTACK ON THE JAPANESE HOMELAND BY U.S. CARRIER PLANES IN RECENT WEEKS. VICE ADM. MARC A. MITSCHER'S TASK FORCE--THE WORLD'S LARGEST--STRUCK TOKYO FEB. 16-17 AND AGAIN FEB. 25-26, DESTROYING OR DAMAGING 892 ENEMY PLANES, SINKING OR DAMAGING 67 ENEMY VESSELS, INCLUDING AN ESCORT CARRIER, AND BLASTING THE OTA AIRCRAFT FACTORY.

A JAPANESE IMPERIAL HEADQUARTERS COMMUNIQUE SAID ONLY THAT THE RAID SUNDAY HIT THE ISLAND OF KYUSHU.

THE COMMUNIQUE CLAIMED THAT JAPANESE AIRCRAFT HIT THE U.S. TASK FORCE AT 5:30 A.M. (3:30 P.M. SATURDAY, U.S. EASTERN WAR TIME) OFF THE SOUTHEAST COAST OF KYUSHU AND SANK A BATTLESHIP OR CONVERTED CARRIER AND A CRUISER, AND SET A REGULAR CARRIER AFIRE.

A SUBSEQUENT TOKYO BROADCAST BROADENED THE CLAIM TO THREE U.S. WARSHIPS SUNK, INCLUDING TWO CARRIERS.

THE TOKYO BROADCAST SAID THE AMERICAN ATTACK STARTED AT 6 A.M. AND ENDED ABOUT 2 P.M., BUT THAT THE TASK FORCE REMAINED IN "ADJACENT WATERS" UNTIL 5 P.M., AND THAT "SUCCESSIVE RAIDS WILL BE CARRIED OUT."

THE ENEMY RADIO ALSO SPECULATED THAT SUPERFORTS MIGHT SUPPLEMENT THE CARRIER RAID, AS IN THE ATTACK ON TOKYO FEB. 25.

KYUSHU ISLAND, A LARGE LAND MASS AT THE SOUTHERN END OF THE MAIN JAPANESE CHAIN, IS 325 MILES NORTH OF OKINAWA, OFT-RAIDED ISLAND IN THE RYUKYU GROUP MIDWAY BETWEEN JAPAN AND FORMOSA.

FIVES TIMES SINCE LAST OCTOBER SUPERFORTS OF THE 20TH BOMBER COMMAND IN CHINA HAVE RAIDED KYUSHU, CENTERING THEIR ATTACKS MAINLY ON THE OMURA AIRCRAFT FACTORY AT OMURA, ON THE ISLAND'S EAST COAST.

IN THE PREVIOUS ATTACKS ON THE JAPANESE HOMELAND, MITSCHER'S HUGE TASK FORCE STRUCK TOKYO WITH MORE THAN 1,200 PLANES.

A34FX

IN THE FIRST OF THESE, FEB. 16-17, SUPPORTING THE MARINES' INVASION OF IWO ISLAND 750 MILES SOUTH OF TOKYO, THE NAVAL FLIERS DESTROYED OR DAMAGED 659 JAPANESE PLANES ON THE GROUND AND IN THE AIR, AND SANK OR DAMAGED 36 ENEMY VESSELS. THIS ATTACK COST 49 YANK PLANES AND BETWEEN 30 AND 40 PILOTS.

THE SECOND NAVAL AIR ASSAULT FEB. 25 STRUCK HEAVILY AT THE OTA AIRCRAFT FACTORY IN A TOKYO SUBURB BUT THE JAPANESE WERE MORE INCLINED TO FLY THEIR PLANES TO SAFETY THAN THEY WERE TO BATTLE.

ON FEB. 26 MITSCHER'S AIRMEN HIT HACHIJO ISLAND, 175 MILES SOUTH OF TOKYO.

IN THE FEB. 25-26 ATTACKS THE AMERICANS DESTROYED OR DAMAGED 233 ENEMY AIRCRAFT AND SANK OR DAMAGED 31 SHIPS, WITH A LOSS OF NINE PLANES AND FOUR PILOTS.

2 ARMIES SMASH WITHIN 10 MILES OF UNION IN SAAR

Patton's Tank Divisions Race 10 Miles, Approach Kaiserslautern.

SAARBRUECKEN PERILED

Third and Seventh Armies Squeeze Enemy Into Two Giant Nooses.

PARIS, Tuesday, March 20. —(AP) The U. S. Third and Seventh armies, splitting up an estimated 80,000 German troops west of the Rhine, trapped 2,000 of the enemy yesterday and were within 10 and 35 miles of fashioning two larger nooses in the toppling Saarland.

The gigantic American squeezing operations came as the Germans, apparently abandoning hope of rescuing any sizable number of their troops in the Moselle-Rhine-Saar triangle, blew up three bridges over the Rhine in the Mainz area. This left the Germans retreating in the toppling Saarland without an escape funnel across the Rhine from Mainz northward. The Americans had made a bid to paralyze any attempted German stand even east of the Rhine.

Four rampaging tank divisions of the U. S. Third army raced up to 15 miles through the Saarland and thrust within 14 miles of Kaiserslautern. One of these, the 10th armored, was 35 miles or less from a junction with the Seventh army at Kaiserlautern—a meeting which would form the biggest of the three traps.

2 Armies Near Junction

Other elements of the two armies, fighting toward each other 27 miles to the west, were within 10 miles of a junction which would seal off Saarbruecken, the basin's capital, and most of the rich industrial area's steel mills.

In that area Lt. Gen. Alexander M. Patch's men broke through the Siegfried Line east of Saarbruecken while the Third army's 80th infantry division captured the road center of St. Wendel and pushed on south to within three miles of Neunkirchen.

With fighting manpower more urgently needed at home, the German High command was reported giving up long-held positions in Holland north of Nijmegen between the Wall Rhine and Neder Rhine. Allied patrols reached the Neder Rhine and saw few Germans in their path.

Yanks Seize Scheibenhard

As the Seventh army moved into Germany on a 60-mile front, the French Fifth Armored division on the east flank invaded Germany near the Rhine and captured Scheibenhard, 10 miles west of another enemy escape hatch at Karlsruhe.

Other French units were fighting in nearby Lauterbourg, nine miles from Karlsruhe. This was the first time the French units had invaded Germany since their homeland fell to the Germans in 1940.

American troops a few miles to the northwest fought three miles into Germany north of captured Wissembourg, and battled German tanks in Ober Otterbach.

Lt. Gen. George S. Patton's flying columns, engulfing 30 more towns, were bringing blitzkrieg warfare home with a vengeance to the country which gave it birth.

The Third was traveling on the treads of enough fast-rolling tanks to fill seven complete armored divisions, while overhead fighter-bombers were pouring bombs, bullets and rockets on the enemy.

Kaiserslautern, a traffic city of 61,000 through which passes nearly all roads to the Rhine, was in the path of the Tenth, Eleventh and a new and as yet unidentified armored division.

The Third army closed the smallest of the three traps when it pocketed 2,000 Germans in an area 15 miles wide and 20 miles long. This occurred when the 11th armored division driving from the north and another armored division from the west joined eight miles southwest of Kirn in the northern portion of the battle area.

Planes Attack Nazis

Hundreds of Germans were driven to their death in a rain of steel from thousands of U. S. warplanes flailing every avenue of retreat. The U. S. Ninth air force alone flew 2,374 bomber and fighter-bomber sorties destroying or damaging 4,292 vehicles of all types including railroad rolling stock, attacking 34 railyards and five bridges and cutting railroads and highways at 157 places.

The Germans scattered and abandoned guns and tanks all along their line of flight. The 26th infantry division, advancing on a five-mile front southeast of Merzig in the western part of the Saar, captured a German field artillery battalion complete with all its men and equipment.

Already driven more than half the Saarland and Palatinate—their last holdings west of the Rhine—and routed from their final foothold in northeastern France by the U. S. Seventh army, the Germans were faced with even greater peril to their vaunted Rhine line farther north.

The U. S. First army east of the Rhine struck northward more than two miles, reached the plains leading to the Ruhr at two points, and enlarged its bridgehead to 18 miles wide and eight miles deep.

Opposite the Ruhr itself the U. S. Ninth army cleared the way for a possible Rhine crossing by ordering German civilians evacuated from the west bank cities of Uerdingen, Homberg, Ossenberg, Orsoy and Rheinhausen.

Lieut. Gen. George S. Patton's 3d Army threatened the great Rhine Valley cities of Mainz, Frankfurt on the Main, Weisbaden, Ludwigshafen and Mannheim.

His assault troops crashed into St. Wendel, closing all but the eastern end of a death box 25 miles long and 15 miles wide along the whole Saar line.

From the south, Lieut. Gen. Alexander M. Patch's 7th Army jabbed through the Siegfried Line east of Saarbrucken and pushed into Wissembourg and the French corner town of Lauterbourg, a bare 9 miles from Karlsruhe.

27 U.S. Divisions In Action

Between them, Patton and Patch were using at least 27 divisions of about 380,000 troops.

North of the two powerful assault armies, the 1st Army fought slowly to expand its 15-by-8-mile east Rhine bridgehead beyond the collapsed but repairable Ludendorff Bridge at Remagen.

Lieut. Gen. Courtney H. Hodges' men were within 17 miles of the Ruhr and hard upon the edge of flat tank country leading to that greatest of European industrial centers.

The enemy was making what might be his supreme effort to block a drive from the east Rhine salient toward Berlin, hurling reinforcements into the man-to-man combat. The Americans slugged out gains of a few hundred yards which carried them into the towns of Orscheid and Ober Orscheid across the Ruhr-Frankfurt superhighway.

Retreating Nazis Bombed

For the second day in a row, Allied pilots had good weather and loosed bombs, rockets and machine-gun bullets in torrents upon the road-clogged Nazis retreating from the last half of the Saarland and palatinate.

Civilian refugees clogged the military escape routes, hampering the retreat. The refugees huuried eastward under tablecloth banners of white.

Planes took off in the gray dawn. By noon, well over 2,000 sorties had been flown and squadrons were roaring off hour after hour. Pilots said targets were so plentiful along the jammed roads east of St. Wendel and Bad Kreuznach—von Hindenburg's and Marshal Foch's headquarters during and after the last war—that they used up their ammunition in a few minutes and sped back for more.

The Palatinate traffic center of Kaiserslautern was a magnet for Allied steel and fire from aloft as the 3d and 7th armies closed upon it from about equal distances north and south.

Foe In Saar Disorganized

In the Saarland, west of the Palatinate—the one twelfth of Bavaria west of the Rhine—there was no escape for the Germans. The enemy in the Saar appeared to be completely disorganized.

The Germans fought hard in the Siegfried Line sections that still held out. But even this stand was being menaced increasingly from the rear. The days of the German hold on the Saar, which produced six per cent of the enemy's coal and a tenth of her iron and steel, were numbered.

Coblenz was finally cleared.

Planes Lash Germans; Escape Hatch But 15 Miles Wide

Paris, March 19 (AP)—An estimated 80,000 Germans ran for the Rhine today in desperate daylight retreat under perfect strafing weather that turned the northern half of the Bavarian Palatinate into a slaughter ground and the Saarland into a death trap.

Swift tank and infantry columns of the 3d and 7th armies surged within 15 miles of each other between St. Wendel and the Zweibruecken areas of the Saarland and within 42 miles of a junction farther east in the Palatinate.

Tanks shot within 14 miles of Mainz on the bend of the Rhine.

This was the last débâcle west of the Rhine and the German 1st and 7th armies were losing terrific numbers of men and machines in their rout.

Big Cities Imperiled

2,000 Germans Already Caught In Patton's Saar Trap

Carrier Planes Switch To Kobe In Second Day Of Raids

Counterattack Smashed

The 4th Armored Division of the 3d Army had broken across the Nahe River toward the west-bank city of Mainz, smashed a furious counterattack and was still running high, wide and handsome.

The division captured Sprendlingen and moved closest to Mainz, and Patton's 10th Armored Division sprinted toward Kaiserslautern, a key German base in the Palatinate, from the northwest.

The 7th Army, moving more slowly but up to 6 miles a day through Siegfried Line fortifications between besieged Saarbruecken and the Rhine, was also approaching Kaiserslautern.

Trap Within A Trap

The 3d Army captured Dillingen and its great steel mill and entered St. Wendel, only 15 miles from 7th Army troops fighting in the Zweibruecken area. A meeting of the armies would trap all Germans in the Saarbruecken area and along the Saar River where virtually all the Saar steel mills are located.

The 14th Armored Division's dashes of up to 8 miles were swiftly clearing the last bits of eastern France. Altenstadt, near Wissembourg, was also entered. The entry into Lauterbourg was made in a dash down the Rhine clearing 35 miles of its west bank north of Strausbourg.

New Entries Into Reich

Between Lauterbourg and Saarbruecken, the 7th Army entered Germany at several new points.

The 7th Army also recaptured Bottenbach, four miles west of the major Palatinate base of Pirmasens.

The German retreat was so confused and disorderly that tanks, self-propelled guns and artillery were being abandoned.

The American 1st Army, firmly ensconsed east of the Rhine beyond Remagen, moved north, south and east in a bridgehead that supreme headquarters said was 15 miles long and 8 wide. Pontoon bridges across the Rhine powered this attack, which was already within small-arms range of the Rhine plain east of Bonn and Bad Godesberg leading to the Ruhr.

More Of West Bank Taken

Patton's army won another 30 miles of the Rhine's west bank from Coblenz to Bingen, leaving the Germans only about 110 miles of that bank from Bingen to north of Strasbourg. The Nazis held another 50-mile stretch from Nijmegen to the North Sea. A report from Marshal Montgomery's headquarters in the north, however, said:

"The Germans seemingly are clearing out of the long-held area north of Nijmegen. Our p[illegible] pushed forward north of [illegible] and into the vicinity of Randwyk on the south side of the upper Rhine without encountering many Germans."

Towns by the score and cities here and there fell to the 3d Army closing in from the north—its pace virtually decided by the will of divisional commanders rather than the bewildered Nazis.

Civilians "Quite Hostile"

The 4th Armored finally cleared out Bad Kreuznach. Civilians there were reported "quite hostile." The 90th Infantry completed the clean-up of Bingen.

The 87th Division completed overnight the mopup of Coblenz. The Rhine villages of Niedespay and Oberspay, just northeast of captured Boppard, were also taken.

Oberwesel on the Rhine, 10 miles southeast of Boppard, was one of the many conquests of the 4th Armored Division. These troops also took Soberheim, 25 miles north of Kaiserslautern, and made further advances which were "blacked out."

Over 1,400 vehicles were destroyed or damaged by planes alone yesterday, along with as many railroad cars, as the Germans tried to save what they could.

The 3d Army's spectacular gains were being felt on the 7th Army's tougher front, where the Germans were beginning to realize the hopelessness of their position. Patch's nine or more attacking divisions engaged the foe too hotly to allow him to break for safety.

7th Army's Front

The 7th Army was on German soil on a front of almost 25 miles east of Saarbruecken and had driven as much as 7½ miles into the Siegfried defenses.

The 3d Army's swift chopping of the escape routes and the pressure of the 7th Army, which made disengagement impossible, gave the German 1st and 7th armies virtually no chance of successful withdrawal.

Raid Nazi Generals' Offices

British Attack Headquarters of Blaskowitz and Two Others

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, Allied Expeditionary Force, Paris, March 19 (AP).—The British 2d Tactical Air Force struck the headquarters of three German generals with bombs and rockets yesterday.

A farmhouse used by Colonel General Johannes Blaskowitz, commander of the Northern German Army Group on the Western front, was subjected to a low-flying attack. The place is northeast of Arnhem, Holland. The headquarters of General Frederick Christiansen, German commander in the Netherlands, and those of Colonel General Kurt Student, German paratroop commander, also were left blazing.

Receives Medal of Honor

West Virginia Sergeant Killed 25, Captured 20 Nazis at Morhange

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, Allied Expeditionary Force, Paris, March 19 (AP).—Staff Sergeant Junior J. Spurrier, of Bluefield, W. Va., received the Congressional Medal of Honor today for destroying single-handed three machine-gun nests, and two fortified strongpoints, and killing twenty-five Germans and capturing twenty others last November in the 35th Infantry Division's advance on Morhange.

Sergeant Spurrier now wears his country's two highest military decorations. He received the Distinguished Service Cross for outstanding heroism in earlier engagements.

Nazis Send 89 French Past Lines Blindfolded

Nantes, France, March 19 (AP)—The besieged German garrison at St. Nazaire released 72 French civilian prisoners today, including seventeen women, by sending them blindfolded into no-man's land and then forcing them to run nearly two miles to safety under the constant threat of being shot unwittingly by Allied troops.

The prisoners were forcibly ejected into a section between the German and Allied lines. While they were being sent out to seek haven at their own risk, negotiations for official evacuation were in progress.

The released persons said they originally were arrested for hostility to German authorities, but were released to relieve the Nazis of the burden of feeding them. The food situation within the besieged area is becoming more stringent.

'Nuts' McAuliffe Takes Pillbox Inadvertently

With 103d Infantry Division in Germany, March 19 (AP)—The first Siegfried Line pillbox taken by the 103d Infantry Division fell to Maj. Gen. Anthony C. McAuliffe today, and the Germans at Bastogne could not have been more surprised by his famous "Nuts" reply than he was by his unexpected feat.

The first battalion of the 411th Infantry Regiment edged into Westwall defenses 2 miles inside Germany after fighter-bombers slammed home 500-pound bombs on the nearest bunkers.

The general, with the battalion commander, Major Robin C. Crouch, of Tracy City, Tenn., had walked to within 40 feet of the apparently deserted pillbox when a white flag suddenly was thrust from the firing port.

Then fourteen Germans streamed out and surrendered to McAuliffe, Crouch, the general's aide; Captain Ted Sterret, of Belfast, Maine, and Sergeant Everett L. O'Laughlin, of Ottumwa, Iowa, reconnaissance escort for the divisional commander.

9TH IS MOVING 100,000 NAZIS

Clears Rhine Areas Of Civilians For Impending Operations

Uerdingen, Germany, March 19 (AP)—German civilians left their homes here and elsewhere along the front today and made room for Lieut. Gen. William H. Simpson's 9th Army to cross the Rhine.

They have been streaming out of this Rhine River city since yesterday morning, taking their immediate personal effects along on wagons, bicycles, pushcarts, overflowing baby carriages and on their backs.

Places cleared on order of the American Army included Homberg, Ossenberg, Orsoy, Rheinhausen and many other smaller places, bringing about the total evacuation of more than 100,000 persons on this front alone.

Twofold Reason

An American colonel in charge of troops here said the reason for the evacuation was twofold:

1. To clear the decks for action when the time comes.
2. For the safety of these civilians who already have been hit "pretty hard by incoming German artillery."

German mortar and artillery fire was concentrated yesterday on the remaining two spans of the Adolf Hitler bridge here which the Germans knocked out two weeks ago under the noses of the 2d Armored Division's tanks.

One Nazi plane laid a stick of bombs in the center of the town last night. Several other enemy craft were chased away by Thunderbolts and anti-aircraft fire.

The evacuees' appearance of happiness seemed to come from a sense of relief that the war was passing them by and bombs and shells no longer would crack their ears.

Bicycles and babyless baby carriages predominated. One tractor pulled four trailers and thousands of persons just put packs on their backs and walked.

This was not the evacuation of peasants but of well-fed and well-clothed German industrial families and factory workers. The men wore tailored suits and the women high-crowned Paris hats.

In Krefeld the tail end of an evacuation column ran into a patrol of an American infantry regiment decked out for the first time in months in clean olive drab. The German adults stood in respectful silence as Old Glory snapped in the spring breeze.

Little German children trailed along after the American soldiers just like kids back home would have done.

REMAGEN BRIDGE TO BE FIXED SOON

With the Americans Across the Rhine, March 19 (A. P.).—The Ludendorff Bridge, whose central span collapsed Saturday, can be repaired and it probably will be in operation again soon.

That was the view expressed by Army officials, who declared that loss of the structure, even temporarily, would not affect the First Army's ability to hold its bridgehead east of the Rhine.

[The American broadcasting station in Europe, in a dispatch recorded by CBS, said the bridge has been "almost completely repaired." There was no confirmation from Allied headquarters.]

The collapse was blamed on a weakened girder that had been damaged by an enemy demolition charge before the Americans captured the 1,200-foot railroad span on March 7. Failure to replace or repair the damaged girder in time was the real reason for the collapse, but until a full investigation already under way is completed there was some reluctance to place any responsibility.

About 200 engineers working on the bridge were plunged into the Rhine seventy feet below when the span gave way. Many were rescued. There was no official tally of the dead and injured.

Censorship permitted disclosure of the collapse yesterday at about the same time the German High Command announced that four German officers had been executed for cowardice or negligence in permitting the bridge to be seized intact.

More Germans Thrown In At Bridgehead

By Don Whitehead

With U.S. 1st Army East of the Rhine, March 19 (AP)—The battle of the bridgehead has developed virtually into man-for-man combat. The enemy has thrown in reinforcements to whittle down initial superiority in numbers gained by the 1st Army in its surprise crossing of the Rhine.

Military textbooks say attacking forces should enjoy a three-to-one superiority over enemy defenders, but Lieut. Gen. Courtney Hodges's men slugging their way forward through rough terrain have no such advantage in manpower.

"Hardest Since Normandy"

"We are having the hardest and slowest going since the fighting through the hedgerows in Normandy," an officer of the 9th Infantry Division said today. "When a doughboy advances 500 yards on the map it means he actually fought his way forward 1,500 yards up and down these hills."

After the Rhine crossing the bridgehead forces had to fight for elbow room in which to maneuver. They just now are reaching that stage, with the bridgehead 8 miles in depth.

The tough core of German resistance has been in the east, where the enemy concentrated tanks and self-propelled weapons to prevent the Americans from breaking out toward Berlin.

Temporary Loss Of Bridge

Temporary loss of the Ludendorff Bridge at Remagen is a blow to the 1st Army, and no one attempts to minimize it.

To say the bridge has "served its purpose" would not be quite accurate, for there are many future uses for it. It can be used for rail traffic to carry supplies and for the speedy evacuation of the wounded. Pontoon bridges, meanwhile, are being used.

The bridge probably will be in operation again soon, United States Army officials say.

Nearly Repaired, Is Report

[The American broadcasting station in Europe, in a dispatch recorded by CBS, said the bridge has been "almost completely repaired." There was no confirmation from Allied headquarters.]

Progress was slow on the bridgehead during the last 24 hours. On the north, troops of the 78th Infantry Division reached the outskirts of Oberdollendorf, opposite the resort town of Bad Godesberg, one of Hitler's favorite watering places.

The Germans tried to stop the northward thrust aimed at Ninnenburg by throwing in two small counterattacks of tank-supported infantry, but they were beaten back. To the east the Yanks cleared out the towns of Windhagen and Hohn and reached high ground overlooking Birken, on the eastern side of the Cologne-Frankfurt auto highway.

Doughboys Seize Bad Kreuznach, Resort Town Where Kaiser Lived

BAD KREUZNACH, Germany, March 19 — (AP) The Germans have blown up five bridges in the Mainz area leaving a beaten Nazi force originally estimated at 80,000 men without an escape funnel across the Rhine tonight from Mainz northward.

U. S. Third army armor captured Bad Kreuznach, a resort town of 27,000 population formerly frequented by Kaiser Wilhelm, and smashed on toward Mainz 20 miles away. The Americans also have bottled up an estimated 2,000 Germans in a pocket 15 miles wide from east to west and 20 miles long from north to southwest of the Rhine.

Apparently abandoning hope of rescuing any sizeable number of their comrades in the Moselle-Rhine-Saar triangle, the Germans blew up a four-lane highway and trolley bridge, a railroad span and a pontoon bridge in the Mainz area.

The pocketing of the 2,000 Germans came when the U. S. 11th armored division driving from the north and another armored division spearing from the west joined eight miles southwest of Kirn.

This operation was separate from the drive by the Fourth Armored division which cut additional thousands of Germans to pieces farther to the northeast. The Fourth Armored advanced from its Moselle river bridgehead south of Coblenz to the Mainz area.

After reaching the Bad Kreuznach area without trouble the Fourth Armored division began encountering heavy resistance from Germans washing over into its sector from the path of the 11th Armored division to the west and the 10th and a new armored division pushing east and northeast.

At least a half dozen battles were raging today in the confused fighting south and southwest of Bad Kreuznach. The Fourth Armored and attached units from the Fifth and 90th infantry divisions were slugging it out against a conglomeration of enemy units representing virtually every branch of the German army.

As usual the Fourth's famed partnership of Abrams and Cohen—Lt. Col. Creighton Abrams and Lt. Col. Harold Cohen, the latter just promoted—were having a field day.

At one time this morning the town in which Abrams had his command post was surrounded by islands of fighting. From the downstairs window of his command post a group of nearly a hundred Germans could be seen yesterday afternoon charging over the crest of a hill above the town on the east.

The tanks were all busy at the time so a lone anti-aircraft gunner, deflectig his four 50-calibre machine-guns, went to work and disposed of all the Germans. In one tank battle in this area the Americans destroyed 18 German tanks and self-propelled guns out of a force of 30.

The side of the same hill over which the Germans made Sunday's reckless and costly charge was filled this morning with scores of exhausted Nazis who were captured by American tank crews and infantrymen.

American tanks went into Bad Kreuznach Saturday and the first one was knocked out by a bazooka rocket fired by a German in civilian clothes. Before hitting the tank and exploding the rocket beheaded a lieutenant who was one of the most daring men in Fourth Armored division. The lieutenant's comrades quickly killed the bazooka-firing German.

After the tanks withdrew a small force from Company B of the 10th Armored infantry, under Capt. Adrien Tessier of Providence, R. I., moved in to clean up but the sniping persisted and the infantrymen holed up in the center of the bomb-flattened town Saturday night.

This small force, which the later prisoner count disclosed was greatly outnumbered by the German snipers, held its position by starting big fires in every street leading into the town square in order to silhouette any German infiltration attempts.

Despite the sniping which continued throughout Sunday a convoy of ambulances moved in and removed 50 wounded Americans from a hospital where they had been left by the Germans in the care of a group of Polish nurses.

At Bad Kreuznach the Kaiser and Field Marshal Paul von Hindenburg had the last general headquarters on German soil in the last war before taking off for Spa. Among the few undamaged buildings in the city is the Kaiser's brownstone chateau overlooking the river.

The urban, well-fed residents who remained in Bad Kreuznach had hatred in their eyes for the Americans—an attitude contrasting with that found in rural places, where the people for the most part are old or war-cripples.

Army Mingles Negroes With Whites at Front

Mixed Companies Formed in 1st and 7th Armies, in Break With Old Policy

By The Associated Press

PARIS, March 19.—Negro and white troops are now fighting shoulder to shoulder in the same outfits in both the 1st and 7th Armies, marking a break in the United States Army's traditional policy of segregation, "Stars and Stripes" reported today from the 1st Army front.

Negro platoons have been assigned to white companies of infantry divisions in both armies in response to repeated requests from the Negroes themselves for a chance to fight for their country as well as work for it, the Army newspaper reported.

They were chosen from thousands who answered a special appeal Dec. 26 from the communications zone commander, Lieutenant General John C. H. Lee, to service troops in his command.

In one engineer company, 171 out of 186 volunteered to fight. Four first sergeants accepted a reduction to privates to qualify for infantry training, the paper reported.

In one quartermaster laundry company, 100 out of 260 volunteered for the front line, but only thirty-six were allowed to go.

About 2,500 in all were accepted, "Stars and Stripes" reported, and two platoons were attached to the company which crossed the Roer and helped take Dueren.

"I came into the Army to fight, not to labor," Private First Class George Freeman Dunning told "Stars and Stripes."

"We are all in this thing together now, white and Negro Americans in the same companies," said Private First Class Leroy W. Kemp, of Atlantic City, N. J. "That's the way it should be. . . .We've been giving a lot of sweat. Now I think we'll mix some blood with it."

KURE NAVAL BASE ALSO IS TARGET

Nimitz Communique Notes Fleet Move Northward From Kyushu

Guam, Tuesday, March 20 (AP)—Swarms of carrier planes, firing rockets and bombs, dived Monday on Japan's leading shipbuilding city of Kobe, its major naval base of Kure and installations around its inland sea, after more than 300 Superfortresses rained 2,500 tons of incendiary bombs on Nagoya..

The carrier planes, operating from a task force of the United States 5th Fleet, which has been off Japan for two days, thus shifted their punching power northward to Nippon's heart on Honshu Island from the scene of Sunday's attack on industrial Kyushu Island.

Japs Report Third Day's Raid

[Tokyo radio said the carrier attacks went into their third straight day Tuesday. If confirmed, this would be the longest carrier raid yet made on Japan. The broadcast was intercepted in San Francisco by NBC monitors.]

The Monday carrier attack, announced today without elaboration by Fleet Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, fell upon highly congested centers devoted to Japan's power to wage war at sea.

The fact the task force was not only able to remain off Japan but also to send its planes closer to Tokyo appeared to repudiate enemy broadcasts that it was dealt a crippling blow the first day by Nipponese planes.

Enemy broadcasts placed the strength of the carrier raiders at 1,400 planes.

Radio silence precluded official reports on damage to the enemy or any losses to the Americans.

Kobe Still Smoldering

In hitting Kobe, the carrier planes pounced on Japan's largest shipbuilding city and port while it still was smoldering from the 2,500-ton incendiary attack made Saturday by the B-29's.

Kobe has about the same population density as Brooklyn—over 30,000 per square mile. In its center, the population exceeds 100,000 per square mile. Its total population is nearly 1,000,000.

Kure, Japan's most important naval base, is situated on a triangular plain hemmed by hills. Its population density also is great, the total being over 276,000. All Kure's industry is linked with naval base activities. It has a superbly protected anchorage and harbor front on the inland sea.

No Details Given

The communique supplied no details on results accomplished by the carrier's Hellcats, Helldivers and Avengers either Sunday or Monday.

The inland sea of Japan is a lifeblood artery through which Nippon moves vital supplies from Korea, Manchuria and China to the homeland.

Kure, Japan's most important naval base, is 200 miles west of Osaka, another city hard hit by the Superforts.

Today's communique reported a continuing search for enemy snipers on conquered Iwo and air raids on the Bonins, the Kuriles, the western Carolines, the Palaus and the Marshalls.

The one-two punches of the carrier planes and the Marianas-based B-29s came at a time when Tokyo radio broadcasts made it clear so many Japanese are fleeing their cities that evacuation problems have gotten out of hand.

A Tokyo broadcast Monday appealed to authorities in Shizucka prefecture southwest of Tokyo to "promptly supply food to these air raid damage victims even though they may not possess air raid damage victim certificates but as long as they are recognized as people falling in this category."

The broadcast, a domestic one, also gave instructions for helping "those who have alighted from trains" in finding lodging and food.

Radio silence precluded official reports on damage to the enemy or any losses to the Americans.

However, the fact the carriers were spreading the attack on the second day closer to the heart of Japan seemed to give the lie to Tokyo radio claims that five American warships have been sunk, including at least one carrier.

Hit Production Center

The carrier planes going in low at Kobe struck one of Japan's most congested cities. It is an iron and steel center, a producer of ordnance and has a large group of dockyards and shipbuilding facilities.

The Kobe-Osaka-Kyoto triangle is the major center of the enemy's aircraft industry.

A communique issued at U. S. Pacific fleet headquarters here confirmed the Sunday raid on Kyushu air fields by "a strong force of carrier aircraft."

Vice Adm. Mark A. Mitscher's carrier task force — which raided the Tokyo-Yokohama areas Feb. 16-17 and again Feb. 25-26—was undoubtedly still ranging south of Japan.

The two-day pattern of the previous attacks on Nippon's homeland tended to support the Tokyo claim the raiders were back today. There was no confirmation from fleet headquarters.

Some 300 of the Marianas-based Superfortresses, the largest fleet yet in a ten-day series of massive incendiary blows at Japan's industrial heart, participated in the new Nagoya raid.

The big bombers, which just a week ago started the incendiary destruction of Japan's third largest city and greatest aircraft production center, came back to Nagoya before dawn Monday (Tokyo time).

They again flew at low levels of around 5,000 feet and a communique issued by the 20th air force in Washington said results were "described as ranging from good to excellent." The communique said none of the B-29s was lost to enemy action.

Returning crews reported at 21st bomber command headquarters here that immense white explosions shot up from Nagoya as the flame's spread. The fires were adding more square miles of ruin to the two-square miles destroyed in the previous raid, March 12.

5,000 Tons Hit Japs In Fleet, B-29 Raids

Washington, March 19 (AP)—United States submarines have added fifteen more Japanese vessels, including five warships, to their bag of enemy shipping in the Pacific.

The Navy said today the latest report from the American undersea fleet accounted for the sinking of three Japanese destroyers, two escort vessels and ten merchant ships.

The new report brings the total of enemy ships sunk by American submarines to 1,072.

Guam, March 19 (AP)—Hundreds of carrier planes and probably 350 Superforts — flying an estimated 3,000-plus sorties—bombed Japan with more than 5,000 tons of incendiaries and high explosives Sunday and Monday.

The giant B-29's, paying a predawn return visit to Nagoya to finish up the destruction started just one week ago, loosed 2,500 or more tons of incendiaries on Japan's principal airplane manufacturing center.

"We burned hell out of Nagoya," reported Col. Carl R. Storrie, of Denton, Texas, who spent 30 minutes over the highly important industrial city of 1,500,000.

Explosions Reported

Pin-points of fire dotted precisely over Nagoya were "spreading and merging into a solid mass of flame that pretty well covered the whole target area" pilots said. Several reported great explosions.

[In Washington, a 20th Air Force headquarters communiqué described the results as ranging from good to excellent. Opposition from Jap fighter planes was "meager and ineffective," the communiqué said, although anti-aircraft fire was heavier than in the attack on Nagoya eight days ago. None of the B-29's was lost as the result of enemy action.]

An imperial Japanese communiqué admitted the Superforts caused "considerable damage" and said the planes were over the city three hours. It did not claim that fires had been brought under control. Earlier Domei, the Japanese news agency, had said fires were controlled after 5½ hours. Domei claimed four B-29's were shot down and 80 others damaged.

Hachijo Raid Reported

Another Domei dispatch reported "a number of medium-sized planes" bombed Hachijo Island, in the Izu group, 200 miles south of Tokyo, Sunday. Wording of the report indicated the raid was made by medium bombers based on Iwo Jima.

Fleet Admiral Chester W. Nimitz reported very tersely in a communiqué that a large carrier task force bombed Kyushu, southernmost of the empire's home islands, Sunday. He said air bases and facilities were the targets.

Radio Tokyo, however, said 1,400 carrier planes struck Kyushu both Sunday and Monday. Domei reported that Shikoku Island, immediately northeast of Kyushu, and southern Honshu also were bombed.

Mitscher Thought In Charge

Vice Admiral Marc A. Mitscher, commander of the world's greatest carrier force which has blasted the Pacific enemy's planes, ships and ground installations from Rabaul to Tokyo itself, presumably commanded the seaborne task force.

The carrier raids, requiring the fleet to remain overnight within 200 or 250 miles of the Japanese homeland, constituted the third challenge in five weeks to the Japanese Fleet to come out for battle.

Over-all command of the carrier operation presumably is vested in Admiral Raymond A. Spruance, who commanded the 5th Fleet in the June battle of the Philippines.

Site Of Steel Works

This was the first carrier strike of the war on Kyushu, site of the huge Yawata steel works and other vital plants, and the third on the Japanese homeland in little more than a month.

Carrier planes probably equaled or exceeded the 2,500-ton bomb load of the B-29's. They struck Kyushu in wave after wave for eight hours Sunday and renewed the attack for at least 5½ hours today.

Tokyo Radio claimed pilots of the Japanese Kamikaze (suicide) special attack corps sank five of Mitscher's ships—one battleship one carrier, one cruiser or carrier and two destroyers—and damaged nine others. The enemy said seven of the damaged ships were carriers two unidentified.

A Japanese imperial communiqué later claimed without confirmation that five United States warships were sunk, one damaged and 46 carrier planes shot down.

Nagoya Fires Spread

It is still too early to assess damage wrought upon Nagoya today, but 21st Bomber headquarters said fires spread over several square miles.

Simultaneously headquarters reported that reconnaissance photographs disclosed far greater damage inflicted on Osaka last Wednesday and on Kobe Saturday by other 300-plane, 2,000-plus ton bombings than earlier announced.

Official figures on the damage at Kobe—Japan's sixth largest city and important shipbuilding and industrial center—increased the destroyed area from 52,248,000 square feet to 66,366,000—or from 1.9 to 2.4 square miles.

Devastation at Osaka covered 232,612,000 square feet, an upward revision from 8.1 to 8.34 square miles. Full extent of damage at Kobe, however, is not known; smoke still prevents complete photographic coverage.

Largest Superfort Force

Today's second mission over Nagoya was carried out by the largest force of B-29's yet sent against Japan. The raid was the fifth in ten days against Japan's four chief industrial centers. The series began with 300 Superforts dropping 2,300 tons of bombs on Tokyo, March 10, and was followed with 2,000 tons on Nagoya, 2,000 on Osaka, 2,500 on Kolbe and 2,500 more on Nagoya.

Ability of the 21st Bomber Command not only to conduct five such huge incendiary attacks against Honshu in ten days, but actually to step up the size of the raiding force, underscored the tremendous air power built up on former Japanese bases in the Marianas, about 1,600 miles south of Japan.

Iwo Capture Aided

It is a maintenance triumph for hard-working ground crews. Capture of Iwo Jima also contributed to the success of the incendiary raids. A total of 51 B-29's have landed on Iwo's airfields because their gas ran low or because they developed mechanical trouble.

There was little doubt that the carrier force which attacked Kyushu, Shikoku and southern Honshu was at least as powerful as the more than 1,200 planes which swept the Tokyo-Yokohama area February 16-17 and again February 25-26. In those assaults, 892 Japanese planes were destroyed or damaged, 67 ships were put out of action and many factories were blasted.

Radio Tokyo, never reliable regarding engagements but usually supplying good tips as to what to expect, reported furious aerial engagements.

Fires At Nagoya Described By Baltimorean

Twenty-first Bomber Command Headquarters, March 19 (AP)—Great white explosions lighted the sky over Nagoya while hundreds of pinpoints of incendiary-started fires merged into massive sheets of red flames, returning B-29 flyers reported today.

Approximately 350 Superfortresses seared the industrial city for the largest B-29 attack yet to hit the Japanese homeland.

One of nearly 4,000 men over the target, Lieut. John J. Handwerker, of Memphis, Tenn., a plane commander, reported, "It was a good fire and there were some beautiful explosions."

"A Lotta Fire"

Sergt. Raymond Maguire, of Providence, R.I., a radioman who had been on the preceding Tokyo and Osaka raids, said, "I think I saw more fire here than on the other raids. Boy, I'm telling you, there was a lotta fire!"

Handwerker reported that "the area to the right, where planes had hi' ahead of us, was a solid mass of flame."

Sergt. Joe Kordell, of 3439 Hudson street, Baltimore, said the fires seemed "to be building up swiftly" into a solid mass, pretty well covering the whole target area.

The flight was "slightly rougher for us this time," said Lieut. William K. Wamsley, of Middletown, Conn., who was paying the second call on Nagoya. "There was more flak and we were caught in the enemy searchlights on the way in, and held in them until the end of our bombing run, although no real damage was done to us."

Reds Gain In East Prussia; New Silesia Drive Reported

London, Tuesday, March 20 (AP)—Russian troops battered within 1 and 3 miles of the East Prussian outposts of Braunsberg and Heiligenbeil yesterday while Berlin reported that Red Army tanks had plowed 17 to 25 miles through Nazi defenses in a three-day offensive southeast of Breslau aimed at clearing industrial Upper Silesia.

There was no Russian confirmation of the Soviet southern breakthrough, but Berlin said that massed Soviet forces had clamped a great pincer on the war-production area west of the Oder River and had broken into Neustadt in a 25-mile dash from the river at Cosel. Neustadt is only 3 miles from the border of Czechoslovakia.

Coastal Pocket Reduced

Restricting its communiqué to a report on the battle southwest of the East Prussian capital of Koenigsberg, Moscow disclosed that the 3d White Russian Army had squeezed the Germans' coastal pocket to little more than 100 square miles.

Advancing along a 25-mile front in gains up to three miles, Russian troops took more than 30 towns and villages and 2,138 prisoners, and brought the last two big enemy strongholds of Braunsberg and Heiligenbeil, 32 and 25 miles southwest of Koenigsberg, within range of Russian guns.

The Third White Russians clamped a 12-mile siege arc around Braunsberg on the west, south and east after renewing their drive on that coastal communications center from the west. Braunsberg lies astride the Passarge river. On the west bank of the stream, Red army men captured Stangendorf, two and a half miles, and Sagern, two miles south.

On the river's east bank, the Soviets won Schiligehnen, three miles south southeast, and Pagenhof, three and a half miles east. The arc around Braunsberg extended to Neu Bahnau, five miles east north east, captured by troops which crossed the Bahnou river.

Drive on Heiligensbeil

One mile and a half north of Neu Bahnau, the Russians drove to within three miles south of Heiligenbeil by taking Waltersdorf and Birkenau. Capture of Birkenau carried them within three miles of the last highway linking the two strongholds.

Converging on Heiligenbeil, which lies on the Jarft river, the Third White Russians also captured Freihufen and Gruenwalde, four miles west of the eight-way road and rail center in an advance along the south bank of the Jarft. On the river's north bank the Soviets' closest approach was five miles northwest where they took Quilitten.

Sixteen miles southwest of Koenigsberg, other elements moved three miles down the coast of the Frisches Haff (Lagoon), capturing Schoelen in an advance that narrowed the pocket to 18 miles in length and no more than seven miles from the sea at its deepest.

Moscow announced that in the capture of the Pomeranian port of Kolberg Sunday, Marshal Gregory K. Zhukov's First White Russian army took more than 6,000 prisoners and killed 8,000 enemy troops.

The enemy said that Zhukov had hurled new masses of men and artillery into the battle for Stettin, northern anchor of Berlin's Oder river defense line.

While the Moscow radio, in a German language broadcast, warned Berliners that the "battle for Berlin is in sight," enemy broadcasts claimed that German troops had launched counterattacks against Russian bridgeheads across the Oder river 31 to 43 miles east of the city. The DNB agency claimed that German air attacks had wrecked two important Oder bridges between Kuestrin and Frankfurt.

Smash Danzig Defenses

At the same time, the enemy reported that Marshal Konstantin K. Rokossovsky's Second White Russian army was smashing the outer defenses of Danzig and the twin Baltic port of Gdynia at the eastern end of the 175-mile Russian front across German Pomerania. Soviet heavy bombers blasted Danzig, setting fires in the port area of the former free city, Moscow announced.

Berlin said that the great two-pronged Russian offensive in Upper Silesia had been launched on an 80-mile front extending from Grottkau, 31 miles southwest of Breslau, to Ratibor, on the Oder river north of the German-Polish-Czechoslovak frontier junction.

The northern wing of Marshal Ivan S. Konev's First Ukrainian army struck south from Grottkau, battering into the region of Neisse, 15 miles to the south, the enemy said. Neisse lies 26 miles west of the Oder river and is a key transport center on the vital trans-Sudeten railroad linking Upper Silesia with Dresden and central Germany.

Simultaneously, a second column moved west from a bridgehead which Berlin reported was established across the Oder in the 16-mile sector between Ratibor and Cosel. These tank concentrations, described by Berlin as "colossal," ripped toward the industrial city of Loebschuetz, and late German broadcasts said a bitter battle was raging in its outskirts.

By-passing Loebschuetz, 17 miles from the Oder, other fast-driving spearheads broke into Neustadt, 13 miles northwest of Loebschuetz and 14 miles southwest of Niesse.

The German Transocean News Agency said a third Soviet column was striking south from Ratibor in an outflanking drive against Moravska-Ostrava, Czechoslovakian industrial city, sixteen miles to the south.

Meanwhile, Marshal Konstantin K. Rokossovsky's 2d White Russian Army drew a noose tighter around the refugee-packed Danzig-Gdynia pocket, launching a frontal assault at Zoppot, midway between the two ports, in a drive to split enemy forces.

Marshal Gregory K. Zhukov's 1st White Russian Army hurled fifteen successive attacks at the twenty-five-square-mile enemy bridgehead across the mouth of the Oder River centered around Stettin's suburb, Altdamm, the Nazi D. N. B. agency said. The Red Army, the enemy said, penetrated 1,000 yards southeast of Altdamm.

In Hungary the German high command admitted that Soviet assault formations were pressing west of Budapest through the Vertes Mountains in an effort to outflank and regain the rail center of Szekesfehervar, thirty-two miles southwest of the Hungarian capital.

Russ Offensive In Hungary Is Gaining

London, March 19 (AP)—A new Russian offensive in Hungary has advanced to the north of Mor, 39 miles west of Budapest and 93 miles from Vienna, the German high command said today.

In southern Silesia, the 1st Ukrainian Army of Marshal Ivan Konev has plunged forward for gains of 15 miles or more, reaching the area of Neustadt, less than 3 miles from the border of Czechoslovakia, and attacking on both sides of Neisse, 15 miles northwest of Neustadt, the Germans said. Neustadt is 57 miles southeast of besieged Breslau.

Drive On From Kolberg

In the north, Marshal Gregory Zhukov wheeled Russian divisions westward from the operations around captured Kolberg on the Baltic to add impetus to the battle for Stettin and the mouth of the Oder River.

Kolberg, devastated by a thirteen-day siege, fell yesterday a Russian communiqué announced, as a savage struggle mounted from the eastern suburbs of Stettin to Wollin Island in the Oder estuary.

Marshal Zhukov's infantry and artillery today were pressing home new attacks in this flank drive, which is a preliminary to the grand assault on Berlin.

Trapped Nazis Back Up

Meanwhile, German forces trapped southwest of Koenigsberg in East Prussia reeled back into final defensive positions on the outskirts of Braunsberg and Heiligenbeil, and other Soviet troops punched ahead in southern Slovakia in the low Tatras Mountains west of Zvolen.

It appeared that German offensive power in western Hungary had collapsed completely following the loss of some 600 tanks and 20,000 men.

Reduction of the German garrison at Kolberg was in line with the pattern of recent Russian strategy—mopping up the Kessels, a German word applied to stubbornly resisting pockets of troops."

Several Kessels Remain

Along the Baltic several "Kessels" still remain, including Danzig and Gdynia on the south and west shores of Danzig Bay and the coastal towns of Braunsberg and Heiligbeil.

Besides these, there is Koenigsberg, East Prussian capital, which is still holding out against a swiftly converging arc of Russian armor. The 3d White Russian Army narrowed the coastal strip held by the Nazis to 21 miles and nowhere extending farther than 9 miles from the sea.

Russian frontline correspondents are not giving any timetable for the enemy's benefit, but they make it fairly clear that an all-out drive from the Oder toward the Elbe is due to begin in early spring. "A gathering storm" is their favorite description.

Marshal Stalin announced the fall of Kolberg, Pomeranian seaport with a pre-war population of 33,170, in an order of the day. Kolberg is sixty-three miles northeast of Stettin. In smashing the last resistance at the naval base, Russian artillery shelled the port from the west and sank several German vessels trying to enter the harbor to evacuate troops. The fighting later shifted to the eastern part of the city, where the Russians made the decisive attack.

8,000 PLANES LASH NAZI WAR PLANTS

Down 39 Enemy Warplanes in Attacks, Hit Jet-Plane Factories.

LONDON, Tuesday, March 20 (AP) Nearly 8,000 Allied warplanes in an endless procession battered German targets yesterday, with U. S. Flying Fortresses and Liberators spearheading the assault by attacking three jet-plane factories and other war plants deep inside the Reich against aroused Luftwaffe opposition.

The Nazis sent up swarms of interceptors of all types in an attempt to break up the armada of 1,200 American heavy bombers and their escort of 600 Mustangs.

39 Nazi Planes Downed

A communique tonight announced 39 of the enemy planes, including five jets, were shot down by the Mustang pilots but said tabulation of American losses was incomplete. One group of jet fighters was known to have broken through into a group of Fortresses, stabbing at the big bombers in groups of threes and fours.

Reports from the U. S. Ninth air force boosted enemy losses as fighter-bombers from this command ripped up 20 Nazi planes on the ground and American-French squadrons of the first tactical air force destroyed five in dogfights. The combined Ninth and First RAF losses were 12 fighter bombers.

These two tactical air forces, stationed at forward bases on the continent, flew nearly 4,000 trips today, prowling from the crumbling Saar basin to the devasted Ruhr in the relentless assault on German troops and vehicles.

Operating at near record strength, they blanketed the enemy with explosives, medium and light fighter bombers of the Ninth alone shooting up 4,292 vehicles of all types and cutting rails and roads in 157 places.

The weather broke clear over most parts of the flaming Western front. Medium, light and fighter-bombers took off in maximum strength and gave German troops and transport the most terrific pounding of the year.

2,500 Sorties Made

Well over 2,500 sorties were made before noon—a record number—by American and British planes striking at targets from the crumbling Saar basin to beyond the devastated Ruhr.

Fleets of RAF Lancasters from Britain joined in the crushing attack, hurling their huge new 11-ton "volcano" bombs on a railway viaduct at Arnsberg, southeast of Hamm, and on another viaduct in the Bielefeld area. Bith spans are on what is left of the Ruhr's only main transportation outlets. Returning in the afternoon the mighty Lancasters hammered a benzol plant at Gelsenkirchen in the Ruhr.

RAF tactical pilots pounced on 11 German troop trains near Muenster and four more in the Rheine area. They reported the trains were moving westward toward the Rhine, indicating the Nazis were hauling up reinforcements opposite the British-Canadian northern front.

German jet planes attacked two Allied air fields in Belgium. The main enemy interference was encountered by the U. S. heavy bombers and fighters as they went in perfect weather and attacked a jet components works at Baumenheim and air fields believed to be assembling twin-jet planes at Neuberg and Liepheim. A division of Liberators pounded industrial targets around Plauen, a river terminal southwest of Chemnitz, and Jena, southwest of Leipzig.

For the third straight day United States Lightnings flew from Italy and bombed German positions in Yugoslavia in front of Marshal Feodor I. Tolbukhin's Russian forces. Italy based Liberators and Flying Fortresses struck the Landshut rail yards 55 miles northeast of Munich on the Regensburg line and the Muhldorf yards 65 miles east of Munich.

What Is Left?

A high personage in Britain's war councils told a special press conference that only one of Germany's twenty synthetic oil plants still was operating and that all but 19 of the country's 78 coke-oven plants had been knocked out.

He said shortages were seriously limiting the mobility of the German Army and reducing the effectiveness of the enemy air force. He declared one German tank force was ordered not to use any gasoline from the end of December until it was sent to the front, and then was given an inadequate amount.

The British official, whose name must remain anonymous, summed up by saying that the Allied air campaign was having an "almost decisive" effect on the enemy's effort.

All But One Nazi Synthetic Fuel Plant Ruined

London, March 19 (AP)—Only one of Germany's twenty synthetic oil plants and but nineteen of her 78 coke ovens are operating, and the Allies are gaining a mounting mastery over "all forms of movement inside Germany," a high personage in Britain's war councils told a specially summoned press conference today.

His statement was made as 1,800 American bombers and fighters hit jet plane installations and war industries in southern Germany and the RAF again showered eleven and six ton bombs on the Arnsberg and Bielefeld viaducts in the Ruhr area.

Huge Plant Fired

These strikes followed yesterday's record American daylight assault on Berlin by more than 1,300 Fortresses and Liberators in which the Rheinmetal-Borsig armament works, one of the world's largest, was set blazing.

The British official, whose name must remain anonymous under the established press conference customs of his position, said German shortages were severely limiting the mobility of Adolf Hitler's tanks and reducing the already dwindling effectiveness of his air force.

No Gas For Training

Referring to captured Nazi documents and statements of prisoners, he said one German tank force had been ordered not to use any gasoline from the end of December until it was ordered up to the Western front—and then it was issued an insufficient amount of fuel to get to the front.

Commanders of the German day and night fighters as long ago as early November were barred from using gasoline for training flights, he added.

Blows at Nazi aircraft production, he continued, had resulted in "almost complete disappearance" of long-range German bombers, denied the enemy effective aerial reconnaissance and prevented the Germans from getting into action any considerable fighter force.

34 Planes Bagged

The Allied air campaign, he summed up, is having an "almost decisive" effect on the enemy's war effort.

Today's targets of the 8th Air Force ranged from Leipzig to Ulm, 60 miles from the Swiss border.

For the second straight day the Luftwaffe came up in what is considerable strength for German fighters nowadays, and at least 34 German planes were shot down.

One division of Liberators attacked a jet plane components factory at Baumenheim, 20 miles north of Augsburg, and airfields near Neuberg and Leipheim.

Key Centers Lashed

Two divisions of Fortresses went after industrial targets around Plauen, river terminal southwest of Chemnitz, and Jena, southwest of Leipzig.

RAF heavy bombers last night hammered two important communication centers behind the Western front and Mosquitos delivered their twenty-seventh straight night raid on Berlin.

Targets of the British heavies were Witten, 26 miles east of Duisburg in the heart of the Ruhr Valley, and Hanau, about six miles east of Frankfurt-Am-Main.

ROSENMAN DUE TO MAKE PROBE

Charges Of Misuse Of Transport To Be Looked Into

London, March 19 (AP)—Justice Samuel Rosenman, on his current trip to France, will investigate charges that the Allied military supply organization has aggravated the Continent's acute transportation shortage by inefficient use of available ships and railway rolling stock.

American officials said Rosenman, representing President Roosevelt on a special European mission, had received reports that the Army has unduly prolonged the turnaround of many ships by using loaded vessels as warehouses in European ports instead of having them unloaded promptly, and holding up freight cars by requisitioning them long in advance and using them as warehouses before they are finally dispatched to the fronts.

Worst "Since Black Plague"

One official said the continued inability of liberated areas to procure even a minimum supply of fuel and food is aggravating the growing problem of malnutrition and even starvation which is "going to be the worst thing that has happened in Europe since the black plague."

Little definite information is available on the amount of rolling stock left in liberated areas, and even less on its military use.

Transportation is said to be the chief difficulty in every attempt to provide not only relief but the boost needed to start up rehabilitation industries and services on the Continent. Such food and raw materials and fuel as are available inside the liberated countries cannot be effectively distributed because of the shortage of rolling stock.

Grave Mistake Seen

There is a growing feeling among army civil affairs authorities, as well as such civilian organizations as UNRRA, that a grave mistake was made when it was decided on the basis of military expediency to continue to supply the armies with finished supplies from the United States and Britain, instead of shifting as much as possible of the Allied armies procurement to French and Belgian industry.

This would have entailed some marking time by the Western front armies last autumn, and fairly extensive cancellations of war contracts in the United States and Britain.

But many persons who are wrestling with relief and rehabilitation in Europe believe that a frank explanation of the reason—to win a political as well as a military victory on the Continent—plus the release of home front manpower and the opportunity to commence industrial reconversion to peacetime needs, would have made such a decision by Prime Minister Churchill and President Roosevelt acceptable to their people.

The Eventual Snag

Recently, under the lend-lease program, orders for limited supplies have been placed with French industries—particularly for batteries, tires, uniforms and gasoline cans.

These contracts are expected to total about $1,000,000,000 through this year. This is a respectable sum, but hardly more than a start toward utilizing the French industrial plant, which is said to be largely intact though needing considerable new machinery.

In all problems of relief and rehabilitation, however, the planners find themselves eventually snagged by the problem of transportation.

200,000 GERMANS TRAPPED BY NORSE

Sabotage Isolates Oslo, Pins Them In Norway

London, March 19 (AP) — Norwegian patriots, striking suddenly in one of the greatest single acts of sabotage by any underground organization during the war, have wrecked railroad facilities and pinned down more than 200,000 German troops in Norway.

They struck Wednesday night, the Norwegian Government disclosed today, and isolated Oslo from southern embarkation points in a welter of destruction that may require weeks to repair.

The troops, trying to get out of Norway to reinforce the embattled Eastern and Western fronts, had been concentrated north of Oslo or in the vicinity of the capital, where they now are isolated.

Never Before Equaled

A Government official said the act was the "greatest single" blow struck by forces of the interior, and that the extent of damage in a 24-hour period indicated nothing equal to it had occurred in any occupied country heretofore.

He said railway lines were broken at scores of places, vital bridges had been blown up and switch points and signal boxes put out of action.

Because of these attacks, the official said, three ports on each side of Oslo Fjord—Halden, Fredrikstad and Moff—and all ports and towns on the west side of the fjord and along the south coast as far as Stavanger had been cut off from Oslo and the rest of southern Norway.

Evacuations At Dead Stop

"All German attempts to evacuate further divisions from Norway through these ports have been brought to a dead stop for a considerable period," the spokesman said.

He explained that the only ports available to Germans evacuating troops now are on the west coast, such as Trondheim, and he expressed the view this would be "extremely dangerous" since the whole area was under Allied air and naval patrol.

All railways from northern Norway to the south center on Oslo, making it virtually impossible for any German evacuation.

The patriots ranged up and down railroads running east and west of Oslo Fjord, breaching them at innumerable places. They even invaded the town of Sandefjord to dynamite the railroad and cut communications with Toensbeg.

NORSE SABOTEURS HALT NAZI TROOPS

London, March 19 (A. P.).—Hundreds of Norwegian patriots striking simultaneously last Wednesday night in one of the greatest sabotage blows of the war, have brought German troop movements from Norway to Germany to a dead stop, the Norwegian government announced tonight. By wrecking railways and bridges connecting Oslo with southern embarkation ports the saboteurs isolated more than 200,000 Germans. Repairs will take weeks, a spokesman said.

Austrian Partisans Rising

LONDON, March 19 (AP).—Austrian partisan bands have begun raiding and sabotaging Nazi preparations for a last-ditch stand in the mountains of the Tyrol, the Moscow radio declared today. One group of Tyrolean partisans led by Eduard Kloeckner has executed twelve leading Nazis, the broadcast said.

Queen Wilhelmina Pays Flying Visit To Holland

London, March 19 (AP)—The French radio said tonight Queen Wilhelmina had visited Vlissingen (Flushing) and other places in liberated Holland.

The broadcast said the Queen flew from London to Brussels, where she was received by the Prince Regent. After her visit, described as of a "purely personal nature," the Queen returned to England.

Benes Meets With Stalin

LONDON, March 19 (AP).—The Moscow radio reported tonight that Premier Stalin conferred today with President Eduard Benes of Czechoslovakia, and that Stalin and Foreign Commissar V. M. Molotov also conferred with the French Ambassador, General Georges Catroux.

Moscow Names New Envoy

LONDON, March 19 (AP)—The Moscow radio announced tonight the appointment of M. S. Bergeyeff as Soviet Ambassador to Belgium.

Mrs. Churchill Plans Trip To Moscow Soon

London, March 19 (AP)—Mrs. Winston Churchill today said she would "be off to Moscow very shortly, perhaps within a few days."

The Prime Minister's wife expects to spend about a month in Russia with her chief object a visit to Rostov—where her Red Cross aid-to-Russia fund is to equip two hospitals of 500 beds each. Equipment costing $1,600,000 is being collected for shipment in about nine months.

Lebanon And Syria May Yet Get Bid

London, March 19 (AP)—A British Foreign Office commentator said today the Big Three are "favorably considering" the request of Lebanon and Syria for an invitation to the San Francisco world security conference.

Both Lebanon and Syria dispatched notes to the Big Three and China several days ago protesting against not being invited.

5 British Paratroopers Reported Shot By Nazis

London, March 19 (AP)—Five members of a British parachute company who dropped in France in July, 1944, were shot by a Nazi firing squad after being held captive for five weeks, a British army chaplain reported today in a letter to the mother of one of the victims.

The chaplain said ten parachutists were taken to a woods to be executed, but five escaped. All were in uniform at the time, and no reason was given for the executions. The chaplain wrote that "full notification of this breach of international law has been sent to the proper authorities."

Penn Yan Pilot Bags a 'Jet'

A UNITED STATES AIR FORCE FIGHTING STATION in England, March 19 (AP)—Capt. Charles Spencer of Penn Yan, N. Y., Mustang pilot and flight commander in the 355th Fighter Group, entered today the ranks of Eighth Air Force fliers who have scored victories in two theatres of war, by shooting down a jet-propelled Messerschmitt 262 over Germany. He had shot down three Japanese Zeros while serving as an enlisted tailgunner with the Nineteenth Bombardment Group in the Pacific.

Censors To Allow GI's To Mail V-2 Souvenirs

London, March 19 (AP)—Americans soon will be receiving their first V-2 rockets—but they will come in fragment form and by mail from souvenir-collecting soldiers.

United States service men have been killed and injured by the V-2's. American soldiers also have played important roles as volunteer rescue workers. After helping dig out men, women and children the GI's scoured the area for fragments, but until now they couldn't even mention in their letters that they had the souvenirs.

The relaxing of censorship to permit mention of the fact that rockets have sometimes exploded in the London area now allows the soldiers to send the souvenir packages home.

'Hour Of Peace' Upon Us, Is View Of Beveridge

London, March 19 (AP)—Sir William Beveridge said today that "the formidable hour of peace is upon us" and "the moment is at hand when we have to rebuild the framework of civilization." He spoke at exercises marking his retirement as master of University College, Oxford.

Great Grandson Of Tennyson Killed

London, March 19 (A. P.).—Capt. Julian Tennyson, great-grandson of Lord Tennyson, has been killed in active service in Burma, it was announced today. Capt. Tennyson was a writer and edited the poet's works.

British Food Costs Steady

LONDON, March 19 (AP).—The Labor Ministry reported tonight that as of March 1 the cost of living index in Britain had shown no change compared with the previous month, but was 102 points above the level for July, 1914. The index figure for food prices also remained unchanged at 68 points above the July, 1914 level.

CUT IN U. S. MEAT DISTURBS BRITISH

London, March 19 (A. P.).—Public agitation mounted today with persistent rumors of an impending food crisis, and it appeared that rising civilian alarm might force some announcement in Commons shortly.

Disclosure by Washington that the United States planned to cut lend-lease meat supplies by 87 per cent during the next quarter has caused a mild sensation in England.

London newspapers pointed out yesterday that the new allotment of 25,000,000 pounds in the next three months, as compared with 200,000,000 pounds for the present quarter, would break down the ration of American meat to less than one ounce per person per week.

Throughout the nation the Washington announcement made front-page news and newspapers devoted editorials to discussions of British needs. The newspapers stressed the fact that hundreds of millions of pounds of food had been released from British emergency reserves and sent to liberated areas in France, Holland and Belgium in answer to appeals from Gen. Eisenhower.

French Delegate Fears U.S. Aims In Indo-China

Paris, March 19 (AP)—M. Gaston Monnerville, Martinique delegate, declared today that the French consulative assembly should guard against what he described as American attempts to control or internationalize French Indo-China.

NIGHT

FRENCH HOLDING OFF JAPS IN INDO-CHINA

PARIS, March 19—(AP) French troops entrenched in the jungles of northern French Indo-China west of the capital of Hanoi still are holding off Japanese attacks, the general staff for national defense announced tonight.

Declaring that operations in Indo-China continue to develop according to plan, the communique said heavy losses were inflicted on the enemy in the region of the Noire river in Tokin province and in upper Laos province.

French troops continued resisting "victoriously" Japanese assaults at Monkay despite the loss of their leader, Lt. Col. Le, who was killed March 12 while leading an attack at Hakay, the war bulletin said.

HIMMLER HELD IN HITLER PLOT

Escaped Conspirator Says Gestapo Chief Sought Power

From one of the conspirators, Louis P. Lochner has obtained an account of the attempt of last July 20 to assassinate Adolf Hitler.

By LOUIS P. LOCHNER

Bonn, Germany, March 19 (AP)—Col. Gen. Ludwig Beck, former chief of staff of the German Army who resigned when he realized Hitler's reckless course, was the spiritual as well as active leader in the plot to assassinate the Führer, and Heinrich Himmler was in on it.

One-armed, one-legged Colonel Count Claus von Stauffenberg, a hero of the first World War, was the man who actually placed the bomb under Hitler's chair.

These and other specific details of last July 20's attempt on Hitler's life were given me by a man who himself was delegated to contact the Allies and try to "sell" them the new setup in Germany after Hitler's death, and also to offer peace.

Conspiracy Began In 1941

The first talks among the conspirators occurred in December, 1941, immediately after Hitler's declaration of war on the United States. My informant said that America's entry made defeat a certainty to every thinking German.

Military officers contacted men like Dr. Karl Goerdler, Paul Lejeune-Jung, H. Johannes Popitz and Ulrich von Hassel, and later some former labor leaders, this informant said.

This is his story:

It became increasingly clear that only someone in uniform and from the old Prussian military caste could carry out the assassination. Unknown even to Hitler, a first attempt was carried out in December, 1943, but the bomb was defective and was recovered before Hitler's associates discovered it.

Even Rommel Involved

The circle of conspirators extended even to Himmler and Marshal Erwin Rommel, supposedly two of Hitler's most trustworthy paladins. Rommel was killed in France and escaped detection.

Himmler afterward reneged. It was he who delegated Popitz, the Prussian Finance Minister, to sit in on the conspirator meetings, and he also sent an attorney named Langbehn to Switzerland to ask the Allies whether he, Himmler, would be acceptable in case Hitler ceased to exist.

In a meeting with Gauleiters seven days after the ill-fated attempt, however, Himmler claimed Popitz had contacted him and that he had pretended to play along just to get evidence on the plotters.

The First Hitch

The ideal occasion for putting the plot into effect seemed to come when Hitler invited Mussolini to general headquarters near Loezen, in East Prussia, to attend a ceremony incorporating two Fascist divisions into the German Wehrmacht.

Von Stauffenberg, as executive officer to Maj. Gen. Friedrich Olbricht, chief of troop inductions, was the customary officer designated formally to take in the Italian units with a crisp, brief speech.

Von Stauffenberg and his fellow conspirators, however, assumed that Hitler as usual would preside over the ceremony in a bomb-proof concrete bunker.

Instead, Hitler desired to put on an act of fearlessness before Mussolini, and hence held the staff meeting that particular day in a wooded shed camouflaged as a grove of willow trees.

Produces Egg-Sized Bomb

The session opened with a ten-minute address by Field Marshal Wilhelm Keitel expressing gratitude to the Fascists. Von Stauffenberg followed. Stooping to fetch a piece of paper with his remarks from a brief case next to his chair, he also pulled out an egg-sized bomb and with his boot shoved it unobserved under Hitler's chair.

His brief address over, von Stauffenberg left since he had no further business, and Hitler called for the daily over-all Wehrmacht report. Von Stauffenberg lingered outside a few moments.

There was a terrific explosion. Von Stauffenberg, looking through a door that had been blown open, saw Hitler lying on the floor, blood-covered and aflame, and took it for granted the Führer was dead.

Flies Off Sure Of Success

He calmly entered a waiting plane and flew back to Berlin, certain the plot had been successful.

But he learned later that Hitler, while listening to the Wehrmacht report, had left his chair and stepped to a cupboard for a magnifying glass. Thus the bomb hit him indirectly. The effectiveness of the blast also was marred by the fact it was intended for a concrete bunker rather than a resilient wooden shed.

At the war offices in Berlin, von Stauffenberg met Generals Beck, Erwin von Witzleben and Erich Hoepner, according to my informant, and told them Hitler was dead. Machinery was put in motion for the coup.

Two Vital Omissions

"Two vital mistakes of omission were made, however," the informant said. "First was the failure to make certain that a 'right' duty officer was in charge of the Berlin guards regiment. Instead, an ardent young Nazi named Renner—who in a short time advanced from sergeant to major—was on duty.

"He carried out the first order unquestionably — namely, for the regiment to seize the so-called Government quarters [roughly, between the Unter den Linden and the Leipziger Strasse and between Wilhelmstrasse and Friedrichstrasse.]

"Another order, however, was to arrest Goebbels. Instead of merely obeying instructions, he told Goebbels, 'We must arrest you, because our Führer is dead.'"

Goebbels "Proves" The Lie

Goebbels intuitively, and with accustomed bluff, replied, "It isn't true! I'll prove it to you!" He seized a secret private telephone connected directly with general headquarters and got Hitler to stammer a few words. Then he called together all Propaganda Ministry officials and told them of the attempt on the life of the Führer.

Then Renner, on Goebbels's orders, rushed back to the war office, where his men overpowered and shot von Stauffenberg and Olbricht and gave Beck, who was bleeding to death slowly from a self-inflicted wound, a final shot. Then he had the other plotters arrested.

Meanwhile, instructions devised by the conspirators indicating what to do, who would head the Government, et cetera, were going out on the army teleprinter.

Even then, in the opinion of my informant, the coup might have succeeded if steps had been taken to see that the "right" enlisted men sat at the machines. Instead, ardent Nazis were in control.

Nipped In The Bud

Messages with instructions and information already had gone to a number of army headquarters, including Paris, Munich and Breslau, when one radio operator in the war office picked up news that Hitler still was alive.

He advised his Nazi comrades operating teleprinters and they in turn asked their lieutenant what to do. The lieutenant called General Fellgiebel, chief of the signal corps, and Fellgieber, who had sat in on the conspiracy, ordered him to continue.

Instead, however, the lieutenant called Fellgiebel's superior, Gen. Hermann Reinecke and a loyal Nazi. Reinecke gave counterorders and the revolution was nipped in the bud.

Threefold Reaction

Reaction among high army officers to the plot was three fold. Some, like Gen. Otto von Stuelpnagel at Paris, actively supported the revolution and were arrested by a SS security detachment.

Others like General Krievel at Munich simply went traveling several days until they could see which way the wind blew.

Some, like an unidentified general in command at Breslau, came to the Gauleiter for their areas and assured them of loyalty to the regime.

Once the revolution was averted, trials by the dread Volksgericht (people's court) in Berlin made short work of the plotters and their friends.

Inside Story Of Plot Against Hitler Told

Louis P. Lochner has obtained a remarkable account of last July's attempt on Hitler's life directly from one of the participants. Lochner was chief of the former Associated Press bureau in Berlin.

By Louis P. Lochner

Bonn, Germany, March 19 (AP)—A man who is a fugitive from German authority because he was implicated in the July 20 bombing attempt on Hitler's life has told me that the Führer, fully aware that the war is lost, now peps himself up from time to time watching movies showing the purging of generals and nobles who died for their part in the plot.

My informant, who has a complete story of the bomb plot, is a man I have known for years and in whose integrity and veracity I have a firm belief.

This man, because he has been hunted, has not seen his home since July and has changed sleeping quarters constantly to avoid detection. He desires even now, when under Allied rule, to have his name withheld because he has numerous relatives beyond the Rhine.

To Impress Duce

Here is his story:

The bomb attempt failed because Hitler did not receive his officers in a concrete bunker July 20, but in a wooden shed to show Mussolini and high Italians he was not afraid of air raids. The Italians were scheduled to attend a ceremony incorporating remnants of the Fascist Army into the Wehrmacht.

The bomb's effectiveness had been calculated on the assumption that the explosion would occur in a much smaller room than where Hitler at this time sat. The bunker, with concrete walls, was to heighten the impact of the blast.

Secondly, it failed because at the moment of the explosion Hitler stepped to a cupboard to look for a magnifying glass. The bomb had been placed under his chair.

Hearing Impaired

Even so, Hitler was badly hurt. His hearing apparently has been impaired permanently. His right arm was injured, but nursed back to health by Professor Gohrband, noted Berlin physician. He also suffered some burns.

As an aftermath of the nerve-wracking experience, Hitler fell seriously ill in the second half of September. Since then he often loses his memory, and for days is unable to function as chief of state and supreme commander of the Wehrmacht. Occasionally he swoons. Frequently speech fails him, or he can pronounce words only with great difficulty.

These facts, my informant said, explain why Hitler's radio speeches of January 1 and January 30 aroused so much controversy as to whether the speaker actually was Hitler. Recordings, my informant believes, are made during Hitler's lucid moments and the best parts put together for broadcasting.

Opposition Factions

Hitler not only knows the war is lost, but since last July 20 has been aware that he is opposed by what my informant called the "elite of post-Bismarckian Germany"—the nobility, military caste, big industrialists, the bankers and intelligentsia among labor. This weighs on him even more heavily than the matter of defeat, since he ascribes defeat not to himself or his regime but to what he considers disloyalty among these "better" class Germans.

His hatred for them knows no bounds. At frequent intervals he has shown a repulsive, revolting film of the hangings of Field Marshal Erwin von Witzleben, Ulrich von Hassel and the others condemned as conspirators. He then snaps out of his fits of despondency, deriving a vicarious, sadistic satisfaction from seeing this sorry evidence of his triumph over his adversaries at home.

Hitler, in his consuming hatred for his domestic enemies, issued a sweeping order for the arrest and trial in the star chamber People's Court of "all who by virtue of their position or family connections might conceivably have been implicated in the attempt on his life or in contact with its plotters."

Reign Of Terror

"A reign of terror began within Germany which the outside world may never comprehend," my informant said. "Friends whom we knew to be politically harmless disappeared overnight. We never saw them again. Only 25 miles from here, up in Cologne, it was no uncommon sight to see eight or twelve bodies swing from a gallows. There they were left 24 hours exposed to public view as an example."

My informant estimated that from 1,200 to 1,500 persons were immediate victims of the plot's aftermath—convicted of complicity by the People's Court. Beyond them, he added, many thousands of Germany's "better people" were liquidated, many noble families wiped out.

Even with Hitler still alive, the coup might have succeeded if the plotters had not made certain mistakes, my informant said. In outlining these errors, he said he was giving a considered opinion of not only himself but such of his fellow conspirators as are still alive.

Quiet Again Rules On Italian Front

Rome, March 19 (AP)—The Italian front remained quiet for still another day, enlivened only by scattered patrol actions and a stubborn defense by Italian troops of the 8th Army around a captured German stronghold between Cuffiano and Riolo del Bagni.

RIGHT

The Italians have been under heavy shelling since they seized the point two days ago in a spirited fight in which twenty Nazis were killed and others wounded or captured.

There was no activity on the 8th Army's coastal sector, but northeast of Fusignano the Germans laid down a heavy concentration of shells.

American 5th Army patrols were having difficulty probing enemy positions southwest of Bologna and were suffering some casualties. German troops defending the approaches to the rail metropolis were extremely sensitive to every Allied move.

Italian Troops Hold Position

Rome, March 19 (AP)—Volunteer Italian troops fighting beside the Allies held out today in a captured German stronghold between Cuffiano and Riolo de Bagni, 5 miles south of the Bologna-Rimini road hub of Imola, while action along the rest of the Italian front was confined to patrolling.

DAYLIGHT

The Italians have been under heavy bombardment since taking the position two days ago in a raid. Eighth Army artillery harassed the German probing parties along the Senio River both above and below Cuffiano.

Meanwhile, farther west, 5th Army patrols were encountering heavy mortar and machine-gun fire whenever they approached the Nazi lines in the sector southwest of Bologna.

Pope Spoke Despite Fever

Vatican City, March 19 (AP)—Pope Pius XII was suffering a light fever when he delivered his address to a St. Peter's square crowd yesterday, it was disclosed today. He now has recovered and granted his regular audiences today.

POPE ATTACKS RACE DOCTRINE

Delivers Lenten Message in Spite of Light Fever.

Rome, March 19 (A. P.).—Pope Pius XII yesterday urged an end to "the idolatry of absolute nationalism, the pride of race and blood and the desire for hegemony in the possession of worldly goods" as an important step toward lasting peace.

The pontiff, speaking before thousands of Italians massed in St. Peter's square, directed his appeal particularly "to those who have allowed themselves to be seduced by the advocates of violence." Those thoughtless followers, he added, "are now beginning to reawaken from their deception in consternation at seeing to what their docile servility has led them."

The Pope warned, however, that "the reconciliation of peoples will only be able to guarantee stability if it is carried out faithfully and with large-mindedness."

He emphasized that history would pass judgment on any individual who "might give in to the temptation of profiting by the present situation of affairs to turn the organization of peace to his own advantage against the dictates of justice."

Such a person, the pontiff said, might for the moment present himself as a benefactor of humanity, but would in the end be classed as a betrayer of "the expectations of peoples to whom indescribable suffering have conferred a new title to respect for their inviolable rights."

The Pope was suffering a light fever when he delivered his address, but he has recovered, and he granted his regular audiences today.

The throng which heard the Pope's address, marking the conclusion of the Lenten missions, was described by Vatican attaches as even larger than the gathering which witnessed his coronation six years ago.

Death Near 4 Times In 10 Minutes

Rome, March 19 (AP)—Lieut. John B. Turner, of Los Angeles, navigator on a Flying Fortress, faced death four times in ten minutes as his plane spun toward the earth and survived without injury.

At the start of a mission to Vienna Turner's plane locked wings with another, then went into a spin so violent he was unable to reach his parachute.

But the plane came out of the spin and Turner donned his parachute for close shave No. 1.

Escape Hatch Jams

As he made for the forward escape hatch in order to bail out he wrenched the handle, but the door refused to open. He kicked it repeatedly. Finally it flew off and that was close shave No. 2.

Turner jumped, counted ten and pulled his ripcord. Nothing happened.

"I was stunned and scared," he said. "No man's luck could hold out against such odds."

He pulled off his gloves and began clawing at his chute with his fingers, pulling the canopy out of his pack. It blossomed out in the air above him—and that was close shave No. 3.

While he was still struggling with his chute his Fortress hit the ground almost directly below him and began to burn. When he was only 2,000 feet above it the bomb load exploded.

A fragment of metal ripped through his chute and it collapsed like a balloon.

Died Many Times In Mind

"Right then I lived and died many times in my mind," he recounted. "I began to fall at a terrific rate. My past life really swam before me. I was sure this was the end."

At the last possible moment his chute billowed out and checked his plunge. Turner landed heavily but unharmed on the far side of a knoll on which his B-17 was burning.

That was close shave No. 4.

CHURCH BACKS GROZA REGIME

Romanian Patriarch In Letter Urges Support By People

Bucharest, March 18 [AP—Delayed]—Patriarch Nicolim, of the Romanian Orthodox Church, blessed the Government of Premier Petru Groza today and called on the nation's faithful to give it their hearty support.

"Speaking as your loving father," said the patriarch in a pastoral letter to all priests and members of the church, "I hope you will obey with all your heart his Majesty the King and this Government which has been requested by you, this Government which has sprung from the people."

Precedent Reported

The Rev. Constantin Burducea, Minister of Religion, gave out the letter to correspondents visiting from Moscow and was asked two questions.

The first was, "Is this the first time the church has given such a blanket indorsement of a government?" The enswer was "Yes, at least within the last ten years."

The second, "Was this letter written on the initiative of the patriarch?" The answer was "Yes, entirely. I believe the patriarch received his inspiration at the celebration at Cluj when Transylvania was returned to Romania."

Father Burducea is listed as a member of the democratic priests union. On his desk was a telegram from Alexei, Patriarch of Russia, congratulating him upon assuming a position in the Government.

WOMAN ESCAPES NAZIS

New Jerseyite Who Survived Warsaw Siege on Way Home

ODESSA, Russia, March 16 (Delayed) (AP)—Mrs. Stella Wegtman of Chatham, N. J., lived through the siege of Warsaw, while her Polish husband was killed and all their possessions destroyed.

Then with other civilians she was taken under German guard into the countryside to meet a grim and mysterious fate, but instead she escaped and walked afoot to Cracow.

She was able to hide from Nazi control officers there until the Red Army brought liberation.

Today she was one of few women aboard a big passenger liner that is returning thousands of Allied nationals to their homelands from the Odessa repatriation camp.

Repatriate, Spared Swim, Is On Liner to Brooklyn

Delayed Exchange Prisoner Has Speedboat to Thank

ODESSA, March 16 (Delayed) (AP).—A big former luxury liner, camouflaged for war, was moving slowly away from an Odessa pier today when Sergeant Smith, of Brooklyn, N. Y., rushed frantically to the end of the wharf.

On board the ship were 400 Americans, 450 British Commonwealth nationals and 2,000 Frenchmen—all bound for home.

"Is that our ship? I can still make it if I swim," he panted.

American and British officers supervising the third load of Allied ex-German prisoner repatriates, however, arranged for a speedboat to take the soldier to the vessel while it still lay in the bay.

Sergeant Smith, who amid the excitement gave his name as either Robert or Francis—correspondents later disagreed—had reached a point just eight miles from Odessa that morning when his train was forced to stop. With another American and three Britons, he hitch-hiked the rest of the way—only to arrive at the pier ten minutes too late.

"I've hitch-hiked all over Germany, Poland and Russia, and never found a place where some one can't speak American to you," he said before the speedboat picked him up.

Strong Swing To Left Noted In Finnish General Election

The election generally was interpreted as a rebuke to those responsible for the policy which cost Finland so dearly in the war with Russia and a vote of confidence for those few who opposed alliance with Germany.

It also was a triumph for Premier Juho K. Paasikivi, whose appeal for a "new faces" in Parliament apparently drew much greater support than generally was expected.

Blow To Anti-Russian Group

Among other things the election was a blow against anti-Russian elements within the former dominant Social Democratic party led by Vaino Tanner. This party, on the basis of incomplete returns, probably had its holding of 85 parliamentary seats reduced to about 50.

With 1,500,000 votes counted out of a probable 1,800,000 cast, the Communist Democratic Peoples Union and Social Democratic candidates together had polled about half the votes tabulated, virtually on a 50-50 basis. The prospect was that the Leftists and the Socialists could, if they chose to work together, command a majority of slightly more than 100 in the 200-member Assembly.

Leftist Coalition Likely

The chances for such a coalition were bright, since the Social Democratic candidates who opposed the Tanner policies appeared to have led their party and therefore should be in a position to stamp out reaction within the party aligning it with the radical Left.

New faces were apparent everywhere, even in the ranks of the extreme right coalitionists and the Rightists Agrarians. The Agrarians, previously the second largest party, with 56 seats, stood to lose at least 11, mostly in the northern sections. In that part of Finland German destruction has left the rural population embittered and ripe for a swing leftward.

The Swedish Peoples party, which in effect is more an association for preservation of the minority language than a political group, also seemed to have lost two or three of its former eighteen seats.

Parliament Meets Rebuff

It was still too early to tell if the new Parliament would suit the Soviet Union, or if the swing leftward was sufficiently strong to fit in with Russian policy. This much was certain, however—the elections were freely held and with the outcome considerably left of anything Finland had ever experienced.

Press comment generally acknowledged the trend toward the Left.

The new Parliament will convene April 6, at which time the procedure is for the Government to ask for a vote of confidence. Should this fail, as some political observers expect, then changes in the Cabinet may be expected to bring in several Leftist replacements.

In any event it seems certain Passikivi will remain as Premier.

SOCIAL DEMOCRATS AHEAD IN FINLAND

By Associated Press.

Finland's Social Democratic party holds a lead over the Democratic People's Union as the counting of yesterday's Finnish parliamentary elections continues slowly, the Finnish radio said today. The latter group was strongly supported by the Russian Press. With 1,497,553 votes so far tabulated the Social Democrats had a total of 368,201, the Democratic Union 358,988 and the Agrarian League 244,384. Other political parties trailed far behind.

Because the Social Democratic Party's candidates failed to present a united front—one group representing the old anti-Russian Tannerites and the other pro-Russian opposition within the party—their strength is divided and hence not so important as the bare figures would indicate.

BRITAIN PLANS AIR GIANTS

Building 100-Passenger Liners for Atlantic, Says Swinton

CAPETOWN, South Africa, March 19 (AP)—Lord Swinton, British Minister of Civil Aviation, today announced that Britain was building 110-ton, 100-passenger planes for transatlantic air routes.

Lord Swinton is in Capetown for the British Empire-South African air conference, which opens Tuesday.

"Britain probably cannot be number one in the air—its planes do not outnumber those of the United States for instance—but it holds its own," he said.

"Britain does not hold to the ideal of freedom of the air as she always has done where the sea is concerned if freedom of the air means dog fights with maximum competition, maximum subsidies and maximum ill will on every side. Then we have to set our faces dead against it."

Germans Get Polish Warning Of Reprisals

Moscow, March 19 (AP) — The Polish Press Agency issued a warning today that "new bestialities," if continued against Polish prisoners of war in Germany, would bring reprisals against the German population in Polish-administered territories.

It was recalled the Soviet-supported Polish Provisional Government announced in February it was sending civil administrators into areas of Silesia, Pomerania and East Prussia as military conditions permitted.

Details of the alleged treatment of Polish prisoners in Germany were not made known here.

Iran's Delegation Is Named

TEHERAN, March 19 (AP)—The Iran Council of Ministers today appointed the following representatives to the World Security Conference in San Francisco next month: Foreign Minister Entezam, head of the delegation; Minister of Justice Adle; Minister without portfolio Dr. Siassi; Iranian Ambassador to London Tagni Zadeh, and Ambassador to Moscow Ahi.

Liberated Americans Stop Over At Istanbul

Instanbul, Turkey, March 19 (AP). Liberated Allied prisoners of war, including 498 Americans, stopped over at this port today on their way from Russia to the Middle East.

Col. George Millet, of Kansas City, headed 44 officers in the group.

In addition to the military repatriates, there were thirteen American, Cuban and Dutch civilians.

Latest Rumor Says Hitler Would Wed

Stockholm, March 19 (A. P.).—The Free German Press Agency said today that there were unconfirmable rumors in Berlin that Hitler was planning to marry soon the sister of his personal physicians, a Dr. Brandt, to show the world and the Germans his confidence in victory and to leave heirs.

6 Arab States Draft Charter

CAIRO, March 19 (AP).—An official communique today announced that representatives of six Arab states in the Middle East met as a preliminary committee and approved the draft of a constitution for an Arab League. The group will meet again March 22, when the constitution will be signed and made public.

JAPANESE ATTACKS SMASHED IN BURMA

CALCUTTA, March 19 — (AP) Desperate Japanese attempts to break out of their entrapment in central Burma have been smashed by British and Indian forces in the Meiktila area 75 miles south of Mandalay, allied every road and trail is firmly blocked, Allied headquarters announced today.

The whole central Burma front was resolving itself into a grim chore of exterminating the trapped enemy troops, who were aimlessly roaming the vast area south of Mandalay in search of an escape route. Their night attacks against road blocks were being methodically beaten off, and by day British tanks were running down and killing groups of from 10 to several hundred.

Some of the larger Japanese bands were showing fight and a cohesive defense plan, but their resistance largely was chaotic. Total destruction of the 50,000 enemy troops estimated to be caught in the contracting pocket appeared only a matter of time.

In Mandalay itself British imperials made solid progress in mopping up Japanese remnants outside the thick walls of Fort Dufferin, where enemy troops were preparing to make a death stand. Except for a few pockets south of the fort, the city virtually was cleared.

The surrounded defenders of Fort Dufferin have been ordered to "die gloriously," said Allied intelligence reports.

Chinese troops who captured Hsipaw on the Mandalay-Lashio road are moving south, apparently aiming at Mong Yai, a major highway junction on the last remaining enemy escape route south of Hsipaw.

KANHSIEN RINGED

Chungking, March 19 (A. P.).—The Chinese High Command said tonight that Chinese troops had surrounded Kanhsien, site of a former United States air base, and that fierce fighting was in progress for the Kiangsi province city. In Hunan province Japanese troops inside the besieged city of Anjen received reinforcements and launched a heavy counter-attack.

PANAY INVADED BY YANK FORCES

Fortieth Division Closing on Iloilo; Receive Air, Naval Support.

MANILA, Tuesday, March 20.—(AP) Fortieth division infantrymen under Maj. Gen. Rapp Brush, with naval and air support, invaded Panay island in the Central Philippines Sunday and rapidly closed in on the capital city of Iloilo.

The landing, on the southeastern shore, was made with practically no loss, Gen. Douglas MacArthur said in his communique today, again achieving "complete tactical as well as strategic surprise."

25th Philippine Invasion

This was the 25th Philippine invasion and the seventh of major importance.

The Yanks went ashore at Tigbauan, 14 miles west of Iloilo, and immediately drove inland four miles to Cordova and eastward along the coast seven miles to Oton, halfway to the capital city.

"They are rapidly closing in on the city," MacArthur reported.

Many sections of Panay had been well cleared by guerrillas, including parts of the southeast shore where the Yanks poured ashore. One Panay guerrilla leader was Tomas Confesor, new secretary of the interior in the Philippine cabinet. He was the former governor of Panay.

Associated Press Correspondent Fred Hampson reported Filipinos crowded the beach to welcome the Americans.

The invasion was the first direct action to break the Japanese hold in the bypassed Central Philippines. It was designed in part to clear shipping routes which passed close to Panay airfields.

Iloilo is the outstanding port of the Central Philippines and has an important airfield nearby. The capital has a population of 90,000.

A headquarters spokesman said the troops encountered a small enemy force on the road before seizing Cordova.

Correspondent Hampson said fliers flew at low level over the country behind the beachhead searching for enemy positions they might strafe, but found none.

The invasion was not preceded by the usual naval bombardment, although cruisers and destroyers stood by if needed. Rocket ships, too, were ready.

40th Division Lands

The amphibious operation was executed by the 40th infantry division, originally the California National Guard, with a New York regiment added. The 40th was in the Luzon campaign in January.

Rear Adm. Arthur D. Struble commanded the amphibious move. Designed to clear the huge archipelago of Japanese hindering free movement of shipping.

The landing beach was 180 miles west of the original Philippine invasion beach on Leyte, and is 250 miles south of Manila.

Panay, bombed frequently by heavy bombers, was an ominous threat to the convoy route to American-held Mindoro and Luzon while Japan still had aerial strength in the Philippines. Ships passed within sight of the triangular island.

Report Luzon Gains

In a small-scale operation, other American troops landed the same day, Sunday, on Malanau Island, south of Zamboanga at the southwestern tip of Mindanao.

MacArthur reported that recent mopping-up operations in the Zambales Mountains along Luzon's northwest coast resulted in an additional 2,654 Japanese dead.

To the east, the 25th and 32d divisions were converging on Balete Pass, against increasing opposition. Aircraft lent close support.

Jap Baguio-Sector Positions Bombed

Manila, March 19 (AP)—A 337-ton bombing of Japanese positions around Baguio, supposed Philippine headquarters of Lieut. Gen. Tomoyuki Yamashita, highlighted a series of heavy aerial blows from Formosa to New Guinea announced today by Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

Baguio, Philippine summer capital, is in the mountains of northern Luzon.

The latest of the almost daily attacks on Formosa was disclosed as Pacific Fleet carrier planes struck the enemy homeland 700 miles farther north and B-29's from the Marianas raided Nagova again.

Artillery In Baguio Area

The Baguio raid was in support of 33d Division doughboys, whose heavy artillery was battering the supposed headquarters of Yamashita from less than eight miles away.

Southeast of Baguio, the American 25th and 33d divisions were only three miles from a junction at Santa Fe on the Cagayan Valley road.

The 6th and 43d Division, moved through the Sierra Madre Mountains, east of Manila, into secondary defenses of the Japanese Shimbu Line in the upper Bosoboso River Valley.

Jap Cavalry Routed

There for the first time in the Luzon campaign they encountered Japanese cavalry. The mounted enemy fled after a skirmish.

In southern Luzon elements of Brig. Gen. Hanford MacNider's 158th Regimental Combat team crossed Batangas Bay to land at Talaga and then advanced to Mabini. They were moving to secure the Calumpan Peninsula.

24th Island Seized

Units of Lieut. Gen. Robert Eichelberger's 8th Army occupied Basilan Island, the twenty-fourth of the Philippines invaded by the Yanks since their landing on Leyte last October.

The Basilan invasion was announced by General MacArthur in his Sunday communiqué, which also reported that Japanese casualties in the five months of the Philippine campaign totaled 282,000.

Of this total, 145,000 were killed or captured on Luzon.

The communiqué reported American casualties on Luzon totaled 18,579—of which 3,813 were killed, 190 missing and 14,570 wounded.

Valuables Regained From Manila Vault

Manila, March 19 (AP)—Through bombardment and flames, personal valuables of interned Americans remained intact in safety deposit boxes of the National City Bank's Manila branch.

Walking between piles of rubble on the floor of the scarred building, internees released from Santo Tomas gained access to their valuables and securities for the first time in three years today. They found them unmolested except for a few boxes which Japanese had broken open.

The first woman to enter the vault withdrew a little strongbox, probed eagerly through the papers, pulled out a diamond bracelet, sighed, and smiled happily.

The vaults were entered by drilling a hole through the 18-inch reinforced concrete walls. A soldier climbed through to inspect it for booby traps. Then a bank employé crawled in and opened the vault door from the inside.

He said the main vault had been looted of cash by Japanese, who filled the emptied money bags with rice.

CAPTURE OF IWO SEEN AS BLOW TO JAPANESE MORALE

PEARL HARBOR, March 19—(AP) American capture of Iwo Jima must have been a severe blow to Japanese morale because it proved once more that "we can take any damn thing they've got," Lt. Gen. Holland M. Smith told a press conference today.

Explaining the strategic value of bitterly-won Iwo, Smith—commander of Marine forces in the Pacific—said already 34 Superforts which cost $700,000 each—a total of $23,800,000 have been saved by landings on Iwo's airfields.

51 Superforts Have Landed

(Since General Smith left the island the number of B-29s landing there has increased to 51, 21st Bomber command headquarters said today).

Smith continued:

"When we enlarge airfields on Iwo we won't be restricted to hitting Tokyo. We can hit any part of Japan."

This comment by the top Marine general in the Pacific was the first official announcement that Iwo will become a major base for increasing air assaults on Japan, although correspondents for weeks have been permitted to speculate that it would.

As a staging point and as a haven for Superforts damaged on the long flight from Japan back to their Marianas bases, Iwo already has proved its importance.

"From Iwo our planes can carry three times as much stuff as they have been droping on Japan," Smith said. "Imagine the morale effect on crews in damaged planes who know they have a haven in Iwo.

"Iwo was one of the most amazingly defended strongholds in military history but the Japanese know that fighting Americans took it.

"I wonder how the Japs feel when we can take any damn thing they've got," Smith added. "It must have some effect on their morale when we can take any position we attack. They must be wondering what can happen when we can maneuver."

Smith said he saw one concentration of 13 Japanese artillery batteries on Iwo in an area approximately 1000 yards square.

He said the Japanese had some tunnels 800 yards long, with as many as five exits.

"Watching the Marines cross that island reminded me of the charge of Pickett at Gettysburg," he said.

"Mortar, artillery fire and rockets fell among those troops, but they closed.

"In 37 minutes after the first wave hit the beach, we were on the southern end of the airfield."

Smith said the Iwo battle was fought as planned and that the only surprise was the number of Japanese guns on the island.

He said it was impossible for aerial photographs to locate all guns.

Predicted Casualties

The General said his advance estimate of American casualties—which totaled 19,938 killed, missing and wounded through March 16—proved "100 per cent" correct.

The battle for Iwo was fought the only way it could be fought, he stated, adding that Iwo's value had been decided by "authorities higher than those of us out here. We have nothing to do with selecting an objective. We just take them when they're assigned."

Smith said future battles with the Japanese will be tough, but "I don't believe they can be tougher than Iwo. Any time you run into a Jap you run into a fight.

"On Iwo there was only one large counterattack—by 1,500 Japs. By actual count, the Fourth Marine division killed 1,361 of them.

"I say again this was the toughest fight we have had so far."

Smith said he had visited Iwo wounded in Hawaii hospitals. Two men who had lost legs both asked him whether they couldn't be assigned to some selected duty and stay in the Marine corps.

"If there had been any question whether there would be a Marine corps after the war, the battle of Iwo would assure there always will be a Marine corps," Smith stated.

"There never was any doubt the battle of Iwo would be won. After the first two waves hit that beach Iwo was ours.

"Now we're sitting in Japan's front yard."

Japan Admits Loss Of Iwo

San Francisco, March 19 (AP)—Japan today admitted the loss of Iwo Jima.

The Government-controlled Tokyo radio reported that the Japanese garrison made their "last general attack" at midnight Saturday "after one month of bitter resistance."

The broadcast, recorded here, said Marines had gradually broken through defense positions and, "consequently, the communications have more or less the tendency to stop."

Jap Formal Surrender

By Staff Sergeant Francis H. Barr

[Marine Corps Combat Correspondent, Distributed by the Associated Press]

Iwo Jima, March 18 [Delayed]—Two officers of the Japanese Army Medical Corps and two corpsmen surrendered to Marines early today.

The surrender occurred on the northern tip of this island where the 9th Regiment, 3d Marine Division, is mopping up Japanese remnants.

Return For Swords

The Japanese officers and corpsmen, cut off from their combat troops, were hiding in a cave. The senior Japanese officer, a first lieutenant, persuaded a second lieutenant and the two enlisted men to surrender. The Japanese officers, with Marine guards flanking them, returned to their cave and retrieved their buried swords for the official surrender ceremony.

On a hill pock-marked with small craters and littered with battle debris, the enemy officers and enlisted men stood at attention. On their flanks were two Marines, with rifles at "present arms."

Salute Returned

The two American officers marched in step toward the Japanese, halting three paces forward, and saluted. The Japanese returned the salute. Then, the enemy officers offered their swords, cradled in their hands.

Not a word was said by either the Americans or the Japanese as the Americans accepted the swords. Then Lieutenant Vincent spoke to the enemy, "This is very regrettable, but it can't be helped." One of the enemy officers replied: "We only hope the war will be over as soon as possible. We have done all that we know how."

ATC FLYING WOUNDED MARINES FROM IWO

U. S. AIR TRANSPORT COMMAND, OAHU, Hawaii, March 19—(AP) The Pacific air transport command disclosed today that American wounded are being flown from Iwo Jima at the rate of more than 300 a day and from the Philippines at about 1,000 monthly.

The ATC, in addition to air evacuation of the wounded and the sick and delivery of hundreds of tons of vital war supplies to the MacArthur command, is operating daily "de luxe passenger" flights between California and the Philippines. Actual flying time for the flight of 7,820 miles via Hawaii, Johnston Island, Kwajalein and Guam, is 43 1-2 hours.

Turbay Majority Seen In Colombian Chamber

Bogota, Colombia, March 19 (AP). Supporters of Gabriel Turbay, former Ambassador to Washington, asserted tonight he had gained a majority of the Liberal seats in the Colombian Chamber of Deputies, assuring him of at least one third of the votes of the presidential nominating convention of 1946.

Representatives elected in yesterday's Congressional elections will make up one-third of the delegates to the presidential convention where they will vote as a block.

With 629,000 votes counted of an estimated 800,000 cast, it appears that the Liberal party will have at least 80 of the 131 seats.

Return To Constitution Is Urged In Argentina

Buenos Aires, March 19 (AP)—Former Socialist leaders in Buenos Aires province appealed today to all democratic forces to unite in a "great national movement" for the restoration of constitutional government in Argentina.

It was the first open attempt by members of any political group to coalesce liberal forces since the advent of the present military government.

The manifesto was signed by 400 former Socialist congressmen, municipal officials and labor union leaders who acted as individuals since as a political group their action would have been illegal.

Move For Recognition Forecast

Rio de Janeiro, March 19 (AP)—Pedro Leao Velloso, Acting Foreign Minister, said today that Argentina may take steps shortly to win recognition from the other American republics. He also indicated Brazil may re-establish relations with Russia within a week.

Back from the Inter-American Conference at Mexico City and a visit to Washington, Leao Velloso told correspondents:

"I expect that the Argentine Government will subscribe to the declaration of Chapultepec," hemisphere mutual defense agreement adopted at Mexico City. A preliminary to such action by Argentina would be a declaration of war against the Axis.

WAR ISSUE UP IN ARGENTINA

Cabinet To Decide Today On Declaration Against Axis

Washington, March 19 (AP)—The Argentine Government is slated to decide tomorrow whether to declare war at once on both Germany and Japan.

President Edelmiro Farrell, according to diplomatic informants here, has called a Cabinet meeting at which the critical question of bringing Argentina's foreign policies into line with those of the other American nations will come up.

There was no definite assurance that war would be declared. It is understood that some persons powerful in the country favor a declaration against Japan but not against Germany.

Sentiment For War On Both

On the other hand, analysis of press comment and other indications of public reaction to the Inter-American Conference at Mexico City have been favorable to action against both countries.

The big question in other American capitals has been whether the present Argentine administration, which has been diplomatically isolated by the other Americas for many months, could bring about such a radical change in its foreign policy as a declaration of war would require.

Personnel Changes Suggested

There is speculation that if the declaration is made there may be some changes in Government personnel, although the discussions here do not extend, on the record at least, to what persons might be involved.

A declaration of war against both Axis countries is understood to be the first important step that Argentina would have to take in order to re-enter the American family of nations.

Revolutionary Plot In Peru Frustrated

Lima, Peru, March 19 (AP)—Two noncommissioned officers and a small group of men attempted to seize Air Minister General Fernando Melgar at Ancon airbase yesterday in a revolutionary coup, but were quickly arrested, the Peruvian Government announced today.

Melgar, spending the week end at the base, 25 miles north of Lima, "re-established discipline" with the aid of other officers and "complete tranquillity prevails in Lima and throughout the entire country," the bulletin added.

The leaders of the revolt had been in touch with the illegal "Aprista faction," which was "attempting without success to undermine the discipline of the armed forces," the Government declared.

PERU QUELLS REVOLT

Lima, March 19 (A. P.).—The Pe... ... annou... today an attempted revolutionary coup was smashed yesterday at Ancon airbase, twenty-five miles north of Lima, with the arrest of two non-commissioned officers and a small number of men. The rebels attempted to seize Air Minister Gen. Fernando Melgar, who was spending the week end at the base, but Gen. Melgar quickly "re-established discipline" with the aid of other officers. Lima is quiet as is the entire country, the Government said, linking the leaders of the revolt to the outlawed "Aprista faction."

The Apra party was originally headed by Victor Raul Haya de la Torre, unsuccessful candidate for the presidency in 1932.

Amnesty For Honduran Rebels

Tegucigalpa, Honduras, March 19 (AP)—Many students and military men who abandoned Honduras after unsuccessfully seeking to overthrow the Government are returning under an amnesty granted by President Tiburcio Carias Andino, who is personally paying the plane passages of many.

Paper Shortage Fells 2 More Havana Dailies

Havana, March 19 (AP) — Two more Havana dailies suspended publication today as the newsprint shortage continued acute.

The management of the morning papers Alerta and Mañana announced they would not resume publication until new stocks of newsprint were received from the United States.

The Government paper Siempre previously had suspended.

The midmorning daily El Crisol suspended several days ago, but resumed publication upon receipt of an emergency shipment of paper.

Other Havana papers have cut down their editions.

Canada And 'Frisco Parley

Ottawa, March 19 (AP) — Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King asked Parliament today to approve Canadian participation in the San Francisco conference on the ground that establishment of the proposed world security organization "is of vital importance to Canada" and "to the future well-being of mankind."

Opening a short session to shape Canada's program for the parley, King won assent to his plan to deal immediately with the conference, putting off until afterward debate on other matters which may develop into strong attack on his Government's handling of war problems, particularly conscription.

Main Points Stressed

The Government's motion to unify Parliament behind nonpartisan participation in the San Francisco conference, expected to pass without serious opposition, stressed these main points:

"That the house recognizes that the establishment of an effective international organization for the maintenance of international peace and security is of vital importance to Canada and indeed to the future well-being of mankind, and that it is in the interests of Canada that Canada should become a member of such an organization," and

"That this house approves the purposes and principles set forth in the proposals of the four (sponsoring) governments and considers that these proposals constitute a satisfactory general basis for a discussion of the charter of the proposed international organization."

Debate on the motion will open tomorrow.

Election Soon After April 17

The Government announced in the speech from the throne opening the session that the previously announced general election would be held "shortly" after expiration of the present Parliament April 17.

Because of election notices required by law and to allow for campaigning after a war-bond drive scheduled to last through early May, the election is expected to be delayed until late June or early July.

San Francisco, March 19 (A. P.).—The Tokyo radio reported today that a fleet of Allied submarines has moved from waters off Indo-China into the China Sea to cut off Japan's supply lines to her conquered southern territory. The broadcast was recorded by the FCC.

Tokyo Modifies School Blackout

San Francisco, March 19 (AP)—Japan's blackout of education for all school children beyond the first grade was modified to a brownout today.

A Sunday broadcast said that beginning April 1, all Japanese students from second-graders to university students would be mobilized for the war machine.

Modifying that statement in a broadcast intercepted here today, Radio Tokyo said that the "cessation of studies is not to be carried out unconditionally," and "students will stop studying in classrooms only when they are called out by the mobilization laws."

These laws and their enforcement are now being prepared by Premier Kuniaki Koiso's Cabinet, Education Minister Count Hideo Kodama informed the lower house of the Diet.

JAP EXPRESS TRAIN SCHEDULES CANCELLED

SAN FRANCISCO, March 19. — (AP) Tokyo radio today reported cancellation of most of Japan's express train schedules to provide extra trains for evacuation of Tokyo and other bomb-damaged cities.

Another Tokyo broadcast, also recorded by the Federal Communications commission, said the Tokyo metropolitan council approved an emergency appropriation of 63,000,000 yen for air raid building "decentralization."

JAPANESE TAKE EMERGENCY STEPS

SAN FRANCISCO, March 19—(AP) Air-raid jittery Japan, battered anew by U. S. carrier aircraft and B-29 Superfortresses, reported further emergency home-defense measures Monday.

They included curtailment of education to permit student mobilization; cancellation of train schedules to provide more cars for evacuating cities, and the speeding up of Tokyo's building decentralization program. The school curtailment plan modified a previous announced shutdown.

Tokyo radio also reported, in another broadcast recorded by the Federal Communications commission, that a fleet of Allied submarines had moved into the China sea to cut Japan's shipping lines southward.

The loss of Iwo Jima was finally admitted in a broadcast which said the Japanese garrison made a "last general attack at midnight Saturday."

An Imperial communique said the U. S. carrier planes were attacking southwestern Japan for the second day Monday and claimed five warships of the raiding task force were sunk and one damaged. This was entirely without confirmation from U. S. Pacific fleet headquarters, which had announced only Sunday carrier aircraft raids on Kyushu island airfields.

Tokyo claimed four of some 350 Superfortresses raiding Nagoya for the second time in eight days were shot down. The U. S. 20th air force reported none lost to enemy action.

COMMUNICATIONS MONOPOLY URGED

WASHINGTON, March 19—(AP) Secretary Forrestal laid before Congress today a Navy proposal for a vast post-war monopoly of American international communications.

He called for creation of a new private corporation for consolidation of "all commercial international communication services by cable and radio, including radiotelegraph and radiotelephone."

While the monopoly would be privately-owned, one-fourth of its directors would be government officials, representing the War, Navy, Commerce, State and Postoffice departments.

Forrestal told a Senate Interstate Commerce committee, opening public hearings on postwar international communications policy:

"The mobilization and co-ordination of these facilities and services in times of national emergency are made difficult by the number of competing interests which must be reconciled.

"Furthermore, our system is the antithesis of that which exists in most foreign countries, where we generally find international communications either owned or controlled by the government.

"This has proven a disadvantage to our interests in international communication negotiations and agreements. Many onerous toll, tariff and circuit arrangements have resulted from the ability of foreign enterprise, presenting a united front, to play our competing commercial interests against each other."

He said the new corporation should be privately owned and characterized by the advantages of private management and operation, with no government participation in its daily affairs; but with full government support and guidance of its activities to the extent required for the protection of government interests, especially those of military and diplomatic communications."

Rear Admiral Joseph R. Redman testified that Congress should fix the rules for the operating monopoly.

Redman, director of Naval communications, said the new company ought to be chartered by Congress, contended that there is little chance that the "13 highly competitive companies" now in the field could consolidate voluntarily.

Chairman Wheeler (D-Mont.) asked Forrestal whether press-radio communications could be exempt under the Navy proposal, but was told that that was a "technical" question that depended on the technical feasibility of any exemption.

Communication Monopoly Aim Of Forrestal

Washington, March 19 (AP)—Navy Secretary Forrestal recommended today the postwar consolidation of all international communication systems under Government-supervised private ownership.

Forrestal testified before a Senate Interstate Commerce subcommittee inquiring into the establishment of a national policy respecting communications.

The navy chief said he had come reluctantly to the conclusion that a monopoly controlling radio, cables, telephone and other American communication facilities abroad was vital to postwar economy and military security.

Would Make It "Mandatory"

Forrestal said the consolidation should be "mandatory," and embrace all facilities abroad under a new privately owned corporation. The Government, he said, should not be permitted to own any part of it but confine its interest to guidance in the interest of economy and military security.

The corporation, he continued, should not have any foreign capital and should be prohibited from engaging in any other business.

The Navy Secretary said that virtually every other country in the world either owns or controls their communication facilities abroad.

Congress Could Set Rules

Outlining the Navy's plan in more detail, Rear Admiral Joseph R. Redman said the proposed consolidation must take in all forms of communication in the international field, including radio and cables.

Redman, who is director of naval communications, argued that Congress could set the rules for the operating monoply, which he said should be privately owned and privately managed.

Redman said a new company ought to be chartered by Congress, contending there is little chance that the "thirteen highly competitive companies" which he said now are in the field, could consolidate voluntarily.

Suggests Incorporators

The Admiral suggested that the Secretaries of State, War, Navy, Commerce and the Postmaster General act as the original incorporators of the monopoly.

"Their interest would continue thereafter only within the very narrow limits of participation prescribed for their representatives on the directorate," he said.

The amount of stock to be held by an individual or group would be limited and none could be held by a company manufacturing communication equipment or operating another communication service.

15 Civilian Directors

Fifteen directors to be elected by the stockholders would serve with the five government directors, who would be clothed with some veto powers and would be able to order the institution of service to points determined to be strategic.

Redman said Federal Communications Commission controls should be extended by Congress to cover toll, traffic and administrative arrangements of the new corporation.

His Mission To Swizerland A Full Success, Says Currie

MAR 20 1945

Washington, March 19 (AP)—Lauchlin Currie, White House economic expert, today reported "complete success" in his mission to persuade Switzerland to break off all except symbolic economic dealings with Germany.

Currie, an administrative assistant to President Roosevelt, has just returned from the Alpine country and said that these objectives had been accomplished:

1. The Swiss have frozen all German assets in the country, including those held through Swiss nationals. They are described as being fairly substantial in amount.

2. They have stopped the exporting, importing and dealing in all foreign currencies in order to provide greater control over enemy flight capital which might seek refuge in Switzerland.

3. With certain minor exceptions the Swiss national bank undertook not to purchase any more gold from Germany.

can-French negotiators to bring in a quantity of miscellaneous foodstuff and industrial raw materials.

Swiss To Get Raw Materials

From the United States they will obtain mostly raw materials which will move by Swiss ships, and across Spain and France by train.

Concurrent with Currie's return it was said here the success of his mission had been greatly promoted by the conviction of the Swiss that the Germans have lost the war and by their strong sympathies for the Allied cause which they were not able to express during the years they were completely surrounded by German forces.

"I can consider," Currie said, "that we had complete success on all our objectives and particularly that the suspension of coal shipments to Italy has seriously weakened the German forces in North Italy."

American control in the postwar years. Already, he said, Germans have fled by the thousands from the area Russia will occupy.

Gore resigned from the last Congress to become an army private and left the service to return to Congress only a few weeks ago.

The operation of the military government system, he said, is working out generally satisfactorily, the "mistakes" made thus far being "not important."

Misfits Cited

There is evidence, he said, that some military government personnel "are misfits," and the "misuse and misassignment of manpower in some cases seemed profligate."

"Hanging Hitler and his gang, writing German textbooks and having the right kind of schoolteachers tell German children what a fine thing democracy is," he said, will not suffice in the re-education of Germany to ways of peace.

"We will have to reach much deeper into the German social and political structure than the schools and over more than one generation," he said.

Gore suggested that as "permanent security" against future German aggression, Germany be occupied permanently after the war, and the German nation be broken up as a unified political and military entity.

Gore said the army's policy of non-fraternization with German citizens is good in theory but difficult to inforce.

"We had best take stock of ourselves," Gore said, "and formulate a program of action sufficiently in keeping with American character that it can be inforced and applied to American soldiers as well as be supported by public opinion at home."

MAR 20 1945

Three Possibilities

Gore told the House he believed the only permanent security against future German aggression lies in one of these measures:

1. Permanent occupation of Germany.

2. Dissolution of the German nation as a unified political and military entity.

3. Building of a Germany desiring to live in peace with other civilized nations.

Re-education of Germany, Gore said, entails reaching "much deeper into the German social and political structure than the schools and over more than one generation."

ACHESON DENIES BIG LOAN PLAN

Says No One Dreams of It.

"Nobody is dreaming of a $20,000,000,000 loan program," he testified. "There is no authority under lend-lease to make such loans. Persons administering the law are honorable men and they will not do anything not permitted in the law."

The rumors "are absolutely untrue," he said.

When committeemen, considering the Bretton Woods agreements, questioned the war use of a recent $2,500,000,000 lend-lease agreement with the French Provisional Government, Mr. Acheson analyzed the provisions and argued that they did not contemplate a post-war program for France.

Several governments, he told the committee, have approached the United States about post-war loans, but have been informed that there is no law to permit it. He added that Congress itself must determine whether America would make post-war loans beyond its participation in the proposed international bank.

15 More Japanese Vessels Sunk By American Submarines

Washington, March 19 (AP)—United States submarines have added fifteen more Japanese vessels, including five warships, to their bag of enemy shipping in the Pacific.

The Navy said today the latest report from the American undersea fleet accounted for the sinking of three Japanese destroyers, two escort vessels and ten merchant ships, ranging from a large tanker to a small cargo ship.

The new report brings the total of enemy ships sunk by American submarines to 1,072. Of these 117 are warships and 995 noncombatant vessels.

The text of the navy communiqué:

"Pacific area:

"1. United States submarines operating in Far Eastern waters have sunk fifteen enemy vessels, including two escort vessels and three destroyers.

"The vessels sunk were: Three destroyers, 2 escort vessels, 1 large tanker, 1 large cargo transport, 6 medium cargo vessels, 1 medium transport, 1 small cargo vessel.

"2. These actions have not been announced in any previous Navy Department communiqué."

4. The Swiss Government has made broad commitments to facilitate the restitution of looted property to its proper owners, but this will take years to work out. By making the commitment the Swiss acknowledged the existence of such property in Switzerland.

5. The Swiss made a "clearing agreement" with the French to help reconstruction by allowing France to import from Switzerland more goods than they export to Switzerland.

6. The Swiss have cut off all electricity exports to Germany and a substantial amount of Swiss electricity may be diverted to France. A French-Swiss SHAEF committee is studying this.

7. The Swiss stopped completely the shipment through Switzerland of German coal on which General von Kesselring's forces depended heavily. No coal has reached Kesselring through Switzerland for about a month. Some nonmilitary supplies continue to move through Switzerland between Germany and northern Italy, but they are very small.

For their part the Swiss got an agreement from the Anglo-Ameri-

NAZI SACRIFICE HELD USELESS

Gore, In Broadcast, Urges Germans To Ease Future

Washington, March 19 (AP)—An ex-GI Congressman, Representative Gore (D., Tenn.), called upon Germans today to cast off the yoke of nazism and "lessen their suffering" now and in the future by surrendering.

Parts of the speech he made in the House were beamed to Germany by the Office of War Information.

The 37-year-old Tennessean said his three months of army service, much of it with military government units in occupied Germany, had convinced him the Nazi leadership not only is "uselessly sacrificing the lives of German soldiers and civilians" but is piling up "the misery and suffering which the German people must endure" after the war.

Responsibility Denied

"If the conflict is prolonged and all Germany's resources are destroyed," he said, "it will be of no avail for the German people to say that because we have conquered them it is our responsibility to feed them."

Largely because of German fear of the Russians, Gore predicted, half of the population of Germany after the war will crowd into the one third of Germany to be under

Misuse Of Manpower Laid To AMG In Reich

Washington, March 19 (AP)—Evidence of "misuse and misassignment of manpower" by the American Military Government in occupied Germany was reported to Congress today by Representative Gore (D., Tenn.) on the basis of a personal investigation.

"There is evidence that some personnel of military government were transferred to this branch of the service because they were surplus or misfits in other branches," Gore said in a report to the House. "Some of them are misfits in military government, too.

"Though these are small in number, one is too many in a job so vital as the execution of policies of occupation of Germany."

Gore recently returned from the European theater where he spent three months as an army private studying military government. He resigned from the seventy-eighth Congress after his return to this country.

The Tennesseean said misuse of manpower by the military government, "in some cases seemed profligate," adding:

"In the case of both officers and men there was evidence of haphazard assignment of duty."

Practical Program Needed

Says Rumored Aid to Allies Is Not Dreamed Of.

Washington, March 19 (A. P.).—Assistant Secretary of State Dean Acheson denied categorically today rumors that the United States is considering loans aggregating about $20,000,000,000 to Russia, Great Britain and China under lend-lease authority.

Moreover, he told the House Banking Committee, there is absolutely no authority in the lend-lease law for loans to other governments for post-war relief, rehabilitation and reconstruction.

Mr. Acheson answered a statement by Representative Wolcott of Michigan, ranking committee Republican, that rumors were going the rounds that such large lend-lease agreements were under consideration. Mr. Wolcott said that this matter should be cleared up before Congress acts on the Bretton Woods agreements establishing an international bank and currency stabilization fund.

OPA FREEZES MARK-UPS ON CLOTHES, DRY GOODS, AND HOUSEFURNISHINGS

Acts To Aid Public In Forthcoming Lowered Factory Prices

Washington, March 19 (AP)—The Office of Price Administration tonight froze the price mark-ups of some 300,000 retailers selling clothes, dry goods, furniture and house furnishings. The aim, the agency explained, is to insure that consumers get the benefit of lowered factory prices which are forthcoming.

The action was announced by Chester Bowles, price administrator, as half of the War Production Board-OPA plan to cut clothing costs six to seven per cent and "return greater quantities of lower-priced goods to the civilian market."

As Own Price Policemen

Each store was frozen to the mark-up margin that it had in use today, March 19. Price-tagging provisions were written into the order to help shoppers become their own price policemen.

The action will not roll back retail price increases which already have taken place on garments, shoes, dry goods, lamps and the other products affected, Bowles said, but it will guarantee that when their cost to the retailer is reduced, the price to the customer also will go down.

"Our main objective has been to work out a pricing method which would give consumers direct and immediate benefits as a result of reductions in manufacturers' prices," Bowles said. "We believe the new regulation will accomplish our purpose."

Roll Back To 1942 And 1943

OPA already has announced its "maximum average price order," designed to roll back manufacturers' price lines to the average level of the years 1942 and 1943. The new action ties consumer prices into that rollback.

"It also clears the way for price reductions at retail when similar programs, now in the planning stage, restore production of more furniture and house furnishings in lower price ranges," the price administrator reported.

Each dealer was directed to prepare immediately pricing charts showing his own margins over net invoice cost for all goods offered for sale today..

Regulations For Storekeeper

Copies of the charts must be filed with OPA district offices by April 20. Unless the storekeeper has received an acknowledgment by mail from OPA by May 4, it is illegal for him to sell or deliver goods covered by the order.

Consumers, the price chief stated, will be able "to see at a glance how much they should pay for goods." Ceiling price tags must be attached to the articles themselves, or must be marked on the shelf, rack or bin.

Following is a summarized listing of the articles covered:

All types of cotton clothing except those already under dollars-cents price ceilings; most types of rayon and woolen clothing for men, women, children and infants.

This includes overcoats, top coats, suits, underwear, lounging wear, night wear, beach wear, rain wear, sweaters, women's foundation garments and children's knitted outer wear.

Shoes, both rationed and unrationed, and house slippers.

Yard goods for home sewing.

Certain types of furniture, including beds, dressers, bedroom chairs, cedar chests, dining room and dinette sets, upholstered chairs, rockers and sofas, desks, kitchen cabinets and kitchen chairs, unfinished furniture and outdoor furniture; floor coverings, lamps, bedding and other articles.

Household textiles such as sheets, pillow cases, towels, blankets and curtains.

Bowles said more than a year of study and discussion with the trade had resulted in the new method of controlling clothing prices, which have risen fifteen per cent since March, 1942, and home furnishing prices, which have risen seventeen per cent.

American-Born Japanese Seek Alien Standing

6,000 of 7,000 at Tule Lake Would Renounce U. S. Citizenship, Engle Asserts

WASHINGTON, March 19 (AP).—Approximately 6,000 of the 7,000 Japanese-Americans over seventeen years old in the Tule Lake, Calif., segregation center have asked for citizenship renunciation petitions, Representative Clair Engle, Democrat, of California, said today.

The Californian said he got the figure from Attorney General Francis Biddle who also told him that 150 Japanese-Americans in other relocation camps or communities likewise have moved in the same way to renounce their American citizenship.

"We should not have to fool around with any of these Japs who have acknowledged they are disloyal, or with their families," Mr. Engle said. "So long as they remain in this country they are a source of danger, for their children will become American citizens by reason of birth. Such citizens, growing growing up in the homes of parents who have renounced their own citizenship do not promise to become assets to this nation."

He quoted a letter from Mr. Biddle which said:

"The reports which have been received indicate that, in addition to those persons who wish to renounce their citizenship for political reasons, a considerable number of persons seem to be motivated in large part by the desire to obtain a refuge until a termination of hostilities with Japan and the belief that they will be required to leave the segregation center and find places to live and work unless they renounce their citizenship and are interned."

Mr. Biddle said hearings on the applications are now in process at Tule Lake and that approximately 1,500 of the persons heard have signed written renunciations of citizenship, which will become effective with his approval.

Applications of about 150 pro-Japanese leaders have been approved and the applications transferred to the alien enemy internment camp at Santa Fe, N. M.

ACTION DELAYED ON WILLIAMS VOTE

WASHINGTON, March 19.—(AP) Senators bent on rejecting President Roosevelt's nomination of Aubrey Williams as REA administrator forced it to the Senate floor today but ran into what they termed "filibustering tactics."

Williams' backers, asserting they had no desire to delay a showdown vote unduly, acknowledged they intended to speak at length. They said it was necessary to "clear up the record" because Williams had been much misrepresented.

A 52 to 33 vote put aside the Mexican water treaty and brought up the nomination although Majority Leader Barkley of Kentucky vigorously opposed taking it up, as did Senators Lucas (D-Ill), Ellender (D-La) and Thomas (D-Okla), supporters of Williams.

The vote, on a motion by Senator Bankhead (D-Ala), was not regarded, however, as an out-and-out test of sentiment on Williams.

The motion was supported, for instance, by Senator Downey (D-Calif) who is opposed to the water treaty but has indicated he will vote for Williams. On the other hand, Chairman Connally (D-Tex) of the Foreign Relations committee voted against the motion although opposed to confirmation of Williams.

Nearly two hours of debate preceded the vote with Williams' backers contending there is no need for hurry—that REA's activities had largely been suspended by the war.

Williams' nomination is for a 1-year term at a $12,000 salary.

With the nomination finally before the Senate, many of Williams' opponents walked out as Lucas took up the cudgels for the former WPA official and National Youth administration head.

Attacking assertions that Williams has been affiliated with "Communist front" organizations, Lucas said the allegation was based on "discredited testimony" by J. B. Matthews, an investigator for the Old Dies committee on un-American activities.

Lucas expressed "resentment" when Senator McKellar (D-Tenn) remarked at one point that "somewhat of a filibuster is on."

SENATE TO PROBE SHORTAGES IN FOOD

Krug Asks Armed Forces to Scale Down Demand for Supplies.

MAR 20 1945

WASHINGTON, March 19.—(AP) Amid increasing signs that the American horn of plenty is running out, Congress undertook today to find causes and remedies for the food shortage.

At the same time Chairman J. A. Krug of the War Production board said that in order to protect a "bed rock" home economy back of the war effort, he is asking the fighting forces to scale down demands.

It was emphasized everywhere that there is no actual prospect of a civilian economy breakdown, but at the same time there was no effort to disguise the fact that the time has come when any claimant's call for goods and supplies must be measured against the importance of other claims.

That was the explanation given for the deep cut in meat Lend-Lease shipments to England which accompanied allocation orders cutting American civilians to the lowest meat supply in ten years. The same went for Krug's brake on military demands.

The announcement on meat made Saturday, was what set Congress off.

The Senate led off with unanimous authorization for a food investigation by a Senate Agriculture committee. A $5,000 expense fund for hearings was provided. Senator Lucas (D-Ill.), successfully urging quick approval of the proposal, pointed out that a similar group made a food inquiry last year.

The House displayed equal concern, with three members introducing investigation bills and several others making speeches.

Reps. Anderson (R-Minn.) and Rees (R-Kan.) submitted measures directing the House Agriculture committee to investigate and Rep. Anderson (D-N.M.) proposed creation of a special five-member committee for the job.

The New Mexican asked specifically for a check into Lend-Lease shipments, foreign food stockpiles, the government's order reducing civilian meat supplies 12 per cent after April 1, and meat black markets.

Opponents of the recently expanded induction program for young farmers, meanwhile, shoved through the House a resolution for an investigation of that subject.

The resolution was approved 122 to 33 after some members had stressed the declining supplies of eatables.

FOOD STOCKS SEEN ADEQUATE IN U. S.

MAR 20 1945

WASHINGTON, March 19—(AP) War Food Administrator Marvin Jones asserted tonight that the nation "can take a new hitch" in its belts and assure adequate food for U. S. military services and our Allies.

That does not mean actually doing without, he said, but rather taking substitute for foods that are in short supply.

Jones declared that there is still a good supply of food in the United States, sufficient if properly distributed and shared to assure "a good, wholesome diet."

In a statement prepared for delivery over the Blue network, Jones said:

"I have every faith in the patriotism of our people and their willingness to make any essential sacrifices that may be necessary at this critical stage of the war and to do so uncomplainingly.

"We all realize the necessity of sharing this food and playing square with our neighbors, or our fighting forces, and our Allies."

The food administration listed meat, lard, fats and sugar among items in which supply is less than the over-all requirements but said other commodities are plentiful.

"Only because of the food that we were able to furnish the Russians and our other fighting Allies have they been able to carry on as they have in their military operations," he said. "This not only serves them, it serves ourselves as well."

He added there are certain relief needs, especially following battle, that must be met. In addition, people of the United States, on a per capital basis, have been eating more than they did before the war.

Powerless to Enforce Curfew In New York City, Byrnes Says

WASHINGTON, March 19.—(AP) War Mobilizer James F. Byrnes said today he is powerless to crack down on New York's defiance of his midnight curfew, but he appealed anew for nation-wide coperation.

"We must convince our fighting forces that the home front is prepared to sacrifice for their support," said Byrnes in a statement which he declared had the "full approval" of President Roosevelt.

"Now is not the time to relax in any way our effort at home," the Director of War Mobilization and Reconversion said of Mayor Fiorello LaGuardia's announcement that New York night spots may stay open until 1 a. m.

Byrnes' appeal was an obvious effort to avoid a spread to other cities of LaGuardia's modification It was plain that the big town's defiance could conceivably mean the beginning of the end for the 12 o'clock closing limit, since Byrnes said he could not enforce it without the support of local authorities.

"The government has no police force of its own available to discover local violations," he said. "It has no intention of building up such a force. It is obvious that this effort would in itself be a diversion from the war effort.

"I believe that a controversial enforcement of the measure in New York City without the support of local officials would be impossible."

But he added that "the government does not intend to withdraw" its curfew request and continued:

"Measures of this type adopted by the Federal government must apply uniformly throughout the country. We can not set one standard for New York city and another standard for the rest of the country."

Describing himself as "surprised" by LaGuardia's action, Byrnes said the enforcement measures available to the government "cannot be applied without the full cooperation of local authorities."

Byrnes expressed confidence that the entertainment trade and patrons in general will cooperate, and said the measures available to the government will be applied where local authorities report infractions.

Asks Supreme Court To Reconsider Jurisdiction Stand

Washington, March 19 (AP)—Attorney General Biddle asked the Supreme Court today to reconsider its refusal to take immediate jurisdiction of the Montgomery Ward case.

The Court last Monday refused to pass on legality of Government seizure of Ward properties in seven cities, stating in effect that the case must first be acted on by the 7th Federal Circuit Court.

Time Element Important

Solicitor General Charles Fahy had asked the Supreme Court to agree to consider an appeal taken directly from the decision by the United States District Court in Chicago that the Army seizure was illegal. Such direct appeal would obviate the customary argument before the Circuit Court and speed the final decision by the highest tribunal.

Biddle in asking reconsideration of Fahy's request said it appeared unlikely that the Circuit Court could hear and decide the case in time to permit a final decision by the Supreme Court before the latter adjourns in June.

"If this is so," Biddle said, "more than six months must elapse before there can be a decision that finally establishes the rights and obligations of the United States and Ward in this case.

"Even if it is assumed that the decision of the District Court is correct, the United States in the interests of preserving industrial peace and preventing interruptions of essential production must continue to operate the properties until a final decision by the Supreme Court even though that course of action may require the United States to invest substantial sums of money in the operation of the properties and to incur the risks of substantial liability to Ward. . . ."

New York-Rome Cable Rate Set

WASHINGTON, March 19 (AP)—The State Department made known today re-establishment of pre-war cable rates for Government messages between New York and Rome. The cable is not yet open to press dispatches, officials said. Fixing rates took place in Anglo-American meetings in London in which representatives of Cable and Wireless, Ltd., British Empire concern, and Western Union and Commercial Cable Company, United States concerns, also participated.

FOR THE THIRD STRAIGHT DAY U.S. LIGHTNINGS FLEW FROM ITALY AND BOMBED GERMAN POSITIONS IN YUGOSLAVIA IN FRONT OF MARSHAL FEODOR I. TOLBUKHIN'S RUSSIAN FORCES. ITALY-BASED LIBERATORS AND FORTRESSES STRUCK AT THE LANDSHUT RAILYARDS 55 MILES NORTHEAST OF MUNICH ON THE REGENSBURG LINE AND THE MUHLDORF YARDS 65 MILES EAST OF MUNICH. MITCHELL MEDIUMS FROM ITALY COMPLETED THEIR 5,000TH SORTIE AGAINST THE BRENNER RAIL ROUTE THROUGH THE ALPS.

A HIGH PERSONAGE IN BRITAIN'S WAR COUNCILS TOLD A SPECIAL PRESS CONFERENCE THAT ONLY ONE OF GERMANY'S 20 SYNTHETIC OIL PLANTS STILL WAS OPERATING AND THAT ALL BUT 19 OF THE COUNTRY'S 78 COKE OVEN PLANTS HAD BEEN KNOCKED OUT.

HE SAID SHORTAGES WERE SERIOUSLY LIMITING THE MOBILITY OF THE GERMAN ARMY AND REDUCING THE EFFECTIVENESS OF THE ENEMY AIR FORCE. HE DECLARED ONE GERMAN TANK FORCE WAS ORDERED NOT TO USE ANY GASOLINE FROM THE END OF DECEMBER UNTIL IT WAS SENT TO THE FRONT, AND THEN WAS GIVEN AN INADEQUATE AMOUNT.

THE BRITISH OFFICIAL, WHOSE NAME MUST REMAIN ANONYMOUS, SUMMED UP BY SAYING THAT THE ALLIES AIR CAMPAIGN WAS HAVING AN "ALMOST DECISIVE" EFFECT ON THE ENEMY'S WAR EFFORT.

FROM STOCKHOLM CAME WORD THAT HUGE FIRES STILL WERE RAGING IN BERLIN TODAY 24 HOURS AFTER A FORCE OF 1,300 U.S. BOMBERS RAINED 3,000 TONS OF BOMBS ON THE BATTERED NAZI CAPITAL.

TWENTY-FIVE AMERICAN BOMBERS AND FIVE FIGHTERS WERE MISSING FROM THE ASSAULT, WHICH WAS MADE THROUGH INTENSE FLAK BARRAGES AND JET FIGHTER OPPOSITION. THE RAF LOST 12 BOMBERS AND ONE FIGHTER OUT OF NEARLY 1,000 PLANES WHICH ATTACKED TWO RUHR BENZOL PLANTS SUNDAY AFTERNOON AND FIVE COMMUNICATIONS TARGETS LAST NIGHT. MOSQUITOS HIT BERLIN FOR THE 27TH STRAIGHT NIGHT.

ONE OF THE PRINCIPAL TARGETS OF THE AMERICAN ATTACK ON THE ENEMY CAPITAL WAS THE SPRAWLING RHEINMETAL-BORSIG ARMAMENT WORKS, ONE OF THE LARGEST IN THE WORLD. AN ENTIRE DIVISION OF 400 LIBERATORS FIRST BOMBED THE PLANT AND THEN SPRAYED THE WRECKAGE WITH FIREBOMBS, LEAVING BUILDINGS BURNING THROUGHOUT THE 25-BLOCK FACTORY AREA.

THE PLANT, ON THE NORTHWEST SIDE OF BERLIN, EMPLOYED 25,000 PERSONS IN MAKING A WIDE VARIETY OF WAR MATERIALS, INCLUDING TANKS, GUNS AND TORPEDOES.

HEAVY DAMAGE ALSO WAS DONE TO THE SCHLESISCHER RAILROAD STATION AND THE NORTH STATION FREIGHT YARDS, WHILE MANY BOMB CLUSTERS HIT BUILDINGS AT TEMPLEHOF AIRDROME AND THE BORSIG ARMORED VEHICLE FACTORY IN THE INDUSTRIAL SUBURB OF HENNINGSDORF.

BOTH BLOWS APPARENTLY WERE CARRIED OUT IN GREAT STRENGTH.

U.S. FLYING FORTRESSES AND LIBERATORS WHICH HIT BERLIN SUNDAY RAINED 3,000 TONS OF BOMBS ON THE BATTERED CAPITAL AT THE CRUSHING RATE OF 50 TONS A MINUTE. IT WAS THE 34TH SUCCESSIVE DAYLIGHT ASSAULT UPON GERMANY BY AMERICAN WARPLANES.

SEVEN HUNDRED U.S. FIGHTERS ACCOMPANIED THE GREAT ARMADA OF HEAVY BOMBERS.

WHILE THE YANK BOMBERS CONCENTRATED ON RAILROAD YARDS IN THE HEART OF BERLIN AND ARMAMENT PLANTS IN THE INDUSTRIAL SUBURBS, ONE GROUP OF AMERICAN MUSTANGS RANGED BEYOND AND TEAMED UP WITH 15 RUSSIAN FIGHTER-PLANES IN DEFENDING A RUSSIAN-HELD AIRFIELD EAST OF THE ODER RIVER FROM NAZI DIVE-BOMBERS.

THE GREAT AMERICAN ARMADA WAS MET BY A HAIL OF FLAK OVER BERLIN AND THE NAZIS, IN A DESPERATE EFFORT TO WARD OFF THE HEAVY BOMBERS, SENT JET PLANES SWIRLING INTO THEIR FORMATIONS.

AMERICAN LOSSES WERE NOT DISCLOSED, BUT THIRTEEN OF THE NAZI INTERCEPTORS, INCLUDING SEVERAL OF THE JET PLANES, WERE KNOCKED OUT OF THE SKIES, A U.S. STRATEGIC AIR FORCE COMMUNIQUE ANNOUNCED.

IN SOUTHWEST GERMANY, U.S. TACTICAL AIR COMMAND PLANES SMASHED AT GERMANY'S PALATINATE WITH RECORD QUANTITIES OF AMMUNITION IN SUPPORT OF THE FAST-MOVING TROOPS OF THE U.S. THIRD ARMY.

A11 MAR 20 1945

FIRING MORE THAN 500,000 ROUNDS OF AMMUNITION AND HUNDREDS OF ROCKETS, THESE PLANES ALSO ACCOUNTED FOR SEVEN NAZI PLANES DESTROYED AND TWO PROBABLY DESTROYED. EIGHT AMERICAN PLANES WERE KNOCKED OUT BY ANTI-AIRCRAFT FIRE.

THE GREATEST NUMBER OF THE AMERICAN HEAVY BOMBERS IN THE BERLIN RAID SMASHED AT THE SCHLESISCHER RAILWAY CENTER AND NORTH STATION FREIGHT YARDS IN THE GUTTED NAZI METROPOLIS.

TARGETS FOR THE REST OF THE AMERICAN ARMADA INCLUDES THE RHEINMETAL BORSIG PLANT AT TEGEL, SIX MILES NORTHWEST OF THE CITY, AND A TANK FACTORY AT HENNINGSDORF, 11 MILES NORTHWEST.

RAF LANCASTERS ALSO JOINED THE BIG DAYLIGHT OFFENSIVE SUNDAY.

A FORCE OF 400 OF THE RAF SHIPS WITH ESCORTING MUSTANGS ATTACKED TWO RUHR BENZOL PLANTS -- ONE 10 MILES EAST OF BOCHUM AND THE OTHER NORTH OF HATTINGEN, BRINGING TO SEVEN THE NUMBER OF BIG FUEL TARGETS FROM THE RUHR TO THE LEIPZIG-DRESDEN AREA HIT BY PULVERIZING ATTACKS IN THE LAST 24 HOURS.

TARGETS LAST NIGHT INCLUDED RAILYARDS AT KASSEL AND NUERNBERG. THE AIR MINISTRY REPORTED THAT 12 BOMBERS AND ONE FIGHTER MISSING FROM EIGHT DAYLIGHT AND NIGHT OPERATIONS.

TYPHOONS AND SPITFIRES OF THE BRITISH SECOND TACTICAL AIR FORCE YESTERDAY AFTERNOON SWOOPED ON THE HEADQUARTERS OF THREE GERMAN GENERALS IN HOLLAND, NORTHEAST OF ARNHEM.

PILOTS REPORTED ALL THREE NAZI NERVE CENTERS WENT UP IN SMOKE. THE TARGETS WERE VILLAS USED AS HEADQUARTERS BY COL. GEN. JOHANNES BLASKOWITZ, COMMANDER OF THE NAZI NORTHERN ARMY GROUP, GEN. FRIEDRICH CHRISTIANSEN, COMMANDER IN THE NETHERLANDS, AND COL. GEN. KURT STUDENT, GERMAN PARATROOP COMMANDER.

THE EFFECTIVENESS OF THE AMERICAN ATTACK ON BERLIN YESTERDAY WAS SUMMED UP BY CAPT. HARRISON CORDOFF, OF MECHANICSVILLE, N.Y., ONE OF THE ESCORTING FIGHTER PILOTS.

"THE BOMBERS MOWED A PATH RIGHT DOWN THE CENTER OF BERLIN AND I COULD SEE FIRES AND EXPLOSIONS RAGING ALL OVER THE PLACE," HE SAID.

AMERICAN MUSTANGS AND LIGHTNINGS OF THE U.S. 15TH AIR FORCE BASED IN ITALY HAD THEIR MOST SUCCESSFUL DAY OF STRAFING OPERATIONS THIS YEAR. THEY DESTROYED 54 LOCOMOTIVES IN RAIDS OVER AUSTRIA, HUNGARY AND YUGOSLAVIA.

THE BOMB-CARRYING LIGHTNINGS DESTROYED ONE SPAN AND DAMAGED SIX OTHERS OF THE BRIDGE ACROSS THE DRAVA RIVER AT VARAZOIN, YUGOSLAVIA. THE MUSTANGS SHOT DOWN TWO HEINKEL BOMBERS. RAILYARDS IN THE VIENNA AREA WERE HIT, AS WELL.

LONDON, MARCH 19-(AP)-CONCEDING THAT THE UNITED STATES' VAST WAR PRODUCTION CAPACITY WILL BE TURNED IN PART TOWARD EXPORT TRADE WHEN PEACE RETURNS, GREAT BRITAIN'S DEPARTMENT OF OVERSEAS TRADE TODAY GAVE AN ANALYSIS OF THE UNITED STATES ITSELF AS A PROSPECTIVE MARKET FOR BRITISH GOODS.

"THE U.S. A. OFFERS A RICH BUT NOT EASY MARKET," SAID A REVIEW

OF COMMERCIAL CONDITIONS PUBLISHED BY THE DEPARTMENT AFTER OBSERVING THAT THE EXISTENCE OF INCREASED CAPACITY BECAUSE OF HUGE WARTIME EXPANSION WILL CAUSE UNITED STATES INDUSTRY "TO DO ITS UTMOST TO FILL EVERY DOMESTIC DEMAND."

THE DEPARTMENT SAID IT IS REASONABLE TO EXPECT THERE WILL BE AN INCREASE IN THE VALUE OF UNITED KINGDOM EXPORTS TO THE UNITED STATES, WHICH IN 1939 TOTALED $149,400,000. THIS WILL BE PROPORTIONATE ROUGHLY TO THE EXPECTED RISE IN THE LEVELS OF CONSUMPTION WITHIN THE UNITED STATES.

BUT THE "MADE IN BRITAIN" LABEL WILL NOT BE ENOUGH TO TAKE ADVANTAGE OF OPPORTUNITIES OFFERED BY THE UNITED STATES MARKET, THE REPORT ADDED.

BRITAIN MUST ADVERTISE AND SEEK PUBLICITY FOR HER PRODUCTS, THE DEPARTMENT SAID, AND IT IS "ESSENTIAL THAT UNITED KINGDOM EXPORTERS ENSURE THAT THEIR GOODS BE PRESENTED BY METHODS SIMILAR TO AND EQUALLY AS EFFICIENT AS THOSE USED BY U.S. A. DISTRIBUTORS OPERATING IN THE U.S.A."

IT WAS SUGGESTED THAT THE AMERICAN CITIZEN BE MADE A PERMANENT TRAVELLING SALESMAN WITHIN THE UNITED STATES FOR BRITISH PRODUCTS AND A VISITING REPRESENTATIVE GO FROM BRITAIN ON FREQUENT TRIPS.

THE DEPARTMENT OFFERED THIS TROUGHT TO BRITISH PRODUCERS: "UNITED STATES MANUFACTURERS EXPECT THE VERY HIGHEST PERFORMANCE FROM THEIR DISTRIBUTORS AND ARE HARD TO SATISFY. UNITED KINGDOM EXPORTERS ARE OFTEN CRITICIZED FOR NOT DEMANDING ENOUGH OF THEIR AGENTS."

THE U.S.SEVENTH ARMY WAS 14 MILES FROM A JUNCTION WITH THE THIRD ARMY IN THE HEART OF THE SAAR BASIN AFTER BREAKING CLEAR THROUGH THE SIEGFRIED LINE EAST OF SAARBRUECKEN. SUCH A JUNCTURE WOULD SEAL OFF SAARBRUECKEN, THE CAPITAL, AND MOST OF THE BASIN'S STEEL MILLS.

AS THE SEVENTH ARMY MOVED INTO GERMANY ON A 60-MILE FRONT, THE FRENCH FIFTH ARMORED DIVISION ON THE EAST FLANK INVADED GERMANY NEAR THE RHINE AND CAPTURED SCHEIBENHARD, 10 MILES WEST OF ANOTHER ENEMY ESCAPE HATCH AT KARLSRUHE.

OTHER FRENCH UNITS WERE FIGHTING IN NEARBY LAUTERBOURG, NINE MILES FROM KARLSRUHE. THIS WAS THE FIRST TIME FRENCH UNITS HAD INVADED GERMANY SINCE THEIR HOMELAND FELL TO THE GERMANS IN 1940.

ONE COLUMN OF THE TENTH ARMORED DIVISION IN A SIX-MILE ADVANCE ALSO REACHED A POINT 14 MILES WEST OF KAISERSLAUTERN, KNOCKING OUT NINE TANKS ENROUTE. TWO OTHER COLUMNS OF THE SAME DIVISION WERE 15 TO 23 MILES FROM KAISERSLAUTERN AFTER FIVE-MILE ADVANCES.

THE THIRD TRAP WAS DEVISED TO SNAP SHUT IN THE CENTER OF THE SAAR AND LACKED 14 MILES OF CLOSING AFTER THE SEVENTH ARMY CLEARED THE SIEGFRIED BARRIER AND THIRD ARMY INFANTRY TO THE NORTH CAPTURED ST. WENDEL AND DROVE ANOTHER MILE SOUTH INTO OBER LINZWEILER.

THE FOURTH ARMORED DIVISION, THE ONE THAT MADE THE RHINE VALLEY BREAKTHROUGH, WAS RUNNING INTO ROUGHER OPPOSITION AS IT CUT ACROSS THE LINES OF GERMAN FORCES WASHING OVER INTO ITS PATH IN RETREAT FROM THE CHARGE OF THREE OTHER ARMORED DIVISIONS.

NEVERTHELESS, IT BATTLED ON EAST TWO AND A HALF MILES BEYOND THE BROKEN NAHE RIVER LINE, CLEARING WOLFSHEIM, 12 MILES SOUTHWEST OF MAINZ, AND PLUNGED FOUR MILES SOUTHEAST OF FALLEN BAD KREUZNACH INTO WOLLENSTEIN.

THE SECOND TRAP WAS DEVISED TO SNAP SHUT IN THE CENTER OF THE SAAR, AND LACKED 15 MILES OF CLOSING AFTER THE SEVENTH ARMY HURLED THE SIEGFRIED BARRIER AND 10TH ARMORED DIVISION ELEMENTS OF THE THIRD ARMY THRUST SOUTHWARD INTO ST.WENDEL.

THE THIRD AND SMALLEST TRAP WAS RIVETED BY THE 11TH ARMORED AND AN UNIDENTIFIED TANK DIVISION, WHICH JOINED NEAR MERZWEILER, 18 MILES NORTHWEST OF KAISERSLAUTERN.

FRENCH TROOPS ASSIGNED TO LT.GEN.ALEXANDER M.PATCH'S SEVENTH ARMY CROSSED INTO GERMANY IN THE AREA OF LAUTERBOURG, ON THE GERMAN-FRENCH BORDER NORTH OF STRASBOURG AND NINE MILES WEST OF KARLSRUHE.

THE DEPTH OF THE PENE RATION WAS NOT DISCLOSED, NOR WAS ITS EXACT LOCATION.

A SHORT DISTANCE WESTWARD, THE 14TH ARMORED DIVISION, ENTERING THE OFFENSIVE FOR THE FIRST TIME, ALSO WAS TRAVELING UNDER A BLACKOUT AFTER IT HAD CLEARED THE BORDER CITIES OF WISSEMBOURG AND ALTENSTADT IN A SIX-MILE PUSH.

THE GERMANS WERE PUSHED BACK INTO THE REICH FROM THE HARDT MOUNTAINS ON THE FRONT OF THE 42ND AND 103RD DIVISIONS FARTHER WEST, AND THESE TWO OUTFITS WERE CLOSING ON THE SIEGFRIED LINE ONE TO TWO MILES NORTH OF THE ENEMY FRONTIER.

LT.GEN.COURTNEY H.HODGES' U.S. FIRST ARMY BATTLED OUT ONTO THE GERMAN PLAIN ALONG THE RHINE AND AT POINTS FIVE MILES EAST OF THE RIVER, ENCOUNTERING SURPRISINGLY LITTLE RESISTANCE IN SOME SECTORS.

FOR EXAMPLE, THEY STRUCK NEARLY TWO MILES NORTH ALONG THE RHINE INTO OBERCASSEL AGAINST LIGHT OPPOSITION, ALTHOUGH THIS PUSH THRUST THEM PAST THE LAST OF THE HIGHLANDS ON THE EAST BANK AND PUT THEM ON THE ROLLING HILLS 18 MILES SOUTH OF THE RUHR BASIN.

FIVE MILES FARTHER EAST, OTHER FORCES LIKEWISE REACHED THE PLAIN IN A THRUST AT NONNENBERG, WHERE THEY BEAT OFF TWO SMALL TANK-LED COUNTERBLOWS.

STOCKHAUSEN, EIGHT MILES EAST OF THE RHINE, FELL TO INFANTRY ATTACKING WITH THE SUPPORT OF ROCKET AND ARTILLERY FIRE.

SOUTHEAST OF STOCKHAUSEN, MORE OF THE RUHR SUPERHIGHWAY WAS SEIZED BY TROOPS THAT CAPTURED WINDHAGEN AND HOHN AND ENTERED DINKELBACK,

WHICH ALSO IS EIGHT MILES EAST OF THE RHINE.
THE NORTHWARD PUSH, HOWEVER, ASSUMED THE GREATEST IMPORTANCE, SINCE IT WAS CUTTING IN BEHIND THE ENEMY'S RHINE LINE AND ITS EAST-BANK POSITIONS WERE ABOUT TWO MILES FROM POINTS OPPOSITE BONN, WHERE BAILEY BRIDGES MAY BE SUPERIMPOSED ON THE BLOWN RHINE BRIDGES TO PROVIDE ADDITIONAL CROSSINGS.
THE FIRST ARMY ALSO WAS BEGINNING TO MOVE AGAIN ON THE SOUTH FLANK, AND HAD PROGRESSED TWO AND A HALF MILES BEYOND THE ENEMY'S FALLEN STRONGHOLD OF HOENNINGEN.
THESE FORCES HAD DRIVEN THROUGH RHEINBROHL AND HAD ENTERED NEDER HAMMERSTEIN.
AMERICANS ON THIS FLANK ALSO WERE DEEPENING THE BRIDGEHEAD. AMONG THE TOWNS CLEARED WAS ROCKENFELD, THREE MILES EAST OF THE RHINE.

TO THE NORTH, THE SHAPE OF THINGS TO COME WAS A ROUGH TRIANGLE EAST OF THE RHINE WITH ITS APEX AIMED TOWARD BERLIN--269 MILES AWAY--AND ITS NORTHERN POINT OPPOSITE BAD GODESBERG, LESS THAN 17 MILES FROM THE RUHR.
THE LOSS OF THE LUDENDORFF BRIDGE WAS AN IMPEDIMENT, BUT AT LEAST ONE PONTOON BRIDGE WAS IN USE AND BY THE MIDDLE OF LAST WEEK, THE GERMANS ESTIMATED THAT LT.GEN.OMAR N.BRADLEY HAD AT LEAST 100,000 MEN ACROSS THE RHINE. REPAIRS WERE UNDERWAY ON THE PERMANENT SPAN, AND THE ADVANCE NORTHWARD WAS NEARING THE BONN AND COLOGNE BRIDGES OVER WHOSE WRECKAGE PERHAPS BAILEY BRIDGES COULD BE BUILT.
SIX MILES OF THE RUHR-FRANKFURT SUPERHIGHWAY WAS IN AMERICAN HANDS. THE FIRST ARMY WAS AT LEAST A MILE EAST OF THE MILITARY ROAD IN THE RUGGED WESTERWALD.
THE WIED RIVER, PARALLELING THE RHINE, WAS CROSSED IN THE CENTER OF THE INNER GERMAN BULGE. AT NIEDER DOLLENDORF, THE FIRST ARMY WAS WITHIN TWO OR THREE MILES OF THE INDUSTRIAL CITY OF BEUEL, CROSS RHINE SUBURB OF BONN.
AT LEAST FOUR OF THE 14 DIVISIONS PATTON WAS KNOWN TO BE USING IN HIS THIRD ARMY MANEUVERS WERE ARMORED. THE THIRD ARMY CAPTURED AN ESTIMATED 5,500 PRISONERS YESTERDAY.
THE 11TH ARMORED DIVISION, FIGHTING WEST OF THE FOURTH ARMORED DIVISION'S BREAKTHROUGH, ADVANCED UP TO FIVE MILES. ONE COLUMN DROVE TO A POINT 17 MILES SOUTHWESTWARD OF CAPTURED SIMMERN. ANOTHER STRUCK TO THE VICINITY OF KIRN ON THE NAHE RIVER. RHAUNEN FELL.
ONLY SEVEN MILES SEPARATED THE 11TH AND ANOTHER ARMORED DIVISION WHICH PATTON HAD NOT IDENTIFIED. THIS NEW OUTFIT WAS HITTING NORTHEASTWARD FROM THE AREA EAST OF SAARBURG AND GRASPING FOR CONTACT WITH THE 11TH TO TRAP THOUSANDS OF GERMANS. THE NEW DIVISION CAPTURED REICHENBACH, 13 MILES NORTHEAST OF ST.WENDEL, AND THEN ADVANCED FIVE MILES TO THE WISELBACH VICINITY SOUTHWEST OF KIRN.
THE 76TH DIVISION MADE TWO NEW CROSSINGS OF THE MOSELLE, BUT DETAILS WERE CENSORED. THE TENTH ARMORED AND THE 94TH INFANTRY DIVISIONS ADVANCED TO THE VICINITY OF BERGWEILER. THE TENTH ARMORED TEAMED WITH THE 80TH INFANTRY DIVISION TO ENTER ST.WENDEL (8,700). ANOTHER COLUMN OF THE TENTH CAPTURED BERSCHWEILER, NINE MILES NORTHEAST OF ST.WENDEL, AND REACHED THE VICINITY OF BAUMHOLDER NEARBY.

PATTON'S 80TH DIVISION, FOLLOWING THE ARMOR, CLEARED EIGHT TOWNS 17 TO 20 MILES SOUTHEAST OF SAARBURG. THE 26TH DIVISION IN THE SAME AREA ADVANCED TWO TO FIVE MILES EAST ON A FOUR MILE FRONT EAST OF THE CAPTURED SIEGFRIED LINE PIVOT OF MERZIG--WHERE THE MAIN AND SWITCH LINES MEET.
IT WAS THE 76TH DIVISION WHICH SEIZED DILLENGEN, CAPTURED BEFORE IN DECEMBER BUT GIVEN UP VOLUNTARILY WHEN PATTON SWUNG TO ATTACK THE SOUTH FLANK OF THE ARDENNES BULGE. THE 76TH MOVED A MILE EAST OF DILLINGEN WHERE SCORES AND SCORES OF PILLBOXES HAD BEEN REDUCED ONE BY ONE BEFORE CHRISTMAS. BESIDES THE LARGEST SAARLAND STEEL MILL, A TANK FACTORY USED TO OPERATE IN THE CITY OF 15,000.

THE SEVENTH ARMY'S 14TH ARMORED DIVISION WAS ENGAGED IN A STIFF BATTLE AT LAUTERBOURG, SIEGFRIED LINE PIVOT.
A FEW MILES WEST OF WISSEMBOURG, THE 103RD DIVISION CROSSED THE PALATINATE BORDER YESTERDAY AT THE SAME SPOT WHERE THE SEVENTH ARMY INVADED GERMANY THREE MONTHS AGO, BEFORE BEING FORCED BACK IN JANUARY.
THE 14TH ARMORED DIVISION OVERRAN THE VILLAGES OF HATTEN AND RITTERSHOFFEN, WHERE ONE OF THE GREATEST DEFENSE ACTIONS OF THE WESTERN FRONT WAS FOUGHT IN JANUARY.

THE 36TH DIVISION TURNED NORTH FROM CAPTURED SOULTZ AND ADVANCED FIVE MILES AGAINST LIGHT RESISTANCE.
THE ENEMY THREW REPEATED COUNTERATTACKS AT THE THIRD DIVISION BUT DID NOTHING TO SLOW ITS ADVANCE NEAR PIRMASENS.
THE 45TH DIVISION KNOCKED OUT A DOZEN WEST WALL PILLBOXES IN BLIESKASTEL AND WEBENHEIM AREAS, 12 MILES EAST OF SAARBRUECKEN, BUT STILL HAD A FIGHT ON HAND TO CLEAR THOSE TOWNS WHICH ARE PARTS OF THE SIEGFRIED LINE. GERMAN ARTILLERY FIRE INCREASED IN THAT AREA.

DESPITE THE COLLAPSE OF THE CENTRAL PORTION OF THE LUDENDORFF SPAN SATURDAY, LT.GEN.COURTNEY HODGES' DOUGHBOYS FANNED OUT IN ALL DIRECTIONS FROM THEIR BRIDGEHEAD, CROSSING THE SIX-LANE SUPERHIGHWAY TO THE RUHR IN A NEW PLACE AND CAPTURING AN AIRFIELD EAST OF THE ROAD.
AN OFFICIAL ANNOUNCEMENT SAID THE BRIDGE, OVER WHICH VITAL MEN AND SUPPLIES HAD POURED INTO THE BRIDGEHEAD AREA, COULD BE REPAIRED QUICKLY. (A BROADCAST BY THE AMERICAN BROADCASTING STATION IN EUROPE RECORDED BY CBS DECLARED THE BRIDGE "HAS BEEN ALMOST COMPLETELY REPAIRED.")
ON THE SOUTH SIDE OF THE SAAR-MOSELLE-RHINE TRIANGLE THE U.S. SEVENTH ARMY WAS SMASHING THROUGH THE SIEGFRIED LINE ON A 50-MILE FRONT, AND TWO MILES SOUTH OF ZWEIBRUECKEN WAS ONLY 28 MILES FROM PATTON'S TROOPS ON THE NAHE IN THE VICINITY OF NOHEN.
(A BBC BROADCAST SAID THE ARMIES WERE ONLY 15 MILES APART AFTER PATTON'S FORCES HAD SMASHED INTO ST.WENDEL, 18 MILES NORTHEAST OF SAARLAUTERN).
PATTON'S ARMORED SPEARHEADS HAD CROSSED THE NAHE AT BAD KREUZNACH, 21 MILES SOUTHWEST OF MAINZ, VITAL ESCAPE CITY FOR THE GERMANS ON THE RHINE'S WEST BANK.
THIRD ARMY TANKS HAD REACHED THE NAHE AT POINTS ALONG ITS ENTIRE LENGTH, AND CONTROLLED A 30-MILE STRETCH OF THE RHINE SOUTH OF CAPTURED COBLENZ TO BINGEN, THE LATTER ONLY 17 MILES FROM MAINZ. PATTON'S FOURTH ARMORED DIVISION AT BAD KREUZNACH WAS 63 MILES FROM PATCH'S SEVENTH ARMY SPEARHEAD MIDWAY BETWEEN HAGUENAU AND WISSEMBOURG.

A17
THE THIRD ARMY'S 11TH ARMORED DIVISION MADE THE GREATEST GAINS YESTERDAY, SPEARING 13 MILES TO THE NAHE IN THE VICINITY OF KIRN, ABOUT 42 MILES SOUTH OF COBLENZ. THE NAHE BRIDGE AT KIRN WAS BLOWN. A NEW ARMORED DIVISION, AS YET UNIDENTIFIED, REACHED NOHEN, THREE MILES EAST OF CAPTURED BIRKENFELD AND 15 MILES SOUTHWEST OF KIRN.
GERMAN TROOPS FLEEING FROM THE SAAR WERE CLOGGING THE HIGHWAYS, AND AMERICAN FIGHTERBOMBERS TOOK ADVANTAGE OF GOOD WEATHER TO SPREAD HAVOC AMONG THEM.
THE WESTERN ENEMY ANCHOR OF MERZIG, 30 MILES SOUTHWEST OF BIRKENFELD, WAS CAPTURED BY PATTON'S WIDE-RANGING FORCES.
AT THE NORTHERN END OF THE REMAGEN BRIDGEHEAD HODGES' FORCES PUSHED 1,000 YARDS TO DOLLENDORF, AND REACHED HIGH GROUND A MILE NORTH OF BRUENGSBERG, EAST OF THE AUTOBAHN.
IN THE CENTER THEY CROSSED THE AUTOBAHN THREE MILES SOUTHWEST OF HOEVEL AND TOOK THE AIRFIELD SOUTH OF WINDHAGEN. AT THE SOUTHERN END OF THE BRIDGEHEAD THEY SPEARED AHEAD MORE THAN A HALF MILE AND CAPTURED A HILL FOUR MILES EAST OF HOENNINGEN.
LOSS OF THE LUDENDORFF BRIDGE, EVEN TEMPORARILY, WILL NOT IMPAIR

THE FIRST ARMY'S ABILITY TO HOLD THE BRIDGEHEAD, OFFICIALS SAID. AT LEAST ONE PONTOON BRIDGE AND PROBABLY OTHERS WERE KEEPING MEN AND MATERIALS ROLLING ACROSS THE RHINE.

AMERICAN AERIAL SUPPORT WAS WHIPPING THE GERMANS RETREATING BEFORE LT.GEN.ALEXANDER PATCH'S SEVENTH ARMY FORCES, WHICH YESTERDAY HAD ADVANCED FIVE TO SEVEN MILES THROUGH SIEGFRIED DEFENSES IN A PUSH THAT WAS HEADING NORTH PAST THE SAAR CAPITAL OF SAARBRUECKEN.

PATCH'S 63RD INFANTRY DIVISION PLOWED DEEP INTO FORTIFICATIONS AT HECKENTHALHEIM, SIX MILES EAST OF SAARBRUECKEN, AND THREE MILES TO THE NORTHEAST WAS SEVEN AND A HALF MILES INTO THE NAZI DEFENSES AFTER REACHING THE VICINITY OF NIEDERWUERZBACH.

THIS DRIVE, TOGETHER WITH ONE FARTHER EAST, WAS OUTFLANKING THE GERMAN STRONGPOINT OF ZWEIBRUECKEN, 15 MILES EAST OF SAARBRUECKEN. SEVENTH ARMY INFANTRY WAS WITHIN TWO MILES OF ZWEIBRUECKEN ON THE SOUTH AND THREE MILES ON THE WEST. SEVEN MILES NORTHEAST OF BITCHE PATCH'S 100TH INFANTRY GAINED THREE MILES AND ENTERED THE REICH.

TWENTY MILES SOUTHEAST OF ZWEIBRUECKEN THE 42ND DIVISION CLEARED PHILLIPSBOURG IN AN ADVANCE THROUGH MINE FIELDS IN THE HARDT MOUNTAINS, AND DROVE BEYOND THE MAIN HIGHWAY LEADING 15 MILES SOUTHEAST OF HAGUENAU.

THREE VILLAGES FIVE TO SIX MILES NORTH AND NORTHWEST OF HAGUENAU WERE CLEARED OF THE ENEMY. FRENCH TROOPS CAPTURED SOUFFLENHEIM AND RUNTZENHEIM, EIGHT MILES EAST OF HAGUENAU, AND FOUGHT TO THE EDGE OF FORT LOUIS, ONE OF THE ANCHORS OF THE FRENCH MAGINOT LINE ON THE RHINE'S BANK.

GEN. EISENHOWER CONFERRED YESTERDAY WITH PATTON AT THE LATTER'S HEADQUARTERS. PATTON DISCLOSED HIS ARMY HAS FOUR COMPLETE ARMOR DIVISIONS, PLUS 10 TANK BATTALIONS, PARTICIPATING IN THE PRESENT OFFENSIVE.

HELSINKI, MARCH 19-(AP)-FINLAND'S VOTERS GAVE SUBSTANTIAL THOUGH NOT DECISIVE SUPPORT TO EXTREME LEFTIST CANDIDATES SATURDAY AND SUNDAY IN PARLIAMENTARY ELECTIONS GENERALLY ACCEPTED AS A TEST OF THE NATIONAL ATTITUDE TOWARD SOVIET RUSSIA.

INCOMPLETE RETURNS REPRESENTING MORE THAN HALF THE TOTAL VOTE INDICATED THE COMMUNISTIC DEMOCRATIC PEOPLE'S UNION HAD POLLED 236,370 VOTES AGAINST 241,227 FOR THE SOCIAL DEMOCRATIC PARTY--HERETOFORE THE STRONGEST POLITICAL FORCE IN FINLAND. A TOTAL OF 492,448 VOTES WERE DIVIDED AMONG THE NATION'S OTHER FOUR PARTIES, ALL CONSERVATIVE IN CHARACTER.

BECAUSE THE SOCIAL DEMOCRATIC PARTY'S CANDIDATES FAILED TO PRESENT A UNITED FRONT--ONE GROUP REPRESENTING THE OLD ANTI-RUSSIAN TANNERITES AND THE OTHER PRO-RUSSIAN OPPOSITION WITHIN THE PARTY--THEIR STRENGTH IS DIVIDED AND HENCE NOT SO IMPORTANT AS THE BARE FIGURES WOULD INDICATE.

COUNTING OF THE VOTE WAS COMPLICATED BY THE DISCLOCATION OF NORMAL VOTING MACHINERY DUE TO THE DISPLACEMENT OF HUNDREDS OF THOUSANDS OF PERSONS FROM DEVASTATED LAPLAND AND FROM BORDER AREAS CEDED TO RUSSIA. MOREOVER SOME 20,000 REFUGEE FINNS NOW LIVING IN SWEDEN ARE QUALIFIED VOTERS AND ARRANGEMENTS WERE MADE FOR THEM TO VOTE.

ELECTION OFFICIALS SAID THE BALLOTING WAS FAR HEAVIER THAN IN 1936, WHEN 1,300,000 VOTED.

BUCHAREST, MARCH 19-(AP)-ROMANIA'S INDUSTRY, UNTIL RECENTLY UNDER GERMAN DOMINATION, IS STEPPING UP PRODUCTION AND ALREADY MAKING SIZABLE CONTRIBUTIONS TO THE FRONT.

TWO EXAMPLES ARE THE GOVERNMENT-OWNED GRITITZA LOCOMOTIVE WORKS, PARALYZED BY A HEAVY AMERICAN BOMBER RAID APRIL 4, 1944, AND THE PRIVATELY-OWNED VULCAN METAL WORKS WHOSE OUTPUT INCLUDES MORTARS AND OTHER ARMAMENTS, AND KITCHEN EQUIPMENT.

AT THE GREAT GRITITZA PLANT, SKILLED AND UNSKILLED WORKERS ARE LABORING TO REPAIR 500 LOCOMOTIVES KNOCKED OUT BY THE BOMBING, WHICH WAS ESTIMATED TO HAVE 1,200 TO 1,600 WORKERS.

THIS IS A SCENE FROM THE WORKERS' BUCHAREST, QUITE DIFFERENT FROM DOWNTOWN BUCHAREST CROWDED WITH STORES FULL OF MERCHANDISE, LUSH RESTAURANTS, NIGHT CLUBS AND HOTELS. IN THE PLANTS ARE BANNERS DECLARING "L ND FOR THE PEASANT," "LONG LIVE OUR ALLIES," AND "WE WANT AN ALLIANCE WITH THE USSR."

THE AMERICANS' APRIL BOMBING REDUCED BUCHAREST'S RAILWAY TRAFFIC FROM 200 TRAINS DAILY TO ABOUT 12, SAID VASILE BAGU, CHAIRMAN OF A NEW TRADES UNION IN THE LOCOMOTIVE REPAIR WORKS.

WORKERS AT THE VULCAN METAL PLANT SAID PRODUCTION NOW IS 110 PER CENT MORE THAN UNDER THE GERMANS. THEY CREDIT THIS RISE TO THE OUSTING OF THE GERMANS, TO WORKERS' REPRESENTATION IN EVERY BRANCH OF THE PRIVATELY-OWNED FACTORY, AND TO WAGE INCREASES OF 70 TO 110 PER CENT SINCE LAST AUGUST FOR UNSKILLED AND SKILLED EMPLOYES. AND THE FACTORY IS OPERATING AROUND-THE-CLOCK.

ALLIES TURNED OUT EQUIPMENT FOR THE GERMANS DURING THE OCCUPATION.
BUT ROMANIA'S PRESENT GOVERNMENT IS TRYING TO TAKE A LOGICAL VIEW OF THIS, MINISTER OF JUSTICE LUCRETIU PATRASCANU SAID, FOR IF EVERYONE WAS JAILED WHO TECHNICALLY HAD WORKED FOR THE NAZIS, INDUSTRY WOULD BE PARALYZED.

"IT IS THOSE AGENTS WHO THREW ROMANIA TO THE GERMANS WHO MADE ALL THIS POSSIBLE," HE SAID, ADDING THAT 250 PERSONS NOW WERE IN JAIL AND UNDERGOING PRELIMINARY INVESTIGATION FOR POSSIBLE TRIALS UNDER THE WAR CRIMINALS LAW SCHEDULED FOR PRESENTATION TO THE GOVERNMENT NEXT WEEK.

PATRASCANU SAID THE GOVERNMENT HAD ADOPTED A "MORE LIBERAL ATTITUDE" TOWARD OPERATORS OF FACTORIES COMMANDEERED BY THE GERMANS. THE ALLIES ARE ANXIOUS TO KEEP PLANTS GOING AND GROWING UNTIL THEY CAN SUPPLY AN ENTIRE SECTOR OF THE FRONT.

THE FIRST OF THE WAR CRIMINALS TO BE BROUGHT TO TRIAL MAY BE MARSHAL ION ANTONESCU, FORMER PREMIER, AND THE CLASSIFICATION WILL INCLUDE PERSOS IN POWER BEFORE HIM, PATRASCANU SAID.

CHUNGKING, MARCH 19-(AP)-THE CHINESE HIGH COMMAND SAID TONIGHT THAT CHINESE TROOPS HAD SURROUNDED KANHSIEN, SITE OF A FORMER U.S. AIR BASE, AND THAT FIERCE FIGHTING WAS IN PROGRESS FOR THE KIANGSI PROVINCE CITY.

IN HUNAN PROVINCE JAPANESE TROOPS INSIDE THE BESIEGED CITY OF ANJEN, 38 MILES EAST SOUTHEAST OF HENGYANG, RECEIVED REINFORCEMENTS AND LAUNCHED A HEAVY COUNTERATTACK AGAINST CHINESE POSITIONS. THE HIGH COMMAND SAID THE JAPANESE APPARENTLY WERE DETERMINED TO HOLD ANJEN AS THE LOSS OF THE CITY WOULD IMPERIL THEIR OVERLAND COMMUNICATIONS IN HUNAN.

CALCUTTA, MARCH 19-(AP)-INCREASING ENEMY COUNTERATTACKS INDICATED TODAY THAT TRAPPED JAPANESE FORCES IN CENTRAL BURMA MAY BE CONTEMPLATING A BREAKTHROUGH EFFORT IN THE VICINITY OF MEIKTILA, 75 MILES SOUTH OF MANDALAY.

ATTACKS AGAINST THE ALLIED POSITIONS IN THE MEIKTILA AREA HAVE BEEN REPULSED WITH HEAVY LOSSES TO THE JAPANESE. THE ENEMY HAS NO ARMOR TO MATCH THE BRITISH CONCENTRATION OF GENERAL SHERMAN TANKS, WHICH ARE TAKING A HEAVY TOLL.

THE ALLIES NOW HOLD MAYMO, HSIPAW AND LASHIO, THE THREE MOST IMPORTANT TOWNS ON THE MANDALAY-LASHIO ROAD, AND IN THE AREA AROUND MEIKTILA AND THAZI ARE ASTRIDE ALL JAPANESE COMMUNICATION LINES SOUTHWARD FROM MANDALAY. THE COMPLETE FALL OF MANDALAY APPEARS IMMINENT.

A JAPANESE IMPERIAL COMMUNIQUE, BROADCAST BY TOKYO-RADIO, CLAIMED -- ENTIRELY WITHOUT AMERICAN CONFIRMATION -- THAT FIVE U.S.WARSHIPS OF THE CARRIER FORCE WERE SUNK, ONE DAMAGED AND 46 CARRIER PLANES SHOT DOWN. TOKYO RADIO PREVIOUSLY HAD CLAIMED FIVE U.S.WARSHIPS WERE SUNK AND NINE DAMAGED.

ON MINDANAO, THE 31ST DIVISION YANKS, WITH TANK SUPPORT, STEADILY EXPANDED THEIR POSITIONS NORTH OF SAN ROQUE AND PASONANCA, AND 829 DEAD WERE FOUND ABANDONED BY THE ENEMY.

HEAVY BOMBERS DROPPED 249 TONS OF BOMBS ON FORMOSA AIRDROMES DESPITE POOR VISIBILITY. AT LEAST EIGHT PARKED PLANES WERE DESTROYED AND AIRDROME FACILITIES WERE SET ABLAZE. NORTHERN BORNEO WAS HIT WITH 118 TONS.

-A HEADQUARTERS COMMUNIQUE MONDAY DISCLOSED THAT PHILIPPINE-BASED YANK AIRMEN STRUCK AGAINST THE JAPANESE OVER THE WIDE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC AND CHINA SEA FRONTS WHILE SUPERFORTRESSES AND SWARMS OF CARRIER PLANES BLASTED THE NIPPON HOMELAND.

THE AMERICAN FLIERS LASHED WIDELY SEPARATED TARGETS IN THE PHILIPPINES, FORMOSA, THE WESTERN CHINA SEA, BORNEO, THE CELEBES, THE MOLUCCAS, THE LESSER SUNDAS, NEW GUINEA AND THE BISMARCK-

SOLOMONS AREA.

DOUGHBOYS ON THE VARIOUS PHILIPPINES FRONTS CONTINUED TO REGISTER GAINS. IN SOUTHERN LUZON'S BATANGAS PROVINCE TROOPS OF BRIG.GEN. HANFORD MACNIDER'S 158TH REGIMENTAL COMBAT TEAM MADE A LANDING FROM THE SEA AT TALAGA AND PUSHED ON TO MABINI ON THE CALUMPAN PENINSULA.

IN THE MOUNTAINS EAST OF MANILA SOLDIERS OF THE SIXTH AND 43RD DIVISIONS PENETRATED TO SECONDARY DEFENSES ON THE JAPANESE SHIMBU LINE AND CAPTURED THREE ROCKET EMPLACEMENTS IN THE FACE OF HEAVY RIFLE AND MACHINEGUN FIRE. ON THE NORTHEAST LUZON FRONT THE 25TH AND 33RD DIVISIONS WERE NEARING JUNCTURE ON THE MOUNTAINOUS CAGAYAN VALLEY ROAD NEAR STRATEGIC BALETE PASS.

TROOPS OF THE 41ST DIVISION OPERATING IN THE ZAMBOANGA SECTOR OF SOUTHWESTERN MINDANAO REPULSED NUMEROUS COUNTERATTACKS AS THEY SHOVED INTO THE HILLS.

JAPANESE BIVOUAC AND SUPPLY AREAS AT BAGUIO, PHILIPPINES SUMMER CAPITAL AND PROBABLY JAPANESE HEADQUARTERS, WERE HAMMERED WITH 337 TONS OF EXPLOSIVES BY BOMBERS AND FIGHTERS. THE YANK FLIERS ALSO HIT MINDANAO, THE SULU ARCHIPELAGO AND THE VISAYAN ISLANDS.

HEAVY BOMBERS CONTINUED NEUTRALIZATION ATTACKS ON FORMOSA BASES. THEY DUMPED 300 TONS OF BOMBS ON THE NORTHERN TOWN OF TAIHOKU, THE HEITO AND OKAYAMA AIR BASES IN THE SOUTHWEST AND THE TOKO ELECTRIC PLANT.

MILITARY TARGETS IN BORNEO RECEIVED 100 TONS OF BOMBS. FOUR OF FIVE JAPANESE INTERCEPTORS WERE SHOT DOWN AND THE OTHER WAS PROBABLY DESTROYED OVER BALIKPAPAN, IMPORTANT OIL CENTER.

PANAY EYEWITNESS
BY FRED HAMPSON

ABOARD MITCHELL BOMBER OVER ILOILO, PANAY, MARCH 18-(DELAYED)-(AP)-I WATCHED ONE OF THE STRANGEST INVASION SPECTACLES OF THE PACIFIC WAR TODAY.

AS DOUGHBOYS OF MAJ. GEN. RAPP BRUSH'S 40TH DIVISION NEARED THE BEACH 14 MILES WEST OF ILOILO IN ALLIGATORS AND SMALL BOATS, HUNDREDS OF FILIPINOS APPEARED ON SHORE TO GREET THEM.

WE COULD SEE NO SIGN OF JAPANESE AS THE BIG FLOTILLA OF SHIPS CREPT TOWARD THE BEACH JUST AFTER DAWN AND SENT ASSAULT WAVES THROUGH THE SURF.

DOUGHBOYS IN ARMORED VEHICLES AND AFOOT QUICKLY SHOVED PATROLS INLAND OVER A BROAD COASTAL PLAIN OF FARMS AND VILLAGES.

THE BEACH WAS SHALLOW AND THE JOB OF UNLOADING LARGER SHIPS APPEARED DIFFICULT AS WE WATCHED FROM THIS 5TH AIR FORCE B-25, FLOWN BY 2ND LT. RICHARD SHIPMAN, AB
LENE, TEX.

MAR 20 1945

MORE THAN AN HOUR AFTER THE LANDING, THE LSTS, LCIS AND LSDS STILL HAD NOT DRIVEN FAR ENOUGH ASHORE TO GET ADDITIONAL EQUIPMENT ON THE BEACH.

AFTER WATCHING THE EXTREMELY WELL-HANDLED AMPHIBIOUS OPERATION FOR A COUPLE OF HOURS, SHIPMAN AND HIS CO-PILOT, 2ND LT. JACK T. MILLER, BAKERSFIELD, CALIF., MADE A SERIES OF LOW LEVEL RUNS OVER THE BACK COUNTRY TRYING TO LOCATE JAPANESE POSITIONS THEY MIGHT STRAFE.

ALTHOUGH WE FLEW AS LOW AS 20 (CORRECT) FEET OVER ROADS, FARMS, RIVERS AND HILL FLANKS IN A SUCCESSION OF BREATH TAKING MANEUVERS, WE SAW NOTHING THAT LOOKED JAPANESE.

"ALL WE DID," QUIPPED RADIOMAN STAFF SGT. E.H. ROGERS (222 JUANITA WAY) SAN FRANCISCO, "WAS SCARE THE CARABAO."

THE LANDING WAS NOT PRECEDED BY THE USUAL NAVAL BOMBARDMENT, ALTHOUGH CRUISERS AND DESTROYERS STOOD BY TO SHELL PANAY IF NEEDED AND ROCKET SHIPS WERE READY.

SATISFIED THE LANDING WAS COMPLETED WITHOUT INTERFERENCE, SHIPMAN LIFTED THE BOMBER OVER A MOUNTAIN RANGE ALONG THE MIDDLE OF PANAY PENINSULA AND STARTED HOME. FOR US IN THE PLANE--SHIPMAN, MILLER, ROGERS, ENGINEER SGT. JAMES HARRIS, PARIS, TENN.; GUNNERS SGT. ROBERT E. GASPER, CANTON, OHIO, AND STAFF SGT. JOHN S. WEAVER, COLLINGSWOOD, N.J., AND 2ND LT. ROBERT MARKS, EDWARDSVILLE, ILL., AN OBSERVER, THE TRIP HOME PRODUCED MORE EXCITEMENT THAN SUPPORTING THE LANDING.

THIRTY OVERWATER MINUTES FROM OUR BASE, THE LEFT ENGINE CAUGHT FIRE!

SHIPMAN AND MILLER MANAGED TO SMOTHER THE FLAMES AND NURSE THE CRIPPLED SHIP OVER LAND ON ONE ENGINE, WITH THE OTHER SMOKING FURIOUSLY AND THREATENING TO BURST INTO FLAMES AGAIN.

SHIPMAN AND MILLER REACHED BASE AT 1000 FEET AND GOT AN EMERGENCY SIGNAL FROM THE TOWER TO LAND WITHOUT CIRCLING. THEY BROUGHT THE STILL SMOKING MITCHEL--WITH ALL ITS POWER ON THE RIGHT SIDE--SKILLFULLY DOWN DESPITE A SIDE WIND WHICH FURTHER COMPLICATED THE LANDING.

SIGHS OF RELIEF THAT BURST FROM THE TENSE GROUP INSIDE THE PLANE COULD ALMOST BE HEARD OVER THE ROAR OF THE REMAINING ENGINE.

"THAT," ANNOUNCED SHIPMAN, "IS SWEATING IT OUT. I THOUGHT WE WERE GOING TO SWIM THE LAST LAP."

THE LEFT SIDE OF THE PLANE WAS BATHED IN OIL WHEN SHIPMAN TAXIED HER INTO A REVETMENT AND WE CRAWLED DOWN AND PATTED THE EARTH AFFECTIONATELY.

ON D-DAY THAT I CLIMBED ABOARD THE AMPHIBIOUS TRACTOR WITH SOME OF THE OTHER MEMBERS OF OUR UNIT. WE SHOVED OFF FOR THE BEACH AND THE HELL THAT LAY AHEAD ON IWO.

WE COULD SEE THE GEYSERS OF WATER THROWN UP BY SOME OF THE SHELLS AS THEY SPLATTERED INTO THE OCEAN ALONGSIDE OUR SHIPS AND WINCED A BIT AS OTHERS RECEIVED DIRECT HITS AND CAPSIZED.

JUST ABOUT THEN IS WHEN WE GOT OURS. A SHELL, I THINK IT WAS A MORTAR SHELL, KNOCKED OUT THE MOTOR ON OUR AMPHTRAC. A FEW SECONDS LATER ANOTHER SHELL BLEW A HOLE IN THE SIDE OF OUR CRAFT AND WE STARTED TAKING WATER. IT WASN'T LONG BEFORE WE CAPSIZED AND FOUND OURSELVES SWIMMING AROUND IN THE OCEAN, ABOUT 700 YARDS FROM THE BEACH.

I HAD DROPPED MY CARBINE WHEN WE WERE DUMPED OUT OF THE TRACTOR AND HAD NOTHING TO DEFEND MYSELF WITH AGAINST THE LEAD THAT WAS STREAKING ACROSS THE IWO BEACHHEAD.

I FLOUNDERED AROUND IN THE WATER FOR A FEW MINUTES UNTIL AN ARMY DUCK, TAKING AMMUNITION ASHORE, CRUISED ALONGSIDE. ONE OF THE MEN IN THE DUCK CLIMBED OUT ON THE MOTOR HOUSING AND THREW ME AROPE. AFTER HE HAULED ME ABOARD WE CONTINUED OUR JOURNEY TO THE BEACH.

THE MOMENT WE TOUCHED LAND I STARTED LOOKING FOR ANOTHER CARBINE. I FOUND ONE SHORTLY AND FIRED A ROUND FROM IT TO MAKE SURE IT WOULD OPERATE. THEN I STARTED LOOKING FOR THE REST OF MY OUTFIT. THEY WEREN'T FAR AWAY, GETTING AN ARTILLERY PIECE EMPLACED.

WE WERE ABOUT 700 YARDS FROM MT.SURIBACHI, OUR TARGET, AND FIRED ROUND AFTER ROUND INTO THE FACE OF THAT SEEMINGLY IMPREGNABLE FORTRESS. BY NOW THE AIR WAS FILLED WITH SHELLS, AND THE BEACH WAS LITTERED WITH DAMAGED EQUIPMENT, DEAD AND WOUNDED MARINES, AND FRESH TROOPS SCRAMBLING ASHORE.

THAT NIGHT, ABOUT MIDNIGHT, THE JAPS OPENED UP WITH EVERYTHING THEY HAD. THEY HAD EVIDENTLY RECEIVED INFORMATION AS TO OUR GUN POSITION AND WERE CONCENTRATING ON PUTTING IT OUT OF COMMISSION.

A GIANT MORTAR SHELL CAME SCREAMING DOWN OUT OF THE SKY AND LANDED JUST A FEW FEET AWAY, MESSING EVERYTHING UP IN GENERAL. ABOUT SIX OF US WERE HIT, SOME BADLY, OTHERS NOT QUITE SO BAD. A CORPSMAN CAME RUNNING UP AND WHIPPED OUT HIS BATTLE DRESSINGS. HE FOUND ME LAYING THERE BESIDE THE GUN NUMB AND DAZED AND NOT QUITE SURE JUST WHAT HAD HAP TO ME.

THERE BESIDE THE GUN NUMB AND DAZED AND NOT QUITE SURE JUST WHAT HAD HAPPENED TO ME.

THEN HE TOOK A LOOK AT MY RIGHT ARM AND STARTED TO WORK ON ME. IT SEEMS I HAD PICKED UP THREE PIECES OF LEAD, ALL LODGED IN THE GENERAL VICINITY OF MY ELBOW. HE ALSO GAVE ME MORPHINE WHICH EASED THE PAIN CONSIDERABLY. AFTER THE BATTLE DRESSINGS WERE APPLIED WE WERE TAKEN TO A BATTALION AID STATION ON THE BEACH, JUST A FEW YARDS AWAY FROM THE WATER'S EDGE. THE AID STATION CONSISTED OF NOTHING BUT AN OVERSIZED FOXHOLE COVERED WITH A TARPAULIN BUT THERE WAS A NAVY DOCTOR IN ATTENDANCE THERE AND WITH THE AID OF A FLASHLIGHT HE SUCCEEDED IN GETTINNG MY WOUND PATCHED UP.

A109FX

AT APPROXIMATELY 7:30 THE NEXT MORNING WE WERE TAKEN OUT TO A HOSPITAL SHIP WHICH LAY A SHORT WAY OFF IWO. I WAS VERY MUCH SURPRISED WHEN I SAW NAVY NURSES ABOARD THAT VESSEL. I DIDN'T DREAM THERE WAS AN AMERICAN GIRL WITHIN MILES OF THAT FIERY HELL-HOLE I HAD JUST LEFT. THEY'RE GREAT GIRLS, AFRAID OF NOTHING AND SKILLED IN THE ART OF MAKING THE WOUNDED AS COMFORTABLE AS POSSIBLE.

ABOARD THE HOSPITAL SHIP WE HAD HAMBURGER STEAK, ICE CREAM,

ABOARD
AND POTATOES, THE BEST MORALE BUILDER I KNOW OF.
THEN BEGAN THE LONG TRIP HOME. WE STOPPED AT A REAR BASE HOSPITAL ON AN ISLAND IN THE PACIFIC WHERE WE WERE MET BY THE RED CROSS AND GIVEN CIGARETTES, CANDY AND GUM. FOLLOWING A STAY OF ONE DAY AT THAT BASE WE WERE PUT ABOARD AN ARMY PLANE AND STARTED ON THE SECOND LEG OF OUR JOURNEY HOME.
AT AN ISLAND WHERE WE STOPPED TO REFUEL, WE WERE VERY MUCH SURPRISED TO RECEIVE A VISIT FROM A USO TROUPE THAT WAS ENTERTAINING THERE. THEY PUT ON A SWELL SHOW FOR US AND SOME OF THE GIRLS AUTOGRAPHED THE CAST ON MY ARM. THE NAVY MEDICAL OFFICER THERE ALSO TREATED US SWELL AND DESPITE THE UNEARTHLY HOUR (2:00 A.M.) MANAGED TO ROUND UP GALLONS OF ICE CREAM FOR US. AN ADDED DELICACY WAS FRESH TOAST AND LOTS OF BUTTER.
THE PLANE ENDED ITS FLIGHT AT HICKAM FIELD IN HAWAII WHERE WE MET MORE NICE PEOPLE, HAD MORE GOOD CHOW, AND BOARDED A SHIP FOR OUR RETURN TO THE UNITED STATES.

MIAMI, FLA., MARCH 19-(AP)-GERMANY'S JET PLANES HAVE FAILED TO MEASURE UP TO NAZI PROPAGANDA CLAIMS, GENERAL OF THE ARMY HENRY H. ARNOLD REPORTED TODAY.
THE COMMANDING GENERAL OF THE ARMY AIR FORCES DECLARED THAT "GERMANY TODAY HAS PROBABLY MORE AIRPLANES THAN EVER BEFORE BUT NO AIRFORCE. FIGURE THAT OUT!"

"SO FAR, THE GERMANS SHOULD BE VERY GREATLY DISAPPOINTED IN THE BATTLE DAMAGE THEY HAVE BEEN ABLE TO INFLICT WITH THEIR JET PLANES," GEN. ARNOLD SAID IN AN INTERVIEW WITH A MIAMI HERALD REPORTER. "AS A MATTER OF FACT, THEY HAVE SHOT DOWN VERY, VERY FEW OF OUR FIGHTERS OR BOMBERS.

THE AAF CHIEF SAID THAT "ALTHOUGH WE WERE A BIT APPREHENSIVE AT FIRST AS TO HOW MANY JET PLANES WE WOULD BE ABLE TO SHOOT DOWN, WE HAVE BEEN ABLE TO SHOOT DOWN MANY MORE THAN WE EXPECTED."

DECLINE OF THE GERMAN AIR FORCE TO A STATE OF "IMPOTENCE" WAS ATTRIBUTED BY GEN. ARNOLD TO "OUR ATTACKS ON GERMAN FACTORIES AND THE PRACTICALLY COMPLETE DESTRUCTION OF THE GERMAN OIL INDUSTRY.

"WITHOUT OIL, THEIR PILOTS DON'T GET PROPER TRAINING, AND WHEN THEY DO GO UP, ARE DUCK SOUP FOR OUR HIGHLY TRAINED AIRMEN.

"THE MERE FACT THAT OUR BOMBERS CAN GO OVER GERMANY ALMOST AT WILL AND SELDOM IF EVER GET A SHOT AT ANY KIND OF A GERMAN PLANE INDICATES THE PRESENT IMPOTENCE OF THE GERMAN AIR FORCE," HE OBSERVED.

"OUT OF 20,000 SORTIES, ONE GUNNER GOT ONE SHOT AT ONE GERMAN AIRPLANE--AND THAT'S ALL," THE GENERAL REPORTED.

HE SAID THAT AAF LOSSES FROM GERMAN AIR OPPOSITION "HAVE MATERIALLY DECREASED, AND I REALLY MEAN MATERIALLY."

"OF COURSE, THERE IS ALWAYS A CHANCE THE GERMAN AIR FORCE WILL TRY TO STAGE A COMEBACK, AS THEY ARE NOW TRYING AGAINST ENGLAND AND AGAINST OUR GROUND FORCES," GENERAL ARNOLD ADDED.

REGARDING THE PACIFIC AIR WAR, THE AAF CHIEF SAID THE JAPANESE AIR FORCE "IS NOT CAUSING THE LOSSES THEY USED TO TO OUR PERSONNEL.

"THE WAY IT LOOKS TO US NOW IS THAT THE JAPANESE AIR FORCE HAS ONLY A SMALL NUMBER OF TRAINED MEN AND A LOT OF GREEN MEN.

"EVERY TIME WE BYPASS A PLACE, THE JAPS LOSE NOT ONLY THE EQUIPMENT THERE, BUT ALSO SKILLED PERSONNEL," HE EXPLAINED. "THEY HAVE LOST SKILLED MECHANICS, SQUADRON LEADERS, GROUP LEADERS.

"IF WE BYPASS ENOUGH, THEY WILL HAVE NOTHING BUT GREEN PEOPLE COMING OUT OF JAPAN," GEN. ARNOLD ADDED.

Japanese Fleet Attacked In Home Waters 3d And 7th Armies Join, Close 2d Saar Trap

15-17 WARSHIPS DAMAGED, 475 AIRCRAFT DESTROYED BY MITSCHER'S PLANES

Japan's Inland Sea Raided—Not A U.S. Ship Lost But One Is Seriously Harmed—Many Targets On Nippon Homeland Hammered

Guam, Wednesday, March 21 (AP)—American aircraft flying from the mightiest carrier fleet ever assembled attacked the Japanese fleet in the empire's Inland Sea Monday in one of the boldest exploits of the war, and damaged fifteen to seventeen enemy warships, including one or two battleships, and destroyed at least 475 planes.

The enemy fleet thus was hit in its home waters for the first time, but no actual engagement between surface units was announced.

First Report Of Damage

Admiral Chester W. Nimitz announced the attack today in a communiqué which said preliminary surveys of damage showed that two or three aircraft carriers, four light carriers, two cruisers, four destroyers and various other war vessels also were included in the bag.

Six freighters were sunk and a number of ground installations were destroyed.

Admiral Nimitz said the raid inflicted "crippling damage" on the Japanese fleet, which was decisively whipped last October in the second battle of the Philippine seas.

Not An American Ship Lost

Although Nipponese flyers made many attempts to bomb the American armada, not a ship was lost. One ship, not identified as to class, was seriously damaged, but is returning to port under its own power.

"A few others sustained minor damage, but all are fully operational," Admiral Nimitz said.

The Pacific Fleet, whose planes twice routed the Japanese fleet last year, swung northeast after a day of destructive attacks on the enemy air force on Kyushu, southernmost of the Japanese home islands. One hundred enemy planes were destroyed there.

Spruance's 5th Fleet Moves Up

On Monday, Admiral R. A. Spruance moved ships of his 5th fleet into position from where Vice Admiral Marc A. Mitscher sent his carrier planes — Hellcats, Corsairs, Helldivers and Avenger torpedo-bombers—in the first seaborne attack on the home bases of the enemy in the Japanese Inland Sea.

The report of the sinking of six small freighters and damaging 22 other ships, the latter mostly combatant vessels, was described as only preliminary. This indicated the likelihood of even greater damage or a revision of types of ships struck by bombs and torpedoes.

Known Damage Listed

This is the preliminary report from Admiral Spruance, who was in tactical command of the fleet forces:

Sunk:
Six small freighters.
Damaged:
One or two battleships.
Two or three aircraft carriers.
Two light aircraft carriers or escort carriers.
Two escort carriers.
One heavy cruiser.
One light cruiser.
Four destroyers.
One submarine.
One destroyer escort.
Seven freighters.
American planes also destroyed a large number of installations, including hangars, shops, arsenals and oil-storage facilities.

The communiqué did not specify which parts of the Inland Sea were the targets of the raiding aircraft. The Inland Sea is bounded on three sides by three of the Japanese home islands—Kyushu to the west, the southern portion of Honshu to the north and Shikoku to the south. It is clogged with scores of small islands.

Sasebo, Nagasaki Likely Targets

Likely targets were Sasebo and Nagasaki, naval bases on Kyushu. Sasebo is by reputation one of the four great naval bases of Japan. It has a large fleet anchorage with extensive machine shops and repair facilities as well as several dry docks and considerable arsenals.

At Nagasaki there are additional facilities for fleet anchorage.

Carrier planes may have hit enemy ships undergoing repairs of damage suffered in the Japanese fleet's unsuccessful three-pronged attempt to break up the invasion of the Philippines at Leyte last October.

Philippine Sea Battle Score

In that battle six enemy battleships, four heavy cruisers, one light cruiser, ten destroyers and one destroyer escort were sunk or damaged.

In June, 1944, in the first battle of the Philippine Sea, Mitscher's airmen located the Japanese grand fleet apparently moving to threaten the American invasion of Saipan, and sank or possibly sank eight warships. Not an American ship was lost.

The Pacific Fleet planes twice raided Tokyo in February with devastating effect, wiping out 667 Japanese planes.

"Last Sanctuary" Invaded

Admiral Mitscher, over-all commander of the task force, said only a few days ago that the Japanese fleet could not now overwhelm "even a fraction of our ever-growing fleet" and said the enemy's only sanctuary is the empire's inland seas.

The attack came as sections of the Japanese homeland still smoldered from the first major blow dealt inland sea cities by United States carrier planes. Mitscher's carrier struck the southern homeland Sunday and Monday.

Within 60 Miles Of Mainland

The attacks Monday on Kobe, Japan's principal seaport and shipbuilding city, already heavily hit by army Superforts, and Kure, No. 1 naval base on the inland sea, gave increased destructive attention to the enemy's naval building and repair centers.

Toyko radio said the American task force made a daring penetration to within 60 miles of the Japanese mainland in Sunday's attack when the carrier flyers hit enemy aircraft bases and installations on Kyushu Island, at the southern end of the Nipponese archipelago.

The Kure naval base was hit Sunday by about 150 carrier fighters and bombers, another Japanese broadcast said, making the unconfirmed claim that 45 were "definitely" shot down. There was no mention of damage to the base.

Twice before the carrier planes had hit the Japanese homeland—February 16-17 and February 25-27, both attacks centered mainly on airfields and aircraft plants in the Tokyo area.

Five mass Superfortress raids since March 10 on Tokyo, Nagoya, Osra and Kobe were blows on war industries of all categories.

Other Objectives Hit

Naval flyers in their sweeps over Kobe and Kure Monday also hit other objectives in and around the inland sea, said Fleet Admiral Chester W. Nimitz in a communiqué late yesterday.

Domei broadcast Nipponese imperial headquarters' claims that the American naval air attacks were met by defending flyers who shot down 183 planes, sank seven warships and damaged another.

The enemy claims of destruction, all unconfirmed, included two American vessels of "unknown type" sunk Monday; one standard carrier, one carrier or battleship, one battleship or cruiser and two destroyers, sunk Sunday, and one standard carrier heavily damaged.

15 Or 16 Carriers Used

The Japanese communiqué said some of the Japanese planes "have not yet returned" from their defense attacks, but gave no number. An earlier Tokyo broadcast said twenty Nipponese aircraft were lost Sunday.

Fifteen or sixteen aircraft carriers were in the American task force, which was divided into five groups, Tokyo radio said, placing the Sunday striking power at 1,400 planes and at 1,100 in the Monday attacks.

Japs' Biggest Shipyard, Naval Centers Raided

U.S. Pacific Fleet Headquarters, Guam, March 20 (AP)—Japan's greatest shipbuilding center and her most important naval base were the targets of American carrier-based planes as they continued their lashing of the Nippon homeland for the second consecutive day Monday.

Radio silence today blanketed the powerful carrier task force that moved in close to the Japanese mainland. Fleet Admiral Chester W. Nimitz disclosed earlier that the naval flyers shifted their attacks northward to hit the Kure naval base and Kobe, shipbuilding hub.

"Retreating," Tokyo Says

[Tokyo Radio, in a broadcast picked up by the Blue Network at San Francisco, said Vice Admiral Marc A. Mitscher's Task Force 58 was "retreating" southward after the two-day attack. Tokyo made the unconfirmed claim that 10 American warships of the force were sunk or damaged and 183 planes shot down.]

In their opening attack Sunday on the Japanese mainland southwestern extremity—Kyushu, Shikoku and southern Honshu—the carrier planes rained probably 2,500 tons of rockets and bombs on military targets.

Japs Attacked: Tokyo

Tokyo identified the raiders as "the mainstay of Task Force 58"—the carrier force which leaped to fame last June by destroying 405 Japanese warplanes on one day, then sinking or damaging 17 warships in a thrilling sea chase the next. Tokyo said Japanese flyers attacked the task force, which included 15 carriers.

The carrier planes added heavily to the load of explosives dropped on Japan in three days. B-29's dropped 2,500 tons of incendiaries on Nagoya Monday.

[The Tokyo broadcast, saying the United States attacks were still continuing, was picked up in San Francisco by the NBC. Domei, Japanese news agency, made no mention of continuing raids in its broadcasts heard by the FCC, nor did the Nipponese Imperial headquarters refer to them.]

Japanese shipping in the inland sea and at Kobe harbor and shipbuilding and ship repair yards were prime targets of Monday's raids.

American pilots defied land-based Japanese fighters and anti-aircraft as they swept in to strike Kobe and Kure, both of which had to be reached by crossing Honshu from the east or Shikoku from the south.

1,100 Planes, Japs Say

San Francisco, March 20 (AP)—Eleven hundred American carrier planes raided widely scattered targets on southwestern Japan for three hours yesterday, the Japanese Domei news agency said today.

Domei said raiding planes swept over Kyushu, Shikoku and southwestern Honshu Island, including the Osaka-Kobe area. More than 60 planes struck Kobe in two waves, centering their attack on ships anchored in the harbor.

"One enemy plane after another plunged to its doom," Domei said.

Saarbruecken, 2 Other Historic Cities Are Taken

By AUSTIN BEALMEAR

PARIS, March 21 (Wednesday) (A. P.).—The U. S. Seventh and Third Armies formed a junction in the Saarland yesterday in a great co-ordinated assault which virtually wiped out the last German resistance west of the Rhine and captured the historic cities of Saarbruecken, Zweibruecken and Worms.

Contact between the two armies was made at a point about 12 miles west of Kaiserslautern by elements of the Seventh Army's Sixth Armored Division and the Third Army's 26th Infantry Division.

The Third Army, which drove through Kaiserslautern, reached the ancient Rhine-bank city of Mainz.

Saarbruecken, a city of 135,000 population and the capital and economic center of the industrial Saar, fell to Lieutenant General Alexander M. Patch's Seventh Army as did Zweibruecken, 17 miles to the east in the Palatinate.

3D ARMY TAKES WORMS

Worms, on the Rhine about midway between Mainz and Ludwigshafen - Mannheim, was seized in a lightning stab by the Fourth Armored and 90th Infantry Divisions of Lieutenant General George S. Paton, Jr.'s, Third Army.

The sensational drive by the two American armies operating in unison disposed of the German Seventh Army and bottled up much of the German First Army—the last two enemy armies west of the Rhine.

FLEEING FOE STRAFED

Under the unrelenting assault, the enemy's defenses in the Saarland salient collapsed and Nazi troops were attempting to flee eastward by the thousands under a storm of explosives from American warplanes.

The fall of Saarbruecken and Zweibruecken foretold the possible swift evacuation of all Germany west of the Rhine.

Saarbruecken fell to the 70th Division, which crossed the Saar, sliced through the West Wall and stormed the city from the west against light opposition.

Zweibruecken fell to the Third Division, which had breached the West Wall after three days of fierce fighting.

NAZI DEFENSES COLLAPSE

The comparatively easy conquest of the two stubborn cities dramatically symbolized the complete collapse of the Nazi defenses of the Saar-Moselle triangle.

Thousands of Germans were captured, one front dispatch saying that the Third Army alone bagged possibly 20,000.

At the same time, German resistance east of the Rhine seemed to falter and Lieutenant General Courtney H. Hodges' U. S. First Army broadened its east-bank bridgehead to 24 miles with advances measuring up to 4000 yards.

RUHR CIVILIANS WARNED

On a day of crushing defeat for German arms, General Dwight D. Eisenhower himself boldy pointed toward the sector of the Reich presumably next marked for destruction, broadcasting a proclamation warning all German civilians and foreign workers to flee from the great Ruhr industrial area.

This 600-square mile region just across the Rhine from three Allied armies—the U. S. Ninth, the Canadian First and British Second—is Germany's industrial heart and now that Silesia and the Saar have fallen under Russian and American avalanches is the enemy's last big unconquered industrial area.

RUHR AREA POUNDED

Allied Air Forces have been pounding the Ruhr for weeks and it was battered again yesterday as part of the mighty Western Front assault.

The attention of medium and fighter-bombers and fighters, however, was directly mainly at mauling the Germans fleeing from the Saarland in wild disorder.

Enemy columns were bombed and strafed continuously and at least 3000 German motor vehicles were knocked out with bombs, rockets and bullets, adding to the Air Forces' terrific toll of the last three days.

Mainz, a city of 160,000 at the confluence of the Rhine and Main Rivers, was reached after a spectacular dash by the Fourth Armored Division and the 90th Infantry working together. The Fourth also made the plunge to Worms, a city of 50,000 which lies 16 miles north of the twin industrial cities of Mannheim and Ludwigshafen.

REPORT BRIDGES BLASTED

(The British Broadcasting Corp. reported Tuesday night that the Germans had blown up the Rhine bridges at Worms before the Americans captured the city.)

Kaiserslautern, from which a military superhighway runs 23 miles east to the Rhine, was the main supply point for Nazi forces in the Saar-Rhine-Moselle area. Its loss meant the end of organized enemy resistance west of the Rhine, and the entire Saar Basin upon which the Germans depended for much of their coal supply is lost.

WHITE FLAGS WAVED

Doughboys of the 80th Division drove into Kaiserslautern, and Allied pilots flying over the city reported its streets were lined with people waving white flags as the Americans sped through. The plunge to the three German cities in a single day eclipsed anything accomplished by the Third Army in its rampage across France.

Troops of the Seventh Army's 70th Division struck across the Saar River into Siegfried Line defenses just west of Malstatt, a western suburb of Saarbruecken, making "substantial" gains in the first few hours. The crossing was made in assault boats last night and met only light German resistance.

BRIDGEHEAD EXPANDED

To the north Lieutenant General Courtney H. Hodges' U. S. First Army overran more than 20 villages inside the Rhine bridgehead and fought into a suburb of Bonn, clamping an iron grip on approximately 24 miles of the east bank of the Rhine.

The Germans launched a strong tank-led counter-attack in an effort to recapture one of two landing strips held by General Hodges' troops inside the bridgehead, but were beaten off after a stiff three-hour fight, losing two tanks. The strip is capable of accommodating transport planes.

PRISONER TOTAL SOARS

The Third Army alone counted 8355 prisoners Monday for a record single day's capture by any Allied army in the west. It was thought that the count, still far from complete, might run as high as 20,000 for the day. The 11th Armored Division alone took 6700 by sunset.

3rd and 7th Reported Linked Up; Patton's Men at Mainz and Worms

Paris, March 20 (A. P.).—The United States Third and Seventh armies raced to an imminent junction today as German defenses collapsed in the face of blazing drives from north and south across the rich industrial Saar Valley area.

Lieut.-Gen. Patton's Third Army entered and passed beyond Kaiserslautern, and was less than fifteen miles from a junction with Lieut.-Gen. Patch's Seventh Army which had broken through the Siegfried Line defenses along the northern Alsace frontier on a broad front. Mainz, at the Rhine elbow, which fell to the Fourth Armored Division of Patton's army, and Worms, a city of 42,000, sixteen miles north of the twin industrial Rhineland cities of Mannheim and Ludwigshafen, was captured, and Patton's men raced

MAR 21 1945

[The Luxembourg and Brazzaville radios both declared that a junction had already been made in the Saar.]

The entry into Kaiserslautern meant the end of organized German defense of the Saar, for it was the chief German supply point of that entire area.

Patton's and Patch's twin drives to all intents and purposes had delivered the knockout blow to the Germans in the Rhine-Moselle-Saar triangle, and their armor and infantry were riding virtually unopposed for gains ranging up to eleven miles, front-line dispatches said.

The Eightieth Division entering Kaiserslautern, which is only twenty miles from the Alsatian border, covered the last four miles into the town after a brilliant fifteen-mile dash yesterday.

First Army Also Gains.

In the Remagen bridgehead east of the Rhine, Lieut.-Gen. Hodges's First United States Army likewise showed a sudden burst of power after a slow gathering of strength and surged forward in gains which clamped an iron hold on a twenty-four-mile stretch of the river. The surge carried downstream to Beuel, Bonn's southern suburb on the east bank, to Stieldorf, due east of Bonn, Hoholz and Puetzchen, in the Bonn plain leading to the Ruhr. They also captured Kudinghoven, Ramersdorf and Limperich.

A front-line dispatch said that word was lacking for the moment whether the Rhine bridge at Worms, which at last accounts was still standing, had been captured in the amazing burst of speed up to the river. Other bridges along the Rhine, however, had been blown up in the face of the onsurging Third Army.

Meanwhile, today the Allied planes were so thick over the front that they had to queue up for their attacks on the Germans streaming along the superhighway from Kaiserslautern to the Rhine.

Patton's army flanked completely the Siegfried and alternate Hunsbrueck lines in the Saar and Palatinate.

Patch's was completely through a twelve-mile stretch of the Siegfried Line between Saarbruecken and Zweibruecken.

A pocket around Saarbruecken and the great steel mills of the Saarland was all but closed—if not already so since developments were lagging hours behind reports delayed by security blackouts.

He finally captured Saarlautern, the Saar steel city, after three and a half months of battle. The suburbs of Ensdorf, Saarlautern-Roden and Fraulatern also were taken.

Wissembourg, Lauterbourg, 9 miles west of Karlsruhe, and Altenstadt all fell to the 7th. The last Germans had been chased from French soil except for the long by-passed garrisons totaling about 137,000 men in the Atlantic and Channel ports.

The nearest American approach to Mainz was at the outskirts of Bubenheim, a village 12 miles from Weisbaden.

Two traps were being fashioned by the 3d and 7th armies. A minor one had been thrown around 2,000 Germans east of Trier. The larger one was near the center of the Palatinate; this is the one that was within less than 25 miles of being shut.

Smaller Trap Closing

The smaller pocket, within the larger one, was being closed on the Saar district itself. Last official reports said 3d Army troops that had conquered St. Wendel were within 10 miles of the 7th Army forces around Zweibruecken. It was this smaller trap that unverified reports said had been closed, and it contained the greatest concentration of war industries the Germans had west of the Rhine.

Once again, the 4th Armored Division was spearheading the Palatinate breakthrough and was closest to Kaiserslautern. Patton's divisions had overrun numerous supply depots, and scores of vehicles intact but with empty gasoline tanks. The Germans jammed roads east of Kaiserslautern bumper to bumper, and these columns were being cut up by American planes.

Field For Transports

The 1st Army's second captured airfield east of the Rhine was southeast of Eudenbach in the rugged state forest in the Seven Mountains country—a favorite of tourists. Enemy resistance was wiped out in night battles. The airfield is large enough to handle transport planes.

Small gains were made all along the 35-mile perimeter of the "windfall" salient, although the Germans were persistent with rockets, artillery and self-propelled cannon.

On the north of the bridgehead, the infantry drove into Obercassel, 17 miles from the Ruhr and 19½ miles from the southern extremity of the bridgehead below Hammerstein. Bennert, Weise and Heisterhacheroff—all opposite Bad Godesberg and at the start of the Bonn Plain—were taken.

The 9th Division took Hungsberg, 7½ miles east of the Rhine and near Windhagen.

Perfect Day For Planes

Clear skies brought another perfect bombing and strafing day, so there was no safety for the disorganized German divisions or the bewildered refugees crowding the few uncut roads in the Saarland and Palatinate. More than 7,000 sorties were flown yesterday in the biggest aerial assault of the year, and planes kept up their mighty blows during the night. Thousands of pieces of equipment were destroyed.

An almost ceaseless flow of traffic through imperiled Frankfurt was seen during the night by reconnaissance flyers.

It appeared probable that the 3d and 7th armies would finally envelop the Saar around Neunkirchen, for Patton's army was last reported less than 3 miles away and the 7th was moving up close. The steel-mill city and traffic center is 10 miles northeast of tottering Saarbruecken.

Zweibruecken and Pirmasens, both bastions of the Siegfried Line, were besieged by the 42d (Rainbow) and other 7th Army divisions. Troops have driven at least 3 miles north of Wissembourg, historic Palatinate gateway. The French 5th Armored Division and the 3d Algerian Infantry, both fighting with the 7th Army, had invaded Germany opposite Karlsruhe.

Field Marshal von Rundstedt shifted an enormous weight of anti-aircraft guns from the Ruhr to the lower Rhine, where the United States 9th Army cleared five west-bank towns of civilians—possibly in prelude to a crossing. German guns shelled German towns west of the river. Flyers spotted much barge traffic in Nazi-held northeast Holland.

More than 50,000 of the originally estimated 80,000 Germans of the enemy's First and Seventh armies already were counted as casualties. In seven days Patton's offensive has inflicted at least 45,000 casualties on the original 80,000 Germans in the Rhine-Moselle-Saar pocket, Correspondent Edward D. Ball said in a dispatch from the front. Prisoners alone totaled up to 20,000 and the Seventh Army had taken at least 4,000 additional. Patton's army captured 8,355 prisoners yesterday alone and forty-five more towns.

Unverified reports reaching supreme headquarters said the 3d and 7th had already achieved a juncture farther west in the Saarbruecken area, sealing off Germany's last great industrial area short of the Ruhr.

Ruhr Partly Conquered

The Ruhr itself was partly conquered; many of its factories were smashed by shells that fell as far east as Essen.

Patton was winning one of the most complete victories the Western front has yet seen.

Command Shakeup Reported

Bad Kreuznach, Germany, March 20 (AP)—A captured German officer said today that Col. Gen. Johannes Blaskowitz had been sacked as commander of a German army group on the southern wing of the Western front because of the German débâcle and that an SS general, Paul Hauser, was now in charge. Blaskowitz is now reported commanding an army in the north.

Texas Airman Wrecks 322 Of 700 Vehicles

With United States 7th Army in Germany, March 20 (AP)—One of the heaviest single blows by American airmen attacking fleeing German columns today was landed just after dawn between Kaiserslautern and Neustadt when a group of Thunderbolts under Major Thomas Personett, of Brownsville, Texas, pounced on a convoy of more than 700 vehicles, wrecking 141 and shooting up another 181.

Oak Leaf Cluster Added To Gen. Patch's D.S.M.

With U.S. 7th Army, March 20 (AP)—Lieut. Gen. Alexander M. Patch, 7th Army commander from Staunton, Va., was awarded the Oak Leaf Cluster to the Distinguished Service Medal today for "exceptionally meritorious service" from March 15 to September 15, 1944, in planning and executing the invasion of southern France.

Texas Pilot Rides Herd From Plane On 19 Nazis

With the U.S. 1st Army East of the Rhine, March 20 (AP)—Lieut. J. C. Gaston, of Corsicana, Texas, herded nineteen prisoners to captivity on the 1st Army bridgehead with a Cub observation plane.

The Texan was on a mission with Lieut. James O. Cox, of Bradenton, Fla., when he saw a group of Germans in a field. The Germans made no hostile move, so Gaston swooped low over them and motioned toward the American lines. The prisoners started in the direction he pointed and he saw them safely in.

ST. NAZAIRE NAZIS EJECT 72 CIVILIANS

Nantes, France, March 20 (A. P.).—The beleaguered German garrison at St. Nazaire released seventy-two French civilian prisoners yesterday, including seventeen women, by sending them blindfolded into No Man's Land and then forcing them to run nearly two miles to safety under the constant threat of being shot unwittingly by Allied troops.

The prisoners were forcibly ejected into a section between the German and the Allied lines. While they were being sent out to seek haven at their own risk, negotiations for official evacuation were in progress. The released persons said they had originally been arrested for hostility to the German authorities, but were released to relieve the Nazis of the burden of feeding them, since the food situation within the beleaguered area is becoming more stringent.

Owner of Seized House Stabs American Soldier

By The Associated Press.

WITH THE AMERICAN NINETIETH DIVISION, in Germany, March 20—A 70-year-old German, enraged by the requisitioning of his home at Oppenhausen, stabbed an American soldier in the chest today.

The soldier, a switchboard operator, is in a serious condition. The German, Anton Kopp, is being held for trial.

Capt. Zinn B. Garrett of Dallas, Tex., military Government officer of the division, said that the town mayor had told him that the stabbing was "the act of a deranged man."

STETTIN OUTPOST FALLS TO RUSSIANS

Braunsberg, On East Prussia, Also Is Captured

London, Wednesday, March 21 (AP)—Russian troops wiped out the Germans' bridgehead on the east bank of the Oder River opposite Stettin yesterday and laid the Pomeranian capital open to a final assault by capturing its last outpost of Altdamm, 70 miles northeast of Berlin, Moscow announced last night.

Far to the east other Soviet forces, rolling up both ends of the partly flooded East Prussian pocket southwest of Koenigsberg, captured Braunsberg and fought down the last 2 miles to Heiligenbeil, the enemy's only remaining stronghold there.

5,000 Germans Killed

Scoring gains of up to 5 miles, the Russians compressed the pocket to 15 miles in length and no more than 4 miles from the sea at its deepest, swept up 40 towns and hamlets in addition to Braunsberg, took more than 4,000 Germans prisoner and captured upward of 300 guns, Moscow said. At least 5,000 Germans were slain.

The Germans said two powerful Soviet armies had opened new offensives in the south, sweeping through northwestern Hungary within 58 miles of the Austrian frontier on the road to Vienna, and smashing through Upper Silesia and across the Moravian frontier into Czechoslovakia.

Would Force Foe Back

These operations, not confirmed by Moscow, would have the effect of forcing large-scale German withdrawals along the southern end of the Eastern front and are aimed at the mountainous area of southern Germany and Austria where the Nazis, according to some reports, may make a final stand after the defeat of their armies on the Reich's northern plains.

By German account, Marshal Feodor I. Tolbukhin had hurled 200,000 of his 3d Ukraine Army troops, and supporting armor, into the offensive in northwestern Hungary and had created a "temporarily critical situation" for the Nazis. Berlin said the Russians were beyond Tata, which is 10 miles southeast of Komarom (Komarno), on the Danube.

Moravska-Ostrava Flank

Other enemy broadcasts said that Marshal Ivan S. Konev's 1st Ukraine Army, outflanking Moravska-Ostrava, had reached Ziegenhals on the Czechoslovak border. Ziegenhals is 52 miles northwest of Moravska-Ostrava, Czechoslovakia's third city and the gateway to the Moravian gap route to Vienna and Prague, and is 9 miles west of Neustadt where street fighting was reported Monday.

The Germans also told of fighting near Troppau (Opava), 2 miles inside Moravia, and 17 miles northwest of Moravska-Ostrava.

Moscow dispatches said meanwhile that Russian shock troops, fighting inside besieged Breslau, Upper Silesian capital 100 miles northwest of Moravska-Ostrava, had captured a number of buildings of the Junkers auto factory and had gained on the approaches to the central freight station.

Five German counterattacks were repulsed at Hindenburg Square in the southern part of Breslau, a city of 630,000 and the Reich's third largest.

The Russian communiqué said nothing about the siege of the East Prussian capital of Koenigsberg and the fighting in the outskirts of Danzig and Gdynia, but stated that Red air force heavy bombers had raided the former free city, causing fires and explosions and sinking a moored enemy transport. Air-raids also were made on military objectives at Koenigsberg, Pillau and Breslau.

Declaring the Russians were attacking incessantly in the Danzig-Gdynia area, the Germans said that Red Army units had captured a "dominating height west of Zoppot," midway between the two port cities.

On the Stettin front, 1st White Russian Army troops also reached Finkenwalde and Pode Juch, respectively 2 and 3 miles southwest of Altdamm. These two towns command the approach to a railroad bridge across the Oder to Stettin, but the Russian communiqué indicated that the span may have been destroyed.

Half of the 4,000 prisoners captured in the East Prussian pocket were taken south of Heiligenbeil, Moscow's midnight war bulletin said. It added that "in some sectors German soldiers were surrendering in groups."

Among the towns captured in the pocket were Wermten and Thomsdorf, both within 2 miles of Heiligenbeil, and Neu Passarge, where the Passarge River flows into the Frisches Haff. Fedderau, at the upper end of the pocket and a half mile from the coast, also was taken.

Braunsberg, a stronghold of the Teutonic Knights in the Middle Ages, was taken after the Germans, trapped in the shrinking East Prussian coastal pocket, were reported to have opened coastal dikes and turned the lowlands into a big lake in an effort to halt the Soviet drive.

The Germans now hold only Heiligenbeil in the East Prussian pocket southwest of Koenigsberg and the Russians are fighting near the edge of that road and rail center.

Liquidation of the Germans' bridgehead on the east bank of the Oder River before Stettin came after Berlin said Marshal Gregory K. Zhukov hurled 100,000 men of the 1st White Russian Army and fire from 1,000 guns against the Nazis there. Altdamm, less than three miles from Stettin, is on the east bank of the Oder across from the port's shipyards and docks. German troops remaining on the Oder's east bank north and south of Stettin were now outflanked.

By German account another big Russian offensive southeast and southwest of Breslau apparently was aimed at a clean-up of all of southern Silesia. Nazi commentator Alfred von Olberg said one Russian wing had scored new gains in fighting at Leobschuetz, twenty miles northwest of Ratibor, and at Troppau, eighteen miles southwest of Ratibor.

A southward Russian thrust from Grottkau, thirty-one miles southeast of Breslau, was meeting heavy resistance, the Germans said. Colonel Ernst von Hammer, Nazi commentator, said the Germans had encircled "considerable Russian forces" between Neustadt and Neisse, twenty-six miles west of the Oder.

RUSSIANS SEIZE GERMAN BASTION CLOSE TO STETTIN

London, March 20 (A. P).—The First White Russian Army has captured Altdamm, a suburban bastion four miles east of Stettin, Marshal Stalin announced tonight in a second Order of the Day. In his first order a few minutes earlier Stalin announced the capture of Braunsberg, in the collapsing Nazi pocket southeast of Koenigsberg, in East Prussia, by the Third White Russian Army.

The seizure of Altdamm liquidated the powerfully fortified German bridgehead on the east bank of the Oder before Stettitn, Stalin declared.

Altdamm fell after the bloodiest fighting of the whole Pomeranian campaign. By capturing the city, Marshal Zhukov's forces outflanked the Germans still on the Oder's east bank north and south of Stettin. Altdamm lies just east of the eastern channel of the Oder, beyond which Stettin lies.

In western Hungary, the German High Command declared earlier today, a renewed Russian offensive had smashed to within fifty-eight miles of the Austrian frontier.

They drove, said the communique, to a point beyond Tata, which is only twelve miles from Komarom, the German stronghold on the south bank of the Danube at the Slovak frontier. Komarom is forty-five miles northwest of Budapest, and within eighty-four miles of Vienna.

The communique also declared that the Germans had withdrawn across the Drava River on the Yugoslav frontier, further south, but did not specify the location. The Drava runs along the southwestern border of Hungary.

Berlin broadcasts said the Red Army also had thrust out in a huge drive to clear German Upper Silesia, capturing Neustadt.

Moscow dispatches, silent concerning both these fronts, reported Germans trapped in a dwindling pocket on the East Prussian coast southwest of Koenigsberg had opened coastal dikes, flooding the lowlands in efforts to halt a Soviet extermination push.

Braunsberg Capture

The western end of the 18-mile-long pocket caved in today, and Marshal Stalin announced capture of Braunsberg by the 3d White Russian Army. Braunsberg is 32 miles southwest of Koenigsberg. Heiligenbeil to the east is the last big town left in the pocket, and the Soviets are within 3 miles of it.

Stalin's order disclosed that Marshal Alexander M. Vassilevsky now was commanding the 3d White Russian Army group, succeeding Marshal Ivan Cherniakhovsky, killed in battle.

Reported Beyond Tata

The German high command declared the 3d Ukrainian Army lashing out northwest of Budapest had carried beyond Tata, 12 miles from Komarom, German stronghold on the Danube's south bank at the Hungarian-Slovakian frontier. Komarom is 45 miles northwest of Budapest and 84 miles from Vienna.

Neustadt is 25 miles west of the Oder River and only 3 from the Czecho-Slovak border. Berlin said the Russians were attacking along an 80-mile front in the offensive to overrun remaining German factories in industrialized Silesia.

58 Miles From Austria

The Soviet lunge toward Komarom bit to within 58 miles of the Austrian border. Berlin said it was mounted on a 25-mile front with 20 infantry divisions and numerous armored formations, and had created a "temporary critical situation" for the Germans until they rushed up mobile reserves.

The Germans have held desperately to western Hungary to guard its mineral wealth and delay an offensive against Austria. A belief that the push against Austria is now under way may have influenced the reported German withdrawal across the Drava River, southeast of Siklos, 115 miles southwest of Budapest.

STALIN PICKS VASILEVSKY

Tactician Named to Head Army of General Chernyakhovsky

LONDON, March 20 (AP) — The Soviet High Command disclosed today that Marshal Alexander Mikhailovic Vasilevsky, Chief of the Red Army General Staff, had been named to head the Third White Russian Army, which is cleaning up the small German pocket in East Prussia.

Marshal Vasilevsky, 37 son of a Volga peasant, succeeds the late Gen. Ivan Chernyakhovsky, who died Feb. 17 of wounds suffered on the East Prussian battlefield.

A protégé of Premier Stalin, the new army commander early in 1943 succeeded Marshal Boris M. Shaposhnikoff as Chief of the General Staff. The elderly Marshal Shaposhnikoff retired because of illness.

Marshal Vasilevsky is regarded as a practical soldier and a master strategist and tactician. He previously had worked side by side with Marshal Gregory K. Zhukoff, ace Russian commander, now directing the frontal assaults on Stettin and toward Berlin.

Koenigsberg Slave Mart

London, March 20 (AP)—The Moscow radio said today that a brisk slave market had existed in Koenigsberg, capital of East Prussia, at which adult persons from occupied lands were sold for about 10 marks (about $4 prewar) each and children for 5 or 6 marks each.

The broadcast quoted a captured German, identified as Erich Zwemmer, director of the market, as telling a Russian war correspondent:

"I had 52 assistants and we had plenty to do as in the last year 250,000 foreigners from occupied areas of the Soviet Union, Poland, France and Belgium passed through the camp. I sold no fewer than 75,000 Russians a year."

The broadcast said one Smolensk collective farmer and his entire family were bought by Otto Koltzenen, a big Prussian land owner.

"Besides my family," the rescued Smolensk farmer was quoted, "he had more than 50 other slaves—Russians, Poles and Frenchmen."

U-BOAT YARDS ROCK UNDER AIR ASSAULT

Eighth's Big Bombers Also Rip Hamburg Oil Plants—British Smash at Key Rail Points

U. S. FIGHTERS ESCORT RAF

Italy-Based Planes Hammer Traffic Centers in Austria—Berlin Attacks Continue

LONDON, Wednesday, March 21 (AP)—Royal Air Force Mosquitos attacked Berlin last night for the twenty-ninth consecutive night, after American and British heavy bombers during the day had rained explosives on German communications, oil plants and submarines yards and lighter Allied warplanes punished German troops and transport. The Allies' air forces flew about 5,000 daylight sorties.

The round-the-clock offensive was a continuation of multiple raids yesterday, when approximately 8,000 Allied planes swarmed over Germany and knocked out 5,000 Nazi vehicles, and a pre-dawn attack on Berlin for the twenty-eighth consecutive night, by Mosquitos.

Berlin reported Allied night bombers over northwestern Germany and Norway tonight.

Oil Refinery Hit

Striking at dwindling sources of Nazi oil supply, 400 United States 8th Air Force bombers attacked a natural oil refinery at Hemmingstedt on the Danish peninsula and raided Hamburg's much-battered port and its Blohm-Voss submarine yards where the latest type of U-boats reportedly are being constructed. An oil refinery in the Hamburg area also was hit.

In double blows at railroad yards feeding the Rhine front, RAF Lancasters first attacked Germany's largest rail yard at Hamm, traffic gateway to the Ruhr, and Hailfaxes bombed the Recklinghausen yards which handle supplies for Rhine troops and coal cargoes for central Germany.

Yanks Escort RAF

Then American fighters escorted RAF heavy bombers to an unidentified target in northwestern Germany—an unusual procedure.

The force of 400 Liberators and Fortresses and 300 fighters which Lieut. Gen. James H. Doolittle sent out was the smallest the 8th Air Force has sent into action since March 5.

The United States 9th Air Force filled Nazi skies with fighters and bombers flying in close support of advancing 3d and 7th armies west of the Rhine. Fleets of British and American medium bombers hit German concentration points north of the Ruhr.

Dispatching more than 1,000 sorties before noon, the 9th Air Force reported no difficulty in striking road targets jammed with fleeing Germans.

British Pound Nazi Front

The British 2d Tactical Air Force also pounded positions close to the front behind German lines, and RAF Spitfire bombers cut railroads supplying German rocket sites in Holland.

From Italy, 15th Air Force Fortresses and Liberators smashed at rail yards at Amstetten and Wels on the main line from Vienna to Munich, and Regensburg, after a record assault on German rail installations Monday.

For the third consecutive day more than 1,000 bombers and fighter-bombers ranged over northern Italy and Yugoslavia. The Campo Formido Airdrome at Udine was reported seriously crippled, with several planes on the ground damaged.

Twelth Air Force Thunderbolts again went after the Brenner Pass rail line, scoring hits on the southern approach to a bridge at San Margherita.

Harbor And Oil Refineries Hit At Hamburg

London, March 20 (AP)—Four hundred United States heavy bombers attacked German oil refineries, submarine yards and port facilities in the Hamburg area today, while the big RAF bombers continued the campaign to smash railroads behind the Rhine battlefront.

British fleets totaling 500 planes hit Germany's largest freight yards at Hamm and another railway junction at Recklinghausen on the northern fringe of the Ruhr. Hundreds of other planes raked enemy positions near the front after knocking out nearly 5,000 German vehicles yesterday.

United States 8th Air Force Flying Fortresses and Liberators, escorted by 300 fighters, hit the Blohm-Voss U-boat construction yards and various other installations in Hamburg's vast harbor area and the natural-oil refineries at Hemmingstedt, 55 miles northwest of Hamburg.

Austria Under Attack

Fortresses and Liberators from Italy carried forward the air campaign of ruin and devastation in Austia, smashing rail yards at Amstetten and Wels on the main line from Vienna to Munich after their record-breaking assault on German rail installations yesterday.

The United States 9th Air Force flew more than 1,000 sorties from forward continental bases before noon, losing one fighter. Four Nazi ships were destroyed aground and one in the air.

The RAF made its twenty-eighth consecutive raid on Berlin last night, but this time the Mosquitos struck shortly before dawn instead of about midnight. Other night bombers attacked a variety of communications targets from the Ruhr to Hannover and south to Coblenz.

1,500 Sorties

The British 2d Tactical Air Force flew 1,500 sorties, losing seven aircraft. Railways were cut in 80 places and a number of transport depots containing more than 500 vehicles were wrecked.

The Allies destroyed 67 German planes yesterday, 47 in aerial combat and 20 on the ground.

Little interference was offered by the German airmen to the close support operations, but they tried hard to get at 1,200 American bombers which raided jetplane bases and war factories in southern Germany.

8th Bags 39 Planes

The United States 8th Air Force fighters escorting the bombers shot down 39 German fighters in a series of running dogfights. One Mustang outfit led by Lieut. Col. John Landers, of Joshua, Texas, bagged 32 of them.

British medium bombers concentrated on smashing what appeared to be a German attempt to move supplies from the Muenster area to the front opposite Field Marshal Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's army group in the north. Pilots reported the marshaling yards at Dulmen and Coesfeld crowded with a surprising amount of transport.

American heavies operating from Italy yesterday hurled 2,200 tons of bombs on two vital areas—the Muhldorf and Landshut marshalling yards east of Munich.

Nazis Raid England

LONDON, March 20 (A. P.).—A few German planes were over southern England tonight and bombs were reported dropped at one place.

RUHR CALLED 'DEATH TRAP'

Eisenhower Warns German Civilians To Flee The Valley

London, March 20 (AP)—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's radio warnings to German civilians and foreign workers to flee certain areas because the localities would become "death traps" from Allied bombardment was directed today to Ruhr cities.

The broadcasts today were beamed to residents of Essen Muehleim, Dortmund and fourteen other major Ruhr cities and General Eisenhower's spokesman said:

"These districts now are combat areas. Every inhabitant is warned to remove himself and his family to a safe place outside of the Ruhr. From now on no shelter or refuge within these districts can be considered safe. Your life depends upon immediate execution of these orders."

1,500,000 Nazis Taken Captive

London, March 20 (AP)—Approximately 1,500,000 Germans have been captured by the Allies, exclusive of those taken by the Russian Army, since the European war started in September, 1939, War Secretary Sir James Grigg told Commons today.

Russian announcements of casualties inflicted on the Germans by the Red Army have told of more than 12,000,000 killed or captured, with the number of prisoners not specified.

Hitler, Others To Be Treated As 'Murderers, Thieves

London, March 20 (AP)—Major war criminals, including Hitler, will be treated "as murderers, assassins, thieves, torturers and the like," Lord Wright, chairman of the United Nations War Crimes Commission, declared in the House of Lords today.

He made the statement after the Archbishop of York told the House that spectacular trials should be avoided and that the principal war criminals, once caught and identified, should be put to death on the spot.

Hitler's Name Added

"When the commission added the name of Hitler to its list," Lord Wright said, "it was as an ordinary criminal, and the commission was not thinking of political crime. There was evidence, however, that the murdering of people in gas chambers was a deliberate scheme under the direction of a single, organizing mind. If that were brought home to Hitler, why should he not be indictable as a murderer?"

In the category for instant death, the Archbishop put "the master criminals Hitler and Himmler and their gang, who have corrupted Germany and ordered these hideous crimes."

Receives Critical Letters

He spoke during a general Lords debate opened by expression of fears that the war's perpetrators might escape if the war ended too soon. The Archbishop, saying he received critical letters every time he spoke of punishing war criminals, declared:

"It would, of course, be much more pleasant for me to plead for mercy, but sometimes justice has to take precedence over mercy, just as righteousness has to take precedence over peace."

Subordinates who carried out the master criminals' orders, and the "whole of the German people" also should be punished, the churchman asserted.

Other Guilty Classes

"I am thinking of the horrible tortures in concentration camps, of the burning of women and children in that church in southern France where the whole population was massacred, of crimes which no man ought to commit, however, strong the order given to him," he said. "The people we ought to punish are the subordinates, who could have refused to give orders for these crimes, and have sometimes carried them out on their own initiative with enthusiasm and delight.

"Then there is the third guilty party. I am thinking of the whole German people. We cannot entirely distinguish the German people from the Nazis. They have some share in the guilt."

Commons Approves Plan For Post-War Aviation

Will Split Up Routes Among Only Three Companies

LONDON, March 20 (AP).—Britain's plan for post-war civil aviation, splitting up future air commerce routes among only three companies, was approved by the House of Commons tonight after intense debate.

A. T. Lennox-Boyd, Parliamentary secretary for the Ministry of Aircraft Production, said the program outlined earlier in a white paper had enabled the government to push ahead with a national policy.

Leslie Hore-Belisha, former Secretary of State for War, attacked the proposals and said that after the war "the United States will be girdling the world with its aircraft." He contended that Britain should establish an imperial tribunal modeled along the lines of the United States Civilian Aeronautics Board "so that any one who wished to run an air line could appear and state his case."

...I ROLE IN PEACE BEING CONSIDERED

Long-Range Plan Envisages News Agency to Promote World Trade Harmony

LONDON, March 20 (AP)—The United States State Department may absorb many of the Office of War Information's functions soon after victory in Europe, an unofficial informant said today.

Such a proposal has been under consideration for at least three months, with preliminary studies already undertaken for the time when it will be put before Congress for approval. The scheme is part of a long-range plan to promote better understanding of the United States abroad and a clearer comprehension of world affairs among Americans at home.

Perhaps the chief problem, aside from obtaining an appropriation for continuing the OWI's work on a peacetime basis, is the question whether such an overseas information service should be operated as an integral part of the State Department or receive a semi-independent status.

On the basis of pre-war experience in foreign capitals, many United States career diplomats privately say that their efforts to promote good relations have been handicapped by the lack of such an agency.

Their argument is that there may be no need for counteracting political propaganda abroad, but there will almost certainly be economic rivalry needing diplomatic attention and explanations to avoid international misunderstandings.

Such a move would be designed to equip the Government with a public relations staff in foreign countries similar to those maintained by big industries.

It is understood here that three teams of experts, now studying the United States diplomatic set-up in Europe, the Middle East and South America, will report their views of the plan to Secretary of State Edward R. Stettinius Jr.

NEW EFFORT IS MADE FOR A POLISH ACCORD

LONDON, March 20 (AP) — The United States and Britain are reported to have launched a new effort to bring leaders of the Polish factions together with the hope of forming a representative government so the country can be represented at the San Francisco Conference.

Tentative preparations already have been made for discussions in Moscow, but Washington and London are understood to be running into difficulties in negotiations with the Lublin administration.

It was learned that the Lublin group demanded the right to veto certain Polish leaders whom President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill want at the discussions, including Stanislaw Mikolajczyk, former Premier of the London Polish Government. Some quarters in London are annoyed by the Lublin group's insistence.

"There is nothing in the Crimea declaration to suggest that any Poles, whether inside or outside the country, should be vested with such a right," wrote the diplomatic correspondent of The Times of London.

DENIES BRITAIN HAS FOOD BACKLOG

London, March 20 (A. P.).—The Food Minister, John J. Llewellin, said today that he and the Minister of War Production, Oliver Lyttelton, may go to Washington soon to discuss Britain's meat and food supply situation, but added that no definite decision had yet been taken. Mr. Llewellin said he considered the recently announced cut in American meat supplies to Britain as "still fluid" and indicated that there would be no cut in the meat ration at least until all the factors have been weighed.

"We are still getting our meat from Argentina," he said. "Otherwise the meat ration would have to come down.

"It has been stated that it was thought in the United States that we have some 700,000,000 tons of food in store in the United Kingdom. I wish it were true. The fact is we never at any time during the war had stocks of anything like that size. . . . We maintained a margin of foodstuffs so long as the risk . . . he continued. We allocated for civilian consumption in liberated Europe the whole quantity of foodstuffs which we had been maintaining for security reasons. The position today is that stocks have been reduced to . . . working stocks, and there is no margin for security."

British Housing Plan

London, March 20 (AP)—A goal of a separate dwelling for every family which desires one was outlined today in a Government White Paper on the British building program.

The report estimated that 300,000 permanent houses would be built or building by the end of the second year after the end of the European war, but said 1,250,000 would be needed.

British Legation Bombed

LONDON, March 20 (AP).—A crude bomb exploded on the doorstep of the British Legation in Stockholm late last January, it was disclosed today after an unsuccessful two-month hunt for the culprit. Windows were shattered but none of the Legation staff was injured.

Prisoners' Relief Arrives

LONDON, March 20 (AP)—The Secretary of War, Sir James Grigg, reported today that an International Red Cross truck convoy had arrived safely at German prison camps in Bohemia and had delivered approximately 18,000 food packages to American and British prisoners. Additional convoys are en route from Geneva, he said.

Wilhelmina Gets Ovation on Return

LONDON, March 20 (A. P.).—Queen Wilhelmina, first of Europe's exiled monarchs to return home, has visited liberated areas of Holland and received a tremendous ovation, it was announced today.

The Queen toured freed areas after a plane trip from London to Brussels which contrasted strongly with her hurried flight in May, 1940, when German parachutists attempted to capture her as they invaded The Netherlands.

Her appearance in the homeland was expected to act as an inspiration not only to those of her people who already are freed but to those still awaiting liberation.

7 Allied Ships Reported Sunk

LONDON, March 20 (AP).—The German high command declared in a broadcast communique today that Nazi E boats had sunk seven Allied supply ships, totaling 24,500 tons and damaged a destroyer and two motor torpedo boats in an attack on a convoy off the east coast of England. The report was not confirmed by Allied sources.

'Fire Alleys' Fail Tokyo

London, March 20 (AP)—The Tokyo radio said today that special "fire alleys"—often over 100 yards wide—which had been prepared in Tokyo and other Japanese cities had proved ineffective in halting the spread of conflagrations started by recent United States Superfortress raids.

The broadcast emphasized anew the vast damage done by the great Superfortress fire raid on Tokyo on March 10, which a Japanese commentator said had left more people homeless than the heaviest raids on Germany.

Declaring that a "hurricane of fire" had swept the city, the broadcast said it appeared at one time "as if the entire capital would be reduced to ashes."

Indicating that the civil administration broke down under the emergency, the broadcaster said that "the day after the raid the Japanese administration faced tasks which were almost insurmountable."

The broadcast listed 118 schools as totally destroyed and 25 others damaged.

Economic Accord Signed By 4 European Nations

Paris, March 20 (AP)—An economic accord was signed today by France, Belgium, Holland and Luxembourg, pledging mutual aid in rebuilding their war-torn countries.

The agreement envisages the creation of a council for economic cooperation composed of three delegates from each country and a permanent secretariat to act as liaison between the council and economic experts.

FRENCH GAIN IN INDO-CHINA

De Gaulle Calls for Arms for the Troops Fighting the Japanese

PARIS, March 20 (AP)—General Charles de Gaulle, speaking before the Consultative Assembly, demanded today that the Allies drop arms to French troops fighting the Japanese in the mountainous jungles of Upper Laos, west of Hanoi in Indo-China. [American fliers in the China theatre awaited Washington orders for such action, a Reuter dispatch indicated.]

General de Gaulle asserted the French would hold out until relieved, and added, "I insist that arms and munitions be parachuted to them."

The Ministries of Colonies announced the French had driven the Japanese out of Tien-yen, northeast Indo-China, in fierce fighting, killing many of the enemy.

6 More U.S. Soldiers Convicted In Paris

Paris, March 20 (AP)—A United States Army court-martial today assessed twelve-year prison sentences to six enlisted men convicted of wrongfully disposing of Government property.

Their cases were a continuation of the black-market trials in which a number of officers and men from a railway battalion have been tried for looting supplies, such as cigarettes, and selling them to French black-market operators.

Defendants sentenced today were Private Tony Shymanik, West Frankfort, Ill.; Corporal Richard W. Rehnert, Pottsville, Pa.; Sergt. Clyde E. Bruce, Atchison, Kan.; Private John G. Howe, Waltham, Mass.; Sergt. Murat J. Fordyce, San Antonio, Texas, and Private William E. Sharpe, Youngstown, Ohio.

Allies Praise Armies and Air Forces for Preserving Cultural Heritage

Supreme Headquarters in Paris disclosed yesterday that, of twenty-five famous cathedrals, châteaux and other historic buildings listed by the French Government as part of the "cultural heritage of France," twenty-two were now in liberated areas and all but one of these were either intact or only slightly damaged.

TEXT OF ANNOUNCEMENT

Part of the text of the announcement, reported to the Office of War Information, follows:

Soon after SHAEF was formed the Monuments, Fine Arts and Archives Section of G-5, Supreme Headquarters, AEF, supplied the Allied air force at its request with a list of the most important cultural places in France. Later the French authorities in London forwarded to SHAEF a list of what they considered the most important cultural monuments in the country. It was found that these were included in the information supplied to the air force and also in the "list of protected monuments" issued to all commanders.

Due in great part to the collaboration of the air force and of the armies, most of these monuments escaped destruction either by aerial bombing or in ground operations.

Of the twenty-five buildings which the French submitted as the most important monuments for the cultural heritage of France, a recent check of the list showed that twenty-two of them were within the SHAEF area in France and reports by the G-5 Monuments, Fine Arts and Archives officers serving with the armies or communications zone had been received for all except one of them. The record follows:

Chartres Cathedral: received slight damage to the two towers from Germans shooting at French who took refuge there; otherwise intact.

Amiens Cathedral: no damage in 1944.

Beauvais Cathedral: no damage in 1944.

Laon Cathedral: slight scarring of the facade and parts of roof defaced by flying debris.

Rheims Cathedral: no damage in 1944.

Paris Notre-Dame, Louvre and Sainte-Chapelle: the first two received insignificant damage from rifle fire during the capture and afterward in August, 1944.

St. Benoit-sur-Loire: intact.

Versailles Château: intact.

Blois Château: damage to chapel by artillery; otherwise intact.

Chambord Château: intact.

Strasbourg Cathedral: received two bombs in August, 1944, but the damage is insignificant and did not affect the stability of the structure or the sculptured portions.

Fontainebleau Château: intact.

Mont St. Michel: intact.

Carcassonne: no war damage.

Nimes, Maison Carrée: no damage.

Avignon, Palais des Papes: intact.

Chenonceau Château: damaged by Germans in 1940; damaged by blast and fragmentation in 1944 and part of retaining wall is gone, but all is repairable.

Azay-le-Rideau Château: damaged by blast when bridge was blown up by Germans, but is all repairable.

Rouen Cathedral: this was badly damaged by the 1944 bombardment, but far less than Rheims in the last war; this is the only serious damage reported to any of the specially listed buildings.

The other monument in the SHAEF area, the Roman theatre at Orange, has been reported intact.

Three of the twenty-five monuments are located in the French zone of the interior outside SHAEF control and are the Romanesque church at Vézelay, the cathedral at Bourges and the Romanesque monastery at Moissac. They are believed to be intact.

Fire Damages Toulon Arsenal

TOULON, France, March 20 (AP)—Fire raged for several hours in the military arsenal here last night and today, destroyed several thousand bales of newly imported cotton and caused damage estimated at $1,000,000.

1,200 Berliners Demonstrate

On German-Swiss Frontier, March 20 (AP)—Nearly 1,200 demonstrators, mostly women, marched through the working-class sections of Berlin March 10 demanding that the capital be declared an open city, it was reported here today.

These reports said that in eastern and northern Berlin regular police patrols had been replaced by SS (Elite Guards) in armored cars.

Volkssturmers were said to have attacked an SS auto parking lot and set afire several SS cars.

Such incidents have been scattered, it was said, but the Nazis reportedly fear more open action and are talking of martial law for the whole Berlin area.

German Staff Absent When HQ Was Bombed

On the German Frontier Near Buchs, Switzerland, March 20 (AP)—Hitler and the most important members of his staff were absent during the recent American bombing of the German Army's Zossen headquarters. They were conferring at Berchtesgaden on last-minute drafts of defenses, it was reported here today.

Goering Finished, Doctor Reports

By LOUIS P. LOCHNER

COLOGNE, March 20 (A. P.).—A German informant told me today that Reichsmarshal Hermann Goering was regarded by his own physician as physically and mentally finished.

The informant, whom I have known for years, said he spoke with the doctor of the ponderous head of the Nazi air force shortly before Cologne fell to the Allies and was advised that Goering was obsessed by two fears.

WORRIED ABOUT JEWELS

"First," he said, "Goering fears that he may have to part with his collection of jewels and precious stones and second that he may be compelled to disgorge priceless paintings that he 'acquired' since becoming Germany's second man. These fears make him sick most of the time.

"Goering now spends most of the time in bed worrying over the possibility that he may be deprived of the jewels and paintings. He doesn't even visit his 12 other estates and castles, but he remains mostly at Karin Hall, near Berlin. On one occasion his physician had to sit at his bed for six hours just to calm him."

PROVERBIAL LOVE

Goering's love for precious stones is proverbial. He had his reichsmarshal's baton set with jewels. He always flashed at least one big diamond ring. He bought up the precious stone collection of the Duke of Mecklenburg when the latter revealed he would auction the collection.

After Germany's sensational victories of 1939, 1940 and 1941 Goering became the Reich's greatest canvas looter. Through third parties he bought up for a mere pittance private collections of poverty-stricken art connoisseurs in conquered countries. At home he simply "borrowed" costly paintings from state museums and forgot to return them.

Goerdeler Not Killed For Part In Hitler Plot

Bern, March 20 (AP)—The Swiss newspaper Die Tat, quoting "informed sources" in Berlin, said today Dr. Karl Goerdeler, whom the Nazis had announced was killed for his role in the bomb attempt against Hitler last July, still was alive and was being held in reserve as a possible peace petitioner.

The newspaper said Hitler was planting peace rumors in last efforts to try to split the Allies but still wanted to continue fighting.

Goerdeler, former mayor of Leipzig and former Minister of Economics, was accused by the Germans of working out plans in the attempted assassination, Berlin said he was executed in September.

Swiss officials, commenting on rumors that Germans were seeking peace through Switzerland, declared that the Nazi Foreign Minister, Joachim von Ribbentrop, is not in this country.

German press reports said that Col.-Gen. Heinz Guderian is touring SS cadet schools in Germany, lecturing on the war on the eastern front. Moscow dispatches had said earlier that Guderian had been replaced as eastern front commander by Col.-Gen. Schoerner.

Goering, Himmler Wives Reported Sent To Austria

Berne, March 20 (AP)—Hermann Goering and Heinrich Himmler have sent their wives into the Austrian Alps, it was reported today by the Berner Tagwacht.

The newspaper also said Major Waldemar Pabst, Nazi pioneer and once chief of staff of the Austrian Heimwehr, was reportedly in Switzerland as a member of the German economic mission.

It called upon Swiss authorities to state definitely whether Pabst was in the country and if so why he had not been asked to leave.

Nazis Open Volkssturm Special Courts-Martial

London, March 20 (AP)—A Nazi decree has provided for special courts-martial to try Volkssturm offenders.

A Transocean broadcast from Berlin said today the courts, whose "Superior Judge" was named as Heinrich Himmler and the "Supreme Judge" as Hitler himself, would be established in every district of the Reich "to deal with offenses by Volkssturm men during training and active service."

The Volkssturm includes all able-bodied German men from 16 to 65 years of age.

Apparently the purpose of the courts will be to deal death sentences for cowardice and desertion. Previous Nazi announcements said that any German proved guilty of these and other offenses "endangering the German struggle" would be executed.

More Refugees Reach Sweden From Germany

Stockholm, March 20 (AP)—Four Germans, two of them women, fled by air from Germany today and landed in southern Sweden, where they identified themselves as political refugees, Swedish authorities are holding them for an investigation.

This was the third group of Germans who arrived in Sweden within a week, asserting they were "tired of the war."

20 Million Homeless, Reich a Ghost Nation

(Christer Jaederlund, for 17 years Berlin correspondent of the Swedish newspaper Stockholms-Tidningen, has just returned to Stockholm with the latest first-hand account of conditions in Germany.)

By CHRISTER JAEDERLUND

Copyright, 1945, by Associated Press

STOCKHOLM, March 20 (A. P.).—In all Berlin, once the fifth city of the world, there are today habitable accommodations for no more than the population of New Orleans.

Allied bombings have been so devastating that they have reduced the houses and apartments in which 4,250,000 once lived to a state in which they now can house only about 500,000.

In the remnant of Berlin which still stands there is gas, water and electric light. But blocks around the Bayrischer platz in the southwestern end of the city already have been evacuated because it is no longer possible to keep track of all the time bombs which land in the ruins.

MELT SNOW FOR WATER

In the east end a "plague wall" of masonry has sealed off a whole block of houses in the Spittelmarkt area where piles of corpses have been rotting because it was found impossible to remove them. The wall runs from ruined house to ruined house to prevent the spread of infection from this district, which once was the center of Berlin's flourishing clothing industry.

In Munich there is neither light, gas nor running water. Just as in the cities of western Germany, Munich's population has been obliged to melt snow to obtain water for cooking.

20 MILLION FLEE HOMES

In Dresden only the main streets have been cleared for traffic.

It is estimated that 20,000,000 Germans already have fled from their homes to escape bombs and guns. This figure is constantly growing.

The misery which this war has brought on other nations now has befallen the Germans on a vast scale. Nonetheless the Germans seem convinced that what they already have suffered is only a foretaste of what lies ahead.

Before the war Germany had 250 large towns. The majority of them now are rubble heaps. The transport system has been largely destroyed. Practically all the simplest necessities of normal life have been exhausted.

END BELIEVED NEAR

The Nazi structure still holds together, but after the loss of the industries of Upper Silesia, which were Germany's principal food reservoirs, the end is approaching with giant strides.

Why does the Nazi structure still stand? Millions of Germans would heave a sigh of relief on being liberated from Nazi rule, not to mention the joy they would experience when the mass killing comes to an end.

But terror of the Gestapo and concentration camps holds these elements in check just as stern discipline holds a great part of the German army that otherwise would long ago have been scattered.

HATRED OF NAZIS OPEN

Commanding the Eastern front from Frankfurt - An - Der - Oder through Saxony and Silesia, Colonel General Schoerner has the reputation of being more ruthless in demanding discipline than Heinrich Himmler. It is commonly said Schoerner conducts war by court martial. Any soldier who fails to stand fast simply is shot.

Hatred of the Nazi party already is so open and so widespread that one can expect the final settlement to be bloody and terrible. Even in top circles people are not asking today what will happen to Hitler, but "What will happen to us?"

KNOW WAR IS LOST

There are various explanations why Germany is still fighting.

Hitler fights, one might say, because he is ashamed.

He does not wish to stand before history with the disgrace of a lost war. His advisers understand that they have reached dead end. They have their backs to the wall and seem determined to throw the whole nation into the jaws of the Allied offensives.

Since the tide turned at Stalingrad Nazi propaganda has not loosened its grip on the German people. Today it provides the main explanation of why the Germans still fight, although they know the war is lost.

KNOW THEY MUST PAY

Day after day millions of Germans listen to Allied radio broadcasts urging them to surrender in time. They understand the meaning of these broadcasts, but nevertheless they fight and work on.

The German people know they must pay for a lost war and much besides.

But with what are they to pay? Most of Germany's cities have been laid in ruins until it is impossible to estimate in figures all that has been destroyed.

What is the use of saving insignificant assets which are left? the population is asking.

The sufferings under German occupation of countries such as Norway and Greece, of the thousands of Greeks who have starved to death and the misery which has befallen the Poles and Russians during the German offensives left the Germans who witnessed them unmoved.

And the Germans at home never learned much about them. But now, when the same misery is threatening them, they are beginning to remember—and they feel that what Germany must undergo will be 10 times as hard.

For years the Germans have considered conscription of millions of foreign workers as slave laborers quite in order, but now they are terrified at the thought they may themselves be deported.

During the last few hard years the German people have not had many opportunities—nor any great desire—to pause and think. There were few Germans who understood in the time of good fortune that if Germany won the war the whole of Europe would have to work for her but if she lost the situation would be reversed.

Now every German is aware of this fact. Now millions of German workers are wondering: "Will we be deported? Where will the line be drawn?"

TERRIFIED BY FUTURE

Certainly, they argue, it would not be worthwhile to put some fat, unskilled Nazi party men to work to rebuild the ruined cities.

Leaders of the July revolt against Hitler foresaw all this—and many others with them.

But, owing to bad luck and clumsiness, they have ruined the prospects for all their successors.

Today the Germans are fighting on because they feel they are postponing a situation which appears to them even more terrifying than war itself.

Italians In North Harass Germans

Rome, March 20 (AP)—Patriots in Northern Italy are carrying out increasingly widespread attacks against German forces and vital enemy targets, a 15th Army Group communiqué said today. Land operations along the Italian battlefront again were limited to patrol clashes.

A 12th Air Force staff officer declared that Allied aerial activity against the Brenner Pass line and other enemy transport routes had made it questionable whether the Germans could evacuate their ground forces from Northern Italy if they wanted to do so.

The Brenner line has been blocked for more than a month and the other routes are under constant surveillance of Allied airmen, with enemy transports suffering heavy damage from strafing and bombing.

The 15th Army Group communiqué said a captured German lieutenant reported that the enemy often found it necessary to use a whole regiment to combat patriot attacks on supply dumps and troop movements in Northern Italy.

Partisans Resume Action

BERN, Switzerland, March 20 (AP).—A dispatch from the Italian frontier said today that Italian Partisans had resumed action in northern Italy amid continued reports that an Allied offensive there was imminent. Heavy fighting was reported in the area of Pavia and Piacenza, from fifty-five to sixty miles north and northeast of Genoa, and Neo-Fascist troops were said to have been routed at Varzi, thirty-two miles north of Genoa.

Umberto Nobile, Italian Airman, To Be General

Rome, March 20 (AP)—Umberto Nobile, who retired from the Italian Air Force following the Fascist inquest into the North Pole disaster to the dirigible Italia in 1928, will be returned soon to active service with the rank of a major general, it was learned today.

The action follows a review by the Air Ministry of the inquest which led to his resignation. In an interview recently Nobile asserted that the Fascist regime was always eager to accept the credit for ventures which turned out well, but looked for scapegoats when ventures failed.

Again Europe in the Spring

Clare Boothe Luce Finds Soldiers Sniffing Heady Air of Victory Now.

Representative Clare Boothe Luce of Connecticut volunteered to write several dispatches for the combined American press during her visit to the Mediterranean theater of war. The first one follows.

By CLARE BOOTHE LUCE

Distributed by Associated Press.

Rome, March 20.—The highest military authorities in Italy, who always are cautious and conservative, point to the fanatical resistance of the Germans on three fronts and warn that costly fighting may continue in Europe even into the autumn. But the GI and the British Tommy have sniffed the wind of victory.

They know this is the last spring of the battle in Italy. Everywhere, in canteens, service clubs, messes and pup tents, men ask one another: So where do we go from here? Home? To Japan, to occupy Germany and Austria?

They read the cryptic answer in a recent Stars and Stripes article with mingled hope and uneasiness. The dispatch from Washington quoted our military leaders there as saying that our people must remember there still is a great war to be won in the Pacific.

Therefore, there will be relatively few discharged from the Army, and there will be the swiftest possible direct transfer from Germany to the approaches of Japan, but there will be some furloughs and it is generally planned to give as many troops as possible a few weeks' leave before going to the Pacific. So, in the slang of our British cousins, thousands of Americans in Italy are on notice that they still are "for it," though many will get a longish peek at Wichita and Houston, Los Angeles and Bridgeport, before they will come to grips with the evil little men of Nippon.

Victory in Spring Air.

Meanwhile, though victory is in the springtime air here, there is nasty fighting on the Fifteenth Army Group front. The tremendous mission assigned to the Allied forces there, which has been continuously carried out since the fall of Rome, has not been completed.

That mission was, and is, to hold and chew to pieces as many enemy divisions as possible in order to weaken the Germans on the western and eastern fronts. Twenty-six German divisions, a whale of a lot of Nazis for any G. I.'s money, are being engaged today and tomorrow will be destroyed in Italy; but, today, this mission, these battles on the Italian front, no longer make headline news in America or Britain.

They don't even make headline

Italy [illegible] Mediterranean [illegible] and St[illegible]s—the best edited army newspaper in the [illegible] perhaps—gives its big [illegible] the Rhine bridgehead, the Berlin bulge and the hellish fire left blazing through Tokyo by 300 Superfortresses.

Anglo-American Teamwork.

The G. I. in Italy knows he is no longer big news to the home folks. Even in his own theater he doesn't try to give himself any top billing.

Nevertheless, there still is a great story to be told—or, rather, retold—to the home folks about the Italian theater. In some ways it is the greatest story of the war. For it is one that perhaps has the most significance for the postwar world.

It is a particularly good story for the people to ponder who have gotten the European peace jitters badly in the last few weeks. It is the story of the Anglo-American teamwork in Italy. It is a story not merely of the collaboration of the alliance of two armies and navies, but their almost complete integration.

The Russians have run their own show entirely. In the southwestern Pacific the show has been almost entirely American. Since the Normandy invasion in France the preponderant part of the show has had an American complexion, but here in the Mediterranean, from the days of the Sicilian landings until now, British and American forces have planned, worked, fought and governed so closely together they have been, in effect, not two, but one, force. There are 500,000 men and women in American uniforms in Italy today and as many more members of the British, Dominion and Colonial forces.

What have our two nations learned for the national future of our two peoples from our great experiment in "getting together?"

I believe every thoughtful person who contemplates this one close-knit world which we live in must agree that the character of post-war American international relations is not going to be very much better than our relations to the British Commonwealth. If we are friends—which is to say peoples who mutually will benefit from our relations—many things will be possible to progress and the peace.

If we are not friends—nothing will succeed, including the Dumbarton Oaks organization, and no agreement, least of all Yalta, will last very long. The stability of the post-war world rests, in a large part, on the satisfactory understanding between Uncle Sam and John Bull.

Hero Son Reported On Visit to Tito

MOSCOW, March 20 (A. P.).—The son of Marshal Josip Broz (Tito), who lost his right hand and won the title of Hero of the Soviet Union while fighting in the Red Army, was reported today on a visit to his father in Belgrade.

The son traveled from Moscow by plane as Lieutenant Zharko Popovich. He dropped the family name Broz originally as a security measure to prevent the Germans from linking him with the guerrila chieftain in event of his capture.

U.S. Base In Egypt Sought?

Cairo, March 20 (AP)—The United States intends to ask Egyptian representatives at the San Francisco conference for a United States air base in Egypt after the war, it was reported here today. The Egyptians reportedly already have been informed of the request and are said to favor it.

50 SEATS ARE WON BY FINN LEFTISTS

Helsinki, March 20 (A. P.).—The Communist Democratic Peoples Union party appeared today to have won approximately fifty seats in the Finnish Parliament, cutting deeply into the ranks of Social Democrats and Conservatives.

With 1,500,000 of a probable 1,800,000 ballots already counted, the left-wingers and the Social Democrats had polled about half of the votes, virtually on a 50-50 basis. The Social Democrats were cut from eighty-five to fifty seats. The prospect was that the left-wingers and Social Democrats could, if they choose to work together, command a majority of slightly more than 100 in the 200-member assembly.

Chances for such a coalition were bright, since Social Democratic candidates who opposed anti-Russian policies appeared to have led their party and should be in a position to push an alignment. Generally the election was interpreted as a rebuke to those responsible for the policy that cost Finland so much in the war with Russia, and an expression of confidence in the few who opposed an alliance with Germany.

It was too early to tell whether the new Parliament would suit the Russians.

Finns Pro-Soviet, Premier Declares

By Associated Press

"Future Finnish policy will never again run counter to the interests of the Soviet Union," Finnish Premier Juho K. Paasikivi was quoted as saying yesterday in a broadcast from Finland.

The broadcast said Paasikivi declared in an interview in a Swedish newspaper that "the Finnish people will incline even further in the direction of the Soviet Union in their political orientation."

Storied Mandalay Captured By British Sweep In Burma

Calcutta, March 20 (AP)—Mandalay, Burma's second city, fell today to British 14th Army troops.

King George VI hailed the conquest as a "notable landmark" of the war in a congratulatory message to Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten, supreme Allied commander in Southeast Asia.

The fabled city was secured after British and Indian troops crushed the last fanatical resistance in thick-walled Fort Dufferin, last Japanese stronghold.

Communications Difficult

King George's message to Mountbatten, who had announced the conquest in a message of praise to the Allied forces, said:

"The capture of Mandalay is a notable landmark in your advance into Burma. I have watched with admiration the gallantry and tenacity shown by the Allied land forces under your command, sustained by the Allied air forces and supported by the Royal Navy, in their long and arduous campaign in Southeast Asia.

"To you personally, and to all Allied ranks and ratings in your command, I send my warmest congratulations."

Mountbatten said the conquest and the entire Burma campaign was accomplished "against a background of what are perhaps the most difficult lines of communications in any theater of war."

British 36th Division troops, meanwhile, occupied Mogok, ruby capital of the world, 65 miles west of Lashion on the Burma road and 65 miles northeast of Mandalay. These troops were driving to clear all of the area north of the Mandalay-Lashio road.

"All these achievements . . . are not only important steps in the final destruction of the aggressor nations, but they are giving encouragement and hope to our prisoners in Japanese hands; bringing nearer the day when you, and they, can return to a world of peace in complpete security," Mountbatten said.

Garrison Doomed

The battle for Mandalay was one of the bitterest of the entire Burma campaign. Japanese had holed up in the mile-and-a-half-square, thick-walled fort and resisted bitterly.

The Japanese high command had advised the doomed garrison that no reinforcements were possible and the only recourse was "glorious death."

With the fall of Mogok, enemy resistance north of the Burma road virtually ended. Chinese troops are mopping up near Hsipaw and the whole center of fighting in Burma now shifts to south of Mandalay.

The enemy has been reacting strongly in the Meiktila sector, where all escape routes are cut off and an estimated 30,000 Japanese are trapped west and north of Meiktila.

American and British bombers of the Strategic Air Force, flying almost 3,000 miles in one of the longest missions ever flown by Liberators, raided enemy communications on the Kra Isthmus in Thailand, some 245 miles southwest of Bangkok, and results were said to be excellent.

The British units attacked supply dumps at Na-nein, 4 miles inland from the port of Chum Porn, and the American group hit bridges south of Na-nein on the Singapore-Bangkok railway and the railway across the neck of the isthmus. The Tako bridge on the west coast was destroyed.

British Forces Take Mogok

Calcutta, March 20 (AP)—British 36th Division troops have occupied Mogok, world's ruby capital 65 miles northeast of Mandalay and an equal distance west of the Burma road city of Lashio, in the Allied drive to rid the area north of the Mandalay-Lashio road of the Japanese.

[A Reuter dispatch said Fort Dufferin, Japanese stronghold in the center of Mandalay, had been captured.

[A BBC dispatch heard in New York by NBC said Mandalay was completely in British hands today.]

In the Mandalay fighting British troops continued mopping-up operations against Japanese ordered to resist to the last. British 2d Division troops pushing northeast from Ava are astride the Rangoon-Mandalay railway and have entered the southern part of Mandalay.

Liberators Raid Kra Isthmus

American and British B-24 bombers of the Strategic Air Force, flying almost 3,000 miles in one of the longest missions ever flown by Liberators, raided enemy communications on the Kra isthmus in Thailand, some 245 miles southwest of Bankok, and results were said to be excellent.

The British units attacked supply dumps at Na-nein, four miles inland from the port of Chum Porn, and the American group hit bridges south of Na-nein on the Singapore-Bankok Railway and the railway across the neck of the isthmus. The Tako bridge on the west coast was destroyed.

Flank Move Indicated

Capture of Mogok, a communications center controlling three all-weather roads, threatened to flank those enemy forces astride the Burma road. They were being pressed between the Chinese driving from captured Lashio and the British at Maymyo, 40 miles northeast of Mandalay, seized by the Tommies last week.

Chinese forces moving west from Lashio have cut the Kyaukme-Hsipaw road 5 miles southwest of Hsipaw, denying another important highway to the imperiled enemy in the area. Desperate enemy counterattacks were thrown back in three battles in which several hundred Japanese were killed.

Chinese Troops Battle Way Back Into Tayu

Chungking, March 20 (AP)—Chinese troops have fought their way back into Tayu, wolfram-producing center and a key point in Japanese supply lines near the southern Kiangsi province border, the Chinese high command said tonight.

Japanese forces in Tayu have been hemmed in on three sides, the high command said.

Meanwhile, to the north in Kiangsi, severe fighting was reported in the suburbs of Kanhsien, former United States airbase.

Chinese troops were said to be attacking Nankang, between Tayu and Kanhsien, and to have reached the outskirts of that town.

YANKS TAKE ILOILO DROME

Drive East Into Panay Capital's Outskirts

Manila, Wednesday, March 21 (AP). Maj. Gen. Rapp Brush's 40th Division infantrymen captured the important Iloilo airdrome on Panay Island Monday in a swift eastward drive into the outskirts of the capital city.

Another column spearing northward 25 miles from the beachhead overran the broad coastal plain, captured the towns of Janiuay, Pototan and Barotac Nuevo and established contact with a strong guerrilla band which had done much to clear the southeast section of the big central Philippines island.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur said in his communiqué today that the Yanks were "taking full advantage of the enemy's confusion" as they swept rapidly north and east from the beachhead established at dawn Sunday with naval and air support.

Iloilo Fired

Heavy fires were observed in Iloilo, indicating the enemy was putting the torch to the city of 90,000 inhabitants. Iloilo, one of the best ports in the central Philippines, was badly damaged by Japanese naval guns and American demolition squads when the enemy captured the city early in 1942.

The 40th Division Yanks captured Carpenter's bridge over the Iloilo River on the eastern approaches.

Guerrillas on Luzon, meantime, scored an important triumph by capturing San Fernando in La Union province, a major port just north of the American beachhead on Lingayen Gulf. The Japanese garrison was wiped out.

San Fernando was a vital shipping point for the Japanese. From there they sent metals from the rich Benguet Mountains to Japan.

Thirty-third Division doughboys drove north 10 miles from Aringay to seize Bauang, 6 miles south of San Fernando. Two bridges along this coastal road were captured before they could be blown up by the retreating Japanese.

Counterattack Beaten Off

Other Yanks pressed closer to the Philippine summer capital at Baguio, due east of Aringay, and pushed farther into the enemy's secondary defenses along the Shimbu Line east of Manila.

On Mindanao Maj. Gen. Jens A. Doe's 41st Division repulsed a night counterattack north of San Roque as they expanded their positions in the Zamboanga hills to the north against lessening resistance.

Americans an Basilan Island, 12 miles south of Zamboanga, captured the town of Isabela in a combined overland and amphibious operation.

MacArthur said Basilan "now is under our control."

Liberators dropped 106 tons of bombs on Formosa airdromes and raked enemy holdings in the central Philippines, while patrolling of the blockaded China Sea netted a 10,000-ton tanker damaged and a small freighter sunk, the latter north of Formosa.

Yanks Meet Few Japs On Panay

Manila, March 20 (AP)—The big broom sweeping the Japanese from the Philippines reached Panay Island Sunday as Maj. Gen. Rapp Brush's 40th Infantry Division, again achieving complete surprise, invaded the flat southern coastal plain and quickly closed in on the port capital of Iloilo and its big airfield. Headquarters announced the invasion today.

No Japanese but cheering Filipinos met the Yanks swarming ashore just before dawn. Many sections of the large island had been cleared of enemy troops by guerrillas.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur said hardly a man was lost invading the seventh major Philippine island.

Was Threat To Convoys

Panay had been a decided threat to American convoys passing through central Philippine seas toward Manila.

The 8th Army doughboys, landing at Tigbauan, broke into right-angle spearheads. One seized Cordova, 4 miles inland, and the other swept 7 miles east along the coast to Oton.

A small enemy force was encountered on the road to Cordova, but otherwise the area was surprisingly free of Japanese. Flyers scanned the country behind the beachhead in search of enemy positions, but found none.

No Pre-Invasion Blasting

The landing was made on the only extensive flat area of the island. Cruisers, destroyers and rocket-firing surface vessels were ready if needed, but no pre-invasion blasting was required.

Other Yank forces landed the same day on Malamaui islet, 12 miles south of the southwestern tip of Mindanao.

The new landing further secured the southern approaches to Zamboanga, where Yanks of Maj. Gen. Jens A. Doe's 41st Dvision were steadily expanding their positions with tank support.

Philippines To Get 60 Million In Goods

Manila, March 20 (AP)—A detailed program for the shipment of approximately $60,000,000 worth of essential consumer goods to the Philippines has been prepared, United States Consul General Paul P. Steintorf said today.

The United States Government will assist in the difficult problem of economic rehabilitation of the Philippines, he said, but every effort will be made to restore private business.

Steintorf returned to the Philippines with a seven-man staff and is planning to occupy the former German consulate as the highest American civil authority.

The program will begin as soon as the current army program is completed, possibly in six months.

At present the Army is distributing both relief and purchasable commodities.

38-Day Sugar Strike In Puerto Rico Ended

San Juan, P.R., March 20 (AP)—Ten Puerto Rican sugar mills were in operation today as the 38-day sugar strike came to an end. All farms were expected to be operating by the weekend.

The strike ended last night when the Puerto Rican Farmers Association agreed to pay workers 23 cents additional daily from a 55-cent subsidy received from the Commodity Credit Corporation.

Canada Asks Greater Voice

Ottawa, Ontario, March 20 (AP)—Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King urged today that "secondary states" such as Canada be given a greater voice in the prospective world-security organization than is envisioned in the tentative proposals drawn up by the great powers for discussion at San Francisco.

The Prime Minister, outlining Canada's program for the conference before Parliament, intimated broadly this was one of the principal points discussed by him recently with President Roosevelt at the White House.

View Of His Government

"It is the view of the Government," King declared, "that the constitutional position wthin the (world security) organization of important secondary countries should be clarified, and that the delegation from Canada should exert the utmost effort to secure due recognition of their relative standing among the nations of the world.

"As the proposals stand, all states, other than the five great powers, would have the same constitutional position in the organization.

"No regard would be paid to their international significance, or to their record in resisting aggression, or to their potential contribution to the maintenance of peace. . . .

90.24-24067

"Some method of selection which would have due regard for the power and responsibilities of secondary states would make the (security) council a more powerful and efficient body."

King made it clear his Government feels that "in general, exception can hardly be taken to the extension, within the organization, of some special prerogatives to the great powers, on whom the major responsibility for keeping the peace must rest."

King said he had discussed with President Roosevelt the main features of the world-security proposals, along with "suggestions which the Canadian Government believes would make for improvement in the effectiveness of the proposed organization."

Seeks No Amendments

But, he said, Canada does not intend now to propose particular provisions or amendments in advance of the San Francisco parley.

Although he said there was "a good deal of obscurity" about the method of application of the proposal to enforce the peace by use of force, King declared:

"One point, however, is clear. As they stand, the acceptance of the proposals would in no way commit Canada to send forces beyond Canadian territory at the call of the security council."

Canada Increases Butter Ration

Ottawa, March 20 (AP)—The Canadian butter ration will be increased from six to seven ounces weekly beginning April 1, restoring a one-ounce reduction put into effect January 1 because of inadequate stocks, the Prices Board announced last night.

The board said the reduction during the winter months has eliminated the shortage.

Dr. G. S. H. Barton, Deputy Minister of Agriculture, has told the Dominion that it is "long on wheat but short on meat" and his assertion has given rise to speculation that meat rationing may be resumed.

Russia Notifies Turkey On Treaty

New York, March 20 (AP)—Russia has informed Turkey that she desires to terminate the Soviet-Turkish treaty, in effect since 1925, because the pact "no longer corresponds to new conditions and needs considerable improvement," the Soviet Information Bureau announced tonight.

The announcement, broadcast by the Moscow radio, said Foreign Commissar Molotov had asked the Turkish Ambassador Tuesday to notify his Government that the Soviet Union, "recognizing the value" of the treaty concluded to maintain friendly relations, nevertheless considers that "the great changes that have taken place, particularly during the second World War," require a new understanding.

Forde Discounts 'Imperialism' Of U.S.

San Francisco, March 20 (AP)—Australians have no fear of "Yankee imperialism," but, on the contrary, welcome greater American participation in Pacific affairs, says Deputy Prime Minister Francis M. Forde, Australian delegate to the forthcoming San Francisco conference.

Mr. Forde and Dr. H. V. Evatt, Minister for External Affairs, are stopping briefly on the Pacific Coast on their way to London for a pre-conference meeting with other British commonwealth leaders.

Mr. Forde declared: "We in Australia have no fear of Yankee imperialism. We like Americans. We welcome their increased interest in the Pacific. It would be a very sad day for the dominions of New Zealand and Australia if America ceased to take a major interest in the Pacific.

"Many American service men have told me they would return after the war to settle on the land."

Mr. Forde said the Australian Government had taken steps to encourage the immigration of these men he termed "the very flower of American manhood."

A striking force of Aussies soon would be used by Gen. Douglas MacArthur in a major Pacific action, the Deputy Prime Minister told a press conference yesterday.

'Virtuous Monopoly,' Navy Idea

Admiral Redman Again Outlines Plan for International Communications Merger.

Washington, March 20 (A. P.).—Rear Admiral John L. Redman declared today that a Navy-proposed monopoly over American international communications would be a "virtuous" monopoly.

Senator Capehart (R.-Ind.), the radio-phonograph manufacturer, raised the question at a meeting of a Senate Interstate Commerce Sub-committee.

"There's no virtue in a monopoly," Cenator Capehart said, "unless the monopoly has virtue."

Without hesitation, the Admiral replied: "Well, this one would be virtuous."

For the second straight day, Admiral Redman sketched for the sub-committee a proposal under which a privately owned and managed corporation would take over a communications system worth from $60,000,000 to $100,000,000. Members of the War, Navy, Commerce, Post Office and State departments would sit in as five of the corporation's twenty-member board of directors to help pass on questions afecting military and economic security.

Wheeler Fears Censorship.

He wouldn't exclude any means of international communications from the consolidation, he said, not event facilities for transmitting press dispatches to this country, and that didn't appeal to Chairman Wheeler (D.-Mont.).

Asserting that he didn't see how Press Wireless could be brought intothe promised monopoly, Senator Wheeler said: "That might put censorship over our press communications."

"We are proposing a communications system,' the witness replied, "not a censorship over press service."

"If I ran a newspaper, I'd object to any sort of censorship," Mr. Wheeler said.

The Admiral said that Press Wireless was established because of a poor press communications service under the present competitive system among American carriers.

Midway, Mightiest of Carriers, Is Christened at Newport News

NEWPORT NEWS, March 20 (AP)—The decks of the mighty U. S. S. Midway—heaviest, strongest, fastest carrier ever built, which was floated in her building dock and christened today—will be covered with a "1945 model aircraft" so new it has not yet seen combat action.

This was disclosed today by Artemus L. Gates, Assistant Secretary of the Navy for Air, in a speech at the christening of the 45,000-ton Midway.

Mr. Gates gave no hint of what the new plane can do. But he predicted the 1945 model carrier and plane will not be a "pleasant combination to be contemplated by the Japanese war lords."

Addressing the men and women of the Newport News Shipbuilding Company who built the weapon, Mr. Gates said:

"The name, Midway, is exceptionally appropriate, for it was in that famed battle in June, 1942, that the aircraft carrier came into its own. The Hornet, Yorktown and Enterprise were the backbone of that victory. And they, like the Midway, were spawned at Newport News.

"The Navy has learned how to use and build carriers since the Essex, first of its class, was launched here three years ago. As a result the Midway is 'a two-fisted fighter.'

"This is a milestone in the long line of carrier development—the Essex, the first of the present medium class—the Independence, the first of the present light class—and now the Midway, the first of the heavy carrier class.

"To safeguard the Midway," Mr. Gates declared, "it has been given heavy armor, intricate watertight compartments and improved damage control, great strides in the direction of invulnerability."

The Midway will be commanded by Capt. J. F. Bulger, who served as Mr. Gates' aide for a year and a half before putting to sea as captain of an Essex-type carrier. His outstanding service, Mr. Gates said, won him the promotion to head man on the greatest carrier ever built.

The Midway can carry a destructive flock of more than eighty twin-engined planes and a complement of some 3,000 officers and men. She contains enough steel to build 25,000 automobiles.

A bottle of champagne was broken against her bow by Mrs. Bradford W. Ripley 2d of Dayton, the daughter of James M. Cox, former Governor of Ohio.

The Midway, which will mount guns up to five inches, is the first of five 45,000 tonners now building or authorized. The Coral Sea, second of the class, will be launched this spring at the New York Navy Yard. The Newport News Shipbuilding and Drydock Company which built the Midway has another under construction and holds contracts for two more.

Mrs. Ripley is the widow of a Navy lieutenant who lost his life in a Pacific plane crash. Her father is publisher of The Atlanta (Ga.) Journal, Dayton (Ohio) News, Springfield (Ohio) News and Sun, and Miami (Fla.) News.

Commissioning Destroyer.

Boston, March 20 (A. P.).—The destroyer Myles C. Fox, named in honor of a Navy Cross winner, will be placed in commission at the Boston Navy Yard late today.

Lieut. Fox, a native of New York and a Williams College graduate, was mortally wounded while serving with the First Marine Raider Battalion on Tulagi.

XP-56 Is Unveiled.

Los Angeles, March 20 (A. P.).—The Army Air Forces have unwrapped for public view the XP-56, the tail-less pursuit plane which has no propeller on the nose, but two where the tail might have been.

Northrup Aircraft engineered and built it. Its radical features have led to technical data which the company says will be used in future military and peacetime aircraft.

Aft of the pilot's cockpit is an air-cooled engine driving twin, three-bladed propellers. Elevators and lateral controls are on the wing's trailing edge. Directional stability is provided by fixed vertical fins above and below.

Bomber Losses 1.7% in 1944

WASHINGTON, March 20 (AP)—American heavy bomber losses to enemy action in Europe during 1944 averaged less than two planes for every 100 sent on combat missions.

A War Department report today said the actual loss rate for the Britain-based Eighth Air Force and he Italy-based Fifteenth Air Force amounted to 1.7 bombers for each 100 planes.

Nazis Have Planes, But Pilots Are Green: Arnold

Miami, Fla., March 20 (AP)—Germany today "has probably more airplanes than ever before, but no airforce," says Gen. Henry H. Arnold, commanding general of the Army Air Forces.

The AAF chief, in an interview with the Miami Herald, attributed the decline of the German air force to Allied attacks on German factories and the "practically complete" destruction of the German oil industry.

"Without oil, their pilots don't get proper training, and when they do go up, are duck soup for our highly-trained airmen."

He added that "at first we were a bit apprehensive as to how many jet planes we would be able to shoot down" but that "we have been able to shoot down many more than we expected."

Vice Admiral McCain Receives New Honor

Washington, March 20 (AP)—Award of the gold star in lieu of a second Distinguished Service Medal to Vice Admiral John S. McCain was announced today by the Navy.

Admiral McCain was decorated for his services as commander of the 2d Carrier Task Force and commander of a task group from September 1 to October 30, 1944, and as commander of Task Force, 3d Fleet, from November 1, 1944, to January 26, 1945.

He is now on duty as commander of a carrier task force, Pacific Fleet.

Attempt To Cut Farm-Payment Funds Fails

Washington, March 20 (AP)—The House today received an $833,801,932 supply bill for the Agriculture Department.

Reporting the measure to supply funds for the twelve months beginning July 1, the Appropriations Committee:

1. Vetoed an Administration recommendation that farm-benefit payments be cut from the current $300,000,000 level to $200,000,000 on 1946 crops.

2. Rejected another Budget Bureau proposal that on 1945 crops the $300,000,000 benefit figure be trimmed to $290,000,000.

3. Recommended that the House Agriculture Committee be heard from before any change be made in the $300,000,000 farm program fund.

Beyond Direct Subsidies

[The farm benefit payments for such practices as soil conservation are in addition to approximately $560,000,000 in direct subsidy payments by the War Food Administration to encourage production of milk and sugar.]

4. Made public hearings containing testimony that two employés of the Commodity Credit Corporation had prison records.

5. Showed that CCC officials had been questioned sharply about reports of huge food spoilages.

The item for farm-program payments, which have helped boost United States food production to record highs, was the largest in the measure.

Over Current Total

The total in the bill for all Agricultural Department activities was $56,958,207 over current year appropriations, but $141,499,350 below budget estimates. The reduction from these estimates was accounted for largely by cuts of $90,000,000 in loan authorizations for the Rural Electrification Administration, $57,500,000 in the rural rehabilitation loan fund and $10,000,000 in the farm tenant loan fund.

Individual Allocations

Large individual allocations, in addition to the various benefit payments, included:

Payments to states under the Extension Service program, $14,198,950, in addition to $7,001,208 for experiment stations; eradication of tuberculosis and Bang's disease in cattle, $5,848,000; meat-inspection service, $7,800,000; regional research laboratories, $4,000,000; national forest protection and management, $16,349,100; War Food Administration, $13,636,472; Federal crop insurance, $7,984,900.

The committee recommended a ban against sale of Government-owned or controlled farm products at less than parity prices for most commodities.

School Lunches Approved

It approved continuance of the school-lunch program at an estimated cost of $50,000,000 and earmarked $25,000,000 of the $40,000,000 farm-tenancy loan fund for advances to returning service men.

The hearings were marked by sharp questioning of CCC officials concerning reports voiced in the House that 20,000,000 pounds of lard were permitted to spoil and were sold for soap purposes, that the Government failed to make the most out of a sale of 450 tons of raisins, and that thousands of pounds of scarce food items acquired by the CCC for lend-lease and price-support purposes were allowed to spoil.

Went To Soap Firm

Loss of CCC-acquired food by spoilage has amounted to one twenty-fifth of the amount handled; 180,825 cases of eggs purchased for food were diverted to animal feed because of lack of storage space; 399 railroad cars of potatoes were lost through spoilage; the CCC was overcharged approximately $26,000 by the New York firm of Lynch, Donahue & Dee under contracts for reconditioning food at ports.

Olmstead said the allocation of the 20,000,000 pounds of spoiled lard, stored near Cincinnati, was made to soap manufacturers by the Army Quartermaster Corps.

The 450 tons of raisins, he said, were sold to the Empire Frosted Foods Company, New York, on a bid of about 8 cents a pound after a wine company had offered 11 cents. Subsequently, he said, the Empire Frosted Foods Company resold the raisins to a winery "at a huge profit to itself."

Virginian Who Gave Life On D-Day Wins C.M.H.

MAR 21 1945

Washington, March 20 (AP)—A 25-year-old infantry lieutenant who followed the gutteral sound of a surrender demand to wipe out a German machine-gun nest has received the nation's highest military honor—posthumously.

The Congressional Medal of Honor goes to First Lieutenant Jimmie W. Monteith, Jr., for sacrificing his life on the Normandy beachhead on D-day while attempting to lead his platoon out of a Nazi trap.

The Richmond (Va.) officer personally blasted two other enemy machine-gun nests before he fell.

The medal will be presented to his widowed mother, Mrs. Jimmie W. Monteith, Sr., tomorrow at her home in Richmond.

Story Of His Heroism

Staff Sergeant Aaron B. Jones, of Rome, Ga., a member of Monteith's platoon in the 16th Infantry Regiment, told this story of Monteith's heroism:

The platoon hit the beach under heavy machine-gun, rifle and shell fire. Immediately ahead were layers of barbed wire. Monteith led a group that blasted the wire.

Beyond lay two mine fields. Monteith moved out in front and led the platoon through the fields to cover, despite fire from the two enemy machine guns and a pillbox. He returned to the beach, located two tanks and guided them to a position from which they knocked out the pillbox. Then, under his leadership, his men silenced the two machine guns.

Refused To Surrender

The Germans, meanwhile, encircled the platoon and opened fire. They yelled to the Yanks to surrender, but Monteith ignored the demand. Instead, he followed the sound of voices, located a machine-gun nest and smashed it with a rifle grenade.

Two more machine guns—one on each flank—began pelting the unit. Montieth ordered a rifle squad to fire on one of the guns while he sneaked up and blasted it with a hand grenade. Then he crossed a 200-yard open field under fire to launch rifle grenades at the other gun.

Montieth started to recross the field when a light machine gun cut him down.

Two CCC Officials Reported To Have Criminal Records

Washington, March 20 (AP)—Testimony that two Agriculture Department sub-officials had "criminal records" was submitted to the House today along with a bill to appropriate $833,801,932 for the department.

The bill, which reflected Appropriations Committee opposition to proposals of the Budget Bureau for cuts on farm benefit payments, followed the usual pattern of agriculture appropriation bills.

But it's accompanying testimony on police records, and on complaints that the Commodity Credit Corporation had bungled some food purchases to the extent of spoilage, provided the House with new debate material.

The men referred to as having had criminal records were identified by their superiors in the CCC as:

Advised To Resign

Edmund G. Benser, of Bethesda, Md., former chief fiscal officer of the CCC's office of distribution. Committee hearings included a list of police records up to 1934, involving allegations of bigamy and embezzlement. The records showed a release in one case, dismissal in another, no disposition in two and a one-year probated sentence in another. Frank Hancock, head of the CCC, said Benser was employed by the CCC until February 26, and that "I advised him" to resign.

Not Familiar With Hatch Case

Joseph Hatch, acting chief of the CCC's program liaison branch. Hancock said he was not familiar with Hatch's case, and the committee record showed no details. Ralph W. Olmstead, CCC vice president, testified "it is my understanding that his case has been reviewed repeatedly by the departmental office of personnel by the Secretary of Agricutlure, and by the War Food Administrator, and that he has been confirmed in the position he now occupies."

The CCC buys and sells, lends on and otherwise deals in commodities. Hancock said it is investigating the background of all employés handling money or responsible for goods and inventories.

Committee hearings brought out that one twenty-fifth of the food acquired by the CCC was lost by spoilage; that 180,825 cases of eggs were diverted to animal feed, and 399 carloads of potatoes were lost through spoilage.

The Appropriations Committee, in reaching the present form of the bill:

1. Heard testimony by Ivy W. Duggan, governor of the Farm Credit Administration, that farmland costs have gone up 43 per cent since the middle of 1939. Duggan foresaw a chance of a spiraling boom like that of the first World War.

Recommendations Made

2. Turned down two proposals of the Administration that payments to farmers be curtailed. One of these proposals was to cut benefit payments on 1946 crops to $200,000,000 [the current level is $300,000,000]. The other was to trim the benefit figure on 1945 crops from $300,000,000 to $290,000,000.

3. Recommended $60,000,000 in loan authorizations for the Rural Electrification Administration, as compared with $150,000,000 suggested by the Budget Bureau.

4. Recommended a $40,000,000 farm tenancy loan fund, earmarking $25,000,000 of it for returning service men. The Budget Bureau had suggested a $50,000,000 total.

5. Approved continuance of the school-lunch program at an estimated cost of $50,000,000.

ADVISERS HIT WMC ON DRAFT 'TYRANNY'

MAR 21 1945

Committee, Criticizing McNutt, Says New Bedford Plan Was Compulsion Law Move

WASHINGTON, March 20 (AP)—The War Manpower Commission's National Labor-Management Policy Committee charged today that the controversial New Bedford labor diversion program was undertaken "for the purpose of lobbying Congress in support of compulsory service legislation."

Splitting sharply with Paul V. McNutt, WMC chairman, over its recommendations for settlement of the month-old dispute, the committee declared in a statement that the plan appeared to have been devised "by certain Government officials in Washington."

It asserted that it was "convinced that the American people are perfectly willing to put some of their freedoms in cold storage in the interest of the war effort" but that "free citizens resent imposition of action which they feel is typranny."

Urges a "Fresh" Start

Saying that Mr. McNutt had four times declined to accept this and other recommendations, it called on him "to revoke immediately the 'forced release' order in New Bedford," and "start out again on a fresh basis."

It pointed to the New Bedford management-labor committee's "newly developed program." This calls for a rotation of textile workers to two tire cord plants every twenty-nine days, with a guarantee that their group insurance, seniority, vacation pay and other rights be preserved.

Several hours after the issuance of the committee statement Mr. McNutt said that "until such time as the community of New Bedford submits a plan which gives concrete evidence that the staffing of the critical tire plants will be accomplished without delay, I have no alternative but to continue the application of the WMC national program of war service transfers in New Bedford."

He declared that no plan agreed to "by all interested parties" had yet been submitted, adding:

"If the officials of CIO and the AFL and the New Bedford management will agree to and submit an alternative plan signed by all parties and which in our judgment will do the job of staffing the tire plants, we will be willing at that time to lift the forced release program."

This was a reiteration of a stand he had earlier announced.

Background of Controversy

The New Bedford dispute arose when the WMC "ordered" some textile workers to take jobs in the city's high-priority Fisk and Firestone tire cord plants. Eighty-nine of the first ninety workers chosen refused to transfer.

The forced release program calls for lowering employment ceilings on less essential firms to channel some of their workers to war production.

The statement was issued over the WMC's protest. The committee said that it "profoundly regrets" the disagreement with McNutt, but declared:

"We resent this attempt to involve conscientious citizens of New Bedford in what they were told was a true recruitment program, only to have them find in the middle of their effort that such was not the case."

The statement proceeded:

"They learned that the promises being made to them in New Bedford by one agency were being broken on the same day in Washington by another agency. The result of these actions, in which the War Manpower Commission appears to have been 'cat's paw,' has been to prove conclusively that compulsion will not work and that war goods cannot be produced by remote control.

Committee Conclusions

"Our committee has the following conclusions:

"(1) The 'forced release' order was put in effect in New Bedford on orders from Washington without proper consultation between the area director and his area management-labor committee, as provided in WMC instructions.

"(2) Since the order was inappropriately applied, we have declined to set up a panel of our members to hear the cases of New Bedford workers who have appealed from the forced labor transfer. To do so, in our opinion, would compound the irregularity committed in the institution of the order in this city.

"(3) The New Bedford operation appears to have been used as a lobbying device by certain government officials in Washington who favor national service legislation. It further appears that New Bedford was singled out to be used as a 'guinea pig' to attempt to persuade the country and the Congress that the voluntary system had broken down and that compulsion must be accepted. At one stage, WMC proposals were ruled out by a War Department representative.

"(4) The citizens of New Bedford, once freed from the threat of bureaucratic coercion, can solve their manpower problems satisfactorily through joint voluntary community effort.

"(5) The New Bedford management-labor committee can contribute a great deal through their newly developed program in manning the critical fabric and duck yarn textile plants.

"(6) The past month has produced a deadlock in New Bedford; for this reason our committee urges Chairman McNutt to revoke immediately the 'forced release' order in New Bedford, wipe the slate clean and start out again on a fresh basis—a basis which is most likely to produce the necessary tire fabric and duck yarn. Chairman McNutt declined to accept the committee's recommendations, which were made on four different occasions.

"The national management-labor policy committee is unshaken in its belief that free men are more productive than forced labor. It is convinced that the American people are perfectly willing to put some of their freedoms in cold storage in the interest of the war effort.

"This has been demonstrated in the New Bedford case; but the events in that city are also proof that free citizens resent imposition of action which they feel is tyranny.

"In the New Bedford case we are satisfied that the 'forced release' order was laid down on a 'take-it-or-leave-it' basis. The advice and consultation of the New Bedford committee was not sought.

"Rather, the record shows that the decision had been made in Washington to apply the order regardless of what the area committee thought and in a manner contrary to WMC regulations. This official action, arbitrarily imposed, has caused most of the trouble.

"We are convinced that the lessons of the New Bedford case will have a salutary effect upon the country. Government officials are put on notice that they should apply compulsion only as a last resort, and then after all consultative steps have been taken.

"Management and labor are forewarned that they must do their utmost to make the voluntary system work in producing the necesssary tools for our fighting forces.

"The people as a whole will be more alert both as to their responsibilities to quicken victory and their rights to enjoy the fruits of victory."

Roosevelt for Keeping Curfew

MAR 21 1945

But President Says He Hasn't Thought of Taking Any Steps About New York.

Washington, March 20 (A. P.).—President Roosevelt indicated today that he favors continuation of the midnight curfew, but said he had given no thought to taking any steps to bring New York city back in line.

Asked whether the administration, himself or War Mobilizer Byrnes intended to "do anything to try to bring New York city back in line with the rest of the country," he answered:

What could I do?

He was told a lot of sanctions might be employed, perhaps in the field of man power or shutting down on gas and electricity. He said he hadn't thought about it.

The President was told that Mayor LaGuardia, in effect, had overruled Mr. Byrnes on the curfew by telling New York restaurants that they could stay open an hour after the time recommended by the Government. The President was asked whether he would comment.

Mr. Byrnes, Mr. Roosevelt said, already has issued a statement —with his approval. In that statement Mr. Byrnes renewed yesterday the request for midnight closings, but conceded that it was impossible to enforce it without co-operation of local officials.

"Do you think we ought to stick by the midnight curfew," the President was asked.

He would put it this way, the President said: Most of the country has accepted it; New York city hasn't. And he favored the original request.

A brief but spirited argument arose in Congress again today over Mayor LaGuardia's action.

Representative Dickstein (D.-N. Y.) contended that New York city should be exempt because its citizens "are different from other people." But to this Representatives Rich (R.-Pa.) and Colmer (D.-Miss.) hotly dissented.

Rich, a frequent administration critic, defended the midnight closing order of War Mobilizer Byrnes as helpful to the war effort and criticized Mayor LaGuardia's action in setting the New York curfew at 1 A. M. "It seems to me that when we have a Mayor of a great city defying the Government we're getting in a pretty bad condition," he said. "The Mayor is making his own regulations."

Colmer called for nationwide observance of the Byrnes order, "The Little Flower notwithstanding."

"New York is different from Mississippi or Pennsylvania," Dickstein retorted. "The people are just as patriotic as others but it's a city of 7,500,000 and thousands of soldiers are walking the streets at all hours looking for a place to eat."

Roosevelt Bids Byrnes's Board Study Annual Pay for Industry

Submits Recommendations of W. L. B. for Action on Guaranteed Wage Schedule to Assist in Transition to a Peace Economy

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, March 20.—President Roosevelt today ordered a study of the question of a proposed annual wage for America's workers, saying it "is closely connected with the problems of reconversion and the transition from a war economy to a peace economy."

He directed a request to James F. Byrnes, Director of the Office of War Mobilization and Reconversion, for such a study to be made by Mr. Byrnes's Advisory Board.

This was done in accordance with a recommendation of the National War Labor Board that "the whole question of guaranteed wage plans and the possibility of their future development in American industries as an aid in the stabilization of employment and the regularization of production should now be comprehensively studied on a national scale."

With his letter to Mr. Byrnes, Mr. Roosevelt released another he received Dec. 1 from William H. Davis, then chairman of the W. L. B. The Davis letter noted that W. L. B. had declined, in steel cases just concluded, to grant a demand of the Congress of Industrial Organizations United Steelworkers of America for a guaranteed annual wage, but recommended a study by a special commission.

The W. L. B. also sent to Mr. Roosevelt a report which said there appeared to be only fifty or sixty plans of this type in existence, although an undetermined number had been tried and discontinued. All but a few of the programs, it said, had been limited to consumer goods or retail trades, in which a relatively steady demand prevails.

"A guaranteed annual wage," the report asserted, "is one of the main aspirations of American workers."

Mr. Roosevelt told his press conference that this is something that he has been talking about for ten years. He said Mr. Byrnes's advisory board would examine into the experience of industry and labor with guaranteed wage plans, and would have available a considerable volume of material already amassed by the Labor Department.

An annual wage is simple for some industries, Mr. Roosevelt commented, but exceedingly difficult in others. It has been only lately, he added, that unions have become deeply interested in the question.

Roosevelt's Letter to Byrnes

The complete text of President Roosevelt's letter to Mr. Byrnes follows:

"Dear Justice Byrnes:

"I inclose a copy of a letter addressed to me by the chairman of the War Labor Board under date of Dec. 1, 1944, suggesting the appointment of a commission to inquire into the whole question of guaranteed wage plans, and a copy of a brief report submitted therewith explaining the reasons for the board's recommended action.

"The board's recommendations were:

"'1. That the whole question of guranteed wage plans and the possibility of their future development in American industries as an aid in the stabilization of employment and the regularization of production should now be comprehensively studied on a national scale;

"'2. That such study should be conducted by a specially appointed commission charged with the duty of examining into the experience which industry and labor have thus far had with these plans, and of reporting the facts for the benefit of the country together with recommendations regarding any further steps in this direction which may seem practicable and desirable.

"'3. That such a body would be best able to perform its nationally important tasks if created independently of the War Labor Board by the President, and

"'4. That the President appoint a commission for these purposes.'

"The inquiry recommended by the National War Labor Board is closely connected with the problems of reconversion and the transition from a war economy to a peace economy. For that reason and in line with your suggestion, I think the advisory board appointed by me under Section 102 of the war mobilization and reconversion act of 1944 is particularly qualified and suited to undertake the recommended study. I wish, therefore, that you would ask the advisory board to undertake this inquiry and report its findings and recommendations to you and to me.

"The Secretary of Labor has made some investigation of this subject and I know she will gladly advise with the board. Sincerely yours,

"FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT."

Davis Letter to Roosevelt

The letter from Mr. Davis to Mr. Roosevelt:

"Dear Mr. President:

"In the steel cases which have just been concluded by the National War Labor Board, the board declined to grant the demand of the United Steelworkers of America for a guaranteed annual wage, but resolved instead to make the following recommendations to you:

[Mr. Davis's letter here states the four recommendations quoted in Mr. Roosevelt's letter to Mr. Byrnes, and continues:]

"This action was taken by the unanimous vote of the labor, industry and public members of the board. I inclose a brief report explaining the reasons for this action, and I hope that you may see fit to accept the board's recommendations. Respectfully yours,

"WILLIAM H. DAVIS,
"Chairman."

W. L. B.'s Report

"December 1, 1944.

"Report to the President on the Creation of a National Commission to Study the Question of Guaranteed Wage Plans.

"In the case of Carnegie-Illinois Steel Corporation et al., and the United Steel Workers of America, the union demanded a guaranteed wage for each employee of each company during the life of the contract. The board disposed of this demand by unanimously adopting the following statement:

"'The facts set forth in the panel report indicate that this demand in its present form would, if granted, subject the industry to such serious financial risks, notwithstanding the carryback and other provisions of the tax laws, as to be unworkable. These risks could be reduced by modifications and safeguards worked out through collective bargaining, but in the present state of the country's information on the subject the board is not prepared, in this case or in other dispute cases, to impose such guaranties by order. The board is, however, recommending to the President in a separate report:

[Here again are stated the four recommendations quoted in Mr. Roosevelt's letter to Mr. Byrnes. The report continues:]

"The reasons which led the board to take this action may be summarized as follows:

"The country's information on the important subject of guaranteed annual wage plans is very limited. There appear to be only some fifty or sixty plans of this sort in existence, although the exact total is uncertain. An undetermined number have been tried and discontinued, for reasons not known. Some of the existing plans are reported to be successful, with benefits resulting to the employers as well as to the workers through the greater regularization of production and employment. All but a few of the plans, however, have been limited to consumer goods industries or retail trades in which a relatively steady demand prevails, and none appears to have been attempted in a durable-goods industry like steel, where the demand has fluctuated widely from year to year, being dependent in turn upon the fluctuating needs of other industries. Each plan has differed from every other, and most of the plans have been initiated by the employers themselves. No comprehensive and authoritative study has been made of the nature and coverage of the plans now in existence, or of their actual effects on employment, production and profits, or the reasons why other plans have gone out of existence.

"The question is one which demands investigation. A guaranteed annual wage is one of the main aspirations of American workers. The search for it is a part of the search for continuity of employment, which is perhaps the most vital economic and social objective of our times. The War Labor Board cannot be indifferent to the human problems created by this search. For in the field of industrial disputes these problems are with us now, and the board is required by law to dispose of them fairly and equitably. They are reflected in demands for annual guaranties in a number of pending cases before the board; and the fear of unemployment which has led to these demands is contributing also to the pressure for a change in the national wage stabilization policy.

"Charged with responsibility both for wage stabilization and for the settlement of industrial disputes, the War Labor Board cannot shut its eyes to these developments. The board is convinced that it would be derelict in its duty if it were simply to dismiss the demands of the unions without proposing a single step forward."

4 Negro WACs Get Hard Labor Term

Fort Devens, Mass., March 20 (AP). Four Negro WACs today were convicted by an army general court-martial of violating the Sixty-fourth Article of War—refusal to obey orders of superior officers. They were immediately sentenced to serve one year at hard labor and to be dishonorably discharged.

The seven-officer court-martial board included two male Negro officers and two white WAC officers.

The four had contended that they were ordered to do menial work in Lovell General Hospital "because of their color."

The sentence also ordered the four deprived of all pay allowances due and to become due.

They are Private Alice D. Young, 23, of Washington, D.C.; Private Anna C. Morrison, of Richmond, Ky.; Private Johnnie Murphy, of Rankin, Pa., and Private Mary Green, of Conroe, Texas.

Roosevelt Asks Funds to Start Missouri Plan

$4,480,000 Would Be for Tasks Preliminary to Development of Valley

WASHINGTON, March 20 (AP).—President Roosevelt asked Congress today for a $4,480,000 appropriation to prepare plans for developing the Missouri River Valley.

The money would go to the Interior Department, which would prepare plans and specifications for initial works authorized by a flood control act. It also would permit continuing investigations for working out the general plan approved by the same act.

In submitting the request to Congress Mr. Roosevelt said:

"This estimate includes funds only for the work preliminary to actual construction of projects and must be performed irrespective of whether construction of the projects in the basin is accomplished by a valley authority or other agencies. In my judgment the proposed work will not interfere with the conduct of the war."

The largest portion of the funds is for the Reclamation Bureau. But provision is made for related work by the National Park Service, General Land Office, Grazing Service, Fish and Wildlife Service, Office of Indian Affairs and the Geological Survey.

Provision is being made in a War Department appropriation act to let the Army engineers start work on detailed plans and specifications for the engineers' share of the project authorized by the 1944 flood control act.

Harold Smith, Budget Director, in recommending the appropriation to the President, said that mapping, stream gaging, and other field investigations must proceed and plans and specifications be drawn so as to prepare the Missouri Valley region for inclusion in a post-war Federal construction program.

Work of this type, Smith said, will facilitate "the rapid establishment of the Missouri Valley Authority as a going concern should the Congress determine to bring the authority into existence."

In effect, the President recommended a Missouri Valley set-up similar to the Tennessee Valley Authority.

Congress last session approved a half-billion-dollar plan—without appropriating the money—for full development of the Missouri River basin, including flood control, irrigation, power development, navigation and other water uses.

Army engineer conflict with Reclamation Bureau plans for developing the basin was resolved when the two agencies worked out a joint plan as far as engineering phases are concerned. The Army plan calls for eventual appropriations of $490,000,000, while the Reclamation Bureau's ultimate plans call for expenditures of more than $1,257,000,000.

Involved are huge multiple-purpose reservoir dams at strategic points along the Missouri River, designed to control floods and provide water for irrigation and other uses.

Petrillo and Lewis Assailed

Texas Senate Resolution Charges They Are Self-made Tyrants Exacting Tribute.

Austin, Tex., March 20 (A. P.).—The Texas Senate late yesterday adopted unanimously a resolution by one of its world war II soldier members, Major Allan Shivers, who declared that James A. Petrillo was exacting tribute from the families of servicemen and that John L. Lewis was planning to follow the precedent.

Referring to the head of the Musicians Union and the United Mine Workers' chief, the resolution said in part:

"Be it resolved that such acts of Petrillo and the proposals of Lewis be condemned and that the Congress of the United States and the Executive Department hereby be urged to take such steps as will bring an end to attempts of such self-made tyrants to impose super-government on, and exact tribute from the free people of this country."

Mr. Shivers recently returned from active duty with the United States Army overseas.

Votes Closed Shop Bill.

Meanwhile by a margin of ten votes the House of Representatives passed to final reading a bill outlawing the closed shop in Texas after nearly four hours of bitter debate.

The bill proposes that: No one shall be discriminated against by an employer because of membership or non-membership in a union, and no employer may enter a contract requiring employees to be union or non-union.

Exempted from terms of the bill were workers covered by the national railway act which prohibits a closed shop.

NIGHT LEAD WAR CRIMINALS (630)

BY JOHN F.CHESTER

LONDON, MARCH 20-(AP)-A DEMAND BY THE ARCHBISHOP OF YORK THAT "THE MASTER CRIMINALS HITLER AND HIMMLER AND THEIR GANG" SHOULD BE KILLED ON THE SPOT WHEN CAPTURED WAS FOLLOWED TODAY IN THE HOUSE OF LORDS BY OFFICIAL DISCLOSURE THAT THE WAR CRIMES COMMISSION ALREADY IS SCREENING NAZI PRISONERS FOR TRIAL.

THE ARCHBISHOP, DR.CYRIL GARBETT, BROKE INTO THE WAR CRIMES DEBATE TO DECLARE, "SOMETIMES JUSTICE HAS TO TAKE PRECEDENCE OVER MERCY," AND ASKED INSTANT DEATH FOR HITLER AND HIMMLER "BY THOSE WHO CATCH THEM," STERN TREATMENT FOR THEIR TORTURING SUBORDINATES, AND PUNISHMENT FOR THE WHOLE GERMAN PEOPLE.

LORD WRIGHT, CHAIRMAN OF THE UNITED NATIONS WAR CRIMES COMMISSION, IMMEDIATELY AROSE WITH A STATEMENT THAT ORDERS HAD BEEN GIVEN TO ALLIED ARMIES TO HOLD, NOT SHOOT, ANY CRIMINALS THEY CAPTURED. HE ADDED, HOWEVER, THAT THE COMMISSION DEFINITELY HAD DECIDED TO TREAT HITLER AND OTHER "MAJOR CRIMINALS AS MURDERERS, ASSASSINS, THIEVES, TORTURERS AND THE LIKE."

VISCOUNT SIMON, SPEAKING FOR THE GOVERNMENT AS LORD CHANCELLOR, REPORTED LISTS OF CRIMINALS WERE PILING UP AS THE ARMIES PUSHED DEEPER INTO GERMANY. HE CONFIRMED ALSO THAT THESE MEN WERE BEING SCREENED OUT OF THE PRISONERS PASSING THROUGH THE ARMY SIEVE, SEGREGATED, AND HELD FOR TRIAL.

THE BRITISH GOVERNMENT, LORD SIMON SAID, WAS "WORKING BEHIND THE SCENES WITH GREAT INTENSITY" TO DEAL SWIFTLY WITH THOSE CHARGED AS CRIMINALS.

THE ARCHBISHOP OF YORK BASED HIS DEMAND FOR INSTANT DEATH OF THE NAZI LEADERS ON THE GROUND THAT "PUBLIC TRIAL WITH ITS EXCITEMENT AND SENSATION" SHOULD BE AVOIDED.

RECITING SOME OF THE HORRORS HE SAID HE HAD LEARNED ABOUT IN HOLLAND ONLY LAST WEEK, INCLUDING THE BEATING TO DEATH OF A 10-YEAR-OLD BOY, THE ARCHBISHOP CONTENDED THAT NOT ONLY MASTER CRIMINALS BUT THEIR SUBORDINATES WHO RELAYED OR CARRIED OUT THEIR ORDERS SHOULD BE KILLED.

LORD WRIGHT SAID THE WAR CRIMES COMMISSION WAS PILING UP A HEAVY BUNDLE OF AUTHORITATIVE REPORTS ON CRIMES COMMITTED BY THE GERMANS. THE ENGLISH PEOPLE, FOR LACK OF EXPERIENCE, WERE INCLINED TO REGARD THEM AS "EXAGGERATED PROPAGANDA REPORTS," HE SAID, BUT "MEMBERS OF THE COMMISSION MOSTLY KNOW BETTER."

AS FOR HITLER, WHO DEFINITELY IS ON THE COMMISSION'S LIST, HE ADDED: "THERE IS EVIDENCE THAT THE MURDERING OF PEOPLE IN GAS CHAMBERS WAS A DELIBERATE SCHEME UNDER THE DIRECTION OF A SINGLE ORGANIZING MIND. IF THAT WERE BROUGHT HOME TO HITLER, WHY SHOULD HE NOT BE INDICTABLE AS A MURDERER?"

LORD WRIGHT EXPRESSED CONCERN ABOUT NOT BEING ABLE TO GET

30.24-24075

INFORMATION FROM THE RUSSIANS AS TO WHAT THEY WERE DOING ABOUT WAR CRIMES. HE SAID IT APPEARED THERE WAS NO POSSIBILITY OF GETTING THE SOVIETS TO JOIN THE PRESENT COMMISSION OR EVEN AN ENLARGED COMMISSION.

"BUT I SEE NO REASON AT ALL WHY THERE SHOULD NOT BE AN INTERCOMMUNICATION OF ADVICE AND INFORMATION," HE ADDED. "I AM DOING WHAT I CAN TO BRING THAT ABOUT."

LORD SIMON EMPHASIZED THE OFFICIAL VIEW THAT THE ALLIES SHOULD NOT ATTEMPT TRIALS UNTIL GERMANY HAD BEEN BEATEN, BUT THAT JUSTICE THEN SHOULD OPERATE SURELY AND SWIFTLY.

PARIS--~~FOURTH~~ ADD THIRD NIGHT LEAD WESTERN FRONT X X X ~~LAST THREE DAYS~~.

THE JUNCTION OF THE THIRD AND SEVENTH ARMIES POCKETED THOUSANDS OF GERMANS IN A SACK TEN MILES LONG AND EIGHT WIDE EXTENDING ABOUT TEN MILES EAST OF SAARLAUTERN TO ABOUT THREE MILES EAST OF HOMBURG.

THERE WAS NO WAY TO ESTIMATE THE NUMBER OF ENEMY TROOPS WHO MIGHT BE IN THIS ENCIRCLEMENT, BUT IT WAS EVIDENT THE ENEMY WAS SUFFERING TREMENDOUS LOSSES IN MANPOWER.

A FEW DAYS AGO FIELD MARSHAL VON RUNDSTEDT'S FIRST AND SEVENTH ARMIES IN THE SAARLAND WERE BELIEVED TO TOTAL MORE THAN 80,000 MEN. THESE FORCES NOW HAVE BEEN CHOPPED INTO PIECES -- COUNTLESS LITTLE ISOLATED GROUPS. THOSE NOT YET CUT OFF FROM THE RHINE WERE IN HEADLONG RETREAT.

ASSOCIATED PRESS CORRESPONDENT EDWARD D. BALL SAID ALL OPPOSITION ON THE THIRD ARMY FRONT WEST OF THE RHINE HAD CEASED. THE GERMANS' REMAINING POSITIONS IN THE SIEGFRIED AND HUNSBRUECK LINES FACING THE SEVENTH ARMY SOUTHEAST OF ZWEIBRUECKEN WERE OUTFLANKED AND UNTENABLE, MAKING A QUICK WITHDRAWAL COMPULSORY IF NOT ALREADY TOO LATE.

THE BASE OF THE REMAINING ENEMY SALIENT ON THE WEST BANK OF THE RHINE WAS ONLY 45 MILES AND AT ITS DEEPEST POINT, SOMEWHERE EAST OF ZWEIBRUECKEN, IT WAS LESS THAN 40 MILES.

THE POST-MIDNIGHT ANNOUNCEMENT OF THE LINK-UP OF THE AMERICAN THIRD AND SEVENTH ARMIES WAS THE FIRST DISCLOSURE THAT THE SIXTH ARMORED DIVISION HAD BEEN TRANSFERRED FROM PATTON'S FORCES TO PATCH'S COMMAND. TO ACCOMPLISH THE JUNCTION THE SIXTH ARMORED, COMMANDED BY MAJ. GEN. ROBERT GROW, MADE A NORTHWARD SWEEP OF 12 MILES DURING THE DAY.

MAR 21 1945

MAINZ, A CITY OF 160,000 AT THE CONFLUENCE OF THE RHINE AND MAIN RIVERS, WAS REACHED AFTER A SPECTACULAR DASH BY THE FOURTH ARMORED DIVISION AND THE 90TH INFANTRY WORKING TOGETHER. THE FOURTH ALSO MADE THE PLUNGE TO WORMS, A CITY OF 50,000 WHICH LIES 16 MILES NORTH OF THE TWIN INDUSTRIAL CITIES OF MANNHEIM AND LUDWIGSHAFEN.

WORD WAS LACKING IMMEDIATELY ON WHETHER THE GERMANS SUCCEEDED IN BLOWING THE RHINE BRIDGE AT WORMS. IT STILL WAS STANDING AT LAST ACCOUNT.

KAISERSLAUTERN, FROM WHICH A SUPER-MILITARY HIGHWAY RUNS 23 MILES EAST TO THE RHINE, WAS THE MAIN SUPPLY POINT FOR NAZI FORCES IN THE SAAR-RHINE-MOSELLE AREA. ITS LOSS MEANT THE END OF ORGANIZED ENEMY RESISTANCE WEST OF THE RHINE, AND THE ENTIRE SAAR BASIN UPON WHICH THE GERMANS DEPENDED FOR MUCH OF THEIR COAL SUPPLY IS LOST.

DOUGHBOYS OF THE 80TH DIVISION DROVE INTO KAISERSLAUTERN, AND ALLIED PILOTS FLYING OVER THE CITY REPORTED ITS STREETS WERE LINED WITH PEOPLE WAVING WHITE FLAGS AS THE AMERICANS SPED THROUGH. THE PLUNGE TO THE THREE GERMAN CITIES IN A SINGLE DAY ECLIPSED ANYTHING ACCOMPLISHED BY THE THIRD ARMY IN ITS RAMPAGE ACROSS FRANCE.

A14

TROOPS OF THE SEVENTH A[illegible]'S 70TH DIVISION STRUCK ACROSS THE SAAR RIVER INTO SIEGFRIED LINE DEFENSES JUST WEST OF MALSTATT, A WESTERN SUBURB OF SAARBRUECKEN, MAKING "SUBSTANTIAL" GAINS IN THE FIRST FEW HOURS. THE CROSSING WAS MADE IN ASSAULT BOATS LAST NIGHT AND MET ONLY LIGHT GERMAN RESISTANCE.

TO THE NORTH LT.GEN.COURTNEY H.HODGES' U.S. FIRST ARMY OVERRAN MORE THAN 20 VILLAGES INSIDE THE RHINE BRIDGEHEAD AND FOUGHT INTO A SUBURB OF BONN, CLAMPING AN IRON GRIP ON APPROXIMATELY 24 MILES OF THE EAST BANK OF THE RHINE.

THE 78TH INFANTRY DIVISION DROVE MORE THAN TWO MILES IN REACHING BEUEL, A SOUTHERN SUBURB ON THE EAST BANK OPPOSITE BONN, AND THRUST ANOTHER TWO MILES TO STIELDORF, DUE EAST OF BONN, WHICH LIES ON THE WEST BANK. THE SAME OUTFIT REACHED HOHOLZ AND PUETZCHEN AND CAPTURED KUDINGHOVEN, RAMERSDORF AND LIMPERICH IN THE COURSE OF ITS FIGHTING ADVANCE TOWARD THE RUHR VALLEY.

THE GERMANS LAUNCHED A STRONG TANK-LED COUNTERATTACK IN AN EFFORT TO RECAPTURE ONE OF TWO LANDING STRIPS HELD BY HODGES' TROOPS INSIDE THE BRIDGEHEAD, BUT WERE BEATEN OFF AFTER A STIFF THREE-HOUR FIGHT, LOSING TWO TANKS. THE STRIP IS CAPABLE OF ACCOMMODATING TRANSPORT PLANES.

BRIDGEHEAD FORCES HAD WRESTED A NINE-MILE STRETCH OF THE FRANKFURT-RUHR SUPERHIGHWAY FROM THE ENEMY, BUT IT WAS USABLE ONLY FOR SHORT DISTANCES BECAUSE OF GERMAN DEMOLITIONS. ENGINEERS WERE HASTENING REPAIRS UNDER FIRE.

AT THE SOUTHERN END OF THE BRIDGEHEAD DOUGHBOYS DROVE THROUGH MOSELBORN TO JAKOBSHOF, JUST NORTH OF ANDERNACH, AGAINST DISORGANIZED NAZI RESISTANCE.

THE GERMAN ARMY WAS SURRENDERING AT A RATE NEVER BEFORE SEEN ON THE WESTERN FRONT.

THE THIRD ARMY ALONE COUNTED 8,355 PRISONERS MONDAY FOR A RECORD SINGLE DAY'S CAPTURE BY ANY ALLIED ARMY IN THE WEST. IT WAS THOUGHT THAT THE COUNT, STILL FAR FROM COMPLETE, MIGHT RUN AS HIGH AS 20,000 FOR THE DAY. THE 11TH ARMORED DIVISION ALONE TOOK 6,700 BY SUNSET.

THE SEVENTH ARMY, KEEPING THE NAZIS ON THEIR HEELS WITH A RELENTLESS HEAD-ON ASSAULT, BAGGED THOUSANDS MORE OF THE DISORGANIZED ENEMY, BUT EVENTS WERE MOVING TOO SWIFTLY TO KEEP AN EXACT COUNT.

MAR 21 1945

ALONG THE SAAR VALLEY ITSELF GERMAN RESISTANCE CRUMBLED AND DOUGHBOYS FLOODED INTO THE STEEL AND IRON FOUNDRY BELT WHICH, NEXT TO THE RUHR ITSELF, WAS THE GERMAN ARMY'S GREATEST REMAINING SOURCE OF SUPPLY. SAARLAUTERN, STEEL CITY OF 32,000, WAS CAPTURED AFTER THREE AND A HALF MONTHS OF FIGHTING THROUGH ITS STREETS.

THE NAZIS WERE PULLING OUT OF THE RICH INDUSTRIAL AREA WITH ALL SPEED, BUT THEY APPARENTLY HAD WAITED TOO LONG TO ESCAPE THE AMERICAN NUTCRACKER. THE SEVENTH ARMY HAMMERING IN FROM THE SOUTH ALREADY WAS THROUGH THE SIEGFRIED LINE AT SEVERAL PLACES BETWEEN SAARBRUECKEN AND ZWEIBRUCKEN AND WAS PRESSING TO LINK UP WITH THE THIRD ARMY.

AS PATTON'S ARMOR ROLLED UP TO AND TOWARD THE RHINE, HUNDREDS UPON HUNDREDS OF AMERICAN PLANES SWEPT OVER THE JAMMED HIGHWAYS AND BLASTED THE FLEEING NAZIS WITH BOMBS, ROCKETS AND BULLETS. HUNDREDS OF MOTOR AND HORSEDRAWN VEHICLES WERE DESTROYED.

PILOTS REPORTED THAT THE SUPER-HIGHWAY BETWEEN KAISERSLAUTERN AND THE RHINE WAS PACKED SOLID WITH GERMAN COLUMNS, INCLUDING HORSE CARTS, PUSHCARTS AND WHEELBARROWS. WHEN THE PLANES COMPLETED THEIR DEADLY WORK, THE SIX-LANE HIGHWAY WAS LITTERED WITH BURNING WRECKAGE

ALONG ITS ENTIRE LENGTH.

A17

THE HOUR WAS FAST APPROACHING WHEN THE ALLIES WOULD HAVE CARRIED OUT TO THE LETTER GENERAL EISENHOWER'S PLEDGE TO ELIMINATE EVERY GERMAN SOLDIER WEST OF THE RHINE.

IN MONDAY'S BLAZING ADVANCE THE THIRD ARMY OVERRAN 40 TO 50 TOWNS IN GAINS UP TO 11 MILES AGAINST RESISTANCE SO DISORGANIZED THAT IT NO LONGER WAS A MAJOR FACTOR. PATTON'S TANK AND DOUGHBOY TEAMS ALREADY HAD GOUGED OUT A HOLE ACROSS THE MOSELLE RIVER ABOUT AS LARGE AS THE NAZIS TORE THROUGH THE ARDENNES WITH THEIR TWO-PANZER ARMY COUNTER OFFENSIVE LAST DECEMBER.

THE FOURTH ARMORED DIVISION, WHICH MADE THE ORIGINAL BREAKTHHROUGH FROM THE MOSELLE, DROVE TO THE VICINITY OF BUDENHEIM, NINE MILES SOUTHWEST OF MAINZ. ANOTHER UNIT OF THE SAME DIVISION SMASHED INTO THE ROAD CENTER OF ALZEY, 13 MILES FROM WORMS.

THE 11TH ARMORED DIVISION RACED EIGHT MILES TO NEAR ROCKENHAUSEN, 13 MILES NORTH OF KAISERSLAUTERN.

A19

ANOTHER THIRD ARMY ARMORED DIVISION, NOT YET IDENTIFIED, ADVANCED FOUR TO FIVE MILES IN THREE COLUMNS TO NEAR INSWEILER, 11 MILES NORTHWEST OF KAISERSLAUTERN; ROTHSELBERG, NINE MILES NORTHWEST OF KAISERSLAUTERN, AND WORSBACH, SEVEN MILES NORTHWEST OF KAISERSLAUTERN.

THE 65TH INFANTRY CLEARED SAARLAUTERN IN ITS PUSH FROM THE SOUTH AND DROVE ON TWO AND A HALF MILES NORTHEAST, ENTERING SAARWELLINGEN.

THE SEVENTH ARMY HAD THREE DIVISIONS THROUGH THE SIEGFRIED LINE IN A GREAT GAP BETWEEN SAARBRUECKEN AND ZWEIBRUECKEN AND WITHIN LESS THAN EIGHT MILES OF NEUNKIRCHEN. WITH THIS PUSH, THE LAST GERMANS HAD BEEN DRIVEN FROM FRENCH SOIL EXCEPT FOR THOSE STILL HOLDING OUT IN PORTS ALONG THE WEST COAST.

A DIMOUT WAS IMPOSED ON MOVEMENTS OF SEVENTH ARMY TANK FORCES MOVING DOWN THE RHINE VALLEY OPPOSITE KARLSRUHE. THE FRENCH FIFTH ARMORED DIVISION AND THE THIRD ALGERIAN INFANTRY WERE FIGHTING AS PART OF THE SEVENTH ARMY IN THIS PUSH.

FIRST LEAD BALL'S DESCRIPTIVE (70)
BY EDWARD D. BALL

WITH THE U.S. THIRD ARMY, MAARCH 20-(AP)-THE THIRD ARMY, CLIMAXING THE MOST SPECTACULAR DAY'S SUCCESSES IN ITS HISTORY, MADE A JUNCTION WITH THE U.S. SEVENTH ARMY 12 MILES WEST OF KAISERSLAUTERN LATE TODAY.

LT. GEN. GEORGE S. PATTON'S TROOPS DISPOSED OF THE REMNANTS OF THE GERMAN SEVENTH ARMY WHICH HAD ESCAPED ACROSS THE MOSELLE RIVER AFTER THE ENEMY'S FALAISE GAP DISASTER OF LAST SUMMER, AND WITH THE U.S. SEVENTH ARMY BOTTLED UP MUCH OF THE REMAINS OF THE GERMAN FIRST ARMY INSIDE THE RHINE-SAAR POCKET.

THESE FEATS HAVE BEEN ACCOMPLISHED IN EIGHT DAYS BY THE GREATEST ARMORED ONSLAUGHT IN HISTORY.

THIRD ARMY TROOPS WERE RUNNING WILD AGAINST COLLAPSED GERMAN RESISTANCE. THEY ENTERED KAISERSLAUTERN, THE ENEMY'S MAIN SUPPLY BASE IN THE SAAR BASIN, AND PLUNGED ON TO THE RHINE, CAPTURING THE ANCIENT TOWN OF WORMS AND REACHING MAINZ ON THE WEST BANK OF THE RIVER.

ARMOR AND INFANTRY RACED PRACTICALLY WITHOUT OPPOSITION FOR NUMEROUS GAINS UP TO 11 MILES. THE DASH TO THE THREE GERMAN CITIES ECLIPSED ANYTHING ACCOMPLISHED BY THE THIRD ARMY EVEN IN ITS RAMPAGE ACROSS FRANCE LAST SUMMER.

WITH ONLY SCATTERED AND ISOLATED ISLANDS OF GERMANS LEFT IN THE RHINE-SAAR NOOSE, TODAY'S SENSATIONAL SPURT MEANT THE END OF ANY ORGANIZED ENEMY OPPOSITION ON THE WHOLE THIRD ARMY FRONT WEST OF THE RHINE.

THE ENTIRE SAAR BASIN, UPON WHICH THE GERMANS DEPENDED FOR MUCH OF THEIR COAL SUPPLY, NOW IS LOST TO THE ENEMY. HIS REMAINING POSITIONS IN THE SIEGFRIED AND HUNSBRUECK LINES ARE UNTENABLE.

MAINZ, A CITY OF 160,000 POPULATION AT THE CONFLUENCE OF THE RHINE AND MAIN RIVERS, WAS REACHED AFTER A SPECTACULAR DASH BY THE FOURTH ARMORED AND 90TH INFANTRY DIVISIONS WORKING TOGETHER.

A CITY COMPARABLE TO AACHEN, MAINZ IS THE LARGEST AND OLDEST GERMAN CENTER YET ASSAULTED BY THE THIRD ARMY.

MAR 21 1945

THE FOURTH ARMORED DIVISION ALSO MADE THE PLUNGE INTO WORMS, A CITY OF 42,000 POPULATION, 16 MILES NORTH OF MANNHEIM.

WORD WAS LACKING IMMEDIATELY AT HEADQUARTERS WHETHER THE RHINE BRIDGE AT WORMS, WHICH AT LAST ACCOUNTS STILL WAS STANDING, HAD BEEN CAPTURED. HOWEVER, BRIDGES AT OTHER POINTS ALONG THE RHINE HAVE BEEN BLOWN UP IN THE FACES OF PATTON'S ONSURGING FORCES.

WORMS IS KNOWN THROUGHOUT THE PROTESTANT WORLD AS THE SCENE OF THE TRIAL OF MARTIN LUTHER, WHO DEFIED THE EMPEROR AND THE POPE.

THE TENTH ARMORED AND 80TH INFANTRY DIVISIONS TEAMED UP FOR THE ASSAULT OF KAISERSLAUTERN, WHICH HAS A POPULATION OF 70,000. PILOTS OF THE 19TH TACTICAL AIR COMMAND, FLYING OVER KAISERSLAUTERN AT ROOFTOP LEVEL IN MID-AFTERNOON, REPORTED THE STREETS WERE LINED WITH PEOPLE WAVING WHITE FLAGS AND THAT ONE AMERICAN COLUMN HAD ENTERED THE CITY.

THE 19TH FLEW APPROXIMATELY 700 MISSIONS DURING THE DAY, SLAUGHTERING THE ROUTED ENEMY FORCES WHICH WERE ON FALTERING COURSES TOWARD THE RHINE. AT LEAST SEVERAL HUNDRED OF MOTOR AND HORSE DRAWN VEHICLES WERE DESTROYED.

PILOTS SAID THE 30-MILE AUTOBAHN (SUPERHIGHWAY) STRETCH BETWEEN KAISERSLAUTERN AND LUDWIGSHAFEN WAS PACKED SOLID WITH GERMAN COLUMNS AND EVERY KIND OF CONVEYANCE, INCLUDING PUSHCARTS AND WHEELBARROWS. WHEN THE PLANES FINISHED STRAFING, THE ENTIRE AUTOBAHN WAS LITTERED WITH BURNING WRECKAGE.

PARIS, MARCH 20-(AP)-FOR THE FIRST TIME IN U. S. ARMY HISTORY, NEGRO AND WHITE TROOPS NOW ARE FIGHTING SIDE BY SIDE IN THE SAME OUTFITS IN BOTH THE FIRST AND SEVENTH ARMIES, ACCORDING TO STARS AND STRIPES.

THE ARMY NEWSPAPER, IN A DISPATCH FROM THE FIRST ARMY FRONT, SAID THAT NEGRO PLATOONS HAD BEEN ASSIGNED TO RIFLE COMPANIES IN BOTH ARMIES IN RESPONSE TO FIGHT FOR THEIR COUNTRY AS WELL AS WORK FOR IT.

THE NEGROES WERE CHOSEN FROM THOUSANDS WHO ANSWERED A SPECIAL APPEAL FROM THE COMMUNICATIONS ZONE COMMANDER, LT. GEN. JOHN C. H. LEE, TO SERVICE TROOPS IN HIS COMMAND.

FROM ONE COMPANY OF NEGRO ENGINEERS 171 MEN OUT OF 186 VOLUNTEERED. IN A QUARTERMASTER LAUNDRY COMPANY 100 OUT OF 260 VOLUNTEERED, BUT ONLY 36 WERE ALLOWED TO GO.

STARS AND STRIPES SAID ABOUT 2,500 VOLUNTEERS IN ALL HAD BEEN ACCEPTED. TWO PLATOONS WERE IN ONE COMPANY WHICH CROSSED THE ROER AND HELPED TAKE DUEREN.

HITLER PLOT (600)
BY LOUIS P.LOCHNER

MAR 21 1945

COPYRIGHT, 1945, BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

BONN, GERMANY, MARCH 20-(AP)-HEINRICH HIMMLER, GESTAPO CHIEF WHOSE NAME IS ASSOCIATED WITH SOME OF THE BLACKEST DEEDS COMMITTED BY NAZI GERMANY, WAS IN ON THE PLOT LAST JULY 20 TO ASSASSINATE ADOLF HITLER, APPARENTLY WITH THE HOPE OF BECOMING NO.1 MAN IN THE REICH.

HIMMLER AFTERWARD RENEGED, DECLARING HE HAD PRETENDED TO PLAY ALONG JUST TO GET EVIDENCE ON THE PLOTTERS.

THAT IS THE STORY I HAVE BEEN TOLD BY A MAN WHO NOW IS A FUGITIVE FROM GERMAN AUTHORITY BECAUSE HE ALSO WAS IMPLICATED IN THE ATTEMPT ON HITLER'S LIFE. MY INFORMANT IS A MAN I HAVE KNOWN FOR YEARS.

(LOCHNER, CHIEF OF THE FORMER ASSOCIATED PRESS BUREAU IN BERLIN, PLANS TO RETURN TO THE GERMAN CAPITAL WHEN IT FALLS).

IT WAS HIMMLER, ACCORDING TO MY INFORMANT, WHO DELEGATED H.JOHANNES POPITZ, PRUSSIAN FINANCE MINISTER, TO SIT IN ON THE CONSPIRATORS' MEETINGS. HE ALSO SENT AN ATTORNEY NAMED LANGBEHN TO SWITZERLAND TO ASK THE ALLIES WHETHER HE, HIMMLER, WOULD BE ACCEPTABLE IN CASE HITLER CEASED TO EXIST.

BUT SEVEN DAYS AFTER THE ILL-FATED ATTEMPT HIMMLER, IN ORDER TO CLEAR HIMSELF, ASSERTED IT ACTUALLY WAS POPITZ WHO HAD CONTACTED HIM ABOUT THE PLOT AND THAT HE HAD GONE ALONG SIMPLY TO TRY TO TRIP UP THE CONSPIRATORS.

COL.GEN.LUDWIG BECK, FORMER CHIEF OF STAFF OF THE GERMAN ARMY WHO RESIGNED WHEN HE REALIZED HITLER'S RECKLESS COURSE, WAS THE SPIRITUAL AS WELL AS THE ACTIVE LEADER IN THE PLOT.

COL.COUNT CLAUS VON STAUFFENBERG, A ONE-ARMED, ONE-LEGGED HERO OF THE FIRST WORLD WAR, ACTUALLY PLACED THE BOMB UNDER HITLER'S CHAIR. HITLER ESCAPED ONLY WITH INJURIES AND BURNS BECAUSE HE HAD GOTTEN UP JUST BEFORE THE BOMB EXPLODED AND STEPPED TO A CUPBOARD TO LOOK FOR A MAGNIFYING GLASS.

THE CONSPIRATORS FIRST GOT TOGETHER IN DECEMBER, 1941, SHORTLY AFTER THE UNITED STATES ENTERED THE WAR. MY INFORMANT SAID AMERICA'S ENTRY MADE DEFEAT A CERTAINTY TO EVERY THINKING GERMAN.

A11

UNKNOWN EVEN TO HITLER, A FIRST ASSASSINATION ATTEMPT WAS CARRIED OUT IN DECEMBER, 1943, BUT THE BOMB WAS DEFECTIVE AND WAS RECOVERED BEFORE HITLER'S ASSOCIATES DISCOVERED IT.

THE IDEAL OCCASION FOR PUTTING THE PLOT INTO EFFECT IN EARNEST SEEMED TO COME WHEN HITLER INVITED MUSSOLINI TO GENERAL HEADQUARTERS NEAR LOEZEN IN EAST PRUSSIA TO ATTEND A CEREMONY INCORPORATING TWO FASCIST DIVISIONS INTO THE GERMAN ARMY.

VON STAUFFENBERG WAS THE OFFICER DESIGNATED TO SWEAR IN THE ITALIANS. FIELD MARSHAL WILHELM KEITEL OPENED THE CEREMONY WITH A 10-MINUTE ADDRESS. STAUFFENBERG FOLLOWED. STOOPING TO GET A PIECE OF PAPER WITH HIS SPEECH FROM A BRIEF CASE NEXT TO HIS CHAIR, HE ALSO PULLED OUT AN EGG-SHAPED BOMB AND WITH HIS BOOT SHOVED IT UNOBSERVED UNDER HITLER'S CHAIR.

VON STAUFFENBERG LINGERED OUTSIDE AFTER COMPLETING HIS TALK. WHEN THE EXPLOSION CAME HE LOOKED THROUGH THE DOOR AND SAW HITLER LYING ON THE FLOOR, BLOOD-COVERED AND CLOTHES AFLAME. HE TOOK IT FOR GRANTED HITLER WAS DEAD. THE OFFICER CALMLY FLEW TO BERLIN.

IT DEVELOPED LATER THAT BECAUSE HITLER HAD STEPPED AWAY FROM HIS CHAIR THE BOMB BLAST HIT HIM ONLY INDIRECTLY. THE EFFECTIVENESS OF THE BLAST ALSO WAS MARRED BY THE FACT IT WAS INTENDED FOR A CONCRETE BUNKER, IN WHICH THE CONSPIRATORS HAD EXPECTED HITLER WOULD CONDUCT THE ITALIAN CEREMONY, RATHER THAN THE RESILIENT WOODEN SHED HE ACTUALLY CHOSE.

AT THE WAR OFFICES IN BERLIN, VON STAUFFENBERG MET GENERALS BECK, ERWIN VON WITZLEBEN, AND ERIHC HOEPLNER AND TOLD THEM HITLER WAS DEAD. MACHINERY WAS PUT INTO MOTION FOR A COUP.

THE SO-CALLED GOVERNMENT QUARTERS IN BERLIN WERE SEIZED. BUT THE ARDENT NAZI OFFICER WHO WAS ORDERED TO ARREST PROPAGANDA MINISTER PAUL JOSEPH GOEBBELS GAVE AWAY THE SHOW BY TELLING THE LATTER THAT "WE MUST ARREST YOU BECAUSE OUR FUEHRER IS DEAD."

GOEBBELS SEIZED A TELEPHONE CONNECTED DIRECTLY WITH GENERAL HEADQUARTERS AND GOT HITLER TO STAMMER A FEW WORDS. THEN THE NAZI OFFICER, ON GOEBBEL'S ORDERS, RUSHED BACK TO THE WAR OFFICE WHERE HIS MEN SHOT AND KILLED VON STAUFFENBERG AND OLBRICHT AND GAVE BECK, WHO WAS BLEEDING TO DEATH FROM A SELF-INFLICTED WOUND. A FINAL SHOT.

BY NED NORDNESS (130)

MARSHAL MONTGOMERY'S HEADQUARTERS, MARCH 20-(AP)-IT WAS DISCLOSED TONIGHT THAT THE BRITISH ELEVENTH ARMORED DIVISION WAS THE UNIT WHICH MADE THE RECORD DASH FROM CAAN PLAIN COVERING 96 MILES IN 26 HOURS TO CAPTURE INTACT THE PORT OF ANTWERP LAST SEPTEMBER.

THIS DIVISION ALSO PROVIDED THE ARMORED ELEMENTS WHICH AIDED IN STEMMING THE GERMAN WESTWARD PENETRATION IN THE BATTLE OF ARDENNES LAST DECEMBER.

IN THREE MAJOR ACTIONS, THE DIVISION WON RENOWN FOR FIGHTING ON THE CAEN PLAIN AND IN THE "BOCAGE" COUNTRY.

IT WAS THE CLOSING OF THE FALAISE TRAP WHICH STARTED THE ELEVENTH ARMORED ON ITS HISTORIC DASH, IN WHICH IT WAS THE FIRST TO CAPTURE BRIDGES OVER THE SOMME RIVER AT AMIENS AND THEN SWARMED OVER THE BELGIAN COUNTRYSIDE TO ANTWERP, WHERE THE INFANTRY FOUGHT BRILLIANTLY TO SUBDUE THE ENEMY GARRISON AND SEIZE THE SLUICE GATES CONTROLLING THE PORT.

PARIS, WEDNESDAY, MARCH 21-(AP)-MAJ. GEN. C.R. MOORE, CHIEF ENGINEER IN THE EUROPEAN THEATER OF OPERATIONS, DECLARED TODAY THAT THE RAPID EXPANSION OF THE AMERICAN BRIDGEHEAD EAST OF THE RHINE MADE IT UNNECESSARY TO TRY TO REBUILD THE COLLAPSED LUDENDORFF BRIDGE.

THE BRIDGE COULD BE REBUILT IF NECESSARY, BUT IT IS NO LONGER NEEDED, HE SAID, SUGGESTING THAT THE U.S. FIRST ARMY NOW HAD ENOUGH PONTOON BRIDGES TO ASSURE SUCCESS OF OPERATIONS.

PARIS, MARCH 20-(AP)-THE GERMAN RAID ON THE NORMANDY COAST AT GRANVILLE MARCH 8 WAS LIKE A SHOOTING SCRAPE IN A FRONTIER TOWN, ACCORDING TO AN AMERICAN RED CROSS GIRL WHO SPENT AN HOUR LOCKED IN A BATHROOM IN A SUCCESSFUL EFFORT TO AVOID THE NAZIS.

"IT ALL STARTED ABOUT 12:30 A.M. WITH A FEW SCATTERED SHOTS IN THE STREET," SAID MARTHA HARROLD, A FORMER TEACHER AT HORACE MANN SCHOOL, TEACHERS COLLEGE, COLUMBIA UNIVERSITY, WHOSE MOTHER LIVES IN WARREN, IND.

MISS HARROLD WAS IN HER ROOM IN THE RED CROSS HOTEL FACING THE BEACH. TWO OTHER RED CROSS GIRLS, LANORE MOREHOUSE OF LA CROSSE, WIS., AND ESTILINA PAGE OF MERIDIAN, MISS., WERE ON A HIGHER FLOOR OF THE SAME BUILDING.

OUTSIDE, THE SHOTS BECAME LOUDER AND CLOSER, SO MISS HARROLD STARTED TO JOIN THE OTHERS UPSTAIRS. THEN SHE HEARD SHOOTING IN THE LOBBY BELOW AND A WOMAN'S SCREAM. SHE DARTED BACK INTO HER ROOM, BOLTED THE DOOR AND HID BEHIND THE TUB IN AN ADJOINING BATHROOM.

"THEY LANDED IN LITTLE RUBBER RAFTS FROM THEIR SHIP, AND I BELIEVE THEIR RAID WAS JUST DIVERSIONARY," MISS HARROLD SAID.

THE FORMER PHYSICAL EDUCATION INSTRUCTOR, NOW ON LEAVE IN PARIS, SAID SHE HEARD THE GERMANS GOING THROUGH OPEN ROOMS ON THE FLOOR. WHEN THEY CAME TO HER DOOR THEY THREW THEMSELVES AGAINST IT AND FIRED AT THE LOCK. SHE HEARD A FEMININE VOICE SAY IN BROKEN GERMAN THAT IT WAS A WOMAN'S ROOM. THE GERMANS LEFT.

LATER MISS HARROLD AND SOME OFFICERS WENT TO THE BEACH AND, HIDING BEHIND A ROCK, WATCHED THE ATTACK. GRANVILLE WAS LIGHT AS DAY UNDER PARACHUTE FLARES. SHIPS IN THE HARBOR WERE SENDING MACHINEGUN FIRE INTO THE PORT.

"THEY WERE ALSO SHELLING THE TOWN," SHE SAID. "I THINK THEY HAD AN 88 ON BOARD."

MAR 21 1945

IT WAS ALL OVER BY 3:30 A.M.

"WE TOOK CARE OF SOME WOUNDED BRITISH SEAMEN," SAID MISS HARROLD, WHO HAS BEEN OVERSEAS 28 MONTHS AND WAS BOMBED AND STRAFED AT EUPEN DURING THE DECEMBER GERMAN OFFENSIVE.

GERMAN BROADCASTS HAVE SAID NAZI "COMMANDOS" CAPTURED 28 ALLIED PRISONERS IN THEIR SURPRISE DESCENT ON GRANVILLE.

police said the french resistance group sent her on a secret mission to england in 1940, where her behavior resulted in her arrest on suspicion of espionage after neville henderson brought a complaint against her.

released, she reached berlin, where she had an audience with hitler on the strength of a story that she bore a message from a german officer whom she encountered in a london prison. she then returned to paris.

ROME, MARCH 20-(AP)-PATROLS RAIDED GERMAN LINES IN STRENGTH ALONG THE ENTIRE FIFTH ARMY FRONT YESTERDAY WHILE ARTILLERY HAMMERED ENEMY OUTPOSTS AND COMMUNICATIONS ROUTES, BUT THERE WERE NO SUBSTANTIAL CHANGES IN POSITIONS, ALLIED HEADQUARTERS ANNOUNCED TODAY.

AN AMERICAN PATROL THRUST INTO LATORRE AND ENGAGED THE GERMANS THERE IN SHARP FIGHTING BEFORE RETIRING. ENEMY RAIDING PARTIES APPROACHED THE CENTRAL SECTOR OF THE ALLIED LINES BELOW BOLOGNA, BUT WERE REPULSED AFTER A BRIEF SKIRMISH.

EIGHTH ARMY INFANTRY ENGAGED THE ENEMY IN A SEE-SAW STRUGGLE FOR POSSESSION OF GERMAN POSITIONS ON BOTH SIDES OF THE SENIO RIVER SOUTHWEST OF COTIGNOLA. WITH THE U.S.10TH MOUNTAIN DIVISION IN ITALY, MARCH 16--(DELAYED)-(AP)-A GERMAN RAIDING PARTY'S CAPTURE OF PFC.MALFORD G. HEIMER OF FROST, TEXAS, A COUPLE OF WEEK'S AGO SET OFF AN ACTION IN WHICH HIS BUDDIES KILLED SEVEN GERMANS, CAPTURED 19 AND RESCUED HIM.

THE SKIRMISH MARKED ONE PHASE OF THE 10TH MOUNTAIN DIVISION'S SUCCESSFUL ASSAULT ON MONTE BELVEDERE. HEIMER SAID HE ALMOST CAUGHT UP ON HIS SLEEP DURING CAPTIVITY.

"I TOOK A NAP WHILE THE FIGHT WAS ON," HE SAID. "IF YOU DON'T BELIEVE IT HERE'S THE RAINCOAT ONE OF THE KRAUTS THREW OVER ME WHILE I WAS SLEEPING."

THE FIGHT STARTED WHEN HEIMER, WRAPPED IN A BLANKET, INVESTIGATED A NOISE IN A HOUSE NEAR HIS FOXHOLE. THE NEXT THING HE KNEW FOUR GERMANS HAD HIM COVERED.

"THEY JUST POKED RIFLES IN MY FACE," HE RECALLED, "MADE ME DROP THE BLANKET AND STARTED TAKING ME TO THE HOUSE."

PVT.JOHN A.O'~~ROURKE~~ OF 750 CHARLESTON ST., MOBILE, ALA., WITNESSING THE CAPTURE, REACHED FOR HIS RIFLE BUT FOUR GERMANS OPENED UP ON HIM. STAFF SGT. THEODORE B.REINERO OF MERCED, CALIF., ORDERED HIS MEN TO SHOOT.

"WE RISKED HITTING HEIMER, I KNOW," HE RELATED, "BUT WE COULDN'T HELP IT."

THE GERMANS BARRICADED THEMSELVES IN ON THE MAIN FLOOR OF THE HOUSE. OTHER ENEMY TROOPS WERE ON A RIDGE ABOVE THE HOUSE GRENADES, MORTARS, MACHINEGUNS AND 75-MILLIMETER GUNS WERE USED UPON THE HOUSE FOR AN HOUR.

"THEN WE HEARD HEIMER YELLING TO QUIT SHOOTING, THAT THEY WANTED TO SURRENDER," REINERO RELATED. "ONE KRAUT WAS IN THE DOORWAY AND EIGHT MORE FOLLOWED HIM OUT. I CAN'T FIGURE OUT WHY THEY QUIT, THEY HAD A LOT OF STUFF IN THERE."

THE REST OF THE 19 GERMANS SURRENDERED WITH THREE MACHINEGUNS TO PFC ROBERT DUDLEY, 37, OF NORWICH, VT., AND PFC. JOE POLUNCI, OF 77 COOPER ST., GLENS FALLS, N.Y.

MAR 21 1945

ROME, MARCH 20--ALLIED FORCE HEADQUARTERS OF THE MEDITERRANEAN THEATER OF OPERATIONS IS LOCATED IN AN IMPOSING STRUCTURE WHICH I AM TOLD HAS ONE OF THE LARGEST FLOOR SPACES IN ANY BUILDING IN EUROPE.

IT IS A BEWILDERING LABYRINTH OF INCOMPARABLE GALLERIES AND ROOMS WHOSE HIGH WALLS ARE BOXED IN BY BEAVER-BOARD PARTITIONS INTO COUNTLESS OFFICES AND CUBBYHOLES. APPROXIMATELY 12,000 PEOPLE A DAY GO TO WORK IN THE MAIZES OF THIS ITALIAN "PENTAGON."

FROM EARLY MORNING UNTIL LATE AT NIGHT, SUNDAYS INCLUDED, THE COURTYARDS THAT SEPARATE THE WINGS OF THE BUILDING ARE CROSSED AND CRISS-CROSSED BY MEN AND WOMEN IN UNIFORM GOING TO AND FROM WORK. THIS COMMINGLING OF UNIFORMS VISUALLY TELLS THE STORY OF THE INTEGRATION OF THE ALLIED EFFORT IN THIS THEATER.

ONE HAS ONLY TO STUDY THE CHAIN OF AUTHORITY AT AFHQ TO SEE IN WHAT AN EXTRAORDINARY FASHION THE BRITISH AND AMERICAN MILITARY EFFORT HAS BEEN INTEGRATED.

THE NUMBER ONE MAN OF THE WAR-TIME MEDITERRANEAN IS BRITISH. HE IS FIELD MARSHAL SIR HAROLD ALEXANDER, THE SUPREME ALLIED COMMANDER, OR AS THEY CALL HIM HEREABOUTS "THE SAC."

MARSHAL ALEXANDER HAS GROWN A SHADE HEAVIER SINCE THE DARK DAYS OF BURMA IN 1942, WHEN HE COMMANDED THE RETREATING BRITISH FORCES, AND THE HIRD HOT DAYS OF ALAMEIN WHEN HE WAS CHASING THE DESERT FOX, ROMMEL, OUT OF NORTH AFRICA. BUT HIS LEGS WERE STILL SLIM IN HIGHLY POLISHED BRITISH BOOTS AND HIS SMILE NO LESS IMPERTURBABLE THAN IT WAS IN THE DARKEST DAYS OF THE WAR--THE DAYS OF DUNKERQUE. AND HIS REPUTATION IN PROFESSIONAL MILITARY CIRCLES OF BEING BRITAIN'S GREATEST SOLDIER IS NOT ONLY UNDIMINISHED BUT GREATLY ENHANCED.

ALEXANDER'S DEPUTY ALLIED COMMANDER IS AMERICAN GEN. JOSEPH T. MCNARNEY. "JOE" MCNARNEY IS A DETERMINED DARK-EYED MAN WITH EXACT MANNERS AND A REPUTATION FOR HIGHLY SUCCESSFUL WORK UNDER ANY SITUATION. HIS JOB IS A DUAL ONE, NOT ONLY OF THE DEPUTY COMMANDER OF THE MEDITERRANEAN THEATER BUT ALSO AS THE COMMANDER GENERAL OF THE MEDITERRANEAN THEATER OF OPERATIONS OF THE U.S. MARY.

THE CHIEF OF STAFF IS WHITE-HAIRED BRITISHER, LT. GEN.DOUGLAS D.MORGAN, AND HIS DEPUTY IS HANDSOME MAJ.GEN.LYMAN L. LEMNITZER, AN AMERICAN.

B24

THESE FOUR MEN WORK AS CLOSELY TOGETHER AS FINGERS OF ONE HAND, OR RATHER ONE FIST, IN FIGHTING THE GERMANS IN THE MEDITERRANEAN.

THE FIGHTING FORCES, THE 15TH ARMY GROUP, ARE UNDER GEN. MARK W. CLARK, WHOSE STAFF IS SIMILARLY INTEGRATED. THE FIFTH ARMY IS UNDER AMERICAN LT. GEN.TRUSCOTT AND THE BRITISH EIGHTH ARMY IS UNDER LT. GEN.MCCREERY.

COMMANDING THE MAAF WITH ITS 12TH AND 15TH AIR FORCES IS AMERICA'S LT.GEN.IRA EAKER, AND HIS DEPUTY CHIEF IS AIR MARSHAL SIR JOHN SLESSO.

THE ALLIED MEDITERRANEAN NAVY TEAM FOLLOWS THE SAME PATTERN. ITS COMMANDER-IN-CHIEF IS ADMIRAL SIR JOHN H.D.CUNNINGHAM AND WITH HIM IS VICE ADMIRAL HENRY K.HEWITT, COMMANDER-IN-CHIEF OF THE UNITES STATES FLEET IN THIS THEATER.

NOW IT IS QUITE TRUE, AS MANY AMERICANS POINT OUT, THAT THE NO. 1 MILITARY JOBS IN THE MEDITERRANEAN ARE HELD BY BRITISHERS AND THAT MANY OF THE NO. 1 SECOND RANGE JOBS ARE ALSO HELD BY COUSINS, AND YET THE BIGGEST JOB IN ALL EUROPE IN RESPONSIBILITY, AUTHORITY AND THEREFORE PRESTIGE, HAS BEEN GIVEN TO AN AMERICAN, GEN.EISENHOWER. AMERICAN FIGHTING MEN HERE ARE SEEMINGLY AWARE OF THIS FACT AND NATURALLY PROUD OF IT, THOUGH ON THE WHOLE ONE HEARS FAR LESS CRITICISM ABOUT WHICH NATION HAS THE MOST RANK IN THIS THEATER THAN ONE HEARS OF THE HOME FRONT.

AT AFHQ, CERTAINLY, AND PROBABLY THROUGHOUT THIS ENTIRE THEATER, THE PERSONNEL COULD BE HELD DOWN AND MORE MANPOWER THUS SAVED FOR OTHER THEATERS. IT IS QUITE LIKELY THAT IN MANY A JOB OVER HERE TWO OFFICERS DO THE WORK THAT ONE MIGHT DO VERY HANDILY. AND WHY DOES NOT HE?

WELL, HERE YOU COME BACK UP AGAINST THE $64 QUESTION, SHOULD THAT ONE MAN, WITH THAT ONE IMPORTANT JOB BE AN AMERICAN OR A BRITISHER? IT IS NOT ENOUGH TO SAY HE SHOULD BE CHOSEN ENTIRELY ON HIS MERIT. WHO SHOULD DETERMINE HIS MERIT? AN AMERICAN OR A BRITISHER?

IN THE END, IN MANY CASES, THOUGH BY NO MEANS ALL, IT HAS BEEN WISER TO ACCEPT THE DECISION OF SOLOMON AND SPLIT THE BABY IN TWO. THIS IS THE PRINCIPLE OF "OPPOSITE NUMBERS." THERE SHOULD BE NO KICK COMING FROM EITHER COUNTRY BECAUSE OF DIVIDING BOTH RESPONSIBILITY AND AUTHORITY BECAUSE THE MANPOWER IN ITALY IS SOMEWHAT BEYOND THE NEEDS AND JOBS TO BE DONE.

MOSCOW, MARCH 20-(AP)-GERMAN FORCES TRAPPED IN A DWINDLING POCKET ON THE EAST PRUSSIAN COAST SOUTHWEST OF KOENIGSBERG WERE REPORTED TODAY TO HAVE OPENED THE COASTAL DIKES AND TURNED THE LOWLANDS INTO A BIG LAKE IN AN EFFORT TO HALT A RUSSIAN EXTERMINATION DRIVE.

A RED STAR DISPATCH SAID THE WATERS OF THE FRISCHES HAFF (LAGOON) WERE POURING INTO AN INLAND BASIN BELOW SEA LEVEL WHERE "FRIGHTENED GERMAN SOLDIERS ARE UNABLE TO PUT UP AN ORGANIZED RESISTANCE AND MANY ARE THROWING AWAY THEIR GUNS AND FLEEING."

A COMMUNIQUE LAST NIGHT SAID THE POCKET HAD BEEN CUT TO LITTLE MORE THAN 100 SQUARE MILES -- ABOUT 18 MILES IN LENGTH AND SEVEN FROM THE SEA AT ITS DEEPEST POINT --.AND THAT THE TWO MAJOR TOWNS IN THE AREA, BRAUNSBERG AND HEILIGENBEIL, WERE UNDER DIRECT ATTACK.

ALTHOUGH RAINS HAVE SOFTENED THE GROUND, RUSSIAN TANKS CARRYING TOPLOADS OF MACHINEGUNNERS ARE CRUISING STEADILY INTO THE PERIMETER OF THE ENEMY POCKET, THE RED STAR DISPATCH SAID.

"THE ROAR OF BATTLE SOUTHWEST OF KOENIGSBERG IS CEASELESS," IT ADDED.

IN THE MUDDY LOWLANDS THE RUSSIANS WERE FORCED TO HAUL ARTILLERY PIECES FORWARD BY HAND THROUGH FIELDS PITTED WITH BOMB CRATERS.

IN ADVANCES OF UP TO THREE MILES YESTERDAY ALONG A 25-MILE FRONT, THE RUSSIAN FORCES APPROACHED TO WITHIN ONE AND THREE MILES, RESPECTIVELY OF BRAUNSBERG AND HEILIGENBEIL, CAPTURING MORE THAN 30 COMMUNI-

THE RAIDS PROBABLY WERE AIMED AT BLASTING SMALL CARGO VESSELS OUT OF SERVICE AS WELL AS DESTROYING WAR PLANTS AND RAIL INSTALLATIONS. WITH HER MERCHANT FLEET HEAVILY DAMAGED, JAPAN FEVERISHLY HAS BEEN BUILDING SMALL WOODEN VESSELS FOR SEVERAL MONTHS IN THE HOPE OF ELUDING SUBMARINES AS THEY CARRIED THEIR WAR-VITAL CARGOES TO HOMELAND'S FACTORIES FROM CHINA, KOREA AND MANCHURIA.
KOBE STILL WAS SMOULDERING FROM SATURDAY'S 2,500-TON INCENDIARY RAID BY 300 SUPERFORTS WHEN THE CARRIER PLANES STRUCK. ONE OF JAPAN'S MOST CONGESTED CITIES, KOBE IS AN IMPORTANT IRON, STEEL AND ORD-NANCE CENTER AS WELL AS MAJOR SHIPBUILDING CITY.
WITH OSAKA AND KYOTO, IT FORMS A TRIANGLE PRODUCING MUCH OF THE EMPIRE'S AIRCRAFT. KOPE HAS NEARLY 1,000,000 POPULATION, EXCEEDING 100,000 PER SQUARE MILE AT THE CENTER AND AVERAGING ABOUT 30,000--THE SAME AS BROOKLYN.
ALL OF KURE'S 276,000 POPULATION IS LINKED WITH NAVAL BASE ACTIVITIES ON THE INLAND SEA, WHERE IT HAS AN EXCELLENT HARBOR.

FIGHTER PLANES.
FORMOSA, GUARDING THE CHINA COAST AND THE SOUTHWEST APPROACH TO JAPAN, HAS BEEN HIT ALMOST DAILY FOR MANY WEEKS BY AMERICAN LIBER-ATORS AND FIGHTERS BASED ON LUZON. IT WAS ESTIMATED THAT THE JAPANESE HAD AT LEAST 800 PLANES ON FORMOSA WHEN THIS NEUTRALIZATION CAMPAIGN WAS LAUNCHED.
AMERICANS OF MAJ.GEN.RAPP BRUSH'S 40TH INFANTRY DIVISION, WHO INVADED PANAY SUNDAY, WERE AIDED BY GUERRILLAS WHO ALREADY HAD CLEARED SOME SECTIONS OF THE ISLAND. SMILING, CHEERING FILIPINOS MET THE YANKS AT THE BEACHES AS THEY LANDED WITH NAVAL AND AIR SUPPORT.
HARDLY A MAN WAS LOST IN THIS 25TH INVASION OF THE LIBERATION CAMPAIGN, SAID TUESDAY'S HEADQUARTERS COMMUNIQUE. IT CONTAINED THE NOW FAMILIAR REPORT THAT THE LANDING ACHIEVED "COMPLETE TACTICAL AS WELL AS STRATEGIC SURPRISE." PANAY IS IMPORTANT BECAUSE OF ITS POSITION JUST SOUTH OF THE PRINCIPAL SHIPPING LANE THROUGH THE CENTRAL PHILIPPINES. ENEMY PLANES BASED THERE COULD HARASS AMERICAN VESSELS PROCEEDING TO AND FROM MANILA.
THE LANDING WAS MADE ON PANAY'S SOUTHEASTERN SHORE. THE TROOPS QUICKLY DROVE INLAND TO CORDOVA AND EASTWARD ALONG THE COAST TO OTON, MIDWAY BETWEEN THE BEACHHEAD AND ILOILO.
TUESDAY'S COMMUNIQUE REPORTED THAT STRONG FORMATIONS OF HEAVY BOMBERS WITH FIGHTER ESCORT DROPPED 249 TONS OF BOMBS ON JAPANESE AIRBASES IN THE WESTERN SECTOR OF FORMOSA. FOUR AIRDROMES AND THE TOWN

OF TAIHOKU WERE THE TARGETS.
LT.COL.ELLIS BROWN, COMMANDER OF THE 90TH BOMBER GROUP, ~~DESCRIBED THE~~ ANTIAIRCRAFT FIRE AT FORMOSA CONTINUES INTENSE. HE REPORTED THAT ANTIAIRCRAFT FIRE AT FORMOSA CONTINUES INTENSE. HE DESCRIBED TARGETS AS "JUICY." THEY INCLUDE METAL MANUFACTURING PLANTS, AIRCRAFT AND ASSEMBLY PLANTS, AIRDROMES, SHIPPING AND HARBOR AND DEFENSE INSTALLATIONS.
PHILIPPINE BASED AIR FORCES ALSO SUPPORTED THE VARIOUS GROUND OPERATIONS THROUGHOUT THE ARCHIPELAGO, MAINTAINED A TIGHT BLOCKADE OF THE CHINA COAST AND CARRIED ON THEIR NEUTRALIZATION OF JAPANESE AIRDROMES AND INSTALLATIONS ON BORNEO.

DESPITE POOR VISIBILITY, STRONG FORMATIONS OF HEAVY BOMBERS RAKED FORMOSA AIRDROMES AND OTHER INSTALLATIONS WITH 249 TONS OF EXPLOSIVES. AT LEAST EIGHT PARKED PLANES WERE DESTROYED. OTHER LIBERATORS HIT BORNEO AIRFIELDS WITH 118 TONS, PUTTING MANY AIRCRAFT OUT OF ACTION AND CRATERING LANDING STRIPS WITH 1,000-POUND BOMBS.

WITH ADMIRAL MITSCHER'S CARRIER TASK FORCE, MARCH 20-(AP)-AMERICAN FLIERS, BACK AT THEIR CARRIERS AFTER DEALING CRIPPLING BLOWS TO THE JAPANESE FLEET HIDING OUT IN NIPPON'S INLAND SEA, REPORTED TODAY ANTI-AIRCRAFT FIRE WAS MORE A PROBLEM THAN THE ENEMY AIRFORCE.
LOSSES OF AMERICAN PLANES WERE EXTREMELY LIGHT AND THESE MOSTLY WERE DUE TO FLAK. ONE SQUADRON REPORTED IT WAS NOT OPPOSED BY A SINGLE JAPANESE PLANE. ANOTHER WAS HIT BY FLAK "HEAVY ENOUGH TO WALK ON," IN THE WORDS OF ONE PILOT, AND ENEMY FIGHTER PLANE OPPOSITION ALSO WAS STRONG.
THE CARRIER PLANES SANK OR DAMAGED 30 ENEMY SHIPS, INCLUDING DAMAGE TO BETWEEN 15 AND 17 WARSHIPS. THEY ALSO DESTROYED AT LEAST 475 NIPPONESE PLANES.

(ADM.CHESTER W.NIMITZ IN A COMMUNIQUE FROM GUAM MARCH 21 DISCLOSED ONE AMERICAN WARSHIP WAS SERIOUSLY DAMAGED BUT WAS ABLE TO MOVE AWAY UNDER HER OWN POWER)
THE AMERICAN PLANES LOOSED ROCKETS, BOMBS AND BULLETS AT THEIR TARGETS. THEY KNOCKED OUT HANGARS. THEY BLAETED AIRCRAFT FACTORIES AND OTHERINSTALLATIONS ON KYUSHU ISLAND WHICH HAS SCORES OF AIR BASES.
JAPANESE WARSHIPS HIT INCLUDED A YAMATA CLASS BATTLESHIP, A BATTLESHIP CONVERTED INTO ACARRIER, THREE LARGE CARRIERS, FOUR SMALL CARRIERS, TWO CRUISERS, FOUR DESTROYERS, A DESTROYER ESCORT

OTTAWA, MARCH 20-(AP)-DR.G.S.H.BARTON, DEPUTY MINISTER OF AGRICULTURE, HAS TOLD THE DOMINION THAT IT IS "LONG ON WHEAT BUT SHORT ON MEAT" AND HIS ASSERTION HAS GIVEN RISE TO SPECULATION THAT MEAT RATIONING MAY BE RESUMED.
IN AN ADDRESS BROADCAST LAST NIGHT, BARTON SAID THAT BY THE END OF THIS MONTH DOMINION HOG MARKETINGS WOULD BE ABOUT 32 PER CENT LOWER THAN IN THE FIRST QUARTER OF 1944 AND THAT THE DECLINE WOULD NOT BE GREATLY ARRESTED UNTIL TOWARD THE END OF THE YEAR. CANADA, MEANWHILE, HAS AGREED TO SUPPLY BRITAIN A MINIMUM OF 450,000,000 POUNDS OF BACON AND PORK PRODUCTS EACH YEAR FOR 1945 AND 1946.
DONALD GORDON, PRICES BOARD CHAIRMAN, SAID THIS MONTH THAT THE DOMINION LIFTED MEAT RATIONING FEB.26, 1944, BECAUSE OF THE DIFFICULTY OF DISPOSING OF SURPLUS MEAT AND HE INDICATED THAT ANY RESUMPTION OF MEAT RATIONING WOULD DEPEND UPON THE VOLUME CANADA MIGHT CONSIGN TO STARVATION AREAS IN LIBERATED COUNTRIES.
IN LONDON, WIDE CIRCULATION WAS GIVEN TO REPORTS THAT CANADA STILL WAS PRODUCING MORE MEAT THAN WAS NEEDED FOR DOMESTIC CONSUMPTION AND WOULD CONTINUE TO EXPORT HER SURPLUS. BRITONS WERE HOPEFUL CANADA COULD OFFSET THE REDUCTION OF EXPORTS FROM THE UNITED STATES AND SAVE BRITAIN FROM A HEAVY CUT IN MEAT RATIONS.

captured Tuesday by the U.S. 7th Army

Worms, menaced by allied troops, is an ancient city of approximately 50,000 population on the rich wonnegau plain on the left bank of the rhine. ~~Famous~~ Celebrated in Rhineland song and story, the city was more important in the middle ages than it is today, though as a transportation bottleneck it received occasional attention from the RAF before the U.S. 7th army commenced to draw in range.

Before Caesar's time, Worms was the capital of a German tribe. A fort is believed to have stood there in 14 b.c. As the capital of a Burgundian kingdom on the rhine's left bank, worms was destroyed by the huns in 436. This gave rise to heroic legends afterward incorporated into the Nibelungenlied which Adlof Hitler plugged as propaganda for the master race.

Frequently making the news ~~the~~ in medieval times, the little rhineland capital gave its name to the concordat of worms in 1122, ending an ecclesiastical controversy. In 1521 Luther appeared before the diet of worms to defend his religious doctrines before Charles V. Four years later Worms formally embraced Protestantism. ~~Another~~ At Worms, also, was proclaimed the "perpetual peace" of emperor maximilian 1, in 1495.

(500) REPARATIONS
BY FLORA LEWIS

WASHINGTON, MARCH 20-(AP)-UNITED STATES OFFICIALS ARE REACHING AGREEMENT ON A PLAN FOR GERMAN REPARATIONS, IT WAS LEARNED TODAY, WHICH WOULD LEAVE THE REICH WITH A FUNCTIONING, BALANCED ECONOMY.

THE QUESTION OF REPARATIONS, TO BE TAKEN UP WITH RUSSIA AND BRITAIN IN MOSCOW SOON, IS TIGHTLY LINKED TO THE OVERALL ECONOMIC POLICY FOR GERMANY.

THE AMOUNT OF REPARATIONS GERMANY WILL BE ABLE TO PAY DEPENDS DIRECTLY ON HOW MUCH INDUSTRY THE ALLIES DECIDE TO LEAVE TO THE GERMANS.

THE WAR ITSELF IS A PRIME FACTOR IN THESE CALCULATIONS. AS ONE OFFICIAL PUT IT, IF THE OTHER CITIES OF GERMANY RESEMBLE THE RUBBLE OF COLOGNE, THERE WILL BE NO PROBLEM OF DESTROYING THE GERMAN WAR MACHINE.

WHILE THE UNITED STATES HAS LITTLE DIRECT INTEREST IN REPARATIONS, THIS COUNTRY IS DEVELOPING DEFINITE IDEAS ON THE RELATED SUBJECT OF GERMANY'S FUTURE ECONOMY.

A HIGH OFFICIAL SAID THE U.S. BELIEVES EVERYTHING NECESSARY SHOULD BE DONE TO REMOVE THE GERMAN WAR POTENTIAL, BUT HE SAW NO EXCUSE FOR CARRYING A DESTRUCTIVE POLICY FURTHER SIMPLY TO STIFLE COMMERCIAL COMPETITION.

THE AMERICAN PLAN CENTERS ON A TWO-POINT PROGRAM:

1. DESTROYING DIRECT WAR INDUSTRIES SUCH AS ARMAMENTS FACTORIES.
2. MAKING IT IMPOSSIBLE, BY VARIOUS CONTROLS, FOR CONVERSION OF NORMALLY PEACE-TIME INDUSTRIES INTO WAR MANUFACTURING.

THERE HAVE BEEN SOME INDICATIONS OF A VIEWPOINT IN ENGLAND WHICH WOULD SUPPORT GREATER INDUSTRIALIZATION IN GERMANY IN ORDER TO INCREASE THE AMOUNT OF REPARATIONS THAT COULD BE COLLECTED.

ALTHOUGH IT IS A TENTATIVE PLAN WHICH CAN BE CHANGED IN NEGOTIATIONS WITH OTHER TOP ALLIES AND AS CONDITIONS IN GERMANY TURN OUT AT THE WAR'S END, THE AMERICAN VIEW PLUMPS FOR A MIDDLE COURSE BETWEEN EXTREMES OF DESTRUCTION AND RECONSTRUCTION IN GERMANY.

IT IS FELT THAT WHILE STRICT CONTROL MUST BE EXERCISED OVER WAR-IMPORTANT PRODUCTION, THE ONLY WAY TO BRING GERMANY BACK EVENTUALLY AS A RESPECTABLE MEMBER OF THE FAMILY OF NATIONS IS TO DEVELOP AN ADEQUATE DOMESTIC ECONOMY THERE.

THE FORMULA WORKED OUT THUS FAR IS TO DETERMINE FIRST HOW MUCH IS NEEDED TO FULFILL THE MINIMUM STANDARD OF LIVING DECIDED UPON AS NECESSARY FOR THE GERMAN NATION. THIS STANDARD IS INTENDED TO BE ABOVE A MERE EXISTENCE LEVEL BUT CERTAINLY NO BETTER THAN THAT OF GERMANY'S NEIGHBORS WHOSE RESOURCES AND WEALTH HAVE BEEN DISSIPATED BY THE WAR.

A5WX

THE AMOUNT OF DOMESTIC PRODUCTION AND THE AMOUNT OF IMPORTS REQUIRED TO MAINTAIN THIS LEVEL WOULD BE ASSESSED. EXPORTS NEEDED TO OBTAIN THE CURRENCY WITH WHICH GERMANY COULD BUY ESSENTIAL IMPORTS WOULD BE FIGURED OUT.

ANY PRODUCTION ABOVE THIS COULD GO INTO REPARATIONS, AND WHEN THESE ARE FINALLY PAID OFF, INTO TRADE.

WHEN ISADORE LUBIN, THE AMERICAN REPRESENTATIVE TO THE REPARATIONS COMMISSION, LEAVES FOR MOSCOW--PROBABLY WITHIN A FEW WEEKS--HE WILL PROBABLY TAKE ALONG DEFINITE U.S.PLANS ON GERMANY'S ECONOMIC POSITION IN THE WORLD FOR AT LEAST THE NEXT 25 YEARS.

FROM THE INFORMATION AVAILABLE HERE NOW, IT APPEARS THAT THE AMERICAN PLAN IS IN BETWEEN THE TENTATIVE BRITISH AND RUSSIAN IDEAS.

WHILE THE RUSSIANS HAVE INSISTED IN THEIR PRESS ON GETTING GERMAN LABOR AS A REPARATIONS ITEM, THEIR THINKING SEEMS TO RUN MORE TOWARDS MOVING FACTORIES AND AVAILABLE GOODS OUT OF GERMANY AS SOON AS POSSIBLE RATHER THAN LETTING THE GERMANS CONTINUE PRODUCTION AND COLLECTING YEARLY TOLLS.

By AUSTIN BEALMEAR

PARIS, Thursday, March 22—(AP) American tanks crashed through the great German chemical center of Ludwigshafen on the Rhine today as the U. S. Third and Seventh armies continued to grind disorganized German forces west of the river in the maw of disaster that may cost the enemy as many as 100,000 men in killed, wounded and captured.

Lt. Gen. George S. Patton's racing Third Army armored forces plunged straight through Ludwigshafen and reached the Rhine inside that city of 150,000 population. They sent another column slashing southward to the highway junction of Neustadt, where it was within 19 miles of another junction with the Seventh Army—a new giant potential trap around the Nazis.

At the same time Doughboys of Gen. Courtney H. Hodges' U. S. First Army east of the Rhine, reinforced by armor for the first time since the original crossing two weeks ago, enlarged the Remagen bridgehead northward as much as three miles and fanned out along a seven mile stretch of the Seig river which flows into the Rhine north of Bonn.

Patton's Third Army, still running wild, made advances of as much as ten miles during the day, cleared 20 towns and entered four. Thousands of prisoners were taken.

Fight Way to Rhine

Ludwigshafen, fourth big German city entered or taken by the Third Army in two days, was pierced by an armored division which headquarters has not identified. Another column of the same division also reached the Rhine a mile north of the city after an eastward thrust of 7 ½ miles.

Fleeing German troops blew up the imposing bridge which connected Ludwigshafen with its twin industrial city of Mannheim on the east side of the river.

Other Third Army tanks stampeded the Germans between the Rhine-bank cities of Worms and Mainz, overrunning town after town. However, Mainz itself still was largely in enemy hands.

Neustadt, important highway center 15 miles southwest of Ludwigshafen and 13 miles west of the Rhine at Speyer, was entered by the Tenth armored division, which yesterday had smashed through Kaiserslautern.

This drive within 19 miles of the Seventh Army threatened to crush thousands of German troops against the saw-toothed line of Lt. Gen. Alexander M. Patch's American and French forces now fighting fiercely inside the Siegfried defenses between Lauterburg and Pirmasens.

In that area, where the only semblance of organized German resistance west of the Rhine was being displayed, Nazi regular troops were desperately trying to hold open an escape corridor to the river.

The Germans succeeded in preserving most of their positions on the eastern flank facing Maj. Gen. Edward Brooks' Sixth corps, but the zigzag line gradually was caving in at the west and in the center.

The 71st division cleared Trulben, five miles southwest of Pirmasens and the 14th armored division gained an important objective by seizing Steinfeld on the east side of Wissembourg gap, north of the Bienwald forest and 13 miles west of the Rhine.

6,000 Prisoners in Day

Associated Press Correspondent A. I. Goldberg said it appeared that the Seventh Army's bag of prisoners for the day would exceed 6,000.

More than 7,000 Allied planes joined in the assault against the Reich, with the U. S. Ninth Tactical air force flying more than 2,000 sorties for the second straight day. The fighterbombers found comparatively few targets west of the Rhine, however, and threw the weight of their attack against the Ruhr and communications along the east bank of the Rhine.

Prisoners were pouring in by the thousands and, with the exception of a 30-mile stretch where the Germans were clinging to Siegfried line defenses against the Seventh Army, the enemy was in complete rout. The Third Army alone had seized 3,275 German towns and cities since it started its present offensive March 13.

As this phase of the Allies' great western front offensive raced toward its conclusion the Germans declared that American, British and Canadian forces north of Cologne were about to open a new all-out attack across the Rhine "at any hour." An Associated Press dispatch said the Nazis were moving great numbers of troops into the area.

American heavy bombers knocked out 11 German airfields east of the Rhine opposite Field Marshal Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's Allied armies. A German broadcast said the German high command expected the Allies to attempt to land parachute troops in the area and had "made necessary preparations."

Enlarge Bridgehead

Lt. Gen. Courtney H. Hodges' U. S. First Army troops pushed out more than three miles at the northern end of their Remagen-Erpel bridgehead east of the Rhine and seized more than seven miles of the southern bank of the Sieg river, extending from the Rhine to the town of Niederpleis, five and a half miles east of Bonn.

The advance, made by Doughboys of the 78th division against light resistance, gave the bridgehead forces a solid left flank along the Sieg and heightened their threat to the industrial Ruhr district. The bridgehead now is at least 25 miles wide and nine miles deep and is crammed with American power.

German infantry led by tanks made three new counterattacks against an American-held airfield near Eudenbach at the northeast corner of the bridgehead, but all were decisively beaten off. Doughboys fighting east of the superhighway took Sand and Waschpohl and fought into Eisbach and Rubhausen, a mile farther north.

Other sectors of the bridgehead were quiet, and there were indications that the Nazis had abandoned hope of driving the First army back into the Rhine. Hodges' men took 1,549 prisoners on the narrow front yesterday. A German broadcast estimated that 150,000 men now were engaged on each side in the bridgehead battle.

The U. S. Seventh army's 36th infantry division ran into the stiffest resistance being put up by any Nazis west of the Rhine as it approached Durrenbach, north of Wissembourg, but succeeded in making limited advances. Elements of the 36th joined the 14th armored division in clearing Steinfeld, at the edge of the Siegfried defense belt two miles North of the Palatinate border.

Units of the French Fifth armored and Third Algerian infantry divisions fought fiercely through the Bienwald forest against bitter opposition and were reported approaching the center of the vast forest.

As these forces pushed north, the Third army sent several armored columns spurting south and southeast of captured Kaiserslautern as far as 11 miles, threatening to take German troops manning the Siegfried defenses from the rear. One column of the 10th armored division peeled off nine miles southeast of Kaiserslautern and late today was fighting in Neustadt, 13 miles west of Speyer on the Rhine.

The Third army ran another 8,229 prisoners into its stockades yesterday and an estimated 6,000 remained to be tabulated for the day. That brought the Third's estimated total for the week since the crossing of the Moselle to around 50,000 captives — 30,000 in the past 48 hours.

Nazi Armies Eliminated

Seventh army tabulations were far from up to date, but when the mop-up is completed it is possible that the two American armies will have eliminated 75,000 Nazis in prisoners alone. The German First and Seventh armies virtually had been written off in the latest disaster to the Wehrmacht.

The Third army's overnight advances measured up to 14 miles, with the major thrusts in the eastern portion of the disintegrating west-Rhine salient, where three of Patton's divisions were plunging toward the river.

One column of an unidentified armored division struck 11 miles eastward to Lambsheim, five miles northwest of Ludwigshafen, and another reached Freinsheim, eight miles west of the big chemical center. With today's first dawn light the columns resumed their steady advance.

The 11th armored pushed 14 miles to a point two miles south of captured Worms and four miles from the Rhine. The motorized 94th Infantry division churned forward 10½ miles to Gerolsheim, seven miles northwest of Ludwigshaven. Fighting was reported still raging in Mainz, which was entered Tuesday.

100,000 German Casualties Seen As Toll Of Rout

New York, March 21 (AP)—The 3d Army has entered Ludwigshafen, the big German chemical center on the west side of the Rhine, a Blue network correspondent reported from the front today. LONG DAY

Paris, March 21 (AP)—The German debâcle in the Saarland and Palatinate appeared likely today to cost Hitler's badly bled forces close to 100,000 casualties as the United States 3d Army closed within 5 miles of the great chemical center of Ludwigshafen-Mannheim and fought inside Mainz.

Two German armies, the 1st and 7th, were either wiped out or doomed except for scattered elements.

At supreme headquarters it was estimated that the swift 3d Army of Lieut. Gen. George S. Patton, Jr., alone had herded 30,000 Nazis into prison pens in 48 hours, and it and Lieut. Gen. Alexander M. Patch's 7th Army were closing new traps that may boost the total of captured in the whirlwind campaign to 75,000.

The 7th Army, driving up from the southern bases of the Saarland and Palatinate, did not even tabulate its prisoners beyond the first 6,000.

Great Cities Topple Like Tenpins

Cities such as Saarbruecken, Kaiserslautern, Worms, Voelkingen, Zweibruecken, Homburg and St. Ingbert toppled like tenpins. The hard-hitting Americans—27 divisions in all, or nearly 400,000 men—were advancing speedily.

The German hold on the west bank of the upper Rhine was narrowed to a 35-mile escape gap between the Karlsruhe and Ludwigshafen areas and it appeared doubtful whether the wounded Wehrmacht could scrape together enough men from the defeat properly to man the Valhalla Line east of the river.

The Germans blew their last remaining bridges on the Rhine, leaving stragglers west of the river to death or capture.

Except for a 30-mile stretch between Pirmasens and Lautersbourg, where the Germans clung to fragments of the Siegfried Line, the enemy was in complete rout. Nazi forces were surrounded in three places and threatened with imminent encirclement elsewhere.

The large Saarland city of Neunkirchen, where steel and iron works and coal pits abound, was believed to have fallen, although there was no specific word.

The 1st Army fighting east of the Rhine widened its bridgehead to 25 miles in a push along flat tank country leading 12 miles to the southern limits of the Ruhr—Germany's greatest arsenal area. The 78th Division drove north of Bonn in the bridgehead and seized more than 7 miles of the southern bank of the Sieg River extending from the Rhine to the town of Niederpleis.

The United States 9th, British 2d and Canadian 1st were massed in mighty strength on the lower Rhine opposite the Ruhr, which General Eisenhower said last night "will become a death trap." The United States 15th and the Allied 1st Airborne armies were in reserve, so far as was known.

At least four racing columns of Patton's 3d Army curled in a tightening arc before Lugwidshafen-Mannheim, twin industrial cities on the Rhine with a total population of 427,000.

Valhalla Line Being Shelled

Patton's artillery already was shelling German troops in some places in the Valhalla Line beyond the Rhine.

More than 7,000 Allied warplanes raked the Reich. They concentrated on targets in and around the threatened Ruhr as if isolating it for capture or a sealoff.

The Saar Valley, with its steel mills and vast coal deposits was won, taking from Germany her third largest industrial sector.

Some divisions advanced 15 miles or more a day. The destruction of the German forces was so complete that it seemed doubtful they could rally for a strong stand east of the Rhine—where greater offensives were in the making.

Extension of the 1st Army's east Rhine bridgehead, now 9 miles deep, underscored the threat to the Ruhr, invaded on the west and threatened by Lieut. Gen. Courtney H. Hodges's troops in Beuel, a Bonn suburb 14 miles south of the Ruhr. General Eisenhower warned that the Ruhr was next in line of conquest.

Already the lack of punching power east of the Rhine was apparent in German ranks. Prisoners plodded to the rear dejectedly. The enemy had thrown the best troops saved from the 1st Parachute and 6th Panzer armies at the Remagen bridgehead and failed to check its expansion.

The Germans were falling back upon the narrow Sieg and Wied rivers, plainly despairing of driving the Americans from the east bank of the Rhine.

Patch's 7th Army captured at least nine cities and towns after forging the trap around the Saarland in conjunction with Patton's 3d Army 12 miles west of Kaiserslautern. The two armies were squeezing German stragglers in a double pincers.

Among places captured were Niederwuerbach, Hassel and Kirkel, on the eastern boundary of the Saarland.

Hassel Captured

The 103d (Cactus) Division of Maj. Gen. Anthony C. McAuliffe, hero of Bastogne, moved 7 miles north of Wissembourg and took 1,000 prisoners, fourteen of whom asked the honor of surrendering personally to the Washington general.

Up to yesterday, Patton's 3d Army had inflicted 45,000 casualties on the German 1st and 7th armies in the Saarland, Palatinate and Hesse. He added 8,229 prisoners to that yesterday and still had 20,000 awaiting transport to cages. The 7th Army, serving as an anvil for Patton's hammer blows from the north, had captured 6,040 Germans by yesterday and killed and wounded thousands more.

Scores Of Villages Fall

Scores upon scores of villages fell to both armies. At least three pockets of Germans lay behind Allied lines awaiting death or capture.

The largest trap was a Saarland pocket of less than 80 square miles around Saarbruecken; there were smaller pockets near Traven and east of Kirn.

At the pace Patton's t[illegible]s were setting, it was reasonable to expect that the vanguards would reach the Ludwigshafen-Mannheim area before dusk. Ludwigshafen is on the west bank of the Rhine and Mannheim on the east.

In Artillery Range

Other great German cities were either within or almost within artillery range. Frankfurt was 18 miles away; Weisbaden is 4 miles across the Rhine from Mainz. Speyer, capital of the Palatinate, was 15 miles from the 3d Army. Karlsruhe was 7 miles or so across the Rhine from French units of the 7th Army.

At Mainz, Patton was 265 miles from Berlin and 93 miles inside Germany and controlling more German ground than any other Western-front general. The 90th Division reached Mainz yesterday. Third Army censors temporarily held up news of the battles there; Mainz had been one of the strongest fortress positions on the Rhine.

Control Of Rhine Banks

All of the middle Rhine's west bank and 24 miles of its east bank were in American hands.

Both Ludwigshafen and Mannheim are largely shambles, for both have long been air targets.

Compared to the staggering German losses, American casualties were amazingly light, Associated Press Correspondent Edward D. Ball reported.

The 3d and 7th armies made a second linkup in the Saarland in the vicinity of Ottweiler, 14 miles northeast of Saarbruecken.

The Wissembourg Gap into the Palatinate had been burst wide open by the 7th Army and the last German wedge west of the Rhine was being wiped out at a rate that indicated a complete cleanup within 48 hours.

A good many Allied officers, twice disappointed and wary, now were willing to bet that the European war would be ended within 60 days—but they were getting some takers.

Ruhr Civilians Warned

There was talk at supreme headquarters that the German command had or would soon try to cry quits—but there was nothing more than the obvious military situation on which to base that idea.

General Eisenhower told civilians and foreign workers to flee the doomed Ruhr now. He had terrifying air and artillery power as well as five or six picked armies opposite the great valley to back up his warning.

The 3d and 7th armies had the Saar conquered and had virtually won the whole of Hesse and the Palatinate—the western twelfth of Bavaria—as well.

Gerolsheim Reached

The 3d Army's ubiquitous 94th Division plunged 10½ miles east and reached Gerolsheim, 7 miles northwest of Ludwigshafen.

Two combat teams of the 4th Armored Division were mopping up inside Worms. The 80th (Blue Ridge) Division was cleaning up inside Kaiserslautern and had advanced 5 miles beyond; it also pushed 9 miles east of Kaiserslautern to an area 18 miles west of Ludwigshafen.

Not only did Patton take prisoners by the thousand. He captured or destroyed scores of ammunition and supply dumps and took so much equipment that a staggering task awaited his quartermasters in sorting it. Patton broadcast orders to all trucks in the rear to empty, race forward and pick up loads of Germans and matériel.

The speed of the 3d Army onslaught was demonstrated by the fact that an 8-inch gun battery supporting the 80th Division was in position to harry the foe one minute and out of range ten minutes later. Infantrymen these days travel mostly by truck on advances such as that now in progress.

Yanks In Waldmohr Area

Behind the forward forces the 65th Division pushed 5 miles eastward on a 3-mile front to Merchweiler, 5 miles west of Neunkirchen, and moved on east to the Waldmohr area, 5 miles north of Homburg.

The Germans were trying to save what they could from the debâch in the Saarland and Palatinate with horse teams—and even ox carts But mostly, it was a kind of flight in which guns, ammunition, stores and everything else that could not move under its own power was being abandoned.

1,739 Nazi Trucks Smashed

And these were guns and trucks and stores that the Germans would need east of the Rhine in the Valhalla Line. The German armies were growing weaker in men and machines daily; Eisenhower's were being prodigiously reinforced.

4 TANK UNITS IN WILD RACE

One Took Ludwigshafen To Get Out Of Way Of Others

With American Armor at Ludwigshafen, Germany, March 21 (AP). Lieut. Gen. George S. Patton's newest and still unidentifiable tank division slammed into this Rhine city today after probably the wildest scramble in the history of armored warfare. EXTRA

It was like hitting a fresh egg with a hammer, with the resultant mess.

Four armored divisions with single-track minds—to get to the Rhine and chew up as many German forces as possible—ran all over one another's toes in a hectic race, but no one got sore.

Besides this new armored outfit, the 10th, 11th and 4th Armored divisions swarmed over all roads to the Rhine in the comparatively small area from Ludwigshafen to north of Worms.

Escape To Conquest

The scene seemed to be one of utter confusion. No one apparently knew what the other fellow was doing or where he was doing it. Yet when the time came, all the pieces in this massed armored movement fell exactly into place.

It was almost unbelievable that so many people and tanks could do so much in so short a time.

It is not far from the truth to say that the new tank division rushed into Ludwigshafen to get out of the way of the enormous concentrations of tanks and infantry pushing from behind.

Beaten And They Know It

There is no will to fight left in the Germans west of the Rhine. They are badly beaten and know it. Some still are putting up a token resistance, but they are decidedly in the minority. The great majority seem happy to surrender and get away from the shooting.

During the past 48 hours I have driven by jeep more than 500 miles in areas along the Rhine and immediately to the west and have seen thousands of Germans who came out of the woods and walked in columns westward along the roads, carrying white flags.

It is possible to jeep almost anywhere from Mainz southward to Ludwigshafen without any interference from the Germans.

The enemy on the east bank of the Rhine has been lobbing over a few shells, about enough to keep a tired driver from going to sleep.

25 Nazi Fighters Flee

About 25 German fighter planes stooged around Worms during the morning, doing some strafing, but mostly bluffing. They headed for home quickly when American Thunderbolts arrived.

Through all this section, ancient structures appear to have survived modern warfare better than modern buildings. The central section of Worms, through which the railroads run, had been reduced to rubble block after block, by Allied bombers.

Amazingly, standing in the center of the debris, was the ancient Cathedral of SS. Peter and Paul, dating back to 1018.

Its interior was gutted, but the walls and towers stood intact. Capt. Harold Bowers, of Omaha, Neb., in an outfit which reached Worms this morning, estimated that 80 per cent of the city had been flattened by air bombardment.

CIVILIANS HELD FLEEING RUHR

Mannheim Area Also Being Deserted, Swedes Say

London, March 21 (AP) — Noncombatants were in mass flight from the Ludwigshafen-Mannheim area and the Ruhr today, Swedish sources reported, indicating that German civilians and foreign labor were heeding Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's warnings that these sections would be "death traps" before the onslaught of Allied armies.

The Stockholm newspaper Svenska-Dagbladet said, without indicating its source, that the flight from what it described as the Ludwigshafen-Mannheim "dead zone" was so extensive that German military transport was hindered gravely.

"Real Migration"

Hundreds of thousands were reported fleeing toward Nuernberg and Munich.

In the Ruhr area, the Swedish paper said, the eastward flight has assumed the proportions of "real migration" from cities such as Essen, Dortmund, Gelsenkirchen and Bochum, now declared "dead."

Ludwigshafen, on the west bank of the Rhine opposite Mannheim, was entered today by the United States 3d Army whose armor-plated offensive has helped rip Nazi resistance in the Saar to ribbons.

Indicative of the breakdown of German communications before the mass exodus from threatened areas, the Swedish paper cited an incident where the American Red Cross purchased 50 Swedish trucks to deliver food packages to Allied prisoners of war in Germany because Nazi railroads were unable to do the job.

New Warning Given

Meanwhile, General Eisenhower's radio spokesman today directed warnings to flee or perish in the fury of the Allied assault to German railway workers of eighteen towns in the Ruhr and vicinity. Allied planes grimly pointed up the warning with a continued thunderous blasting of the German railroad system.

Again, the supreme Allied commander's warning said:

"To remain at your posts is suicide—railwaymen, get out of the battle of the Ruhr."

The warning was directed at the towns of Duisburg, Muelheim, Oberhausen, Essen, Gelsenkirchen, Pottrop, Gladbeck, Recklinghausen, Wattenscheid, Wanneeickel, Herne, Castrop, Rauxel, Bochum, Witten, Dortmund, Luehen and Hagen.

NEGRO UNITS FIGHTING WELL

So Read Reports On Their 1st Combat Use In West Front

WHITEHEAD

With the U.S. 1st Army East of the Rhine, March 21 (AP)—Negro infantrymen who left their jobs in rear echelons and volunteered for combat duty are fighting on the 1st Army's bridgehead east of the Rhine—the first time Negro troops have been used in combat on the Western front.

Early reports made by white officers say that the Negro troops have given a good account of themselves in their initial action alongside white troops.

The Army is keeping close check on the Negro platoons, since this is the first time they have been placed in the same divisions with white soldiers on the battle line. Weekly reports are to be made on their morale, fighting ability, casualties and the number of Germans they capture.

"All our reports so far have been good," said Capt. Edward Finnegan, the Bronx, New York.

The Army has moved cautiously in breaking its long-established tradition of keeping white and Negro units separated, and the Negro rifle platoons are being fed into divisions gradually, with one platoon to each regiment now in action.

Want To Fight

These Negro doughboys asked for the chance to fight. Many of them voluntarily gave up their stripes as staff sergeants and technical sergeants to get into the fighting. They are fighting as platoons under white officers who have had combat experience.

When the Negro platoons arrived recently at one veteran division's location, each member got a personal letter from the commanding general along with the divisional shoulder patches. They then were greeted personally by regimental commanders.

As yet the Army has set up no replacement pool for the Negro platoons. When their fighting strength is reduced to such a level that they are unable to function as units, then remnants of two or more units will be reorganized into a full-strength platoon.

White Flags Dot Towns Opposite Coblenz

With the U.S. 3d Army, March 21 (AP)—White flags have appeared on almost every building in the east-bank Rhine suburbs of Coblenz, apparently in expectation of an American lightning strike across the river.

White flags began appearing as soon as the 87th Division entered Coblenz Saturday and have multiplied since.

SAARBRUECKEN IS STARK MONUMENT TO AERIAL POWER

By LEWIS HAWKINS

WITH THE U. S. 70TH INFANTRY DIVISION, Saarbruecken, Germany, March 21—(AP) An indescribably ugly monument to air power, this city retained only 1,000 of its 135,000 population when the Americans swept through it yesterday.

This estimate was made by Lt. Col. Louis G. Kelly of Rochester, N. Y., commander of the Saarbruecken Military Government detachment.

"Most of this evacuation was completed by last December," he added, "so that only a few thousands were left to run when our troops came in.

"There just isn't enough room left in this town to house more than a small fraction of its previous population. We haven't made a detailed survey of the effects of our bombardment on the industrial structure, but anyone can see it has been practically wiped out except for some workable mines and a handful of small factories."

The Germans added the final touch of devastation by blowing up dozens of bridges across the Saar river.

The largest single group of plants, the Burbach-Eich-Dudelingen Iron works, spread over a dozen blocks in the western part of the city, was almost completely burned and smashed and apparently had not worked for months.

A little to the east of this factory group, a cement plant was just a collection of walls, while at the northern edge of the city the Erhardt and Sehmer Engineering plant was in similar condition. The passenger depot and railroad repair shops, also north of the river, were battered into uselessness.

Piles of Wreckage

Hundreds of acres of stores, residences and office buildings were piles of wreckage or sooty skeletons.

Among buildings which escaped complete destruction, but had windows blown out, was the Evangelistic "Gemeindehaus," or Protestant meeting house where the results of the Saar plebescite were announced in January, 1935, returning the Saarland to the Reich and giving Hitler his first great triumph.

Northeast of Saarbruecken the mining towns of Dudweiler, Sulzbach and Fischbach sharply contrasted with the big city. Damage was so slight they seemed almost untouched by war and the bulk of the civilian population had remained behind. Some stores were open.

People along the streets seemed neither hostile nor friendly—just curious. On the whole the men and women were better dressed and the children fatter and healthier than in similar French towns.

BIRTHDAY PRESENT FOR COLONEL'S DAD

WITH THE U. S. 70TH DIVISION IN SAARBRUECKEN, March 21—(AP) Crossing the Saar, piercing the Siegfried line and sweeping through Saarbruecken yesterday, doughboys of the 274th regiment gave a birthday present to a man in Van Wert, Ohio, who had passed his allotted three-score-and-ten before most of the American infantrymen were born.

The "birthday present" was for the father of Col. Samuel G. Conley, regimental commander.

"While he didn't know it, my men helped him celebrate his 93rd birthday and I'm going to write him all about it," said Conley.

His father is Frank Conley, a retired farmer. Col. Conley said proudly, "You don't need to give his street address because everyone in Van Wert knows him."

DEATH COMES NEAR TO GEN. M'AULIFFE

U. S. Seventh Army Headquarters, Germany, March 21 (A. P.)—Major-Gen. Anthony C. McAuliffe, who said "nuts" to a German surrender demand at Bastogne, had a close call in the Wissembourg sector yesterday. Self-propelled guns, anti-tank rifles and snipers laid down a fire from positions dominating the town of Niederschlettenbach when Gen. McAuliffe went in with his 103d (Cactus) Division. He escaped unharmed.

Fourteen Germans bearing a white flag came out and surrendered to him personally, announcing that all occupants of the village would give up. The Cactus Division—largely from New Mexico, Arizona and Colorado—had captured 1,000 prisoners.

Gen. McAuliffe received command of the division and a second general's star shortly after his heroic stand at Bastogne, in Belgium, during December, when he was in charge of the surrounded 101st Airborne (Screaming Eagle) Division. The German general who demanded vainly that Gen. McAuliffe and the parachute troops surrender was captured earlier this month.

2,500 Freight Cars Taken Before Rhine

Paris, March 21 (AP)—The American 1st and 9th armies have captured a huge quantity of railroad equipment undamaged by the Germans in their flight across the Rhine, Supreme Headquarters disclosed tonight.

The booty included 2,500 freight cars—350 of them loaded with coal and coke—45 locomotives, several roundhouses and repair shops, one car manufacturing plant and uncounted quantities of railroad tools, machinery and supplies.

Another 2,000 freight cars and 40 locomotives needing only minor repairs were expected to be in use in a few weeks.

Major Ray A. Garrigus, of Lansdowne, Pa., traffic officer of the 708th Railroad Operating Battalion, estimated that the windfall would save more than 5,000,000 manpower hours of labor and would release thousands of tons of shipping space for other purposes.

Bridge Repair 'Unnecessary'

Paris, March 21 (AP)—Maj. Gen. C. R. Moore, chief engineer in the European theater of operations, declared that the rapid expansion of the Remagen bridgehead made rebuilding of the collapsed Ludendorff span over the Rhine River unnecessary.

It could be rebuilt if the need arose, he added. His statement suggested there were enough pontoon bridges to assure success of 1st Army operations.

Completely Wrecked

With the 1st Army Across the Rhine, March 21 (AP)—The Ludendorff Bridge across the Rhine to the expanding Remagen bridgehead is wrecked so completely that there is no possibility of its being repaired before the war ends. Pontoons are bearing the traffic.

Engineers who looked at the twisted and broken girders lying in the Rhine said today it would require two years of work to rebuild the double-tracked railroad bridge with the equipment now available.

RUSSIAN TROOPS APPROACH DANZIG IN NEW ASSAULT

Soviet Troops Push Spearhead Within Six Miles of Port City.

FORCES MASSED

Stettin Pounded by Rain of Red Shells as Siege Continues.

By ROMNEY WHEELER

LONDON, Thursday, March 22—(AP) Russian troops forced a powerful 25-mile siege arc south and west of Danzig yesterday, pushed a new spearhead within six miles southwest of the former free city and drove within two miles of cutting the vital Danzig-Gdynia coastal road, Moscow announced last night.

Other Soviet formations, attacking on a 15-mile front in east Prussia, tightened their vise on the Germans pocketed southwest of Koenigsberg and gained positions for an assault from three sides on Heiligenbeil, the enemy's last bastion there.

Even while these Russian assaults to eliminate the Germans' Baltic pockets were raging, other Soviet commanders to the west massed powerful formations along the Oder all the way from besieged and flaming Stettin upriver to captured Kuestrin.

The Germans said that Russian shock troops already had begun new attacks west of the Oder within 32 miles of gutted Berlin. This was not confirmed in the Moscow communique.

Stettin was being pounded by a torrent of Russian shells hurled from siege lines less than three miles from that Pomeranian capital and port which protects Berlin on the north. One German commentator said that the First White Russian army was massing anti-aircraft batteries and fog-making machines and was working around the clock to throw more bridges across the Oder in the 16-mile-wide Frankfurt-Kuestrin sector directly east of Berlin.

Blast Two Cities

Second White Russian army formations driving into the enemy's Danzig-Gdynia pocket all but split the communications of the German garrisons in the two ports with the capture of Gross Katz, two miles from the highway. From high ground in the area of this village the Germans said the Russians were able to direct fire at both cities and the road.

Gross Katz, four miles southwest of Gdynia and seven miles northwest of Danzig, was taken despite the fire on German warships off-shore. That village serves the Russians as a northern pivot for the siege arc around Danzig which now runs south to Kladau, nine miles below Danzig and then angles southeast to Kohling, 12 miles from the former free city.

Six Miles from Danzig

Moscow announced the fall of both Kladau and Kohling as well as Klein Boelkau, where a new Russian spearhead had plunged within six miles of Danzig. In all the Russians swept up nine town and villages in the fighting along the shores of the gulf of Danzig and captured 600 Germans. By enemy account Marshal Konstantin K. Rokossovsky was employing 500,000 men in this battle.

Fighting to shove the Germans in the East Prussian pocket southwest of Koenigsberg into the Frisches Haff (lagoon) the Third White Russian army gained complete control of the mouth of the Passarge river with the capture of Alt-Passarge. This river flows through the stronghold of Braunsberg which fell to the Russians Tuesday.

Newecken and Grunau, respectively three miles northeast and southwest of Heiligenbeil, were taken by the Russians who previously had driven within two miles of the bastion from the south. Moscow's midnight war bulletin said fierce fighting was raging for the crossings of the Jarft river covering the southern approaches of Heilgenbeil.

Red air force planes sank three German transports of 5,000 to 6,000 tons each, in the Port of Pillau, 25 miles west of besieged Koenigsberg on the Samland peninsula, the communique said. This would indicate that German evacuations still were being made from the East Prussian capital. Two larger German transports and an enemy patrol ship were sunk by Russian planes in the area of Bornholm island in the Baltic.

Far to the south another Soviet army attacking within 58 miles of Austria threatened the big Danube river stronghold of Komaron (Komarno) in northwestern Hungary, half-way between Budapest and the Bratislava gap to Vienna, Berlin said. One Soviet wing also crashed into Szekesfehervar, big road junction and former Hungarian capital 32 miles southwest of Budapest, the enemy said.

A Bulgarian communique announcing the liquidation of a small German bridgehead on the north bank of the Drava river near Siklos, 120 miles south of Budapest, said 6,000 Germans were killed. The Germans had announced on Tuesday the evacuation of the bridgehead.

One German commentator said that the 1st White Russian Army was massing anti-aircraft batteries and fog-making machines and was working around the clock to throw more bridges across the Oder in the 16-mile-wide Frankfurt-Kuestrin sector.

All But Split Pocekt

Second White Russian Army formations, driving into the enemy's Danzig - Gydnia pocket, all but split the communications of the German garrisons in the two ports with the capture of Gross Katz, 2 miles from the highway.

Moscow announced the fall of Kladau and Kohling as well as Klein Boelkau, where a new Russian spearhead had plunged within 6 miles of Danzig. In all the Russians swept up nine towns and villages. By enemy account Marshal Konstantin K. Rokossovsky was employing 500,000 men in this battle.

Southwest of Koenigsberg the 3d White Russian Army gained complete control of the mouth of the Passarge River with the capture of Alt-Passarge. Moscow said fierce fighting was raging for the crossings of the Jarft River covering the southern approaches of Heiligenbeil.

Sink Nazi Transports

The air force planes sank three German transports of 5,000 to 6,000 tons each in the port of Pillau, 25 miles west of Koenigsburg on the Samland peninsula, the communiqué said. Two larger German transports and an enemy patrol ship were sunk by Russian planes in the area of Bornholm Island in the Baltic.

Between Danzig and Gdynia the Germans said the Russians had gained a dominating height at Zoppot, effectively splitting the Danzig-Gdynia pocket and permitting Soviet gunners to rake coastal communications on the 10-mile-long highway between the two cities.

The German radio said Marshal Gregory K. Zhukov, apparently seeking to widen his bridgeheads across the Oder, was striking in battalion strength southwest of Kienitz, on the river's west bank 10 miles northwest of Kuestrin and 32 miles east of Berlin. "Fierce German resistance hindered the formation of new (Russian) bridgeheads over the lower Oder," a Nazi broadcast said.

Amphibious Move Forecast

With the capture of the suburbs of Altdamm Tuesday only three miles of the lower Oder's estuary separated 1st White Russian Army troops from Stettin, now being pounded by Russian planes and artillery. Declaring that "the eastern bank of the Oder in the Stettin area now is in Russian hands," the Germans indicated that Russian amphibious operations aimed at surrounding Stettin itself may be imminent.

A Moscow dispatch said an aviation engine factory with more than 1,000 new engines intact, an airplane assembly plant and a torpedo factory were among the booty taken by the Russians at Altdamm.

An enemy infantry regiment brought from Italy was among the Nazi units smashed in the Altdamm action, a Moscow dispatch said.

Front dispatches said Soviet storm units had found German dead hanging from makeshift gallows in Altdamm, just as in Kolberg last week. On bodies in army uniforms were signs reading "hanged because I fought badly." The corpses of executed civilians had signs saying "I was hanged because I evacuated." Moscow quoted German prisoners taken near Danzig and Koenigsberg as saying that mass executions had taken place in those cities.

Russians Mass Big Guns To Hit Stettin

Moscow, March 21 (AP)—The 1st White Russian Army, now in possession of virtually the entire east bank of the Oder River from the Baltic to its confluence with the Neisse, moved siege artillery to the very edge of Stettin today after wiping out the enemy's Altdamm bridgehead.

The menace to Berlin grew hourly as Marshal Gregory K. Zhukow probed many places along the river, seeking springboards for his next big attack east and northeast of the Reich capital.

Marshal Ivan S. Konev still is engaged in liquidating trapped garrisons in Breslau and Glogau on the upper Oder, but has moved additional units of his 1st Ukraine Army group to the Neisse line southeast of Berlin.

Planning Final Kill

In East Prussia, Marshal Alexander M. Vasilevsky was staging the final kill in a dwindling German pocket along the coast southwest of Koenigsberg.

Disclosure that Vasilevsky had taken over the 3d White Russian Army front after the death in battle of Gen. Ivan Cherniakhovsky was made in Marshal Stalin's order of the day yesterday saluting the capture of Braunsberg, one of two German bastions in the pocket.

As in Kolberg last week, Russians storm units found German dead hanging from makeshift gallows in Altdamm. An Izvestia dispatch said an order from Hitler had been found, saying that troops leaving positions voluntarily should be shot on the spot. On bodies in army uniform were signs reading "Hanged because I fought badly." The corpses of executed civilians had a sign saying "I was hanged because I evacuated."

Bound For Southern Germany

[Far to the south at the lower end of the Eastern front, two or more Russian army groups were reported by Berlin to be driving toward the mountainous area of southern Germany and Austria where the Nazis, according to some reports, may make a final stand after defeat on the Reich's northern plains.

[Berlin said Marshal Feodor I. Tolbukhin has hurled 200,000 of his 3d Ukraine Army troops and supporting armor into an offensive through northwestern Hungary, with advance forces already plunging beyond Tata, 10 miles southeast of the big Danube River stronghold of Komarom. This is the direct route toward Vienna.]

PATRIOTS TAKE FIELD IN ITALY

Bitter Fighting With Germans Reported In Liguria

Rome, March 21 (AP)—Bitter fighting in western Liguria between 500 Germans and Italian Patriots was reported today in a 15th Army group communiqué.

Increased activity by Patriots in German-held northern Italy was said to have forced the enemy to divert strong forces of front-line troops to combat the Partisans and protect supply and communication areas.

The communiqué said few details of the clash in western Liguria, between the Allied front and the French frontier, were available yet but declared the Partisans were "using all available arms and were effectively resisting the challenge of the enemy."

Clash Also In Varese

Clashes between Patriots and Fascist troops in Varese province in the vicinity of Crosio Della Velle also were reported. The commander of the Fascist forces was reported killed.

Action on the Allied battlefront again was limited to patrol clashes. Eighth Army patrols improved their positions in the Mezzona area northwest of Ravenna, taking a number of prisoners.

Along the 5th Army front in central Italy one patrol penetrated into German territory in the area of Monte Rumci, but was forced to withdraw under cover of a smoke screen after encountering heavy enemy mortar and small-arms fire. Another 5th Army patrol killed eight Germans and took a number of prisoners.

Tactical planes of the Mediterranean Allied Air Force attacked enemy points in northern Italy in direct suport of the ground forces.

New Allied Offensive

Brazilian Headquarters in Italy, March 21 (AP)—Lieut. Gen. Lucian K. Truscott, Jr., commander of the 5th Army, forecast today a new Allied offensive in Italy with Brazilians participating.

In awarding six Silver Stars and 21 Bronze Stars to Brazilian troops, Truscott said, "the time is coming when we shall renew the attack against the common enemy and pursue him until he is destroyed.

"In that attack the 1st Brazilian Division will have a definite mission. . . ."

82 Civilians Killed

Ronchidosso, Italy, March 21 (AP). Eighty-two civilians, including many women and children, were killed and burned by German SS troops in this mountain hamlet last September 28, it was discovered when the United States 10th Mountain Division overran the place.

One official said the slaughter was in reprisal for a battle the Italian patriots had waged against the Germans.

While most of the dead were machine-gunned, there was evidence that some had been clubbed to death, and discovery of thirteen charred skeletons tied to stakes led to a suspicion that some might have been burned alive.

Flynn Visits Italy

Rome, March 21 (AP)—Edward J. Flynn has arrived in Italy as personal emissary of President Roosevelt and will call on Pope Pius XII and visit the war front, it was announced today.

He conferred at Allied headquarters this morning with Field Marshal Sir Harold Alexander and Maj. Gen. Otto L. Nelson, deputy commander of the Mediterranean theater of the United States Army.

Flynn arrived from Moscow and Cairo following attendance at the Yalta conference. In Moscow he conferred with Archbishop Alexei, Patriarch of all the Russias.

Americans Advance In Adriatic Sector

Rome, March 21 (AP)—Eighth Army troops in the Adriatic sector improved their positions northwest of Ravenna with a local advance in the Mezzano area yesterday. Otherwise, activity along the Italian front was limited to patrol operations, Allied headquarters said today.

Increased activity of Italian patriots in German-held northern Italy was reported and a 15th Army Group communiqué quoted a captured enemy officer as saying the Nazis often were forced to use a whole regiment to combat Partisan attacks on supply dumps and troop movements.

Withdrawal Near Cuffiano

Some enemy prisoners were taken in the action in the Mezzano area. A strong German patrol forced 8th Army troops to withdraw from a strongpoint northeast of Cuffiano.

On the 5th Army front only scattered contact with the enemy was reported. Eight Germans were killed in a clash in the central area south of Bologna, while a number of prisoners were taken by another Allied patrol.

One patrol penetrated into the vicinity of Mount Rumici but was forced to withdraw under a smoke screen when it encountered heavy enemy mortar and small-arms fire.

1,200 Americans Freed By Reds Reach Naples

Naples, March 20 [AP—Delayed]—Approximately 1,200 Americans, the first large group of freed prisoners of war to be evacuated since the Red Army overran their prison camps in Germany, arrived in Naples today for trans-shipment to the United States.

The vast majority were eager to continue on home, but a few hardy warriers insisted they would like nothing better than to rejoin combat outfits in Italy or Germany immediately.

Red Cross girls were on the pier, handing out sweaters, toilet kits and doughnuts. The men all praised the Red Cross for what it had done to ease their discomforts while prisoners.

A FRUITFUL FORAY

With the Fifth Army in Italy, March 21 (A. P.).—A Fifth Army patrol took fifteen minutes Monday night to capture twenty-three Germans without firing a shot or suffering a casualty.

The patrol, headed by Lieut. Alexander Jones of 279 Hamilton Place, Hackensack, N. J., set out to raid a village of five houses perched atop a 2,400-foot hill. Under protective shelling which isolated the area, the patrol slipped into the hamlet without attracting any counterfire.

At the largest house, Pfc. Hans Mosher of 19 North 10th street, East Orange, N. J., shouted in German: "Come out, hands up, we've got you surrounded." Receiving no response, he and his companions entered the house and captured twenty-three Nazis who had been asleep on the floor.

7,000 Planes Rip Reich End to End

By CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN

LONDON, Thursday, March 22 (AP).—RAF Mosquitos blockbusted Berlin last night and again early today in a double observance of the 30th consecutive night of attacks on the German capital. More than 7,000 allied planes spread 12,000 tons of explosives on Germany in daylight yesterday in the war's greatest coordinated air effort.

As the sky offensive mounted in fury, the German radio reported the Nazi High Command expected allied airborne landings "at any hour now" in the Ruhr east of the Rhine.

The awesome armada attacking the Reich yesterday included nearly 3,000 heavy bombers. Huge fleets of Britain-based American heavies and their fighter escort concentrated on 11 airfields in northwestern Germany.

These were mainly in the Muenster area, opposite Marshal Montgomery's Rhine front. Medium and light bombers based on the continent spread havoc among fleeing German columns and concentrations all along the Western Front.

A U. S. 8th Air Force communique said nine bombers and 10 fighters were missing from yesterday's operations but claimed 12 enemy planes—all jets—were destroyed in the air and an additional 43 and six gliders destroyed on the ground.

Neuberg Drome Raided

The 19th Tactical Air Force destroyed six more enemy planes, including one jet, in the air but did not announce its losses immediately. This group found pickings lean in comparison to yesterday when its planes literally slaughtered the disorganized, running Germans.

Italy-based American Liberators clubbed the Neuberg airdrome, a jet-plane base 50 miles north of Munich, while Fortresses from the south hammered Kagran and Vosedof, natural oil refineries in the Vienna area.

The United States 9th Air Force flew at least 2,100 sorties—1,803 by fighter bombers—and shot up 3,211 railcars, motor trucks, locomotives, armored vehicles and tanks. Seven German interceptors were destroyed in the air and two on the ground and eight of the 9th's planes were lost.

Local rains held the 1st Tactical Air Force's French-American squadrons to 500 trips but the RAF 2d TAF, in sorties by hundreds of planes, dug into enemy concentrations and traffic in the Ruhr vicinity and in Holland.

11-Ton Bombs Dropped

Modified Lancasters, carrying eleven-ton bombs, escorted by fighters, attacked an oil refinery at Bremen and destroyed a rail bridge across the Weser River near by.

Mixed in with the day's overwhelming attack on the Reich, bold Mosquitos of the Tactical Air Force, in a daring low-level attack, destroyed virtually every building at Gestapo headquarters in Copenhagen, Danish capital, during the morning.

General Eisenhower, railroads, highways and bridges were struck steadily with shells, rockets and bombs.

In morning raids, 2,000 United States bombers and fighters hammered nine airfields in northwestern Germany and a tank factory at Plauen, 10 miles from the Czechoslovak border, and British planes struck a large oil refinery at Bremen.

Second U.S. Fleet Out

A second fleet of United States 8th Air Force bombers flew into Germany late this afternoon, in the first double-header mission by Americans since last summer.

Some rain handicapped flyers operating along the lines of German retreat from the Saar, but to the north it was bright and clear and the terrific attack shifted to the Ruhr, where General Eisenhower has made it plain the next Allied blow can be expected.

Troops Strafed

The continent-based 29th Tactical Air Force struck heavily at German troops and tanks moving from the Dortmund area toward the Rhine in front of the United States 9th and British 2d Armies. Four trains loaded with tanks and armored vehicles were spotted moving up and were attacked.

The Germans have stepped up the flow of troops toward their Rhine defenses in that sector in the last 24 hours.

RAF Lancasters also hit the rail viaduct across the Wesel River near Bremen with the new eleven-ton volcano bombs and the marshaling yards at Muenster, on the main line between Osnabrueck and the Ruhr.

Jet Plane Bases Hit

The American planes hit airfields located near Hopstein, Rheine, Achmer, Alhern, Hesepe, Handorf, Zwischenahn, Wittmundhaven and Marx, some of which are bases for jet-propelled Messerschmitts.

United States fighters downed at least nine Nazi jet planes near Plauen and destroyed 40 planes aground at the various airfields.

The German radio said one force of heavy bombers, presumably American, feinted toward Berlin, and then turned south to attack the already devastated city of Dresden near the Russian front.

The 15th Air Force bombers, cutting all main Munich-Vienna rail lines yesterday, concentrated today on Wels and Amstetten, 105 and 65 miles west of the Austrian capital, and wrecked 250 freight cars.

Oil Stores Burned

The Liberators from Italy bombed the jet-plane airbase at Neuberg, 50 miles north of Munich, and Flying Fortresses pounded the Kagran and Vosendorf natural oil refineries in the Vienna area, which produce gasoline and lubricating oils.

More than 70 freight cars also burned.

The Balkan Air Force smashed 38 freight cars, 5 tank cars and 6 locomotives in blows over Yugoslavia.

The daylight raids started only a few hours after a great armada of RAF night raiders had struck at enemy oil refineries and blasted Berlin for the 29th consecutive night.

Refinery Attacked

In bright moonlight last night RAF heavy bombers returned to the scene of one of yesterday's attacks and blasted the natural-oil refinery at Hemmingstadt in the Danish peninsula. Another large force bombed the large synthetic oil plant at Bohlen.

166 Planes Destroyed

RAF Mosquitos also bombed rail targets at Kassel and Bremen last night.

Eleven German aircraft were shot down in combat yesterday and 155 others were destroyed on the ground, compared with a loss of seventeen Allied bombers and eleven fighters.

The United States 8th Air Force lost four bombers in attacks on submarine yards and oil refineries in the Hamburg area and the RAF reported thirteen missing from eight separate operations involving almost 1,000 planes.

7,000 Planes Hit Reich; 2 U.S. Fleets Out

MAR 22 1945

London, March 21 (AP)—Allied air forces ripped Germany from dawn to dusk today with explosives from 7,000 warplanes, including 2,000 heavy bombers, which unleashed one of the greatest coordinated attacks of the war.

The four-engined bombers from Britain attacked the Reich in relays, while tactical aircraft from continental bases mauled German troops reeling from the American advance toward the Rhine.

Still another fleet of United States 15th Air Force bomber formations from Italy assaulted Nazi communications in Austria.

Roads, Bridges Lashed

In the smoke-blanketed Ruhr Valley, more and more the potential death trap threatened by

4th Fighter Group Sets Mark

LONDON, March 21 (AP)—The Fourth fighter group, commanded by Col. Everett Stewart of Abilene, Kan., became the highest scoring group in the United States Eighth Air Force today by destroying nine enemy planes parked on a field in northwestern Germany. The victories gave the Mustang group a total of 856 German planes destroyed, of which 520 were in air combat.

Nazis Claim Sinking 7 Ships

London, March 21 (AP)—The German high command declared in a broadcast communiqué today that U-boats had sunk seven ships, totaling 43,000 tons, two destroyers and one corvette in "hard fighting off the British Isles."

Allies Bomb Copenhagen

Stockholm, March 21 (AP)—Danish sources said some 30 Allied planes bombed Copenhagen at noon today. Reports from Malmoe said the headquarters of the Gestapo and the port area in the eastern section of the Danish capital were attacked.

The newspaper Expressen said the Shell House, which was headquarters of the Gestapo, was destroyed by the blasts from eight bombs.

The Free Danish Press Service said the Germans had been holding 25 Danes as hostages in the building since the RAF destroyed Gestapo headquarters at Aarhus.

The Nyboder district of Copenhagen, where the German Army has a headquarters, also was struck, these reports said. One bomber landed in the sea off Landskrona, Swedish sources said.

London Poles Dissolve Council

London, March 21 (A. P.).—President Wladyslaw Raczkiewicz of the London Polish Government dissolved the Polish National Council (Parliament in exile) tonight in order to form a "more representative body" including Poles from the homeland, France and the United States. The decree said the new Polish National Council would be summoned in the near future.

Churchill Says British Food Stocks Aid Europe's Needy

By ALEX SINGLETON

LONDON, March 21. — (AP) Prime Minister Churchill, asserting that Allied military operations were being rushed with the aim of preventing mass starvation in many parts of Europe next winter, said today that Britain's built-up food stocks were being reduced to aid liberated people on the continent.

He made his statement on Britain's food situation, he told the House of Commons, because there were "suggestions in some quarters in the United States" that Britain's stockpile consisted of 700,000,000 tons although it was "rather less" than 6,000,000 tons.

(English newspapers did not identify the source of the 700,000,000 tons report but the Washington Post said last Saturday "rumors about the British food stocks have floated up and down the government halls for several weeks and have variously placed Britain's warehoused supplies anywhere from 100 to 700 million tons.")

Aiding Liberated Countries

"These food stocks," Churchill declared, "would be reduced to 4,750,000 tons by the end of June as a result of aid to liberated countries.

Cheers greeted Churchill's explanation that Britain's food stocks had been built up "by foresight and self-denial over five years and under bombardment." Even as he spoke Britons expressed willingness to tighten their belts more if necessary.

Earlier Col. John Llewellin, minister of food, announced that a full dress debate on the Allied food situation would be held in Commons next week.

Llewellin explained that the government had decided it must continue to prohibit the export of food from Britain except on governmental account but he added that "all possible provisions" had been made for supplying the people of liberated areas.

This statement, however, brought a retort from Miss Eleanor Rathborne, independent, that there was a growing feeling of uneasiness that the British government was "behaving very selfishly" by refusing to permit individuals to send food from their own rations to people on the continent.

Cries of dissent greeted her assertion.

After a number of questions had been fired at Llewellin, Capt. John McEwen, a Conservative, asked Churchill if there was any security reason why the figure of food stocks under control of the ministry of food should not be disclosed.

Churchill, looking in the pink of condition, rose and said that although in the earlier years of the war there was a good reason not to disclose such a figure, "in view of the military position that objection no longer holds."

He listed Britain's present stocks at approximately 6,000,000 tons, explaining that it did not include retailers' stocks.

Cries of dissent thundered through the House when Miss Eleanor Rathborne, Independent, suggested that the British Government was "behaving very selfishly" by refusing to permit individuals to send food from their own rations to people on the Continent.

Churchill declared that military operations were being accelerated, for one reason, because large portions of Europe might be faced with varying degrees of famine during the coming winter.

U.S. Government Accused

Emanuel Shinwell, Laborite, asked whether the American Government and not United States public opinion might have been responsible for creating the false impression that Britain had 700,000,000 tons of food stocks. He asked also if the American Government had been kept informed minutely of the actual situation.

Churchill replied the American Government had "been continually informed," adding that "the statement which I quoted does not emanate from the American Government."

Only Six Million Tons On Hand, Churchill Says

London, March 21 (AP)—Prime Minister Churchill today denied the "suggestion in some quarters in the United States" that Britain had 700,000,000 tons of food stocks on hand and said the country had rather less than 6,000,000 tons.

This amount, he said, is in the process of being reduced by aid to the liberated countries and by the end of June will amount to only 4,750,000 tons.

"Built Up By Self-Denial"

"This latter figure," Churchill said, "is no more than is necessary to maintain the regular flow of distribution under present conditions."

The Prime Minister explained that Britain's food stocks had been "built up by foresight and self-denial over five years and under bombardment."

The House cheered.

Earlier, Col. John Llewellyn, Food Minister, told Commons the Government had decided that it would have to continue to prohibit export of food from Britain except on Government account.

He added that the Government had made "all possible provisions" for the people of liberated areas from the supplies in this country.

Accused Of Selfishness

MAR 22 1945

MAR 22 1945

"I think it is a mistake to get widespread misunderstanding on these matters, which are going to be settled in a friendly and considerate manner by both sides," the Prime Minister added.

Edgar Granville, Independent, wanted to know if the British Ministry of Information was responsible for the 700,000,000-ton figure of Britain's food stocks published in American newspapers.

Churchill said he did not know why "this slur" should be put on the MOI, adding: "I do not know why you should jump so hastily to such a melancholy conclusion."

The British press cautioned against letting the situation lead to bickering with the United States, and sounded a general cry that England must adopt a long-term policy providing for expansion of agriculture.

"False Statements" Protested

Some sections of the national press insisted that governments of liberated countries share some of the responsibility in seeing that their people are fed and in cracking down on black marketeers.

The laborite Daily Herald protested against "false statements spread by anti-British propagandists in the United States to the effect that this country has seven hundred million tons of foodstuffs hoarded up" and declared "it is deplorable that this subject of food supplies should become a medium of political mischief-making."

"Will Accept Needed Cuts"

The Times commented that "no Allied nation has been longer accustomed than Britain to food rations, and none is more ready to accept necessary cuts . . . provided the necessity for saving . . . is made plain by the facts."

The London News Chronicle asserted that German war prisoners were "better fed than British civilians."

Jap Property Put Under Army

London, March 21 (AP) — Japan announced imposition of military control over civilian property and installations today as the first of a series of steps designed to prepare the homeland to meet invasion.

"The war situation clearly indicates the Japanese homeland will become a battlefield," War Minister General Sugiyama said in broadcast from Tokyo.

Sugiyama said strong defenses had been built and widespread military preparations had been made for the purpose of frustrating American invasion plans.

To Extend Measures

"It has become necessary, however," he added, "to extend these measures considerably. Buildings, property and civilian installations will be placed under military control as a first step.

"Later, according to military needs, they will be moved or demolished and the civilian population will be required to form civil squads to collaborate with the army."

Legislation Drafted

Sugiyama added that legislation to cover these steps had been presented to the Diet.

The Tokyo radio also quoted a Munitions Ministry spokesman as saying that the evacuation of war industries from large cities is in full swing.

A considerable number of underground factories already have been built, he said.

Indian Viceroy Called To London

London, March 21 (AP) — The British Government today summoned Field Marshal Lord Wavell, Viceroy and Governor-General of India, to fly to London for urgent talks. War developments, as well as political problems in India, were understood to have prompted the summons.

Blaisdell In London

London, March 21 (AP)—Thomas C. Blaisdell, new head of the United States Mission of Economic Affairs in the American Embassy, has arrived to assume the post vacated by the resignation of Philip Reed, it was announced today.

Holy See Denies Rumors Of Prince Ruprecht Visit

London, March 21 (AP) — A French news agency dispatch from Vatican City today said the Holy See had denied rumors that Prince Ruprecht of Bavaria and a group of Germans had arrived there seeking mediation for establishing an independent Bavaria.

The report said the prince had been living in Italy for three years and was granted an audience by the Pope last November 2.

May Get No Meat, Germans Are Told

London, March 21 (AP)—The German people were told today that they would get less food and possibly no meat at all.

"Our plans have been wrecked because millions of Germans returned from border areas and have to be fed on shrunken space," said Joseph Stock, agricultural director of the Reich, in a domestic radio broadcast.

"Everybody is asking if we will succeed in bridging the gap until the next crop comes in. Decrees already have been issued which cut deeply into everybody's food rations. More measures will follow.

"So far we have been able to honor ration coupons. However, we shall have to go over to a vegetarian diet and push meat still further into the background. . . . Part of all stocks now stored must be turned in to tide us over to the next harvest. . . ."

Nazi Envoy Gives Peace Proposals To De Valera

London, Thursday, March 22 (AP). The London Daily Telegraph published today under a Paris dateline a dispatch saying that Eduard Hempel, German Minister to Eire, had approached President Eamon de Valera with peace proposals which were turned over to the United States Minister in Dublin.

The British Foreign Office said it had no knowledge of any such proposals and expressed belief it would have been informed promptly of any such development.

CONSIDER AN 'FBI' FOR WAR CRIMINALS

London, March 21 (A. P.)—Formation of an international counterpart of the U. S. Federal Bureau of Investigation to seek out and arrest war criminals and Nazis regarded as dangerous to the future peace was reported under consideration in responsible quarters today.

The organization, which probably would operate eventually from headquarters in Berlin, would be composed of expert investigators drawn from all Allied nations.

Eden On 'World's Last Chance'

Glasgow, Scotland, March 21 (AP). Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden told the Scottish Conservative party conference tonight that the San Francisco world security conference would be a new experiment in international practice which "may well prove to be the world's last chance."

The Foreign Secretary, who will head Britain's delegation to the Golden Gate meeting, hinted at some form of linkup among European powers in which Britain would play a hand. Declaring that Britain always had opposed domination of Europe by any one power, he added:

"We are determined that Europe shall only be united by the free will of its separate states. When that happy day comes, we shall, we hope, be in partnership with it."

Britain's Policy On Coalitions

Eden indicated that the whole British Empire might seek to speak with a single voice at the world conference. The purpose of the dominions' meeting in London early next month, he said, was so all would be "made fully aware of each other's point of view before we join the other United Nations at San Francisco."

Eden said, however, that it had never been Britain's policy to "create coalitions against great European powers unless they have pursued a policy of aggression."

Touching the problem of voting and veto powers by the big nations in the future world security organization, as agreed by the Big Three at Yalta, he commented: "I would not say we have found a final solution.

Rights Of Smaller Nations

"There can be no freedom in the world unless the smaller states can be joined with the great powers in protection of their common interests. Their right to have their own way of life must be respected. They must have their due share in making the great decisions. . . .

"But one fact stands out. Responsibility and power must be related if institutions are to survive the test of experience. But if this is true, it is also true it is the duty of all great powers to use their exceptional strength with restraint. It is excellent to have a giant's strength but it is tyrannous to use it like a giant."

HITLER PREPARES BERCHTESGADEN FOR FINISH FIGHT

By RICHARD KASISCHKE

LONDON, March 21—(AP) Swiss newspapers reaching London today said that Adolf Hitler has completed preparations for a last stand in the fortress of Berchtesgaden from which he hopes—after a twilight period following Allied victory—National Socialist Germany will emerge to dominate Europe.

According to these reports, Hitler is resigned to the inevitable junction of the Russian and British-American armies somewhere west of Berlin in the near future, and a late German broadcast tonight said the big Allied trans-Rhine offensive in the west was imminent, possibly timed in conjunction with a final Red army onslaught.

Adding much to what previously had been reported of Nazi plans for a last-ditch stronghold in the mountains of Bavaria, the Swiss newspapers in a series of articles said: "The fortress of Berchtesgaden is not a legend."

The articles said that Hitler has calculated that Allied victory will be followed after a short interval by conditions of tremendous chaos in which a witches' cauldron "of unrestrained appetites for power, of disappointed hopes of the masses, social unrest and cruel civil wars" will provide fertile soil for a revival of national socialism whose germ cell is to be kept alive at Berchtesgaden.

For this reason, the Swiss reports said, the fortress there "has a meaning far greater" than that of a German national stronghold or a command post of German guerrillas.

To Scorch Earth

As they retreat to this southern stronghold Heinrich Himmler's Waffen SS will scorch German earth hoping to load the Allies with occupational burdens, the reports said.

Describing Obersalzberg as the nerve center of the Berchtesgaden fortress region, the Swiss gave this description of the area:

"Into almost impassable mountain ridges have been incorporated a system of fortifications including machine-gun nests and flak positions. Shafts of former salt mines have been cleverly utilized in the 'berghof' aerie where Hitler has made his home and where he has installed his private chancellery which has gradually been transformed into a powerful fortress. Bomb victims from Germany have been refused entry into the area and comfortable hideouts have been built there for more prominent Nazi leaders along with commodious barracks for the SS.

"Huge stores of war material, ammunition and repair workshops have been installed in the caves of Koenigsee, in old salt mines of the district and hollowed out mountainsides and in deep valleys.

"Factories have been built for producing war material and aircraft factories constructed for producing fighters and jet planes. Fuel depots have been installed and synthetic fuel plants have been built into the mountainsides. Subterranean airfields and hangars are ready. Stocks of grain and potatoes have been accumulated."

Stockholm, March 21 (AP)—Swedish and other correspondents in Berlin have been told to prepare for departure for southern Germany near the Swiss border if they intend to continue work, it was reported today by a good source. This was taken as a possible indication that the Government, or at least the Foreign Office and press department, might evacuate Berlin.

Belgians To Use Foe In Mines

Brussels, March 21 (AP)—The Belgian Government today obtained from Allied authorities permission to use German prisoners in Belgian coal mines.

Jerusalem Mayoralty Question Is Settled

Jerusalem, March 21 (AP)—The critical question of the Jerusalem mayoralty was settled today when High Commissioner Lord Gort proposed a "system of triple rotation, the mayoralty to be filled in turn for each successive yearly period by Moslem, Jewish and Christian councillors."

Lord Gort appointed a Moslem councillor to the seat left vacant by the death August 27, 1943, of Mustafa Bey el Khalidi, and named two additional British councillors.

With these appointments the Jerusalem municipality council will consist of six Arabs, six Jews and two Britons.

FOUR FLEE REICH

Stockholm, March 21 (A. P.).—Four Germans, two of them women, fled by air from Germany yesterday and landed in southern Sweden, where they identified themselves as political refugees. Swedish authorities are holding them for an investigation. This was the third group of Germans who arrived in Sweden within a week, asserting they were "tired of the war."

Cleavage Reported Wide And Deep Between Nazis Army And People

The writer of the following article, for seventeen years Berlin correspondent of the Swedish newspaper, the Stockholms-Tidningen, has just returned to Stockholm.

By CHRISTER JAEDERLUND

Stockholm, March 21 (AP)—A train from Bydgoszcz, bearing local Nazi party leaders, recently arrived at a Berlin railway station while thousands of the capital's residents stood outside.

The smartly uniformed leaders, who were the first to leave Bydgoszcz, in northwestern Poland, as the Red Army approached, carried all their luggage and were met by a fleet of motor cars. Their situation contrasted sharply with the misery of other refugees.

The Berliners spoke their minds. The crowd grew so threatening the party leaders became nervous and ordered the guards to fire—into the air.

Paid With Their Lives

The affair became so widely known that the leaders had to pay with their lives. They had broken the one condition under which Hitler allows his Nazi comrades liberties at the expense of the population. They had been found out.

These Berlin people were no rabble. Their attitude represented the true feelings of the German nation and they had to be calmed.

Therefore Hitler ordered the execution of the Bydgoszcz party leaders as deserters. Party officials in Berlin, asked about the incident, were directed to say it was "merely shooting practice."

Germany has become a vast refugee camp and the refugee problem is one reason for the cleavage which has developed between the Nazi party, the army and the ordinary civilian.

No. 24 24093

First-Hand Example

I saw at first hand an example of this cleavage when I traveled on a refugee train from Sorau, at the Silesian front, to Berlin.

Our train was scheduled to start at 10.30 A.M., and the people of Sorau tried to storm aboard, but they were fended off by armed party men and policemen who formed a cordon around the station. Three hours later Russian tanks reached Sorau's outskirts and only then was the evacuation permitted to begin.

The next and last train steamed out at 3.30 P.M., during street fighting. This time the population was allowed to board it freely because the party bosses and police had vanished. The train was three quarters full of soldiers who were "evacuating" on their own.

Soldiers Plunder Towns

The soldiers and the women in the crowd argued heatedly. The women shouted "deserters." The soldiers said that they had no more ammunition.

I never have heard such bitter criticism of the party as when our group of refugees joined others from different sectors after we had changed trains.

"Naturally," said one, "the party men loaded their property into moving vans and drove off. We were forbidden to pack at all and at the last moment had to escape across the fields as best we could."

The refugees also were bitter against the German soldiers who, they all said, plundered German towns.

One woman said, "a soldier's job is to recapture lost towns not to plunder them."

No Home To Return To

A peasant said German soldiers thought he was too slow in leaving his own home and literally threw him out in order to be the first to loot it.

Most of the refugees were agreed that if the defeated German armies were swept into a state of disintegration then no one would be safe in his own home. Most German soldiers, after six years of army life, have no home to which to return.

All over Germany great caravans of refugees are inching along. Fifteen miles a day is about all they can cover. They trudge past the carcasses of horses and other animals which collapsed and died for lack of fodder.

Never Expected Red Gains

The whole course of the evacuation on the Eastern front, which was marked by panic and confusion, showed that Hitler was painfully surprised by the sudden collapse of the Vistula front. He had never expected the Red Army would reach the Oder at such speed.

He had sent such large forces to the west for the Ardennes offensive that the eastern defenses were seriously weakened. When the generals questioned whether it would be possible to hold the east front Hitler was reported to have replied: "It must because it must."

Hitler gave orders that no province was to be evacuated without his personal approval because he feared it would cause panic.

The ban prevented the proper preparatory organization. Refugees from the east traveling by train or caravan were counted in the millions, yet they constituted only a fraction of the masses which could have fled and taken their immediate necessities with them if the authorities had co-operated a little.

"Luggage On The Way"

For instance, evacuation of Lodz was not permitted until Russian tanks were sweeping past the city and then the retreating German motorized columns had to tow trucks and carts. Refugees said the Gauleiter of Lodz was in a particular hurry. He drove to a town west of the Oder on one of the first days and ordered a room, saying "my luggage is on the way."

Party officials were the only persons not compelled to await official evacuation orders. They tipped one another off on the Russian advance and packed their documents and furniture in closed vans.

Civilians had to await the official order and in large towns all they usually received was a notice abruptly informing them that an evacuation train would leave in two hours. The journey itself was an ordeal.

One After Another

It often happened that a mother with a child setting out with five bags found she was unable to manage and had to leave one bag after another behind. So many bags were left on the platforms and roads you could have equipped the Volkssturm, while inside Germany authorities were attempting to collect the last textile remnants.

Many caravans from the east were overtaken by the Russians and had to turn back. In other cases Russian vehicles gave the refugees free rides westward. The vehicles often were manned by German soldiers serving in the Russian Army or by German-speaking Russians.

The refugee caravans consisted mainly of women and children because all the men, even the oldest and half-grown kids, had to stay behind to guard the roads with machine guns and bazookas.

Poles Become Drivers

Poles were pressed into service as drivers. Unwilling to share the dangers of flight or to be carried off to Germany, they escaped at night during halts.

Most of the refugees from Silesia were transported in open coal cars. They usually traveled three days and nights in temperatures as low as thirteen degrees below zero.

At some railway stations people were trampled upon and children were crushed to death.

One incident typifies the chaos of the great retreat.

In a German town which the Red Army captured, they found the body of the former German Evangelical Church bishop of Oslo lying unburied in a cemetery.

The bishop died of heart disease while he and his wife were trying to board one of the refugee trains. No one stopped to help the 80-year-old widow. It was only after she had promised two old men a suit each from the bishop's wardrobe that they helped her carry the body to the cemetery where it had to be left unburied on the frozen earth.

REDS DENOUNCE TURKISH PACT

Moscow Says Treaty Needs Improvements.

Moscow, March 21 (A. P.).—Russia denounced her 1925 treaty of friendship and neutrality with Turkey last night and declared that serious improvements were needed in the pact.

"Admitting the value of the Soviet-Turkish treaty for the purpose of upholding friendly relations, the Soviet Union nevertheless considers it necessary to state that as a result of deep changes occurring, especially during the second world war, this treaty does not correspond any longer with the new situation and it is necessary to make serious improvements," said an announcement from the Russian Commissariat of Foreign Affairs. The twenty-year pact would have been automatically renewed on November 7 this year unless denounced six months beforehand.

An Izvestia editorial said that "in the present war there have been individual moments when relations between the Soviet Union and Turkey could desirably have been better." The newspaper made no reference to Turkey's recent declaration of war on the Axis.

The previous diplomatic rupture between Turkey and Germany in 1944 was scoffed at by Russian newspapers at the time. They held that it was a disguise behind which close connections were maintained between Ankara and Berlin.

Attention on Jap Treaty.

London, March 21 (A. P.).—Russia's proclaimed desire of overhauling her treaty of friendship and neutrality with Turkey to meet new world conditions drew attention anew today to the fact that her neutrality pact with Japan will be renewed automatically unless denounced by either country before April 25. The Moscow radio said last night that Russia had informed Turkey that "owing to the profound changes which have taken place, especially during the second world war," the treaty between the two nations "no longer corresponds to the new situation."

This statement caused some observers to wonder if Russia might be disposed to reconsider her treaty with Japan in the light of changes which have occurred since that pact was signed in April, 1941. There have been suggestions that the Big Three had the deadline for denunciation of the treaty in mind when they set the date for the San Francisco world security conference for April 25.

TURK ALLIANCE HELD RUSS AIM

Full Use Of Dardanelles Sought, Britain Thinks

PARIS

London, March 21 (AP)—Soviet dispatches strongly implied tonight that Russia was seeking a full-scale alliance with Turkey in place of the 1925 treaty of friendship and there was speculation in London that Russia hopes to gain unrestricted use of the Dardanelles and Bosphorus Straits.

Bottled up in the Black Sea, Russia long has wanted a free outlet to the Mediterranean instead of the restricted use allowed by the Montreux convention under which she was prevented from getting supplies by this route during the present war.

1925 Pact Outmoded

The Soviet information bureau announced last night that Russia had notified Turkey she desired to overhaul their 1925 treaty because it had become outdated, and it was believed here that the "serious improvements" she wants in the pact might resemble the understandings already reached with Czechoslovakia, Poland, Britain and France.

The Soviet Government newspaper Izvestia made plain that Russia considers herself to have outgrown the relationship of the Turkish treaty.

There were indications in London that the subject of the Dardanelles would be raised at the forthcoming San Francisco conference, where six of the nine signatories of the Montreaux convention will be represented. Some quarters predicted that Russia as well as Britain and the United States would emphasize that the convention needed to be modified.

Barred Supplies From Russia

Under the convention's terms so long as Turkey, made guardian of the Dardanelles in 1936, is not involved in a war, ships of belligerents cannot pass through the straits. Until recently Britain and the United States were unable to send supplies to Russia via this short route.

Japan, Bulgaria and Romania, all signatories of the convention, lined up in the present war against the Allies — another possible reason for effecting a new convention. The other signatories included Britain, Russia, France, Greece, Turkey and Yugoslavia.

It seemed, perhaps, significant that on August 10, 1941, both the British and Russian Ambassadors handed identical notes to the Turkish Government informing the Turks that they had no aggressive intentions or claims on the straits. They promised full aid to Turkey if she were attacked by a European power.

Washington Surprised By Soviet Treaty Move

Washington, March 21 (AP)—Russia's denunciation of her non-aggression treaty with Turkey caught diplomatic officials off base and without forewarning today.

There was immediate speculation, however, that the ultimate Soviet objective may be to bring Turkey into the Russian political orbit. Throughout the war Turkey has been extremely sensitive about relations with Russia but has regarded herself as a British ally.

The Russo-Turkish treaty, which Moscow denounced in order to prevent its being automatically renewed next November, is largely negative. In it the Soviet Union and Turkey promised each other that in case either one became involved in war with a third party the other would remain neutral. They also promised not to join in unfriendly alliances against each other.

It may be that in line with its expanding power, Russia wants a treaty with more positive commitments.

Security Not Built On Hope

Moscow, March 21 (AP)—The magazine War and the Working Class said today treaties have been made between Russia and other countries because they "have suffered too much in this war to build their security on hope alone," and asserted these pacts supported rather than contradicted the aims of a future international organization.

Has Analogous Treaties

The article discussed what were said to be French fears that proposed regulations for the future international security council were contradictory to terms of the French-Soviet treaty for mutual assistance against German aggression.

The articles pointed out that the Soviet Union had analogous treaties with Britain and Czechoslovakia in effect when the Dumbarton Oaks conference was held and delegates there found nothing contradictory between these treaties and the conference's decisions.

"If the Soviet Union, France, England and Czechoslovakia can undertake special obligations in the struggle against aggression independently of the international security organization, they must be considered as a special aid to the aims of that organization," the article said.

Value Bilateral Pacts

"The peoples of the Soviet Union, Britain, France and Czechoslovakia have suffered too much in this war to build their security on hope alone. Experience has proved that individual obligations for allied help are carried out quicker and to a greater degree than collective agreements.

"That is why countries close to the threat of German aggression value bilateral pacts and would hardly agree to submit the effectiveness of these pacts to the dicisions of an international organization which still has to prove itself.

"In view of the foregoing we believe the fears of the French Government that the regulations of the future international organization would halt the machinery of the Soviet-French treaty are unfounded. If necessary, a resolution can be offered to the San Francisco conference recognizing previously signed bilateral treaties as agreeing with the general line of policy of the future organization."

Russia's View on Colonies

Magazine Says "Enslavement of Millions" Bars Progress

MOSCOW, March 21 (AP).—The Soviet periodical "War and the Working Class" declared today that "the colonial enslavement of millions is a dangerous obstacle on the path of social progress."

Pointing out that the Atlantic Charter's interpretation varied among Allied powers, the magazine said German-Japanese agents had failed to "incite colonial peoples against principal powers in the democratic camp," but declared that on the colonial question Americans were seeking "spheres of unhindered investment for American capital and free markets for American goods," while the British are resisting this move in India.

RUSSIAN MAGAZINE SCORES U. S. PAPERS

MOSCOW, March 21 (AP)—The magazine War and the Working Class exhorted American newspapers today to "give true and complete information about our country," and accused a section of the American press of "falsifying" reports about Russia during the last quarter century.

"The Soviet people are surprised at many fantastic statements of Soviet life and ways appearing in the foreign press," an unsigned article said. "For a quarter century a considerable part of the American press has poorly informed the American public and falsified information about the Soviet press. A certain part of the American press continues until the present to act in this manner."

The magazine cited a recent article by Prof. Warren B. Walsh of Syracuse University, in Princeton University's Public Opinion Quarterly that said that public opinion polls indicated that only one American in ten was even reasonably well informed about Russia. War and the Working Class said that the American press could do a great service by giving truthful and full information about Russia, adding: "The enlightenment of America would increase and this would undoubtedly be helpful to the peoples of both countries."

BURMA JAPANESE IN TIGHTER POCKET

Allies Increase the Pressure on 30,000 Between Meiktila and Mandalay

GROVER

CALCUTTA, India, March 21 (AP)—Allied ground troops increased their pressure on 30,000 Japanese squeezed in the seventy-five-mile-deep pocket between Mandalay and Meiktila today as fighter planes slashed at the enemy's major escape route from central Burma to Thailand.

Operating out of newly won Mandalay, British infantrymen mopped up in the area south of the city, pushing the enemy toward Meiktila, which is held by other British forces. The fall of Meiktila several weeks ago cut Japanese escape routes to the south, leaving the enemy the choice of retreating eastward over rugged mountains or fighting to the finish.

In low-level strafing attacks, RAF and American pilots shot up Japanese troops and transport in central Burma and attacked Chiengmai, in north central Thailand, terminus of the Bangkok rail line, almost the sole exit for Japanese fleeing before the Allied drive. Three bridges in central Burma were blown up.

North and northeast of Mandalay British and Chinese forces were clearing out the last pockets of Japanese resistance north of the old Burma Road. British Thirty-sixth Division troops who took Magok, sixty-five miles northeast of Mandalay, consolidated their positions, while to the east Chinese troops mopped up in the Hsipaw-Namhsin area.

ting the southern escape routes for some 30,000 Japanese troops in central Burma and leaving the invaders only minor mountain trails eastward into Thailand.

[The London radio said in a broadcast heard by CBS that British troops had driven as far as 20 miles south of Mandalay.]

Fort Dufferin Falls

Fort Dufferin, the last Japanese stronghold in Mandalay, fell yesterday to the British after 500 fanatical enemy defenders escaped through Allied siege lines at night.

British and Burmese civilian hostages were left behind by the Japanese. The hostages sent a lone messenger carrying a Union Jack to Allied headquarters and notified the British the enemy had fled.

Casualties Among Internees

The civilian internees reported they suffered numerous casualties during the Allied aerial and artillery bombardments of the port during the weeks the Japanese held out. They said the Japanese often forced them to stand out in the open during the attacks.

The final aerial assault on the fort before the enemy fled was observed by Col. H. A. Schmid, Pasadena, Cal., attached to the staff of the Eastern Air Command.

Northeast of Mandalay, Chinese troops cleared snipers and stragglers from the Hsipaw-Namhsin area and the British 36th Division consolidated their hold on newly recaptured Mogok. The fall of Mogok virtually ends Japanese resistance north of the Burma road.

British Advance From Fallen Mandalay

Calcutta, March 21 (AP)—British troops struck out from newly won Mandalay today to mop up Japanese forces squeezed in the area between the ancient city and Meiktila, 75 miles to the south.

HOUSE TO HOUSE FIGHTING IN TAYU

MOOSA

CHUNGKING, March 21—(AP) House to house fighting between attacking Chinese troops and the Japanese garrison in the walled town of Tayu, in southern Kiangsi province, was reported by the High command tonight.

The Chinese smashed through Tayu's north gate.

Fifty miles northeast of Tayu, other Chinese gained ground in the outskirts of Kanhsien, former site of a U. S. air base, while another force in heavy fighting shoved toward Nankang, on the road between Tayu and Kanhsien.

In Hunan province reinforced Chinese troops repelled two Japanese columns which struck out from Ichang near the Kwangtung border. The High command said the Chinese halted the enemy columns six miles northwest of Ichang and forced them to retreat after a bitter clash in which 120 Japanese were killed.

An American communique said fighter planes of the 14th air force strafed and bombed enemy troop columns in the Black river area west of Hanoi, in French Indo-China, where French guerrillas are battling the Japanese.

CHUNGKING, China, March 21 (AP)—An American communiqué said today that fighter planes of the Fourteenth Air Force strafed and bombed enemy troop columns in the Black River area west of Hanoi, in French Indo-China, where French guerrillas are battling the Japanese.

Chinese Gaining In Two Cities

Chungking, March 21 (A. P.).—Chinese troops have broken through the north gate of the walled southern Kiangsi province town of Tayu, in the heart of China's wolfram mining district, and are battling from house to house within the stronghold. Other Chinese attacking Kanhsien were reported gaining in the southeastern outskirts of that former United States air base.

ILOILO TAKEN BY AMERICANS, PORT INTACT

Guerrilla Aid Given Credit As Troops Spread Over Coastal Plain

HUTCHESON

Planes from Two Join in bombing of Chichi Jima.....Page 6

Manila, Thursday, March 22 (AP). Iloilo, 75 per cent devastated by Japanese torches but its good harbor intact, fell to Maj. Gen. Rapp Brush's 40th Infantry Division Tuesday, two days after the invasion of Panay Island, headquarters announced today.

The captured Iloilo airdrome, from which planes can patrol a vast area of the central Philippines, was rapidly being put into condition as the doughboys seized the heart of Iloilo, vital port city on Panay's southeast coast.

Clean Up Jap Remnants

With strong guerrilla aid, the Yanks were spreading out over the coastal plain northwest of the city, seizing more villages and cleaning up scattered Japanese remnants.

Capture of Iloilo was announced by Gen. Douglas MacArthur, who said the Japanese garrison—the greatest concentration of enemy troops on the island—had been routed.

The Japanese resorted to fire and electrically controlled mines to destroy nearly three quarters of the city.

The Yanks captured a second airfield, Santa Barbara airdrome, 8 miles inland from the provincial capital. One pocket of 200 to 300 resisting Japanese was broken up at near-by Pavia.

MacArthur paid tribute to the guerrillas who had virtually cleared the interior and coastal sectors of Panay before the American invasion, and announced the award of the Distinguished Service Cross to their leader, Col. Macario Peralta, Jr. The medal was presented by Lt. Gen. Robert Eichelberger, commander of the Eighth Army, after the capture of Iloilo.

Except for minor pockets of Japanese, "all organized resistance on Panay has been crushed," MacArthur said.

Approximately three-fourths of Iloilo, a city of 90,000 population, was destroyed by the Japanese before the Yanks entered from the west, but the important dock and harbor area was taken intact.

Iloilo's big airdrome, one of the prime objectives of the invasion, was seized on Monday. Japanese aircraft from this airdrome had harassed American shipping through the central Philippines to Manila.

On Luzon, the 33rd Infantry division moving north along the west coast reached the big port of San Fernando, which guerrillas captured Monday after wiping out the Japanese garrison.

Other elements of the 33rd was moving east from captured Bauang toward Baguio, summer capital of the Philippines and supposed Japanese military headquarters.

East of Manila, MacArthur announced the collapse of the entire Antipolo-Wawa line, popularly called the Shimbu line, with the capture of 256 vehicles, largely armored machines, 35 field artillery and antiaircraft guns, 12 mortars, 34 rocket launchers and great quantities of other materiel.

Cavite province, MacArthur reported, now has been cleared of Japanese except for scattered remnants "now in flight." This province forms the southern jaw of Manila Bay.

YANKS ON PANAY FIGHT IN ILOILO

City Burns—Other Forces Gain in Philippines.

HUTCHESON

Manila, March 21 (A. P.).—American troops fought their way into Iloilo, capital of Panay, as they expanded their hold today on that central Philippine island. Gen. MacArthur, announcing that troops had reached the outskirts of the city, reported heavy fires were burning.

The Americans captured the Iloilo airdrome and Carpenter's Bridge over the Iloilo River at the eastern approach to the capital. Another Fortieth Division column drove twenty-five miles northward from Sunday's invasion beachhead at Tigbauan, to overrun the coastal plain inland from Iloilo and join forces with strong guerrilla units. Panay is the twenty-fifth Philippine island invaded in the liberation campaign.

Other guerrillas, on northern Luzon Island, wiped out the Jap garrison at San Fernando and seized that Lingayen Gulf port. San Fernando is the most important port north of Manila and northern terminus of the Manila railroad. Troops of the Thirty-third Division drove ten miles up the gulf coast from Aringay to capture Bauang, six miles south of San Fernando.

Flyers Lash Enemy.

One of the heaviest air strikes against the Japs in northern Luzon was made by more than 100 Marine dive bombers and Fifth Air Force Mitchells. They hit positions in the Cagayan Valley and near Vigan on the west coast.

In other Luzon sectors, Sixth and Forty-third Division doughboys pressed deeper into Jap secondary lines in the Sierra Madre, east of Manila. In southern Luzon, the Eleventh Airborn Division captured San Jose Hill and the western slopes of Mount Macolod, southeast of Lake Taal.

In southwestern Mindano Island, the Forty-first Division repulsed a Jap counter-attack near San Roque and expanded their positions in that area. Other Forty-first Division troops occupied Isabela town and brought all of Basilan Island, just south of Mindanao, under their control.

Heavy bombers struck Formosa. Others on the South China Sea blockade patrol destroyed or damaged three small freighters and a 10,000-ton oil tanker.

CARRIER PLANES HIT 17 JAP SHIPS

Navy Fulfills Promise of Aggressive Attacks on Enemy.

WATE

U. S. PACIFIC FLEET HEADQUARTERS, Guam, Thursday, March 22 — (AP) The U. S. Fifth fleet's strike with 1,000 or more planes into the Japan inland sea Sunday and Monday, crippling 15 to 17 enemy warships, fulfilled almost to the hilt the American Navy's promise of aggression against the Nippon homeland.

With a Tokyo radio admission that Vice Adm. Marc A. Mitscher unleashed his task force planes only 60 miles off Japan, about all that remains to complete the American promise is direct naval bombardment of Japan's home coast.

Fliers of the task force, part of the Fifth fleet commanded by Adm. R. A. Spruance, in two days of scouring the 240-mile long inland sea of southern Japan hit the enemy fleet in its home bases, Fleet Adm. Chester W. Nimitz said.

The Yank airmen also destroyed 475 enemy planes and damaged more than 100, sank six freighters and destroyed shore arsenals, shops and oil storage facilities.

None of the American warships was lost, but one was seriously damaged and others received minor damage by enemy air attacks, Nimitz said. All damaged ships made port under their own power. Yank aircraft losses were "extremely light."

Foolish Jap Claims

Tokyo radio broadcast a Japanese Imperial headquarters claim that Nipponese were in pursuit of the U. S. force "fleeing southward" and had sunk eight American warships and damaged at least two others in three days.

The American thrusts into Japan's inland seas were in line with Adm. William F. Halsey's promise that "we're going to have to dig out" Japanese navy units.

Halsey commanded the U. S. Third fleet in the battles of the Philippine sea and Leyte gulf last fall. In the Leyte gulf battle 24 Japanese warships were sunk, 13 probably sunk and 21 damaged.

In the battle of Leyte gulf one of the Japanese warships sunk was the Musashi. This 45,000-ton vessel, with its sister ship, the Yamato, were the two most powerful battleships in Nippon's navy, Nimitz said.

The Yamato, damaged in the Leyte gulf action, was one of the warships crippled in the inland sea attacks Monday, said Hamilton Faron, Associated Press correspondent with the fleet, who interviewed the airmen.

The United States Pacific fleet "is strong enough to go to any point in the Pacific where it wants to go," Nimitz said recently after Mitscher's task force had sailed close enough to Japan to send its fliers in two attacks on Tokyo.

After the Tokyo raids in February, in which the navy fliers destroyed 667 Nipponese planes and probably destroyed 150 more, Mitscher said "naval strategists agree that the Japanese fleet now could not overwhelm even a fraction of our ever growing fleet."

The aggressive carrier task force commander said the Japanese fleet's "only sanctuary now is the inland seas of the Empire."

And that is where he went after the enemy's ships Sunday and Monday.

aircraft carriers, were crippled Monday by more than 1,000 American carrier planes which hunted down the bulk of the enemy home fleet hiding in Nippon's 240-mile-long inland sea.

The audacious raiders from Vice Admiral Marc A. Mitscher's world's largest task force, penetrating a hitherto untouched area that Japan considered safe for her navy, also destroyed 475 enemy planes Sunday and Monday and damaged well over 100 more.

Not one American warship was sunk, although one was damaged seriously and others sustained minor blows as the Japanese home-based air force sent wave on wave against Mitscher's armada. All ships moved away under their own power.

Light Plane Losses

Combat losses of the carrier planes "were extremely light."

These first fragmentary accounts of the most daring naval action of the Pacific war were pieced together today from a preliminary report of Admiral Raymond A. Spruance of the United States 5th Fleet and first-hand accounts of pilots given to Associated Press Correspondent Hamilton W. Faron with Mitscher's task force.

The Flyers, who swept over Japan's major naval bases and scores of air bases assigned to defend them, told Faron their bombs and rockets smashed into:

A battleship of the Yamato class (the 45,000-ton Musashi was sunk last October in the battle of Leyte Gulf in the Philippines and her sister ship, the Yamato, was damaged. They were Japan's two biggest battleships).

Converted Carrier

A battleship converted into a big aircraft carrier.

Three large aircraft carriers.

Four small, escort-type carriers.

A heavy cruiser.

A light cruiser.

Four destroyers.

A destroyer escort.

A submarine.

In addition, six small surface craft, including one oiler, were sunk. Seven others, including two oilers and four large cargo ships, probably were sunk.

[Faron's at-the-scene figures were a bit more definite than those in the Navy communiqué listing 15 to 17 enemy warships damaged, six "small freighters" sunk and seven "freighters" damaged, although the totals coincided.]

The carrier planes hit airfields, attacked airplane factories, destroyed plane hangars, arsenals, oil stores and workshops.

The Japanese warships, identified by Admiral Chester W. Nimitz as "the principal units of the Japanese fleet" scurried for shelter as the raiders came in.

Mitscher did just what Admiral William F. Halsey said would have to be done to the Japanese fleet. He went in after it.

IWO BOMBERS POUND CHICHI

Raids On Kuriles, Yap And Wake Also Listed

WAITE

Guam, Thursday, March 22 (AP)—Army Liberators joined Mustang fighters now based on Iwo Jima to hammer Chichi Jima in the Bonin Islands Tuesday and Wednesday, Fleet Admiral Chester W. Nimitz announced today.

Publication of a message to Nimitz from Maj. Gen. Willis Hale, commander of Army Air Forces in the Pacific Ocean areas, revealed for the first time yesterday that P-51's—longest range escort fighters and fighter bombers—have been in operation from Iwo for some time.

Barracks Radio Station Hit

The Mustangs were used as dive bombers in an attack on barracks, a radio station and other installations on Chichi Jima yesterday. Liberators pounded an airfield on Chichi the day before.

The Kuriles, Yap and Wake islands also were attacked in raids extending from March 19 through March 21.

Navy search Venturas and army Mitchells and Liberators hit Paramushiro in the Kuriles Monday, striking at buildings and installations.

Marine fighters, dive bombers and torpedo planes sent rockets and bombs into piers and buildings on Yap Wednesday.

Navy search Privateers touched off a big explosion in an attack Tuesday on Wake Island.

Carrier Raid Fulfills Pledge

Meanwhile, it was pointed out here that the 5th Fleet's strike with 1,000 or more planes into the Japan inland sea Sunday and Monday, crippling fifteen to seventeen enemy warships, fulfilled almost to the hilt the American Navy's promise of aggression against the Japanese homeland.

With a Tokyo radio admission that Vice Admiral Marc A. Mitscher unleashed his task-force planes only 60 miles off Japan, about all that remains to complete the American promise is direct naval bombardment of Japan's home coast.

Destroyed 475 Planes

Flyers of the task force, part of the 5th Fleet commanded by Admiral R. A. Spruance, in two days of scouring the 240-mile-long Inland Sea of southern Japan hit the enemy fleet in its home bases, Fleet Admiral Chester W. Nimitz said.

The Yank airmen also destroyed 475 enemy planes and damaged more than 100, sank six freighters and destroyed shore arsenals, shops and oil-storage facilities.

None of the American warships was lost, but one was seriously damaged and others received minor damage by enemy air attacks, Nimitz said. All damaged ships made port under their own power. Yank aircraft losses were "extremely light."

PACIFIC FLEET HEADQUARTERS, Guam, March 22 (Thursday) (AP).—The Bonins, the Kuriles, Wake and Yap Islands were raided by American planes in a series of attacks extending from March 19 through March 21, a Navy communique announced today.

Liberators pounded an airfield on Chichi Jima in the Bonin Islands, north of Iwo, Tuesday. The following day Mustang fighters, newly based on Iwo, went after barracks and radio installations on Chichi.

Marine fighters, dive-bombers and torpedo planes sent rockets and bombs into piers and buildings on Yap, in the western Carolines, Wednesday.

Baltimore Flyer Based On Iwo Jima

LINDSEY

Iwo Jima, March 21 (AP) — Two Army fighter squadrons — one of P-51's and the other of Black Widow night fighters—are today operating from Iwo Island's Motoyama airfield No. 1, the closest United States air base to Japan's homeland.

Pilots said that this is the first time the Mustangs are being used in Pacific combat.

Hardly had the last P-51 taxied off the runway when the squadron of Black Widows landed. Among the Black Widow pilots was Lieut. Charles H. Rouse, of Baltimore.

Both groups came in as finishing touches were being put on the airstrip which was wrested from the Japanese at the outset of the bloody battle of Iwo Jima.

For 1 Hour Iwo Was Happiest Spot on Earth

Iwo Jima, March 18 (Delayed) (A. P.).—For about one hour tonight Iwo Jima was about the happiest spot on earth. Jubiliation was uproarious as machine-guns, anti-aircraft guns, carbines, rifles and pistols blasted away in celebration of a report that the war in Europe was over and that Germany had surrendered.

Then came the dismal truth. It was all a mistake. A "walkie-talkie" Army radio operator, bored in his solitary foxhole, had decided to play radio announcer with a buddy a couple of holes away. Close by, inside a truck, another operator was typing military messages from San Francisco. Somehow the frequencies became tangled. From the official receiving set in the truck came the electrifying message: "Germany has surrendered unconditionally."

The operator got the message to his headquarters, and in ten minutes all the island and the ships offshore had the word.

Then the foxhole announcer became worried. He went to his commanding officer with a report that deserves to be added to the archives of understatements.

He said: "Sir, I think I've done something wrong."

Chilean Ship Fires Blamed On Axis

Santiago, Chile, March 21 (AP)—Chilean newspapers said today Axis sabotage was responsible for fires which recently have broken out aboard three Chilean ships, taking possibly 101 lives.

The newspaper Hora referred to the fire yesterday which sank the nitrates-loaded passenger-cargo ship Mapocho after she had left the port of Iquique, to another aboard the navy training ship Lautaro in which nineteen persons died, and to another blaze discovered aboard the merchant ship Naguilan.

Center Of Jap Activity

Iquique long has been a center of Japanese activity. Chile recently declared a state of belligerency with Japan.

Sixty-four persons have been rescued from the Mapocho, 19 bodies recovered and 63 are listed as missing.

TO VISIT ROOSEVELTS

OTTAWA, March 21 — (AP) The Governor General and Princess Alice left today for Washington, where they will be the guests of President and Mrs. Roosevelt at the White House.

Montreal-London Air Mark Set

MONTREAL, March 21 (AP) — A Royal Air Force Transport Command Liberator flying a special mission recently accomplished the fastest non-stop flight between Montreal and London, covering the 3,346 statute miles in 13 hours 34 minutes, it was announced today. The previous record was 14 hours. The Liberator was piloted by Capt. George P. Evans of Montreal and Brooklyn, N. Y.

ESTABLISH RELATIONS

GUATEMALA CITY, March 21—(AP) The Guatemalan Assembly voted 42 to 16 today for establishing relations with Russia.

ATHLONE DUE IN U.S. TODAY

Military Honors For Canada's Governor General In Capital

Washington, March 21 (AP)—The Earl of Athlone, Governor General of Canada, and his wife, Princess Alice, will be greeted with military honors when they arrive at the White House tomorrow afternoon.

They will come by special train from Canada for a visit of several days with the President and Mrs. Roosevelt. After ceremonies on the White House lawn they will meet members of the Cabinet and other high American officials.

Those In Athlone Party

A number of social engagements have been arranged, including a dinner which the President and Mrs. Roosevelt will give Friday evening.

Accompanying the Governor General and Princess Alice will be Miss Vera Grenfell, lady in waiting; Sir Shuldham Redfern, secretary to the Governor General; Col. Willis O'Connor, principal aide de camp, and Major Mark Clayton, military aide.

Program For Visit

The State Department issued a program for the visit scheduling these main events:

Thursday, March 22, the party will arrive at Union Station at 4.15 P.M., be formally received and escorted to the White House where at 4.30 a reception committee will greet the guests. The White House arranged events for the evening.

Friday—The official party will visit Mount Vernon at 10.30 A.M., returning in time for lunch at the Canadian Embassy. At 3.30 P.M. there will be a visit to the National Gallery of Art and at 8 P.M. the President and Mrs. Roosevelt will give a dinner in honor of the Governor General and Princess Alice.

Saturday—the Acting Secretary of State will entertain the visitors with a luncheon at Blair House at 1 P.M. and at 3.50 P.M. the party will leave for Canada.

BANKERS CALL BRETTON WOODS PLAN COSTLY

Burgess Tells House Group a Stabilization Fund Is Not Needed.

Washington, March 21 (A. P.).—The American Bankers Association told Congress today: "We believe we can attain the objectives of Bretton Woods at half the cost." The association added that under the agreements, as now drawn, Uncle Sam might be branded by the world as "Uncle Shylock."

In testimony prepared for the House Banking Committee, W. Randolph Burgess, president of the association, said his organization "agrees with the purposes" of Bretton Woods, likes the idea of an international bank, but turns thumbs down on creation of a separate international currency stabilization fund.

Mr. Burgess was the first witness to oppose the agreements drawn at a conference of forty four nations at Bretton Woods, N. H., last summer. They propose a $9,100,000,000 world bank for reconstruction and development, and a $8,800,000,000 stablization fund. Total United States liability would approximate $6,000,000,000.

Opposes Method.

"The differences of opinion concerning the Bretton Woods proposals arise with respect to methods and not to objectives," Mr. Burgess said. "We agree with the objectives, but we think that the fund should not be created. In its place we favor the establishment of a department of the bank to perform the stabilization function now assigned to the fund."

Turning to the money involved, he said, "We think of Uncle Sam as rich as Croesus but lately he has been growing poorer and other countries richer." He described many countries as having benefited "from our huge war expenditures," and expressed the opinion the money involved could be halved.

Mr. Burgess contended that American delegates to Bretton Woods were under instructions from the President, "which limited the scope of their deliberations."

"We are told," he said, that the American people shoud now take (the agreements) as they are—without change—otherwise new international conferences must be called—which might fail. This is in marked contrast to the procedure with respect to the Dumbarton Oaks proposals, where a conference of technical experts was followed not only by widespread public discussion but also by a second conference to be held at San Francisco."

Expressing the opinion that A. B. A. suggestions—"all in the interest of simplification"—would not necessarily require another conference to draw up new agreements, Mr. Burgess asked: "Why should we dread another conference?"

The A. B. A. previously had announced its stand on the fund in a statement describing it as novel and contrary to accepted credit principles.

COLLYER NAMED NEW RUBBER CZAR

WASHINGTON, March 21—(AP) Confronted with another rubber crisis, the government today brought in John L. Collyer, rubber manufacturer, and gave him broad powers to solve it.

Collyer, president of the B. F.

MAR 22 1945

Goodrich Co., became the first "rubber czar" since William Jeffers left the Washington scene in September 1943 after "bulling through" priorities necessary to get the construction of synthetic plants underway.

The present crisis, unlike the one Jeffers was drafted to solve, primarily does not involve a shortage of rubber or plants to make it. Rather, Collyer's first major task is to bring production of other materials needed in the manufacture of rubber products into balance with synthetic production and manufacturing capacity.

The most critical lack at present is carbon black, with shortages also existing or anticipated in rayon cord, cotton cord and fabrics, natural rubber and bead wire — all needed in greater quantities to meet military demands for more tires and other rubber products.

Announcing Collyer's appointment at a news conference today, chairman J. A. Krug of the War Production board said it had the full support of President Roosevelt and James F. Byrnes, director of War Mobilization.

Collyer is scheduled to remain for three months. To get the job done in that time, he will report directly to Krug, and will act with his full authority.

This, officials explained, will enable Collyer to tell various government agencies, including WPB divisions, just what he needs and how soon without going through "channels," also known as red tape.

Krug described the rubber program as "more critical than at any time since Pearl Harbor." Collyer seconded this view.

Italy Wants To Fight Japs

Washington, March 21 (AP)—Italy is seeking Big Three permission to declare war on Japan, with this country and Russia reportedly in favor of such a move.

Now classed as a "cobelligerent" but still under an Allied commission, Italy has a twofold objective:

1. To establish a long-range basis for lend-lease assistance.
2. To obtain some kind of representation at the San Francisco Security Conference next month.

Italy now is at war with Germany, but when that enemy falls, Italian claims to lend-lease aid will vanish unless she also is participating actively in the war against Japan.

British approval for a war declaration has not been forthcoming.

Each Nation At Frisco To Have One Vote

Washington, March 21 (AP)—The State Department said today that each of the nations at the San Francisco conference on world security would have one vote.

The question was asked of Acting Secretary Grew at a news conference and later a department spokesman supplied that answer. The implication was that it had been agreed upon by the four sponsoring powers.

The department said it was unable to give any information at this time on whether decisions of the conference would be made by simple majority vote or otherwise.

Romolo Proud Of Son Who Killed Seven Japs

Washington, March 21 (AP)—Carlos P. Romulo, Jr., 19, a second lieutenant in the Philippine guerillas, killed seven Japanese in island battles.

His father, the United States resident commissioner, exhibited him proudly at a news conference today and told of his son's war record.

"The boy," said Romulo, explaining his return to this country, "is way behind in his school work."

Mountbatten Commends U.S. Army Railroaders

Washington, March 21 (AP)—United States Army railroaders in India and Burma have been commended by Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten for their "notable part" in beating back the Japanese.

The War Department disclosed today that Mountbatten, supreme Allied commander in southeast Asia, praised the troops in a letter to Lieut. Gen. Daniel I. Sultan, commander of United States forces in the India-Burma theater.

Western Union Will Test Sending Messages by Radio

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 21—The Western Union Telegraph Company was authorized by the Federal Communications Commission today to begin experiments in the radio transmission of messages.

The tests, which the commission said would be conducted with a view toward eventual use of radio in lieu of wire facilities for certain types of traffic, will be made first between Philadelphia and New York.

The system will include a chain of radio relay stations extending from Camden, through Bordentown and New Brunswick, N. J., to New York.

The proposed wave lengths will be high in the radio spectrum, extending from 2,000,000 kilocycles to 11,372,000 kilocycles.

The FCC said that the company planned to use a new system of modulation developed by the Radio Corporation of America, which is expected to provide a total of thirty-two communication circuits for each transmitter.

Sub Barbel Lost

MAR 22 1945

Washington, March 21 (AP)—The submarine Barbel is overdue from patrol and presumed lost with its officers and crew, normally about 65 men. A navy communiqué today said next of kin had been notified.

The vessel, commanded by Lieut. Com. Conde Leroy Raguet, was the thirty-fourth American submarine reported overdue and presumed lost, and the fortieth lost from all causes, including four sunk and two destroyed to prevent capture. It was the two hundred and seventy-third naval vessel of all types lost in the war.

Commander Raguet is listed as "missing following action." He assumed command of the vessel last December.

ARMY CASUALTIES

Washington, March 21.—The War Department announced today 3,224 casualties.

In all of these cases next of kin have been notified previously and have been kept informed directly by the War Department of any change in status.

NAVY CASUALTIES

The Navy Department announced today 108 casualties in the Navy, Marine Corps and Coast Guard which makes a total of 91,754 casualties reported by the Navy since Pearl Harbor. Of this total 35,247 are reported dead, 41,754 wounded, 10,487 missing and 4,266 prisoners of war. Included in the list are the Special to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

WASHINGTON, March 21—Among 6,361 Army and 262 Navy casualties announced today by the War and Navy Departments, all based upon prior notification to next of kin, were the following (the name following the casualty is that of the next of kin):

HALIFAX REASSURES

Oklahoma City, March 21 (A. P.).—British Ambassador Lord Halifax, who participated in a gigantic wolf hunt in Oklahoma yesterday, said in a later address to the nation that "we are together in the greatest wolf hunt ever undertaken—Hitler and Tojo."

The Ambassador, broadcasting from Elk City, Okla., said: "Make no mistake about it. As soon as we are through with Germany we shall move every ship, every plane and tank, every piece of equipment for which there is room, into the Pacific."

Lord Halifax was made an honorary member of the Future Farmers of America last night at the State FFA Association's annual banquet. Today he was to visit Tulsa and Bartlesville, Okla., to conclude his four-day tour of the State.

Gasoline Jelly Bomb Described

Detroit, March 21 (AP)—The Army today approved disclosure of details of the new M-69 incendiary bombs dropped by American Superfortresses with devastating effect on Tokyo and other large Japanese cities.

R. B. Marshall, president of Electromaster, Inc., was permitted by the Army Chemical Warfare Service to announce that his company was producing the gasoline jelly bombs in mass volume.

The new bombs, Marshall said, are about 19 inches long, as big around as a baseball bat and weigh six pounds. The interior contains a cheesecloth sack filled with "gasoline jell" which burns for eight to ten minutes at temperatures above 6,000 degrees Fahrenheit.

Made In 500-Pound Clusters

Designed for incendiary raids from high altitudes, the bombs are made up in 500-pound clusters. At about 5,000 feet the cluster breaks open by means of a time fuse and an explosive charge.

The M-69 sprouts four tail streamers of cotton gauze which act as tiny parachutes to regulate the speed of descent so the bomb will not break up when it lands. Yet it has sufficient force to penetrate tile, slate, wood, composition shingles or galvanized tin roofs.

Explodes In Five Seconds

Upon impact a delayed fuse starts a mechanism which detonates after about five seconds and spews the oil-filled cheesecloth about 25 yards in all directions.

Marshall said development of the new bomb began in 1941. He added that the Electromaster company manufactured the incendiary bombs dropped in the first raid on Tokyo led by Lieut. Gen. James Doolittle on April 18, 1942.

MEAT TO BE SHORT UNTIL NEXT FALL

CHICAGO, March 21—(AP) U. S. civilians will be on a light meat diet until autumn—at least. And there's a possibility that there may not be enough eggs, the most popular meat substitute.

The home front, already conditioned to smaller meat rations in many areas, faces a 12 per cent slash in its share for the April-May-June quarter. Packers believe there will be little improvement before fall, when a seasonal increase in the marketing of livestock can be expected.

The government figures the per capita allotment of meat for civilians will drop to an annual rate of 115 pounds in the next three months, the lowest in ten years.

The American Meat Institute reports that the situation "borders on a meat famine in many parts of the country." Further, says the Institute, the situation will "get much worse before it gets any better."

Meantime, the Chicago Mercantile Exchange says the nation also is facing a serious shortage of eggs. It reports national stocks were estimated at 612,000 cases on March 1, compared with 2,808,000 cases on the same date last year.

Egg production is eight per cent under a year ago, thanks to a reduced poultry population and a severe winter. At the same time, the demand for the armed forces has increased and civilian needs also are higher, because of the meat shortage.

INVASION FEARS AGAIN VOICED BY JAPANESE LEADER

SAN FRANCISCO, March 21—(AP) Renewed invasion fears were voiced over the Tokyo radio Wednesday by Premier Kuniaki Koiso and War Minister Gen Sugiyama, who brought pressure on the Imperial Diet for passage of an emergency measure designed to turn Japan into an armed camp under virtual military law.

The measure was submitted as the homeland was soothed with the unconfirmed claim that the U. S. carrier task force whose aircraft dealt a crippling blow to Japanese warships in the inland sea was "fleeing" after suffering heavy losses.

The requested law would empower the military to confiscate any or all "land, buildings and material" for defense and to summarily assign any or all citizens to "military works."

Premier Koiso was quoted in one of the broadcasts, all of which were recorded by the FCC, as appealing for a "burning determination to defend the nation." He added: "There will be no unconditional surrender."

Death in battle of the Japanese commander on Iwo, Lt. Gen. Tadamichi Kuribayashi, was indicated in a broadcast Domei news agency dispatch. It said the general expressed to the emperor his "most profound regrets" at the loss of Iwo before leading his troops in a "final charge" on March 17.

An Imperial communique made the claim that the American task force was fleeing and that Japanese aircraft were in "close pursuit." It also claimed, again without confirmation, that eight American warships had been sunk, including an aircraft carrier, and at least two damaged.

Both Koiso and Sugiyama made their positions clear in domestic broadcasts, Sugiyama insisting the requested emergency measure was "absolutely necessary" because it was evident "the Japanese homeland will become a battlefield."

"There will be no unconditional surrender," he said.

"So long as there is one Japanese living, we must fight to shatter the enemy's ambitions to pieces. We must not stop fighting until then."

Japan's Iwo Commander Rallies Troops as 'Spirit'

By The Associated Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 21—A Japanese Domei news agency dispatch broadcast today by Tokyo indicated that Lieut. Gen. Tadamichi Kuribayashi, commander of the Japanese garrison on Iwo, was killed March 17 after he had sent "most profound regrets" to the Emperor for loss of that strategic island, only 750 miles from Tokyo.

The general promised, according to the broadcast recorded by the Federal Communications Commission, that in death he would "turn into a spirit" to "become the forerunner of the Imperial Army's rally with increased force."

Domei said the message had been issued before he led Japanese troops into a "final charge" on Iwo March 17.

[A Navy communiqué issued at Guam March 18 reported that on the previous day mortar fire had broken up a group of 150 Japanese "observed attempting to organize in the northern part of the island."]

Excerpts from the general's message follow:

"Come the night of March 17, I myself shall take the lead for a fierce, all-out attack."

"Our ammunition is now exhausted, our water gone."

Loss Of Iwo 'Unfortunate'

San Francisco, March 21 (AP)—Premier Kuniaki Koiso of Japan told his countrymen today the loss of Iwo Jima to the American marines "is the most unfortunate thing in the whole war situation," and again warned against a United States invasion of the Nipponese homeland.

Koiso, in a Tokyo domestic broadcast heard by the FCC, said the Americans had "numerical superiority" and appealed to the Japanese to exhibit a "burning determination to defend the nation."

Japs Claim Another U.S. Carrier Sunk

San Francisco, March 21 (AP)—Japanese Imperial headquarters claimed today that Nipponese planes in "close pursuit" of the United States carrier force "fleeing southward" from Japan sank one carrier and damaged another yesterday.

Enemy headquarters claimed a total of eight United States warships were sunk in three days and at least two damaged. Today's communiqué, recorded here, said greater war results are also expected."

Tokyo radio told the Japanese people "there are plenty of possibilities that the enemy may repeat his raids."

"Our preparations to cope with the steadily approaching decisive battle between Japan and the United States are quickly progressing toward completion despite the attacks by the enemy task force and the constant raids of enemy B-29's," the broadcast said. "We will not be tricked into the strategy of the enemy, who is in a hurry."

MAR 22 1945 30.24 -24097

Forrestal Gives Data On Navy Wounded

New York, March 21 (AP)—Ninety-eight of every 100 navy men and Marines wounded in the first three years of war have recovered. Navy Secretary Forrestal said today at a Red Cross luncheon. Among the Marines, about 75 out of every 100 wounded have been able to return to active combat duties, he added.

"We will do everything in our power to keep that record good," the Cabinet officer declared. "I mention it here, because of a tendency to regard all casualties as fatalities.

Most Are Wounded

"It is easy, for example, to speak of our 'losses' at Iwo Jima as 19,900 men, forgetting that of this total, 15,300 were wounded.

"Our reports indicate that between 6,000 and 7,000 of the wounded had returned to their divisions before the fall of Iwo; and on the basis of our past experience, we have reason to hope . . . that between 11,000 and 12,000 of the men wounded on Iwo will be so completely restored to health as to be capable of complete activity."

"Our wounded and sick," Forrestal said, "are being given all the care and thought that scientific and hospital practice of the country can provide, and the Red Cross is performing its full share in that magnificent accomplishment."

Remember Sacrifice

Asserting that Japanese soldiers "are driven by a combination of mysticism and fanatic frenzy which drags war down to a low level of human debauchery," the navy chief added:

"It was against such enemies that 60,000 Marines . . . walked up the grim and desolate beaches of Iwo Jima. Let us keep in mind what their sacrifice is when we are asked merely to contribute dollars to the Red Cross, or, for that matter, to endure the inconvenience of a curfew or to accept some of the other tensions and pressures that grow out of war."

N.Y. NIGHT CLUBS TO OBEY CURFEW

35 Members of Industry Vote to Observe Government's Request.

NEW YORK, March 21 — (AP) New York city's tempest of the curfew resolved tonight into a decision by leading nightclubs, restaurants, cafes and hotels to ignore Mayor La Guardia's "extra hour of tolerance" and to go along with the rest of the nation on midnight closing.

On the heels of Army and Navy directives, ordering servicemen to leave places of entertainment by midnight, the Allied Food and Entertainment Industries of greater New York voted to shut their doors at 12 o'clock, as requested by War Mobilization Director James F. Byrnes three weeks ago.

The association's members, including such well known night spots as Leon and Eddie's, the 21 club, the Versailles, Cafe Zanzibar and Jack Dempsey's restaurant, have been staying open until 1 a.m., along with taverns and hotels, since the mayor announced in his weekly radio talk Sunday that the midnight curfew would not "work in New York city."

Other popular night clubs not members of the association, notably the Stork club and Cafe Society Uptown and Cafe Society Downtown, also returned to the midnight closing.

The New York City Hotel association took no formal action but many of the major hotels announced individually that they were divided, some closing at 12 o'clock and others remaining open until 1 a.m.

The Hotel Belmont Plaza issued a statement saying, "we appreciate Mayor La Guardia's tolerance in allowing us one extra hour, but since President Roosevelt has backed up Mr. Byrnes' rule, and in deference to the servicemen and women of this country, we are closing at 12 o'clock."

The Club and Restaurant Association in tonight's announcement praised the Mayor for "sound leadership in his endeavor to make the curfew law conform to conditions in a large metropolis.

"However, it looks to us as though somebody in Washington is trying to make a political issue of this, and we are not willing to take a position that might embarrass the mayor, who has been trying to help our situation.

"Nor are we inclined to serve civilians when service is denied to men in uniform."

Arthur Garfield Hays, counsel for the association, said in announcing the action that the group was "asking Washington for one of the first rights of American citizens—the right to a hearing."

"We think," he said in a statement, "we can prove to the government that the 12 o'clock curfew in the city of New York is a mistake."

"There can be no magic in the hour of twelve," he continued, adding that in fixing that hour the government had "discriminated against a few large cities that provide entertainment to civilians and soldiers."

"In some of the other cities, the local authorities wink their eyes at violations," the statement said. "La Guardia isn't that kind."

There were indications other night spots also would revert to the midnight closing. Even before the association's action, the Stork Club and Cafe Society Uptown and Cafe Society Downtown had announced they would discontinue their 1 a. m. closing.

La Guardia was not immediately available for comment on the association's decision. Earlier he had stood firm in his disregard of the 12 o'clock curfew in face of disapproval by the Army and Navy.

"I'm running the city" he had declared earlier.

League's 'Evils' Cited By Russ

New York, March 21 (AP)—Criticizing advocates of a change in voting procedure at the coming World Security Conference at San Francisco, the Moscow radio declared today that attempts were being made under the guise of a "sincere regard for the small countries" to "return the future organization of security to the evil days of the League of Nations."

"The future international organization of security," the broadcast asserted: "Can, in reality, insure the interests of the small countries only if it becomes an effective organization; that is, if it will be built on the same foundation on which is being built the great structure of our common victory; that is, on agreement and unanimity and the close collaboration of the main great powers of the anti-German coalition."

3d, 7th Nearly Double Nazi Territory Held

New York, March 21 (AP)—In the last week of heavy fighting and lightning advances the United States 3d and 7th armies have just about doubled the area of German territory wrested from the Nazis in the west since United States troops first crossed the German border near Aachen last September.

About 5,000 square miles have fallen to the Allies in the Saar-Moselle-Rhine triangle, invaded March 14. Pockets of Nazi resistance remain, but are being sealed off.

That is approximately equal in area to the more elongated triangle marked by the Moselle, the Rhine and the Netherlands, Luxembourg and French borders, which was overrun by Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's American, British and Canadian armies before in the six months preceding last week's surge across the Moselle.

Interest in Foreign Trade Hopeful Sign, Farley Says

Tells New York Club Both Political Parties Support New Attitude in U.S.

NEW YORK, March 21—James A. Farley, former Postmaster General, now chairman of the board of the Coca-Cola corporation, told several hundred members of the Foreign Commerce club at their annual dinner meeting at the Hotel Astor last evening that "it is a hopeful sign that in both political parties there is developing an increasing interest in foreign trade."

"As a consequence," he said, "we are recognizing that the modern position of the United States in the world makes it necessary that we reconsider many tariff policies of the past." Continuing he said:

Attitude Changed

"Under the great leadership of Secretary Cordell Hull, this change of attitude has taken form in our reciprocal trade policy. That policy was sound, but in its beginnings it was experimental, tentative, and modest. But now that American prejudices in favor of higher tariffs are subsiding before the great facts of American efficiency and necessities, we may more resolutely proceed in the direction of enlarging our imports. A test of opinion on this subject will come later this spring, when the reciprocal Trade Agreements act comes up for renewal. If the vote is close, it may mean that the administration will hesitate to move resolutely toward a larger exchange of goods. If the vote is by a wide margin, we may expect sentiment in both parties to move progressively toward a real reconsideration of our tariff policies."

"We hear a good deal about increasing our exports, but not so much about the necessity of imports. It is time for a considerable change in this emphasis, if we are to take steps in the direction of making it possible to liquidate our prospective post-war loans.

Delay Must End

"But in our preparations for post-war reponsibilities, we must break off the habit of delay. Too much of our financial machinery consists of an apparatus for putting things off. A great part of our credit system consists of means of postponing payments through notes, mortgages and the like.

"We must, as Americans, resolve to walk squarely up to these questions of how we are going to be paid for our exports and face them honestly. Republican Senator Wherry of Nebraska gave some sound advice to his party in a speech in January. He said, 'If we are going to sell abroad, we must buy abroad.' And I would add to this statement of Senator Wherry that if we are going to lend abroad, we must accept goods from abroad.

"We are going to need more from the rest of the world than we have ever needed before. We have scraped to the bottom of the barrel in many of our resources. Some of our resources of which we still have considerable quantities, such as our forests, might well be given a rest in order that they may grow again. We shall have to import more zinc and lead, more iron, petroleum and timber. The development of our new industries which will follow the war will require more of materials than we have in the past, imported in small quantities, such as manganese, nickel, wool, vegetable oils and oil seeds, pulp and paper. The list is extensive and impressive.

"A good deal has been said for the view that a prosperous America is the best single guarantee of a prosperous world. But this statement, however true, needs to be spelled out in terms of what it takes to make a prosperous America. A prosperous America is an America going forward, with investment at home and investment abroad, with confidence in the essential friendliness of its government, with confidence that there may be profit in trade and in international finance, with confidence that obligations, public and private, will be honored.

How Can We Help

"We talk of how a prosperous America can carry the benefits of its prosperity to other countries. How can we do this best? Should we merely tell them that they ought to raise their wages, or should we enable them to engage in a trade so profitable, through buying their goods, that their wages will increase as a natural consequence?

"The grim handwriting is on the wall for everyone to see. Unless we do arrange in some way to obtain payment for our goods—and now is the time to start arranging for that—then we risk having to go through the experience of another great series of defaults. Once more, we may have the bitter experience of unpaid debts, of hard feelings between nations, of a paralyzed trade and of the unpredictable results beyond. I have spoken of the danger of another series of defaults. Three of these have already come within the memory of most of us.

"The first consisted of those debts to American private investors contracted abroad in the 1920's. Not all of these failed, by any means, but a lot of good American money went down the drain.

Defaults Continue

"The second series of defaults took place in the early 1930's. They were the debts to our government by other governments, contracted during and after the first World war. This series of defaults led to the passage of the Johnson Act, which was the expression of a country which was sick and tired of all dealings with foreign nations. It was a gesture of isolationism, but to be perfectly frank, it was a gesture which rose out of despair, anger and disillusionment.

"The third series consists of lend-lease obligations which we are probably going to forgive in large part, as a portion of the cost of winning the war.

"Let us not go beyond this and permit defaults to occur in a fourth series of loans—loans which are proposed in such institutions as those suggested by Bretton Woods. Let me make it clear that I am not objecting to these loans. I am trying to make the point that when we make them, we must adjust our economic thinking to a proper means of permitting those loans to be repaid.

Must Face Problems

"Let us face these problems squarely. Let us admit that if we are going to lend abroad, we must buy abroad. Let us put our tariffs in such order that we can accept payment in the only way in which payment can be made. Let us make loans to Europe, not necessarily out of our generosity, but out of our business sense, because Europe will need loans for her reconstruction. The impoverished countries over there will need, on the physical side, industrial and transportation equipment, building materials and tools of every kind.

"A Europe rising from her ruins will be a good customer, and a good supplier of valuable products to us, if we are willing to accept them in payment for what we sell.

"In our attitude toward countries which, in the past, have been, in the main, merely suppliers of raw materials, let us encourage them in their efforts to develop an industrial system. Always remember that our greatest volume of trade has always been with nations industrially developed—not with poor and backward countries. The great economic paradox in international affairs is that our greatest benefits come from countries which are our natural competitors.

Employment Will Come

"Once our thinking is adjusted to these principles, we need not spend our time and energy talking of employment first. Employment is a result and not a cause. Employment will come from increased confidence among nations, from a sound maintenance of international credit and, above all, from the promises of a lasting peace.

"That, of course, is the theme to which all thoughts return—a lasting peace. And it is the thought of lasting peace that brings my mind back again to the fact that this important and delightful occasion is taking place in the port of New York, which has been changed so much by war, and which has so much at stake in the establishment of a just and lasting peace and in the world-wide prosperity which can be made to follow."

LONDON, MARCH 21-(AP)-THE GERMANS SAID TONIGHT THAT RUSSIAN SHOCK TROOPS HAD BEGUN NEW ATTACKS WEST OF THE ODER RIVER WITHIN 32 MILES OF GUTTED BERLIN WHILE OTHER SOVIET UNITS TO THE NORTH HURLED A TORRENT OF SHELLS INTO FLAMING STETTIN FROM SIEGE LINES LESS THAN THREE MILES FROM THE POMERANIAN CAPITAL AND PORT.

FAR TO THE SOUTH ANOTHER SOVIET ARMY ATTACKING WITHIN 58 MILES OF AUSTRIA THREATENED THE BIG DANUBE RIVER STRONGHOLD OF KOMAROM (KOMARNO) IN NORTHWESTERN HUNGARY, HALF-WAY BETWEEN BUDAPEST AND THE BRATISLAVA GAP TO VIENNA, BERLIN SAID. ONE SOVIET WING ALSO CRASHED INTO SZEKESFEHERVAR, BIG ROAD JUNCTION AND FORMER HUNGARIAN CAPITAL 32 MILES SOUTHWEST OF BUDAPEST, THE ENEMY SAID.

A BULGARIAN COMMUNIQUE ANNOUNCING THE LIQUIDATION OF A SMALL GERMAN BRIDGEHEAD ON THE NORTH BANK OF THE DRAVA RIVER NEAR SIKLOS, 120 MILES SOUTH OF BUDAPEST, SAID 6,000 GERMANS WERE KILLED. THE GERMANS HAD ANNOUNCED ON TUESDAY THE EVACUATION OF THE BRIDGEHEAD.

GIRDING FOR THE GREAT ALL-OUT SOVIET OFFENSIVE TOWARD BERLIN AND DRESDEN MARSHAL IVAN S.KONEV'S FIRST UKRAINE ARMY WAS REPORTED READY TO VAULT THE NEISSE RIVER IN AN ASSAULT TOWARD COTTBUS, BIG COMMUNICATIONS CENTER 47 MILES FROM THE REICH CAPITAL, AND TOWARD SPREMBERG, 13 MILES TO THE SOUTH.

FRESH RUSSIAN GAINS WERE REPORTED BY THE ENEMY IN THE SHELL-TORN LITTLE POCKET STILL HELD BY THE GERMANS SOUTHWEST OF KOENIGSBERG IN EAST PRUSSIA, AND BETWEEN IMPERILLED DANZIG AND GDYNIA, KEY GERMAN NAVAL BASES ON THE BALTIC TO THE WEST. THE GERMANS SAID THE RUSSIANS HAD GAINED A DOMINATING HEIGHT AT ZOPPOT, EFFECTIVELY SPLITTING THE DANZIG-GDYNIA POCKET AND PERMITTING SOVIET GUNNERS TO RAKE COASTAL COMMUNICATIONS ON THE 10-MILE LONG HIGHWAY BETWEEN THE TWO CITIES.

THE ARMS OF THE ODER EAST OF STETTIN MEANDER OVER A THREE-MILE WIDE COURSE AND IT IS DOUBTFUL WHETHER MUCH IS LEFT OF THE BIG RAILWAY BRIDGE ACROSS THESE OBSTACLES.

IN THE EAST PRUSSIAN POCKET SOUTHWEST OF KOENIGSBERG MARSHAL ALEXANDER M.VASILEVSKY'S THIRD WHITE RUSSIAN ARMY PINNED THE GERMANS TIGHTER AGAINST THE COAST OF THE FRISCHES HAFF (LAGOON). IN ONE PART OF THIS AREA GERMAN TROOPS DIED ALMOST TO THE LAST MAN AS THEY FOUGHT FROM LOCOMOTIVE BOILERS CONVERTED INTO PILLBOXES AND FROM FOXHOLES ALONG A RAILROAD RIGHT-OF-WAY.

THE GERMANS, WHO HAVE REPORTED A RUSSIAN PUSH ACROSS UPPER SILESIA AND OVER THE CZECHOSLOVAK BORDER, SAID THAT THIS SOVIET OPERATION AIMED AT OUTFLANKING MORAVSKA-OSTRAVA HAD BEEN HALTED BY NAZI COUNTER-ATTACKS AT THE BORDER TOWNS OF ZIEGENHALS AND LEOBSCHUETZ, RESPECTIVELY 52 AND 32 MILES NORTHWEST OF CZECHOSLOVAKIA'S THIRD CITY. BY ENEMY ACCOUNT THE RUSSIANS HAD BEEN PREVENTED FROM ADVANCING FARTHER INTO THE SUDETEN MOUNTAINS AT NEISSE. THIS OPERATION HAS NOT BEEN CONFIRMED BY MOSCOW.

HEAVY FIGHTING ALSO WAS REPORTED BY THE GERMANS AT LAUBAN, 74 MILES WEST OF BESIEGED BRESLAU, AND AT STRIEGAU AND NEAR GROTTKAU, RESPECTIVELY 30 MILES SOUTHWEST AND SOUTHEAST OF THE UPPER SILESIAN CAPITAL.

"WILL YOU HAVE THAT STATEMENT AVAILABLE TO US BEFORE DEBATE?" BEVAN ASKED THE PRIME MINISTER.

"NO," CHURCHILL REPLIED. "I WOULD DEPRECATE DEBATE BEING CARRIED ON ON A BASIS OF INVIDIOUS COMPARISONS." THE HOUSE CHEERED THE REMARK. CHURCHILL ADDED:

THE PRIME MINISTER DID NOT ANSWER A QUESTION AS TO WHETHER AN IMMEDIATE INCREASE IN THE AMOUNT OF RATIONS COULD BE EXPECTED AFTER VICTORY IN EUROPE.

LLEWELLIN, ASKED EARLIER IF HE THOUGHT IT WOULD BE NECESSARY TO REDUCE MEAT RATIONS IN THE NEXT SIX MONTHS, SAID HE COULD NOT REPLY TO THAT BUT HE ADDED THAT HE WAS DOING HIS UTMOST "TO AVOID ANY CUT IN RATION."

THE BRITISH PRESS, MEANWHILE CAUTIONED AGAINST LETTING THE SITUATION LEAD TO BICKERING WITH THE UNITED STATES. WHILE SOME INFANTRY OF THE 80TH DIVISION REMAINED IN KAISERSLAUTERN TO FINISH MOPPING UP THAT BIG TRAFFIC CENTER, OTHER DOUGHBOYS DROVE ON EASTWARD WITH THE 10TH ARMORED DIVISION TOWARD LUDWIGSHAFEN, UTILIZING THE SIX-LANE MILITARY HIGHWAY BUILT BY HITLER. OVERNIGHT THEY THRUST TO HOCHSPEYER AND FRANKENSTEIN, NINE MILES EAST OF KAISERSLAUTERN.

ONE COLUMN OF THE 26TH DIVISION CUT ACROSS A POCKET THAT WAS CLOSED LATE TUESDAY IN THE FIRST LINKUP OF THE THIRD AND SEVENTH ARMIES AND JOINED FORCES WITH GEN.PATCH'S TROOPS AT OTTWEILER, NORTH OF NEUNKIRCHEN, WHICH HAD BEEN BYPASSED.

THE TWO SMALL POCKETS OF ENEMY TROOPS THUS FORMED WERE BEING CLEANED UP LEISURELY AND JOINTLY BY FORCES OF THE THIRD AND SEVENTH ARMIES. THERE WAS NO POSSIBILITY OF ESCAPE FOR THE NAZIS IN THIS RICH INDUSTRIAL AREA IMMEDIATELY NORTH OF SAARBRUECKEN AND ZWEIBRUECKEN.

THE SEVENTH ARMY'S 45TH DIVISION ENVELOPED AND DROVE INTO THE RUBBLE HEAP THAT ONCE WAS HOMBURG ON THE EASTERN BOUNDARY OF THE SAAR. THE 63RD DIVISION CAPTURED ST.INGBERT AND LIMBACH, JUST SOUTHWEST OF HOMBURG.

A17

TO THE EAST THE DISORGANIZED NAZIS STILL WERE TRYING TO HOLD SOME SEMBLANCE OF A LINE, BUT THE 103RD DIVISION DROVE STEADILY NORTHWARD THROUGH THE HARDT FOREST AND AT LAST REPORT WERE MORE THAN FOUR MILES NORTH OF WISSEMBOURG IN THE GAP LEADING TO LANDAU. FRENCH TROOPS HAD CROSSED THE LAUTER RIVER AND SEIZED BERG, ACROSS THE RHINE FROM KARLSRUHE. THE BASE OF THE GERMAN WEDGE IN THE PALATINATE NOW WAS LESS THAN 35 MILES WIDE.

THE 103RD DIVISION, LED BY MAJ.GEN.ANTHONY C.MCAULIFFE OF BASTOGNE FAME, KNOCKED OUT 20 MORE STEEL AND CONCRETE PILLBOXES IN A HARDT FOREST. MANY OF THEM WERE MANNED BY CRACK GERMAN REGULARS, WHO WERE OFFERING SERIOUS RESISTANCE. NUMEROUS NAZI PRISONERS ASKED THE PRIVILEGE OF SURRENDERING PERSONALLY TO MCAULIFFE.

AT MAINZ THE THIRD ARMY WAS 265 MILES FROM BERLIN AND 93 MILES INSIDE GERMANY. MAINZ IS THE BIRTHPLACE OF GUTENBERG, INVENTOR OF PRINTING.

BOTH LUDWIGSHAFEN AND MANNHEIM, ON OPPOSITE BANKS OF THE RHINE, WERE REPORTED LARGELY IN RUINS FROM SUSTAINED AND HEAVY ALLIED BOMBING. THEY HAVE BEEN FAVORED AIR TARGETS BECAUSE OF THEIR GREAT CHEMICAL WORKS, MACHINE SHOPS AND SPRAWLING RAIL YARDS.

A18

OTHER IMPORTANT GERMAN CITIES EITHER IN OR ALMOST WITHIN RANGE OF AMERICAN ARTILLERY TONIGHT WERE WEISBADEN, FOUR MILES ACROSS THE RHINE FROM MAINZ, AND FRANKFURT, 18 MILES AWAY. FRANKFURT HAS A POPULATION OF SOME 550,000, WEISBADEN 170,000. KARLSRUHE, WITH 190,000 POPULATION, WAS ONLY SEVEN MILES OR SO ACROSS THE RHINE FROM FRENCH TROOPS OF THE SEVENTH ARMY PUSHING INTO THE PALATINATE.

THERE WAS INCREASING DOUBT THAT THE GERMANS, GIVEN A FEARFUL BEATING WEST OF THE RHINE IN THE PAST WEEK, WOULD BE ABLE TO REORGANIZE

AND MAKE A FORMIDABLE STAND IN THEIR VALHALLA LINE ON THE EAST BANK. SOME ALLIED OFFICERS WERE WILLING TO BET THAT THE EUROPEAN WAR WOULD BE OVER WITHIN 60 DAYS, BUT THEY WERE BASING THEIR BELIEF ON NOTHING MORE THAN THE OBVIOUS MILITARY SITUATION.

THE SAME ARMORED DIVISION WHICH HAS PLAYED AN ANONYMOUS ROLE IN THE CURRENT DRIVE FROM THE MOSELLE, DASHED INTO THE TWIN CITY OF MANNHEIM WHICH IS ONE OF THE GREATEST CHEMICAL PRODUCING CENTERS OF GERMANY.

MANNHEIM, JUST ACROSS THE RHINE FROM LUDWIGSHAFEN, IS 160 MILES FROM MUNICH IN THE HEART OF SOUTHERN GERMANY AND 75 MILES FROM THE STARTING POINT OF THE OFFENSIVE.

BUT AS ELSEWHERE LT.GEN.GEORGE S.PATTON'S MEN FOUND THE RHINE BRIDGE THERE HAD BEEN DEMOLISHED. THE STRUCTURE WHICH CONNECTED MUCH-BOMBED LUDWIGSHAFEN AND MANNHEIM WAS ONE OF THE MOST IMPOSING ALONG THE RHINE.

WITH THE U.S.THIRD ARMY IN GERMANY, MARCH 21-(AP)-ARMORED FORCES OF LT.GEN.GEORGE S.PATTON'S THIRD ARMY DROVE INTO LUDWIGSHAFEN TODAY AND PUSHED A FLANKING WEDGE TO THE RHINE RIVER A MILE NORTH OF THE CITY.

THE GREAT CHEMICAL CENTER ON THE WEST BANK IS A TWIN CITY OF MANNHEIM ON THE EAST BANK. IT WAS REACHED AFTER A PLUNGE OF 7 1/2 MILES BY AN ARMORED DIVISION WHICH HEADQUARTERS HAS KEPT UNIDENTIFIED

WHICH REACHED THE RHINE NORTH OF THE CITY, AFTER A SEVEN-MILE ADVANCE EASTWARD, ALSO WAS A UNIT OF THIS ANONYMOUS DIVISION.

LUDWIGSHAFEN, FOURTH BIG GERMAN CITY ENTERED BY THE THIRD ARMY IN TWO DAYS, UNTIL RECENTLY HAD A POPULATION OF 150,000, SWELLED IN RECENT YEARS BY WAR INDUSTRIES. ITS MOST IMPORTANT PLANT WAS THE BADISCHE ANILIN UND SODAFABRIK, A SUBSIDIARY OF THE GIANT I.G. FARBEN CHEMICAL TRUST.

THE RHINE BRIDGE CONNECTING LUDWIGSHAFEN AND MANNHEIM, ONE OF THE MOST IMPOSING STRUCTURES ON THE RIVER, HAD BEEN DEMOLISHED BEFORE THE AMERICAN FORCES ENTERED THE CITY.

OTHER THIRD ARMY DIVISIONS CONTINUED CUTTING UP GERMAN REMNANTS WEST OF THE RHINE INTO SMALL POCKETS, MAKING ADVANCES OF UP TO TEN MILES, CLEARING 20 TOWNS AND ENTERING FOUR.

THE 80TH DIVISION CLEARED KAISERSLAUTERN AND ALSO THE TOWN OF ENKENBACH, SIX MILES NORTHEAST.

SINCE BEGINNING OFFENSIVE OPERATIONS EARLY THIS MONTH THE THIRD ARMY HAS CAPTURED 5,230 SQUARE MILES AND OCCUPIED 4,225 PLACES.

OF THIS TOTAL 1,060 SQUARE MILES AND 950 PLACES HAVE BEEN TAKEN SINCE THE DRIVE FROM THE KYLL RIVER STARTED MARCH 3. THE REMAINING 4,170 SQUARE MILES AND 3,275 PLACES HAVE BEEN SEIZED SINCE THE SPURT FROM THE SAAR RIVER STARTED MARCH 13.

TODAY THE FOURTH ARMORED DIVISION DROVE ANOTHER TEN MILES AND CLEARED SEVEN TOWNS IN ADDITION TO MAKING CONTACT WITH ELEMENTS OF THE 90TH INFANTRY DIVISION AT DALHEIM, ELEVEN MILES SOUTH OF MAINZ.

A49

OTHER ELEMENTS OF THE 90TH PICKED UP 2 1/2 MILES NORTHWEST AND CLEARED SIX VILLAGES AND THE TOWN OF GONSENHEIM, 1 1/2 MILES SOUTHWEST OF MAINZ. THERE WAS NO NEW REPORT OF THE FIGHTING INSIDE MAINZ, WHICH WAS REACHED YESTERDAY.

IN THE FIRST SIZABLE SHOW OF RESISTANCE IN THREE DAYS THE GERMANS COUNTERATTACKED AGAINST THE 90TH BOTH SOUTH AND SOUTHWEST OF MAINZ. BOTH ATTACKS WERE REPULSED. MECHANIZED UNITS OF THE SECOND CAVALRY, MOPPING UP EAST OF BINGEN, CLEARED TWO PLACES AND ENTERED TWO IN AN AREA ONE TO SIX MILES FROM THE CITY.

IN ANOTHER SIGNIFICANT THRUST, THE 10TH ARMORED DIVISION SENT A COLUMN PEELING OFF NINE MILES INTO NEUSTADT, WHERE THE AMERICANS WERE FIGHTING IN THE STREETS LATE TODAY. NEUSTADT IS AN IMPORTANT HIGHWAY JUNCTION 13 MILES WEST OF THE RHINE CITY OF SPEYER.

BY THOBURN WIANT

KAISERSLAUTERN, GERMANY, MARCH 20-(DELAYED)-(AP)-THIS VITAL ROAD AND RAIL CENTER FELL TODAY TO ONE HAND GRENADE AND 25 DOUGHBOYS.

A CITY WITH A PEACE-TIME POPULATION OF 61,000, KAISERSLAUTERN LONG HAD BEEN FIGURED BY LT.GEN.GEORGE S.PATTON'S STRATEGISTS AS A TOUGH NUT TO CRACK. THEY LOGICALLY FIGURED FIELD MARSHAL VON RUNDSTEDT WOULD ORDER THE STIFFEST RESISTANCE BECAUSE KAISERSLAUTERN IS THE KEY IN A NETWORK OF ROADS AND RAILS WESTWARD TO SAARBRUECKEN, NORTHWARD TO COBLENZ, BINGEN, AND MAINZ AND EASTWARD TO WORMS AND MANNHEIM.

BUT PATTON'S ARMOR STIRRED UP SUCH BEWILDERMENT AND TERROR THAT AN AMERICAN PARTY LED BY T/SGT BYRON HOOVER, 1529 THORNDALE AVE., CHICAGO, ILL., MOVED IN AND TOOK OVER ALMOST WITHOUT A FIGHT.

ACTUALLY THE FIRST AMERICANS INTO KAISERSLAUTERN WERE MEMBERS OF THE ARMORED TASK FORCE "CHERRY," NAMED FOR LT.COL.HENRY T.CHERRY OF AUGUSTA, GA. BUT HIS TENTH ARMORED TANKS, WHICH HAD SPED 46 MILES IN 24 HOURS, SWEPT THROUGH THE CITY AND EASTWARD AT A 25 MILE AN HOR CLIP.

THE JOB OF TAKING OVER THE CITY WAS LEFT TO 25 INFANTRYMEN WHO ENTERED AS THE ARMOR LEFT.

MAR 22 1945

"THE STREETS WERE ABSOLUTELY DESERTED AT FIRST," HOOVER SAID. "BUT THEN THE PEOPLE STARTED COMING OUT AND WE HAD A REAL CHORE ON OUR HANDS."

HOOVER'S MEN, A PLATOON FROM THE 317TH REGIMENT OF THE 80TH INFANTRY DIVISION, CAPTURED A COLONEL, FOUR MAJORS, FIVE CAPTAINS, 10 LIEUTENANTS, 20 NON-COMS AND 66 PRIVATES IN ONE BATCH BY THROWING A HAND GRENADE THROUGH A WINDOW WHERE THE GERMANS WERE HIDDEN.

FOR ABOUT AN HOUR HOOVER WAS IN CHARGE IN KAISERSLAUTERN, WHERE 45,000 CIVILIANS SURPRISINGLY HAD REMAINED. THEN COL.N.A. COSTELLO OF ARLINGTON, VA., COMMANDER OF THE 319TH REGIMENT OF THE 80TH DIVISION, PERSONALLY TOOK OVER. LATER OTHER REGIMENTS OF THE DIVISION, COMMANDED BY MAJ.GEN.HORACE MCBRIDE, ARRIVED.

"A FEW SNIPERS PROVIDED THE ONLY OPPOSITION WE FOUND," HOOVER SAID. "HONESTLY, THIS DEAL WAS A PUSH OVER.

KAISERSLAUTERN-FIRST ADD WIANT'S KAISERSLAUTERN XXX PUSH OVER."

FOR MORE THAN 50 MILES ALONG THE TENTH ARMORED'S DRIVE TO KAISERSLAUTERN AND EASTWARD TO THE RHINE THE ROUTE WAS LINED WITH ABANDONED VEHICLES, DEAD HORSES, CHARRED CARTS AND MANY DEAD GERMANS--ALL VICTIMS OF AERIAL ATTACKS BY THUNDERBOLTS AND MUSTANGS.

AFTER THE TENTH ARMORED SWEPT THROUGH TOWNS, CIVILIAN MEN, WOMEN AND CHILDREN TORE DOWN REMAINING ROADBLOCKS. PROBABLY 5,000 PRISONERS MOVED TO THE REAR.

SEVERAL CIVILIANS WERE SEEN CUTTING MEAT FROM DEAD HORSES.

CAPT.STAFFORD BENEDICT OF ALEXANDRIA, LA., COMMANDER OF A HEAVY WEAPONS COMPANY IN AN INFANTRY BATTALION LED BY MAJ. ARTHUR H.CLARK OF BUFFALO, N.Y., SAID: "WE HAVE BEEN GOING SO FAST WE HARDLY HAVE HAD TIME TO EAT OR SLEEP. BUT THAT IS ALRIGHT WITH US. WE ARE GOING IN THE RIGHT DIRECTION."

SAARBRUECKEN, GERMANY, MARCH 21-(AP)-LT.COL. WALLACE R.CHEVES, 274TH REGIMENTAL EXECUTIVE OFFICER FROM SAVANNAH, GA., TURNED MOVING VAN OPERATOR INSIDE ENEMY TERRITORY TO GIVE SOME DOUGHBOYS A LIFT OUT OF SAARBRUECKEN.

"IT'S A LITTLE COMPLICATED," SAID THE HUSKY CHEVES.

"OUR THIRD BATTALION, COMMANDED BY LT.COL.KARL S.LANDSTROM OF LEBANON, ORE., CROSSED THE SAAR IN ASSAULT BOATS WEST OF SAARBRUECKEN AT 3 A.M. YESTERDAY. ONE COMPANY TURNED EAST INTO THE CITY AND THE REST WENT NORTH TO PROTECT THE FLANK.

"THEN THE SECOND BATTALION CROSSED AND SWUNG EAST INTO THE TOWN WHILE THE FIRST BATTALION STORMED HIGH GROUND ON THE SOUTH EDGE OF THE CITY TO PROTECT THE ATTACKERS.

"EVERYTHING WENT SPLENDIDLY. OUR LOSSES WERE LIGHT, BUT BECAUSE OF BRIDGES BEING BLOWN OVER RAILROAD TRACKS ALL THROUGH THE CITY, OUR TROOPS WERE HAVING TO MOVE ENTIRELY ON FOOT TOWARD THE OBJECTIVE TOWN OF BILDSTOCK, EIGHT MILES NORTHEAST OF SAARBRUECKEN.

"OUR COMMANDING OFFICER TOLD ME TO GO AND SEE WHAT COULD BE DONE TO SPEED THINGS UP.

"I WENT ACROSS A PONTOON BRIDGE IN A JEEP WITH PFC. SAMUEL F. DAVIS OF BERNIE, MO., AND LT.ARTHUR PARSONS OF MINNETONKA BEACH, MINN., AND WE HEADED NORTH WITH THREE CARBINES AND TWO PISTOLS.

"WE SOON GOT REINFORCEMENTS IN THE FORM OF A RECONNAISSANCE JEEP MOUNTING A MACHINE GUN AND COMMANDED BY LT.JOHN W.GORDON OF COLUMBUS, OHIO. SOON WE BEGAN RUNNING INTO LITTLE GROUPS OF GERMANS, ALL ARMED, BUT ALL WE COULD DO WAS TAKE THEIR GUNS AND TELL THEM TO WALK BACK TO SAARBRUECKEN AND SURRENDER TO SOMEBODY ELSE BECAUSE WE WERE TOO BUSY TO BOTHER WITH THEM.

"WE CUT BACK INTO A MAIN ROAD AT DUDWEILER, THREE MILES FROM SAARBRUECKEN AND MET ELEMENTS OF THE LEADING COMPANY UNDER CAPT.FRED E.CASSIDY, AN OLD FOOTBALL PLAYER FROM LINCOLN, NEB. (2675 SEWELL AVE.) WE TOOK TEN OR 12 OF HIS MEN ON THE JEEPS INTO BILDSTOCK AND FOUND A BIG GERMAN TRUCK MOVING ALONG THE STREET. THEN WE FOUND A HUGE MOVING VAN, DIESEL-POWERED.

"WE MADE THE DRIVERS GO BACK DOWN THE ROAD, LOAD UP THE REST OF CASSIDY'S COMPANY AND BRING THEM UP TO BILDSTOCK, SO THAT WAY WE TOOK OUR OBJECTIVE BEFORE DARK.

HEADQUARTERS 57TH BOMB WING IN THE MEDITERRANEAN MARCH 18-(DELAYED) (AP)-MAJ.FRED W.DYER, 29, OF DENVER COLO., HAS JUST COMPLETED HIS 101ST COMBAT MISSION, BUT HE INTENDS TO KEEP RIGHT ON FLYING UNTIL GROUNDED BECAUSE HE BELIEVES MEN WHO TELL OTHER MEN HOW TO FIGHT SHOULD FIGHT RIGHT ALONG WITH THEM.

"I'VE GOT TO GET UP AT BRIEFING AND TELL THESE KIDS HOW TO DO THIS AND THAT, AND IF I CAN'T DO IT MYSELF THEN I DON'T SEE WHAT GOOD I AM TO THE AIR FORCE," DYER EXPLAINED.

DYER HAS BEEN ON RAIDS OVER AFRICA, SICILY, ITALY, GREECE, YUGOSLAVIA FRANCE AND AUSTRIA. HE FEELS THAT TO QUIT FLYING NOW WOULD BE TO WASTE ALL THE KNOWLEDGE HE HAS GAINED THROUGH COMBAT FLYING.

DYER, WHOSE FIRST COMBAT MISSIONS WERE IN SUPPORT OF THE BRITISH 8TH ARMY IN AFRICA, IS RATED AS ONE OF THE BEST PILOTS IN THE THEATER. HE HAS WON THE DISTINGUISHED SERVICE CROSS, THE DFC TWICE, THE PURPLE HEART, THE SILVER STAR AND THE AIR MEDAL WITH 15 CLUSTERS. IN DECEMBER OF 1943 HE HAD COMPLETED HIS FIRST TOUR OF DUTY AND COULD HAVE GONE HOME ON LEAVE, BUT HE CHOSE TO STAY WITH HIS OUTFIT BECAUSE "I JUST HATE TO SEE THIS SHOW GOING ON WITHOUT ME IN IT."

DYER HAS COME BACK FROM ITALIAN MISSIONS ON A SINGLE ENGINE FOUR TIMES, WHEN HIS B-25 WAS HIT BY FLAK DURING RAIDS OVER PALMI, GUIDONA, PESCARA AND CASARSA.

DYER WON THE PURPLE HEART WHEN ONE ARM WAS GASHED BY FLAK OVER BENEVENTO, ITALY.

HE WAS AWARDED THE DISTINGUISHED SERVICE CROSS AFTE A RAID ON PATERNO, SICILY, IN JULY, 1943, WHEN HIS SHIP GOT FIVE DIRECT HITS FROM A BATTERY OF GERMAN 88S AND HE AND HIS CREW WEERE FORCED TO BAIL OUT OVER TH FRONT LINES.

"WE LANDED IN THE MIDDLE OF A TANK BATTLE AND HAD TO HIDE OUT IN A GULLY FOR AN HOUR AND A HALF BEFORE A 51ST HIGHLAND DIVISION TANK PICKED US UP AND TOOK US OFF THE BATTLEFIELD," HE SAID.

DYERS AMBITION NOW IS TO BE GIVEN COMMAND OF HIS OWN SQUADRON, FIGHT THE WAR THROUGH TO THE END, THEN GET A JOB BACK IN COLORADO WITH A MINING COMPANY SO HE CAN BE WITH HIS WIFE AND HIS 20-MONTH-OLD DAUGHTER WHOM HE HAS NEVER SEEN.

FAR EAST AIR FORCE HEADQUARTERS, LEYTE, MARCH 20 (DELAYED)-(AP) THE AIR WAR IN THE PACIFIC HAS JOINED THE AIR WAR IN CHINA AND ELEMENTS OF LT.GEN.GEORGE C.KENNEY'S FAR EAST AIR FORCE NOW ARE OPERATING IN CONJUNCTION WITH MAJ.GEN.CLAIRE CHENNAULT'S CHINA-BASED 14TH AIR FORCE.

LIBERATOR BOMBERS OF BOTH THEATERS ARE COOPERATING IN CLAMPING A TIGHT BLOCKADE ON JAPANESE SHIPPING TRYING TO SNEAK ALONG THE CHINA COAST, SAID BRIG.GEN.DONALD HUTCHINSON, DEPUTY COMMANDER OF THE FAR EAST AIR FORCE.

ALTHOUGH ESTABLISHMENT OF THE BLOCKADE HAS BEEN THE PRINCIPAL COOPERATIVE OBJECTIVE OF THE TWO COMMANDS SO FAR, HUTCHINSON SAID DEVELOPMENT OF AIR BASES ON PALAWAN, AT ZAMBOANGA ON MINDANAO AND ELSEWHERE IN THE PHILIPPINES WILL PERMIT EVEN GREATER COMBINED OPERATIONS AGAINST THE JAPANESE IN CHINA AND THAILAND.

ALREADY KENNEY'S FORCES HAVE HOVERED IN THE VICINITY OF SHANGHAI AND HONGKONG, SEARCHING FOR ENEMY SHIPPING. SOON HIS FLIERS MAY TAKE STRONG OFFENSIVE ACTION AGAINST THE CHINA MAINLAND.

A COMBINED OFFENSIVE AGAINST THAILAND BY THE 14TH AND 5TH AIR FORCES--THE 5TH IS A PART OF THE FAR EAST AIR FORCES--FORCED THE JAPANESE VIRTUALLY TO ABANDON THEIR LARGE AND WELL DEVELOPED NAVAL BASE AT CAMRANH BAY, HUTCHINSON SAID. JAPANESE NAVAL LOSSES ALSO WERE AN IMPORTANT FACTOR.

HUTCHINSON SAID THE FARFLUNG OPERATIONS OF THE FAR EAST AIR FORCES HAVE FAILED TO BRING MUCH ENEMY AERIAL INTERCEPTION. HE ADDED THERE ARE PLENTY OF INDICATIONS THE JAPANESE HAVE QUITE A FEW PLANES LEFT BUT SO FAR HAVE BEEN UNWILLING TO COMMIT THEM AGAINST NEUTRALIZATION ATTACKS.

GG1155ACW NM

THE ZAMBOANGA HARBOR AREA HAS BEEN CLEARED AND THE AIRFIELDS, ONE OF THEM A BOMBER FIELD 215 MILES NORTHEAST OF BORNEO, ARE NOW OPERATING WITHOUT HINDRANCE.

TWO MIDGET JAPANESE SUBMARINES WERE DESTROYED BY AIRCRAFT AT DAVAO, ON EASTERN MINDANAO.

A CONVOY OF SIX ENEMY SHIPS WAS ATTACKED BY MITCHELL BOMBERS IN THE CHINA SEA OFF AMOY AND A 6,000-TON FREIGHTER-TRANSPORT AND TWO DESTROYER ESCORTS WERE SUNK. IN ADDITION, TWO FREIGHTER-TRANSPORTS OF 7,000-TONS EACH WERE SET AFIRE AND PROBABLY DESTROYED, AND A DESTROYER WAS DAMAGED. TWO BOMBERS WERE LOST.

FORMOSA WAS HIT BY HEAVY BOMBERS IN ANOTHER NEUTRALIZATION RAID.

HIS PLANES SCORED THE FIRST TELLING BLOW ON NIPPON'S NAVY SINCE THE ENEMY WAS ROUTED OFF LEYTE GULF AND IN ADJACENT WATERS OF THE PHILIPPINES WITH 24 WARSHIPS SUNK, 13 PROBABLY SUNK AND 21 DAMAGED.

THE SUNDAY AND MONDAY TOLL OF MORE THAN 575 ENEMY PLANES DESTROYED OR DAMAGED IN ACTION EXTENDING FROM KYUSHU TO HONSHU MADE A TOTAL OF 1,400 ACCOUNTED FOR OVER JAPAN BY CARRIER ATTACKS. MITSCHER'S CARRIER AIR ARM KNOCKED OUT 882 DURING TWO RAIDS IN THE TOKYO AREA LAST FEBRUARY.

THE MONDAY TOLL OF 30 SHIPS SUNK OR DAMAGED WAS ADDED TO THE 77 BATTERED IN THE FEBRUARY ASSAULTS.

THE MITSCHER PLANES HAD CONCENTRATED SUNDAY ON KNOCKING OUT ENEMY AIR BASES BARRING APPROACH TO THE HEAVILY FORTIFIED INLAND SEA, BOUNDED BY THE ISLANDS OF KYUSHU, SHIKOKU AND THE WESTERN END OF HONSHU.

THEN HE MOVED HIS TASK FORCE NORTHEAST AND TURNED HIS PLANES LOOSE AGAINST THE VERY HEART OF JAPAN'S DWINDLING NAVAL POWER. TOKYO SAID 1,400 AMERICAN PLANES PARTICIPATED FROM 15 AIRCRAFT CARRIERS.

THEY SWARMED OVER A MAZE OF JAPANESE STRONGHOLDS SUCH AS KOBE, JAPAN'S NO. 1 SHIPBUILDING CENTER AND LEADING PORT, AND KURE, MAJOR NAVAL BASE.

THE INCOMPLETE REPORTS OF THE NAVY SPECIFIED FEW TARGETS, BUT THE PLANES WERE WITHIN ATTACKING RANGE OF SUCH POINTS AS YAWATA, HOME OF THE HUGE IMPERIAL IRON AND STEEL WORKS, ONE OF THE GREATEST CENTERS OF INDUSTRY OUTSIDE OF WESTERN EUROPE AND AMERICA.

A4FX

WITHIN REACH OF THEIR BOMBS AND ROCKETS WERE CITIES WITH DRYDOCKS, SHIP REPAIR YARDS, HARBORS, ARSENALS, CHEMICAL PLANTS, FACTORIES MAKING PARTS FOR PLANES AND TANKS, PLANTS MAKING EXPLOSIVES, COAL PORTS AND ONE PLACE, KURUME, WHICH IS A RAILROAD HUB AND RUBBER MANUFACTURING CITY.

RETURNING PILOTS TOLD CORRESPONDENT FARON THAT WHAT PLANES WERE LOST WERE BROUGHT DOWN LARGELY BY ANTI-AIRCRAFT FIRE. SOME SAID THE FLAK WAS "HEAVY ENOUGH TO WALK ON." STRONG FIGHTER OPPOSITION WAS ENCOUNTERED IN PLACES BUT ONE SQUADRON REPORTED IT VIRTUALLY WAS UNOPPOSED.

HOWEVER, ENEMY PLANES STRUCK REPEATEDLY AT MITSCHER'S WARSHIPS. THEY WERE TAKEN ON IN FIERCE SKY BATTLES BY CARRIER PLANES AND SHELLED BY ANTI-AIRCRAFT GUNS OF THE FLEET.

TOKYO RADIO BROADCAST THE UNCONFIRMED CLAIM THAT MORE THAN 180 AMERICAN PLANES WERE SHOT DOWN IN TWO DAYS AND 14 2-4'£80' '7,(94 $-.-&3$.

THE PRE

AMERICAN PLANES WERE SHOT DOWN IN TWO DAYS AND 14 WARSHIPS SUNK OR DAMAGED.

THE PRELIMINARY AMERICAN REPORTS OF THE TWO-DAY ACHIEVEMENTS AGAINST THE ENEMY AIRFORCE LISTED 200 SHOT DOWN AND 275 WIPED OUT ON THE GROUND.

"MORE THAN 100 WERE DAMAGED IN THE FIRST DAY'S ATTACK," A COMMUNIQUE SAID, "AND A LARGE NUMBER DAMAGED IN THE SECOND DAY'S ATTACKS."

THE MITSCHER PLANES SWEPT OVER SUCH AN EXTENSIVE AREA THAT IT EVEN IS POSSIBLE THEY HIT SASEBO AND NAGASAKI, NAVAL BASES ON WESTERN KYUSHU FACING CHINA ACROSS THE EAST CHINA SEA.

100,000 Nazis Captured at Rhine in Week; Rundstedt Out, Kesselring Takes Up Defense

MAR 23 1945

BIG BRITISH GUNS OPEN BARRAGE TO SCREEN CROSSING

100,000 Germans Taken Captive in Giant Offensive West of Rhine.

YANKS OVERRUN MAINZ

Patton Masses Tanks, Troops for Amphibious Assault into Inner Reich.

BEALMEAR

PARIS, March 22.—(AP) Two U. S. armies crushed all major resistance west of the Rhine today when the last phase of a battle that cost the Germans 100,000 captives alone, and the enemy said the river barrier was about to be stormed both from the Palatinate and opposite the Ruhr, which was blasted by thousands Allied war planes.

NIGHT

One German report said Lt. Gen. George S. Patton's Third army had massed 300 regular and amphibious tanks and strong engineering and motorized units for a smash into the mountainous inner core of the Reich.

Another declared that Field Marshal Sir Bernard L. Montgomery had opened a thunderous artillery barrage to screen a Rhine crossing west of Wesel, adding to destruction wrought by the thousands of warplanes which throughout the day bowed ruin through the Ruhr valley.

Third Ready for Crossing

Third army strategists now were free to plan the crossing of the Rhine, for possibly no more than 4,000 German effectives remained in action west of the stream after one of the worst disasters ever inflicted on German arms.

Written off were the great Rhine cities of Mainz and Ludwigshafen, where resistance folded during the day and the few defenders were chased into corners from which there was no retreat, with the Rhine bridges blown.

Field Marshal Albert Kesselring has succeeded Field Marshal Karl von Rundstedt, foremost Prussian strategist, as commander of all enemy forces on the Western front, it was stated at Montgomery's headquarters. Kesselring gained stature among the Nazis because of his stubborn defense of northern Italy.

The U. S. First army moved into position to outflank the Ruhr from the south, increasing its hold on the Rhine's east bank to 31 miles and deepening its bridgehead to nine miles.

Lined Along Sieg River

The First army now held nine miles of the south bank of the Sieg river northeast of Bonn within a dozen miles of the Ruhr's south rim and was ready to hurdle that minor river barrier and strike northward.

(The American Broadcasting Station in Europe said in a broadcast heard by NBC that the Yanks had crossed the Sieg and captured Siegburg, city of 20,000).

Southward, the First army bridgehead extended to within seven and a half miles of Coblenz, on the west bank, where the Third army sits in firm control.

German broadcasts admitted that the bridgehead had been mushroomed until now it had achieved "tactical importance" and might well form the south jaw to Montgomery's northern pincer. The enemy said Montgomery had tremendous forces poised ready to strike.

Third army banners floated over 100 miles of the Rhine's west bank from Ludwigshafen to Coblenz, and racing armor was five miles from Speyer and 19 from Karlsruhe, the two main roads back for the battered German band—all that remains of two German armies once more than 100,000 strong.

Bombers Smash Rail Lines

Even as Third army strategists turned to bolder plans, thousands of Allied bombers began smashing transport bottlenecks for the coming battle of the Ruhr to the north, where the Germans said the Allies are massed in terrific strength for a Rhine crossing that might come at any hour.

The German defense lines crumpled early today in Mainz; which fanatic SS troops had tried to turn into an island of resistance in a sea of almost unsurpassed destruction.

They had impressed police and firemen and unlimbered anti-tank and self-propelled guns and held out for two days, but the 90th division shattered their lines with an early morning barrage of great ferocity and then broke through.

By mid-afternoon Mainz was more than 75 per cent cleared and the Germans had been driven back into the old town, which covers only a small area in the heart of the city.

The 94th division to the south battled to rout the last snipers from the great chemical center of Ludwigshafen.

The battle west of the Rhine, which will carry out Gen. Eisenhower's orders to destroy every German short of the big river barrier, was being carried to a swift conclusion by the U. S. Third and Seventh armies.

The Tenth armored division of Lt. Gen. George S. Patton's Third army was fanning out, one column spearing six miles southeast to near Gommersheim, seven miles west of Speyer and only 19 miles northwest of Karlsruhe, industrial city of 200,000 on the Rhine's east bank.

Clamp Pincers On Speyer

The pincers was being clamped on Speyer. The Tenth, after capturing the steel city of Neustadt, pushed on into Bohl, six miles northwest of Speyer, over whose bridge the German radio was calling to the beaten troops to escape before it was too late.

Patton's mystery tank division which first penetrated Ludwigshafen left the mop-up of that city to the 94th infantry division and speared on south to within five miles of Speyer on the north.

Simultaneously, the Tenth sent one column slashing eight miles southeast through the Phalzerwald forest, where it severed the enemy's last good east-west road and railway by capturing Annweiler, six miles west of pivotal Landau.

Westward other armored columns drove south to the vicinity of Muncheweiler, only five miles north of Seventh army forces battling against the Germans doggedly holding a 35-mile stretch of the Siegfried Line from near Pirmasens eastward to the Rhine.

After capturing Annweiler, the Tenth drove two miles east to near Albersweiler, three miles west of Landau. There the Third army was seven miles north of the Seventh army fighting in the Siegfried Line at Dorrenbach, 17 miles west of Karlsruhe.

West of Pirmasens Lt. Gen. Alexander M. Patch's Seventh and Patton's Third armies were meshing together, crisscrossing each other's path in total disregard for army boundaries in a mop-up that was netting more prisoners in large numbers.

7th Army Gains 28 Miles; Planes Lash Route Into Ruhr

LONG

Paris, March 22 (AP)—The American 3d and 7th armies stamped out all but bewildered pockets of Germans west of the Rhine today and formed numerous junctions in the Saarland and Palatinate in a mighty conquest probably costing the Germans well over 100,000 men and two complete armies.

While the 3d Army mopped up Nazi remnants in Ludwigshafen and fought hard for Mainz, 7th Army men made advances of 28 miles from their last reported positions, reaching points many miles north of areas captured earlier by the 3d Army—which was rampaging southward.

In Mainz the 90th Division was waging the fight. The Germans there were being prodded by SS troops, and the American 90th Infantry had just got inside the city's outskirts, Associated Press Correspondent Thoburn Wiant reported at 10.38 A.M., battlefront time. Mainz policemen and firemen were identified among the German troops.

This stiff resistance was apparently due to fanatical leadership, because elsewhere along the Rhine the shattered Germans have been showing little fight.

Great Allied Air Fleets Pound Tank Country

Lieut. Gen. George S. Patton's 3d Army counted 11,335

prisoners yesterday and had another 11,000 not yet processed. These raised the estimated prisoner total for the campaign above 88,000.

Even as this victory—one of the greatest of the war—was being won in the Palatinate, Saarland and Hesse, great fleets of Allied planes battered the whole flat tank country north of the Ruhr to Bremen in prelude to perhaps the next campaign toward the north door to Berlin.

The 7th Army, which in early phases of the campaign served as the anvil on the south to Patton's 3d Army hammer attacks from the north and west, debouched onto the Rhine plain close to Worms, which the 3d Army captured Tuesday.

The 6th Armored Division of Lieut. Gen. Alexander M. Patch's army crashed through the 3d Army's conquered city of Kaiserslautern to Gruenstadt, 10 miles southeast of Worms and 15 miles north of Neustadt, newly captured by Patton's men. Gruenstadt is 14 miles northwest of Ludwigshafen.

Battle In Palatinate Merely A Mopup

The 7th Army also reached Otterburg, 4 miles north of Kaiserslautern, captured two days ago by the 3d. Even these 7th Army reports at midday were far from up-to-date, Associated Press Correspondent Lewis Hawkins reported.

The battle in the Palatinate became only a mopup. What few German positions remained were being cut to ribbons.

"Allied forces have reduced the German-held area south of the Moselle and west of the Rhine to little more than a bridgehead," General Eisenhower's communiqué said.

The blithe disregard which the 7th and 3d armies showed for military boundaries made battle maps a confusing maze of salients in which Patton's and Patch's troops were criss-crossed.

Some Nazis Believed Ferried Across River

Acting like shuttles of a great loom, the armies wove steel-meshed traps around hopelessly pocketed and beaten Germans in the Palatinate, Saarland and Hesse.

After several days of frantic retreat, the Germans were believed to have made a supreme effort during the night to save some remnants of the destroyed 1st and 7th armies by ferry crossings of the Rhine. But the bedraggled stragglers were hardly believed enough to adequately man the Valhalla Line across the river.

The battle of the Saarland and Palatinate, started by Patch's attacks from the south only eight days ago and actually decided March 16 when Patton crashed across the Moselle southwest of Coblenz, constituted one of the worst German defeats in the west.

Pirmasens Entered; Landau Probably Taken

Opposite Karlsruhe in the Rhine Valley north of Lauterbourg and Wissembourg, die-hard Germans still fought the 7th Army in fragments of the Siegfried Line.

Farther west, the great Siegfried Line fortress of Pirmasens was entered yesterday; there were no new reports today. It appeared probable that the 7th Army had captured Landau, fortified road center of 14,350, which was left far behind its multiple advances. Patch did not say.

"Elsewhere in the pocket from the northern limits of the 7th Army penetration at Gruenstadt, southwest to Pirmasens and east to the Rhine, organized resistance on any large scale seemed ended," Correspondent Hawkins reported.

Patton's tank columns raced within 6 miles of the Palatinate capital of Speyer and 6 of Landau.

The 3d Army was fighting 100 miles inside Germany and a bare 300 from Russian armies massed on the Oder southeast of Berlin.

1st Army Less Than 15 Miles From Ruhr Cities

The mighty American 1st Army, fanning out from its east Rhine salient between the Sieg and Wied rivers and further increasing its strength over "several" bridges, got within less than 15 miles of Gladbach and Mulheim, the nearest important Ruhr cities. At some points the 1st Army was less than a dozen miles from the Ruhr.

Lieut. Gen. Courtney H. Hodges's shock troops, reinforced with tanks, captured Buisdorf, on the Ruhr superhighway and crossed the Sieg. They also took Rott and Soeven. They pushed into Westerhausen and won 14 miles of the superhighway. They stood on the Sieg for 7 miles or more.

The remnants of nine Garman divisions have been destroyed by the 3d Army between Trier and Kaiserslautern in recent days, Correspondent Wiant reported from Patton's headquarters. A high-ranking German prisoner said one German commanding general had committed suicide in despondency over the ignominous destruction of the Wehrmacht west of the Rhine.

Neunkirchen A Considerable Prize

Neunkirchen and Neustadt were taken by the 3d Army.

Neunkirchen was a considerable prize. The city of 40,500 had extensive steel and iron works and coal mines. Neustadt, a city of 20,620 people, had paper, textile and other factories. Scores of other villages were added to the 4,225 places the 3d Army has captured this month in overrunning 5,230 square miles of Germany—exclusive of the conquests of yesterday and today.

The 94th Division was cleaning up Nazi remnants in Ludwigshafen. The 3d Army stood in strength along the whole west bank of the Rhine for 100 miles, from Ludwigshafen to Coblenz.

One column of the 10th Armored (Tiger) Division advanced 8 miles to within 6 northwest of Landau, 18 miles southeast of Kaiserslautern. Another force of tanks moved 6 miles forward to a position 6 miles northwest of Speyer.

Nazi Equipment Destroyed

In the last nine days, the 3d Army ground and air forces have destroyed 350 tanks, 200 big guns, 5,000 motor transports and dumps containing millions of rounds of German ammunition.

One sign of the growing disorganization of the German Army was in numerous reports of German corps staff officers being transferred to division staffs. Some corps no longer existed.

In the Landau sector, Patton's men moved swiftly to close another trap with the 103d (Cactus) Division, commanded by the hero of Bastogne, Maj. Gen. Anthony C. McAuliffe. The Germans were showing defensive skill only in Mainz and in the last fragments of the Siegfried Line beyond Karlsruhe, in the stretch between Pirmasens and the Rhine.

Within 6 Miles Of Speyer

Patton's unidentified armored division, operating in liaison with the 10th, closed within 6 miles north of Speyer—about midway between Ludwigshafen and Karlsruhe. It was the 65th Division that captured Neunkirchen. The 10th armored cleared Neustadt, 15 miles southwest of Ludwigshafen.

The mopup of some surrounded Germans in pockets between Bingen and Ludwigshafen was proceeding with dispatch, the enemy surrendering in companies.

The 9th, British 2d and Canadian 1st Armies were massed along the lower Rhine awaiting Eisenhower's signal to cross either into the Ruhr or north of it. The 15th and Allied 1st Airborne Armies were also at unannounced positions.

The 1st Army beating up the east Rhine bank south of the Ruhr controlled almost half of the Berlin side of the river between Coblenz and Cologne. The 1st threatened to burst across the Sieg River and into the Ruhr approaches at any minute.

The Air Attacks

All night long Mosquito and Black Widow planes ranged the roads north of the Ruhr and east of Mannheim and Heidelburg, opposite the Palatinate cleanup zone. When the night planes stopped the daylight onslaught began. Railroads at Siegen, 47 miles southeast of Cologne, were the first announced targets.

Ground troops flushed out a German patrol across the lower Rhine and killed most of the dozen intruders. American and British troops tested enemy positions beyond the river.

In the Palatinate, the Germans in retreat found it impossible to outspeed their pursuers. At one place, a routed German column running just ahead of Patton's infantry was put under such a terrific aerial battering that it finally came to a halt and hung out everything white it could find. The Germans then sat down along the road while ground forces moved up and accepted their surrender.

Lash Enemy Defenses Across Rhine, British Hammer Berlin.

CHAMBERLIN

LONDON, March 22. — (AP) More than 8,000 Allied aircraft gave Germany its greatest dawn to dusk lashing today, concentrating particularly on the enemy's troop and armor concentrations in the Ruhr across the Rhine from Marshal Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's impending "jump off" positions. The Ruhr blow was one of the most violent dellvered by air power during the war.

NIGHT

Last night RAF Mosquitos maintained the terrific pressure by bombing Berlin for the 31st consecutive time.

More Bombers Over Reich

The German radio declared that at least four other formations of night raiders were on the prowl over western Germany, the Hannover-Hildesheim area, Muenster and the province of Bavaria.

These were the major blows delivered during one of the finest flying days of the year yesterday:

1--Approximately 4,000 planes, including 2,000 American and British heavy bombers from Britain, tore up enemy concentrations and reinforcements within the Ruhr industrial basin and surrounding areas. This attack, one of the most violent delivered by air power during the war, was directed at targets across the Rhine from Field Marshal Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's impending "jump off" positions.

2—A force of more than 500 Italy-based U. S. heavy bombers blasted the big Ruhland oil refinery 70 miles southeast of Berlin. This blow was believed to have virtually halted the production of gasoline within the U. S. 15th air force's range in southern Germany, Austria and Hungary.

3—Using the new 11-ton volcano bombs, British heavy bombers collapsed the main span and the approaches to the important Nienburg railroad bridge between Hannover and Bremen.

4—American and British tactical air forces flew nearly 4,000 sorties from bases on the continent, losing only five planes while destroying 63 German aircraft on the ground and damaging 46 others and picking off eight in the air. The U. S. Ninth air force alone destroyed or damaged 3,143 railroad cars, 135 locomotives, 92 tanks and armored vehicles and 780 trucks. It rained 1,600 tons of bombs on 16 key communications centers all in a 25-mile triangle between Muenster and the Rhine.

Austrian Targets Hit

So widespread were the daylight operations that U. S. armadas from Britain and Italy criss-crossed each other and part of the fighter escort for the U. S. Eighth air force bombers made a rendezvous with the 15th air force's Flying Fortresses winging up from the south. Italy-based aircraft also smashed at targets in Austria and Czechoslovakia, and early reports indicated that 24 American heavy bombers were missing.

An Eighth air force communique said figures were incomplete on the losses sustained by the Britain-based American bombing fleet.

Refineries within the range of U. S. heavy bombers in Italy were turning out 304,000 tons of fuel a month for the German army a year ago, American officers said, and now are producing approximately 500 tons (175,000 gallons) a month.

More than 1,300 U. S. Flying Fortresses and Liberators mauled nine Nazi army encampments and administrative and supply headquarters in the Ruhr and five airdromes from the vicinity of Bremen to the Munich area.

BOMBERS POUND GERMANS IN RUHR

1,300 Planes Hit Nine Big Ruhr Army Camps

London, March 22 (AP) — The full fury of Allied air might was turned directly on German troops jammed into the Ruhr today as 1,300 American heavy bombers blasted nine of the largest army camps in western Germany and five more airfields near the front.

JAMESON

London, March 22 (AP) — Allied bomber fleets took off from British bases before dawn today in continuation of an around-the-clock aerial offensive which last night saw RAF Mosquitos hammer Berlin for the thirtieth consecutive night.

A powerful force of four-engined British Lancasters spearheaded the daytime assaults, and later the German radio reported raiders thundering in over the Reich from the south.

30. 24 — 24111

Indications were that another two-way Blitz was developing against the Reich—a blow which perhaps would equal yesterday's record attack by 7,000 planes which dumped most of their bomb loads into an area smaller than the State of Missouri.

Rail Centers Lashed

This co-ordinated operation involving every western air command at General Eisenhower's disposal spread chaos and destruction across scores of railway centers, fortified towns and airfields scattered over the North German plain.

Ten airfields were beaten into rubble and then set afire.

An RAF reconnaissance pilot, who flew over the region, said he did not pass a single sizable town which was not in flames.

"It was really staggering," he said.

19 Planes Shot Down

Nineteen German planes, including several Jets, were shot down yesterday, while 45 other planes and three gliders were destroyed aground.

The Mosquitos attacked Berlin twice during the night. The first visit was by the largest force of Mosquitos ever sent to Berlin, possibly close to 100.

Also during the night Lancasters attacked an oil refinery at Hamburg and a gasoline plant between Bochum and Dortmund in the Ruhr. Allied losses for all operations yesterday and last night from bases in the west totaled 20 heavy bombers, 9 American and 11 British, and 6 medium and light bombers and 21 fighters.

Caught Flatfooted

A report from British 2d Tactical Air Force headquarters said the Mosquito attack yesterday on Gestapo headquarters at Copenhagen caught the Germans flatfooted, and the place was gutted.

Allied aircraft from Italy yesterday again attacked the enemy's main rail escape line in Yugoslavia between Graz and Brod.

A German headquarters just north of Brod was damaged by South African Beaufighters.

Airmen Batter Road Hubs and Troop Camps All Over Sector.

1300 HEAVIES TAKE PART

Airfields Behind Valhalla Line Are Also Hit in Big Assault.

London, March 22 (A. P.).—The full fury of Allied air power was turned directly on German troops jammed into the Ruhr today as 1,300 American heavy bombers blasted nine of the largest army camps in western Germany and five more airfields near the front.

Incomplete reports indicated that more than 7,000 warplanes were taking a crack at German targets. Fourteen waves of Fortresses and Liberators were protected by 700 Mustangs in the attacks on camps and air bases in the Ruhr. The Mustangs also patrolled the sky for other widespread air operations ranging from the North Sea to Austria.

The tactical Air Commands thus were able to throw their full weight into the merciless bomb and rocket offensive which Gen. Eisenhower has warned was coming.

They flew over 2,500 sorties by 1 P. M., with medium and light bombers concentrating their whole morning onslaught against ten road and rail bottlenecks in the network between Wesel and Muenster morth of the Ruhr. The results were so ruinous that one squadron had to make five preliminary runs before it could get good enough a view of its target through the smoke of the previous attacks to strike.

Fighter-bombers ranged the whole length of the Ruhr Valley east of the Rhine as far as Brunswick, 175 miles east of Duesseldorf, and carried the battle to the positions opposite the Third and Seventh Army fronts, where they reported the destruction of sixty-eight armored vehicles.

The weather again favored the airmen, and so many hundreds of aircraft ranging in all directions over the Reich that the Nazi radio finally gave up trying to follow them in its warning service.

American bombers from Britain in bombing airfields south of Stuttgart and Nuernberg probably passed heavy bombers from Italy which DNB said attacked from over the Alps.

The Nazi troops camps attacked north of the Ruhr were within a 60-mile arc of the Remagen bridgehead. They were located at Bottrop, Gladbeck, Barmingholten, Dorsten, Westerholt, Muelheim, Hinsbeck, Hattingen and Gefresheim.

The airfields attacked were at Kitzengen, Giebelstadt, between Frankfurt and Nuernberg, Rhein-Main, Schwabisch-Hall, northeast of Stuttgart, and Ahlhorn, southwest of Bremen. Most of them were jet plane bases.

Mosquitoes hammered Berlin for the thirtieth consecutive night.

Von Rundstedt Believed Shorn of Western Command

LONDON, March 22—(AP) The German radio declared tonight that Field Marshal Sir Bernard L. Montgomery had begun the artillery barrages west of Wesel as a prelude to a "big Rhine crossing onslaught" into the Ruhr.

Another broadcast declared that the U. S. Ninth army had sent raiding parties across the Rhine near the destroyed Duesseldorf bridge, but were repulsed by artillery fire.

German news agencies reflected alarm concerning the entire Western front, and Berlin said the U. S. Third army to the south had concentrated about 300 tanks—many of them amphibious—"and are making preparations for a Rhine crossing."

It was possible that in this fateful hour, the Germans had switched their commanders on the Western front.

Dispatches from three U. S. correspondents of separate sectors of the Western front said that Field Marshal Karl Von Rundstedt, top-flight Prussian strategist, had been reported shorn of command in the west and that his successor was Field Marshal Albert Kesselring, Nazi favorite of the Italian fighting.

Coupled with disasters in the west was Von Rundstedt's asserted drinking. One dispatch said Von Rundstedt was understood to have drunk himself into a state of illness.

These reports came from the U. S. Ninth and First fronts and headquarters of Montgomery. If true, it would be the second time Von Rundstedt fell from grace.

The first was when he reportedly quarreled with the late Field Marshal Irwin Rommel over methods for the battle of the Normandy beachhead. He was recalled after Nazi-picked generals carried Germany to the brink of disaster in the battle of France.

Lt. Gen. Kurt Dittmar, German military analyst, let the German people in on a frank appraisal of the situation in which the Reich now finds itself squeezed remorselessly from east to west.

The U. S. First army's bridgehead on the Rhine, he said, has become so deep "that it assumes more than tactical importance" while to the south the "operation of the Americans across the Moselle and Nahe rivers is more spacious than anything seen since Avranches (Normandy breakthrough)."

"We cannot," he continued, "deny the American command the ability to make use of the overwhelming material at their disposal. The targets and energy with which these were followed up remind us of German methods in the first years of the war. The enemy is not hampered by any symptoms of shortage."

Attack On Ruhr Expected

Dittmar predicted that the Allies would try to crack the German defenses by attacking the Ruhr from the north and observed: "Nobody must overlook the fact that the situation begins to develop here which requires urgently strong decisions from the high command."

The clearing of the Rhine west bank was likened to the clearing of the east bank of the Oder, "which was the main stage in Russian operations."

Dittmar declared that there was no doubt that had the Russians wanted to, they could have pressed beyond Budapest to Bratislavia and the Vienna plain, but that the Soviet command played its cards cautiously "and clearly intends to make as sure as possible the success of the second blow."

"It will be wise," he said, "to give great importance to the present Russian offensive in Upper Silesia."

Nazi propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels in his weekly article in Das Reich, broadcast by DNB, asserted that "our enemies will soon learn that our sacred soil will have to be bought with streams of blood."

"Should the enemy," he continued, "attempt to force us to our knees by terror, we must answer with counter-terror—yes, with more effective means of terror. We will beat our enemies in the east and west. There is no doubt whatever of our success."

The Free Danish press service said in Stockholm that the Germans feared an Allied invasion of Denmark soon and had told Danish authorities to evacuate a number of cities on the east coast by April 15.

Another American dispatch from Montgomery's front said the Germans were believed withdrawing SS (elite) troops and the Gestapo into interior Germany, possibly Bavaria, for a last-ditch Nazi stand.

The withdrawal was begun two months ago, the dispatch said, when the Canadians noticed a sudden lack of SS and Gestapo personnel, that had been keeping German fighting units in the battle lines under threats of death.

KESSELRING CHIEF IN WEST

Transferred From Italy To Replace Von Rundstedt

London, March 22 (AP)—Field Marshal Albert Kesselring, current Nazi favorite among the German generals, has assumed command of all enemy forces on the Western front, it was stated today at Field Marshal Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's headquarters.

This change removed from command Field Marshal Karl Gerd von Rundstedt, foremost Prussian strategist.

Bald, 57-year-old Kesselring, pal of Reichsmarshal Hermann Goering, has risen of late in the esteem of the Nazi heirarchy by his tenacious defense of northern Italy.

Kesselring fought the first World War as a pilot, as did Goering, and shortly before the outbreak of the second World War he took command of air forces based in Berlin, the most important in the Reich.

Resigned From Luftwaffe

The attack on Poland gave him his chance to put into effect his ideas on close teamwork between the air and ground forces—theories which had caused him previously to run afoul of the old guard and to resign from his position as first chief of the general staff of the Luftwaffe.

Kesselring directed operations between Danzig and Brest Litovsk with such success that his demands for close teamwork between air fleets, tanks, artillery and infantry were generally accepted.

Shifted to the west, Kesselring took command of Fleet 11 in the northern section of the Western front, where he led the air attacks on Holland and Belgium, for which he was made a field marshal in June of 1940.

Beaten Over Britain

But Kesselring was badly beaten in the battle of Britain, did little better as commander of German aviation on the central Russian sector in the Winters of 1941 and 1942, then was shifted to chief of the Luftwaffe in Italy.

Once more he was badly beaten when he tried to stop Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's rout in North Africa, and he crawled into the Nazi doghouse when his air forces were trounced in Sicily and southern Italy.

Then he suddenly appeared out of the doghouse as the commander of all German forces in Italy in December, 1943, and since then has kept himself in high esteem by his skillful defense in the mountains of Italy.

By The Associated Press.

LONDON, Friday, March 23—The Germans reported last night that Field Marshal Sir Bernard L. Montgomery had launched an offensive from the west along a sixty-five-mile front from Arnhem to Duesseldorf. There was no Allied confirmation.

A censorship screen covered the whole Twenty-first Army Group front, but correspondents with the troops were allowed to say that the build-up there was the largest since Normandy. A D-day tenseness gripped Britain.

One German broadcast heard by the Paris radio said that Marshal Montgomery's forces already were across the Rhine. This might have been a distortion of a similar DNB broadcast recorded earlier in London saying the Allies were about to attack.

The Germans gave varying reports ranging all the way from the assertion that the blow was about to be struck at any hour to others that the offensive already was under way. However, a Berlin broadcast early this morning to German soldiers at the front made no mention of the northern sector of the Western Front.

Nazis Report Yanks Using Pershing Tanks

London, March 22 (AP)—The German radio declared today that American forces on the Western front now are using the new General Pershing tank, equipped with guns of 90 millimeters—nearly 4 inches.

The broadcast quoted front dispatches as saying that the Pershing was the "counterpart of the German 'King Tiger' tank."

The dispatches did not indicate whether the new American tanks had appeared in large numbers and did not comment on their performance.

[American correspondents at the front have not been permitted to say in dispatches whether the General Pershing tank actually has gone into action.]

rleeing Civilians Hamper Nazi Retreat

London, March 22 (AP)—Hundreds of thousands of German civilians were reported in full flight today from the Ruhr Valley and menaced areas immediately east of the Rhine, gravely hindering Nazi military transport in their frantic haste to escape the advancing Allied armies.

Swedish advices said roads leading eastward to Nuernberg and Munich were clogged with fleeing civilians, and likened the situation to the dark days of 1940 when the conquering Nazi armies overran the Low Countries and France, driving before them a flood of refugees which impeded Allied troops trying to stem the enemy tide.

News Of Disaster

Speeding the mass exodus was news of the disaster which has befallen the German armies west of the Rhine and ominous German radio predictions of an impending Allied airborne invasion of the Ruhr—predictions pointed up by concentrated Allied air attacks yesterday on Nazi airfields in that area.

Allied propagandists gave added impetus to the migration by dinning into German ears General Eisenhower's warning that areas in the path of the Allied armies would be death traps for any civilians remaining there.

At the same time the Moscow radio broadcast a statement in the name of the "Free German Committee" in the Soviet capital urging the Ruhr miners to protect their mines from attempts at destruction by Nazi officials.

Upper Silesian Example

A Major Stettlein, described as a member of the committee—composed largely of captured German officers—told the miners to follow the example of Upper Silesian miners who, he said, were able to save the mines there.

"Should there be fighting in the Ruhr," he added, "the mines will be destroyed and coal production will be restricted for many years. This will make the gigantic task of reconstruction nearly impossible."

The Stockholm newspaper Svenska Dagbladet said that Essen, Dortmund, Gelsenkirchen, Bochum and other cities in the Ruhr region already were "dead" and deserted.

Saarbruecken Found Deserted

A front dispatch said American troops that swept through Saarbruecken found less than 1,000 of the city's 135,000 population still there.

Meanwhile, the German people were told by their Government last night that they are facing a sharp cut in food rations and that they soon may get no meat at all. "Our plans have been wrecked because millions of Germans have returned from border areas and have to be fed on shrunken space," Joseph Stock, agricultural director of the Reich, declared in a domestic radio broadcast.

At the same time the Swiss press asserted that Adolf Hitler had completed preparations for a last stand in the mountainous Berchtesgaden region in southern Germany. There, Swiss papers said, Hitler hopes to wait out the "twilight period" after the war which he believes will end in a reign of chaos and unrest that will split the Allies asunder and permit a rebirth of National Socialist Germany.

YANK BOMBERS USE NEW TYPE FIRE BOMB

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, Paris, March 22—(AP) Allied bombers, using a new type of incendiary bomb still on the secret list, recently attacked and virtually destroyed what was believed to have been Field Marshal Karl Von Rundstedt's headquarters, it was learned tonight.

Approximately 150 automobiles parked in the area were wrecked.

It also was revealed that German jet planes have developed new tactics which are troublesome but largely unsuccessful.

FINGERPRINT NAZIS

WITH AMERICAN TROOPS IN GERMANY, March 22—(AP) The job of registering and fingerprinting conquered Germans has begun and ten million registration blanks have been sent to military government detachments in the conquered Rhineland areas. There are not that many people living in the occupied areas at present but AMG authorities expect to use up all the blanks, fingerprinting ten million Germans in the next few weeks.

A.M.G. Pressed To Keep Pace With 3d Army

Government Men Flooded With Hundreds of Towns for a Political Mop-Up

WITH UNITED STATES 3D ARMY IN GERMANY, March 22 (AP).—The military government is doing a fancy "island hopping" job in trying to keep up with Lieutenant General George S. Patton's 3d Army and its tanks.

Armored combat spearheads have, figuratively, been snatching up hundreds of cities, towns and villages and tossing them in the direction of the military government with shouts of "Pick them up, boys, they're yours!"

The result is that military government teams trained to take over administration of conquered territory are deep in work, trying to organize and control civilian affairs in an archipelago of 4,225 separate communities suddenly cut off from the rest of Germany.

Eventually each team will arrive in a German town or city for which it long was designated and then will settle down. Meanwhile, there's an enormous political mopping-up job to be done, comparable to the military mopping-up by combat troops.

In traveling along the traffic-jammed roads littered with German wreckage, one is forcibly impressed with the speed of the offensive. Lightning thrusts by armor have clawed great hunks of countryside into the 3d Army's steel net.

Some quaint villages and towns have been left intact. Nevertheless, there is a grim picture of destruction in Patton's wake.

Most of this destruction was wrought by fleets of bombers in the weeks and months preceding the American push, but the grimmest evidence of the momentum of the advance is seen in the details—German trucks, tanks and other vehicles in jumbled heaps along the road, frozen German dead here and there.

Four German soldiers walked into a Military Government office the other day and said that they wanted to surrender. A lieutenant, already overworked, said: "Come back tomorrow—I'll take care of you." They came back the next day, bringing three more prisoners with them.

In another town an honest washwoman walked in with a huge basket of laundry. She said: "The soldiers moved forward so fast that they left their laundry behind. The MP's told me to leave it with the Military Government."

DEVERS CAUTIONS TROOPS

Warns That War Is Not Over, Foe Is Untrustworthy

SIXTH ARMY GROUP HEADQUARTERS, March 22 (AP)—Lieut. Gen. Jacob L. Devers told the Sixth Army Group today that the fight was not over with the enemy's collapse west of the Rhine and that the conduct of the group would determine "whether the Germans will realize we mean business."

In a folder issued to troops fighting once more on German soil, he listed seven rules of conduct toward the enemy similar to those issued by other Allied Armies already inside Germany. He told his men "never to trust the Germans," to be "fair but firm" and to avoid "acts of violence except when required by military necessity, for you are an American soldier, not a Nazi."

In a message to his troops, General Devers said that the Germans must be firmly impressed with the fact that they had been defeated, and that acceptance of Nazi leadership had made their defeat necessary and "earned for them the distrust of free and peaceful people."

"Your conduct," he added, "will largely determine * * * whether you and your children must be called to fight and die (again) on foreign soil."

Kesselring New Nazi Chief On West Front?

With the United States 9th Army, March 22 (AP)—Speculation rose in Allied lines on the Western front today that Field Marshal Albert Kesselring might have been transferred from northern Italy to take command of German armies in the west, succeeding Field Marshal von Runstedt.

Kesselring is reported now to be high in Hitler's graces as a result of his long-delaying campaign in Italy and his prompt declaration of allegiance to Hitler after last July's bomb plot.

YANK SOLDIER MEETS MOTHER IN GERMANY

WITH THE 94TH INFANTRY ON THE RHINE, March 22—(AP) Pfc. Helmut Bellenbacher, Wilkinsburg, Pa., was riding with an anti-aircraft unit when it was ordered to halt at Osbach.

Bellenbacher walked into a familiar house and found an elderly woman washing the dishes and a man reading a book.

"Mama—Hans!" Bellenbacher exclaimed.

They were his mother and brother, from whom he had not heard since the outbreak of the war. Osbach was Bellenbacher's birthplace.

Rhine Pontoon Span Laid In 10 Hours

Across the Rhine, March 22 (AP). First Army engineers threw one of "several" bridges across the Rhine in the Remagen-Bonn bridgehead in the record time of ten hours, it may be disclosed today.

A corps commander bet one engineering unit it could not span the 1,200-foot river within 15 hours. The engineers promptly cut five hours off that estimate and won themselves time for a beer party while infantry and armored units crossed the span.

The first pontoon bridge was built across the Rhine March 10, three days after the Ludendorff bridge was captured. Damaged by German explosives, the Ludendorff bridge collapsed March 17.

Mainz Found Ghost City, But With Brewery Intact

100 Buildings Still Standing, 2 Cathedrals in Ruins

MAINZ, Germany, March 22 (AP).—Americans of the 90th Infantry Division today captured most of Mainz, the biggest city yet to fall to the 3d Army.

It is more nearly the truth to say that the 90th got what once was a big city. In all Mainz, which had a population of 159,000, there are fewer than 100 habitable buildings, and they are hard to find.

Intact, to the delight of the dusty, thirsty footsloggers, was a big brewery, which had full steam up turning out lager.

The two cathedrals are in ruins, although the dome of one still stands.

12,000 In Mayen Lived In Caves

Mayen, Germany, March 22 (AP). Allied air attacks last year prompted the Germans to build an underground city hall beneath a Twelfth Century castle to administer civilian affairs of this smashed and desolated city north of the Moselle.

The subterranean Rathaus was carved out of rock after the first heavy Allied bombing of May 3, 1944. The Nazis made it big enough to shelter a large part of the city's population of 18,000, as well as the burgomaster's staff and the municipal police and fire departments.

1,200 Feet Long

It is about 1,200 feet long, with wide galleries like a mine. An Allied Military Government detachment commanded by Lieut. Jonathan B. Rintels, of Brookline, Mass., now has taken over.

Another cavern in Mayen sheltered 2,000. For a while some 12,000 men, women and children lived underground in this battered city.

The underground city hall was equipped with a telephone exchange. Until the municipal power system was wrecked it had electric lights and heaters.

City Wrecked

Lieut. Col. A. W. K. Billings, Jr., of Boston, Mass., an adviser on military government matters, said Mayen was one of the most completely wrecked cities yet encountered. Among the architectural casualties is the twisted tower of St. Clemens Church. However, the massive Genovevaburg, the castle over the subterranean city hall, still stands almost unscratched.

Burgomaster Anton Schwindenhammer contributed a sidelight on German morale.

"We had been expecting the Americans to arrive ever since July last year," he said.

S. S. Guards and Gestapo Taken From Front Lines

Allies Believe Nazis Withdraw Men for Bavarian Stand

WITH CANADIANS ON THE RHINE, March 22 (AP).—The Germans are withdrawing Elite S. S. troops and Gestapo men, the Nazi party's military backbone, from the western front to organize a last-ditch stand in the interior of Germany, probably in Bavaria, Allied officers said today. The withdrawal first was noted two months ago.

Enemy troops being captured are devoid of S. S. men and Gestapo units, which formerly forced the German soldier to keep up the battle under the threat of a bullet in his back.

"It is quite possible that there still are a few S. S. and Gestapo men at or near the front," said one Allied officer, "but their numbers are insignificant compared to two months ago. Then they were dispersed in considerable numbers among all German troops to bolster morale and spy for the party.

Within Mile of Slovakia

45,000 Nazis Killed or Captured, Russians Seize Neustadt.

LONDON, Friday, March 23—(AP) Russian troops, launching a powerful offensive to clear industrial Upper Silesia, have captured the war production city of Neustadt, driven within one mile of Czechoslovakia and killed or captured 45,000 Nazi troops in a trap forged by twin Red army advances of 25 miles, Moscow announced last night.

Cutting through seven major enemy strongholds and more than 400 other towns and villages south and southeast of besieged Breslau, troops of Marshal Ivan S. Konev's First Ukrainian army were advancing on an 80-mile front and threatened the key towns of Strehlen, Munsterberg, Niesse, Loebschuetz and Ratibor.

Simultaneously, Soviet forces battled to within three and one half miles of the Baltic port of Gdynia and tightened their siege and around the former free city of Danzig. Deep in Czechoslovakia's Tatra mountains, other Russian shock troops forced the Hron river within five miles of Banska Bystrica.

Konev's new offensive dovetailed with a thunderous assault which the Germans said the Russians had launched against the prize German naval base of Stettin, and with a fast-driving Red army offensive in Hungary which Berlin said was hammering west of Budapest within 95 miles of Vienna.

to the offensive in areas we south of the Oder river town ...peln, 47 miles southeast of Breslau, in extreme southeastern Germany.

Striking south from Grottkau, 23 miles west of Oppeln, one arm of a giant pincer plunged 25 miles toward Neustadt, 58 miles southeast of Breslau, while the second struck 25 miles west from bridgeheads across the Oder between Krappitz, 13 miles south of Oppeln, and Ratibor, 40 miles southeast of Oppeln.

Linking near Zuelz, five miles northeast of Neustadt, the Russians encircled a large enemy group in the Tillowitz and Schelitz forests southwest of Oppeln, killing more than 30,000 and taking another 15,000 prisoner. The encircled enemy group was routed, Marshal Stalin announced in an order of the day, in a pocket about 420 square miles in area.

The two arms then seized Neustadt, within four miles of the vital railroad linking the Czechoslovak industrial city of Moravska-Ostrava with central Germany and Prague. Berlin said the Russians were striking for Ziegenhals, eight miles west of Neustadt, in an attempt to cut the strategic Sudeten mountain rail line.

The junction of the two jaws of Konev's pincers established an 80-mile front west of the Oder river, along which the Russians threatened five major towns producing war materials for the German war machine. At the northern end, 30 miles west of Oppeln, Konev's troops increased the peril to the already-threatened 11-way communication hub of Strehlen by capturing Lorenzdorf, seven miles southeast.

Four miles south of Lorenzdorf, Konev's tanks and infantry seized Arndorf, eight miles northeast of the key town of Munsterdorf, while Seiffersdorf, eight miles east of that industrial town, also fell.

Closing in on the fortified enemy strongpoint of Neisse, 28 miles southwest of Oppeln, Konev's troops drove to within three miles of the city on the northeast and northwest by taking Stephansdorf and Gross Neudorf. Enemy broadcasts said street fighting raged in Neisse.

Neustadt lies three miles from the Sudeten border. Four miles east of the captured 10-way rail and road hub, the Russians ground into Dittersdorf, only one mile from the Czechoslovak frontier.

Twelve miles southeast of Neustadt, the Russians hammered within one and a half miles of the great industrial city of Loebschuetz, capturing Groebnig on the west. Sabschuetz, three miles northwest, also was taken.

Ratibor, largest German city in extreme southeastern Germany, was threatened by Soviet forces which captured Matzkirch, 10 miles northwest.

Kurt Dittmar, German military commentator, said the Silesian action was the "first step to open the Moravian gap and thus force entry into the fortress of Bohemia along the classic route via Olmeutz."

Konev's troops were 47 miles northeast of Olmeutz at Groebnig.

Some 105 miles southeast of Ratibor, Marshal Rodion Y. Malinovsky's Second Ukrainian army crossed the Hron river on a three-mile front north of Zvolen, taking Badin, five miles south of Banska-Bystrica, and Hajniky, two and a half miles north of Zvolen. Dubravica and Ceren, six miles southeast of Banska Bystrica, also were taken in a push through mountains on the Hron's east bank.

On Russia's northern front, Marshal Konstantin K. Rokossovsky's Second White Russian army inched toward Gdynia and Danzig, battering back enemy counter-attacks to capture Voeltzendorf, three and a half miles southwest of Gdynia, and closing in on Danzig from the southeast, south and west.

Advancing up to three miles on a 12-mile front across the canal-webbed Vistula delta, the Russians captured Kriepkohl, 12 miles southeast of Danzig, took the road junction of Hohenstein and swept into the village of Bangschin, six miles south.

East of the blazing Gdynia-Danzig pocket, Marshal Alexander M. Vasilevsky's Third White Russian army scoured the East Prussian "cauldron" around the enemy stronghold of Heiligenbeil. Advancing on a five-mile front, they captured Mueckuhnen, six miles northeast of Heiligenbeil and four miles west of the escape port of Balga.

Schirten, two miles east of Heiligenbeil, was seized and the evaporating coastal pocket was constricted to 52 square miles, 13 miles long and no more than four miles from the sea.

While Soviet heavy bombers lashed the Hungarian rail center of Veszprem, Moscow announced that Red army, Yugoslav and Bulgarian forces had wiped out a German bridgehead thrown across the Drava river northwest of Osijek in Yugoslavia. Osijek is 100 miles northwest of Belgrade and 150 miles south of Budapest.

May Seek Link With Allies

Meanwhile, enemy broadcasts reported that Marshal Gregory K. Zhukov had hurled an estimated 300,000 men and at least 800 tanks into the battle for Stettin in a massive assault which may be the prelude to a breakout into Germany's northern plain and a sweep to cut off all Baltic ports and link with Anglo-American armies in the west.

Russian assault groups were said to be storming across the Oder's east channel and fighting on a mid-river island in an effort to win control of bridges leading into the city.

While Adolf Hitler sent a suicide garrison of Elite Guard troops to hold out in Stettin, Hans Borgelt, German war reporter, described the scale of Russian attacks as "extraordinary, even considering the scale of previous Soviet deployment of strength elsewhere on the Eastern front."

Reds Increasing Fury Of Blows Upon Stettin

HASCHKE

London, March 22 (AP)—The Russians redoubled the fury of their onslaught against Stettin, "key to northern Germany," and in Hungary reinforced attempts on a 50-mile front to batter through the Danube gate into Austria, the Germans said today.

In East Prussia, Soviet storm units fought into Heiligenbeil, last of the Baltic coastal fortress towns southwest of Koenigsberg, Moscow dispatches reported.

They drove to within 6 miles of Danzig, around which they had drawn a 25-mile siege arc, and were within 2½ miles of wedging Danzig and Gdynia apart.

Reinforces Berlin Front

On the Berlin front, Soviet correspondents said Marshal Gregory Zhukov was moving reinforcements up to the Oder "in unbroken streams" in warm weather which forced the Russians to doff their overcoats and cotton-paded jackets. Tankmen in undershirts rode the decks of their machines.

Describing Stettin as a city whose fall would open the way to a sweep across the northern German plain past Berlin perhaps as far as the Elbe River, a German war reporter said the Russian assault was "extraordinary, even considering the scale of previous deployments of strength elsewhere on the Eastern front."

Battle Undecided

"Hundreds of Russian guns have been in action since Thursday, a week ago," he said. "The battle is still undecided. Russian efforts to enter the heart of the city and possibly to capture the Oder bridges intact continue with unabated violence."

For two days the Russians have been just outside Stettin, Berlin's chief port, with the muzzles of their guns blazing from Altdamm, the Stettin suburb on the east bank of the Oder.

On the Hungarian front the Germans said the Russians were attacking all the way between Lake Balaton and the Danube.

Fortified City Evacuated

German broadcasts said Esztergom, fortified city on the south bank of the Danube and 20 miles northwest of Budapest, Felsoegalla and near-by Tatabanya had been evacuated.

Tatabanya is 27 miles west of Budapest and 18 miles southeast of Komarom, at the confluence of the Danube and Vag rivers.

German broadcasts admitted that Komarom, 50 miles from the Austrian border, was in danger from spearheads only 10 miles distant.

Southwest of Budapest, the German communiqué announced, Marshal Feodor Tolbukhin's forces had advanced 12 miles west of Szekesfehervar and were fighting on both sides of Varpalota, 46 miles from Budapest.

Annihilation of the trapped German forces along the Frisches Haff (lagoon) in East Prussia moved toward a swift conclusion. The Jarft River reportedly was failing to hold back Marshal Alexander Vasilevsky's onrush into Heiligenbeil.

Ring Drawing Tighter

"The battle is coming to a close," said a dispatch to the army newspaper Red Star concerning the Heiligenbeil action. "The encircling ring hourly draws tighter."

Marshal Konstantin K. Rokossovsky's forces hammered wedges into Danzig's defenses from the south and west. The city itself was about 6 miles from the muzzles of his artillery.

Port Is Shelled

The Russians had driven within 2 miles of cutting the Danzig-Gdynia coastal road by capturing Gross Katz, 4 miles southwest of Gydnia and 7 northwest of Danzig.

They also had swept up nine towns and villages in the Danzig area.

Vasilevsky's guns brought the Danzig port installations at the mouth of the Passarge River under heavy fire. This river flows through the stronghold of Braunsberg, which fell Tuesday.

Russian aircraft were having a field day attacking targets almost at will within the enemy's disastrous pocket. A Red Star correspondent said one large group of Germans came out of a forest under a flag of truce and laid down their arms.

YANK ARTILLERY RIPS NAZIS AROUND BOLOGNA

ROME, March 22—(AP) American artillery men have heavily increased their fire on German targets around Bologna, hub of enemy defenses south of the Po valley, but otherwise only routine patrol actions were reported from the Italian front today and there was no change in positions.

Allied headquarters said the American guns had taken numerous Nazi targets under fire "with good effect."

The Germans made a small-scale attack against one Fifth army outpost south of Bologna, but were driven back with casualties. They also assaulted several Allied positions on the British Eighth army front near the Adriatic, with similar results.

Big Guns Hit Italy Nazis

Rome, March 22 (AP)—Allied artillery strongly hammered German strong points opposite the entire 5th Army sector yesterday, but infantry activity on the Italian battle line was limited to patrols and no positions changed hands, the Allied command announced today.

A number of prisoners was taken from German raiding parties which attempted to strike into 5th Army positions.

On the British 8th Army front German patrols assaulted several points in strength, but failed to hold any ground.

B-29's From India Bomb Rangoon Again

20th Bomber Command Headquarters, India, March 22 (AP)—A sizable force of B-29 Superfortresses smashed at Rangoon today for the fourth time, centering the attack on supply storage dumps on Lake Victoria and the Mingaladon airfield cantonment.

All aircraft in the raid were reported to have loosed bombs on the objectives and to have returned safely. It was the second blow at the Rangoon area in less than a week.

The Superforts encountered meager anti-aircraft fire and fighter opposition. Results were reported good to excellent. Five explosions were noted in the dump areas.

Japs Report Atjeh Hit

London, March 22 [Reuter]—The Japanese News Agency reported today that three British destroyers "of the larger type" bombarded the northern coast of Atjeh province in Japanese occupied Sumatra on Sunday.

British In Swift Drive In Burma

Calcutta, March 22 (AP)—A swift drive to liquidate remaining Japanese troops south of captured Mandalay in Burma was believed under way today. A security blackout was placed over the British 20th Armored Division in the Myotha region.

It was known that the 20th was plunging south from Myotha, southwest of Mandalay, through chaotic and disorganized Japanese resistance, hammering the enemy against the Allied "anvil" in the Meiktila region.

Armored columns sweeping out from Meiktila still were bagging hundreds of Japanese daily and the last enemy pockets along the Irrawaddy southwest of Mandalay were being methodically wiped out.

B-29'S ATTACK RANGOON AREA

Superfortresses From India Bomb Dump Sectors

GROVER

Calcutta, March 22 (AP)—A sizable force of B-29 Superfortresses from India bases attacked Japanese installations around the Burmese port of Rangoon today with "good to excellent" results, laying at least five bombs squarely in dump areas, the 20th United States Bomber Command announced.

The attacking Superforts, making their fourth large raid on the Rangoon area in support of Allied ground forces driving southward from Mandalay in central Burma, encountered light anti-aircraft and fighter opposition and completed the mission without a loss.

Security Blackout Used

Today's attacks were centered on supply and storage dumps near Lake Victoria, just north of Rangoon, and on the Mingaladon airfield and cantonment.

A security blackout was slapped on movements of the 20th British Armored Division pushing southward from the Mandalay area, indicating a swift drive to liquidate trapped Japanese in the Irrawaddy River pocket was under way.

The plan to smash the Japanese between the 20th's "hammer" and the Meiktila "anvil" held by other British and Indian forces appeared near completion.

No News From Arakan

At the western edge of the pocket British firmly hold the southern sector of the Myingyan Irrawaddy bend. Pockets of Japanese resistance were being wiped out along the river west of Mandalay.

Armored columns thrusting from Meiktila continued to bag hundreds of Japanese daily. Three hundred were killed yesterday.

There has been no news from the Arakan front along the Burma west coast for several days, indicating a blackout also had been applied to Major General Sir Philip Christison's 15th Army Corps.

Chinese 1st Army troops driving toward Mandalay from captured Lashio were reported 25 miles southwest of Lashio. Others continued mopup operations in the Hsipaw sector.

Chinese Battling Japs In Wolfram Mine Area

Chungking, March 22 (AP)—Fighting raged tonight in the heart of China's wolfram mining district of Kiangsi Province, where the Chinese are attempting to roll back Japanese forces who have overrun advanced American air bases.

There was house to house fighting around the north gate of T'ayu, in the center of the wolfram mines, and in the southwestern suburbs, where three Japanese strongpoints were overcome, the Chinese communiqué said.

Fifty miles to the northeast, fighting continued in the suburbs of Kanhsien, site of a former important 14th Air Force base.

Between the two cities, the Chinese attacked Nankang and broke through the western suburbs to the city hall.

Chungking, March 22 (A. P.).—B-24s of the Fourteenth United States Air Force damaged a 7,500-ton enemy transport off Hainan Islands yesterday, today's communique reported. P-51s attacked a Japanese airfield in French Indo-China and damaged four locomotives.

Canberra, Australia, March 22 (AP)—Air Minister A. S. Drakeford announced today that Australian airplanes, based in northwest Australia, destroyed 29 Japanese ships and damaged 32 others in February.

U.S. FORCES SEIZE GUIMARAS ISLAND

Move Made to Safeguard Shipping Lane into Captured Iloilo.

MANILA, Friday, March 23—(AP) Fortieth division Doughboys, invaders of Panay, hopped across a mile and one-half strait and seized 25-mile-long Guimaras island without opposition Wednesday in a move to safeguard the shipping lane into the captured port of Iloilo.

Heavy bombers, meanwhile, lashed Cebu island with 240 tons of explosives in three successive days.

Island Opposite Iloilo

Mountainous Guimaras is directly opposite Iloilo and helps form one of the best harbors and seaplane bases in the central Philippines.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur reported this 27th island invasion of the Philippines in his communique today, announcing only that "in a shore-to-shore operation our troops seized Guimaras island, southeast of Panay."

The heavy bombing of Cebu island, across the Camotes sea from Leyte, was concentrated on Japanese bivouac and supply areas in the vicinity of Cebu city, midway along the island's east coast.

"Many explosives and fires were observed," the communique said. Meanwhile Naval P-T boats patrolling the Cebu coast by night sank several enemy small craft and Navy rocket-firing planes sank a midget submarine off Cebu city.

Patrol bombers ranging the blockaded China Sea sank or damaged 12 small freight vessels and four landing craft.

General advances on all ground fronts on Luzon were reported. Forward elements of the 33rd division, probing closer to Baguio from the west, reached the Naguilian river, and an airfield at the outskirts of the Philippine Summer capital.

Yanks Enter Cuenca

In southern Luzon, the 158th Regimental combat team drove into the environs of Cuenca, southeast of Lake Taal, and cut the main road east of the town.

Liberation of the Philippines became generally a big mopping up job as American troops and Filipino guerrillas pursued broken Japanese forces on Panay, Mindanao, Leyte and most of Luzon today.

Only in northern Luzon, where Japanese Gen. Tomoyuki Yamashita is supposed to have established headquarters at Baguio, were there reports of extensive, organized resistance.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur announced Thursday the collapse of the Japanese Antipolo-Wawa line in the Sierra Madre east of Manila. He reported the capture of much equipment by 33rd and Sixth division troops and said enemy losses in men were "extraordinarily heavy."

Thursday's communique also announced that south of Manila Luzon's Cavite province had been "cleared of the enemy except for scattered remnants now in flight."

It added that "all organized enemy resistance on Panay has been crushed" except for minor pockets. Fortieth division Doughboys landed on Panay, 25th Philippine island invaded by the Americans, only last Sunday.

On Mindanao, the 41st division easily beat off a Japanese counter-attack and continued its advance north of Zamboanga. Guerrillas had controlled much of the big southern island before the American regulars landed March 10.

JAPS ARE CRUSHED ON PANAY ISLAND

Manila, March 22 (A. P.).—Virtually all organized Jap resistance has been crushed on Panay Island, invaded Sunday, and the enemy's Shimbu line east of Manila on Luzon has collapsed, yielding a mass of war booty.

In the air war bombers caught a six-ship enemy convoy off Amoy, China, Tuesday and, at a cost of two bombers, sank a 6,000-ton freighter-transport and two destroyer escorts, probably sank two 7,000-ton freighter-transports and damaged a destroyer.

Panay's harbor at Iloilo was captured Tuesday with its docks intact, permitting immediate use. The city (population 90,000) also fell to the Fortieth Division, but not before the enemy destroyed 70 per cent of it by fire and mines.

Other Fortieth Division Yanks, aided by guerrillas, spread over the coastal plain around Iloilo, seizing Santa Barbara Airfield, the second air base captured on Panay, and the towns of Gaub, Tabucan, San Sebastian and Pavia.

Before our landing, guerrilla forces had practically cleared the interior and coastal sectors of the island and had restricted the enemy to the immediate vicinity of Iloilo, Gen. MacArthur said.

On Luzon, the enemy defenses between Antipolo and Wawa fourteen miles east of Manila have been left well behind by the Thirty-third and Sixth Infantry divisions which have captured ridge lines farther east. In the collapsed Shimbu Line the Americans seized 256 vehicles, most of them armored cars, thirty-five artillery and anti-aircraft guns, twelve mortars, thirty-four rocket launchers, and large numbers of machine guns.

JAPS HINT FLEET MAY HIT RYUKYUS

U. S. PACIFIC FLEET HEADQUARTERS, Guam, Friday, March 23—(AP) Vice Adm. Marc A. Mitscher's potent carrier task force presumably still was on the prowl today, with the Tokyo radio hinting it might scourge the Ryukyus or Formosa while withdrawing from the mauling given Japanese warships Monday in Japan's inland sea.

There has been no official word on the whereabouts of the force, a part of the Fifth fleet, since it moved close to Japan to permit its planes to search out enemy fleet units at their bases.

In the days that have elapsed since that strike, Admiral Mitscher has had time to move his ships into the Formosa area, about 900 miles from the scene of Monday's crippling blows to imperial warships. In so doing he would pass the Ryukyus, lying between Formosa and Japan.

Continuing its unconfirmed claims that the American force was "fleeing," the enemy radio said Thursday that it was in waters "to the east of the Okinawa islands." Okinawa is the principal island in the Ryukyu chain. It has been hit by U. S. carrier aircraft several times, the last reported raid being on March 1.

Thursday's fleet communique made no reference to the Fifth fleet nor the carrier aircraft attack in the inland sea. Radio silence maintained by the fleet prevented any new assessment of damage dealt the enemy in that daring foray. A preliminary report the previous day said 15 to 17 Japanese combat ships had been damaged.

Air Blows Thought Speeding Jap Fall

Fleet Headquarters, Guam, March 22 (AP)—Success of the United States aerial attacks on the Japanese home islands portends nonstop blows against the empire and a speedup of the entire Pacific war.

Both the Army's Superfortresses and the powerful but always vulnerable carrier task force have probed the strongest points of Japan with bombs, bullets and rockets, and each time emerged undisputed victors.

And as the Japanese sea-air strength was dissipated by repeated assaults, American power conversely became greater.

Superfort Potential

Five incendiary raids against Tokyo, Kobe, Nagoya and Osaka, made in close sequence, showed the potential of the Superforts' threat to Japan. Each mission was flown by 300 or more B-29's. In the near future, long-range P-51 Mustangs will be able to provide cover for the huge bombers on raids over Japan.

If Japanese naval leaders hoped to salvage a fleet out of the wreckage of the second battle of the Philippine Sea, their dream has burst. Their once formidable sea power was blasted by the United States Navy carrier attack on Japan's inland sea Monday.

Radio silence today still blanketed movements of the 5th Fleet beyond its two-day attack on Kyushu and parts of the inland sea, but even a preliminary accounting by Admiral Raymond A. Spruance, its commander, revealed sufficient damage to Japanese warships to indicate removal of the enemy navy as a major threat in the Pacific.

Greater Damage Likely

Spruance informed Fleet Admiral Chester W. Nimitz yesterday that his report of fifteen to seventeen Nipponese warships damaged on his daring foray was an incomplete assessment. Still more enemy warships may be smoking in their homeland ports.

Yet even before this hunting down of Japanese naval units, the enemy didn't have sufficient faith in his sea forces to challenge the invasion of Iwo Jima. Not a single hostile ship approached the American invasion convoy or the island itself. Air attacks were few.

It had been contended that Japan would save her fleet for defense of the mainland, or as an ace in the hole at the peace conference.

Attempt To Save Leyte

Japanese admirals, however, brought out practically their entire serviceable fleet in an attempt to prevent capture of Leyte Island in the Philippines last October. Twenty-six of their ships were sunk; 33 or more were damaged.

Spruance's raid on inland sea ports retarded partial recovery of the imperial fleet, possibly to a point where it never can catch up with the fast moving Allied offensive in the Pacific.

This, coupled with destruction of approximately 1,400 Japanese aircraft in three carrier raids on Japan—against a United States loss of probably no more than 100 planes and not a single ship sunk—is a reminder to Japan that she has not yet shown any ability to halt the American drive.

Everything points to a faster pushing ahead than most people thought possible a year ago.

FEW JAPS REMAIN ON LEYTE ISLAND

EIGHTH ARMY HEADQUARTERS, Leyte, P. I., March 22—(AP) Eighth Army forces which have been doing what military men term "mop up" on Leyte now figure there aren't more than two or three hundred Japanese left on the entire island.

During the first 67 days from the initial invasion until last Dec. 26 when the Sixth army turned the job over to Lt. Gen. Robert Eichelberger's Eighth army, by actual count, Japanese dead totaled 55,344. These burial figures ignored estimates of others probably killed or wounded. It does not attempt to figure in probably enemy losses when convoys were sunk off Leyte's west coast.

When Eichelberger took over from Lt. Gen. Walter Rueger of the Sixth army Dec. 26, 1944, the backbone of the Japanese organized resistance had been broken.

The job ahead was mopping up all right, but to Doughboys slugging it out with the fanatical enemy in the mountains of western Leyte it was mopping up on a large scale.

From Dec. 26 to March 18 1945, Eighth army troops killed and counted 21,774 Nipponese—about as many as were killed on Iwo Jima.

Before Eichelberger took over, 375 Japanese prisoners were taken. His troops have captured 373 more. Most of the Japanese not killed preferred to starve in their homeless mountain and jungle isolation.

Occasionally there were Japanese counter-attacks. On Jan. 15, a battalion made a well coordinated infantry-artillery attack near Billaba, on the west coast. They were in good condition, well trained and apparently unhurt in previous combat on Leyte.

The attack carried through the Yank lines briefly but like most others petered out and ended in bitter defeat.

More than 380 Japanese dead were counted after the battle and 77th division of Doughboys who met the attack took an exceedingly dim view of the phrase "mopping up."

However, attacks like this were infrequent. Most of the work was done by patrols probing far into the mountains and occasionally making concentrated drives when the target merited it.

Some days as many as 40 patrols would be out.

Now the Yanks can rest. If only a hundred disorganized Japanese are left the Yanks can turn the job over to the First Filipino regiment—a fighting unit comprising American and Filipino volunteers and draftees.

Poison Alcohol Kills 12 Yanks In Manila

Manila, March 22 (AP)—The death of the twelfth United States soldier in the Manila area from poisonous alcohol was announced today and military authorities said that stern action is being taken to eliminate the menace.

Col. Marcus E. Jones, deputy provost marshal and Manila police chief, said that five others had been permanently blinded.

Rigid tests are being made of all alcoholic drinks and more than 100 persons are under arrest on liquor charges.

Outside Wrecked Area

Innumerable little cubbyholes, cafes and bars lighted nightly by candlelight have sprung up in north Manila outside of the wrecked main business district.

"No liquor can be sold legally unless it is prewar stock," Jones said, "and we have been able to locate only two manufacturing agencies which have supplies, and they are not being released for sale."

Hearings for illegal selling of liquor will be held in Filipino courts.

Wooden Tanks Used by Japs

With the Forty-first Division in Zamboanga, P. I., March 22 (A. P.).—Mobile wooden tanks were employed by the Japanese in their defense of Zamboanga in an effort to throw the American tanks off balance. Infantrymen destroyed a few of the bogus tanks with small arms fire, then discovered the ruse and quickly cleaned up the Japanese camouflage artists.

GETS HISTORIC FLAG

Iwo Jima, March 15 (Delayed) (A. P.).—The flag that was raised on Mount Suribachi now belongs to Col. Harry Liversedge of Pine Grove, Cal. Major-Gen. Harry Schmidt, commander of the Fifth Amphibious Corps, wrote out the order presenting the flag to the 51-year-old veteran campaigner. Col. Liversedge was too busy for any formal acceptance. His men were still battling enemy remnants on the northern tip of the island. Many who had participated in the first climb up Suribachi were gone.

Americans Take Guimaras Island Opposite Iloilo

Manila, Friday, March 23 (AP)—Fortieth Division troops, invaders of Panay, hopped across a 1½-mile strait and seized 25-mile-long Guimaras Island without opposition Wednesday in a move to safeguard the shipping lane into the captured port of Iloilo.

Mountainous Guimaras is directly opposite Iloilo and helps form one of the best harbors and seaplane bases in the central Philippines.

per, Free Philippines, today after a two-day suspension.

The revived paper was distributed free and carried no advertising. Publication was previously suspended after Manila newspapers had protested against Government competition when the Free Philippines was carrying advertising and selling its copies.

An editorial announced that publication had been resumed because a "wave of protest followed discontinuance." It said that military and political circles generally felt that "the time has not yet come when privately financed publications could do an adequate job of disseminating news information to the people of Manila."

Nearly 3 Million Have Fled Tokyo

London, March 22 (AP)—Nearly 3,000,000 Japanese already have been evacuated from Tokyo and steps are being taken to speed up removal of others, the Tokyo radio said today.

Quoting a statement made to the Diet by the Interior Minister, the broadcast said: "Already the civilian population in the capital has shrunk to less than 4,000,000" of the city's prewar census. The Statesman's Yearbook gives Tokyo's 1940 population as 6,778,804.

MARINE FLEES HOSPITAL SHIP TO DIE ON IWO

IWO JIMA (Delayed) — (AP) Second Lt. William Keith Webb, Prairieville, La., was a fighting Marine. He was still able to fight, so he remained on the line. The next day he received shell fragments in the thigh and was evacuated to a hospital ship.

Later he was reported missing from the ship and the fourth division personnel officer, Captain John J. Rogers, Arlington, Virginia, was notified.

Captain Rogers investigated and learned the missing man had returned to duty without orders, gone back into the line, and was killed in action on the night of Feb. 24.

NAZI V-BOMB HITS BRITISH FACTORY

LONDON, March 22—(AP) A German V-bomb scored a direct hit on a Southern England factory recently, exploding inside and turning the building into a blazing inferno, it was announced tonight.

Rescue workers, including American soldiers, toiled for hours amid the smoke and debris in an effort to save those trapped in the wreckage as a crowd, many of whom had relatives killed, gathered anxiously around the main gate. Watchers collapsed when they learned relatives had been killed or injured.

The fire sent huge smoke clouds rolling through an adjoining street and the U. S. troops and firemen were handicapped by a gas main that blazed for six hours in one section of the factory. Alsatian dogs were used to help locate those buried in the debris.

Another V-bomb exploded in the gardens behind a row of cottages in a Southern England community, killing six persons, demolishing three houses and strewing wreckage over a wide area. Dazed survivors were pulled from those ruins, too.

Thirteen other persons were killed and six injured when two V-bombs struck other localities, including the grounds of a hospital. Part of the hospital was so badly damaged that 120 patients had to be evacuated.

Two children escaped virtually unhurt when a V-bomb explosion sent the roofs of their homes crashing down. Roof beams shunted heavy pieces of concrete that fell toward six-year-old Peter Mosely, and Mrs. Dorothy Weber's 10-months-old daughter was tossed across a room but uninjured.

Sla Of Guns Felt Along English Channel

Hastings, England, March 22 (AP). Reverberations from distant explosions which shook the Channel coast for many hours today were believed to be heavy gunfire connected with operations on the Belgian coast or on the Dutch border.

The concussions jarred buildings on the English coast to the greatest extent since the heavy bombing of the French coast prior to and after D-day.

Churchill, Laborites In Row

London, March 22 (AP)—A bitter political row flared up in Commons today when Laborites accused Prime Minister Churchill of packing Britain's seven-man, two-woman delegation to the world security conference at San Francisco in order to maintain his Conservative party's supremacy after the war.

Tempers snapped in the usually staid house as Churchill announced that Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden would lead these delegates to the conference beginning April 25:

CLEMENT ATTLEE, Deputy Prime Minister and Lord President of the Council.

LORD CRANBORNE, Dominions Secretary.

LORD HALIFAX, British Ambassador to Washington.

GEORGE TOMLINSON, of the Labor Ministry.

WILLIAM MABANE, food.

DINGLE FOOT, economic warfare.

MISS ELLEN WILKINSON, home security.

MISS FLORENCE HORSBURGH, health.

The latter five are parliamentary secretaries.

The delegation is composed of four Conservatives, three Laborites and two Liberals.

Up Bevan

When the Prime Minister announced that Eden, a Conservative, would lead the delegation, the Labor members immediately attacked. Aneurin Bevan, a consistent critic of Churchill, asked why Attlee, a Laborite, had not been given the chief role.

Churchill explained that Attlee had no constitutional authority while Eden, holding the seals of state, was responsible for the conduct of foreign affairs.

"That is not the answer at all," Bevan shot back.

Then Emanuel Shinwell struck. "Is it not all quite consistent with his (Churchill's) declaration at a Conservative conference," Shinwell asked, "that the Conservative party, having got all they wanted in the way of assistance and guidance in the war, are now going to get everything which is useful in their own hands?"

Roars Churchill

Shinwell's statement was met with cheers and countering jeers.

Churchill roared back:

"He (Shinwell) has done everything in his power to break up this Government and hopes to gain after its dissolution what he would never gain while national affairs predominated in men's minds."

"Any fair-minded man would say," added Churchill, "that the Labor party had fair representation."

"Not from you," shouted Shinwell.

"I am responsible for nominating this delegation," Churchill snapped, "and they (the Laborites) have fair representation in this delegation."

Then Laborite Capt. Frederick Bellenger came to Shinwell's side by asking "is it in order for any member to impute such unworthy motives to any member as the Prime Minister has imputed to Mr. Shinwell?"

Shinwell, apparently not wanting any help, shouted, "I prefer it that way from the Prime Minister," and an unidentified voice rang out, "So do we."

Churchill simply glared.

The Labor party has been on a rampage ever since Churchill's recent speech at a Conservative party conference when the Prime Minister suggested a postwar coalition government after the present régime is dissolved. But this was really the first opportunity that the Laborites had a chance to open up.

Replies Kirwood

At one stage Churchill referred to Shinwell's manner as "churlish," and at another point declared "people have a right to live even if they don't agree with the honorable gentleman."

Once Churchill remarked that "some people like to fish in troubled waters." From the Labor bench David Kirwood yelled: "You are a number one fisherman."

Then the Prime Minister said that Attlee had not tried to press for leadreship of the delegation "because he is not a self-seeking man."

It is understood that an imperial conference in London will begin April 4 as a forerunner to the San Francisco meeting, the various groups proceeding from here to the United States.

These preliminary talks are expected to last a week, during which the delegates probably will consider proposals for "trusteeships" for territories held under the old League of Nations.

British Delegates To Frisco Announced

London, March 22 (AP) — Prime Minister Churchill announced in Commons today the names of the British delegates to the world security conference in San Francisco, to be headed by Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden.

They are Clement Atlee, lord president of the council; Lord Cranborne, Dominions Secretary, and Lord Halifax, British Ambassador to Washington.

The delegation also will include five parliamentary secretaries—Labor, George Tomlinson; Home Security, Miss Ellen Wilkinson; Health, Miss Florence Horsbrough; Food, William Mabane, and Economic Warfare, Dingle Mackintosh Foot.

EDEN IS SELECTED AS LEADER

Laborite Fury Breaks Loose as Chief Post Is Denied to Attlee —Latter's Status Clarified.

London, March 22 (A. P.).—Heated words were exchanged amid cheers and jeers in the House of Commons today after Prime Minister Churchill had announced the names of the seven men and two women—four Conservatives, three Laborites and two Liberals—who will represent Great Britain at the Golden Gate World Security Conference.

Emmanuel Shinwell, Laborite, accused the government of packing the delegation with Conservatives.

Barely heard above the cheers and counter-cheers, Mr. Churchill roared back that Shinwell "has done everything in his power to break up this government and hopes to gain after its dissolution what he would never gain while national affairs predominated in men's minds." Obviously irritated, the Prime Minister added: "Any fair-minded man would say that the Labor party had a fair representation."

"Not from you," Shinwell shouted.

Mr. Churchill leaned forward, his chin lifted and shot back: "I am the person responsible for nominating this delegation, and they (labor) have a fair representation in this delegation."

Why Attlee Doesn't Lead.

Earlier today Moelyn Hughes, Laborite, asked whether there was any reason why Clement Attlee, Lord President of the Council and leader of the Labor party, should not lead the delegation, instead of Foreign Secretary, Anthony Eden. Mr. Churchill replied that normal practice called for the Foreign Secretary to lead such missions and explained that Attlee's title of Deputy Prime Minister was a courtesy title which has no constitutional authority.

Besides Eden and Attlee, Mr. Churchill named as delegates Lord Cranborne, Secretary for the Dominions; Lord Halifax, Ambassador to Washington, and the parliamentary secretaries for Labor, George Tomlinson; for Home Security, Miss Ellen Wilkinson; for Health, Miss Florence Horsbrough; for Food, William Mabine, and for Economic Warfare, Dingle Mackintosh Foot.

Assailed as Unfair.

The clash in Commons was touched off when Aneurin Bevan, Laborite, one of Mr. Churchill's most consistent and bitterest critics, asked why the Prime Minister was not himself going to San Francisco and why Attlee was not leading the delegation. Mr. Churchill replied that Eden held the Seals of State, which made him responsible for the conduct of foreign affairs, whereas Attlee was not so charged by the Constitution.

"That is not the answer at all," Bevan retorted.

Shinwell then took the floor and declared: "Is it not all quite consistent with his declaration at the Conservative Conference that the Conservative party, having got all they wanted in the way of assistance and guidance in the war, are now going to get everything which is useful in their own hands?"

"I never said that," Mr. Churchill snapped back. "There could hardly be anything more unfair or a more characteristic utterance than that."

Later Mr. Churchill pointed out that there were "a large proportion of Labor members in the

Churchill Answers ... On Dating Disparity

London, March 22 (AP) — Prime Minister Churchill replied today to his son's remarks in Commons on the disparity between British and American systems of dating letters and documents.

Major Randolph Churchill, ... servative member of aPrliament, had addressed a formal complaint to the Prime Minister, pointing out, for example, that 1/10/45 meant October 1, 1945, to an Englishman and January 10, 1945, to an American.

Inquiry Promised

"Uniformity of notation and nomenclature," the Prime Minister replied, "is, of course, of high value between allies in war, and progress has been made in many directions. I am not aware of any serious difficulty that has arisen in this particular instance, but inquiries will be made."

His son had suggested the system current in the British Army be made uniform. This system, he had said, "avoids all confusion by putting first the day of the month in figures without suffix, second the month in letters and last the year."

U.S. Life Termed 'Not As Pictured'

London, March 22 (AP)—A touring American union organizer told British girls today to "think it over twice" before marrying United States soldiers, because life in the United States is not all that Hollywood depicts it to be.

"That impression isn't right," said Miss Anne Murcovich, organizer for the Federation of Hosiery Workers and one of a group of American women visiting industrial plants here. "We're just normal human beings who live normal lives—it's not all so lush."

Mrs. Julia O'Connor Parker, an American Federation of Labor organizer, said the group found "mass employment of children disturbing," but "we realize the approaches being made to improve the situation." She praised British food distribution, saying "your people get the rations they are supposed to get, where many times in the States we don't get it."

Miss Maida Springer, of the International Ladies' Garment Workers Union, also praised the British food-supply system, calling it "one of the most magnificent distribution jobs I've seen."

ns—even in meat—until the whole situation has been discussed in Washington.

In looking for a way out of the crisis, some quarters suggested reallocations of shipping. They said that at least two countries—Argentina and New Zealand—had enough meat to increase shipments to this country if transport were made available.

Visit To D.C. Expected

Food Minister J. J. Llewellin is expected to visit Washington to go over the entire food picture. His trip appeared imminent as his parliamentary secretary, William Mabane, canceled a visit to Northern Ireland tomorrow to be on hand during his chief's absence.

There is a general feeling here that the recent statements by Prime Minister Churchill and President Roosevelt cleared the air and helped avert a clash of public opinion in the two countries.

Britain, which has had rationing almost since the war's outset, admittedly is sensitive to any criticism that she is being selfish in relation to feeding liberated lands.

The British press still was trying to analyze the American food situation. Lend-lease shipments to Britain, the London Daily Express contended, were important, but had "little effect on America's own resources," being no more than eight per cent of the country's total food production.

Britain's present reserve of 6,000,000 tons of food works out at 286 pounds per person.

GERMAN PEACE BID VIA EIRE IS DENIED

DUBLIN, March 22 (AP)—A rumor that a German peace proposal had been presented to the United States Minister through Prime Minister Eamon de Valera of Eire was denied flatly tonight by both American and German officials here.

David Gray, United States Minister to Eire, was quoted in high Dublin quarters as saying "there is no truth in" the report that Mr. de Valera had tendered him a peace proposal received from Dr. Edward Hempel, German Minister in Dublin. "No representations of any kind have been made to me, either directly or indirectly," Mr. Gray was quoted as saying.

"We deny any knowledge of such negotiations. There is absolutely nothing in the story," declared a secretary to the German legation in Dublin.

The London Daily Telegraph had published under a Paris dateline this morning a dispatch saying that Dr. Hempel had approached Mr. de Valera with peace proposals that were turned over to the American Minister, The Associated Press reported, adding that the British Foreign Office said it had no knowledge of such proposals.

Sweden Would Guard Against War Criminals

London, March 22 (AP)—The Stockholm radio quoted Minister of Justice K. Bergquist today as urging that Sweden exercise caution so that she does not become "an asylum for war criminals" now that the war is reaching a "final phase."

"New cases must be examined individually," the Minister said after stating that the country already has accepted 103,000 political refugees.

Laborite Gets British [illegible]

London, March 22 (AP)—The Paris radio said today that Baron Ernest Ungern-Sternberg, editor in chief of the Berlin newspaper Deutsche Allgemeine Zeitung, had been executed following the circulation of "peace pamphlets" printed on the paper's presses.

He is Commissioner R. M. Astbury, international secretary, and he brought back information about stricken Europe's needs for use in drawing up Salvation Army plans for postwar relief.

WEBSTER IN NEW POST

General Made Commander of First Tactical Air Force

PARIS, March 22 (AP)—Maj. Gen. Robert M. Webster of Washington has been appointed commander of the First Tactical Air Force, succeeding Brig. Gen. Gordon P. Saville, Supreme Headquarters announced today.

General Saville had served as temporary commander during the last few weeks, stepping up from the command of the Twelfth Tactical Air Command when Maj. Gen. Ralph Royce returned to the United States to direct the Army Air Forces personnel distributing command in Louisville, Ky. Gen. Royce had activated the First TAF, the newest air force in the European theatre, on Oct. 31, 1944.

Headquarters also disclosed that Brig. Gen. Glenn O. Barcus of Genoa, Ill., now commanded the Twelfth Tactical Air Command, the American fighter-bomber component of the French-American air force.

NAZI HEADQUARTERS HIT

Base, Believed Rundstedt's, Is Erased by New-Type Bomb

PARIS, March 22 (AP)—Allied bombers, using a new type of incendiary bomb still on the secret list, recently attacked and virtually destroyed what was believed to have been Field Marshal Gen. Karl von Rundstedt's headquarters, it was learned tonight.

Approximately 150 automobiles parked in the area were wrecked.

It also was revealed that German jet planes have developed new tactics that are troublesome but largely unsuccessful. The jet planes attack Allied bomber formations in waves, concentrating on escort fighters in an effort to make them jettison reserve fuel tanks and head for home so that regulation type enemy fighters can move in for the kill.

French Say Allies Fail To Agree On Indo-China

Paris, March 22 (AP)—Serious differences among the Allies over the status of French resistance forces within Indo-China are preventing effective co-ordination of a campaign against the Japanese, it was reported reliably today.

For a year and a half the French have persisted in organizing and directing a separate resistance movement within the colony instead of developing units of an over-all inter-Allied plan. Britain and the United States were said to have encouraged this attitude by failing to decide in which theater Indo-China belongs.

The question was whether the operations are to be part of Lord Louis Mountbatten's Southeast Asia command, part of the United States China command, or General MacArthur's Southwestern Pacific command. This has not been ironed out even now, it is said.

French Stress Regional Pacts.

Paris, March 22 (A. P.).—The French Government released today the text of proposed amendments to the Dumbarton Oaks security plan, calling for a greater role for regional pacts such as the Franco-Russian alliance. The principal proposal would permit the signatories of regional pacts to act in emergencies without prior approval from the world security council. Such action would be reported to the council as soon afterward as possible.

The proposals already have been communicated to the Powers sponsoring the World Security Conference at San Francisco on April 25. In an accompanying memorandum the French expressed wholehearted support for the principle of collective security, and French willingness to help strengthen international organization.

Prince Urges Franco to Quit

Juan, Son of Alfonso, Pleads for Return of Monarchy in Spain.

Lausanne, March 22 (A. P.).—Prince Juan, son of former King Alfonso and heir to the now non-existent throne of Spain, called upon Generalissimo Franco today to resign and leave the way open for "establishment of peace and concord among all Spaniards."

In a statement recalling the sixth anniversary of the end of the Spanish civil war, the Prince, Count of Barcelona, declared that restoration of the monarchy "alone" can provide an effective guaranty for religion, order and liberty."

"I incite no one to rebellion," he said, "but I would wish to remind those who support the existing political regime of the tremendous responsibilities they incur by contributing to prolongation of a situation which inevitably will bring the country to irreparable ruin."

Assails Franco's Regime.

He declared he awaited the moment when he could realize his "most ardent desire"—peace among the Spanish factions—and said that the Franco regime was modeled on the Axis totalitarian system, "contrary to the character and tradition" of the Spanish people. The foreign policy pursued by Franco, he asserted, "compromises the future of the nation."

The Prince said that if he should become king through restoration of the monarchy he would seek a political constitution by popular vote, protection of the rights of the individual, political liberties, a legislative assembly popularly elected, more equitable distribution of wealth and elimination of unjust social differences.

The statement, which declared "Spain is in danger of becoming involved in a fresh fratricidal struggle, "is believed already to have been transmitted to Franco. Copies also have gone privately to Spain to persons in a position to see that the people become aware of what the aspirant to the throne is saying.

U. S. Seen Favorable.

Juan's mother, the former Queen Victoria, was in London last October. Although she went for the funeral of her mother, it can be stated with confidence that possibilities of a monarchist restoration were discussed during the visit. Since 1942 there has been reason to believe that Britain would welcome a restoration, and there also are indications that the United States would not object to a regime which would end Spanish totalitarian and Axis associations.

Juan said that a republic, even if at first "very moderate, would soon move toward an extreme" and the result would be another civil war.

PRINCE WANTS TO RULE SPAIN

Juan Demands Resignation Of Francisco Franco

MAR 23 1945

Lausanne, Switzerland, March 22 (AP)—Declaring Spain is in danger of another civil war, Prince Juan, heir to the country's now nonexistent throne, called upon Francisco Franco today to resign and bring lasting peace to the nation by restoration of the monarchy.

The exiled son of the late King Alfonso made his plea to the generalissimo in a statement given to the Associated Press on the sixth anniversary of the end of the Spanish civil war.

He Wants No Rebellion

If he should become King, the Prince said, he would seek a political constitution by popular vote, protection of individual rights and political liberties, more equitable distribution of wealth, a popular legislative assembly and elimination of unjust social conditions.

The statement, in which the Prince declared "Spain is in danger of becoming involved in a fresh fratricidal struggle," was believed to have been transmitted already to Franco.

"I incite no one to rebellion," Juan said, "but I would wish to remind those who support the existing political régime of the tremendous responsibilities they incur by contributing to prolongation of a situation which inevitably will bring the country to irreparable ruin."

Allied Amity Pictured

The Franco régime, Juan said, was modeled on the Axis totalitarian system and was "contrary to the character and tradition" of the Spanish people. A republic, he declared, would lead to another civil war. Only restoration of the monarchy, the statement said, "can provide an effective guarantee for religion, order and liberty."

There is reason to believe that neither the United States nor Britain would object to the restoration, or to any régime which would sever Spain's associations with the Axis. Possibilities of a restoration were said to have been discussed when Juan's mother, the former Queen Victoria, was in London last October for the funeral of her mother.

Spanish In Mexico Fail To Back Juan

Mexico City, March 22 (AP)—Spanish Republicans here strive for overthrow of Franco in Spain but they don't support Don Juan in seeking to re-establish the monarchy, whose return to power he advocated today in Lausane.

The two-day "conference against Franco territories" which closed last night appealed to the San Francisco Conference to investigate conditions in Spain where, it said, there are 200,000 prisoners. It also asked governments to break with Franco.

Indalecio Prieto, Socialist leader, active among Spaniards here, recently said of the Juan movement, "that is for the Monarchists to talk about."

Nevertheless, since failure of the cortes in exile to form a Spanish Government here and the delay of Juan Negren in coming here to seek unity among the Spanish parties, some Spaniards say confidentially party disagreements improve prospects for the monarchy to return to power.

Spain Pays 40 Millions On Debts for U. S. Goods

BARCELONA, March 22 (AP).—Within the last year Spain has liquidated $40,000,000 of $55,000,000 due exporters and investors in the United States and has spent approximately $55,000,000 on purchases in the dollar area.

Ralph Ackerman, commercial attache of the United States Embassy in Madrid, gave these figures today at a luncheon of the American Chamber of Commerce at Barcelona.

Mr. Ackerman said he also had received assurances from the Spanish Minister of Commerce, Demetrio Carceller, that Spain soon will begin a more liberal import licensing policy concerning goods from the United States.

Senor Carceller, according to Mr. Ackerman, "says he has no intention of hoarding dollars but plans to use them rapidly as they are received."

Official purchases by the United States government organization in Spain will continue, Mr. Ackerman said.

Spain Charges Japanese With Manila Atrocities

Madrid Moving Closer to Full Break With Tokyo

MADRID, March 22 (AP).—Spain moved closer to an outright break with Japan tonight as the Spanish government charged the Japanese with "systematic, premeditated" murder of "defenseless Spanish men, women and children and the destruction of Spanish property in Manila rior to the city's liberation by American troops.

The charges, made in a communique, confirmed the declaration last week of Philippine Brigadier General Carlos P. Romulo at Washington in which he enumerated the atrocities. A storm of editorial protest and denunciations of Japan in the Spanish press followed.

Although the government declaration was couched in plain words, there was yet no indication whether Spanish indignation would lead to only a rupture of relations with Japan or a declaration of war.

Belgian Journalist Executed

Brussels, March 22 (AP)—The Belgian journalist, Jules Rhone, who wrote in the German-censored newspaper, Nouveau Journal, during the occupation, was shot to death today at Brussels prison.

...tch Give Queen Loud Welcome

Eede, the Netherlands, March 13 (AP—Delayed)—Queen Wilhelmina returned to the Netherlands at this battle-ruined frontier village today on an extensive ten-day visit. It was her first trip to her homeland since her escape from the Germans nearly five years ago.

Wherever the 64-year-old monarch went she was loudly acclaimed. Villagers had less than a half day's notice that she was coming, but they hurried into their best—but shabby—clothes and thronged around her limousine at every stop, waving flags, shouting, singing and clamoring for a glimpse of her. Most wore wooden shoes.

12 Miles From Coast

Wilhelmina, who became Queen when she was 18, stepped on Netherlands soil again in the Province of Zeeland at a point only 12 miles from the coast.

Her driver was United States Army Sergeant Steve Fischer, of Great Falls, Mont.

Worrying about the crowds today, Fischer said: "They shouldn't let these people crowd around the car so close like this. Somebody's going to get hurt."

Greets Her Commissioner

The Queen wore a brown tweed ensemble and brown boots as she stepped from the car and walked across the border. She extended her hand to her commissioner in the province of Zeeland, Jonkheer J. W. Quarles van Ufford, and several British army officers.

The Queen spent only a few minutes in each town, but she talked with many persons, seeking out especially relatives of war victims and members of the underground.

GERMANS FEAR ALLIED INVASION OF DENMARK

STOCKHOLM, March 22—(AP) The German High command, jittery over the prospects of an Allied invasion of Denmark, has ordered Danish authorities to evacuate a number of cities on the east coast of Jutland by April 15, the Free Danish press reported today.

One of the cities affected is Aalborg where 55,000 persons must be evacuated the agency said, leaving a nucleus of 5,000 to handle railway communications and to maintain electricity, gas and water facilities.

...den Considering Shipping Pool Tieup

Stockholm, March 22 (AP)—A proposal that Sweden join the shipping pool has been placed before Parliament.

The newspaper Afton Tidnining said today the Minister of Supply has recommended adoption, especially because the Government favors joining an international agreement for control of shipping.

The importance of Sweden joining the United Nations pool in a world starved for shipping space is shown by official figures disclosing that at the beginning of 1945, Sweden possessed an ocean-going fleet of 1,500,000 tons.

Of that total 500,000 tons was in western waters—that is, outside the German blockade in the Skagerrak. Safe-conduct shipping is not included in the latter figure.

Patriots Rescue 10 Top Danish Police Officials

Stockholm, March 22 (AP)—Seventy-five armed patriots entered the near-by "Booksellers House" during the confusion of the British Mosquito bombing of Gestapo headquarters in Copenhagen yesterday and released ten top Danish police officials, a Danish informant said.

The officials had been prisoners of the Germans since September, 1944. Thirty other Danish patriots were freed from the shell house, Gestapo headquarters, but at least ten held there were killed.

The Danish press said 110 Danes and 500 Germans were killed in the bombing.

FINNS CONVICT 87 FOR WAR CRIMES

Helsinki, March 22 (A. P.).—Finland's first war crimes trial has convicted eighty-seven persons. Their sentences range from life terms to a few months' imprisonment or fines. Included were life terms for six soldiers accused of murdering Russian prisoners of war. Twenty persons were acquitted.

The mass trial resulted from investigations by a special Finnish authority set up by the Government to examine treatment of war prisoners. Minister of Justice Urho Kekkonen revealed that he personally had admonished the trial court that the punishment prescribed was "mainly too light." He further disclosed that the Finnish Foreign Minister had called his attention to the seeming mildness of the sentences—which obviously meant that Soviet Russia had complained through the Foreign Ministry.

Several Finns expressed belief that new communist members of the Finnish Parliament would seek to press the whole war crimes question on beyond the present stage.

Moyne Killers Are Hanged

Cairo, March 22 (AP)—Eliahou Hakim and Eliahou Bet Souri, young Jewish nationalists, were hanged today for the slaying of Lord Moyne, British resident commissioner in the Middle East, last November.

The pair were convicted January 18 after a lengthy trial at which they were represented by defense counsel as young patriots who believed they were striking a blow for Jewish independence in Palestine by slaying Lord Moyne.

Turkey Lifts Ban on 3 Papers

ANKARA, Turkey, March 22 (AP)—Three leading newspapers, which were suspended last year for criticizing the Government, have received permission to resume publication immediately.

Turks Expect Better Treaty With Russia

Ankara, March 22 (AP)—Russia's denunciation of her treaty with Turkey was viewed in foreign circles here today as a preparatory step toward revision of the Montreux agreement limiting use of the Dardanelles and Bosporus Straits.

Russia long has wanted a free outlet to the Mediterranean.

Turkish sources appeared confident that a new and better pact could be reached. There is a strong desire here for an agreement patterned after the 1939 treaty between Britain, France and Turkey containing a mutual-assistance clause.

EDWARD J. FLYNN RECEIVED BY POPE

ROME, March 22—(AP) Edward J. Flynn smilingly disclosed after an audience with Pope Pius today that the question of relations between Soviet Russia and the Vatican had been discussed, but "only conversationally," and added that he was bearing no personal messages from President Roosevelt to anybody.

Flynn, a personal friend of Roosevelt, arrived in Rome from Moscow yesterday and was granted the hour-long audience with the Holy See today.

"But as a Roman Catholic, what would be more natural?" he told reporters he received in the Palazzo Barberini.

Asked whether he had stopped in Rome only for personal and religious reasons, the former Democratic national chairman said:

"Well, I wouldn't say that exactly."

He said he "happened" ... the Papal Secretary of ...

...dinal Luigi Maglione and implied he would see Premier Ivanoe Bonomi before leaving Italy Friday. He disclosed he was scheduled to see Gen. De Gaulle in France and expected to see Prime Minister Churchill in England.

Flynn said he had seen "a great many people in Russia"—Premier Stalin among them—but he only smiled when asked if he thought his mission was successful.

He also is scheduled to visit the Fifth army front but declined to comment on whether he has something to say to or expected to learn something from the troops there.

The topic of Polish Catholics was left untouched in his talk with the Pope, Flynn said.

May See Bonomi

ROME, March 22 (AP)—Mr. Flynn implied that he would see Premier Ivanoe Bonomi before leaving Italy tomorrow. He disclosed that he was scheduled to see Gen. Charles de Gaulle in France.

The topic of Polish Catholics was left untouched in his talk with the Pope, he declared.

Official Vatican quarters withheld comment on the audience. Recently the Vatican denied that any negotiations were in progress with Russia.

ASKS DANZIG, STETTIN BE GIVEN TO POLAND

MOSCOW, March 22 (AP)—The Polish Press Agency said tonight that Provisional President Boleslaw Bierut had told the first Polish troops to reach the Baltic that Poland would get the seaports of Danzig and Stettin as well as her pre-war outlet of Gdynia.

"We are standing on the Baltic coast and will never move from it," Mr. Bierut said in his message to the troops. "The new democratic Poland will not be satisfied with a single seaport connected with the country by a narrow strip of land as it was before September, 1939. We shall have the seaports of Danzig, Gdynia and Stettin, which will connect us with the entire world of free nations."

The unit first reached the Baltic shore on March 8. The agency said the troops had fixed one Polish flag to a standard there and had thrown another in the sea "as a symbol."

The official Polish Government newspaper Rzecpospolita demanded the immediate carrying out of land reform in the "western areas and Pomerania." Declaring that millions of acres of land were to be divided, the newspaper said that people on the spot would have the first priority in order to speed the spring sowing campaign.

Plans Laid To Revive Italy's Film Industry

Rome, March 22 (AP)—The Allied Control Commission has announced formation of an Allied-Italian film board designed to facilitate the revival of Italy's motion-picture industry.

The board met for the first time yesterday under the chairmanship of Capt. Ellery W. Stone, chief of the Control Commission. Representatives of the Italian Government, the Allied Commission and the psychological warfare branch are on the board.

Since the Allied invasion the PWB has controlled the production and distribution of films in Italy. The task of the new board will be to formulate the principles under which these functions are transferred to Italian agencies.

CLARE LUCE VISITS BRAZILIAN SECTOR

ADVANCED BRAZILIAN HEADQUARTERS IN ITALY, March 22—(AP) Representative Clare Boothe Luce (R-Conn.) spent over an hour on the Brazilian sector of the Italian front today and visited an observation post only a few hundred yards from German positions.

Moscow, March 22 (A. P.).—The Government paper Izvestia declared today that while the left-wing Democratic Peoples Union had won 25 per cent of the seats in the Finnish Parliament, last week-end's election showed that "those elements which stand in opposition to the progressive development of the Finnish State are still strong."

"Consequently," Izvestia said, "there still remain ahead further struggles with those who led the Finnish people to a war of catastrophe."

FRATERNIZING LAID TO ALLIES

Soviet Paper Also Assails AMG in Germany.

Moscow, March 22 (A. P.).—The Government newspaper, Izvestia, today deplored reports of friendly relations between Allied troops and the German population in the west, and coupled this with an assertion that "Germans known to be Hitlerites are at the same time serving in administrative posts created under Allied control."

Professing to quote British and American news dispatches, Izvestia said that the "evidence of excessively kindly relations with the Germans is not confined to individual troops."

[Severe penalties have been imposed on Allied soldiers caught fraternizing with the Germans. Dispatches from the western front have said, however, that Allied Military Government officials were extremely careful in establishing local governments, but in some cases they had been forced to employ Nazi personnel because of their inability to obtain other qualified workers.]

Izvestia also said that statements in the London Catholic Herald had shown that "the pastors of souls do not stop at any slander of humanity in order to evoke pity for the Germans," while in Latin America, "there is developing a widespread reactionary campaign of Catholic churches which are orientating themselves with pro-Fascist elements."

Immigration Bill Delay Assailed By Indians

Bombay, March 22 (AP)—A committee vote in the United States House of Representatives to postpone consideration of the Indian immigration bill aroused a bitter press reaction in India today.

The postponement "comes as a tragic anti-climax to reports which flooded India giving the impression that American opinion was overwhelmingly pro-Indian in this matter," the Free Press Journal declared.

"For this, American news agencies and the United States OWI have to thank themselves," the newspaper asserted. "By cabling lengthy reports of individual opinions they had created a false atmosphere of misplaced faith in American intentions."

Selfishness Charged

The publication said the committee vote "goes to show that, in spite Roosevelt and Joseph Grew (Under Secretary of State), the Americans are not so idealistically minded that they can look upon even mild reforms with anything but selfish eyes. Is this a foretaste of things to come at San Francisco?"

MAR 23 1945

Indians, it was said, had been looking toward the San Francisco world security conference April 25 as the possible beginning of consideration of the Asiatics' position in the light of the four freedoms.

Delegate Choice Hit

Earlier, Indian Nationalists had reacted sharply against the Indian Government's choice of the Viceroy's council members as delegates to San Francisco. They charged that the council members would represent only British authority.

Indians said that the proposed immigration of 100 persons annually carried no threat to the American way of life and that the vote of the House Committee reflected only racial antagonism.

Brazil, Russia May End 28-Year Rift

By VAUGHAN M. BRYANT

RIO DE JANEIRO — Current steps to reopen Brazil-Russia diplomatic relations promise an end to the uncomfortable paradox of two great nations, fighting on the same side, unable to speak officially to each other.

Brazil and Russia, diplomatically estranged since the Romanoff's fall in 1917, got on famously last year at the Bretton Woods monetary conference. Since then diplomats have believed relations would be resumed, though perhaps not before the peace conference.

Open discussion of the Russian question is brand new for censor-ridden Brazilians. A few weeks ago General Pedro Aurelio Goes Monteiro, army chief during the Communist-rightist battles of the Thirties, spoke out strongly for diplomatic access to Russia. After that headlines thundered over similar long-suppressed sentiments.

Observers are convinced that Brazil-Russia relations were a main topic in President Getulio Vargas' recent conference with U. S. State Secretary Edward Stettinius, Jr., who had just left Moscow and Yalta with plenty of interesting information on Brazil's "unrecognized" war ally.

Even during her recent extreme anti-Russianism, Brazil's cocoa, coffee and other products reached the Soviets through intermediary nations.

Argentina May Declare War On Japan

Buenos Aires, March 22 (AP)—The Argentine Government was believed today to be considering the possibility of declaring war upon Japan as a means of qualifying this country for a place among the United Nations and ending her diplomatic isolation.

Informed quarters expressed belief that a decision probably would be reached before the week end on the question of declaring war, which was generally regarded as the implied prerequisite for solution of Argentina's international difficulties under the formula laid down at the recent inter-American conference in Mexico City.

Ever since the conference there has been intense activity in Argentine Government circles, but a decision has been delayed with the explanation that no action could be taken until the Government has had an opportunity to study the Mexico City documents.

While there was some talk of army opposition to a declaration of war, especially among the younger officers, the army high command was reported favorably disposed.

Lack Of Water Forces Exodus From Bogota

Bogota, Columbia, March 22 (AP). The Colombia Government today urged all residents who can do so to evacuate this capital city of 400,000 population because of a water shortage caused by a prolonged drought.

The Government also announced that it was considering shutting down industries which use large quantitites of water.

Montevideo, March 22 (A. P.).—The Government had under consideration today a request by private meat packing plants that meat rationing be instituted in Uruguay to permit fulfillment of export quotas to the United Nations. The packers said a prolonged drought had resulted in a reduction of livestock and expressed fear that they would not be able to meet their export quotas unless some steps are taken.

Losses In Rhine Drive Begin To Appear In Reports

Washington, March 22 (AP)—The cost of the Army's drive to seize the west bank of the Rhine River began to show up today in the casualty reports.

After more than a month during which the weekly increase in reported casualties grew progressively smaller, the Army and Navy released figures showing a rise of 19,998. The Army accounted for 18,223 of the increase.

859,587 Since Pearl Harbor

Robert P. Patterson, Under Secretary of War, listed army losses of 767,680, said the report covered the fighting during the latter part of February. It was at that time that the 1st and 9th Armies jumped off from the Roer River line in their final push to the Rhine.

Coupled with the navy's casualties of 91,907, the army figure pushed the over-all casualties since Pearl Harbor to 859,587.

Concurrently with the announcement of casualties, the Army reported that it had lost 1,716,000 men from all causes from the time the war began until December 31, 1944.

Losses From All Causes

The figures in round numbers include:

Deaths, 29,000 officers and 143,000 enlisted men, a total of 172,000.

Honorable discharges, 26,000 officers and 1,195,000 enlisted men, a total of 1,221,000.

Prisoners of war and missing, 25,000 officers and 107,000 enlisted men, a total of 132,000.

Other separations, 4,000 officers and 187,000 enlisted men, a total of 191,000.

These give a grand total of 84,000 officers and 1,632,000 enlisted men.

SHARP REDUCTION IN DRAFT CALLS SEEN AFTER JULY

Drop of 31 Per Cent Expected, White House Reveals at Hearing.

VOTE TO EXTEND DRAFT

No Action Taken to Restrict Sending 'Green' Troops into Combat.

WASHINGTON, March 22—(AP) Draft calls may drop an average of 31 per cent after July 1, the White House disclosed today coincident with a House Military committee vote to extend the draft law without change.

President Roosevelt, sending up a request to Congress for $54,500,000 to finance Selective Service another fiscal year, said this contemplated an average draft call of 93,000 a month.

135,000 Drafted Now

This compares with a figure of 135,000 which Maj. Gen. Stephen Henry told the House committee is the expected average from now until June.

The White House spoke of the after-July need as being merely one of replacements. It said that by then "mobilization of the largest armed force by far in the nation's history" will be complete.

After hearing only two witnesses—army generals who emphasized the necessity of furnishing fighting replacements until the last enemy has quit—the committee sent the bill to the House floor for a vote probably early next week.

Without the legislation, the Selective Service act under which millions of men have been inducted would become inoperative on May 15. The bill approved extends it for another year, or until the end of hostilities, whichever is first.

The committee heeded, though reluctantly, the Army's request that no restriction be placed on the present policy of putting inductees into combat five months after donning the uniform, if necessary.

Many members have talked of keeping teen-age draftees out of combat until they had been trained a year in this country. They still may seek to write such a provision into the bill on the House floor.

Such a restriction, said Major General Idwal Edwards, assistant chief of staff in charge of training, "very definitely would be harmful" to the orderly system of furnishing fighting men.

General Edwards disclosed to the committee the present training program by which a man can reach a fighting front five months after induction. He told of one man who was a combat casualty "five months and nine days" after entering the service.

Recruit Gets 6 Months Training

The average training for a green recruit, he added, is about six months for a man going into the European theater and seven months for a man who will fight the Japanese. That time includes a furlough before embarkation and a short waiting period abroad prior to assignment to a combat unit.

Edwards told the committee the Army never intended to give 12 months of home training to its combat troops. Any impression Congress had received to that effect during discussion of the teen-age draft bill, he said, was based on a misconception of the testimony.

While an earlier policy restricted the use of 18-year-old inductees, Edwards testified, war developments, including the German winter offensive of 1944, "upset a good many plans."

Major General Stephen G. Henry, assistant chief of staff in charge of personnel, testified that to meet the needs for replacements, draft calls up to June would approximate 100,000 monthly for the Army and 35,000 monthly for the Navy, with "substantial" replacements thereafter.

Following the defeat of Germany, Henry said, the Army plans to release the men who have served the longest, who have been abroad the longest, and who have been subjected to "the severest hardships."

A point-system to govern discharges now is being developed and will be placed in the hands of theater commanders soon. A "top secret," the plan will consider length of service here and abroad, the number of battle engagements, the number of citations and wounds, and the number of dependents.

WAR CRIMES LIGHT ASKED

Congress Requested To End Commission's Secrecy

Washington, March 22 (AP)—A demand that Congress pry the lid of secrecy from operations of the Allied War Crimes Commission was made today before the House Foreign Affairs Committee.

Representative Celler (D., N.Y.) called for a "full time debate" in the House after Herbert A. Pell testified he doesn't know whether he still is this Government's representative on the commission charged with fixing war guilt of enemy leaders.

"The work of the commission cannot remain secret," Celler declared. "Let the pitiless light of publicity reveal the places where ineptitude and indecision are crippling its efforts."

Delay On Hitler Explained

Pell was called before the committee to review the work of the War Crimes Commission until early this year when he was dropped by the State Department which said the action was necessary because Congress failed to appropriate money for United States participation in the deliberations.

Until the time he left the commission, he said, 2,000 war crime cases had been presented and indictments made in half of them. Formal charges against Adolf Hitler were not preferred until last winter—and then were presented by the Czech Government.

Asked about the delay in Hitler's case, Pell replied:

"Simply because no government had reported him." The commission, he explained, could not use its own initiative in such cases.

Appropriation Pending

Pell also testified the commissioners, for the most part, have no instructions from their government on whether the persecution of minorities in Germany should be regarded as a war crime. The commission unanimously recommended such acts be listed as war guilt last year.

As Pell finished testifying Representative Flood (D., Pa.) declared it is time to redefine the United States attitude toward war crimes. He accused some of the United Nations of "trying to avoid and evading the whole issue."

Pell told the committee he is convinced there will be a "world-wide wave of terrific indignation and cynicism" if war criminals escape punishment.

Status Of Private Citizen

Pell testified that when he was dropped on the ground no funds were available, he offered to serve without pay, but nothing came of his offer.

After today's hearing reporters inquired at the State Department concerning Pell's testimony that he does not know whether he still is the American representative on the Crimes Commission. The reply was that at the moment Pell holds the status of a private citizen.

Pell, after his return to Washington some months ago, had been critical of failure of Allied governments to approve punishment of Nazi persecutors of the Jews inside Germany as war criminals. This was recalled at the time of his dismissal and there was speculation that the failure to return him to London was due indirectly to that factor.

Hull Hopes To Go To San Francisco

Washington, March 22 (AP)—Joseph C. Grew, Acting Secretary of State, said today that Cordell Hull intends to go to the San Francisco conference late next month if his health has sufficiently improved.

Grew made this comment in response to inquiries:

"Mr. Hull has made a splendid recovery. He has regained his weight and is rapidly regaining his strength. He stirs about the hospital and enjoys the good weather.

"He is keeping himself familiar with the important phases of developments in the international situation as they relate to the business of the San Francisco conference.

"He feels that whether he can attend and the degree to which he can participate is entirely dependent on his health, which continues to improve."

The former Secretary of State, 73 years old, has been in naval hospital at Bethesda, Md., for several months. He is a member and senior adviser of the eight-member delegation which President Roosevelt appointed to the United Nations conference.

Earlier today the White House said that Hull would not be replaced as a delegate, implying that if health prevented his going the delegation would consist of seven members, including Secretary of State Stettinius as chairman.

Hull himself is determined to go if he can possibly make it. His doctors will give the final decision shortly before time to leave for the West Coast.

Congress Requested To End Commission's Secrecy

Washington, March 22 (AP)—A demand that Congress pry the lid of secrecy from operations of the Allied War Crimes Commission was made today before the House Foreign Affairs Committee.

Representative Celler (D., N.Y.) called for a "full time debate" in the House after Herbert A. Pell testified he doesn't know whether he still is this Government's representative on the commission charged with fixing war guilt of enemy leaders.

"The work of the commission cannot remain secret," Celler declared. "Let the pitiless light of publicity reveal the places where ineptitude and indecision are crippling its efforts."

Delay On Hitler Explained

Pell was called before the committee to review the work of the War Crimes Commission until early this year when he was dropped by the State Department which said the action was necessary because Congress failed to appropriate money for United States participation in the deliberations.

Until the time he left the commission, he said, 2,000 war crime cases had been presented and indictments made in half of them. Formal charges against Adolf Hitler were not preferred until last winter—and then were presented by the Czech Government.

Asked about the delay in Hitler's case, Pell replied:

"Simply because no government had reported him." The commission, he explained, could not use its own initiative in such cases.

Appropriation Pending

Pell also testified the commissioners, for the most part, have no instructions from their government on whether the persecution of minorities in Germany should be regarded as a war crime. The commission unanimously recommended such acts be listed as war guilt last year.

As Pell finished testifying Representative Flood (D., Pa.) declared it is time to redefine the United States attitude toward war crimes. He accused some of the United Nations of "trying to avoid and evading the whole issue."

Pell told the committee he is convinced there will be a "world-wide wave of terrific indignation and cynicism" if war criminals escape punishment.

Status Of Private Citizen

Pell testified that when he was dropped on the ground no funds were available, he offered to serve without pay, but nothing came of his offer.

After today's hearing reporters inquired at the State Department concerning Pell's testimony that he does not know whether he still is the American representative on the Crimes Commission. The reply was that at the moment Pell holds the status of a private citizen.

Pell, after his return to Washington some months ago, had been critical of failure of Allied governments to approve punishment of Nazi persecutors of the Jews inside Germany as war criminals. This was recalled at the time of his dismissal and there was speculation that the failure to return him to London was due indirectly to that factor.

Hull Hopes To Go To San Francisco

Washington, March 22 (AP)—Joseph C. Grew, Acting Secretary of State, said today that Cordell Hull intends to go to the San Francisco conference late next month if his health has sufficiently improved.

Grew made this comment in response to inquiries:

"Mr. Hull has made a splendid recovery. He has regained his weight and is rapidly regaining his strength. He stirs about the hospital and enjoys the good weather.

"He is keeping himself familiar with the important phases of developments in the international situation as they relate to the business of the San Francisco conference.

"He feels that whether he can attend and the degree to which he can participate is entirely dependent on his health, which continues to improve."

The former Secretary of State, 73 years old, has been in naval hospital at Bethesda, Md., for several months. He is a member and senior adviser of the eight-member delegation which President Roosevelt appointed to the United Nations conference.

Earlier today the White House said that Hull would not be replaced as a delegate, implying that if health prevented his going the delegation would consist of seven members, including Secretary of State Stettinius as chairman.

Hull himself is determined to go if he can possibly make it. His doctors will give the final decision shortly before time to leave for the West Coast.

Early Is Back in Capital After Visit to S.H.A.E.F.

Inspected Press Facilities at Paris Headquarters

WASHINGTON, March 22 (AP).—Stephen Early, Presidential press secretary, returned to Washington today from a tour of duty at supreme Allied headquarters in Paris. Jonathan Daniels, administrative assistant who has been acting as press secretary in Mr. Early's absence, said Mr. Early would be back on his old job at the White House on Monday.

"He asked me to say that he came back with a trunk full of work and that he's still working on that job," Mr. Daniels said.

Mr. Early is known to have been seeking to be relieved from his White House secretaryship so he could accept one of several private offers, but the death of Major General Edwin M. Watson, appointment secretary and military aide, last month probably will postpone a decision on Mr. Early's release.

Mr. Early went abroad with the President Jan. 22. He left the Presidential party after the Crimea conference to make an official inspection of press facilities at supreme headquarters. It was announced at the time that he undertook the mission for the War Department.

Fear for Bretton Woods Pact

Administration Leaders Worried Lest Changes Wreck Agreements.

Washington, March 22 (A. P.).—Administration forces acknowledged for the first time today that they are worried about the congressional fate of the Bretton Woods agreements.

Rapidly mounting strength appeared in the House Banking Committee behind proposals for broad amendments of the plans for a world bank and a currency stabilization fund. The administration contends such changes would wreck the agreements.

"I have increasing fear," said Representative Outland (D.-Cal.), Banking Committee member, "that the Bretton Woods agreements will be delayed or so amended that the entire program for international co-operation will suffer."

Proponents of various changes, however, declare themselves for the principles of world economic co-operation, arguing they want only better methods than those provided in the agreements worked out last summer during a meeting of forty-four nations at Bretton Woods, N. H.

The American Bankers Association suggested the United States should have a veto power on the use of all dollars it subscribes to world monetary operations. It proposed also that the idea of a separate currency stabilization fund be abandoned and its major functions embodied in the international bank. The suggestion gained immediate support among some committeemen. They argued that changes would not wreck the plan.

The committee is comprised of fifteen Democrats, eleven Republicans and one Progressive party member. If the Republicans voted solidly and were joined by the one Progressive and two Democrats the coalition could control the committee to revise the legislation as it saw fit. Two Democrats, in questions to witnesses, have indicated they are not entirely satisfied with the monetary plan.

However, Representative Wolcott (R.-Mich.), ranking Republican member and a Bretton Woods delegate, has declined to state his position.

Fraser to Witness.

Leon Fraser, president of the First National Bank of New York, told the committee today the proposed international bank is based "on constructive financial principles," but said that its objectives of the currency stabilization fund "would be more successfully attained and American interest better safeguarded if it were consolidated into a monetary department of the bank."

The banker criticized the fund because of "the arbitrary quota system" which he described as fixing a nation's rights irrespective of its needs "and which opens the door to loose and indiscriminate borrowing without specific commitments as to repayment, without any agreed program for correction of economic difficulties, and without any right of the United States, the principle contributer, to approve."

He added that currency stabilization is a different problem for each country and the worldwide, "indiscriminate approach" of the fund is "premature and theoretical and a fundamental misstep that could be avoided by action through the monetary department of the bank.

Roosevelt Takes Night Off To Dine With Newspaper Men

Washington, March 22 (AP)—President Roosevelt and his highest advisers took a night off tonight to dine with capital newspaper men and enjoy entertainment by a vast array of stage, screen and radio talent.

The twenty-second annual dinner of the White House Correspondents Association, at the Statler Hotel, followed the wartime pattern adopted after Pearl Harbor—a nonration menu of fruit, fish, chicken (no butter for the rolls), ice cream and coffee.

The writers presented the first annual Raymond Clapper Memorial Award to Raymond P. Brandt, chief of the Washington Bureau of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Judges' Vote Unanimous

Mr. Roosevelt congratulated the winner of the $500 check, given in memory of the late columnist who was killed in a plane crash in the Pacific. The award goes to the newspaper man "whose work in the previous year had most closely approximated ideals of fair and painstaking reporting and good craftsmanship that were characteristic of Raymond Clapper."

Brandt was chosen by unanimous vote of the judges—Douglas S. Freeman, editor of the Richmond (Va.) News-Leader; Hamilton Owens, editor of the Baltimore Sun; N. R. Howard, editor of the Cleveland News; Henry Suydam, chief editorial writer of the Newark News, and George W. Stimpson, Washington correspondent and author.

Merriman Smith, retiring president of the White House correspondents, presented the award.

Earl Of Athlone There

The dinner was informal. Among the guests were the members of the Cabinet, the Earl of Athlone, Governor General of Canada; Army General George C. Marshall, chief of staff; Fleet Admiral Ernest J. King, commander in chief of the fleet; Fleet Admiral William D. Leahy, the President's personal chief of staff, and Lieut. Gen. A. A. Vandegrift, commandant of the Marine Corps.

The Earl of Athlone and his wife, Prinsess Alice, arrived in Washington today for a two-day visit with President and Mrs. Roosevelt.

The Columbia Broadcasting System sponsored the entertainment program after the dinner, which included Bob Trout as master of ceremonies; Jimmy Durante, Garry Moore, Fannie Brice, Georgia Gibbs and Danny Kaye.

TOTAL CASUALTIES FOR U. S. 859,587

Washington, March 22 (A. P.).—Army and Navy combat casualties since the beginning of the war have reached 859,587, the two services reported today. Under-Secretary of War Patterson reported Army losses of 767,680 on the basis of names compiled in Washington through March 14. The Navy set its toll at 91,907.

The combined total was an increase of 19,998 over last week's report. A breakdown of Army casualties and corresponding figures for last week showed: Killed, 150,310 and 145,733; wounded, 464,731 and 450,766; missing, 88,209 and 89,656; prisoners, 64,430 and 62,302. Of the wounded, 236,251, or more than half, have returned to duty.

Similar figures on naval casualties were: Killed, 35,342 and 34,938; wounded, 41,882 and 41,443; missing, 10,417 and 10,483; prisoners, 4,266 and 4,268.

PROBE IS URGED OF 4 NEGRO WACS

WASHINGTON, March 22—(AP) Reps. Marcantonio (Al.-N. Y.) and Powell (D.-N. Y.) demanded today a War department investigation of charges that negro WACs had been ordered to do "all the dirty work" at Lovell General hospital, Fort Devens, Mass.

Four WACs assigned to the hospital have received a court martial sentence of dishonorable discharge plus a year at hard labor for disobedience.

They staged a sit-down strike March 10, refusing to obey orders because, they said, Col. Walter H. Crandall, commanding officer, told them to "mop walls, scrub floors and do all the dirty work."

Powell, a negro, and Marcantonio wrote War Secretary Stimson:

"It is unbelievable that in times like these, when the nursing shortage is so critical, that the colonel in charge refused to let these WACs assist in nursing back to health American soldiers by forbidding them to take temperatures and ordering them to do 'all the dirty work'."

They asked for an investigation of Col. Crandall as well as "a complete copy of the trial" of the four convicted WACs.

Rep. Celler (D.-N. Y.) termed the court martial verdict "extremely severe" in a letter to Maj. Gen. Sherman Miles of the First Army Service command, Boston.

"It is unseeming and contrary to general orders," Celler wrote, "for a colonel to make statements of the character indicated, if they are true. I would indeed appreciate a report from you."

EARL OF ATHLONE, WIFE PAY VISIT TO WHITE HOUSE

WASHINGTON, March 22—(AP) The Earl of Athlone, governor general of Canada, and his wife, Princess Alice, reached Washington today for a two-day visit with President and Mrs. Roosevelt.

They were formally received at a military ceremony on the south grounds of the White House following an informal reception at Union station, where the President and the First Lady went to meet their visitors.

The Roosevelts motored to the station in an open car flying the United States and Canadian ensigns. The President wore an ordinary business suit while Mrs. Roosevelt wore a short black fur coat and hat of cerise and soldier blue feathers.

The governor general, an uncle of King George of England, stepped from his train attired in field marshal's uniform of khaki with red-banded hat. Princess Alice wore a dark blue dress and silver fox furs.

When the party arrived at the White House, Mrs. Roosevelt, Princess Alice and the governor general alighted and stood beside the presidential car, while the U. S. Marine band played Hail to the Chief, God Save the King, Oh Canada, and the Star Spangled Banner.

Units of United States soldiers, sailors and marines stood stiffly at attention during the brief ceremony.

Among those receiving the party at the station were Joseph C. Grew, acting Secretary of State; Ray Atherton, American ambassador to Canada; L. B. Pearson, Canadian ambassador to the United States; Brig. Gen. Robert C. Oliver, United States Army aide to the governor general during his stay, and various other aides and attaches.

En route to the White House, the heavily guarded party drove around the plaza surrounding the capitol.

Tomorrow the governor general and his wife will be taken on a drive to Mount Vernon and various other shrines in the vicinity. Later in the day they will be entertained at luncheon by Ambassador and Mrs. Pearson.

The Earl of Athlone has previously been in Washington, but this was his first visit as governor general of Canada.

Knows of No Plans For M'Arthur Recall

Washington, March 22 (A. P.)—Under-Secretary of War Patterson told his news conference today he knew of no plans for the return of Gen. Douglas MacArthur to the United States.

The Army and Navy Journal, unofficial service publication, recently predicted the Supreme Allied Commander in the Southwest Pacific would come to Washington for conferences.

Flynn's Rome Trip Watched In D.C.

Washington, March 22 (AP)—Edward J. Flynn is believed to be exploring for President Roosevelt the possibility of an ultimate closer relationship between the Vatican and the Kremlin.

The Bronx political leader's arrival in Italy from Russia was announced yesterday at Rome, although the nature of his mission is secret. The White House has had nothing to say of it beyond the disclosure that Mr. Roosevelt invited his "old friend" to accompany him to the Yalta Big Three conference when he learned Flynn was planning a trip to Moscow.

Delicate Move

However, there is a well-founded speculation in diplomatic quarters that Flynn's travels represent one of the more delicate diplomatic moves ever undertaken by Mr. Roosevelt: An effort to bridge the gap which separates Soviet Russia and the Temporal State of the Roman Catholic Church.

Little prospect is seen here for any accord between Communist Russia and the Catholic Church as a religious institution. It is not considered out of the question, however, that some form of political or diplomatic representation which would ease relations might be attained eventually.

Flynn is a prominent Catholic layman and probably the most prominent Catholic ever to be received in the Russian capital.

Received By Pope

Vatican City, March 22 (AP)—Edward J. Flynn, President Roosevelt's personal emissary, was received today by Pope Pius XII in an hour-long audience. The former national chairman of the Democratic party was accompanied by Myron C. Taylor, the President's personal representative to the Vatican.

MORE AMERICANS FREED

Four New Yorkers Liberated in Philippines, 2 on Eastern Front

WASHINGTON, March 22 (AP)—The War Department issued another list of names of American civilians liberated in the Philippines and of American prisoners of war freed by Soviet armies.

Those from the New York area released in the Philippines were:

ATKINSON, MARIE A.; Mary Carrison, 145 Edgewood Rd., Scarsdale, N. Y.
KNIGHT, LOUISE N., MARGUERITE R., THOMAS M. 4TH and THOMAS M. 3D; Mrs. Helen H. Yerkes, 445 Riverside Drive, New York City.

MANN, ALAINE G.: J. E. Perkins, Paramount Pictures, New York City.
MOORE, HELEN G.: Mrs. Robert A. Moore, mother, 276 Morton Ave., Albany.

Two in the New York area who were freed by Soviet soldiers were:

BASS, T/5 JOSEPH: David Bass, father, 1618 Hone Ave., New York City.
BELTZ, Sgt. PAUL D.: Herbert A. Beltz, father, 17 Blackthorn Lane, White Plains.

3,000,000 GONE FROM TOKYO

Home Minister Tells Of Evacuation Under Way

San Francisco, March 22 (AP)—The evacuation of nearly 3,000,000 air-raid victims from Tokyo—one of the greatest mass civilian evacuations of the war—is in progress, the Japanese radio indicated today.

A Domei news agency broadcast recorded by the FCC said Shigeo Odachi, Home Affairs Minister, told a Diet committee that Tokyo probably had less than 4,000,000 inhabitants now, with more to leave. The city's prewar population before the war was around 7,000,000, making it the third largest in the world.

Forming Civilian Corps

The prospect of population centers of Japan being isolated by an American invasion was raised as the Government speeded steps to organize a civilian national, or "special-attack," corps.

Gen. Kaneshiro Shibayam, Vice Minister of War, was quoted by Tokyo radio as telling a Diet committee the corps would be on a national scale, so that "every member of the nation may be assigned appropriate defense duty in case of emergency."

Premier Kuniaki Koiso was quoted as telling the Diet—in reply to a question raising the possibility the homeland "may be split apart by the enemy"—that an "area-by-area defense structure" was being set up.

Toshio Shimada, Minister of Agriculture and Commerce, reported rice, wheat and sweet potatoes had already been distributed and stored in "great quantities." He declared: "There is nothing to worry about for the present even if, by chance, the homeland is split up."

Place Fleet Near Ryukyus

The Tokyo radio also said the United States 5th Fleet, including Vice Admiral Marc A. Mitscher's carrier task force which hit the Japanese Navy Monday, was "fleeing with full speed" southward toward the Ryukyu Islands, pursued by Japanese planes.

Since the attack on the Japanese Inland Sea, radio silence has concealed the fleet movements.

There was no Allied confirmation of a Japanese imperial headquarters report that three British destroyers and Nipponese shore batteries in the southern Andaman Islands, in the Bay of Bengal, engaged in a "shelling duel" Monday. The Japanese radio claimed one destroyer was sunk and two heavily damaged.

Transportation difficulties in the Nipponese homeland were explained by Yonezo Maeda, Transportation and Communications Minister. He told a Diet committee that passenger traffic must be held to a minimum while rail lines are handling movement of materials resulting from the "dispersal of factories and buildings."

War Industries Moving

Maeda's statement, as broadcast by Tokyo radio, indicated that the Japanese Government was putting into effect its plans to move essential war industries out of range of American Superfortress raiders.

Listening rates will be more than doubled for Japanese radio owners, effective April 1.

"Improved service" was the reason given by the Broadcasting Corporation of Japan for changing the ten-year-old rate schedule from 3 yen (approximately 70 cents, United States) to 6 yen and 50 sen for six months and 6 to 12 yen for a year.

Great Damage Hinted

The Koiso Cabinet left-handedly acknowledged the terrific destruction dealt by the B-29's by asking the Diet to appropriate the equivalent of more than $1,000,000,000 to pay "first aid expenses to the victims of air raids and other wartime disasters."

The story was pieced together from enemy broadcasts recorded here.

One broadcast hinted that Vice Admiral Marc A. Mitscher's fast carrier forces may raid the Ryukyu Islands or Formosa on their way home from their successful two-day attack on southwestern Japan.

Fleeing, Japs Say

Radio Tokyo said the United States force was "fleeing toward the south and the waters to the east of the Okinawa Islands." This would put them on a southwesterly course in position to raid Okinawa, in the center of the Ryukyus, Formosa or perhaps the China coast.

An imperial communiqué claimed that pursuing Nipponese planes heavily damaged another American battleship yesterday, making a total of eight United States warships assertedly sunk and three damaged in four days.

Not Told Of Attack

Japanese propagandists, who have claimed as many as sixteen United States warcraft were sunk, asserted "seven or more of the enemy carriers have either been sunk or rendered unserviceable." Tokyo estimated Mitscher's force contained fifteen carriers.

Koiso Asks Virtual Martial Law For Jap Homeland

San Francisco, March 22 (AP)—Japan, stung by the loss of Iwo Jima, the B-29 fire raids on her cities and the crippling blow dealt the home fleet by carrier planes, considered stern measures today to place the homeland in a state of siege.

"We must either win a victory or we shall all die," said Premier Kuniaki Koiso in urging virtual martial law for all the Nipponese homeland.

He and the War Minister, Field Marshal Gen Sugiyama, predicting the United States would attempt to invade Japan, demanded that the Diet pass a measure giving the Government unprecedented powers. These would include the expropriation of land and the removal of buildings to set up defenses.

Domestic enemy broadcasts have not informed the homeland that the home fleet was attacked in the inland sea.

In another broadcast the people learned that Lieut. Gen. Tadamichi Kuribayashi perished on Iwo. His final message, in which he said all ammunition was gone, but that he would lead survivors in one last charge was broadcast. The message was dated March 17.

"Must Retake Island"

"In particular, concerned over the fact that unless we retake this island the empire can never be safe externally," General Kuribayashi said in his message. "I vow that I shall become the forerunner of the imperial army's rally with increased force, even though I die and turn into a spirit."

Still another broadcast apologized because "until now, our science had remained relatively apart from the war" but assured "the wonderful capacity of our technology will enable Japanese military science to smash this material strength of the United States."

Earlier the Tokyo newspaper Yomiuri-Hochi said Japan has reached the "gravest crisis since the beginning of its history." Envisioning the battle of Japan, the newspaper added:

"The enemy cannot wipe us off the face of the earth even by sending out an army of millions because they must pass through a solid human shelf of 100,000,000 Japanese determined to die in defense of their beloved homeland."

U.S. Planes Raid Hainan Island, Japs Report

San Francisco, March 22 (AP)—Approximately 120 American Superforts, Liberators and Lightnings raided Hainan Island off the South China coast yesterday, Radio Tokyo reported today in a broadcast heard here.

The unconfirmed report said Japanese defenders inflicted "considerable losses" on the raiders.

Hainan is somewhat off the beaten track for American raiders, and mention of Superfort participation recalled frequent Tokyo reports in which smaller bombers have been confused with B-29's.

Jap Transport Hit

Chungking, March 22 (AP)—B-24's of the United States 14th Air Force damaged a 7,500-ton enemy transport off Hainan Island yesterday, today's communiqué reported. P-51's attacked a Japanese airfield in French Indo-China and damaged four locomotives.

Jap Morale Tip: 'Hands-On-Chest'

San Francisco, March 22 (AP)—Japanese were told by Tokyo radio today to follow the example of Frederick the Great and, "without uselessly indulging in worry over the prevailing war situation, we should calmly place our hand upon our chest and think of the fact that our efforts are not yet sufficient."

The profound suggestion came from Maj. Gen. Chuon Sakurai, who thought it "really significant" that "regardless of victory or de[feat]," Frederick the Great "always put his hand on his chest."

Jap Shore Guns, 3 British Ships In 'Duel'

San Francisco, March 22 (AP)—A "shelling duel" between three British destroyers and Japanese shore batteries in the southern Andaman Islands was reported today by an unconfirmed Japanese Imperial communiqué which claimed "one enemy destroyer was sunk and two heavily damaged.

The communiqué, heard by the Federal Communications Commission, said the battle was opened Monday when the destroyers began bombarding shore defenses.

The Andaman Islands are in the Bay of Bengal.

LaGuardia Says 'Hour of Tolerance Will Make Curfew 'Workable'

NEW YORK, March 22—(AP) Mayor F. H. La Guardia said tonight that his "hour of tolerance" for amusement place closing was intended to make the nationwide curfew "workable, enforceable and sensible" as it applied to New York city.

"It is simply construing the existing regulations in such a manner as to make it easily enforced," he said in a prepared broadcast adding:

"Your mayor is seeking to avoid recurrence of criminal activities, graft, corruption and unlawful operations such as were created by prohibition."

La Guardia suggested that Congress could create an "enforceable" curfew by establishing a license system fixing the hours of operation.

This "could even be inserted as a proviso in the Internal Revenue law," he said. "We have had many, many such instances before. That would make it mandatory, lawful and enforceable."

He made no reference to the decision of nearly all New York night clubs and theaters, and many taprooms, to close at midnight rather than at 1 o'clock as his action last Sunday permitted.

Asking himself a series of questions and then answering them, the mayor said:

"Did the one hour of tolerance exclude service men? Not at all. The Army issued the order that servicemen should not be served during that hour." (The Navy issued a similar order, which La Guardia did not mention).

"Why was the curfew request made in Washington?" he asked. "I do not know. I have not found anyone in Washington who seems to know. . . .

"Will the United States government invoke sanctions as mentioned in the request of the War Manpower commission? Judging from administration of other executive orders, I doubt it very much. . . .

"Are other cities carrying out the curfew request? I leave it to the people of other cities to look around and judge for themselves."

The mayor of New York, said La Guardia, "hates hypocrisy and he has fought disregard or violation of the law all his life. He is not satisfied with lip service, with proud proclamations of compliance when there is no compliance x x x he does not approve of the policy of hailing cooperation with a nod, and closing of the eyes while allowing open, flagrant disregard of any order or request."

La Guardia said New York city was different from any other city in the country in that it was much bigger--"twice the size of Chicago, ten times the size of Boston, nine times the size of St. Louis"—and in that its chief amusement and hotel district is crowded within a small area in midtown Manhattan.

He said the curfew request of War Mobilization Director James F. Byrnes caused a "terrific jam at midnight," that his own suggestion of an hour of tolerance would relieve the situation by stringing out the exodus from hotels, restaurants and places of amusement "in such a way as to reduce the one big vehicular and pedestrian jam. It would be an opportunity for an orderly closing of business."

RUNDSTEDT SENT PEACE ENVOY, BRITISH CLAIM

NEW YORK, March 22 — (AP) A British broadcast heard tonight by NBC quoted "reports from neutral sources" that Field Marshal Karl von Rundstedt had sent an armistice envoy to Gen. Eisenhower's headquarters ten days ago, just before his removal as commander of German forces on the Western front.

The BBC broadcast said shortly afterward "an official statement was issued in Washington saying that the Allied high command was prepared to accept the surrender of German units including entire Army groups, but could not consider any proposal for an armistice."

Countess Says Nazis Killed 50 With Fire

New York, March 22 (AP)—Countess Carlo Sforza said today in a letter from Rome that German Storm Troopers, before they left Italy, burned alive 50 women and children with flame throwers.

"The Germans evidently take a sadistic pleasure in revenging their military defeats on the Italians," she wrote. The letter was made public by Justice Juvenal, Marchisio, president of American Relief for Italy, Inc.

Ruhr Arms Workers Advised To Stay Put

New York, March 22 (AP)—General Eisenhower's series of radio warnings to German civilians and enslaved foreign labor to flee for their lives from areas in the path of the Allied advance into Germany was beamed today to the Ruhr's armament workers.

The message admonished the armament workers to "be sure not to move into other industrial areas" where they would "once again be subject to the (Nazi) party work compulsion."

The workers also were warned to avoid being enrolled in the Volkssturm since this would mean a "useless death" in the final stages of the war and reminded them that the power of the SS (Elite) troops and the Nazi party is waning day by day.

Advice Given On Proper Feeling At Conference

New York, March 22 (AP)—Dr. Virginia C. Gildersleeve, dean of Barnard College, only woman member of the United States delegation to the San Francisco World Security Conference, tonight asked for "the right atmosphere for receiving the delegates from abroad and convincing them of our sincerity and good intentions."

"This can be greatly helped or hindered during the next two months by American newspapers, radio commentators and the general public," she said in an address prepared for a dinner in her honor.

"Let us try to persuade them to emphasize the common aims rather than the differences between the United Nations; not to play up excitedly incidental snags and nasty rumors; not to indulge in disagreeable 'wisecracks,' however clever."

MEANWHILE ALLIED LIGHT, MEDIUM AND FIGHTERBOMBERS ROARED OFF FORWARD AIRFIELDS ON THE CONTINENT IN RECORD STRENGTH, CRUSHING ENEMY POSITIONS AND ROLLING STOCK FROM NORTH OF THE RUHR TO THE SAAR.
THE U.S. NINTH AIR FORCE WAS HEADED FOR ITS BIGGEST DAY SINCE IT BEGAN OPERATIONS FROM ENGLAND IN FEBRUARY, 1944. IN THE MORNING MORE THAN 1,800 BOMBERS AND FIGHTER-BOMBERS STRUCK AT WILL THROUGH THE RHINELAND AT RAIL LINES, COMMUNICATIONS CENTERS, FREIGHT YARDS AND ENEMY TROOPS AND ARMOR ON THE EAST BANK OF THE RHINE. THE NINTH AIR FORCE PUSHED ITS FIVE-DAY TOLL OF ALL TYPES OF ENEMY VEHICLES TO NEAR THE 15,000 MARK.
THE ITALY-BASED HEAVY BOMBERS OF THE U.S. 15TH AIR FORCE FLEW A ROUND TRIP OF 1,400 MILES IN MAKING THE RUHLAND RAID AND COVERED THE PLANT THERE, THE LARGEST STILL PRODUCING GASOLINE IN GERMANY, WITH A GREAT WEIGHT OF BOMBS. SMOKE BILLOWED FROM THE ENTIRE TOWN.
RUHLAND HAS BEEN BOMBED BEFORE BY BRITAIN-BASED AMERICAN PLANES, THE LAST PREVIOUS ATTACK BEING LAUNCHED LAST SATURDAY, BUT THE NEW ASSAULT WAS BELIEVED TO BE THE FIRST EFFECTIVE BLOW AGAINST THE PLANT PRODUCING 22,000 TONS OF FUEL, HALF OF IT GASOLINE. MUCH OF THE GASOLINE IS BELIEVED TO HAVE BEEN GOING TO THE EASTERN FRONT.

OTHER TARGETS OF THE HEAVY BOMBERS FROM ITALY INCLUDED A RAIL YARDS AND A REFINERY IN THE VIENNA AREA AND THE KRALUPY REFINERY, 15 MILES NORTHEAST OF PRAGUE. AN ATTACK AGAINST THE KAGRAN PLANE NEAR VIENNA WAS BELIEVED TO HAVE BEEN UNSUCCESSFUL. THE KAGRAN REFINERY, WHICH PRODUCES APPROXIMATELY 500 TONS (175,000 GALLONS) OF GASOLINE A MONTH, WAS BELIEVED TO BE THE ONLYONE STILL OPERATING EFFECTIVELY IN THE 15TH AIR FORCE'S RANGE.
MORE THAN 150 OF THE FIGHTERS ACCOMPANYING THE BRITAIN-BASED AMERICAN HEAVY BOMBERS MADE A RENDEZVOUS WITH THE ITALY-BASED FLYING FORTRESSES SOUTH OF BERLIN.
U.S.EIGHTH AIR FORCE BOMBERS WERE UNMOLESTED BY GERMAN FIGHTERS BUT DREW INTENSE ANTIAIRCRAFT FIRE IN THE RUHR ATTACKS. ONLY SLIGHT FLAK OPPOSITION WAS ENCOUNTERED ELSEWHERE. A COMMUNIQUE SAID LOSSES HAD NOT YET BEEN TABULATED.
MUSTANG PILOTS SHOT DOWN AT LEAST 12 NAZI PLANES, INCLUDING THREE JET-PROPELLED AIRCRAFT, AND DESTROYED NINE MORE ENEMY AIRCRAFT ON THE GROUND WHILE STRAFING THREE AIRFIELDS NEAR AUGSBURG AND WUERZBURG IN SOUTHERN GERMANY.
ITALY-BASED AMERICAN MEDIUM BOMBERS SMASHED THREE RAIL BRIDGES NEAR INNSBRUCK, AUSTRIA.
THE 15TH AIR FORCE'S CAMPAIGN AGAINST GERMAN GASOLINE PRODUCTION ENTERED ITS FINAL STAGE WITH THE ARRIVAL OF GOOD WEATHER EARLY IN MARCH. OF NINE REFINERIES PRODUCING AT THE BEGINNING OF THE MONTH, SIX NOW ARE OUT OF COMMISSION AND TWO OTHERS ARE SO BADLY DAMAGED THEY ARE TEMPORARILY UNABLE TO PRODUCE.
IT WAS EXPLAINED THAT THE 15TH AIR FORCE'S JOB HENCEFORTH WILL BE TO KEEP THSE PLANTS OUT OF PRODUCTION PERMITTING THE DIVERSION OF MORE AIR STRENGTH BEHIND THE SURGING RUSSIAN FRONT.

LONDON, MARCH 22-(AP)-AUTHORITATIVE INFORMANTS CLOSE TO DR. JUAN NEGRIN, FORMER PREMIER AND DEFENSE MINISTER OF THE EXILED SPANISH REPUBLICAN GOVERNMENT, DECLARED HERE TODAY THAT PRINCE JUAN'S MESSAGE ASKING FRANCISCO FRANCO TO RESIGN AND RESTORE THE MONARCHY WOULD HAVE LITTLE OR NO REACTION IN SPAIN.

SPANISH MONARCHIST CIRCLES IN PARIS SAID PRINCE JUAN WAS CONVINCED THE REESTABLISHMENT OF DEMOCRATIC LIBERTIES IN SPAIN COULD NOT BE DELAYED IN VIEW OF THE APPROACHING VICTORY OF THE UNITED NATIONS. TO CONTINUE AN UNDEMOCRATIC REGIME LIKE THAT OF FRANCO IN THE FACE OF THE UNITED NATIONS' SUCCESS WOULD COMPROMISE SPAIN'S POSITION ON THE INTERNATIONAL STAGE, THEY SAID.

REPUBLICAN QUARTERS IN LONDON SAID THE BROAD MASSES OF SPANIARDS HAVE A LATENT FEELING THAT THE MONARCHY IS TO BLAME FOR THE COUNTRY'S PRESENT SITUATION, BEING AWARE OF THE FACT THAT SINCE THE 16TH CENTURY SPAIN HAD LOST POWER AND PRESTIGE UNDER A SUCCESSION OF KINGS.

THEY CONCEDED THAT JUAN'S MESSAGE WAS CLEVERLY TIMED, AS FRANCO'S FATE WAS EXPECTED TO BE SEALED AT THE WORLD SECURITY CONFERENCE AT SAN FRANCISCO AND JUAN WISHED TO PLEAD HIS CAUSE BEFORE THE REPUBLICANS COULD BE HEARD AT THE WORLD COUNCIL.

NIGHT LEAD FRENCH SECURITY (300)

BY JOSEPH DYNAN

PARIS, MARCH 22-(AP)-THE FRENCH DELEGATION TO THE WORLD SECURITY CONFERENCE AT SAN FRANCISCO NEXT MONTH WILL URGE ADOPTION OF "A MORE SIMPLE" VOTING PROCEDURE, OFFICIALS SAID TODAY, AND ALSO WILL ASK THAT MEMBERS OF REGIONAL PACTS BE ALLOWED TO ACT IN CASES OF EMERGENCY WITHOUT PRIOR APPROVAL FROM THE COUNCIL.

FRENCH IDEAS ON THE VOTING PROCEDURE AMONG PROPOSED AMENDMENTS TO THE DUMBARTON OAKS PLAN WERE COMMUNICATED TO THE SPONSORING GOVERNMENTS YESTERDAY AND MADE PUBLIC TODAY.

THE QUAI D'ORSAY VOTING AMENDMENT WOULD DIVIDE ALL COUNCIL VOTES INTO "RECOMMENDATIONS," AND "DECISIONS." AN UNQUALIFIED TWO-THIRDS VOTE WOULD BE NECESSARY TO PASS A "RECOMMENDATION," WHILE A "DECISION" WOULD NECESSITATE A TWO-THIRDS VOTE, INCLUDING ALL PERMANENT MEMBERS.

"DECISIONS" WOULD BE MATTERS INVOLVING THE USE OF FORCE, WHILE "RECOMMENDATIONS" WOULD COVER MOST OTHER SUBJECTS BEFORE THE COUNCIL.

EXPLAINING THE FRENCH POSITION, AN OFFICIAL SAID IT WAS THOUGHT THAT IT WOULD BE EASIER TO DETERMINE WHETHER THE SUBJECT BEFORE THE COUNCIL CALLED FOR A DECISION OR RECOMMENDATION THAN TO DETERMINE WHETHER IT FITTED CERTAIN CLAUSES.

ANOTHER FRENCH AMENDMENT WOULD PROVIDE A GREATER PLACE FOR SO-CALLED "MIDDLE" NATIONS SUCH AS CANADA, BRAZIL, THE NETHERLANDS, BY REQUIRING THREE OF THE SIX NON-PERMANENT COUNCIL SEATS TO GO TO SUCH NATIONS.

THE AMENDMENT TEXT WOULD GRANT THREE NON-PERMANENT SEATS TO THOSE NATIONS WHICH ARE IN A POSITION TO PARTICIPATE IN ENFORCEMENT OF PEACE AND SECURITY.

SOMEWHAT LARGER POWERS WOULD BE GIVEN THE ASSEMBLY UNDER ONE FRENCH PROPOSAL. THIS WOULD ALLOW THE ASSEMBLY TO INITIATE A STUDY OF ANY SUBJECT RATHER THAN RESTRICTING THE INITIATIVE ON CERTAIN MATTERS TO THE COUNCIL.

OFFICIALS STRESSED THAT PROVISION FOR REGIONAL PACTS REMAINED A CARDINAL POINT IN THE FRENCH PROPOSALS. ONE AMENDMENT WOULD ALLOW NATIONS SIGNATORY TO A REGIONAL PACT TO ACT WITHOUT PRIOR APPROVAL FROM THE WORLD COUNCIL "IN CASES OF EMERGENCY."

SCHWEIGEN,GERMANY,MARCH 22--THE RED,WHITE AND BLUE, LONE STAR ... OF TEXAS PRESENTED THE 36TH (TEXAS) DIVISION BY GOVERNOR COKE STEVENSON WAS RAISED ON GERMAN SOIL TODAY.

THE STANDARD WAS PRESENTED THE DIVISION AT CAMP BLANDING, TEXAS, MAY 13, 1942, AND SINCE THEN THE FLAG HAS GONE ASHORE AT SALERNO, BEEN GIVEN A SYMBOLIC DEDICATION ON THE SOUTHERN COAST OF FRANCE AT DINES AND AT LUXEUIL.

THE FLAG-RAISING CEREMONY TODAY WAS HELD IN A SINISTER SYMPHONY OF TWO AIR RAIDS, THE CONSTANT RUMBLE OF BIG GUNS AT THE FRONT--LITTLE MORE THAN A MILE AWAY--AND THE WHINE OF NEBEL-WERFER (SCREAMING MEEMIES) WITH A HANDFUL OF GIS FROM THE 143RD REGIMENT FORMING THE HONOR GUARD.

THE SCENE WAS THE CUSTOMS HOUSE ARCH HERE, SEVERAL HUNDRED FEET INSIDE THE GERMAN BORDER.

MAJ.GEN.JOHN W.DAHLQUIST OF MINNEAPOLIS, MINN., DIVISION COMMANDER, WAS SCHEDULED TO OFFICIATE BUT HE WAS BUSY DIRECTING A TWO-PRONGED ATTACK ON DUERRENBACH AND BERGZABERN, AND A NATIVE TEXAN TOOK OVER THE CEREMONY.

HE WAS MAJ.ARMIN PUCK OF 2166 WEST KINGS HIGHWAY, SAN ANTONIO, TEX., PROVOST MARSHAL WHO HAS BEEN IN THE DIVISION SINCE 1932 AND WAS CAPTAIN OF THE COLOR GUARD WHEN STEVENSON PRESENTED THE FLAG.

FOR PUCK, A FORMER SAN ANTONIO AND SPRINGFIELD,ILL., INSURANCE EXECUTIVE, THE CEREMONY HAD SPECIAL SIGNIFICANCE. BOTH HIS FATHER AND MOTHER WERE BORN IN GERMANY, HIS FATHER IN KOENIGSBERG, HIS MOTHER IN STUTTGART.

"I KNOW HOW GOOD THIS IS GOING TO MAKE DAD FEEL," HE SAID, "BECAUSE HE'S AN AMERICAN THROUGH AND THROUGH."

BESIDE PUCK AT THE FORMAL UNFURLING OF THE FLAG WAS ANOTHER TEXAN, CPL.C.A.ROBERSON OF NOCONA, ONE OF A GROUP OF THE 143RD'S TRUCK DRIVER JUST RETURNED FROM HAULING MEN INTO THE FRONT LINE.

OTHERS IN THE INFORMAL HONOR GUARD INCLUDED PFC.WALTER HUDDLESTON OF TRAVERS CITY,MICH.; PFC.STANLEY KNAPP OF 130 NORTH THIRD ST., DUQUESNE,TEX.; PFC.JOSEPH BATISSA OF 171 WASHINGTON ST., PERTH AMBOY, N.J.; CPL.GEORGE ULRICH OF ORRWELL, OHIO; PFC.JAMES TRAINHAM OF 519-A NORTH 21ST ST., RICHMOND, VA.

THE GOVERNOR ANNOUNCED IN PRESENTING THE FLAG THAT IT WAS GIVEN BY THE PEOPLE OF TEXAS AND THAT IN THE STAFF WAS A CAPSULE QUOTING THE WORDS OF COL.WILLIAM BARRETT TRAVIS BEFORE THE FALL OF THE ALAMO, "I SHALL NEVER SURRENDER OR RETREAT. VICTORY OR DEATH."

LT.SUMNER WILSON OF 16 STONELEA PLACE, NEW ROCHELLE,N.Y., FORMER NEW YORK PUBLICITY MAN, HANDED THE FLAG TO PUCK ON A HIGH BRIDGE OVER THE CUSTOMS ARCH.

MAR 23 1945

A SIGN OVER THE SWASTIKA-DECORATED ARCH PROCLAIMED: "YOU ARE NOW ENTERING GERMANY BY COURTESY OF THE 142ND REGIMENT COMBAT TEAM." THAT OUTFIT FIRST STORMED THROUGH SCHWEIGEN AND WAS RELIEVED BY THE 143RD REGIMENT.

EAST OF THE RHINE, MARCH 22-(AP)-A LOW FLYING TROOP CARGIER PLANE TOWED A CASUALTY-FILLEB GLIDER FROM THE FIRST ARMY'S REMAGEN BRIDGEHEAD TODAY, INAUGURATING A SPECTACULAR NEW SHUTTLE SERVICE XOR EVACUATING WOUNDED FROM AREAS NEAR THE CROSS-RHINE BATTLEFRONT.

IT WAS A DRAMATIC MOMENT ON THE LITTLE LANDING STRIP IN A CABBAGE PATCH NEAR THE RHINE WHEN THE TGANSPORTHSWOOPED LOW, CAUGHT A TOWROPE AND SWEPT THE GLIDER OFF THE GROUND.

GLIDER EVACUATION OF WOUNDED MEN HAS BEEN CARRIED OUT IN INDIA AND BURMA, BUT THIS WAS THE FIRST TIME IT HAD BEEN TRIED IN THE EUROPEAN THEATER OF OPERATIONS. IT WAS A SUCCESS.

CAPT. DONALD HAUG, WENATCHEE, WASH., OF THE TROOP VARRIER COMMAND, SAID PLANS WERE TO SHUTTLE TEN LARGE GLIBERS TO THE BRIDGEHEAD DAILY, EACH MAKING THREE TRIPS TO CARRY OUT 12 LITTER CASES OF 19 WALKING WOUNDED PER TRIP.

THIS WOULB BE AN AVERAGE OF ABOUT 450 EVACUEES DAILY. FIVE MINUTES AFTER THE WOUNDED LEAVE THE BRIDGEHEAD, THEY ARRIVE AT A HOSPITAL AIRSTRIP WEST OF THE RHINE.

THE ADVANTAGE OF GLIDER EVAVUATION LIES IN SPEED AND IN SAVING OF AMBULANCE SPACE. THE TRAFFIC PROBLEM ALONG THE PACKED ROADS LEADING TO AND INSIDE THE BRIDGEHEAD ALSO IS REDUCED.

AT NOON, A DOUGLAS C-47 FLEW OVER THE RHINE AND DISENGAGED A GLIDER PILOTED BY MAJ.H.H.CLOUD,JR., 110 EASTERN PARKWAY, LOUISVILLE, KY. THE GLIDER SLIPPED DOWN ON THE LANDING STRIP, MARKED BY COLORED CLOTH, AND STOPPED IN A WHIRL OF DUST.

THE FRONT OF THE GLIDER OPENED AND WOUNDED MEN WERE CARRIED FROM PARKED AMBULANCES--MEN INJURED ONLY A FEW HOURS EARLIER. ALL KNEW THEY WERE TO BE EVACUATED BY GLIDER. NONE OBJECTED. MOST WERE CONSCIOUS. TWO OF THE FIRST 12 LOADED ON THE GLIDER WERE GERMANS. THE MEN WERE STRAPPED INTO THE CRAFT WITH SIX ON THE UPPER TIER AND SIX ON THE LOWER.

PRETTY, BROWN-HAIRED LT.SUELLA BARNARD, 26, WAYNESVILLE, OHIO, AN AIR EVACUATION NURSE, VOLUNTEERED TO BE THE FIRST NURSE TO RIDE ON A GLIDER SNATCHED FROM THE GROUND ON THIS FRONT. SHE FORMERLY WAS AT THE SPRINGFIELD, OHIO, CITY HOSPITAL.

"I WAS A LITTLE NERVOUS ABOUT IT AT FIRST," SHE SMILED, "BUT I AM ALL RIGHT NOW."

LT. COL. HARRY P.HARPER OF ROCHESTER, MINN., WAS A PASSENGER ON THE GILDER, OBSERVING THE EFFECTS ON THE WOUNDED OF THE TAKEOFF AND THE LANDING.

WITH THE U.S.THIRD ARMY IN GERMANY, MARCH 22-(AP)-THIRD ARMY TANKS AND INFANTRY, RAMPAGING THROUGH THIS PICTURESQUE AND FERTILE REALM IN THE PAST 19 DAYS, HAVE CONQUERED 4,225 COMMUNITIES--SOME SHATTERED, MANY WITHOUT SO MUCH AS A WINDOW BROKEN--AND HAVE BITTEN OFF 5,230 SQUARE MILES OF GERMAN TERRITORY.

THIS IS A VAST AREA BETWEEN BITBURG AND COBLENZ, LYING IN THE TRIANGLE FORMED BY THE UPPER RHINE AND THE MOSELLE. IT IS ESPECIALLY BIG FROM THE VIEWPOINT OF MILITARY GOVERNMENT DETACHMENTS WHICH MUST NOW ADMINISTER IT.

JEEING ALONG THE TRAFFIC-

MAR 23 1945

JEEPING ALONG THE TRAFFIC-JAMMED ROADS LITTERED WITH GERMAN WRECKAGE ONE IS FORCIBLY IMPRESSED WITH THE SPEED OF THE OFFENSIVE, LIGHTNING THRUSTS OF ARMOR CLAWING GREAT HUNKS OF COUNTRYSIDE INTO LT.GEN.GEORGE S.PATTON'S STEEL NET.

SOME QUAINT VILLAGES AND TOWNS HAVE BEEN LEFT INTACT. NEVERTHELESS THERE IS A GRIM PICTURE OF DESTRUCTION IN PATTON'S WAKE. IN PLACES SUCH AS BITBURG, TRIER AND PRUEM IT WAS AWE-INSPIRING, AND BATTERED SECTIONS OF CITIES FARTHER EAST EMPHASIZE THE RUTHLESSNESS OF THE WAR.

MOST OF THIS DESTRUCTION WAS WROUGHT BY FLEETS OF BOMBERS IN THE WEEKS AND MONTHS PRECEDING THE PUSH, BUT THE GRIMMEST EVIDENCE OF THE MOMENTUM OF THE ADVANCE IS SEEN IN THE DETAILS--GERMAN TRUCKS, TANKS AND OTHER VEHICLES IN JUMBLED HEAPS ALONG THE ROAD, FROZEN GERMAN DEAD LYING HERE AND THERE.

BUT LATER I FLEW LOW OVER WIDER AREAS IN A HEDGEHOPPING LITTLE PLANE PILOTED BY STAFF SGT.NORMAN A.NOLAND OF INDEPENDENCE, MO., AND SAW THE BROAD MAP OF THE THIRD ARMY'S CONQUEST FROM A NEW ANGLE, WITH EMPHASIS ON SOFTER COLORS.

NOLAND CRUISED AT A LEISURELY PACE AND I COULD SEE THE TWIGS ON THE TREES AND THE SHINGLES ON THE HOUSES. THE AFTERNOON SUN GILDED THE TURRETED CASTLES AND BROUGHT OUT THE REDDISH COLOR OF FRESHLY PLOWED FIELDS. OXEN, NOT HORSES, WERE PULLING THE PLOWS.

SUDDENLY I REALIZED THAT EVERY ROOF IN A PRETTY VILLAGE BELOW WAS INTACT. APPARENTLY, NOT A SHINGLE, NOT A TILE WAS MISSING.

B54

MAR 23 1945

OTHER VILLAGES WERE LESS FORTUNATE. TWO OR MAYBE THREE BUILDINGS WOULD BE WRECKED. SCORES OF OTHERS PASSED IN REVIEW UNHARMED, AND THEN CAME THE INEVITABLE SIGNS OF MODERN WAR AGAIN--THE TANK TRACKS AND BOMB CRATERS SCARRING THE FIELDS. YET, JUST BEYOND THEM LAY GREAT STRETCHES OF FERTILE FARMLAND, COUNTLESS VINEYARDS UNTOUCHED. CASTLES IN WOODED HILLS LOOKED DOWN UPON A SERENE COUNTRYSIDE.

ON THE HORIZON LOOMED THE RUINED CITIES. THEY ARE SCARS ON THE LANDSCAPE NOW. BUT OVER THE COUNTRYSIDE IT IS SPRING AND THINGS ARE BEGINNING TO GROW.

Patton's Forces Surprise Nazis In Night Attack

PARIS, Saturday, March 24.—(AP) The U. S. Third army swarmed in strength across the Rhine Thursday night in the war's greatest river crossing, overwhelmed the startled enemy and struck inland with lightning speed from a firm bridgehead on the shortest road to Berlin.

By Friday the Americans had seized a sizable strip of territory east of the river, for an official announcement referred to the position as a bridgehead, which in Army terminology means the crossings are beyond enemy light artillery range. (That might mean they were as much as five miles beyond the Rhine.)

Carrying out to perfection a coup rehearsed for months, Lt. Gen. George S. Patton, Jr., put the first American assault waves across at an undisclosed point on the east bank without the Germans firing a shot and without the loss of a man in the actual crossing.

Head for Berlin

Patton was pressing home what might well prove a mortal blow without giving the enemy time to recuperate from the Nazi catastrophe west of the Rhine. The charging Doughboys were talking in high spirits of beating the Russians to Berlin.

The enemy was so startled by this swift assault that some troops, resting from their defeat west of the river, were caught eating and not a single heavy shell was fired until two hours after the first troops touched the east bank in the moonlight of 10:25 p. m. Thursday.

The crossing, which the Germans said was made with amphibious tanks as well as assault boats, came without a preliminary bombardment which might have tipped off the enemy.

Thus Patton showed his contempt for the Rhine, Germany's historic moat which never before had been stormed, although the U.S. First army won the honor of being the first across by taking the Ludendorff bridge intact at Remagen more than two weeks ago.

The Germans, giving the first hint of the dazzling coup, said earlier in the day that Patton had crossed near Oppenheim, 10 miles south of the fallen city of Mainz.

The ease of the crossings and the swift push inland pointed up the tremendous victory which the Third and the U. S. Seventh armies had won on the west bank.

2 Nazi Armies Destroyed

The German First and Seventh armies, which might have been on the east bank for the defense of inner Germany, were destroyed—100,000 of their troops in prison cages and their tanks, armored vehicles, trucks and guns strewn by the thousands on the battlefield west of the Rhine.

If the Germans are correct in saying that Patton crossed at Oppenheim, then his forces are out on the Frankfurt plain on one of the best natural approaches to Berlin through the waist of Germany.

There the Rhine is 500 yards wide, and a short distance north it turns into the narrow gorge that leads on to Coblenz.

That would place it about 55 airline miles south of the First army's east bank front, which is bursting out southward and is nearing the Rhine opposite Coblenz.

Oppenheim is 20 miles southeast of Frankfurt-on-the-Main, and is little more than 300 airline miles west of where the Russians are swinging westward.

Wave on wave of hard-hitting veterans crossed in what Associated Press Correspondent Edward D. Ball declared from the front was "the greatest over-water assault since the Normandy beaches."

Nazi Guns Open Up

The Germans then began pouring in some mortar and anti-tank fire and they were answered and silenced by thunderous salvos from American artillery drawn up along the river.

By dawn the first wave had pushed on inland and more and more men and supplies were landing on the bridgehead in assault boats. Ball said the beachhead by then had become "as quiet as a Sunday picnic."

There was no question of Patton's ability to exploit his surprise, for the stuff that he had landed far outweighed that which the Germans were able to muster after the debacle west of the river.

A Berlin military spokesman said American units also had attempted crossings near Dusseldorf and six miles south of Cologne, and Allied pilots reported that the Germans were frantically digging in farther north, where the enemy was expecting Field Marshal Montgomery to strike hourly.

Ready to Attack Ruhr

While these might well reflect German anxiety, the facts were that Allied strategists had written off the Rhine as a military barrier, and that the Ruhr, after weeks of terrific bombing, was isolated and paralyzed, ripe for assault.

U. S. First army forces already across the Rhine had passed the bridgehead phase and, widening their hold on the east bank to more than 33 miles, were ready to join in dealing the decisive blows.

These troops were plunging 10 to 11 miles inland east of the Rhine, and also were pouring southward ready to link hands across the river with the powerful Third army.

The northward end of the bridgehead was less than 12 miles from the south edge of the Ruhr plain. At any time these northern forces could cross the Sieg river, a minor obstacle compared with those they already have spanned.

Lt. Gen. Omar N. Bradley, 12th army group commander, asserted that with German power broken west of the Rhine, the need for keeping the bridgehead small was past, "and there is nothing to prevent us from crossing most anywhere at any time" for the final shove.

Paris, March 23 (A. P.).—German broadcasts said tonight that assault formations from Lieut.-Gen. George S. Patton's Third Army had gained a second Allied foothold across the Rhine. Earlier the Nazis had said Field Marshal Montgomery "seems to be ready for a crossing in the north."

DAY

There was no Allied confirmation of either move, but Lieut.-Gen. Omar N. Bradley, commander of the group which includes the United States First and Third armies, declared that the Allies could now cross the great river "most anywhere at any time."

The crossing by Patton's forces was made last night near Oppenheim, twelve miles south of Mainz and thirteen miles due west of Darmstadt, a German radio announcer reported, with assault boats and amphibious tanks.

Although he declared German motorized troops counterattacked immediately and "wiped most of them out," he indicated Patton's men still had a grip on the east bank of the Rhine to supplement the 33-mile long bridgehead of the First Army stretching from north to Bonn to within five miles of Coblenz.

Germans Tell of Attack.

All along the Rhine the Germans reported Allied preparations to storm the river. Forty miles of the lower Rhine were blacked out in a dense smoke screen thrown up by Montgomery's chemical forces to mask what the German communique called the "offensive preparations" of his three armies. Heavy shelling arched across the river from Allied artillery, and armadas of Allied planes stitched a fence of explosives around the Ruhr.

The German communique said that Patton's men also had made several attempts to cross the Rhine further south, below Worms, and the German radio last night told of other attempted cross-Rhine thrusts in the First Army sector near Duesseldorf.

In the mop-up stage west of the Rhine the Third Army captured Speyer on the Rhine, the last considerable city west of the river. The Germans thus were reduced to a nineteen-mile stretch of the west bank.

While Speyer at the north end of the German pocket was falling, the Thirty-sixth Division, Seventh

Army, flanked the last fifteen miles of the thickly studded Siegfried Line on the south of the pocket and poured armor and infantry into Bergzabern, twenty-five miles southwest of Speyer and nineteen miles west of Karlsruhe.

Mainz, Pirmasens and Landau toppled and Ludwigshafen was being cleared in closing hours of the great Palatinate-Saarland victory. More than 100,000 prisoners have been taken there. Gen. Bradley said 203,010 had been captured in the Rhineland since February 8.

"There is complete calm on the Allied side of the lower Rhine," Ross Munro of the Canadian Press wirelessed from Montgomery's headquarters. "It is anybody's guess when the zero hour will come."

The only fighting on the sixty-five-mile critical stretch of the lower Rhine between Arnhem and Duesseldorf was by increasingly active patrols, by artillery batteries and the bombing and strafing air fleets.

Gen. Bradley's remarks implied that no pause for rest and refitting was needed before his First and Third armies crossed the Rhine at places other than the Remagen bridgehead, now lengthened to thirty-three miles with the capture of Neuwied near Coblenz and hamlets within twelve miles of the lower rim of the Ruhr. American losses in driving up to the west bank were extremely small compared to the catastrophic losses of the foe, Gen. Bridle ysaid.

One report which the Paris radio announced it recorded from the German radio said that assault crossings of the lower Rhine already had been started by Montgomery's troops. Supreme Headquarters spoke only of patrol actions.

A terrific weight of Allied air power shook the Ruhr again today and showered ruin over the network of communications on the great German plain north of it. This was the area east of the Arnhem-Wesel elbow of the Rhine, where the Germans said the Twenty-first Army Group had massed the greatest concentration of power since Normandy.

The intermeshing Third and Seventh armies, flattened the Germans back almost to the Rhine banks in the Palatinate.

"The Third Army put 10,020 prisoners in its cages yesterday by actual count. The Seventh Army gave no figure. The First Army bagged 1,135. Since D day the First and Third armies, which Gen. Bradley commands, have captured 564,091 Germans—or the equivalent of seventy thinned-out German divisions as presently constituted.

German defenses against the First Army's front east of the Rhine were beginning to weaken. The infantry and supporting armor widened their front on the Sieg River, a dozen miles from the Ruhr, to ten miles. On the south, the First Army smashed across the Wied River on a fourteen-mile front and pushed as far as 4,000 yards beyond it. This placed the First Army within five miles of Ehrenbreitstein, the commanding fortress opposite Coblenz.

At devastated and captured Mainz, the Third Army was 100 miles inside Germany and separated from Russian armies southeast of Berlin by a distance about the length of Pennsylvania.

Smoke Screen Hides Allies.

Phenomenal smoke screen drifts, like the trail of a raging forest fire, obscured the winding lower Rhine front from Nijmegen south almost to the Ruhr, Mr. Munro reported at 1 P. M.

"The Germans are manning their east bank defenses where they expect Field Marshal Montgomery to unloose his lightning," he wrote, "there never has been a smokescreen like this before."

Germans of the First Parachute and Fifteenth armies had hastily reformed defenses in trenches and gun positions east of the lower Rhine after taking terrible beatings on the other side. The enemy expressed fear of airborne operations.

It was perhaps significant that Gen. Henry Crerar, commanding the Canadian First Army, returned to his continental headquarters after a few days in London.

Says Thrusts Failed.

The German High Command, in its communique broadcast shortly after 1 P. M., said that smoke screens and artillery fire still hid Montgomery's offensive preparations and that Allied reconnaissance thrusts in Holland had failed.

At the underlip of the Ruhr, the American First Army's cross-Rhine assault cleared Henef, on the Sieg River nine miles east of the Rhine. Its hold on the left bank of the little stream lengthened to nine miles. On the Sieg, the First Army was less than a dozen miles from the Ruhr. At the southern end of the east-Rhine front, the First Army advanced up to four miles—rolling up the river's east bank toward the Third Army front.

Texas and Oklahoma troops of the Ninetieth Division cleared Mainz and captured 3,000 Germans. The Tenth Armored (Tiger) Division, in a seven-mile advance west of Bad Duerkheim, took another 3,000.

The Tenth Armored Division seized Landau and closed upon the Palatinate capital of Speyer.

Infantrymen still were mopping up the chemical capital of Ludwigshafen after capturing the vast I. G. Farbenindustrie plant along the Rhine.

The Seventh Army's Seventy-first Division captured Pirmasens, a Siegfried Line bastion of 47,200 and industrial sector. The troops freed from 6,000 to 8,000 French, Polish and Czech conscript laborers there.

A front-line dispatch said today that the Sixth Armored Division has planted the Seventh Army's banner on the Rhine at Rheinduerkheim, four miles north of Worms, after a sixty-mile dash through the Bavarian Palatinate in two days.

The Rainbow Division of the Seventh Army broke through the last segment of the Palatinate Siegfried Line in the Hardt Mountains. Major-Gen. Anthony C. McAulifee's 103d (Cactus) Division, with armored support, cleared Raisdorf and reached Birkenhardt and Bollendorf and was closing in on Vord-Weidenthal in gains of from three to five miles northwest of Wissembourg.

YANKS JUBILANT OVER RHINE COUP

Doughboys Shout 'On to Berlin' as Lightning Attack Surprises Nazis.

By EDWARD D. BALL

WITH THE U. S. THIRD ARMY EAST OF THE RHINE, March 23. — (AP) The Third Army stormed across the Rhine at 10:25 p. m., last night without loss of a man and without drawing a single shot from the Germans until a good 20 minutes after the crossing was made good.

By dawn today a solid bridgehead was driven into Hitler's inner fortress against opposition that still was spotty and erratic despite some artillery and mortar fire.

Boats Speed Across

There was a minimum of noise and confusion at the bridgehead where droves of assault boats were speeding back and forth with men and supplies.

Within eight hours Lt. Gen. George S. Patton's forces had completely established a firm bridgehead in the greatest over-water assault since Normandy.

At the first crack of day a couple of Messerschmitt 262 jet propelled planes poked inquisitive noses over the bridgehead and promptly were knocked down.

Assault craft and amphibious ducks were flying the calm Rhine back and forth across the river.

The operation, which had been planned and rehearsed for months, went off far smoother than anyone could have hoped.

The Germans simply were caught by surprise and by the overwhelming weight of American arms.

Patton's men moved like lightning. Besides the surprise element, the Germans utterly failed to produce anything like the amount of fire the Americans were throwing at them.

Patton's Rhine-conquering exploit followed one of the greatest armor and infantry thrusts in military history—the tremendous sweep through the Saarland.

Together these successes appeared to be decisive blows against the Germans. The united Doughboys, who three weeks ago were urging the Russians on to Berlin, now nominated themselves for the job of taking the German capital.

I saw the Doughboys who went in on Omaha beach in Normandy last June 6 and I went across the Rhine with them last night.

The spirit was identical, and so was the overwhelming superiority in men and equipment.

The Rhineland never saw a more amazing sight than last night's. Probably it never will. For miles back the roads were lined with trucks and other vehicles struggling up the hils.

Hundreds of conveyances of all kinds which had pulled up just out of sight of the river during the day stood silent and shadowy in the moon-splashed fields and along the edges of woods near the Rhine. Engineers who had spent back-breaking months at home preparing for this show were on hand to help get the vehicles across.

Spotter Planes Ready

A fleet of pint sized artillery spotter planes, impressed into service as emergency one-man troop carriers, stood ready on a dozen uncharted wheat fields. The little cow-pasture transport force was to shuttle across the river, putting down anywhere it could, if the doughboys storming the Rhine found more than they could handle.

For months colums of trucks with their tons of assault boats had been edging toward the front at night and hiding out by day.

Sometimes they got in the way of swearing tankmen and played hob with traffic.

Along toward the end of the Third army's recent sensational spurt to the Rhine they lagged uneasily behind, but they put on a spurt and were on the spot last night when needed.

For some of the Doughboys it was their 20th river crossing. It was their most important, but not the most exciting. Not one man was lost in the actual crossing last night.

In groups of 12, the men began assembling along the tree-lined west bank after night fall. There was a quiet command shortly after 10 o'clock and the first wave moved out of the shadows like pallbearers carrying their little assault boats with six men on each side.

Moonlight Lights Up River

With hardly a sound they slipped the boats into the water, climbed in, and the drive over the last major water barrier before Berlin was on. Moonlight was so brilliant the reflection on the water hurt the eyes.

Besides the moonlight, the Germans had the advantage of direct observation by the light of an ammunition dump that was fired by an anti-tank gun during the afternoon and still was burning through the night, sending up towering pillars of flame and shaking the earth with explosions.

Between blasts I could hear only the heavy breathing of the men starting to make the over-water assault.

At 10:25 p. m. came this message from a walkie-talkie radio on the Rhine's right bank:

"Blank company across. No fire received at all. Everything quiet."

Everybody breathed easier in the little riverside cottage where Lt. Col. William Birdsong of Greenville, Miss., had set up his command post.

"The engineers did a swell job getting the boats up without letting the Heinies know what was up. God bless 'em," said Pvt. Harry Saghbazarian of Watertown, Mass., the colonel's runner.

More men started across, their long boat dancing crazily on the only-slightly ruffled water which reflected the orange glow of fires on the east bank.

"We've either surprised hell out of them or they don't have it," commented Capt. Raymond Bitney of Bloomer, Wis.

"Maybe it's both," added Capt. Tober T. Gill of Charlotte, N.C.

"This is like a picnic," chimed in Pfc. F. B. Hibbs, of Davenport, Iowa, who added, "I crossed the Saar and the Moselle and this looks easy."

The Picnic Ends

About that time the picnic ended. German burp guns on the other side cracked a few bursts. That was twenty minutes after the first doughboys pulled ashore.

"Let 'em shoot. This is old stuff now," said Pfc. Eric H. Doering, of Chicago, as he started for the river.

"The boys who worked their way in are now getting some small-arms fire," said Sergt. Robert C. Bradley, of Durand, Mich., calling down from an upstairs window of the cottage. "Hitler must know where they are by now," added Lieut. Don Larson, of Oshkosh, Wis.

"Like Stuck Pigs"

Things began popping then along the Rhine. The Germans fired four orange signal flares and gunfire broke out all over the place. A couple of machine guns started firing blue tracers wildly our way. They didn't last long.

Infantrymen charged two nests and from the other side came blood-curdling screams. As the screams grew fainter, Pfc. Evans Hoffstetler, of Charlotte, N.C., commented: "That was a Heinie. They all do when they get it—like stuck pigs."

Off to the right the doughboys charged.

"Come out! Come out," they were shouting. The Germans didn't come out, so the doughboys shot them out and moved on.

Profane Afterthought

"They know they are licked. Why don't they give up?" asked Pfc. Leonard Isenhour, of Liberty, Mo. "Damn the Germans, anyway," Sergt. Kenneth A. Harris, of Bedford, Ind., added as an afterthought.

"I've crossed 'em all from New York harbor to the Rhine," said Corporal Rainey, of North Concord, N.H. "I guess we'll have to cross 'em all to Berlin."

Capt. Harry (Pete) Smith, of Georgetown, Ky., who led the first wave across, had moved in swiftly from the river bank. It was time for Rainey and his comrades to move. He went over paired with Pfc. William Palcher, of Kansas City, Kan. In midstream they passed a boat coming back with the first bag of five Nazi prisoners.

"We Were Eating"

The captives told Lieut. Stephen Duke, of Cleveland, they had been dumped on the river bank two days ago and did not even know the number of their regiment. Asked why they did not shoot, the Germans replied, "We were eating."

Lieut. Col. Loyal Bewley, of Bethlehem, Pa., poked his head into the command post and said he had crossed the Meuse with the same division 25 years ago and now was jumping the Rhine with it. "The same division was on our flank then as now," he added.

Two hours after the silent waters of the Rhine had been churned into action, the Germans collected themselves and their artillery opened up. Mortars and anti-tank shells began slamming into the American positions on the banks.

Mortar Hits Cottage

A mortar tore a chunk out of the cottage command post and everybody decamped. Shells crashed into the yard, covering the men who had hurried out of the house with debris.

"It's time we were getting some of it," calmly announced Capt. Merle Potter, formerly of the Minneapolis Star-Journal, now a public relations officer, who now was in on the big story.

American artillery, which had kept quiet, erupted into action and gave the Germans a hundred for one. Engineers, busy with their duties on the ground and on the water, ignored the two-way traffic of shells overhead.

"Hell, this Rhine is nothing but a creek," said Lieut. David Spaulding, of Portsmouth, Va., who commanded our boat. His men included Joe Wasiele, of Scranton, Pa., and Severio Benfari, of New York.

Bradley Says Rhine Can Be Jumped "At Any Time"

Twelfth Army Group Headquarters, March 23 (AP)—The Allies can cross the Rhine "most anywhere at any time," Lieut. Gen. Omar N. Bradley said today, adding that Field Marshal Albert Kesselring had assumed command of German forces on this front "at a bad time."

The 12th Army Group commander's remarks to correspondents suggested that conditions now allowed large-scale immediate crossings of the Rhine, without the usual pause after a major campaign for rest, refitting and regrouping.

Bradley said "the necessity of keeping the [Remagen] bridgehead small is now removed," meaning that earlier large forces could not be spared for east of the Rhine operations until the whole west bank had been cleared.

Not Too Glaring Headlines

Reviewing the Rhineland victory which has cost the Germans more than 233,000 captured, and in which his 1st and 3d armies played leading roles, Bradley paid tribute to "the aggressiveness of our leaders and our soldiers all the way through" and said American losses had been relatively light.

At the same time he cautioned, "I don't think we should write too glaring headlines that the war is over or anything like that."

Bradley, whose command also embraces the new 15th Army, said that force probably would be in an active role "before too long." (The Germans in a recent broadcast had said the 15th was already operating in the Rhine bridgehead.)

'Purposely Held Back'

The General said the 1st Army's east of the Rhine salient had been "purposely held back from its fullest exploitation unitl the operations of the 3d and 7th Armies below the Moselle could be completed."

"The whole operation of clearing the Rhineland has gone faster than we dared hope," he said.

Bradley said Allied armies captured 203,010 Germans in the Rhineland, not including some 30,000 reported captured by the 3d Army and not yet processed through prison inclosures. This figure included 51,381 taken by Field Marshal Montgomery's 21st Army Group in the north between February 8 and March 9.

He said that on Wednesday alone the 1st and 3d armies seized 12,600 Germans at a cost of 81 American lives.

Most Men Lost In Day: 269

While not announcing American casualties on the Western front, the General said the greatest number of 1st and 3d army men killed on any one day between February 22 and March 21 was 269 on February 28, when the two armies captured 3,101 Germans. The lowest number of Americans killed on any one day was 80, on March 11, when 3,996 prisoners were taken. He said that on six days American dead in both armies were less than 100 daily.

The War Department has said that from D-day to March 1 American casualties included 70,414 killed, 297,547 wounded and 57,056 missing.

"It May Be Almost Over"

In his caution against "glaring headlines that the war is over or anything like that," Bradley said: "It may be almost over. It may last a long time to come. The fact is we have destroyed a lot of forces. How much resistance he (the enemy) can put up yet remains to be seen.

"I think we have to strike a balance on our description of this thing, or else we are liable to go wrong.

"You may have remembered somebody made the remark when the Germans attacked here (indicating the Ardennes) that our counteroffensive to clear the Germans out would be necessarily delayed from three to six months. I will leave it to you how far that was wrong.

"So we have got to be careful how we make too optimistic or too pessimistic statements."

"The German is now removed," the 12th Army Group commander told correspondents in a broad review of the victory in the Rhineland in which his 1st and 3d armies had major roles.

Bradley said the 1st Army's east-Rhine salient had been "purposely held back from its fullest exploitation until the operations of the 3d and 7th armies below the Moselle could be completed."

Calls U.S. Losses Light

American losses have been comparatively light, Bradley said. His remarks suggested that conditions now permitted immediate crossings of the river without allowing the usual pause after a major campaign for rest, refitting and regrouping.

"The whole operation of clearing the Rhineland has gone faster than we dared hope," Bradley said.

Besides the 1st and 3d, Bradley's command contains the new United States 15th Army.

Between February 8 and March 22, Allied armies captured 203,010 Germans in the Rhineland—not including some 30,000 reported captured by the 3d Army and not yet processed through prison cages, Bradley said.

51,381 Captured In North

The figure includes 51,381 taken by Field Marshal Montgomery's 21st Army Group in the north, including the United States 9th, British 2d and Canadian 1st armies. These Germans were caged between February 8 and March 9.

On Wednesday, Bradley added, the 1st and 3d armies captured 12,600 Germans at a cost of 81 American lives.

The general did not announce American casualties on the western front but the War Department has said these included 70,414 killed, 297,547 wounded and 57,046 missing, from D-day to March 1.

Casualty Figures

Bradley gave the following figures for the 1st and 3d armies:

The greatest number of Americans killed on any one day between February 22 and March 21 was 269 on February 28. On that day the 1st and 3d armies captured 3,101 Germans.

The lowest number of Americans killed on any one day was 80—on March 11, when the 1st and 3d armies captured 3,996 prisoners.

On six days, American dead in both armies was less than 100 daily, Bradley said.

Men Are Praised

"I would like to pay tribute to the aggressiveness of our leaders and our soldiers all the way through—the aggressiveness with which the bridgehead was seized and reinforced, and the aggressiveness of this operation down here (pointing to the 3d Army's area on the map) from the army commander down in both cases," the General said.

Then he emphasized these words of caution:

"I don't think we should write too glaring headlines that the war is over or anything like that. It may be almost over. It may last a long time to come. The fact is we have destroyed a lot of forces. How much resistance he (the enemy) can put up yet remains to be seen.

Caution Is Urged

"I think we have to strike a balance on our description of this thing, or else we are liable to go wrong.

"You may have remembered somebody made the remark when the Germans attacked in here (indicating the Ardennes) that our counteroffensive to clear the Germans out would be necessarily delayed from three to six months. I will leave it to you how far that was wrong.

"So we have got to be careful how we make too optimistic or too pessimistic statements."

All Set For Next Push, He Indicates

London, March 23 (AP)—The German radio reported tonight that an American shock formation with amphibious tanks crossed the Rhine near Oppenheim, south of Mainz, last night and was mostly "wiped out."

Twelfth Army Group Headquarters, March 23 (AP)—The Allies can now cross the Rhine "most anywhere at any time," Lieut. Gen. Omar N. Bradley said today.

RHINE 'FOG' OIL PRODUCT

Pall Over 'Monty's' Front Shot Out At Speed Of Sound

New York, March 23 (AP)—The huge, man-made fog that hid Allied maneuvers on Field Marshal Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's sector of the Rhine front is made from a petroleum derivative and is shot into the air by generators that look like old-fashioned fire engines, the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey reports.

"The smoke, which can wrap a town in an impenetrable fog, is shot from the generator the way that steam hisses from a locomotive safety valve," the company said.

At Speed Of Sound

"It hits the air at a velocity comparable to the speed of sound (over 1,000 feet per second), but instead of vanishing quickly as steam does, it remains suspended in the air for a long time, thinning out only after it is blown about by air and wind currents."

"The smoke is made up of billions of droplets, microscopic in size. Set side by side, 40,000 of them would make a row only one inch long. Yet their tiny size is of extreme importance because it is this very size which gives these droplets stability, enabling them to float in the air and to keep the protecting smoke hanging over the target like a thick blanket of mist. Droplets of a larger size, being too heavy, would quickly fall to earth and the smoke would soon vanish.

Throws Glare Back

An effective screen of the new smoke, the company said, can hide a target completely because it throws a reflected glare back at observers, much like that seen by a motorist when he beams his headlights into a dense ground fog.

The company said the new product was developed from a principle discovered by Dr. Irving Langmuir, associate director of the General Electric research laboratory at Schenectady, N.Y., and was given its first battle test in North Africa. It was used in both the Sicilian and Italian campaigns, the company said.

MRS. PATTON FEELS PROUD, AND JUSTLY

Cold Forgotten, She Hears Full Story Of Crossing

Washington, March 23 (AP)—Mrs. George S. Patton, Jr., hasn't been feeling so good. She has had a miserable cold almost impossible to shake off, but—

She climbed out of bed and scurried to the phone tonight when informed by the Associated Press that the general's 3d Army has crossed the Rhine.

"Wonderful," said Mrs. Patton. "Marvelous."

She was interested in specific details. Was it cloudy? What was the exact time of the crossing? Where did they go across? How much opposition?

It wound up with a reporter reading her the entire story by Edward D. Ball.

Her comment: "That was the greatest account I have ever heard. It will make a superb addition to a wonderful scrapbook."

But there was one question she wanted to ask, "Did my husband have to swim across?"

This was an allusion to a recent story that General Patton had showed his men one way to cross a stream. He had plunged in and swam it. Told that apparently this time the crossing was made by boat, she replied, "Well, if he had had to swim, he would have done it."

A final question: How did she feel now?

"Fine, if I had that Rhine here, I'd cross it myself."

Tank Unit Dashes 60 Miles In 2 Days

Sixth Army Group Headquarters, Germany, March 23 (AP)—The 6th Armored Division has planted the United States 7th Army's banner on the Rhine at Rheinduerkheim, 4 miles north of Worms, after a 60-mile dash through the Bavarian Palatinate in two days.

The 45th, 63d and 3d Infantry Divisions were reported officially to be mopping up small pockets of resistance left by the meshing operations of the 7th and 3d armies and French divisions.

The 6th Armored Division entered Worms at 10.30 A.M. on March 21, soon after Lieut. Gen. George S. Patton's 3d Army had captured the historic city. Lieut. Col. Frank Britton, of Hartford, Conn., raised the standard on the Rhine.

4th Armored Units There

Lieut. Col. Embry Lagrew, of Lexington, Ky., led the 15th Tank Battalion into Worms to become the first 7th Army unit on the Rhine inside Germany. He found elements of the 3d Army's 4th Armored Division already there.

The 103d (Cactus) Division was plunging through the Palatinate toward the Rhine, capturing Reisdorf and reaching Erlenbach, 5 miles from the river northwest of Karlsruhe.

Slicing into a pocket now surrounded by 3d and 7th Army troops east of Kaiserslautern, the 106th Cavalry Group captured Frankenstein against light opposition.

Forest Being Mopped Up

The 100th Division was mopping up the Lauterwald forest.

The 71st Division approached Petersburg and Waldbuch.

The 42d (Rainbow) Division captured Dahn and Busenberg after negotiating heavy minefields and road blocks.

The 36th (Texas) Division cleared Durrenbach and fought to high ground west of Bergzabern.

Hitler Youth Leader Sentenced By Yankees

Cologne, Germany, March 22 [AP—Delayed]—A Hitler youth leader, Joseph Mingels, 25, was sentenced to seven years' imprisonment by an American Military Government court today on a charge of obstructing occupation authorities.

He concealed and denied possession of vital Hitler youth records in his possession, it was charged.

One of the top leaders of the Hitler youth in Cologne, Mingels had charge of membership lists. Testimony disclosed he gave American investigators only the current file and insisted the older lists, probably more valuable to the investigators, were not in his possession. Later it was established he had burned some of the records and concealed others.

BELIEVE NEW BOMB KILLED RUNDSTEDT

Paris, March 23 (A. P.).—Speculation developed today as to whether Field Marshal von Rundstedt might have been killed last week when Allied bombers, using a secret new incendiary bomb, destroyed what was believed to have been his western front headquarters. About 150 automobiles parked in the area were wrecked. Marshal Rommel, a former German west front commander, was killed while attempting to escape an Allied raid in his automobile.

Dispatches from both Ninth Army Headquarters and Field Marshal Montgomery's Twenty-first Army Group Headquarters report that Field Marshal Albert Kesselring has been shifted from Italy to take Von Rundstedt's place as commander in chief on the western front. A dispatch from the First Army Headquarters several days ago, however, said it was believed Von Rundstedt had been replaced because of his drinking habits.

36th Division Captures Men In 36th Nazi Unit

With the 36th Division in Germany, March 23 (AP)—The 36th (Texas) Division, first American division to invade continental Europe at Salerno, has taken prisoners from a German unit of the same number, the 36th Volksgrenadier Division.

Veterans of the 36th's 142d Infantry Regiment, plowing into Germany above Wissembourg, rounded up 30 men, the survivors of a company of the German 36th, which found itself unable to match the Texans in a fight on open ground.

Maj. Gen. John W. Dahlquist, who commands the 36th, captured one prisoner personally when he pushed into Wissembourg recently at the head of his troops.

Lieutenant Gregg used all his ammunition and four Germans demanded his surrender. His comrades, however, opened fire and the Germans hit the ground. Lieutenant Gregg seized a machine pistol from one and set up a new position.

The next morning he broke a German attack and recovered American mortar positions the enemy had overrun and were using against the Americans.

Lieutenant Gregg and Sergeant Kelly, from Pittsburgh, won the Silver Star together at the Rapido River in Italy. They fought together at Alta Villa, where Sergeant Kelly made history by heaving mortar shells from a window.

Like Sergeant Kelly, Lieutenant Gregg praises Capt. Zerk Robertson of Merkel, Tex., their former company commander, for inspiring leadership.

General Patch has conferred the Bronze Star for bravery on Sgt. Leslie Brown, Grove Street, Livonia, N. Y., and Pfc. Carl Peters, Lower Ferry Road, Trenton, N. J.

Tanks Find German Factory Concealed In Cliffside

By Harold V. Boyle

With the United States 1st Army Across the Rhine, March 22 (AP—Delayed)—A huge $1,000,000 underground Nazi factory carved out of solid mountain rock has been captured by American doughboys who found it crowded with 1,500 German civilians and 500 slave laborers.

For eleven days, huddled miserably together like cattle, they waited in the stone-walled factory for the battle to pass them by after disobeying Nazi military orders to evacuate the area.

Told By Civilian

The factory, blasted out of cliffs in the Rhine hills near the town of Koenigswinter, manufactured fuel pumps for heavy German Army vehicles and Focke-Wulf-190 fighter-bombers. The factory had been moved twice—finally going underground last October—to escape heavy Allied bombings.

Troops of the 78th (Lightning) Infantry Division, led by Lieut. Col. Richard W. Keyes, of Houston, Texas, discovered the underground plant after a civilian told them of its existence.

Climbing a high hill overlooking Koenigswinter, doughboys found a cave entrance 10 feet wide and 12 feet high about 75 feet from the crest. It had been cleverly camouflaged by a huge net running some 300 feet down the hillside from the cave's mouth.

"This has been as near to hell as I ever hope to come," said an English-speaking German woman, who asserted the 2,000 persons there had been anxiously waiting the entire eleven days for the Americans to come.

Defied Nazi Order

She said one baby had been born in the cave and one man had committed suicide with poison.

"I was ordered two weeks ago to destroy my machinery and to bring my foreign workers farther into the Reich for safekeeping," a factory owner told American officers, "but I hid my workers from the Gestapo and waited for you to come up this side of the Rhine."

He offered to resume operation of the factory to make war materials for the Allies.

Before beginning the subterranean production he said the factory had operated a year in Silesia and then was moved to the town of Porz, opposite Cologne on the Rhine.

Grouped around the cave entrance when the doughboys arrived were scores of gaunt-faced old men and women and a number of sick children. One woman said she lost between ten and fifteen pounds in the seven days she was there. A doctor, a refugee from Cologne and who had been the plant physician for the last two months, said that despite the unhealthy nature of work in the cave there had been no epidemic and that the slave laborers had received enough food "to exist."

1,200 Feet Deep

Soldiers found the cave penetrated 1,200 feet into the hillside and was 250 feet wide in some places.

"We heard a half dozen different languages before we had gone more than a few yards from the entrance," one said.

Inside they found 260 German workers, more than 200 Russian men and 30 Russian women, 160 Italians taken prisoner fighting with the Allies after the fall of Mussolini, 50 Poles, 15 French and 30 Dutchmen. The slave workers were quartered temporarily in a camouflaged barracks near the cave pending processing at the Army's displaced persons centers for eventual return to their own homelands.

The cave contains some finished pumps and 50 to 60 tons of steel as well as expensive precision machinery, lathes, planers, electric ovens for hardening steel and an electric generator.

The owner said that as a result of shortages the Nazis had ordered him to step up production under forces drafted since the first of the year. To keep the foreign workers from sabotaging the output, he said, trusted German workers slept beside the most valuable machinery.

Lieut. S. R. Gregg Wins Medal of Honor; Bayonne Man and Kelly Once Buddies

WITH THE THIRTY-SIXTH DIVISION in Germany, March 23 (AP)—Lieut. Stephen R. Gregg, who was once in the same company as Sgt. Charles E. Kelly, also wears now the Congressional Medal of Honor. It recognizes heroism at Montelimar, France, Aug. 27.

Lieut. Gen. Alexander M. Patch pinned the decoration on the lieutenant March 14 just before the Seventh Army pushed off into Germany. Lieutenant Gregg is now on the way to his home at 83 Hobart Avenue, Bayonne, N. J.

The citation says that Lieutenant Gregg, then a platoon sergeant, fired a 30-caliber machine gun from the hip while walking up hill ahead of a medical corpsman to cover the rescue of seven wounded men. They were showered with grenades.

RUHR RAIL LINES RIPPED IN MIGHTY AERIAL ASSAULT

Planes Hammer Germans on Rhine Opposite Montgomery's Forces.

BOMBERS HIT GLADBECK

LONDON, March 23—(AP) The mightiest aerial onslaught in history was carried to a crushing climax today when more than 4,000 Allied warplanes battered communications in and around the German Ruhr in preparation for an imminent Allied drive across the Rhine.

Nazi troops and armor in a 1,000-square mile area facing Field Marshal Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's armies were cut off from rear bases after 1,600 American heavy bombers and fighters ripped up 11 rail centers and three fleets of RAF Lancasters blasted other supply links with 11-ton obliteration bombs and made direct attacks on enemy troop concentrations.

Planes Wreck Ruhr

Weeks of such terrific bombing have left the Ruhr cratered like the moon and isolated from the west of Germany amid a jumble of twisted rail lines, broken highways and demolished bridges.

Air crewmen described the weather as ideal for precision bombing. While they were stitching their ring of explosives around the Ruhr hundreds of fighter-bombers from continental bases hammered the inside of the ring in dawn-to-dusk relays through palls of smoke. They began leaping to the attack even before the sun had risen.

With the Nazis' deadly jet planes driven from their forward bases, the American team of 1,250 Flying Fortresses and Liberators and 350 Mustangs carrying fragmentation bombs were unopposed in their smashes at rail lines.

Gladbeck, one of nine German communication centers hit yesterday, came in for a mop-up attack today, along with the big Ruhr supply center of Recklingshausen. Nine other freight yards crammed with equipment for German armies were bombarded with extremely good results.

Some 3,500 tons of explosives were dumped on these Ruhr transportation spokes: Osnabrueck, Rheine, Muenster and Coesfeud to the north and Henstey, Geisecke, Unna-Dortmund, Holzwickede and Siegen to the east and southeast.

Bremen Bridge Destroyed

A force of British Lancasters with 22,000-pound giants in their bomb bays knocked out a rail bridge at Bremen. Other Lancasters used six-ton bombs against a rail crossing northeast of Bielefeld on one of the few routes still open across the Weser river to the Ruhr.

The Air ministry announced that six bridges or railway viaducts which form bottlenecks in the enemy's main supply lines have been shattered in recent attacks, and military men said the Ruhr could be considered isolated.

A Third fleet of Lancasters took advantage of the clear weather to go below their usual altitude and make a daring attack on German troop concentrations and fortified positions on the east bank of the Rhine.

Fighters and medium and light bombers made several thousand sorties from continental bases during the daylight hours. The Ninth Air force alone registered 1,300 sorties before the noon hour, while the Second Tactical Air force made more than 1,000 several hours before nightfall.

RAF rocket-firing Typhoons, flocking up for the first time from bases inside Germany, joined the carnival of destruction. So thoroughly have the Nazis' rail routes been hammered that only two trains were seen moving in the entire Ruhr, both near Osnabrueck.

Berlin was bombed Thursday night for the 31st consecutive night by RAF Mosquitos, which also struck follow-up blows at enemy troop movements in the Ruhr. Returning pilots said smoke from burning towns hung so thickly over the Ruhr they had difficulty locating their targets even in bright moonlight.

Air Fleets Lash Ruhr Area 3d Day In Row

London, March 23 (AP) — Thousands of American and British warplanes lashed out today for the third day at the Ruhr, where a blazing mass of wreckage marked the record assault of yesterday.

Again the assault was concentrated on supply lines with the presumed object of isolating the industrial area east of the Rhine, along which Allied armies are massed.

RAF Lancasters struck enemy troop concentrations and fortified positions on the east bank of the Rhine in one of the comparatively few times that four-engined bombers have been used against such tactical targets. Such attacks usually have signaled the start of Allied offensives.

Railway Bridge Attacked

RAF heavies also attacked with six-ton bombs a railway bridge northeast of Bielefeld on one of the few routes still open across the Weser River to the Ruhr.

Eleven railyards in the Ruhr were attacked in bright weather by 1,250 American heavy bombers and 350 fighters, while British Lancasters struck at an important rail bridge at Bremen with eleven-ton volcano bombs.

Rail Targets Listed

The German radio said the new waves of bombers were over the same area later in the afternoon and that American heavy bombers from Italy dashed into southeastern Germany.

All German radio telegraphic and news services appeared to be sporadic and military reports were interrupted for several hours. Transocean's broadcasts abroad were shut down completely for at least eight hours following transmission of the German communiqué.

Rail targets attacked by the Americans included Osnabrueck, Rheine, Muenster and Coesfeld, all north of the Ruhr, Reckling-Hausen and Gladbeck in the Ruhr, and Hengstey, Geisecke, Unna-Dortmund, Holzwickede and Siegen in the east and southeast Ruhr.

Army Camps Wrecked

A special communiqué from headquarters of United States Strategic Air Forces declared all nine German Army camps attacked in the Ruhr yesterday by American heavy bombers were wrecked by 3,250 tons of bombs.

Thousands of small incendiaries were scattered among German troops.

Berlin Bombed Again

At least three airfields used by jet-propelled fighters were made unservicable, the communiqué said.

Berlin was bombed for the thirty-first consecutive night by R. A. F. Mosquitoes, which also struck follow-up blows at enemy troop movements across the Rhine in the region battered yesterday by the bulk of more than 8,000 American and British planes which struck Germany from dawn to dusk.

BERLIN IS EPITOME OF BOMBING EFFECT

Vast Damage by 75,000 Tons of Missiles There Is Cited in Summary of Air Blows

50,000 ESTIMATED KILLED

Devastation of Score of Reich Cities Is Causing Near-Chaos in Enemy's War Effort

MAR 24 1945

LONDON, March 23 (AP)—Berlin has been virtually ruined along with the devastation heaped on other German cities in the unprecedented attacks during the last three weeks by American and British bombers, the British Air Ministry announced tonight.

It is estimated unofficially that more than 50,000 persons have been killed in the flaming ruins of the Reich capital and that 400,000 have been made homeless. The center of the city is believed to be completely wrecked.

"The effect of this campaign can be estimated not only in terms of material damage but in innumerable sign of confusion and lack of control in the enemy's war effort," the Air Ministry said in a summary of some of the recent damage done by the Royal Air Force and the United States Eighth Air Force.

Never before has air power been exerted with such paralyzing effect behind any war front. One German industrial and railway town after another has been ripped for both strategic and tactical reasons.

Summary of German Cities Hit

Here is the chart on some cities hardest hit by the American-British bombing teams:

BERLIN—More than 75,000 tons of bombs have been dropped on the German capital. Besides the gutted center of the city, heavily hit districts include Steglitz, Wilmersdorf, Schoeneberg and Charlottenberg. More than 100 of Berlin's major war factories have been destroyed and heavy damage caused on every large rail station and many Government buildings.

ESSEN—The largest and one of the most heavily bombed cities in the Ruhr, its Krupp armament works covered 2,150 acres. Not one of the hundreds of Krupp buildings remains undamaged. Other factories in the area also are gone.

DRESDEN—The central, southern and eastern districts of this historic Saxon capital in the south are almost entirely gutted. An aircraft factory, main railroad stations, Nazi headquarters buildings and an arsenal are among the places heavily damaged.

CHEMNITZ—Great damage throughout the entire city, which is essential in the defense of eastern Germany. Fires set in a series of Allied attacks in the past sixty days have knocked it out as a key communications base. Its pre-war population was 370,000.

Half of Hanover in Ruins

HANOVER—Half the city, including a factory district that formerly produced 80 per cent of Germany's airplane tires, is ruined.

HAMM—Widespread devastation all around the great railway yards, the biggest in Germany.

NUREMBERG—Damage is particularly heavy on the east and south sides near the main railway yards adjoining the Nazi party convention grounds. Large new areas were leveled by the RAF on the night of March 16.

WUERZBURG — Nearly the whole of this large industrial city in southern Germany has been severely damaged and a large area south of the railway station almost completely destroyed.

DESSAU—About a quarter of the city burned or blasted.

KASSEL—This former center of the Nazi aircraft and locomotive industries and one of the main rail junctions in central Germany blazed for two days following successive day and night attacks early in March. When the smoke cleared huge new gutted areas were noted. Kassel was listed as half destroyed a year ago.

FRANKFORT ON THE MAIN—This commercial and industrial capital of the upper Rhineland has lost 51 per cent of its built-up sections. The city, of 543,000 pre-war population, has been on the priority list of Allied bombers since the start of the war.

Captured Towns Found Battered

MAINZ—The key industrial city at the confluence of the Rhine and Main Rivers suffered severely in the dock area. It now is in Allied hands.

KARLSRUHE—This armament center near the French border has taken more than 8,000 tons of bombs that flattened 398 acres, or 32 per cent, of the built-up section.

PFORZHEIM—A total of 304 out of 369 acres in the built-up area has been laid waste. It is a comparatively small city but the center of Germany's precision instrument industry.

WITTEM — Almost the whole built-up area has been devastated in this important steel and railway town in the Ruhr. New suburbs developed outside the town have been severely damaged.

HANAU — Scarcely a wall remains standing in the center of this key communications hub southeast of Frankfort on the Main.

HOMBURG and ZWEIBRUECKEN—Largely reduced to rubble the night of March 14 after the Germans turned them into advanced bases for their armies west of the Rhine.

HAGEN—Very large areas of devastation around the railroad yards in this industrial town southeast of the Ruhr.

RED TROOPS SPLIT NAZI DEFENDERS OF DANZIG, GDYNIA

Berlin Reports Waves of Infantry, Tanks Smash Oder Line.

31 MILES OF CAPITAL

Soviet Forces Reach Moravian Frontier in Drive to Clear Silesia.

LONDON, Saturday, March 24—(AP) Berlin said last night that the Red army had reopened a blazing battle for the imperiled Nazi capital while Moscow announced that Russian forces had split the Nazi defenders of the prize Baltic ports of Danzig and Gdynia.

Waves of Russian infantry and tanks were reported by the enemy to have broken through Nazi defenses along Berlin's Oder river line and to have swept six miles beyond captured Kuestrin to within 31 miles east of the capital.

Barrage Precedes Attack

A thunderous 90-minute artillery bombardment, followed by attacks by hundreds of Soviet dive-bombers, preceded the assault which smashed to Golzow on the main Kuestrin-Berlin trunk railroad. There, an enemy front report said, a German counter-attack stalled the drive but the Russians struck again in a swaying, indecisive battle.

"The major Russian offensive against Berlin is immediately at hand," said a Berlin report to the German-controlled STB agency in Stockholm.

There was no confirmation of the enemy report from Moscow. At the southern end of the Eastern front, however, the Red army was clamping a huge pincer on Moravia, Bohemia and Vienna.

Marshal Ivan S. Konev's First Ukrainian army reached the frontier of Moravia in pursuit of enemy forces from Upper Silesia into the Sudeten mountains and battered within one and two miles of the Silesian citadels of Neisse and Loebschuetz.

Simultaneously, Berlin said a four-day Red army offensive south of the Danube river in Hungary had reached Komarom, strategic key to Bratislava and Vienna, 54 and 84 miles to the west, and Red air force heavy bombers blasted the Hungarian rail town of Papa.

Before Berlin, the German radio said Marshal Gregory K. Zhukov's First White Russian army had thrown 72,000 troops and 400 tanks into the wild battle west of Kuestrin where Berlin said the Russians were attempting to link six Oder river bridgeheads for an all-out assault on the capital.

100 Divisions Massed

Other enemy broadcasts said Russian scouting was spreading all along the middle Oder from Kuestrin 45 miles south to Guben and in London it was believed Zhukov had massed 100 divisions, perhaps more than 1,200,000 men, for a climactic lunge to Berlin.

Significantly, Moscow's war bulletins reported a sharp jump in enemy tank and plane losses. Along the entire Eastern front, Moscow said, 156 German tanks and 149 planes were destroyed. More than 4,200 prisoners were taken in East Prussia, at Danzig and Gdynia and in Silesia.

Some 250 miles northeast of the flaming Berlin front, Marshal Konstantin K. Rokossovsky's Second White Russian army knifed in half the Danzig - Gydnia pocket by thrusting a three-mile wide wedge to the bay of Danzig midway between the big naval bases.

Rokossovsky's troops, slaying 4,000 enemy troops, toppled the coastal town of Zoppot and at either end of their three-mile arm to the sea won Koliebken (Kolibki) three miles south of Gdynia, and Schmierau, three miles north of Danzig.

Land links between the two ports were severed and at the same time the Russians advanced on Danzig form the southwest, taking Loeblau, Gross Boelkau and Artschau, all within five miles of the former free city, which was attacked by Soviet heavy bombers.

Reds Gain 5 Miles

In Upper Silesia, Marshal Konev's new offensive to clear the region's rich industrial areas and possibly strike across the Sudeten mountains and through the Moravian gap toward Vienna and Prague gained up to five miles on a twisting 54-mile front.

One column, advancing four miles west of captured Neustadt, drove to within two miles of the vital northern railroad linking the Czechoslovak city of Moravska-Ostrava with Prague and Dresden by winning Wackerau. The plunge carried them within four miles east of Ziegenhals, key junction on the line and gateway to the Ziegenhals pas across the Sudeten mountains.

Four miles southeast of Neustad another column reached the Moravian frontier at Kroeschendorf.

49 Miles From Austria

Advancing on Vienna from the southeast, the 3d Ukrainian Army, according to Berlin, gained 10 miles overnight to reach the Komarom area, striking beyond territory west of Budapest captured in December and lost to a German counteroffensive in January.

By Berlin admission, the Russians were within 49 miles of Austria.

The Soviet communiqué reported the grim battle for the East Prussian pocket southwest of Koenigsberg was continuing with the 3d White Russian Army storming approaches to the last Nazi outpost of Heiligenbeil. Berlin claimed German naval forces had entered the battle to cover the sea evacuation of Nazi troops from the 52-square-mile trap.

Red Breakthrough Is Reported On Berlin's Oder Defense Line

Nazis Say Russians Are Only 31 Miles From German Capital in New Push—Silesia Drive Goes Forward.

London, March 23 (A. P.).—A German front-line radio report tonight said that Marshal Zhukov's Russian forces had broken through Berlin's Oder River defenses and smashed their way to Golzow, six miles west of the river and thirty-one miles from the capital.

The push to Golzow was made from the Kuestrin bridgehead across the Oder, held by the Russians, with six infantry divisions and waves of tanks, and the "battle still sways to and fro," the enemy declared, and added that Zhukov may have massed close to 100 divisions along the Oder for the onslaught on Berlin.

Earlier the German High Command announced the Zhukov's first attack was smothered in a storm of German fire and that fifty-five Russian tanks were destroyed, but the communique had hardly been issued when Stockholm reports and an American broadcast from Moscow agreed in saying that a full-scale assault on Hitler's capital was immediately at hand.

Gain on Silesian Front.

To the south of the Berlin front, Marshal Konev's new Silesian offensive rolled onward along an eighty-mile front toward the inner fortress of Germany, where Hitler's SS men are reported preparing to make a last desperate stand if Berlin is lost.

With swift tank-led rushes, Konev's First Ukrainian Army group had driven to within striking distance of five large Silesian cities—Frankenstein, Neisse, Zeigenhals, Leobschuetz and Ratibor—in the Moravian mountains and was reported already fighting in the streets of Neisse and in the suburbs of Leobschuetz. Notably, Konev had already outflanked the vital railroad and highway junction of Ratibor.

Attacking At Kuestrin

On the Berlin front the German high command announced that Marshal Gregory Zhukov attacked from the flanks of his Oder bridgehead at Kuestrin, 38 miles east of Berlin, with strong tank and infantry forces.

The Germans declared that the attack was smothered in a storm of German fire and 55 Soviet tanks were destroyed, but Stockholm reports and an American broadcast from Moscow declared a full-scale assault on Hitler's capital was immediately at hand.

Threat To Prague

Quick fall of the five threatened cities, Moscow dispatches said, would be the tipoff that Germany lacked sufficiently heavy forces in the Bohemian passes, and there would be an immediate advance upon Prague, capital of Czechoslovakia.

The threatened smash into Prague would penetrate to the heart of the southern fortress area, where Hitler has contemplated making his last stand, cut the northern communications of Vienna and outflank that Austrian capital.

Vienna already was threatened from the east by a new offensive between Lake Balaton and the Danube, west of Budapest, by Marshal Feodor Tolbukhin's 3d Ukrainian Army.

Frankenstein Strong

Frankenstein, on the direct westward route toward Prague, appeared one of the tougher obstacles before the Red Army, for the Germans strung out in the region of Meunsterberg, 10 miles to the east, put up a sharp series of counter-attacks with self-propelled guns and numerous types of smaller anti-tank weapons.

Soviet tanks and mobile infantry, however, beat them back and there seemed a good probability the Russians would be within shelling distance of Frankenstein, a major rail and highway junction, by nightfall.

Southeast of Frankenstein, Red Army units seemed to have reached the Neisse-Ottmachau highway.

At Danzig Heights

Meanwhile on other fronts the Russians battled onto the heights overlooking Danzig on the Baltic, smashed into Heilegenbeil, the last East Prussian stronghold southwest of Koenigsberg, and pressed a powerful assault on Stettin, north of Berlin.

At Stettin, where the Germans said 25 Russian rifle divisions and four tank corps were attacking, fires raged in the central and western part of the city in full view of Marshal Gregory Zhukov's troops.

BRITISH GET SOVIET NOTE ON POLAND

NIGHT
MAR 24 1945
Wheeler
MAR 24 1945

London, March 23 (A. P.).—Apparently authentic reports emanating from diplomatic quarters here said today that Soviet Russia had expressed to the British Foreign Office the hope that Poland would be represented at the April 25 world security conference in San Francisco. The Foreign Office declined to comment officially.

Both Great Britain and the United States have been endeavoring to reach some solution in the Polish situation in time for that nation to be represented at the conference. The view was expressed here that Russian comment on these efforts would be logical. There were several interpretations, however, of the reported Moscow note. Such a note could mean an effort to have the Russian-sponsored Lublin Polish Government represented at San Francisco, or it could mean polite regret that Poland would not be represented.

Recent Moscow dispatches held out little hope that the new, broadened provisional government agreed upon in the Crimea conference could be formed by April 25.

Gen. Pile in New Post

LONDON, March 23 (AP).—General Sir Frederick Pile, Commander in chief of Britain Anti-Aircraft Command, has been appointed executive director of Britain's rebuilding and rehousing program, Minister of Works Duncan Sandys announced today.

Allies Drop Arms in Norway

LONDON, March 23 (AP)—Allied planes are dropping arms to Norwegian forces of the interior, a British broadcast disclosed tonight. It warned Norwegian civilians that arms should be hidden.

Britons Pay to See V-2 Model

LONDON, March 23 (AP).—A full-scale model of a German V-2 rocket, shaped like a pencil and as long as a telephone pole, has been placed on exhibition here, and Londoners are paying sixpence (10 cents) a look to see what kind of weapon Hitler has been hurling at them. The proceeds go to a fund for relief of families of Royal Air Force flyers killed in the war.

V-Weapon Sites Bombed

London, March 23 (AP)—RAF and Australian Spitfire pilots made four attacks yesterday on German V-weapon launching sites in the Netherlands yesterday, setting off huge explosions which flung debris into the air high above the raiders. The last pilots to attack said the target areas were so obscured by dusk and smoke they had to bomb blind.

BALK E-BOAT RAID

London, March 23 (A. P.)—An attempt by a large force of German E-boats to attack an Allied convoy off the east coast of England Wednesday night was beaten off without damage to any of the ships, a joint Admiralty and Air Ministry communique announced today. At least three E-boats were sunk or set afire. Others were damaged. One Allied aircraft which helped break up the attack is missing.

Berlin Ruins as War Reminder

LONDON, March 23 (AP).—Captain Sir William Bass, Conservative, suggested to Commons today that a badly bombed section of Berlin be preserved in its state of devastation as a reminder that Germany started the war. He said Prime Minister Churchill should incorporate the proposal in surrender terms.

He's Going To Frisco Anyhow

London, March 23 (AP)—The Paris radio, quoting the French News Agency, said tonight the Syrian Foreign Minister Djemil Mardam Bey, had declared "I will leave for San Francisco at the head of a Syrian delegation whether Syria is invited or not."

Anglo-French Accord Near

PARIS, March 23 (AP).—Sir John Anderson, British Chancellor of the Exchequer, is expected in Paris early next week to sign an Anglo-French financial accord which has been under negotiation several weeks.

French Urged to Keep Up Paris as Big News Center

Officer Writes to European Edition of Herald Tribune

PARIS, March 23 (AP).—A suggestion that the French government take steps after the war to maintain the position of Paris as a great press communications center was advanced today in a letter published in the European edition of the New York Herald Tribune and signed "An Allied Communications Officer."

"There is no reason why Paris cannot become the press communications center of Europe after the war as it is now, and there are many natural advantages to give Paris the edge over London," the letter said.

"War correspondents accredited to SHAEF (Supreme Headquarters, Allied Expeditionary Force) have filed some hundred million words from France since D Day and at present there is an unprecedented amount of news copy being transmitted to all parts of the world, both through SHAEF and through correspondents accredited to the French government."

The letter said excellent communications with America had been created "by French and American resourcefulness and skill."

"When the war ends, or when SHAEF moves from Paris, will the French government permit its efficient war-born press communications system to drift back into the creakingly inadequate rut that before the war forced foreign correspondents to work in London and regard Paris only as a source for 'local news'?" the writer asked.

"I believe the government not only must answer, but will answer, that France will permit no country to surpass it in providing the world press with a communications system that is adequate, fast, cheap and not cluttered with silly regulations and restrictions devised by some stupid bureaucrat."

GERMAN COMMAND IN ITALY CHANGED

ROME, March 23—(AP) The reported transfer of Field Marshal Albert Kesselring to the Western front will not be lamented in this theater, where his masterly withdrawal up the Italian peninsula has made Allied progress slow and costly, but it is doubted that his acknowledged brilliance will help the Germans much along the Rhine.

For one thing, he will not have the advantage of the terrible mountainous terrain which has been his chief ally in Italy. For another, he will find it difficult if not impossible to shift his new armies around with the agility that time and again halted threatened Allied breakthroughs on this peninsula.

Allied officers generally credit Kesselring with having done an extremely efficient job, particularly in his defense of bloody Cassino and in stopping the British Eighth army at the edge of the Po plain last fall. He has the ability to extract the utmost from his troops.

Allied intelligence officers said they had received two vague reports that Kesselring already had left for Germany to succeed Field Marshal Von Rundstedt. Announcement of the enemy change in commands was announced last night from Field Marshal Montgomery's headquarters on the Western front.

There has been no action in Italy for several months which would demand a leader of Kesselring's talents. There were several sharp clashes yesterday between small groups in various sectors, but no important gains or losses were reported.

The Germans continued to react alertly to every Allied move, and American probing parties were tied down by heavy machinegun, rifle and grenade fire.

Allied headquarters said that Germans captured in Italy recently were for the most part far less enthusiastic about Hitler than those taken six months ago.

Spaak, Foreign Minister, To Head Belgian Group

Brussels, March 23 (AP) — Paul Henri Spaak, Belgian Foreign Minister, will head the Belgian delegation to the world-security conference at San Francisco, it was announced today.

Other members of the delegation will be Frans van Cauwelaert, Minister of State and President of the Chamber of Commerce; Victor de Laveleye, former Minister of Education; Charles de Visscher, former Minister Without Portfolio; Henri Rolin, senator and former delegate to the League of Nations; Fernand Vanelangenhove, secretary general of the Department of Foreign Affairs, and Walter Loridan, First Secretary to Spaak's Cabinet.

Loridan already has left for Washington.

machine-gun and small-arms fire, Allied headquarters announced today.

In a short fight near San Ansano, at the entrance to the Bologna road net which has been heavily defended in recent months, one American patrol suffered light casualties. A short time later a fifteen-man enemy patrol tried to slip through the same area and was driven back.

Yank Artillery Active

In the 5th Army area, American artillery concentrated on groups of Germans as well as movements behind the Nazi lines.

An 8th Army patrol operating northeast of Cotignola, on the enemy's Senio River line, caught a German work party digging in the opposite bank and inflicted a number of casualties. Farther south, enemy patrols crossed the diked stream north of Faenza, but were driven off.

During the past seven days American, French and British ships have been bombarding enemy targets on the Franco-Italian frontier and the Gulf of Genoa.

Port Savona Shelled

Two French destroyers shelled Port Savona, 22 miles west of Genoa, last Sunday night.

Tuesday French ships hit the harbor of San Remo, striking gun positions. The United States destroyer Parker bombarded enemy supply dumps and troop concentrations, scoring a number of direct hits.

FIND ENTHUSIASM FOR HITLER WANES

Rome, March 23 (A. P.).—Recently captured Germans in this theater for the most part are far less enthusiastic about Adolf Hitler than those taken prisoner six months ago. Most of them now blame German leadership, lack of adequate training for the newer soldiers, and a shortage of war materials for German reverses.

Relatives Send $10,830,500

Rome, March 23 (AP)—A total of $10,830,500 was sent by United States residents to relatives in Italy in the last months ended February 28, the Allied commission announced today. Remittances numbered 215,715. The cash gifts were limited to $500 per household per month.

Brisk Patrol Clashes Mark Two Italian Fronts

Rome, March 23 (AP)—Brisk patrol skirmishes occurred yesterday on both the 5th and 8th Army fronts, with the enemy reacting to Allied raiding parties with heavy

NAZIS SPEEDING POSTWAR FIGHT

Elaborate Plans To Fight On After Conflict Reported

Berne, Switzerland, March 23 (AP). Nazi preparations for fighting on after Germany is defeated cover everything from vitamin pills to hidden ammunition, radio stations and printing shops—not to mention spies planted as anti-Nazis—the Journal de Genève reported today.

Men who sabotaged the Versailles Treaty after the last war have been designated to propagandize systematically and subversively against whatever peace agreement or restrictions come from this war, the paper said.

The German high command has been preparing even since the Stalingrad disaster of February 1943, for a new effort two generations hence, according to the story which the Journal carried under a Strasbourg dateline. The paper continued with these items of the plan:

Since 1943 special emissaries have gone abroad wherever possible and bought vitamin products to assure a proper diet for the children who will fight a future war.

Himmler Directs Bands

Others were designated to see that funds were properly hidden, war industries put under ground and safeguarded and a political program for revenge prepared.

Heinrich Himmler directed the organization of armed bands within the country for the purpose of ultimately sabotaging the peace administration. Wilhelm Schepman, who directed German sabotage of the Ruhr in 1923, was said to have been named chief of counteresionage.

Throughout the Reich thousands of "cells" of Nazis have been organized. Party workers are going, or are ready to go, into prison camps posing as anti-Nazis to undergo fake trials as enemies of the regime to win confidence in Allied circles—then to turn against the Allies.

Many "Dead" Return

Printing depots, clandestine radio sets and buried munitions stores are included in the plan.

"Weltwoche," a Swiss weekly, reported many "dead" were coming back to life from Germany. These are Nazis whose "obituaries" were published in papers and now are reappearing under assumed names to avoid the war-criminals list.

The paper declared that, four weeks after his death notice in Germany, Olaf Fickert, SS Leader, was seen on the streets of Barcelona—but under another name, Wilhelm Kleinert.

Another case listed was that of Helmut Moeckel, Hitler Youth staff member, reported "accidentally killed." Moeckel is under the protection of Alvarez Serrano, leader of the Spanish Militia College, the paper said.

Labor Director "Buried"

Robert Leitner, Labor Director, blew himself to a "funeral" January 26 in Prague which party, state and Wehrmacht leaders attended while newsreels of the procession were taken—but the "deceased" travelled through the country under the name of George Hanauer with new papers and a new beard, Weltwoche asserted.

SS Men Karl Heinz von Duffais and Hans Steudemann and SA Fuehrer Frick went to Buenos Aires under phoney names, the paper continued.

"It is so customary in party circles to indulge in painless death, to disappear from the war-criminal list, that people no longer believe the real death notices," the paper said.

Bomb-Battered Vienna Short Of Water, Bread

Bern, Switzerland, March 23 (AP). Bomb-battered Vienna, with many districts nearly destroyed, is short of water and bread and in grave danger of an epidemic, the Swiss newspaper Zurich Volksrecht reported today.

A neutral traveler was quoted that 60 to 70 per cent of the workers' districts had been destroyed or seriously damaged.

Other districts also were battered and among the buildings said to have been destroyed were the Urania, the Art Academy, the University Anatomical Institute, the north front of the Schwarzenberg Palace, the middle section of the Schoenbrunn Castle, the Belvedere, French legation and South Station.

Parliament Building Hit

The town hall was seriously damaged and also parts of Parliament Building and the Military Geographical Institute.

The police station was hit twice and the whole district to the Elisabeth promenade was damaged seriously.

The army museum and arsenal were destroyed and the War Ministry damaged. A bomb hit St. Stephen's Cathedral. The Burg Theater, the State Opera, the Art History Museum and the Maria Theresa Monument were destroyed.

Delayed Bomb Attack Saves Life Of Goebbels

Stockholm, March 23 (AP)—The Free German press agency said today an attempt on the life of Nazi Propaganda Minister Joseph Goebbels was thwarted when one of the nightly attacks of RAF Mosquito bombers on Berlin occurred a half hour later than usual.

The agency said Goebbels usually went to a centrally located air-raid shelter at the same time each night during the raids, and that he was not there when a time-bomb planted in the shelter exploded.

Spanish-Japanese Relations Near Break

Madrid, March 23 (AP)—Spain's relations with Japan were strained toward the breaking point today as the Government formally charged the Japanese with "systematic and premeditated" murder of Spanish nationals in Manila.

Indignation spread rapidly. Whether it would lead to an outright break with Tokyo—and possibly a declaration of war—was not yet indicated.

[A Reuter dispatch said Spain had sent a strong note of protest to Japan, demanding an explanation of atrocities against Spanish subjects and property in the Philippines.]

172 Bayoneted To Death

A Government communiqué, made public last night, enumerated a list of 172 Spanish men, women and children bayoneted to death by the Japanese while American troops were overrunning the Philippine capital.

It confirmed a report made in Washington last week by Brig. Gen. Carlos P. Romulo, resident commissioner of the Philippines. This report drew a storm of editorial denunciation of Japan from the Spanish press.

Tokyo Stays Silent On Protest By Spain As War Seems Near

Madrid, March 23 (AP)—Spain appeared about to go to war on Japan tonight as the Government awaited Tokyo's reply to a strong note of protest against the "premeditated murders" of Spanish nationals prior to liberation of Manila by Americans.

The Franco Government seemed willing to carry the issue to the conclusion of war despite a report Germany had presented a note to the Madrid Government saying any Spanish action against Japan would be considered an unfriendly act by the Reich.

112 Listed As Bayoneted

Spanish indignation was made public in a communiqué which listed 172 Spanish men, women and children bayoneted to death by Japanese while American troops were overrunning the Philippine capital.

The communiqué said that, in addition to those killed, 300 were injured in "unparalleled acts of cruelty against defenseless Spaniards" and that Spanish property valued at 12,000,000 pesetas ($1,000,000) was destroyed.

Spanish Press Disgusted

The Spanish press—through which the Government normally speaks anonymously on ticklish diplomatic subjects—continued to declare bluntly disgust and impatience with the Japanese, described undiplomatically as "systematic, premeditating murderers."

The strong note was handed Japanese Minister Yakichiro Suma Monday and no reply had been received.

The impending Spanish crisis came as Norman Armour, new United States Ambassador, prepared to present his credentials tomorrow.

Juan's Manifesto Causes No Stir

Madrid, March 23 (A. P.).—Prince Juan's manifesto calling upon Francisco Franco to resign and clear the way for Spanish harmony caused little stir in Spain. His statement, issued yesterday in Lausanne, was not published here, but it became known from foreign broadcasts.

TRAP CLOSING ON JAPANESE

Indian Armored Forces Take Two Towns In Burma

Calcutta, March 23 (AP)—Indian armored forces, driving south from Mandalay at a 20-mile-a-day clip, have captured the towns of Pindale and Wundwin just short of Meiktila, further constricting the noose around thousands of Japanese cut off west of the Mandalay-Thazi rail line, Allied headquarters announced today.

Pindale is 19 miles north of Meiktila and Wundwin is 18 miles northeast.

It was possible the 20th Division making the southward spurt already had made contact with the British 14th Army, who seized Meiktila in an earlier plunge eastward from the Irrawaddy River and cut the enemy's main supply and retreat route to Rangoon.

Myingyan Captured

The 20th Division, operating under a news blackout, drove the 60 miles to Pindale in three days and then cut east to Wundwin, meeting only light Japanese resistance except for a stiff encounter at Wundwin. Armored patrols of the 14th Army operating out of Meiktila are known to have reached almost as far north as Pindale.

Japanese in the pocket were being further compressed from the west, where British and Indians captured Myingyan after sharp fighting and pushed on east. The disorganized enemy forces were being squeezed from the west, north and south, with the eastern jaw ready to close any time the Allied command chose.

Some Japanese were reported attempting to escape disguised as Burmese country folk. Others were surrendering in greater numbers than ever before in this theater.

Six Bridges Destroyed

Lieut. Gen. Daniel I. Sultan's three-pronged drive in Central Burma made progress everywhere. A column pushing west from Lashio crossed the Nan Ma River after wiping out an enemy delaying party and was reported within 10 miles of a junction with the British 36th Division.

The latter force, moving out from captured Mogok, had fought into the outskirts of Mong Long, 70 miles northeast of Mandalay.

Allied planes lashed Japanese installations and communications over wide areas of Burma and Thailand, knocking out 27 locomotives and destroying six bridges. RAF Liberators bagged eighteen of the locomotives along the Burma-Thailand railway.

Liberators and Beaufighters destroyed five important enemy radio installations on Great Coco Island, in the Bay of Bengal, and on a delta near Rangoon. Other planes destroyed or damaged more than 150 water craft, including a half dozen coastal steamers, power launches and barges. Three bridges on the Rangoon-Meiktila rail line were knocked down.

BRITISH CLOSING IN ON JAPS IN BURMA

Calcutta, March 23 (A. P.).—Troops of the British Fourteenth Army in Burma today swept southward from the Mandalay area, steadily pinning the Japanese against the forces driving north from captured Meiktila.

Pindale, a village road junction nineteen miles north of Meiktila, and Wundwin, on the main north-south trunk road eighteen miles northeast of the base, were captured after stiff opposition. Meanwhile, from Meiktila bases, other troops overran Japanese positions in the northern sector of the city and captured Myingyan, on the Irrawaddy, and its airfield.

American and British bombers battered enemy communications and installations in Burma and Siam, destroying twenty-seven locomotives and collapsing six bridges in yesterday's operations. Liberators of the Seventh Bombardment Group hit enemy radio installations on Cocos island, in the Bay of Bengal. American and British fighter squadrons assaulted waterway communications, railway targets and supply and troop concentrations all the way from the Rangoon area to the North Burma front.

JAPS OPEN DRIVE IN HANKOW AREA

CHUNGKING, March 23—(AP) Sixty thousand tank-led Japanese troops have opened a new offensive northwest of the central China city of Hankow, aimed at seizing the wheat crop in northern Hupeh and southern Honan provinces and removing the Chinese threat to the Peiping-Hankow railway, the Chinese announced today.

Initial reports indicated the enemy columns were making good progress.

Several Allied airfields are in the path of the drive, including one at Laohokow, 190 miles northwest of Hankow. The Japanese struck from bases between Kingmen, northeast of the Yangtze port of Ichang, and Sinyang, on the Peiping-Hankow railroad.

A Chinese spokesman described the push as a "defensive offensive" and said the Chinese welcomed the move as it thinned out the Japanese and gave Chinese forces an opportunity to strike back.

Two Japanese columns were reported approaching the Han river town of Icehng, 145 miles northwest of Hankow, in heavy fighting. The Chinese garrison of a town 25 miles north of Kingmen was said to have been wiped out after hand-to-hand fighting.

The immediate Japanese objectives were the key highway towns of Miyang and Npyang, whose capture would open the way to the air base at Laohokow. Some observers said that the enemy, if successful in taking Laohokow, might strike into Shensi province.

Chinese troops on the offensive in Hunan province pushed into the key Japanese communications center of Yuhsien, 45 miles east-northeast of Hengyang, but were driven out by an enemy counterattack.

A Chinese spokesman said the Japanese continued to strengthen their defenses along the China coast, fearful of an American landing, and even had brought troops down from Manchuria to man coastal fortifications.

Japs Push To Grab China's Wheat

Chungking, March 23 (AP)—Using 60,000 troops supported by mechanized units, Japanese forces in central China have launched a new drive from positions northwest of Hankow with the apparent object of seizing the vital wheat crop of southern Honan and northern Hupeh provinces, a Chinese Army spokesman said today.

The spokesman said the Japanese also apparently were hoping to knock out advance airfields in that area and to remove the Chinese threat to Japanese communications along the Peiping-Hankow railway.

Requiem Mass Held For China-Burma Dead

Chungking, March 23 (AP)—A solemn requiem mass in memory of Chinese, American and British soldiers and civilians who lost their lives in the Yunnan and Burma campaigns to open the Stilwell road was celebrated in Kunming yesterday by Bishop Paul Yupin, China's senior Catholic dignitary.

Americans were represented at the ceremony by Brig. Gen. Henry A. Barber, deputy commander of the Chinese Combat Command, and Lieut. Col. Camden A. Forthey, Jr., of the Burma road engineers. Also present were Lieut. Col. Joseph McNamara, chaplain for the China theater, and several associate chaplains.

JAPS' LUZON BASE PERILED

U.S. Bombers Play Havoc With Nips' Shipping

Manila, Saturday, March 24 (AP). Thirty-third Division Infantry has moved to within 16 air miles of Baguio, reported headquarters of Japanese troops on Luzon, and Gen. Douglas MacArthur's land-based bombers have sunk five ships, have sunk or damaged eight to ten others and destroyed twelve luggers in maintaining blockade of enemy communications.

Maj. Gen. Percey Clarkson's 33d Division, operating with guerrillas, crossed the Naguilian River to seize Naguilian town and its airfield.

Other elements of the 33d are moving on Baguio.

MacArthur today said capture of Naguilian town opened another route to Baguio. A spokesman said Naguilian airdrome was in good condition.

Lingayen Gulf Raided

Japanese aircraft raided Lingayen Gulf and Clark Field on the night of March 22-23, but caused only "minor damage." This is the first enemy air-raid reported by MacArthur in seven weeks.

A pitched battle at Bauang, 4 miles northwest of Naguilian, preceded capture of the town. Troops under Lieut. Col. Ernest D. Jessup, Manhattan, Kan., took a heavy toll of Japanese.

In the Cagayan Valley, on northeastern Luzon, four Japanese counterattacks were smashed with heavy loss to the enemy.

Three Convoys Smashed

These ground operations were supported strongly by fighter planes.

Probing the sea lanes, army bombers smashed three convoys.

Off Indo-China, bombers sank two 2,000-ton freighters, two destroyers and a mine sweeper of a seven-ship convoy. One United States bomber was lost as the attackers fought off eight to ten Japanese interceptors, but four Japanese fighters were destroyed and two probably downed.

In the Wenchow sector of China, patrol planes sank or damaged a 6,000-ton freighter, four small freighters and two luggers.

Other search planes destroyed three small freighters and possibly damaged two others along the coast of Soembawa.

Raids On Cebu Island In Philippines Increased

Manila, March 23 (AP)—Seizure of little Guimaras Island, across a narrow strait from the captured port of Iloilo on southeastern Panay, was announced today as heavy bombers stepped up their pounding of Cebu, one of the few major Philippine islands still in Japanese hands.

Maj. Gen. Rapp Brush's 40th Division, which invaded Panay Sunday and quickly conquered Iloilo and an important airdrome, hopped across the mile-and-a-half channel Wednesday to take 25-mile-long Guimaras without opposition. It was the twenty-seventh island invasion of the Philippines campaign.

Helps Form Harbor

Guimaras helps form one of the best harbors and seaplane bases in the central Philippines. It safeguards shipping lanes into Iloilo.

In three successive days, heavy bombers poured 214 tons of bombs on bivouac and supply areas in the vicinity of Cebu City, midway along Cebu's long east coast. Fires and explosions resulted.

Naval P-T boats patrolling the Cebu coast by night sank several small Japanese craft, and Navy rocket-firing planes sent a midget submarine to the bottom off Cebu City.

Twelve small freight vessels and four landing craft were sunk in the China Sea as patrol bombers maintained their tight blockade.

Nearing Baguio

On Luzon Island, Maj. Gen. Percy W. Clarkson's 33d Division reached within 10 miles of Baguio, summer capital of the Philippines, in their eastward advance from the Lingayen Gulf coast, against only minor opposition. Patrols probed to the Naguilian River, and capture of a nearby airfield was imminent.

Brig. Gen. Hanford MacNider's 158th Regimental Combat team reached the outskirts of Cuenca, southwest of Lake Taal in southern Luzon, finding only light resistance.

Australian troops on Bougainville in the Solomons made a long over-water advance along the northwest coast Tuesday by landing a mile and a half from the northern tip of the Soraken peninsula, on Matchin Bay.

JAP LOSS RISES FROM SKY DUELS

Yanks Bag 731 Planes In Nip Inland Area

Guam, Saturday, March 24 (AP)—Vice Admiral Marc A. Mitscher's task force carrier planes, which crippled Japan's home fleet in its inland waters March 18-19, also bagged 731 planes as sky duels with the enemy's land-based air force raged on for two more days, the Navy disclosed today.

A communiqué raised from 575 the total of enemy planes destroyed or damaged and also added two days of action, the Twentieth and tweny-first, when enemy broadcasts repeatedly reported "pursuit" of United States Task Force 58.

The communiqué added 81 planes to the previous preliminary report of March 21 giving 200 shot down and gave a definite figure of 175 probably destroyed or damaged instead of "more than 100." It left intact the figure of 275 destroyed on the ground.

The communiqué today made no amplification of the previous account that "our aircraft losses in combat were extremely light."

Other Raids Announced

No further details were supplied on damage dealt Japan's fleet in hideouts of the Inland Sea. Previously it was announced seventeen warships were sunk or damaged, possibly including a 45,000-ton superbattleship and eight aircraft carriers.

The Navy also disclosed raids Wednesday, Thursday and Friday north of conquered Iwo by Liberators against Chichi Jima in the Bonins.

Other raids were made in the Palau and Marshall Island groups.

3000 ON IWO SAVED BY WHOLE BLOOD

Guam, March 23 (A. P.).—Three to four thousand Marines wounded on Iwo Jima owe their lives to whole blood transfusions, Lieut. Herbert R. Brown Jr. of Rochester, N. Y., in charge of the Navy's whole blood distribution center here, said today. Lieut. Brown predicted on D day that 20 per cent more lives would be saved through the use of whole blood rather than plasma only. Figures based on a study of official medical reports from hospitals, he said, actually put the figure at between 20 and 30 per cent.

Approximately 14,000 pints of whole blood were used in the Iwo campaign, of which 5,600 were administered on the island itself. Patients needing ten, sixteen or even eighteen pints of blood were not rare." The distribution center also shipped large quantities of whole blood to the Philippines and Lieut. Brown said that doctors reported successful transfusions with whole blood thirty days old—twenty-one days is regarded as "expiration date" for whole blood.

Fresh Vegetables Flown to Iwo

GUAM, March 23 (AP).—Watermelons have gone to Iwo Jima, along with radishes, onions and tomatoes, from the Foreign Economic Administration gardens on Tinian and Guam. Transport planes flew 1,000 pounds from Guam yesterday and another 1,000 pounds from Tinian today. They were the first fresh vegetables to reach the battered island.

Escort Carrier Bismarck Sea Was Sunk at Iwo

Nimitz Says 'Most' of 1,500 Were Saved on Feb. 21. Two Days After Landing

PACIFIC FLEET HEADQUARTERS, Guam, March 24 (Saturday) (AP).—Japanese planes which attacked amphibious forces off Iwo Jima on the night of Feb. 21 sank the U. S. S. Bismarck Sea, an escort carrier, Admiral Chester W Nimitz announced today.

The Bismarck Sea was the eleventh American carrier listed as lost in the war. Ten have been lost in the Pacific.

[At Washington, the Navy said the Bismarck Sea had a displacement of 10,200 tons. She was known as the Alikula Bay when launched at Vancouver, Wash., by the Kaiser Company. The name was changed when she was commissioned on May 20, 1944.]

Nimitz said "most" of the Bismarck Sea's personnel, estimated at 1,500, were rescued, but Captain John Lockwood Pratt, the skipper, told war correspondents that "many" of his men were killed in explosions caused by Japanese aerial torpedoes and by the fires which followed. He said many others were killed in the water by Japanese pilots who returned to strafe survivors. Coast Guard and other small craft rescued the survivors.

This was the first announcement to American loss in the Feb. 21 attack. At the time, Admiral Nimitz briefly reported in a communique that "at sunset on Feb. 21 a force of enemy bombers and fighters attacked our surface units in the area off Iwo Island, causing some damage to fleet units. Seven of these planes were shot down by air patrols and anti-aircraft fire."

Marines had landed on Iwo on Feb. 19, two days before the Japanese aerial attack on an American task force numbering 800 ships of all categories.

Captain Pratt, of Milford, Del., and Coronado, Calif., made every effort to save the carrier, Nimitz reported, before ordering personnel to abandon ship.

The carrier, built in the Kaiser ship yards at Vancouver, Wash., and commissioned last year, sank a short time later.

Japs Strafe Survivors

Pratt, in an interview two — later (but held up by censors ...ding announcement of the loss) said Japanese planes attacked at dusk and, after hitting the ship, returned to strafe survivors in the water.

The jeep carrier had been assigned to support the Iwo invasion after similar duty in the landings in Lingayen gulf, Luzon, in the Philippines.

Jap Planes Ruthlessly Strafe Helpless Survivors of Carrier

ABOARD TRANSPORT SHIP OFF IWO JIMA, Feb. 26—(Delayed) — (AP) Japanese planes strafed survivors of the U.S.S. Bismark Sea as they fought for their lives in cold wind and whipped waters 60 miles off Iwo Jima, the captain of the escort aircraft carrier said today.

Capt. John L. Pratt, Milford, Dela., and Coronado, Calif., who spent 45 minutes in the water before being picked up, told how enemy fliers returned to fire on his men floundering helplessly near where the ship was attacked and sunk Feb. 22.

He said several men were hit by strafing planes.

Pratt ordered the ship abandoned 7:02 p.m. after fires aboard "became so terrific we couldn't surround them." The carrier, commissioned at Astoria, Ore., May 20, 1944, had been supporting the Iwo invasion as it had previously the liidings on Luzon.

Many crew members who escaped shipboard holocaust from exploding torpedoes drowned in the rough sea, Pratt said. Four ships searched all night for survivors. Captain Pratt paid tribute to seamen from these ships who risked their own lives in small motor whale boats to rescue Bismarck Sea personnel.

The ship was hit on the starboard side, Lt. George Wedel said, and the force of the explosion scattered torpedoes on the hangar deck. Three of the six planes in the raid attacked the Bismarck Sea. One Japanese plane was shot down by anti-aircraft fire and another set ablaze.

"I was in the ready room briefing pilots for the next day's strikes," Mills said. "The initial explosion jarred the ship. The lights went out for 30 seconds or a minu... but my conception of time is poor.

"I climbed to the flight deck and could see flames coming up from the after elevator. The water spray was turned on in the hangar deck but topside catwalk hoses lost power. Then there was a second explosion which was terrific. The supposition is that some torpedoes went off."

"In addition to the torpedoes there had been two newly gassed planes on the elevator when the ship was hit, contributing to the fire that raged in the hangar deck."

Mills said many men began jumping overboard after the second explosion. A number of casualties were caused by timbers from the flight deck—blown into the water like match sticks—falling on men in the water.

Mills was afloat on a raft two hours before being picked up. Wedel spent 90 minutes in the water waiting for rescue. Neither was injured.

Fraser Heads Frisco Unit

Wellington, New Zealand, March 23 (AP) — Prime Minister Peter Fraser of New Zealand said today he will lead his country's delegation to the United Nations Peace Conference at San Francisco. The other delegates, with the exception of C. A. Berendsen, Minister to Washington, are still under consideration.

At the British Commonwealth Conference at London, the country will be represented by Fraser Berendsen and Commissioner W. J Jordan, he said.

Brazil Expected Coffee Boost Bar

Rio de Janeiro, March 23 (AP)—Persons close to the Brazilian coffee market said today that the State Department's rejection yesterday of a Latin-American increase in ceiling prices came as no suprise to trade quarters.

Brazilian coffee men pointed to the relief which market rise following proposals that the ceilings be raised as an indication that some dealers and growers here had not given up hope.

A recent congress of Brazil's coffee states adopted a subsidy plan as a solution to that country's problem, which apparently took United States ceilings for granted.

The Brazilian Government is anxious to keep Brazil's coffee in the United States market and end withholding tactics on the part of private interests which have been refusing to sell at the ceilings.

Sao Paulo growers—producing some 60 per cent of Brazil's coffee—still are not satisfied with the new subsidy plan, claiming a need for 100 cruzeiros a sack subsidy (about $5 in United States currency) instead of 65 cruzeiros, in order to offset production costs and to sell at the ceilings.

Nation Refuses To Pay More For Coffee

Washington, March 23 (AP)—The United States turned down a request by fourteen Latin-American countries for more money for coffee, but the action was said officially today to carry no threat of a return to rationing.

Officials, asking not to be quoted by name, said they expected no material effect on green coffee imports, adding that some 6,500,000 bags now are on hand, afloat or purchased. Roastings, they said, are running about 1,500,000 bags a month.

Rationing Not Expected

An OPA spokesman said that agency "has no expectation of rationing coffee as a result of this latest action."

Elsewhere it was said a subsidy plan recently announced by Brazil—one of the fourteen countries asking the increase—is bringing a freer movement of the bean from that country, a major source of the United States supply.

Might Cause Inflation

Announcing rejection of the Latin-American request for a rise in green coffee ceiling prices, Acting Secretary of State Grew said yesterday the action was based on "the fact that failure of the stabilization program in this country would release inflationary prices that might well seriously impair real incomes and living standards in the United States and, eventually, throughout the Western Hemisphere."

The Latin Americans contend that coffee prices have been allowed to remain at four-year-old levels, while American goods have increased in cost to them.

Argentine Cabinet Holds Session

Buenos Aires, March 23 (A. P.).—Cesar Ameghino, acting foreign minister, said today there had been general agreement but no definite decision at a cabinet meeting called to determine whether Argentina could qualify for membership in the United Nations. The cabinet will meet again Monday.

Reports have persisted that Argentina would declare war on the Axis or take other measures in response to the invitation of the Mexico City conference of American foreign ministers that would enable her to rejoin the American family of nations.

CANADA WATCHES MOVE BY HEPBURN

Ontario Developments Enter Political Picture

Ottawa, March 23 (AP)—The Co-operative Commonwealth Federation, Canadian Socialistic political party, has been confronted with one of the major tests of its twelve-year life as a result of an Ontario provincial showdown engineered by the Unpredictable Former Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn.

With a general election to be held in Canada this summer, the Dominion capital suddenly turned from its own foreign affairs debate in Parliament today and focussed attention on the developments in Ontario, regarded as certain to affect the political picture.

Votes With Opposition

Hepburn and his Liberal party colleagues, who held the balance of power in the Ontario Legislature, today on a mottion of confidence voted with the C.C.F., the official oppossition, against the progressive conservative Government of Premier George A. Drew.

The Drew Government during its 19 months in office had heretofore been supported by the Liberals during a self-imposed retirement of Hepburn as provincial leader of his party.

The sudden shift in liberal policy is attributable directly to Hepburn, who resumed leadership last December and directed the vote against the Drew Government after five weeks of the current session of the Legislature.

MAR 24 1945

Election Call Expected

As a result, a provincial election is expected to be called in Ontario in advance of the dominion election. Although a political party's fortunes in Canada are not always the same provincially and federally, the party showing the most strength in the Ontario voting is expected to win prestige nationally at a time of strategic importance.

Of the three major parties, C.C.F. circles in Ottawa showed the least enthusiasm over the events in Ontario. Both the Progressive Conservatives and the Liberals predict they will win new seats in the Legislature at C.C.F. expense.

In the 1943 election the C.C.F., which had no represenation in the previous Legislature, won 34 seats against the Conservatives' 38 and the Liberals' 15.

Whether the C.C.F. has won, or lost ground in Ontario since then has been a much-debated issue. C.C.F. leaders, who have claimed a continued increase in the strength of their following, will be forced to prove it at an hour when a setback probably would hurt them nationally.

Ontario Regime Of Drew Loses

Toronto, March 23 (AP)—Ontario today faced an election as a result of the defeat of the Provincial Government by a 51-to-36 vote of the Legislature last night.

The election will come as a prelude to Dominion-wide polling scheduled for this summer and may forecast how Prime Minister MacKenzie King's Liberal party will fare in the general election.

The Socialistic Co-Operative Commonwealth Federation and the Liberal party banded to defeat Premier George A. Drew's Progressive Conservative Government here. Drew has held office with the support of the Liberal party.

Hepburn Back In Politics

The Government's defeat marked the political re-emergence of the former Ontario Premier, Mitchell F. Hepburn, who led the assault upon Drew's Government through a CCF subamendment condemning the Government's religious education program in the schools.

The Drew Government had been in office since August 17, 1943, holding a minority of the total seats, but having the support of the liberals.

The Government was defeated on a strictly party vote, with 31 CCF members joining 16 Liberals, 2 Labor Progressives and 2 Independents in voting against 36 Conservatives.

The Liberals until now had sided with the Conservatives, the vote being a result of the return to leadership of the political firebrand, Hepburn.

DEBATE WAXES BOLD IN TOKYO

Two Diet Members Criticize Handling of Public.

San Francisco, March 23 (A. P.).—Sharp queries on national defense policy were put to Premier Kuniaki Koiso and his Cabinet Ministers today by members of the Japanese Diet, who indicated some displeasure with the Government's attitude toward the public.

In a dispatch broadcast by the Tokyo radio and recorded by the FCC, Domei, the Japanese official news agency, said that both Giji Manabe and Isaji Tanaka inquired about the Government's handling of the people. Manabe said that a proclamation posted by the Governor of Tokyo after the last heavy American raid on the city "should have been done in a more hospitable and warm language." He did not disclose its contents. Tanaka demanded: "When is the Government going to announce a guiding directive on what steps the people should take in this crisis?"

The question was turned aside by Koiso, Domei continued, with the statement that he could not "reveal any policies at this time."

Earlier today Koiso made statements in the Diet that must have sadly perplexed the Japanese people.

"Japan is prepared to take an offensive toward the recapture of Iwo Jima, Saipan and Guadalcanal," he declared boldly, but he also said: "Prepare for the immediate invasion of the Japanese homeland."

The public was also told that Admiral Mitscher's carrier planes which attacked his Imperial Navy in the previously unviolated Inland Sea, inflicted only slight damage and was trounced with "eleven major ships confirmed sunk," but "150 Japanese planes failed to return"—all that in the words of today's Imperial communique.

KOISO SAYS JAPS READY TO ATTACK

SAN FRANCISCO, March 23—(AP) Premier Kuniaki Koiso told the Japanese Diet Friday the forces of Nippon not only are fully prepared to beat back an invasion of the homeland, but also are determined to launch an offensive for the recapture of Iwo Jima, Saipan and Guadalcanal.

Tokyo radio broadcasts, heard by the FCC, reported the Premier's confident remarks and his replies to sharp questions from Diet members who indicated dissatisfaction with Koiso's war efforts.

One legislator said the government should take more direct action to enlist the people's support of the war, and another demanded information on the relationship between Koiso and the High command.

Koiso said he believed the recent order by Emperor Hirohito permitting him to join Imperial headquarters deliberations will stimulate "harmonization and unification of military leadership and civil administration."

Domei, the Japanese news agency, reported Koiso's cabinet had adopted a strong emergency program for war mobilization. Preparations to put the program into effect will be completed by the end of March.

Field Marshal Gen. Sugiyama, war minister, and Admiral Mitsumasa Yonai, Navy minister, supported Koiso's declaration of national preparedness to meet an attempted invasion.

A new Japanese Imperial communique claimed that Nipponese airmen had sunk 11 warships of the U. S. Fifth fleet and carrier task force which struck in Japan's inland sea Monday, crippling 15 to 17 of the enemy's battle craft by American count.

There was no American confirmation of the enemy communique claims which also said about 180 U. S. planes had been shot down.

Imperial headquarters admitted that 150 Japanese planes had been lost in attacks on the American force, but said the Yank planes had been lost in attacks on the American force, but said the Yank planes had done only "slight" damage to Nipponese shops and shore installations.

Official American reports Wednesday placed the enemy plane losses at 475 destroyed and more than 100 damaged.

Tokyo's Boasts, Fears Perplex Little Man

San Francisco, March 23 (AP)—By now the little man of Japan, fleeing his incendiary - scorched cities by the millions, must be thoroughly perplexed.

Today he was told by his war leaders—in broadcasts recorded here—that:

"Japan is prepared to take an offensive toward the recapture of Iwo Jima, Saipan and Guadalcanal"—Premier Kuniaki Koiso.

"Prepare for the immediate invasion of the Japanese homeland"—Koiso.

Radio Tax Doubled

The little man kept his radio, although the listening tax was doubled the day before.

He is assured that Vice Admiral Marc A. Mitscher's carrier planes which attacked his imperial navy within the previously unviolated Inland Sea inflicted on "ground and sea" only "slight" damage, while the audacious United States Fleet was trounced with "eleven major ships confirmed sunk."—Imperial communiqué.

But, "150 Japanese planes failed to return."—Imperial communiqué.

Defense Corps Sped

Again the little man is told: "We are resolutely determined not to let a single enemy soldier land on our homeland."—Koiso.

That's better. Yesterday he was informed by the Premier, War Minister Field Marshal Gen Sugiyama and Navy Minister Admiral Mitsumasa Yonai that the government is speeding the organization of a civilian national defense corps and redistributing food and munition stores "to prepare for the possibility that an invasion might split Japan and isolate important population centers."

To the little man's disquietude, he then learned that before the month is out labor will be mobilized in the homeland "for the construction of fortifications and air defense installations for the production of food and weapons, for the procuring of fuel and raw materials and for the strengthening of the transportation systems."

ROMANIA SEIZES ABSENTEE ESTATES

Absentee land ownership has been abolished in Romania under a law which envisages a redistribution of farms in parcels up to five hectares (12.3 acres) for sale to the peasantry, the Bucharest radio declared today in a broadcast recorded by the FCC and distributed by the Associated Press. The creation of State-owned model farms also is proposed.

Under the royal decree the State acquires title to all lands and chattels belonging to absentee landlords, German citizens, traitors, collaborationists, war criminals and persons who have left the country since the armistice was signed last August. It also acquires title to individual holdings in excess of fifty hectares if under cultivation and in excess of ten hectares if uncultivated for the last seven years. Dated yesterday, it was signed by King Michael and his Minister of Agriculture, Romulus Zaroni.

Exempt from expropriation are all public and communal lands and those held by the Royal House, hospitals, rural co-operatives and religious and educational institutions. Likewise forest lands and vineyards are not included within the scope of the present decree, but these will be dealt with in a separate law.

From the lands thus acquired, the Romanian Government proposes to distribute parcels of up to five hectares in size to landless peasants and those holding less than that acreage, giving preference to "soldiers who have been called up and all those fighting against Hitlerite Germany." The new holders are forbidden to "split, distribute, rent or mortgage, either in whole or in part," the parcels allotted to them and are required to pay a fixed purchase price in cash or in kind to the Government over a period of years.

20 PER CENT OF TOKYO INDUSTRIES

WASHINGTON, March 23—(AP) Fire bombs rained on Tokyo March 9 wrecked 20 per cent of the city's industry for probably three months and made at least 1,200,000 homeless, a 20th Airforce spokesman said today.

More than five per cent of Tokyo's war production, concentrated in approximately 45,000 "home industry" plants, was knocked out for a full year, Brig. Gen. Lauris Norstad told a news conference.

In the first incendiary attack on the Japanese capital, from 200,000 to 250,000 buildings were destroyed in an area of 13.2 square miles. These included some 3,000 plants of all sizes. Forty-five large factories were destroyed, 26 damaged extensively, and 20 moderately damaged. Sixteen others also suffered some damage.

Fire attacks are being made on Japanese cities because it is impossible to bomb their many little war industries with pin-point accuracy, the 20th Airforce chief of staff said.

Asserting that there is no change in the general policy of bombing, Norstad said the mission of the B-29 air force is to reduce Japanese production "by any means" and that "incendiary attacks are the economical method of destroying small industries."

His statement that there has been "no switch" in policy left the understanding that high explosive bombs would continue to be used on specific targets such as aircraft plants where the use of that type bomb is required.

What the new series of incendiary attacks has accomplished was described by Norstad this way:

In the March 9 attack on Tokyo 20 per cent of the city's industrial production was knocked out for at least three months; more than five per cent for a full year.

An estimated 3,000 plants of all sizes were destroyed in the attack. Of the large factories, 45 were completely destroyed, 26 extensively damaged and 20 moderately damaged. Sixteen others were damaged to some extent.

At least 1,200,000 workers were made homeless and from 200,000 to 250,000 buildings destroyed in the 13.2 square miles of Tokyo devastated in the first incendiary attack on the enemy capitol, the general said.

While detailed analysis of the incendiary attacks on other big industrial cities of Japan have not been received, Norstad said it was expected the damage would be similar.

13 MILES OF TOKYO RAZED BY ONE RAID

Washington, March 23 (A. P.).—Brig.-Gen. Lauris Norstad said today that roughly thirteen and one-half square miles of Tokyo was reduced to ashes by the Superfortress fire raid of March 9, last. In that one attack, he declared, the bombers knocked out at least 20 per cent of the Japanese capital's industrial production for three months and 5 per cent for a full year.

Destruction of similar proportions was inflicted in the attacks against Nagoya, Kobe and Osaka, he told a news conference, adding that full reports of the damage there still are not available.

The general also declared that 170 Superfortresses have been lost since they began operations on June 5, last. Of these, eighty-four were lost in combat and eighty-six as a result of accidents and similar operational losses.

Gen. Norstad, Chief of Staff of the Twentieth Air Force, said that the fire attack on Tokyo had destroyed an estimated 3,000 plants and shops, a total of 200,000 to 250,000 buildings, and left an estimated 1,200,000 factory workers homeless. Forty-five large factories were destroyed, twenty-six extensively damaged, twenty moderately damaged and sixteen others damaged to some extent, he reported.

Norstad said the B-29 losses were so far below expectations that operations in the future can be stepped up substantially. He did not disclose how many men of the Superfortress crew had been lost.

NO NAVY LETUP, KING ASSERTS

Everything Will Be Thrown Against Japan, Admiral Says

Washington, March 23 (AP)—Fleet Admiral Ernest J. King declared today that the navy won't demobilize any of its forces when Germany falls, because it plans to throw everything it has at Japan.

Explaining why "there will be no partial naval demobilization," the chief of naval operations said:

"All naval forces are required to prosecute the war in the Pacific. It is the intent to shift to the Pacific all naval power now devoted to the war in Europe and in the Atlantic as soon as may be.

"This shift must be made as expeditiously as possible, to the end that the war in the Pacific may be brought to a successful conclusion at the earliest possible date."

Some Army Demobilization

While the army's manpower plans have not been announced in detail, the program on the table of the high command generally seems to be this:

Discharges should not be expected by soldiers in the army's service forces nor in the air forces, either air or ground crews. The sevice troops will be needed in the Pacific at the earliest possible moment to build staging areas and bases for combat forces. Airmen and air forces ground crews will be needed to step up the aerial bombardment of the enemy's homeland and supply routes.

There will be some demobilization of combat troops since the full strength of troops now deployed in Europe cannot, for geographical reasons, be brought to bear on Japan. The extent of this demobilization—not expected to reach any substantial proportions—cannot be estimated by the high command at this time because of still unpredictable factors in the European situation.

Transfers To Get Furloughs

Furloughs will be granted for troops going through this country en route to the Pacific theater.

The partial army demobilization will follow the previously agreed upon plan of "adjusted service rating," with a system of weighted credits based upon service, overseas service, combat and parenthood. The Army so far has not announced the point value of these credits.

The admittedly difficult task now confronting the armed forces is to explain the manpower problem to the fighting man and the civilian at home.

Reasons Why To Be Given

Speaking for the Navy, King described it in these words:

"It is most important for the people of the country to understand clearly that the Navy must use every ounce of its strength to hasten the end of hostilities against Japan. Any half-hearted measures will result in prolonging the war and increasing the loss of American lives."

The Army already has its plans for explaining the situation, at least to the soldiers.

Movie For GI's

Among other things, it has on tap and ready to use promptly upon conclusion of organized warfare in Europe an educational motion picture for GI's. The picture is intended to show troops, precisely and definitely, the needs of the second phase of World War II, including the manpower needs.

HIGHEST HONOR TO SUB SKIPPER

Congressional Medal Given to Naval Commander.

Washington, March 23 (A. P.).—Secretary of the Navy Forrestal presented the Congressional Medal of Honor today to Commander Eugene B. Fluckey of Annapolis, Md., for "conspicuous gallantry and intrepedity" as commanding officer of a submarine.

At ceremonies in the Secretary's office two gold stars in lieu of a fourth and fifth Navy Cross also were presented to Commander Roy M. Davenport of Los Angeles, Cal., for extraordinary heroism as commanding officer of a submarine. He is the first person listed in Navy Department records to hold five Navy Crosses.

The Secretary expressed personal regret that security regulations made it impossible for him to tell the full story behind Commander Fluckey's award, remarking that his exploit was "as colorful as it was gallant. His citation said:

"For conspicuous gallantry and intrepidity at the risk of his life above and beyond the call of duty in furtherance of vital offensive operations as commanding officer of a United States submarine during action in enemy-controlled waters. Commander Fluckey's outstanding valor and leadership and the aggressive fighting spirit of the officers and men under his command throughout the fulfillment of a hazardous mission reflect the highest credit upon the United States naval service."

Commander Fluckey, who is still on duty as commanding officer of a submarine, previously had been awarded the Navy Cross and the gold star in lieu of a second Navy Cross. He is a native of Washington, D. C.

Chinese Reds Save U. S. Fliers

WASHINGTON, March 23 (AP)—A State Department official said today Chinese Communists in North China have rescued many American fliers, including Superfortress crews, in Japanese-occupied areas as far north as the Great Wall.

U. S. S. TENNESSEE GETS REVENGE IN PACIFIC

WASHINGTON, March 23 (AP)—Built during World War I but finished too late to get into that conflict, the battleship Tennessee is now paying off handsome dividends.

In her latest exploit, the old battlewagon was one of the five oldtimers disclosed as participating in the "softening up" bombardment of Iwo Jima, preparatory to the invasion.

The Tennessee was at Pearl Harbor Dec. 7, 1941, and was hit by two bombs, one exploding in a gun turret and another penetrating a second turret without exploding. Casualties were relatively light. Her anti-aircraft batteries brought down four attacking planes.

Since repairs were completed, the Tennessee has been engaged continuously in operations in the Pacific.

During the Philippine campaign she furnished support for the landings on Leyte and for several days provided cover for unloading transports. That action was climaxed by the battle of Surigao Strait, October 25, 1944, when the Tennessee formed part of the force that destroyed two enemy battleships, two cruisers and four destroyers.

In a recent report on the vessel's activities during the year ending August 1, 1944, Capt. Andrew D. Mayer, of Maple Lake, Minn., said during that year the Tennessee steamed 90,384 miles and took part in landings from Kiska to the Palaus.

NAVY TO KEEP ALL MEN AFTER GERMANY FALLS

WASHINGTON, March 23.—(AP) Fleet Admiral Ernest J. King declared today that the Navy won't demobilize any of its forces when Germany falls because it plans to throw everything it has at Japan.

Explaining why "there will be no partial naval demobilization," the chief of naval operations said:

"All naval forces are required to prosecute the war in the Pacific. It is the intent to shift to the Pacific all naval power now devoted to the war in Europe and in the Atlantic as soon as may be.

"This shift must be made as expeditiously as possible, to the end that the war in the Pacific may be brought to a successful conclusion at the earliest possible date."

Roosevelt Sees 5 Delegates to San Francisco

Reported to Have Assured Them Free Hand, Within Dumbarton Oaks Plan

WASHINGTON, March 23 (AP).—President Roosevelt was reported to have assured United States delegates today they would have much freedom of action to chart this country's course at the United Nations conference on international organization, convening in San Francisco April 25.

The President talked briefly to five of the eight members of the American group at the White House after the delegates had conferred with Under Secretary of State Joseph C. Grew. Secretary of State Edward Stettinius, former Secretary Cordell Hull and Commander Harold E. Stassen were absent.

Delegates apparently came away from the White House with the impression that Mr. Roosevelt intends to leave largely to them the evolution of this country's program at the conference. This was with the understanding that they will work within the general framework of the Dumbarton Oaks preliminary formula.

The Big Three security agreements made at Yalta and elsewhere were said to be regarded by the President as projected solutions of pressing security problems which are open to modification if it becomes apparent such action is necessary to bring about conference harmony.

The official name of the meeting of forty-four nations, the State Department said today in another development, is "The United Nations Conference on International Organization."

U.S. Delegation Begins Frisco Discussions

Washington, March 23 (AP)—With potential international controversies piling up, American delegates today began a preliminary survey of this country's program for the San Francisco Security Conference.

Chairman Connally (D., Texas) of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee said he expects general discussion today and at a meeting next week of the problems confronting the United States delegation.

These now include a series of proposed amendments to the Dumbarton Oaks security formula, filed by Senator Vandenberg (R., Mich.). Connally indicated that he also may suggest some amendments.

Specific Authority Sought

Vandenberg has insisted that the world organization to be formed at San Francisco should be clothed with specific authority to reassess peace-table decisions if it should appear they may threaten future peace.

The Michigan Republican is known to feel that one of several amendments the French have indicated they plan to propose clashes sharply with this idea. His interpretation is that the French want peace-table decisions frozen.

On the other hand, if the Canadian delegation follows suggestions made by Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King, it may develop support for the Vandenberg proposal.

King's Suggestion

King has suggested a provision for general review of the international security charter after a period of years.

Another potential French proposal—one to permit automatic operation of regional security pacts—seemed likely to be received sympathetically by some American delegates.

Connally said a similar problem may arise in connection with the recent Mexico City agreement to guarantee boundaries of American republics against aggressors, at least during the war.

Foresees No Difficulty

The Texan added, however, he is confident the "act of Chapultepec" can be integrated successfully with the proposed international charter.

Connally expects no decisions by the American delegation until the full group begins to meet here daily about the middle of April. Commander Harold E. Stassen will have returned from navy duty then and Cordell Hull, former Secretary of State, may be well enough to participate.

After meeting with Acting Secretary Joseph C. Grew at the State Department, the delegates went across the street to the White House for their second conference with President Roosevelt.

Spaak Heads Belgian Security Delegation

Brussels, March 23 (AP)—Foreign Minister Paul Henri Spaak will head the Belgian delegation to the World Security Conference at San Francisco, it was announced today.

Other members of the delegation will be Frans Van Cauwelaert, Minister of State and President of the Chamber of Commerce; Victor De Laveleye, former Minister of Education; Charles De Visscher, former minister without portfolio; Henri Rolin, Senator and former Delegate to the League of Nations; Fernand Vanelangenhove, Secretary General of the Department of Foreign Affairs, and Walter Loridan, first secretary to Spaak's Cabinet.

Loridan already has left for Washington.

Nazis Claim 8 Ships

London, March 23 [Reuter]—The German high command today claimed the sinking of six transports, totaling 43,000 tons, and two destroyers sailing to Murmansk. It added that the attacking U-boats also heavily damaged two other vessels.

France and Australia Join Shipping Pool

Washington, March 23 (A. P.).—The War Shipping Administration announced today the addition of France and Australia to the United Maritime Authority, thus raising to ten the nations who will submit their shipping to an inter-nation central control for at least six months after the war.

Charter members of the U. M. A. are the United States, the United Kingdom, Canada, Belgium, Norway, the Netherlands, Poland and Greece.

RUSSIAN TO HEAD UNRRA IN POLAND

WASHINGTON, March 23—(AP) Balked in an attempt to get a Russia visa for an American representative, the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation administration today named a Russian to head an UNRRA mission to Poland.

John P. Gregg, originally chosen head of the mission to negotiate a relief agreement with Poland, resigned after several months of futile attempts to get a Russian transit visa.

It was announced that Michael Menshikov, who is an UNRRA deputy director general, would head the mission. An UNRRA statement also declared that the Polish provisional government in Warsaw is the only Polish authority with which UNRRA will deal.

This placed another trump in the hands of this government, which has relations with Moscow while the United States and Britain recognize the rival regime in London. However, it is in line with UNRRA's announced policy of dealing with the administrative authority in control of any area.

The Yalta agreement calls for the reconstitution of the Warsaw government to include other elements but so far this has not been accomplished.

The UNRRA statement about dealing only with the Warsaw regime caused immediate consternation among Poles here. It was learned that Ambassador Jan Ciechanowski, representing the London government, intends to take the matter up with the State department. The Polish government in London has been a member of UNRRA since the start.

It is expected that Menshikov's appointment will bring quick clearance for the mission which has been assembled for months but unable to leave Russia because of the lack of travel permits.

UNRRA Favors Warsaw Group

Lehman Will Deal Only With Polish Government Recognized by Russia.

Washington, March 23 (A. P.).—The United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration said today that the only Polish group with which it will deal on relief matters for Poland is the Russian-recognized Provisional Government in Warsaw.

Herbert H. Lehman, director of the UNRRA, announced at the same time that he had "reluctantly accepted" the resignation of John P. Gregg of Washington, as chief of the Polish Relief Mission. He said that Michail A. Menshikov, a Russian, will head the mission as Lehman's personal representative. Menshikov has the title of Deputy UNRRA Director.

The announcement concerning exclusive dealings with the provisional government in Warsaw apparently effectively closed the door to the Exile Polish Government in London so far as chances of having any hand in relief questions in Poland are concerned.

Says Warsaw Controls Area.

Lehman's statement asserted that the Warsaw government "exercises actual control in the area" in which relief is to be provided.

There have been difficulties in getting Russian visas for an UNRRA mission which would have to travel across the Soviet to reach Poland.

Today's announcement stated that "if necessary" Menshikov would take up supply and transport problems with "officials of neighboring countries"—obviously a reference to Russia.

Menshikov was a Soviet delegate to the first UNRRA meeting at Atlantic City and has been with the organization since then.

First French Cognac In 4½ Years Arrives

New York, March 23 (AP)—The first French cognac and perfume to arrive in this country for four and a half years will be unloaded today at the East River—marking resumption of trade between the two nations.

It will take about three months to clear the rare, pre-war brandy through customs, price it with the help of the OPA, and distribute it among retailers.

Also aboard the vessel were four cases of perfume and 72 cases of Swiss straw hat braid.

WAR PRODUCTION IS ABOUT AT PEAK

Way Sought To 'Squeeze Out' A Little More For Civilians

Washington, March 23 (AP)—War production has about hit the peak, the War Production Board said today.

Limiting factors, it said, were raw materials, manpower and an already squeezed civilian economy.

Diversion of resources and consequent cuts in supplies available for war-supporting and essential civilian activities already have been carried to a point "where any further widespread squeeze probably will result in reducing, rather than increasing, total munitions output," the agency reported.

Hiland G. Batcheller, WPB chief of operations, in a monthly summary on munitions programs, said WPB and the military agencies now were studying means of providing civilians with "minimum needs."

Would Ease Squeeze On Civilians

This involves a review of military programs to determine what adjustments can be made with a view of squeezing out a little more for civilians, instead of squeezing them tighter.

The cumulative effect of the hard winter and nuisance strikes, Batcheller said, was making it difficult to meet the higher munitions output schedules for 1945. But despite everything, the daily output in February was at a higher rate than in January.

The overall munitions output totaled $4,736,000,000. This compares with $4,829,000,000 in January and $4,864,000,000 in December.

Army extra-heavy trucks (ten tons and above) provided the only really black mark among the critical programs, falling fourteen per cent behind January and sixteen per cent behind schedule.

Production Box Score

Here is the February production box score by major categories compared with January:

Aircraft, $1,208,000,000 and $1,173,000,000, three per cent under.

Ships (including maintenance and repair), $919,000,000 and $870,000,000, five per cent under.

Guns and fire control, $254,000,000 and $256,000,00, one per cent over.

Ammunition, $650,000,000 and $658,000,000, one per cent over.

Combat and motor vehicles, $451,000,000 and $462,000,000, two per cent over.

Communication and electronic equipment, $353,000,000 and $340,000,000, four per cent under.

Other equipment and supplies, $994,000,000 and $977,000,000, two per cent under.

orderly change of situations, the continuance of which is likely to endanger the peace of the world."

The conference called by the United Nations begins here April 25. Evatt and Deputy Prime Minister Francis M. Forde are Australia's two delegates. Both are en route to a preconference empire meetinng in London.

War History Cited

Evatt called for postwar co-operation between the peoples of the United States, Australia and New Zealand and cited history of the Pacific war to date to demonstrate how closely the three have worked together in the Pacific war theaters.

He said General MacArthur had vindicated his "island-hopping" strategy with the successful assault on the Philippines and said the combined Allied Pacific strategy, specificaly the co-ordination of MacArthur's forces with Admiral Nimitz's Central Pacific strikes, "has been something of an epic in its brilliance of conception and its efficiency of execution."

JAPS ON TARAWA MURDER CIVILIANS

SAN FRANCISCO, March 23—(AP) The massacre of 22 white civilians, soldiers and officials by the Japanese at Tarawa in 1942 was charged against the Nipponese today by Peter Fraser, Prime Minister of New Zealand.

Almost simultaneously John Curtin, prime minister of Australia, told the Australian House of Representatives 19,000 Aussie prisoners of war are being moved from occupied territory to the Japanese mainland under "conditions appalling to western standards."

The remarks of the Commonwealth chiefs were reported by the Melbourne radio and picked up by the FCC.

Fraser said that after the occupation of the Gilberts "Europeans were removed to Tarawa and tied to coconut palms outside the quarters of the Japanese commander.

"They were left there for up to four days without examination, then confined in an enclosure at the Tarawa central hospital previously used for native lunatics.

"On the afternoon of April 15, 1942, 22 of them were beheaded or otherwise murdered as what appeared to be a reprisal for a bombardment of the island by a United States warship and United States aircraft."

He said the victims included 17 New Zealand administration officials, soldiers and civilians, a master mariner and a missionary.

Curtin asserted he had reliable information from secret sources in Japan that the Nipponese, in moving the Australian prisoners, were showing "complete disregard to the health and safety" of the men.

Australian Seeks Guarantee Against Dictators And Want

Berkeley, Cal., March 23 (AP)—The postwar world must guarantee redress against dictatorship and freedom from want, Herbert V. Evatt, Australia's Minister for External Affairs, insisted today in warning that peace is not the only objective of the forthcoming world security conference at San Francisc.

"It is possible to have a world peace in which peoples would have no redress against Fascist dictatorship and would be forced to live in perpetual want. That indeed would be creating a desert and calling it peace," the Australian told the University of California Charter Day observance.

Fears Language Ambiguity

He called for a clear and plain statement of economic objectives contained in the Atlantic Charter and said there should be no ambiguity in language guaranteeing "the territorial integrity and political independence of the nations will be preserved against change either by force or threat of force. Also provision should be made for

14 Freed Army Men Back From Philippines

San Francisco, March 23 (AP). Fourteen army men, prisoners of the Japanese in the Philippines for three years, were returned here today by ship. They constitute the third and smallest group of liberated prisoners arriving in the United States.

They were sent to Letterman General Hospital for treatment and checkup. The Army placed them under the customary 24-hour seclusion regulations governing newly arrived released prisoners.

Major Glenn Miller Awarded Bronze Star

New York, March 23 (AP)—Major Alton Glenn Miller, former band leader who was reported missing in action after an airplane fiight in Europe last December, has been awarded the Bronze Star Medal for meritorious service.

The award was presented today to his wife, Mrs. Helen Miller, of Tenafly, N.J., by Col. F. R. Kerr, acting director of the Army Special Services Division.

Board Reports Slight Living Cost Decrease

New York, March 23 (AP)—Living costs for the average family of wage earners and lower-salaried clerical workers in the United States were two tenths of one per cent lower in February than in January, but 1.9 per cent higher than a year ago, the National Industrial Conference Board reported today.

The board's index stood at 105.5 in February (1923 equals 100), 22.7 per cent above January, 1941, base period of the Little Steel formula.

A decline of eight tenths of one per cent in the cost of food during February more than offset increases of one tenth of one per cent in clothing, three tenths of one per cent in fuel and light and two tenths of one per cent in sundries, the report said.

Purchasing power of the dollar in terms of 1923 goods was 94.8 cents in February, compared with 96.6 cents a year ago.

HOUSE VOTES TO KEEP DRAFT

Takes Less Than 5 Minutes To Back Present Setup

Washington, March 23 (AP)—A one-year draft law extension bill sped through the House today in quick time.

Less than five minutes was required to dispose of the measure. Army spokesmen had urged that the draft machinery be kept intact.

There was no debate—only a brief explanation of the eleven-line bill by Chairman May (D., Ky.) of the Military Committee.

There was not even a vote, passage coming under procedure by which a single objection could have delayed consideration. Absence of an objection automatically passed the bill.

Continued Until May, 1946

The legislation continues in operation until not later than May 15, 1946, the Selective Training and Service Act of 1940 and implementing amendments approved since then.

Should the war on all fronts be over before May 15, 1946, the draft law would be dead. Should it still be raging at that time, an additional extension would have to be considered by Congress.

Prompt Senate consideration of the bill was expected by Administration leaders. They succeeded in keeping out of the House-approved bill all restrictive amendments that had been advocated by many members.

Amendments Possible

The suggested amendments—which still may be considered as separate legislation later—would have required a stated period of training for new inductees before they were sent into combat and would have slapped some home-front manpower controls into the bill.

Backers of the proposed changes withdrew them after spokesmen for the Army told the Military Committee that an unrestricted extension of the draft law was vital to successful prosecution of the war.

The Army, they told the committee, does not intend to send untrained and unqualified men of any age into combat but believes its present training system, which frequently sends a man into the front lines five months after induction, is a sound one.

SENATE REJECTS WILLIAMS, 52 TO 36

Roosevelt Choice for REA Post 'Blackballed' by Lawmakers.

WASHINGTON, March 23—(AP) The Senate rebuffed President Roosevelt today with a 52 to 36 rejection of his nomination of Aubrey Williams as Rural Electrification administrator.

Thirty-three Republicans and 19 Democrats joined to "blackball" the selection of the ardent New Dealer for a job which in the early postwar period may involve lending up to a billion dollars to finance rural electric lines.

36 Favor Williams

Williams, commenting on the Senate action, said "it is time for the people to look into what is happening" here.

Expressing "great pride" in the contest his friends put up, the former National Youth administrator and WPA executive told a reporter:

"I am frank to say that certain things that developed, so far as they indicate what we have in the way of Senatorial minds and attitudes, are pretty disturbing to me."

He expressed particular concern over implications of a speech against his confirmation March 20 by Senator Willis (R-Ind). Willis, quoting Williams as denying he favored redistribution of wealth but favored "redistribution of opportunity," asserted:

"There comes to mind no other phrase that contains so much evil implication, so much weasel-worded deceit as will be found in that expression."

It was the first time since 1939 that a presidential nominee, other than for postmaster, has been rejected by the Senate. That rejection was of a nominee for U. S. Attorney in Nevada.

MAR 24 1945

The Democrats who opposed confirmation of Williams were, by and large, the same group who fought against letting Henry Wallace have control over the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and subsidiary lending agencies.

The administration saved Wallace's nomination for Commerce secretary by agreeing to a divorce of the RFC from the department but had no such "out" on Williams

The rejection means that the President has no choice but to send the Senate another name.

WASHINGTON, March 23—(AP) Here is the vote by which the Senate today rejected the confirmation of Aubrey Williams as Rural Electrification administrator:

For confirmation—(36).

Democrats for:

Barkley, Briggs, Chavez, Downey, Ellender, Green, Guffey, Hatch, Hayden, Hill, Hoey, Johnson (Colo.), Johnston (S.C.), Kilgore, Lucas, Magnuson, Maybank, McFarland, McMahon, Mead, Mitchell, Murdock, Murray, O'Mahoney, Pepper, Taylor, Thomas (Okla.), Thomas (Utah), Tunnell, Wagner, Wheeler—(31).

Republicans for:

Aiken, Langer, Morse, Young—(4).

Progressive for:

LaFollette—(1).

Against confirmation—(32).

Democrats against:

Bailey, Bankhead, Bilbo, Byrd, Chandler, Connally, Eastland, Fulbright, George, Gerry, McCarran, McClellan, McKellar, O'Daniel, Overton, Radcliffe, Russell, Stewart, Tydings—(19).

Republicans against:

Austin, Ball, Brewster, Bridges, Brooks, Buck, Burton, Bushfield, Capehart, Capper, Cordon, Donnell, Ferguson, Gurney, Hart, Hawkes, Hickenlooper, Johnson (Calif.), Millikin, Moore, Reed, Revercomb, Robertson, Saltonsall, Shipstead, Smith, Taft, Vandenberg, Wherry, White, Wiley, Willis, Wilson—(33).

Delayed Independence Urged For Philippines By McNutt

Washington, March 23 (AP)—Paul V. McNutt, former high commissioner to the Philippines, suggested today that independence for the commonwealth be deferred at least until after rehabilitation from the ravages of war.

"If the Filipinos defer the question of independence they are more likely to get a sympathetic reaction from Congress on rehabilitation measures," McNutt said in an interview.

His was the first suggestion for postponement from any high Administration figure.

The Philippine Rehabilitation Commission is now studying extent of war damages in the islands and the commonwealth is expected to put in a claim of nearly a billion dollars. In addition, the Philippine Government may ask for grants from Congress to fill out its depleted treasury which now, according to expert estimates, contains sufficient funds for only about eight months of normal operations.

Trouble Visioned

"If the Philippines step off into an uncharted sea, as some of their leaders seem to be advocating, the islands are clearly destined for trouble," McNutt declared, but acknowledged that "we may have to let the Philippines take their freedom now and learn the hard way."

"It is more than possible that if they get their freedom now, they may never again attain their prewar economic stability and may destine themselves to a permanently lowered standard of living," McNutt said.

The Philippines, under terms of the Tydings-McDuffie Act as originally passed, were to obtain complete independence on July 4, 1946. An amendment, passed during the period of occupation in order to offset Japanese propaganda, permits the President to advance the date of independence if he thinks it proper.

Following return of the Osmena Government to Manila, the independence question has come again to the fore. McNutt consistently has spoken more openly on Philippine matters than any other high United States official. In 1939, while still high commissioner, he first spoke publicly for a "realistic re-examination" of our Philippine policy.

Students of the problem of independence point out that under present law, full United States tariffs would apply to goods sent to this country from an independent Philippines. This would mean, according to these economists, that "probably not a pound of Philippine sugar" would be sent here. Sugar is by far the most important export commodity of the islands and accounts for approximately one third of the national cash income.

Considerable Opposition

Other important export items such as copra and coconut oil could be expected to decline sharply.

To offset this, the Rehabilitation Commission is studying the Philippines' request for a twenty-year period of free trade. It is known this proposal has considerable opposition from some United States commercial interests.

A complicating factor is a treaty which provides that Cuba may send goods to the United States at a tariff twenty per cent lower than applies to the goods of any other country. Thus, economists say, free trade with an independent Philippines would automatically mean free trade with Cuba. United States tobacco, sugar and alcoholic-beverage industries could be expected to oppose any such arrangement.

McNutt said, however, that "free trade might be a political possibility although it depends on the strength of the lobbying interest," which, he declared, "will undoubtedly appear again."

GIANT MARK VI TANKS HAD BEEN ROLLING DIRECTLY FROM THE ASSEMBLY LINES IN THIS PLANT TO THE HUNGARIAN BATTLEFRONTS. CLEAR WEATHER FAVORED THE BOMBERS TODAY AND THE PLANT'S BUILDINGS REPREATEDLY WERE CRISS-CROSSED WITH STRINGS OF EXPLOSIVES.

GERMAN JET PLANES WHICH OPPOSED THE BOMBERS YESTERDAY FAILED TO APPEAR TODAY BUT RETURNING CREWMEN REPORTED INTENSE FLAK AT RUHLAND.

THREE ENEMY ENGINE-POWERED PLANES WERE SHOT DOWN.

A VIVID PICTURE OF THE DEATH THROES OF THE RUHR WAS GIVEN BY TWO LOW-FLYING MUSTANG PILOTS, LIEUTENANTS HOMER POWELL, 3205 NORTHEAST MULTNOMAH, PORTLAND, ORE., AND DALE DUNN, WEST BEND, IOWA.

"THE RUHR VALLEY IS ALL LIT UP, JUST A MASS OF RUIN," SAID POWELL. "THE HEART OF CITIES ARE DEAD. I DON'T SEE HOW THEY COULD MOVE ANYTHING OUT OF THAT BLAZING DEATHTRAP EXCEPT BY HORSE AND BUGGY AT NIGHT."

DUNN SAID "EVERYTHING EAST OF THE RHINE IN THE RUHR IS BURNING. RIGHT OVER THE DUESSELDORF AREA THERE WAS A SOLID OVERCAST 10,000 FEET HIGH, THE RESULT OF SMOKE FROM HUNDREDS OF RAGING FIRES. ALL ALL AFTERNOON THERE WAS A STEADY STREAM OF PLANES FROM HEAVIES DOWN TO FIGHTERS GOING IN AND OUT, SMASHING UP THE RUHR FROM HIGH AND MEDIUM ALTITUDE AND DIVEBOMBING EVERYTHING. EVERY TIME I TURNED MY HEAD THERE WERE MORE BOMBS RAINING DOWN ON ANOTHER PLACE AND MORE SMOKE AND FIRE BOILING UP."

AMERICAN BOMBER CREWS ATTACKING TWO CHOKED RAILYARDS IN THE RUHR TOLD OF MEETING HEAVY FLAK.

THE ALLIED LOSSES SO FAR ANNOUNCED, BOTH FROM BRITAIN AND THE CONTINENT, INCLUDING ITALY, WERE 31 BOMBERS AND SEVEN FIGHTERS.

THE 15TH AIR FORCE FROM ITALY SENT A RECORD FORCE OF HEAVY BOMBERS TO ATTACK FOR THE SECOND TIME THE RUHLAND OIL REFINERY BUT 55 MILES SOUTH OF BERLIN.

FOR THE FIRST TIME THE HEAVY BOMBERS FROM ITALY HAD A LARGE SCALE ENCOUNTER WITH GERMANY'S JET-PROPELLED FIGHTERS, AND 25 HEAVY BOMBERS WERE LOST. A HEADQUARTERS ANNOUNCEMENT SAID RECONNAISSANCE SHOWED THE RUHLAND PLANT WAS "KNOCKED OUT AT LEAST TEMPORARILY."

TWO OF THE 35 JETS MAKING THE ATTACK WERE SHOT DOWN.

THE SOUTHERN ALLIED AIR FORCE ALSO BOMBED OIL REFINERIES AT KRALUPY IN CZECHOSLOVAKIA, FLORI SDORF, NEAR VIENNA IN AUSTRIA, AND RAIL AND ROAD COMMUNICATIONS AT ENNA AND VILLACH.

ON THE RIVER'S SOUTH BANK, OPPERSDORF, FIVE MILES SOUTHEAST OF NEISSE, WAS CAPTURED, LEAVING THE NAZI GARRISON WITH A SEVEN-MILE ESCAPE GAP AND WITH FOUR ROAD AND TWO RAILROAD ESCAPE ROUTES TO THE SOUTH.

TWENTY-EIGHT MILES SOUTHEAST OF NEISSE AND THREE MILES WEST OF THE MORAVIAN FRONTIER, RUSSIAN TANKS AND INFANTRY HURLED A NINE-MILE SEIGE ARC AROUND LOEBSCHUETZ AND IN ADVANCES OF THREE MILES WON SCHLEGENBERG, TWO MILES NORTHWEST, AND BADEWITZ, TWO MILES SOUTH.

THE ENEMY CLAIMED 143 RUSSIAN TANKS HAD BEEN KNOCKED OUT IN GERMAN COUNTER-ATTACKS AS KONEV TURNED THE SOUTHERNMOST ELEMENTS OF HIS ARMY DOWN THE 25-MILE GAP BETWEEN THE SUDETEN FOOTHILLS AND THE ODER AT RATIBOR.

AIR OFFENSIVE

BY HENRY B.JAMESON

LONDON, MARCH 23-(AP)-CONTINUOUS DAY AND NIGHT BOMBING OF GERMANY AT THE RATE OF 274 TONS OF EXPLOSIVES AN HOUR IS TURNING THE REICH INTO CHAOS IN PREPARATION FOR A KNOCKOUT BLOW FROM THE GROUND.

SINCE THE BIG AERIAL OFFENSIVE STARTED THREE WEEKS AGO, ALLIED BOMBERS HAVE HIT GERMANY WITH MORE THAN TWICE THE TONNAGE OF BOMBS DROPPED ON ENGLAND SINCE THE START OF THE WAR.

THE TERRIFIC DEVASTATION IS ALMOST BEYOND COMPREHENSION, BUT THE RELENTLESS FLAILING OF EVERY TYPE OF MILITARY OBJECTIVE FROM THE SMALLEST CROSSROADS TO BERLIN ITSELF UNQUESTIONABLY HAS MADE THE WAY EASIER FOR THE DOUGHBOYS, AS GEN. EISENHOWER HAS DECLARED.

DURING THE PAST 10 DAYS OF THIS GREATEST AIR BLITZ IN HISTORY THE INDUSTRIAL RUHR VALLEY AND THE VAST ROLLING RHINE PLAIN HAVE BEEN SYSTEMATICALLY ISOLATED FROM THE REST OF THE REICH AND DEPRIVED OF RAIL AND HIGHWAY MOVEMENT NECESSARY TO RESIST A FULL-SCALE GROUND ASSAULT. AS THE GREAT BOMBARDMENT REACHES ITS APEX ITS CHIEF SIGNIFICANCES LIES IN THE TREMENDOUS DISORGANIZING EFFECT WHICH IT HAS HAD UPON COMMUNICATIONS ACROSS THE RHINE.

FIGURES ON THE NUMBER OF PLANES PARTICIPA[illegible] HAVE REACHED ALMOST ASTRONOMICAL FIGURES. WHEN THE GERMANS PUT 500 AIRCRAFT OVER LONDON ONE DAY BACK IN 1940 IT WAS REGARDED AS A TREMENDOUS BLITZ. TODAY WITH FLEETS OF 7,000 OR 8,000 ALLIED PLANES ALOFT, 500 AIRCRAFT HARDLY CONSTITUTE A GOOD SIZED ESCORT FORCE.

SINCE THE FIRST OF THE MONTH THE ALLIES HAVE SENT AN AVERAGE OF 4,000 PLANES OVER THE REICH A DAY A TOTAL OF ABOUT 92,000 INDIVIDUAL FLIGHTS. OF THIS TOTAL, ABOUT 21,350 HAVE BEEN FLOWN BY U.S. HEAVY BOMBERS.

THE U.S. EIGHTH AND NINTH AIR FORCES, THE RAF BOMBER COMMAND AND THE SECOND TACTICAL AIR FORCE HAVE DROPPED APPROXIMATELY 145,000 TONS OF BOMBS IN THIS PERIOD. SINCE THE BEGINNING OF THE WAR THE GERMANS HAVE HIT ENGLAND WITH ONLY 70,000 TONS--INCLUDING FLYING BOMBS.

A DETAILED EXAMINATION OF COLOGNE PROVES HOW A GREAT CITY CAN BE THROWN COMPLETELY OUT OF GEAR AND MADE ALMOST HELPLESS BY CONSTANT BOMBING. SO FAR AS THE WAR EFFORT WAS CONCERNED IT WAS A DEAD CITY WHEN ALLIED TROOPS ARRIVED.

DUESSELDORF WAS REPORTED EVEN MORE COMPLETELY DESTROYED. OTHER GREAT INDUSTRIAL CITIES, INCLUDING HAMBURG, BREMEN, ESSEN, DORTMUND, DRESDEN, CHEMNITZ AND FRANKFURT, HAVE BEEN ALMOST AS BADLY BATTERED.

THE ONLY WAY OF JUDGING THE DEVASTATION IN BERLIN IS FROM RECONNAISSANCE PHOTOS AND REPORTS FILTERING THROUGH SWEDEN AND SWITZERLAND. ALL SOURCES AGREE, HOWEVER, THAT A VAST SECTION OF THE GERMAN CAPITAL IS IN RUINS. THE VERY HEART OF THE CITY, WHERE THE MAIN RAILROAD STATIONS ARE LOCATED, PROBABLY HAS BEEN HARDEST HIT.

THE CURRENT AERIAL ASSAULT IN PREPARATION FOR THE DRIVE ACROSS THE RHINE HAS UNFOLDED IN SEVERAL PHASES. FIRST THERE WAS A STEADY 'ROUND THE CLOCK BLASTING OF MAIN RAILWAY CENTERS. DOVETAILED IN WITH THIS WERE FREQUENT RAIDS AIMED AT KEEPING OIL REFINERIES AND WAR FACTORIES OUT OF COMMISSION.

THEN CAME A SERIES OF WIDESPREAD BLOWS TO KNOCK OUT ALL REMAINING AIRFIELDS ON THE WESTERN FRONT, FOLLOWED BY YESTERDAY'S SPECTACULAR ATTACKS DIRECTED AT GERMAN TROOPS THEMSELVES.

RAILWAYS AND OIL REFINERIES WERE HIT REPEATEDLY, FOR THE GERMANS EXERTED EVERY EFFORT TO REPAIR THEM AS FAST AS THEY WERE KNOCKED OUT. THE NAZIS, HOWEVER, HAVE BEEN UNABLE TO COPE WITH THE SWELLING CRESCENDO OF BOMBS.

IN FRANCE NAZI COMMUNICATIONS WERE HAMSTRUNG BY METHODICAL BOMBING OF LARGER RAILWAY YARDS, LOCOMOTIVE DEPOTS AND REPAIR SHEDS. IT WAS A BIGGER PROBLEM IN GERMANY, WHERE THERE WERE MORE SECONDARY LINES.

HOWEVER, THE NERVE CENTER OF THE WHOLE RAILWAY SYSTEM FEEDING THE WESTERN FRONT LINES WITHIN A COMPARATIVELY SMALL AREA OF THE RUHR AND MIDDLE RHINELAND DISTRICTS. EVERY CITY IN THE AREA IS A RAILROAD CENTER, AND THUS EVERY CITY BECAME A PRIME TARGET.

THROUGHOUT THE PRESENT INTUNSIVE AERIAL CAMPAIGN GERMAN AIR OPPOSITION HAS BEEN VIRTUALLY NIL. DESPITE THE VAST NUMBERS OF PLANES INVOLVED, AMERICAN LOSSES SINCE MARCH 1 HAVE BEEN 134 BOMBERS AND 73 FIGHTERS, WHILE 200 BRITISH BOMBERS AND FIGHTERS HAVE BEEN REPORTED MISSING.

MORE THAN 500 OF GERMANY'S WEAK RESERVE OF FIGHTER PLANES HAVE BEEN DESTROYED IN THE AIR OR ON THE GROUND.

EXCEPT FOR A FEW JET PLANE FACTORIES OPERATING ON A LIMITED SCALE AND FOR UNDERGROUND SHOPS WHOSE PRODUCTION CAPACITY IS UNKNOWN, THE GERMAN AIRCRAFT INDUSTRY HAS BEEN VIRTUALLY BOMBED OUT OF EXISTENCE.

LONDON, MARCH 23-(AP)-A FASCIST BROADCAST, APPARENTLY EMANATING FROM NORTHERN ITALY, CARRIED A SPEECH TONIGHT PURPORTING TO BE BY BENITO MUSSOLINI EXHORTING THE ITALIANS TO "THINK OF WHERE WE WERE AND WHERE WE INTEND TO RETURN."

THE SPEECH WAS READ BY AN ANNOUNCER WHO SAID MUSSOLINI HAD RETURNED TO HIS HEADQUARTERS.

MUSSOLINI WAS QUOTED AS SAYING:

"HISTORY HAS GOT US BY THE THROAT AND CONFRONTED US WITH DIFFICULT PROBLEMS. FIVE YEARS AGO THE TRICOLOR WAS FLYING AT ADDIS ABABA. TODAY NEGROES STAND ON THE SOIL OF TUSCANY. IT WOULD BE BETTER TO DIE THAN TO BEAR THIS. WE MUST CONVINCE OUR ENEMIES THERE ARE MANY ITALIAN WHO WILL NEVER SUBMIT TO TREACHERY."

GERMAN LINES WERE SAGGING ACROSS THE RHINE AT A CRITICAL HOUR, FOR ALLIED BOMBERS WERE SMASHING AT ALL AVENUES OF SUPPLY OR RETREAT ON THE NORTH GERMAN PLAIN IN THE PATH OF FIELD MARSHAL MONTGOMERY'S GATHERING FORCES.

THE U.S.THIRD AND SEVENTH ARMIES, CRUSHING THE PALATINATE BULGE, OVERRAN ONE MAIN ESCAPE HATCH FOR THE BEATEN GERMANS AT SPEYER, AND WERE 11 MILES OR LESS FROM THE FINAL ONE AT KARLSRUHE.

MAR 24 1945

A14

THUS ALL GEN.EISENHOWER'S SEVEN VETERAN ARMIES WERE ON THE RHINE AN BRADLEY DISCLOSED THAT AN EIGHTH, THE NEW U.S. 15TH ARMY, WAS READY TO TAKE ITS PLACE IN THE LINE OF BATTLE.

THE ENEMY REPORT THAT THE THIRD ARMY ALREADY HAD CROSSED THE RHINE SOUTH OF CONQUERED MAINZ--WHICH IS ABOUT AS FAR FROM BERLIN AS THE LENGTH OF PENNSYLVANIA--WAS 22 MILES NORTH OF WHERE THE GERMAN COMMUN-IQUE SAID THE THIRD HAD TRIED TO CROSS THURSDAY IN THE AREA EAST OF FRANKENTHAL.

BETWEEN THESE TWO POINTS, THE ENEMY SAID, FEVERISH PREPARATIONS FOR CROSSING WERE IN PROGRESS BEHIND CLOUDS OF ARTIFICIAL FOG.

PATROLS WERE LASHING OUT FROM BOTH SIDES ACROSS THE RHINE, ESPECIAL LY WERE OF WESEL ON MONTGOMERY'S FRONT, WHERE A 56-MILE SMOKE SCREEN SHROUDED HIS MOVES FROM THE ANXIOUS EYES OF TWO GERMAN ARMIES WAITING ON THE RIVER'S RIGHT BANK.

FRONT CORRESPONDENTS LIKENED THESE MOVES TO THE PREPARATIONS IN ADVANCE OF D-DAY LAST JUNE.

"THE RHINE IS OUR BOMB LINE AND EVERYTHING EAST IS A TARGET," SAID A CORRESPONDENT FROM THE CANADIAN FIRST ARMY FRONT, WHERE AN OMINOUS LULL HAS SETTLED, BROKEN ONLY BY THE OCCASIONAL BLASTS OF ARTILLERY, DUELLING ACROSS THE RIVER.

THE GERMANS WERE DIGGING ZIG-ZAG TRENCHES SUCH AS THOSE USED IN THE FIRST WORLD WAR.

NOW THE GERMANS HAD TO CONTEND WITH THE EXPLOSIVE POWER OF THE U.S FIRST, THIRD, SEVENTH AND FRENCH FIRST ARMIES, WHICH WITH THE BRITISH SECOND, THE CANADIAN FIRST AND U.S.NINTH RULED THE RHINE'S WEST BANK ALMOST ALL THE WAY FROM SWITZERLAND TO THE SEA.

THE GERMANS, APPREHENSIVE OF WHAT LT.GEN.GEORGE S.PATTON'S AGGRESS-IVE THIRD ARMY MIGHT DO, ALSO REPORTED HE WAS BLASTING AT THE EAST BA "VALHALLA LINE" WITH ARTILLERY.

IN BRADLEY'S WORDS, GERMAN FIELD MARSHAL ALBERT KESSELRING HAD ARRIVED AT "A BAD TIME" ON THE WESTERN FRONT TO TAKE OVER COMMAND FRO THE BEATEN FIELD MARSHAL KARL VON RUNDSTEDT.

THE GERMANS, SAID BRADLEY, LOST 233,010 MEN SINCE FEB.8 IN PRISONE ALONE IN THE GREAT ALLIED DRIVE TO THE RHINE WHICH OVERRAN 9,600 SQUA MILES OF GERMAN TERRITORY WITH A POPULATION OF 5,415,000 AND WITH 47 CITIES HAVING POPULATIONS OF MORE THAN 10,000 EACH.

WHETHER THE GERMANS CAN RECUPERATE FROM SUCH A BLOW, BRADLEY DE-CLINED TO PREDICT, BUT HE PROPOSED CAUTION, SAYING THE WAR "MAY BE AL MOST OVER" OR IT "MAY LAST A LONG TIME."

LT.GEN.COURTNEY H.HODGES' FIRST ARMY BRIDGEHEAD FORCES POURED ARMO AND INFANTRY SOUTHWARD ACROSS THE WIED RIVER ON A 14-MILE FRONT, AND SEIZED NEUWIED, A CITY OF 20,000, SIX AND A HALF MILES NORTH OF THIRD ARMY'S WEST BANK POSITIONS AT COBLENZ.

WHILE THIS SOUTHWARD PUSH WAS PAVING A WAY FOR THIRD ARMY RHINE CROSSINGS TO SOIL IN FRIENDLY HANDS, THE 78TH INFANTRY DIVISION AND MECHANIZED CAVALRY ON THE NORTH CLEARED HENEF AND THEREBY GOT A 10-MILE GRIP ON THE SIEG RIVER.

MAR 24 1945

ASSOCIATED PRESS CORRESPONDENT DON WHITEHEAD SAID THE WIDTH AND DEPTH OF THE POSITIONS, COMBINED WITH THE STRENGTH MUSTERED, VIRTUALLY ENDED THE BRIDGEHEAD PHASE OF THE OPERATION AND MADE IT A SOLID FRONT ACROSS THE RHINE.

THE TEMPORARY BRIDGES ACROSS WHICH MEN AND MACHINES HAVE FUNNELED NOW WERE NEARLY OUT OF LONG RANGE NAZI ARTILLERY FIRE.

INFANTRY MOVING NEARLY A MILE EAST OF THE SUPER-HIGHWAY LEADING TO THE RUHR--MET LITTLE OPPOSITION AS THEY BROADENED TO 17 MILES THEIR CONTROL OF THE ROAD.

ON THE SOUTH, WHITEHEAD SAID THE 99TH INFANTRY DIVISION WAS ACROSS THE WIED RIVER TO A DEPTH OF MORE THAN A MILE, AND HAD TAKEN AT LEAST FIVE PLACES BEYOND THE RIVER, ROSSBACH, HOCHSCHEID, WALDBRIETBACH, WUSCHEID AND NIEDERBREITBACH, ALL NORTH OF NEUWIED.

THE U.S.THIRD AND SEVENTH ARMIES WERE RUSHING IN FOR THE KILL WEST OF THE RHINE.

PATTON'S FORCES WERE DISCLOSED TO HAVE SEALED OFF IN THEIR RHINEWARD DRIVE AN ESTIMATED 10,000 GERMANS IN A SMALL POCKET EIGHT MILES NORTH OF FALL WORMS.

DRIVE AN ESTIMATED 10,000 GERMANS IN A SMALL POCKET EIGHT MILES NORTH OF FALLEN WORMS. IT WAS AT WORMS THAT THE SEVENTH ARMY FIRST REACHED THE RHINE AFTER ITS SIXTH ARMORED DIVISION MADE A 60-MILE DASH IN 19 HOURS, IT WAS DISCLOSED OFFICIALLY DURING THE DAY.

SPEYER FELL WITH ONLY SCATTERED RESISTANCE WITH A FIVE-MILE ADVANCE BY AN ARMORED COLUMN.

THE TENTH ARMORED DIVISION, WHICH KNOCKED OUT THE SIEGFRIED ANCHOR OF LANDAU, SPEARED EIGHT MILES SOUTHEASTWARD TO WITHIN 11 MILES OF KARLSRUHE, THE LAST GOOD GERMAN-HELD CROSSING POINT.

THE SIEGFRIED'S WESTERN ANCHOR OF PIRMASENS, A CITY OF 47,200, FELL TO THE SEVENTH ARMY'S 71ST INFANTRY DIVISION, AND THE NAZI LINE WAS ROLLED EASTWARD UNTIL NOW IT IS LITTLE MORE THAN 10 MILES LONG.

IN THAT SECTOR, THE THIRD AND SEVENTH ARMIES WERE AS CLOSE AS THREE MILES TO ANOTHER UNION. THE GERMANS, BEING SQUEEZED EASTWARD, NOW HOLD ABOUT 18 MILES OF THE RHINE'S WEST BANK.

A16

MAR 24 1945

THE LAST RESISTANCE WAS CRUSHED IN MAINZ, WHERE 3,000 PRISONERS WERE TAKEN BY THE 90TH INFANTRY IN THIS CITY IN THE ELBOW OF THE RHINE. MAINZ IS THE CAPITAL OF RHENISH HESSE, WITH A PEACE-TIME POPULATION OF 160,000.

SOUTHWARD, THE 94TH INFANTRY DIVISION, MOPPING UP THE BIG CHEMICAL CENTER OF LUDWIGSHAFEN, CLEARED THE ENEMY FROM THE SOUTHWESTERN SUBURBS OF RHEINGONGEN.

THE TENTH ARMORED DIVISION ALONG OVERRAN A GERMAN COLUMN AND TOOK 3,000 PRISONERS. THE THIRD ARMY TOOK 10,020 PRISONERS THURSDAY.

LT.GEN.ALEXANDER M.PATCH'S SEVENTH ARMY WAS CRASHING THROUGH THE TOUGH CRUST OF RESISTANCE WHICH HAD HELD HIS FORCES IN CHECK WHILE THE THIRD ARMY BROKE THROUGH FROM THE NORTH.

WHILE THE SIEGFRIED LINE WAS BEING ROLLED UP FROM THE WEST, THE 36TH DIVISION AFTER TWO DAYS OF BITTER FIGHTING CAPTURED BERGZABERN, A LINE PIVOT FIVE MILES NORTH OF THE FRENCH FRONTIER CITY OF WISSEM-BOURG.

THIS LAID BARE A 15-MILE FLANK OF THE THICKLY-SOWN DRAGONS TEETH

THE SIEGFRIED LINE, AND ARMOR, INFANTRY AND ARTILLERY POURED AROUND IT.

THE 103RD INFANTRY WAS REPORTED AT THE OUTSKIRTS OF KLINGENMUSTER, FIVE MILES SOUTHWARD OF LANDAU, WHERE IT WAS LESS THAN THREE MILES FROM A JUNCTION WITH THE 36TH DIVISION, WHICH WOULD CLOSE A RING AROUND ANNWEILER FOREST.

THE 42ND DIVISION CRASHED THROUGH THE SIEGFRIED LINE FARTHER WEST AGAINST LITTLE RESISTANCE, TAKING DAHN AND BUSENBERG, 10 MILES SOUTHEAST OF PIRMASENS.

THE 14TH ARMORED DIVISION WAS ENGAGED IN SOME OF THE STIFFEST FIGHTING AT STEINFELD, 15 MILES WEST OF KARLSRUHE, WHERE THE GERMANS WERE HOLDING OPEN THEIR LAST ROUTES ACROSS THE RHINE.

SEVERELY DAMAGED, MAINZ WAS THE LARGEST CITY YET CAPTURED BY PATTON'S THIRD ARMY. SCARCELY 100 BUILDINGS WERE INTACT. IT IS THE 35TH LARGEST IN GERMANY AND WAS ONE OF THE MAIN GERMAN FORTRESSES ON THE LEFT BANK OF THE RHINE. IT IS A RAIL CENTER AT THE CONFLUENCE OF THE MAIN WITH THE RHINE.

IT WAS THE LAST OF THE ALLIES' OCCUPATION CENTERS OF THE LAST WAR TO BE CAPTURED. THE FRENCH USED MAINZ; THE AMERICANS COBLENZ AND THE BRITISH USED COLOGNE.

THE ROMANS ETTLED MAINZ BETWEEN 14 AND 9 B.C., AND GUTENBERG, INVENTOR OF THE PRINTING PRESS, WAS BORN THERE IN 1395. IT WAS HEADQUARTERS OF THE RHENISH WINE TRADE AND HAD NUMEROUS PLANTS MANUFACTURING CHEMICALS. CARS. LEATHER AND FURNITURE.

GEN.EISENHOWER, IN A STATEMENT BROADCAST REPEATEDLY BY ALLIED STATIONS, WARNED THE RUHR'S ARMAMENT WORKERS TO FLEE FOR THEIR LIVES--OUT OF THE PATH OF THE ALLIED ADVANCE INTO GERMANY.

FIELD DISPATCHES SAID THE BUILD-UP ALONG THE SECTION OF THE RHINE FROM DUESSELDORF NORTH--GUARDED BY THE U.S.NINTH, BRITISH SECOND AND CANADIAN FIRST ARMIES--WAS THE GREATEST SINCE THE LANDINGS IN NORMANDY.

A BERLIN BROADCAST LAST NIGHT SAID FIELD MARSHAL MONTGOMERY'S 21ST ARMY GROUP ARTILLERY HAD OPENED UP A HEAVY BARRAGE ACROSS THE RHINE AGAINST THE WESEL AREA. SUCH A BARRAGE OFTEN SIGNALS THE START OF AN OFFENSIVE, BUT THE GERMANS THIS MORNING REPORTED NO FIGHTING OF ANY SIGNIFICANCE HAD YET TAKEN PLACE.

THE GERMAN REPORT DESCRIBED THE AREA WEST OF WESEL AS THE FOCAL POINT FOR THE 21ST ARMY GROUP'S "PREPARATIONS FOR A BIG RHINE CROSSING ONSLAUGHT." WESEL IS A STRONG HINGE IN THE ENEMY'S DEFENSES BARRING ENTRANCE TO THE RUHR AND THE NORTHERN PLAIN LEADING TO THE GERMAN CAPITAL.

IN THE SOUTH, WHERE THE U.S.THIRD AND SEVENTH ARMIES ARE CLEANING UP THE SAAR AND PALATINATE IN THE FINAL PHASE OF A BATTLE THAT HAS COST THE GERMANS 100,000 CAPTIVES ALONE, LT.GEN.GEORGE S.PATTON'S FORCES WERE DECLARED BY BERLIN TO HAVE CONCENTRATED ABOUT 300 TANKS--MANY OF THEM AMPHIBIOUS--"IN PREPARATION FOR A RHINE CROSSING."

THIRD ARMY STRATEGISTS WERE FREE TO PLAN SUCH A CROSSING, FOR POSSIBLY NO MORE THAN 4,000 GERMAN EFFECTIVES REMAINED IN ACTION WEST OF THE RHINE. MOST OF THESE WERE TRYING DESPERATELY TO GET BACK ACROSS THE STREAM.

EXCELLENT WEATHER FAVORED OPERATIONS. MORE THAN 8,000 ALLIED BOMBERS AND FIGHTERS STRUCK FROM THE AIR YESTERDAY IN THE MIGHTIEST DAWN TO DUSK ASSAULT EVER DEALT GERMANY. COUNTLESS FIRES THREW A VIRTUAL SMOKE SCREEN OVER THE ENTIRE RUHR.

A POTENTIAL THREAT TO THE RUHR ALREADY IS DEVELOPING FROM THE SOUTH AS THE U.S.FIRST ARMY EXPANDS ITS REMAGEN BRIDGEHEAD NORTHWARD. THE FIRST NOW HOLDS AT LEAST NINE MILES OF THE SOUTH BANK OF THE SIEG RIVER NORTHEAST OF BONN WITHIN A DOZEN MILES OF THE RUHR'S SOUTH RIM.

(IN A BROADCAST HEARD BY NBC THE AMERICAN BROADCASTING STATION IN EUROPE SAID LAST NIGHT THAT THE YANKS HAD CROSSED THE SIEG AND CAPTURED SIEGBURG, A CITY OF 20,000.)

THE FIRST ARMY HAS EXPANDED ITS HOLD ON THE RHINE'S EAST BANK TO 31 MILES. IN THE SOUTH, THE BRIDGEHEAD EXTENDED TO WITHIN SEVEN AND ONE-HALF MILES OF COBLENZ, ON THE WEST BANK, WHERE THE THIRD ARMY SITS IN FIRM CONTROL.

AS THE PICTURE OF GENERAL GERMAN DISASTER BROADENED, A REPORT FROM 21ST ARMY GROUP HEADQUARTERS SAID FIELD MARSHAL ALBERT KESSELRING HAD REPLACED FIELD MARSHAL KARL VON RUNDSTEDT AS GERMAN COMMANDER IN THE WEST.

A21

KESSELRING HAS BEEN COMMANDER IN ITALY, WHERE HIS TROOPS HAVE STALLED THE ALLIES BELOW BOLOGNA ALL WINTER.

IT WAS SAID AT SUPREME HEADQUARTERS LAST NIGHT THAT ALLIED AIRCRAFT IN A RECENT ATTACK HAD VIRTUALLY REDUCED VON RUNDSTEDT'S HEADQUARTERS TO RUBBLE.

BERGZABERN, GERMANY, MARCH 23-(AP)-DISILLUSIONED GERMAN CIVILIANS OVERRUN BY THE AMERICAN DRIVE TO THE RHINE ARE SIXK OF THE WAR AND KNOW IT'S LOST--AND SOME ARE EVEN HOSTILE TO THEIR OWN SOLDIERS.

"FRENCH FORCED LABORERS SAY A DEFINITE ANIMOSITY WAS SHOWN BY SOME CIVILIANS AFTER AMERICANS OCCUPIED TOWNS SOUTH OF HERE AND THEN WERE DRIVEN OUT BY THE GERMAN COUNTEROFFENSIVE," SAID CAPT. NORMAN COHEN, 141ST REGIMENT MILITARY GOVERNMENT OFFICER FROM LONG BRANCH, N.J.

"THE FRENCHMEN SAID THE CIVILIANS FOUND THEY WERE WELL TREATED BY AMERICAN TROOPS, WHEREAS WHEN THE GERMAN SOLDIERS RETURNED THEY WERE GUILTY OF LOOTING AND ARROGANCE, PERHAPS TO COVER THEIR WEAKNESS.

"FOR EXAMPLE, ONE FRENCHMAN WHO WORKED IN THE VILLAGE OF OBER OTTERBACH SAID INNKEEPERS HAD IMPOSED A STRICT WINE RATION OF TWO GLASSES PER DAY TO GERMAN SOLDIERS, BUT WOULD GIVE FRENCHMEN FOUR OR FIVE.

"FRENCHMEN SAW MANY OTHER SLY DISCRIMINATIONS AGAINST THE GERMAN SOLDIERS, PARTLY IN RESENTMENT AGAINST THE LATTER'S CONDUCT AND PERHAPS PARTLY AS AN INDIRECT PROTEST AGAINST WAR SYMBOLIZED BY THE UNIFORMS."

"THERE IS NO DOUBT THESE PEOPLE KNOW THEY ARE WELL LICKED," SAID MAJ. GRADY DURHAM, JACKSON BARRACKS, NEW ORLEANS, LA.

"THEY ARE COMPLETELY DOCILE AND DO ANYTHING THEY ARE TOLD WITHOUT QUESTION. WHILE MANY ARE TRYING TO BE FRIENDLY, IT MUST BE REMEMBERED THE CIVILIANS WE ARE DEALING WITH USUALLY ARE THOSE LEAST ACTIVE IN THE PARTY AND IN THE WAR, BECAUSE THE OTHERS NATURALLY FLED FIRST.

"FOR EXAMPLE, IN THIS TOWN ONLY ABOUT 1,500 OF THE 4,800 POPULATION REMAINED BEHIND, OFFICIALS AND POLICE HAVING BEEN EVACUATED DAYS AGO ALONG WITH THE LEADING NAZIS.

"MANY NOW ARE VERY WILLING TO DENOUNCE HITLER AND ALL HE STANDS FOR, BUT ALL THAT HAS BEEN TAKEN WITH A VERY LARGE GRAIN OF SALT, OF COURSE."

CAPT. PHILIP BROADHEAD, 27 FAIRVIEW AVE., WILLOW GROVE, PA., SAID BERGZABERN WAS UNUSUAL IN THAT THE MAYOR'S EXECUTIVE ASSISTANT HAD REMAINED BEHIND. "PERHAPS BECAUSE HE HAS BEEN IN THAT JOB FOR 36 YEARS UNDER THREE KINDS OF GOVERNMENT AND DIDN'T WANT TO LEAVE."

THIS GERMAN HAS BEEN MADE RESPONSIBLE FOR THE GOOD CONDUCT OF HIS PEOPLE AND FOR FEEDING HUNDREDS OF FRENCHMEN WITH A SPRINKLING OF POLES AND RUSSIANS, WHO HAVE BEEN FREED FROM FORCED LABOR GANGS.

BERGZABERN IS SO WELL SUPPLIED WITH FOOD THAT THE ACTING MAYOR ESTIMATED THE TOWN WOULD BE ABLE TO LIVE A WEEK WITHOUT ANY FRESH SUPPLIES.

MAR 24 1945

AS USUAL IN THE CASE OF CAPTURED TOWNS, WHEN BROADHEAD CAME IN THIS MORNING A FEW HOURS AFTER IT WAS TAKEN HE FOUND CIVILIANS ALL MILLING AROUND THE STREETS.

THEY WERE ORDERED BACK TO THEIR HOMES AND WILL REMAIN THERE UNTIL CURFEW HOURS ARE DECIDED UPON. AFTER THAT FOR A CONSIDERABLE TIME THEY PROBABLY WILL BE ALLOWED IN THE STREETS ONLY TWO OR THREE HOURS A DAY.

PRISONERS, WHO AS LT. COL. E.R.REESE OF HOUSTON, TEX., SAID WERE "STREAMING IN FROM ALL DIRECTIONS", WERE A WELL BEATEN UP BUNCH.

"ONLY NAZI FANATICS STILL SAY THEY ARE GOING TO WIN THE WAR," SAID CAPT. H.E.WAGNER, AMBRIDGE, PA., "AND CONFESSED NAZIS ARE GETTING RARER AND RARER."

A MEDIUM-SIZED, INTELLIGENT-LOOKING GERMAN INFANTRYMAN WITH GRAYISH HAIR AND STEEL-RIMMED GLASSES, SAID HE WAS 42 YEARS OLD AND WAS A REGULAR ARMY SOLDIER OF SEVERAL YEARS SERVICE. HIS COMMENT WAS TYPICAL.

"AFTER WHAT I'VE SEEN," HE SAID, "I CAN HAVE NO DOUBT WE HAVE LOST."

HIS REFERENCE WAS TO MASSES OF AMERICAN MEN AND EQUIPMENT WHICH WERE FLOWING THROUGH TOWN IN CLOUDS OF DUST AFTER ROLLING THROUGH THE SIEGFRIED FORTIFICATIONS, WHERE ALMOST EVERY PILLBOX WAS TOPPED BY A WHITE FLAG.

"THIS DOESN'T MEAN THE GERMAN ARMY IS READY TO QUIT," WAGNER SAID. "THEY ARE USED TO OBEYING ORDERS, AND THEY KEEP ON OBEYING THEM BECAUSE THEY DON'T KNOW WHAT ELSE TO DO. BUT VERY FEW OF THEM HAVE THEIR HEARTS IN IT NOW."

BACKED BY A GREAT CONCENTRATION OF AIR MIGHT, ALLIED TROOPS HAVE AN ELATED CONFIDENCE NOT SURPASSED EVEN IN PRE-INVASION DAYS.

FOR THEN THEY WERE ON THE START OF THE MILL. NOW THEY FEEL THEY ARE ABOUT TO LAUNCH THE FINAL OFFENSIVE WHICH WILL STRANGLE THE GERMAN ARMY.

BETWEEN THE BANKS OF THE MAAS AND THE RHINE IN A GREAT STOREHOUSE OF WAR MATERIAL. IN UNCEASING, ENDLESS CONVOYS, IMPLEMENTS FOR CARRYING THE FIGHT ACROSS THE RHINE INTO THE HEART OF GERMANY ARE BEING BROUGHT TO THE FORWARD AREAS.

ROADSIDES, FIELDS, WOODS, HOUSES AND LARGER STRUCTURES ARE CRAMMED WITH GOODS WHICH SPELL THE END OF HITLER. AND FACING THE ENEMY IS A GREAT ARRAY OF ARTILLERY WHICH HAS BEEN POUNDING HIM CEASELESSLY ALONG WITH ALMOST CONTINUOUS AIR BOMBARDMENT.

WHAT ELSE? MUCH, MUCH MORE. HUNDREDS OF TANKS, TANK DESTROYERS AND MORTAR GUNS AND THOUSANDS OF FIRST-CLASS, EAGER, IMPATIENT TROOPS.

EVERY TYPE OF ASSAULT BOAT THAT CAN BE USED IS READY TO TRANSPORT TROOPS AND EQUIPMENT ACROSS THE RHINE. THEY ARE THERE--HIDDEN BEHIND A THICK, SWIRLING IMPENETRABLE SMOKE SCREEN WHICH STRETCHES MANY MILES.

ALL THE TROOPS--CANUCKS, TOMMIES AND GI JOES--ARE ANXIOUS TO GET STARTED.

BUT PERHAPS THE BRITISH HAVE JUST A LITTLE GREATER SPUR.

"FIVE AND A HALF YEARS I HAVE WAITED FOR THIS," SAID ONE LAD, "FIVE AND A HALF YEARS DURING WHICH WE WERE KICKED IN THE TEETH, PUNCHED IN THE BELLY AND SOCKED ON THE HEAD--BUT NEVER KNOCKED OUT. THE SCENE WAS THE CUSTOMS HOUSE ARCH HERE, SEVERAL HUNDRED FEET INSIDE THE GERMAN BORDER.

MAJ.GEN.JOHN W.DAHLQUIST OF MINNEAPOLIS, MINN., DIVISION COMMANDER, WAS SCHEDULED TO OFFICIATE BUT HE WAS BUSY DIRECTING A TWO-PRONGED ATTACK ON DUERRENBACH AND BERGZABERN, AND A NATIVE TEXAN TOOK OVER THE CEREMONY.

HE WAS MAJ.ARMIN PUCK OF 2166 WEST KINGS HIGHWAY, SAN ANTONIO, TEX., PROVOST MARSHAL WHO HAS BEEN IN THE DIVISION SINCE 1932 AND WAS CAPTAIN OF THE COLOR GUARD WHEN STEVENSON PRESENTED THE FLAG.

FOR PUCK, A FORMER SAN ANTONIO AND SPRINGFIELD,ILL., INSURANCE EXECUTIVE, THE CEREMONY HAD SPECIAL SIGNIFICANCE. BOTH HIS FATHER AND MOTHER WERE BORN IN GERMANY, HIS FATHER IN KOENIGSBERG, HIS MOTHER IN STUTTGART.

"I KNOW HOW GOOD THIS IS GOING TO MAKE DAD FEEL," HE SAID, "BECAUSE HE'S AN AMERICAN THROUGH AND THROUGH."

BESIDE PUCK AT THE FORMAL UNFURLING OF THE FLAG WAS ANOTHER TEXAN, CPL.C.A.ROBERSON OF NOCONA, ONE OF A GROUP OF THE 143RD'S TRUCK DRIVERS JUST RETURNED FROM HAULING MEN INTO THE FRONT LINE.

OTHERS IN THE INFORMAL HONOR GUARD INCLUDED PFC.WALTER HUDDLESTON OF TRAVERS CITY,MICH.; PFC.STANLEY KNAPP OF 130 NORTH THIRD ST., DUQUESNE,TEX.; PFC.JOSEPH BATISSA OF 171 WASHINGTON ST., PERTH AMBOY, N.J.; CPL.GEORGE ULRICH OF ORRWELL, OHIO; PFC.JAMES TRAINHAM OF 519-A NORTH 21ST ST., RICHMOND, VA.

THE GOVERNOR ANNOUNCED IN PRESENTING THE FLAG THAT IT WAS GIVEN BY THE PEOPLE OF TEXAS AND THAT IN THE STAFF WAS A CAPSULE QUOTING THE WORDS OF COL.WILLIAM BARRETT TRAVIS BEFORE THE FALL OF THE ALAMO, "I SHALL NEVER SURRENDER OR RETREAT. VICTORY OR DEATH."

LT.SUMNER WILSON OF 16 STONELEA PLACE, NEW ROCHELLE,N.Y., FORMER NEW YORK PUBLICITY MAN, HANDED THE FLAG TO PUCK ON A HIGH BRIDGE OVER THE CUSTOMS ARCH.

MAR 24 1945

A SIGN OVER THE SWASTIKA-DECORATED ARCH PROCLAIMED: "YOU ARE NOW ENTERING GERMANY BY COURTESY OF THE 142ND REGIMENT COMBAT TEAM." THAT OUTFIT FIRST STORMED THROUGH SCHWEIGEN AND WAS RELIEVED BY THE 143RD REGIMENT.

MEN MOVING TOWARD THE FRONT GRINNED AND MANY CHEERED AS THEY SAW THE FLAG AT THE ARCH. LT.COL.WERNER LARSON OF 1324 KENMORE AVE., FREDERICKSBURG,VA., IN COMMAND OF THE 443RD ANTI-AIRCRAFT BATTALION, A SELF-PROPELLED GUNS OUTFIT, SAW THE FLAG RAISED AND SAID:

"WELL, THAT'S ALL RIGHT."

HE'S A NATIVE OF MICHIGAN WHOSE WIFE NOW LIVES IN FREDERICKSBURG BUT LIKE ALL THE OTHER MEN IN AND AROUND THE DIVISION, HE'S PROUD OF THE TEXAS CONNECTIONS.

SEVENTH ARMY
BY A.I.GOLDBERG

SIXTH ARMY GROUP HDQS., GERMANY, MARCH 23-(AP)-THE SIXTH ARMORED DIVISION HAS PLANTED THE U.S. 7TH ARMY'S BANNER ON THE RHINE AT RHEINDUERKHEIM, FOUR MILES NORTH OF WORMS, AFTER A 60-MILE DASH THROUGH THE BAVARIAN PALATINATE IN TWO DAYS.

THE 45TH, 63RD AND THIRD INFANTRY DIVISIONS WERE REPORTED OFFICIALLY TO BE MOPPING UP SMALL POCKETS OF RESISTANCE LEFT BY THE MESHING OPERATIONS OF THE SEVENTH AND THIRD ARMIES AND FRENCH DIVISIONS.

THE SIXTH ARMORED DIVISION ENTERED WORMS AT 10:30 A.M. OON MARCH 21, SOON AFTER LT.GEN.GEORGE S. PATTON'S THIRD ARMY HAD CAPTURED THE HISTORIC CITY. LT.COL.FRANK BRITTON OF HARTFORD, CONN., RAISED THE STANDARD ON THE RHINE.

LT.COL.EMBRY LAGREW, LEXINGTON, KY., LED THE 15TH TANK BATTALION INTO WORMS TO BECOME THE FIRST SEVENTH ARMY UNIT ON THE RHINE INSIDE GERMANY. HE FOUND ELEMENTS OF THE THIRD ARMY'S FOURTH ARMORED (BREAKTHROUGH) DIVISION ALREADY THERE.

THE 103RD (CACTUS) DIVISION WAS PLUNGING THROUGH THE PLATINATE TOWARD THE RHINE, CAPTURING REISDORF AND REACHING ERLENBACH, FIVE MILES FROM THE RIVER NORTHWEST OF KARLSRUHE.

SLICING INTO A POCKET NOW SURROUNDED BY THIRD AND SEVENTH ARMY TROOPS EAST OF KAISERSLAUTERN, THE 106TH CAVALRY GROUP CAPTURED FRANKENSTEIN AGAINST LIGHT OPPOSITION.

THE 100TH DIVISION WAS MOPPING UP THE LAUTERWALD FOREST.

THE 71ST DIVISION APPROACHED PETERSBURG AND WALDBUCH.

THE 42ND (RAINBOW) DIVISION CAPTURED DAHN AND BUSENBERG AFTER NEGOTIATING HEAVY MINEFIELDS AND ROAD BLOCKS.

THE 36TH (TEXAS) DIVISION CLEARED DURRENBACH AND FOUGHT TO HIGH GROUND WEST OF BERZABERN.

MAR 24 1945

THE 14TH ARMORED DIVISION CLEANED OUT ALL BUT A CORNER OF STEINFELD.

THE FRENCH FIFTH ARMORED AND THIRD ALGERIAN INFANTRY DIVISIONS MADE SLOW PROGRESS THROUGH THE BIENWALD FOREST.

THE DASH OF MAJ.GEN.ROBERT W.GROW'S SIXTH ARMORED MEN TOOK THEM FROM HASSEL, WHERE THEY PASSED THROUGH THE 63RD DIVISION FRONT. THEY SPEARED UP THROUGH LIMBACH, WHERE THEY FOUGHT AND WON THEIR FIRST BATTLE. THEN THEY CRASHED AROUND TO THE NORTHWEST OF HOMBURG AND FOLLOWED A ROUTE NORTH OF THE KAISERSLAUTERN-MANNHEIM SUPERHIGHWAY TO GET INTO WORMS.

ELEMENTS OF COMBAT COMMAND A UNDER COL. JOHN HINES, JR., WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W.VA., SON OF A FORMER CHIEF OF STAFF OF THE U.S. ARMY, MADE THE 60-MILE DASH.

A FEW HOURS AFTER LAGREW TOOK HIS 15TH TANK BATTALION INTO WORMS, BRITTON AND THE NINTH ARMORED INFANTRY BATTALION OCCUPIED RHEINDUERKHEIM. THEY BEGAN SCOURING THE TOWN FOR AN AMERICAN FLAG AND AMONG THE GERMAN CIVILIANS, ODDLY ENOUGH, THEY FOUND A 32-FOOT AMERICAN BANNER WHICH PROMPTLY WAS HOISTED.

THE GERMANS IMMEDIATELY OPENED HEAVY FIRE FROM THE EAST BANK OF THE RHINE.

TROOP A, 86TH CAVALRY RECONNAISSANCE SQUADRON, COMMANDED BY CAPT. ALDEN BERG, HAWLEY, MINN., SHOT WESTWARD A MILE AND CAPTURED OSTHOFEN.

MEANWHILE, COMBAT COMMAND B UNDER COL. HARRY HANSON, ELGIN, ILL., SMASHED AGAINST THE LAST GERMANS IN THE SIEGFRIED LINE BETWEEN ZWEIBRUECKEN AND LANDSTUHL.

HANSON FORMED TWO SPEARHEADS, ONE COMMANDED BY LT. COL.CHESTER KENNEDY, 14015 ABINGTON ROAD, DETROIT, MICH., AND THE OTHER BY LT. COL.CHARLES BROWN, RT. 8, BOX 424, TACOMA, WASH. BOTH PLUNGED INTO A MASS OF TANKS, TRUCKS, HALFTRACKS AND WAGONS WHICH THE GERMANS WERE TRYING TO SAVE.

AGAINST WELL ORGANIZED GERMAN FIRE AND REAR GUARD ACTION, THE TASK FORCE KENNEDY KNOCKED OUT 300 VEHICLES, A PANTHER TANK AND 17 BIG GUNS.

B36

MAJ.WALTER SMITH, ADA, OKLA., LED A COVERING FORCE FOR THIS ACTION. "WE WERE ABLE TO OBSERVE CLOSE TO 500 GERMAN VEHICLES LATE TUESDAY AFTERNOON TRYING TO ESCAPE BY THREE LATERAL ROADS RUNNING ACROSS OUR ZONE OF ADVANCE," SMITH SAID. "THEY JAMMED UP THE VALLEY AND IT WAS LIKE SHOOTING DUCKS. WE DIDN'T HAVE ANY TROUBLE AFTER NIGHTFALL EITHER. IT WAS BRIGHT AND WE STARTED ENOUGH FIRES TO KEEP SILHOUETTING ANYTHING THAT MOVED. A HAYWAGON CAUGHT FIRE AND ITS HORSES GALLOPED DOWN THE ROAD, LIGHTING UP THE WHOLE COUNTRYSIDE."

GEN.GROW IS FROM WASHINGTON, D.C.

SMITH EMERGED A HERO IN THIS GENERAL ACTION. HIS LIGHT TANK WAS KNOCKED OUT BY A GERMAN 88 NEAR THE TOWN OF MARTINSHOHE, BUT THE CREW GOT OUT BEFORE IT BLAZED UP. SMITH CALLED IN A PLATOON OF INFANTRY COMMANDED BY LT.HOWARD DUNN OF HENDERSON, TENN., AND IT CLEANED OUT THE TOWN. MEANTME, PFC GREGORY KATNAS OF NEWYORKCITY, UNLIMBERED HIS BAZOOKA AND DESTROYED THE 88 AS WELL AS A MACHINEGUN NEST.

MAR 24 1945

IN THE CONFUSION GERMAN VEHICLES TUMBLED OUT OF SIDE ROADS HEAD-ON INTO COLUMNS OF THE SIXTH ARMY GROUP.

AIDING SMITH IN JOLTING 400 GERMANS INTO SURRENDERING AND IN KILLING AN UNDETERMINED NUMBER WERE LT.CHARLES CHESSMAN OF CLEVELAND, OHIO; CAPT. JOHN SZLYK, JR., OF WORCESTER, MASS., LT. CHARLES MATHISON OF SYRACUSE, N.Y., AND CAPT.JAMES BROWN OF 5628 ENRIGHT AVE., ST.LOUIS, MO.

BROWN SPEARED A TASK FORCE INTO GRUNSTADT AFTER KNOCKING OUT OBSTACLES ALL TUESDAY NIGHT AND BY 11 O'CLOCK WEDNESDAY MORNING THE LAST GERMAN RESISTANCE IN THAT AREA'S WEST WALL HAD CRUMBLED.

IN 36 HOURS THE DIVISION TOOK NEARLY 2.000 PRISONERS.

CAPT. JAMES J.COWEN, FORMERLY WITH THE LOUISVILLE (KY.) COURIER-JOURNAL, MADE THE RUN WITH THE ARMOR IN A JEEP DRIVEN BY PFC. IRA JOHNS, 616 44TH ST., ROCK ISLAND, ILL.

HE SAID THERE WAS GREAT CONFUSION ALL ALO

G THE ROUTE, BUT "THE TOWNS IN GERMANY ARE NOT BEATEN UP AS MUCH AS THEY OUGHT TO BE."

"IT IS TOO BAD, BUT THEY DON'T LOOK LIKE THE TOWNS OF FRANCE WHICH BORE THE BRUNT OF THE WAR. THEY ARE STILL WHOLE AND CLEAN AND PRETTY. WE DIDN'T GET A CHANCE TO SHOOT THEM UP. WE'D ROLL UP TO A TOWN, THE INFANTRYMEN ON THE DECK OF THE TANK WOULD FIRE A BAZOOKA SHOT AT ONE HOUSE, JUST TO LET THEM KNOW WE WERE THERE, AND THE CIVILIANS WOULD COME STREAMING OUT.

"IN SEVERAL TOWNS WE FOUND GERMANS SITTIN IN FORMAL GROUPS ON THE PORCHES, EACH CLUTCHING A WHITE FLAG AND LOOKING SHEEPISH, UNCERTAIN WHAT OUR ACTION WOULD BE.

"SOME PEOPLE WERE OUT WATERING THE STREETS AND GARDENS. ABOUT THE ONLY WRECKAGE IN THE TOWNS WAS FROM BOMBINGS. BUT THE AIR FORCES CERTAINLY DID A JOB ON THE ROAD BRIDGES.

30.2x — 24153

PROBABLY WOULD HAVE LITTLE EFFECT ON OPERATIONS IN THIS THEATER.

MILITARY TEXTBOOKS OF THE FUTURE PROBABLY WILL JUDGE KESSELRING'S CAMPAIGN FROM THE STANDPOINT OF SLOWED AND COSTLY ALLIED PROGRESS THROUGH ITALY. HE HAS BEEN CREDITED GENERALLY WITH A MASTERLY WITHDRAWAL UP THE PENINSULA, ALTHOUGH SOME HAVE CRITICIZED HIS HANDLING OF HIS TROOPS DURING THE PURSUIT THROUGH ROME, WHEN MANY GERMANS WERE CAPTURED.

THUS FAR ALLIED AUTHORITIES HERE HAVE NO CONFIRMATION OF KESSELRING'S DEPARTURE TO REPLACE FIELD MARSHAL VON RUNDSTEDT ON THE WESTERN FRONT.

HIGH ALLIED MILITARY OFFICERS OFTEN HAVE EXPRESSED AMAZEMENT AT THE GERMAN DECISION TO DEFEND THEIR ITALIAN POSITIONS SO STUBBORNLY. SOME ALLIED OFFICERS INSISTED THERE WAS NO SOUND MILITARY GROUND FOR THIS DECISION.

BUT THEY GAVE KESSELRING CREDIT FOR AN EXTREMELY EFFICIENT JOB, PARTICULARLY LAST YEAR, WHEN HE FACED OVERWHELMING AIR SUPERIORITY.

THE BLOODY DEFENSE OF MONTE CASSINO AGAINST THE U.S.FIFTH AND BRITISH EIGHTH ARMIES LAST SPRING AND THE QUICK WITHDRAWAL WITH LOSS OF FEW PRISONERS WAS AN EXAMPLE OF KESSELRING'S ABILITY TO EXTRACT THE UTMOST EFFORT FROM HIS TROOPS.

THE AGILITY WITH WHICH THE BAVARIAN GENERAL RECOILED FROM THE SURPRISE EIGHTH ARMY BREAKTHROUGH IN THE GOTHIC LINE ON THE ADRIATIC COAST LAST FALL AND THEN HALTED THE OFFENSIVE ON THE EDGE OF THE PO PLAIN WAS ANOTHER EXAMPLE. KESSELRING NOT ONLY UPSET THE ALLIED TIMETABLE BUT WAS ABLE TO SHIFT HIS TROOPS QUICKLY TO MEET AN AMERICAN CRACK THROUGH THE GOTHIC LINE NORTH OF FLORENCE AND HALT THE FIFTH ARMY DRIVE ON BOLOGNA.

BUT IN WESTERN GERMANY KESSELRING WILL BEMEETING TREMENDOUS SUPERIORITY IN MEN AND EQUIPMENT AND WILL NOT HAVE THE BRUTAL MOUNTAINOUS TERRAIN OF ITALY ON HIS SIDE.

ROME, MARCH 23-(AP)-CAPT.WILLIAM DILLARD OF GRAND SALINE, TEX., A MUSTANG PILOT, CHALKED UP HIS FIFTH VICTORY WHEN HE SHOT DOWN A GERMAN JET-PROPELLED FIGHTER DURING YESTERDAY'S 1,400-MILE ROUND TRIP TO THE RUHLAND OIL PLANT SOUTH OF BERLIN.

THUS FAR THE 15TH AIR FORCE HAS SHOT DOWN THREE JETS.

THREE FORTRESS TAILGUNNERS SHARED ANOTHER VICTORY OVER A JET YESTERDAY. THEY WERE SGTS.FREDERICK DOWNS OF SNYDER, OKLA., WARREN MCKANE OF 95 WILKINSON AVE., JERSEY CITY, N.J., AND GEORGE GLASS, JR., 19 22ND ST., OKLAHOMA CITY, OKLA. PILOT CAPT.RALPH CHAMBERS OF WINSTON SALEM, N.C., SAW THE JET CRASH IN A FOREST AND EXPLODE.

LIGHTNINGS ESCORTING THE HEAVY BOMBERS TO RUHLAND ALSO SHOT DOWN A FOCKE-WULF 190 FIGHTER AND A JUNKERS 52 TRANSPORT OVER HUNGARY. LT.GEORGE HOCHSTETLER, 881 KINGWOOD AVE., SALEM, ORE., WAS CREDITED WITH DESTROYING THE THREE-ENGINED TRANSPORT, AND LT.MALCOLM SWIMLEY OF BALDWIN, KANS., WAS CREDITED WITH DESTRUCTION OF THE FOCKE-WULF.

LTS.WILLIAM LANCASTER, 193 NORTH ROOSEVELT AVE., BLOOMINGTON, ILL., AND GEORGE RIVES, 45 CAMDEN ST., SOUTH HADLEY FALLS, MASS., ALSO SHOT DOWN AN ENEMY PLANE EACH OVER A TRANSPORT FIELD IN HUNGARY.

NAPLES MARCH 23.-POSSIBLY THE SINGLE MOST BRILLIANT EXAMPLE OF THE ANGLO-AMERICAN EXCHANGE OF WAR EFFORT IN ITALY CAN BE SEEN VN TH REHABILITATION OX THE GREAT PORT OF NAPLES SINCE ITS ALL BUT COMPLETE DESTRUCTION BY THE GERMANS IN OCTOBER 1943. TODAY IT IS THE CHIEF PORT OF THE MEDITERRANEAN THEATER. ITS EFFICIENCY IN CARGO DISCHARGE IS RISING RAPIDLY.

LAST MONTH 249 SHIPS, EXCLUSING SCHOONERS AND SMALL CRAFT, WERE EITHER DISCHARGED OR LOADED BY THE PORT. OVER 300,000 TONS OF CARGO WERE DISCHARGED AND 71,000 TONS WERE LOADED. TODAY ABOUT 40 PER CENT OF THE DISCHARGED TONNAGE IS ITALIAN CIVILIAN SUPPLIES WHICH IS AND SHOULD BE GOOD NEWS TO THE SUFFERING PEOPLE OF ITALY.
CONVOYS ARRIVING AT SHORT INTERVALS ARE UNLOADED AND TURNED AROUND WITHIN 10 DAYS. IN SPITE OF THE WRECKAGE LEFT BY THE NAZIS THE FIRST ALLIED CONVOY ENTERED NAPLES HARBOR ON THE AFTERNOON OF OCT.3, 1943, TWO DAYS AFTER LT.GEN.MARK W.CLARK'S FIFTH ARMY HAD LIBERATED THE CITY. SINCE THEN THE HARBOR HAS ASSUMED AN EVER MORE NORMAL AND BUSIER APPEARANCE.
AT ONE OF THE REBUILT PIERS LAY A LARGE FRENCH CARGO SHIP. THE SHIP, OPERATED BY THE UNITED STATES SHIPPING ADMINISTRATION IN WASHINGTON HAD BEEN BERTHED BY THE ROYAL NAVY. IT WAS SCHEDULED TO LEAVE WITH AMERICAN AND BRITISH CARGO BOUND FOR THE ADRIATIC PORT OF BARI, WHERE [illegible]
EXACTLY WAS LOADING OF THE GREAT SHINING WHITE HOSPITAL SHIP, "[illegible]
THAT TRIUMPHANT LITTLE GREEN ISLAND.

WITH THE REGULARITY OF CLOCKWORK BRITISH RED CROSS AMBULANCES ASSISTED BY AMERICAN MP'S ROLLED UP THE GANGPLANK, WHILE OTHER WOUNDED WERE CARRIED UP ON STRETCHERS BY BRITISH SOLDIERS WHO WORE ON THEIR SHOULDERS THE RED AND WHITE INSIGNIA OF MEDICS.
I TALKED TO THREE YOUNG MEN WHO WERE WAITING ON THEIR LITTERS TO BE CARRIED ABOARD. THEY HAD ALL BEEN WOUNDED WHILE SERVING IN BRITISH UNITS OF THE FIFTH ARMY. ONE OF THEM SUMMED UP THE SPIRIT OF THE COOPERATION WHEN HE REMARKED SIMPLY THAT "WE HAVE FOUGHT IN ONE ANOTHER'S BATTLES AND RECUPERATED IN ONE ANOTHER'S HOSPITALS."
THE SECOND SIGHT I SAW IN THE HARBOR OF NAPLES THAT TOLD A GREAT STORY OF ANGLO-AMERICAN COMBINED EFFORTS WAS A BIG GUN USED IN THE FIGHTING AT ANZIO. THE GI'S AND THE TOMMIES CALLED IT "ANZIO ANNIE." IT WAS WAITING TO BE LOADED TO BE SPED TO THE UNITED STATES, PROBABLY TO SELL WAR BONDS. IT OUGHT TO SELL PLENTY OF THEM.
I CLIMBED UP A LADDER TO THE TOP. INCIDENTALLY, I NOTICED THE NAME OF AN AMERICAN SOLDIER SCRAWLED ON THE STEEL--PVT.RICHARD CABLE OF NEW PRESTON, CONN.
TWO SIGHT-SEEING PRIVATES ARMED WITH CAMERAS WERE SCRAMBLING LIKE MYSELF AROUND THE GREAT GUN. ONE OF THEM ASKED A QUESTION WHICH HAD BEEN TROUBLING ME EVER SINCE I HAD TRIED TO GET THE IMMENSE LENGTH OF "ANZIO ANNIE" INTO THE RANGE OF MY VISION.
"I WONDER," HE ASKED, "HOW THEY ARE GOING TO GET THIS THING ON BOARD ANY SHIP? IT DOESN'T LOOK LIKE THERE'S A CRANE BIG ENOUGH IN THE WORLD TO LIFT IT."
THAT NIGHT ADMIRAL SIR JOHN H.D.CUNNINGHAM, COMMANDER IN CHIEF OF THE ALLIED MEDITERRANEAN FLEET, ANSWERED THE QUESTION, AND THE ANSWER ALSO TOLD A STORY OF ANGLO-AMERICAN COOPERATION.
"I SHOULD NOT WORRY ABOUT ANZIO ANNIES," HE SAID. "ASK THE ROYAL NAVY AND THE 540TH AMERICAN ENGINEERS TO PUT ANYTHING ON A BOAT. THEY'LL DO IT."

(ADVANCE FOR AMS OF FRIDAY, MARCH 23)
(EDITORS NOTE: THE WRITER OF THE FOLLOWING ARTICLE, FOR SEVENTEEN YEARS BERLIN CORRESPONDENT OF THE SWEDISH NEWSPAPER, STOCKHOLMS TIDINGEN, HAS JUST RETURNED TO STOCKHOLM. HE LEFT BERLIN BECAUSE HE FOUND IT NO LONGER POSSIBLE TO WORK THERE.)
BY CHRISTER JAEDERLUND
(ADVANCE) STOCKHOLM, MARCH 22-(AP)-HE CAME TO ME ONE EVENING ANXIOUS TO ESCAPE NOTICE BY MY NEIGHBORS. NOBODY SAW HIM.
I NEVER KNEW HIS NAME BUT THAT WASN'T NECESSARY. IT WASN'T EVEN DESIRABLE. I SIMPLY CALLED HIM PETER. IT WASN'T UNTIL LATER THAT I HEARD HE HAD COME DOWN BY PARACHUTE.
WHEN LAST I SAW HIM HE SAID THAT NO MATTER WHAT HAPPENED HE WOULD FIND ME. IT WAS A PROMISE, BUT I THOUGHT, "POOR PETER."
I REGARDED HIM AS A CANDIDATE FOR DEATH AND I WAS RIGHT. HE WAS CAUGHT TOGETHER WITH FOUR COMPANIONS AND EXECUTED. HIS WIRELESS TRANSMITTER WHICH HE HAD CARRIED WITH HIM FELL IN THE HANDS OF THE GESTAPO. A FIFTH COMRADE ESCAPED AND TOLD US.

PETER HAD NO ADDRESS. HE LIVED EVERYWHERE AND NOWHERE--WHEREVER HE COULD FIND A ROOF OVER HIS HEAD. IF HE WAS LUCKY IT WOULD BE WITH A KIND AND LONELY WOMAN, IF UNLUCKY WITH RATS IN RUINS. HE HAD OFTEN BEEN SEARCHED BUT PETER SAID IT WAS MERELY A MATTER OF PUTTING UP A CONFIDENT FRONT.

UNTIL THEN HE HAD NOT MET ANY POLICE WHO QUESTIONED HIS PAPERS. MAYBE POLICE DID NOT TRAP HIM AFTER ALL. FROM THE BEGINNING I SUSPECTED THAT WOMEN WERE MUCH MORE DANGEROUS. ANY WOMAN'S EYE MUST HAVE REACTED STRONGLY TO HIS BRAND NEW ENGLISH UNDERWEAR OF EXCELLENT QUALITY.

-122-

UNDERWEAR WAS A MISTAKE. ONE CAN'T TRAVEL LIKE A LORD THROUGH BOMBED GERMANY IN THE SIXTH YEAR OF WAR. IT WOULD HAVE BEEN BETTER TO HAVE SEWED FALSE LABELS ON THE UNDERWEAR THAN TO REMOVE THE IDENTIFICATION SO CAREFULLY.

PETER IS DEAD, BUT IN AN ARTICLE ABOUT UNDERGROUND GERMANY, HE SERVES AS A SUITABLE INTRODUCTION. HE KNEW THE COUNTRY WELL. I INTERVIEWED HIM IN HIS SMALL HIDEOUT ONE LONG NIGHT, AND IT PAID TO STUDY HIS FAULTS AND ADVANTAGES FOR HIS MYSTERIOUS ASSIGNMENT.

HE NEVER BREATHED A WORD OF WHAT HE WAS DOING, BUT HE DISCLOSED ENOUGH OF THE MORE UNROMANTIC AND TRIVIAL SIDE OF THE FOREIGN AGENTS' LIVES TO GIVE AN IDEA OF THEIR DIFFICULTIES.

THEY OBTAIN IN[illegible]RMATION READILY FROM ALL SIDES WHETHER THEY GET TOGETHER WITH SOLDIERS OR WORKERS IN RAILWAY RESTAURANTS OR MAKE ACQUAINTANCES OF FACTORY GIRLS, FEMALE FLAK SOLDIERS OR SO-CALLED BLITZ GIRLS.

MAR 24 1945

THE JOB IS NOT TOO DIFFICULT IF YOU CONSIDER THE GREAT NUMBER OF FOREIGN WORKERS IN GERMANY AND THE ANIMOSITY AMONG THE BROAD MASSES TOWARD THE NAZI LEADERSHIP. BUT THE FOREIGN AGENT MUST SLEEP AS WELL AS WORK, AND SHELTER IS VERY HARD TO GET IF HE DOESN'T LIKE THE IDEA OF HIDING OUT IN RUINS WHERE HE CAN'T SHAVE, KEEP HIS CLOTHES LAUNDERED OR EAT.

IT IS EASIER TO KEEP A ROOF OVER YOUR HEAD AMONG THE PEASANTS THAN IN CITIES. FARMERS SELDOM INQUIRE ABOUT ONE'S MOVEMENTS AND USUALLY ARE GLAD IF SOMEONE OFFERS TO HELP IN THE FIELD, ESPECIALLY WHERE A FARMWIFE WITH HALFGROWN CHILDREN IS RUNNING THE FARM.

GERMAN AUTHORITIES, THEREFORE, HAVE STERNLY WARNED THE FARM POPULATION AGAINST SHELTERING STRANGERS. BUT IN THE POTATO FIELDS, COMPARATIVELY SAFE FROM THE LONG ARM OF THE GERMAN SECURITY SERVICE, THE FOREIGN AGENT CAN RELAX.

FOREIGN AGENTS OPERATE, OF COURSE, IN THE ARMAMENT CENTERS. DURING THE WAR YEARS MANY FOREIGN WORKERS RENTED LODGINGS IN PRIVATE HOMES, AND AGENTS COULD OBTAIN THEIR PROTECTION. RECENTLY, HOWEVER, ALL FOREIGNERS LIVING PRIVATELY WERE ORDERED TO MOVE TO CAMPS. POLICE ARE EXERCISING GREATER CONTROL OF FOREIGNERS BECAUSE OF CONFUSION IN POLICE FILES AS A RESULT OF THE REFUGEE MERRY-GO-ROUND.

FOREIGN LABORERS AS AGENTS ARE BETTER OFF THAN THE PARACHUTE AGENTS. THEY LIVE LEGALLY IN CAMPS, AND IN PLANNING SABOTAGE AND ECONOMIC ESPIONAGE THEY MUST BE THE FIRST CONTACTED.

THERE IS A WEALTH OF OPPORTUNITIES IN THIS RESPECT. A POLICE OFFICIAL ONCE TOLD ME THE POLICE ESTIMATED THAT ALMOST ONE-THIRD OF THE FOREIGN WORKERS HAD GONE TO GERMANY ONLY TO SPY AND SABOTAGE.

THIS MAY BE SOMEWHAT EXAGGERATED BUT IT HAS BEEN ASCERTAINED THAT REALLY IMPORTANT SPIES HAVE BEEN SMUGGLED INTO WORKERS' CONTINGENTS WHICH HAVE GONE INTO GERMANY AND HAVE WORKED FOR YEARS AS ENGINEERS IN AIRPLANE FACTORIES.

MANY FOREIGN WORKERS HAVE GONE UNDERGROUND BECAUSE OF DISAGREEMENTS WITH THEIR GERMAN GUARDS OR TO ESCAPE PUNISHMENT FOR

30. 24— 24155

MISDEMEANORS. OCCASIONALLY POLICE HAVE CLEANED OUT HIDEOUTS IN RUINED QUARTERS WHERE FOREIGNERS AND GERMANS LODGED TOGETHER ILLEGALLY.

THESE RUNAWAYS EARN THEIR LIVING BY THIEVERY AND ROBBERY. THE BLACK MARKET REALLY GOT GOING WHEN THE GERMANS DEMANDED BIGGER LABOR CONSCRIPTIONS FROM FRANCE.

A GESTAPO COMMISSIONER WHO CROSS-EXAMINED ME ON A CHARGE OF HAVING ABUSED THE NAZI PARTY TOLD ME PIERRE LAVAL MADE A SUBTLE PROPOSAL--THAT QUITE A NUMBER OF PERSONS COULD BE ENCOURAGED TO GO TO GERMANY IF TRIALS PENDING AGAINST THEM WERE FORGOTTEN. THE GERMANS ACCEPTED AND RECEIVED ABOUT 10,000 CRIMINALLY MINDED FRENCHMEN.

OF ALL THE FOREIGNERS, THE FRENCHMEN WERE THE RICHEST IN IDEAS FOR ILLEGAL ESCAPADES. TOGETHER WITH GERMAN RAILWAY CLERKS THEY ACTUALLY FORMED AN ILLEGAL TOURIST BUREAU.

WORKERS TIRED OF GERMANY WERE SMUGGLED BY RAILROAD TO ALSACE. THERE A PATRIOT ORGANIZATION MOVED THEM ON VIA SWITZERLAND TO MAQUIS FORCES IN SAVOY.

ONE FRENCHMAN PUSHED A CART OF MANURE THROUGH GERMANY. EACH POLICEMAN HE MET THOUGHT HE BELONGED TO A NEARBY VILLAGE. HE OBTAINED FOOD FROM COMPATRIOTS ON FARMS. ANOTHER FRENCHMAN HAD A BETTER IDEA: HE BICYCLED IN TOP HAT AND TAILS FROM VILLAGE CHURCH TO VILLAGE CHURCH WITH A WREATH ON THE HANDLEBARS.

CANBERRA, AUSTRALIA, MARCH 23-(AP)-PRIME MINISTER JOHN CURTIN TOLD THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES TODAY COOPERATION WITH BRITAIN WAS ESSENTIAL AND THAT AMERICAN COOPERATION WAS OF PARAMOUNT IMPORTANCE FOR THE PRESERVATION AND SECURITY OF AUSTRALIA AND NEW ZEALAND.

HIS SPEECH OBVIOUSLY WAS DESIGNED TO PRESENT THE AUSTRALIAN VIEW-POINT TO BE PLACED BEFORE THE BRITISH EMPIRE CONFERENCES IN LONDON WHICH WILL PRECEDE THE WORLD SECURITY MEETING AT SAN FRANCISCO.

CURTIN SAID THE SECURITY OF AUSTRALIA AND NEW ZEALAND WAS BEST ACHIEVED BY A DEFENSE SYSTEM BASED UPON THE ISLAND SCREEN TO THE NORTH, BUT THE CRUX OF THE SITUATION WAS THE CAPACITY OF THE TWO DOMINIONS TO MAINTAIN SUCH A SCREEN AND PROVIDE FOR LOCAL DEFENSE AT THE SAME TIME.

AUSTRALIA AND NEW ZEALAND COULD NOT PROVIDE A FLEET AND EQUIP A BASE TO INSURE COMMAND OF THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, HE SAID, AND THUS COOPERATION WITH BRITAIN IS ESSENTIAL. MAINTENANCE OF SUCH A SCREEN DEPENDED, TOO, ON THE COOPERATION OF THE UNITED STATES, THE NETHERLANDS, PORTUGAL AND FRANCE, HE SAID.

CURTIN DECLARED THE SECURITY OF AUSTRALIA OR ANY OTHER PART OF THE BRITISH COMMONWEALTH DEPENDED ON THREE SAFEGUARDS: A SYSTEM OF COLLECTIVE SECURITY ON A WORLD AND REGIONAL BASIS, AN EMPIRE SYSTEM AND A NATIONAL DEFENSE POLICY. HE SAID THAT AUSTRALIA LOOKED TO THE SAN FRANCISCO CONFERENCE WITH "GREAT HOPES."

(WX) IWO JIMA (DELAYED)-(AP)-SIX VETERAN AERIAL OBSERVERS OF THE 4TH MARINE DIVISION, TODAY TOLD THEIR MOST HARROWING EXPERIENCE OF ALL-THE METHODICAL JAPANESE STRAFING AND KILLING OF 100 OF THEIR SHIPMATES SWIMMING HELPLESSLY IN ICY SEAS AFTER THE SINKING OF THE U. S. S. BISMARCK SEA, AN ESCORT CARRIER.

ALL SIX OF THE MARINE AIRMEN WERE RESCUED, BUT A PILOT OF THE 5TH MARINE DIVISION, WHO CAME ABOARD THE BISMARCK SEA JUST FIVE MINUTES BEFORE SHE SUSTAINED TWO MORTAL BLOWS ABOUT 30 MILES OFF SHORE, WAS REPORTED AMONG THE MORE THAN 300 CASUALTIES.

HE IS BELIEVED TO HAVE BEEN A VICTIM OF THE JAPANESE STRAFING.

LT. COL. CHARLES F. DUCHEIN, U. S. MARINE CORPS, OF 2522 MORNING GLORY ROAD, BATON ROUGE, LA., ONE OF THE FIRST MARINE INFANTRY OFFICERS TO RECEIVE THE DISTINGUISHED FLYING CROSS, HAD RETURNED FROM MISSIONS OVER THE JAPANESE LINES AND WAS ABOARD THE BISMARCK SEA ONLY A SHORT WHILE BEFORE SHE WAS HIT. HE WENT OVER THE SIDE NEAR THE ANCHOR WITH ANOTHER OBSERVER, CAPT. NORMAN GOULET, U. S. MARINE CORPS, 311 MONTANA ST., SOUTH MILWAUKEE, WISC., AND TOGETHER THEY WERE TWO HOURS IN THE WATER.

THEY WERE ABOUT 1,000 YARDS AWAY WHEN THE BISMARCK SEA SANK.

BOTH TOLD OF THE MERCILESS STRAFING. LT. COL. DUCHEIN SAID THE JAPANESE REPEATEDLY ATTACKED SWIMMERS NEAR THE SINKING CARRIER. HE SAID HE SAW AT LEAST ONE RUBBER RAFT RIDDLED BY ENEMY FIRE AND ITS OCCUPANTS HIT.

LT. COL. DUCHEIN CREDITS CAPTAIN GOULET WITH THE RESCUE

OF ONE OF THE CARRIER'S OFFICERS.
"HE WAS AN ELDERLY MAN, AND HE WAS BADLY SCARED," THE LIEUTENANT COLONEL SAID. "HE WAS READY TO GIVE UP. NORM KEPT HIM ENCOURAGED BY TELLING HIM HE'D SEE A RAFT JUST OVER THE NEXT WAVE. IT WAS A LIT, BUT IT WORKED."
"I EXPECTED TO STAY IN THE WATER ALL NIGHT," SAID CAPTAIN GOULET. "IT WAS COLD AND I WAS ALMOST FREEZING. BUT ABOUT TWO HOURS AFTER WE WENT IN, WE WERE PICKED UP BY A SMALL BOAT FROM

A150WX
ONE OF OUR DESTROYERS."
WITH LT. COL. DUCHEIN, CAPT. GOULET PRAISED THE SKIPPER OF A TINY DESTROYER ESCORT WHO ENCOURAGED MEN THROUGHOUT THEIR PERIL IN THE WATER BY SHOUTING TO THEM THROUGH A LOUDSPEAKER THAT HELP WAS ON ITS WAY.
FIRST LT. HAROLD CRUMP, HUGHES SPRINGS, TEX., IS ORDINARILY A TANK OFFICER WITH THE 4TH MARINE DIVISION, CAME IN FROM AN AERIAL MISSION OVER IWO JIMA ALMOST AT THE MOMENT THAT THE BISMARCK SEA WAS FATALLY ATTACKED.
CRUMP WENT OVER THE SIDE BUT WAS UNABLE TO CLEAR THE SINKING SHIP. WHILE HE WAS STILL PERILOUSLY CLOSE TO THE CARRIER AN EXPLOSION LIFTED HIM 15 FEET OUT OF THE WATER. HE WAS NOT INJURED.
CAPT. H. GRADY GATLIN, JEFFERSON APARTMENTS, NASHVILLE, TENN., HAD JUST RETURNED FROM A MISSION AND WAS ENTERING THE WARDROOM OF THE BISMARCK SEA FOR A MEAL WHEN THE CARRIER WAS HIT. HE WAS THROWN UNDER A TABLE. TEN MINUTES LATER HE OBEYED THE ORDER TO ABANDON SHIP AND WENT OVER THE SIDE.
THE OTHER TWO MARINE OBSERVERS WHO WERE RESCUED ARE: 2ND LT. JOHN F. SUTKUS, 2028 SMEDE AVE., TOLEDO, OHIO, AND CAPT. EDWARD H. STATTON OF 1910 OF AUSTIN AVE., WACO, TEX.

(SAN FRANCISCO,MARCH 23 (AP)-) JAPANESE FOREIGN MINISTER MAMORU SHIGEMITSU TOLD THE BUDGET COMMITTEE OF THE IMPERIAL DIET FRIDAY THE FORTHCOMING SAN FRANCISCO INTERNATIONAL CONFERENCE "WILL PROVE A STEP FORWARD IN THE DIRECTION OF THE NEXT WAR."

THE MINISTER WAS QUOTED BY THE JAPANESE NEWS AGENCY DOMEI IN A RADIO BROADCAST RECORDED BY THE FCC.

THE MINISTER SAID ANGLO-AMERICAN PROPOSALS FOR A POSTWAR WORLD ORGANIZATION ARE BASED ON THESE MAJOR PRINCIPLES:

"FIRST, THAT THE ANTI-AXIS COUNTRIES SHOULD MONOPOLIZE THE WORLD, POLITICALLY AND ECONOMICALLY; SECOND, THAT THE GREAT POWERS CAN DOMINATE THE WORLD BY SHEER FORCE; THIRD, THAT THE GREAT POWERS CAN INTERFERE IN THE INTERNAL POLITICS OF SMALLER NATIONS AND RACES, DISREGARDING THE INTERESTS OF THE LATTER."

SHIGEMITSU SAID THE ANGLO-AMERICAN PLANS REPRESENT "NOTHING BUT POWER POLITICS" WHILE JAPAN'S IDEA FOR PEACE IS BASED ON RACIAL EMANCIPATION AND EQUAL OPPORTUNITY AS MANIFESTED IN THE IMPERIAL RESCRIPT DECLARING WAR. AMERICA AND BRITAIN, HE ADDED, OFFER AN "ARMED PEACE" WHILE JAPAN ADVOCATES "PEACE BASED ON INTERNATIONAL JUSTICE."

THE FOREIGN MINISTER MADE HIS REMARKS AFTER YUSUKE TSURUMI, A MEMBER OF THE DIET AND A NOVELIST WHO LECTURED IN THE UNITED STATES IN 1930, HAD STATED "THE CRIMEA CONFERENCE HAS EXPOSED THE FAILURE OF THE ENEMY'S WAR AIMS. THE DIFFERENCES OF OPINION BETWEEN AMERICA AND BRITAIN HAVE GIVEN US AN OPENING IN OUR DIPLOMATIC OFFENSIVE."

Rhine Is Crossed by 4 More Allied Armies; Commandos, Sky Troops, 14,000 Planes Join; Invaders Gain in All-Out Drive to Win Ruhr

MAR 25 1945

Skytroops Aid In Giant Drive; Nazis Stunned

Baltimore

PARIS, Sunday, March 25.—(AP) Four Allied armies crossed and broke Germany's vaunted Rhine line on a 30-mile front yesterday, plowing five miles into the flaming Ruhr and the north German plain and today Gen. Eisenhower's forces stood at the threshold of final victory.

Backed by 1,200 guns and 11,000 planes, with British and U. S. navies manning fleets of landing barges, the long-awaited end-the-war offensive swept across the Rhine in the most massive operation since D-Day last June 6, ripping the historic Rhine barrier wide open.

NIGHT

Smash Toward Ruhr

The British Second army and parts of the Canadian First army struck in concert with the Allied First Airborne army, spilling out on the north German plain within 290 miles of Berlin, and gouging out a bridgehead of more than 15 miles stretching east to Wesel, northwestern gateway to the Ruhr.

The U. S. Ninth army, with Gen. Eisenhower watching, charged five miles into the Ruhr just south of Wesel, welded four crossings into a solid 12-mile wide bridgehead, swept up 12 towns and thrust southward within four miles of Duisburg, Europe's greatest inland port.

Resistance was light to moderate as the Germans were stunned by the awesome barrage of massed big guns and the merciless pounding of thousands of warplanes which cleared a path for what may be the war's last big push. Not a German plane challenged the assault.

Naval landing craft such as were used in the Normandy landings poured unending streams of troops, tanks, guns and material into the breach ripped by the tremendous shock of the assault.

All the Ruhr's big munitions cities, without which Germany cannot wage war, were imperiled, as eventually must be Berlin herself, for Field Marshal Sir Bernard L. Montgomery was pouring power out on to Europe's best tank battlefield, the Westphalian plain.

Thus Gen. Eisenhower had committed possibly 1,250,000 men to the offensive of the west, and at least six of his nine armies were across the Rhine, which never before had been stormed in battle.

Patton Heads for Berlin

Furthermore, one of these, the U. S. Third army, was only 262 miles from Berlin and had tank forces beyond the Rhine on the mid-Germany valley route to the capital.

The Swiss said yet another army, the French First, had crossed the Rhine north of Strasbourg, and the U. S. First was less than 12 miles from the Ruhr beyond the river on the south and might lunge northward at any hour.

The U. S. Seventh army was moving into position on the Rhine after splitting the last German forces left west of the river near Karlsruhe, and Allied strategists have warned the enemy to expect to meet the new U. S. 15th army at any time.

Montgomery's forces, beginning the fateful cross-Rhine assault Friday night, charged across the river at three points between Wesel and Rees, 12 miles to the west. At last reports they had driven at least two wedges five miles beyond the Rhine.

They had linked up with the First Airborne army, which had plummeted down from a 500-mile long sky train possibly 40,000 troops and seized positions four to five miles beyond the Rhine north of Wesel.

Such a junction had not been expected for at least another day, which showed how well operations were progressing.

The U. S. Ninth in the first 14 hours of the attack estab-

U.S. 1st Army Across the Rhine, March 24 (AP)—Powerful Allied assaults on the Western front have wiped out Rhine River defenses and General Eisenhower's armies now stand on the threshold of complete victory over Germany.

This is the feeling along this army front tonight.

Paris, March 24 (AP)—Four Allied armies stormed across the lower Rhine today and won virtually all of a 25-mile stretch of its east bank in and north of the Ruhr Valley. Some of the troops were as much as 4 miles past the river. The mighty amphibious and airborne offensive was a bid for final victory this spring.

The United States 9th Army crossed the river 2 miles south of the Ruhr city of Wesel and advanced 3 to 4 miles northeast of the river, capturing several small towns.

The British 2d Army took more than 1,500 prisoners and fought into Wesel and Rees. Bislich was captured.

The Allied 1st Airborne Army landed northeast of Xanten in the largest sky invasion in history, gliding and parachuting to earth from a sky train more than 500 miles long. Up to 30,000 sky troops landed after 10 A.M.

Decisive Victory Sure Says Montgomery

Also in the attack were elements of the Canadian 1st Army.

[Scottish troops who crossed the Rhine last night linked up today with airborne forces dropped this morning within range of Allied guns, a British Broadcasting Corporation correspondent reported this evening.]

The Rhine was being bridged. Field Marshal Montgomery's onslaught, following closely behind Rhine crossing by the United States 1st and 3d armies farther south, gained power every moment. Casualties were light. German resistance was spotty.

"The enemy has been driven into a corner and he cannot escape," Montgomery said in an order of the day, "the complete and decisive defeat of the Germans is certain."

One German General Killed At Wesel

The crack Argyle and Southern Highlanders spearheaded one of the initial crossings and entered Rees, across from Xanten.

A Commando brigade crossed at Wesel and so surprised the Germans that Major General Deutsch, commanding their flak artillery, was killed and the garrison commander captured.

Between Rees and Wesel, other forces pushed across the half-mile river and drove inland 2,000 to 3,000 yards in the first hours.

Co-ordinated with massive Russian attacks in the East, General Eisenhower had unleashed upward of 1,250,000 combat troops in eight or nine armies in a climactic onslaught.

Eisenhower's 82 identified divisions, 22 of them armored, were equipped as no armies before them had ever been.

The first preliminary crossings were made as early as 9 o'clock last night and the United States and British navies shepherded the men across in force before dawn today.

The Ruhr was caught between the American 1st Army's original Rhine bridgehead opposite Remagen and Bonn and the new crossing by Field Marshal Montgomery's troops to the north German plain.

Farther south, Lieut. Gen. George S. Patton's 3d Army rapidly expanded its upper Rhine crossing at a point between Mainz and Worms, 302 miles from the Russian front and 265 from Berlin. Ludwigshafen finally fell. The United States 7th Army virtually completed the cleanup of the Palatinate

Offensive Is Greatest Since D-Day

Elements of the Canadian 1st Army crossed the lower Rhine hard behind the Americans and British. The offensive—greatest since D-day—thus involved four Allied armies and four airforces as well as the United States and British navies. Lieut. Gen. Lewis H. Brereton's Allied 1st Airborne Army was operating deeper inland behind German lines violently assaulted by foot troops. The new offensive was described officially as "off to a good start and according to plan." Some fifteen to twenty German divisions of doubtful size opposed the massed Allied might from old-style trenches and hastily constructed gun positions.

The American 9th Army crossed the Rhine into the Ruhr itself, at an unspecified place south of Wesel and presumably north of Duisburg. The 9th had already conquered the western edge of the Ruhr and its cities of Krefeld and Muenchen Gladbach in drives last month up to the Rhine. Lieut. Gen. William H. Simpson's shock troops crossed the river between 2 and 3 A.M.

Planes And Artillery Give Troops Protection

The United States and British-Canadian troops crossed the lower Rhine protected by an earth-shaking artillery barrage and the bombing and strafing of thousands of planes.

This was perhaps the decisive crossing of the Rhine. All arms of the Allies participated.

Winston Churchill, at Montgomery's headquarters when lished a bridgehead 12 miles wide and as much as five miles deep, extending from the Lippe canal at Friederichsfeld, just south of Wesel, down the west side of the Ruhr railroad to Dinslaken, thence south to Walsum and beyond to the Rhine.

Ninth Severs Highway

In smashing into Dinslaken, a Ruhr city of 25,000 population, the Ninth severed the Wesel-Duisburg highway. It captured Spellem, three miles south of Wesel, nearby Friederichsfeld Torde, farther south, and Stockum.

All along the front, from the Wesel area down through the U. S. First army's burgeoning bridgehead and on southward to where the U. S. Third army was beginning to tear at the heart of Germany with tanks and troops, the feeling grew that the end of war in Europe was not far away.

Naval landing craft of the type used in the Normandy invasion brazenly plied the Rhine—long a symbol of Teutonic patriotism—feeding tanks, guns, troops and supplies into the four Allied bridgeheads scattered along some 200 miles of the river.

First reports from the front said Montgomery's northern forces had captured 1,500 prisoners and the Ninth had taken 700 more.

Field dispatches said the Germans were gathering tanks for an expected counterblow, but the feeling persisted that with the terrific losses suffered west of the Rhine, this time the enemy could not stop the Allied drive.

More than 10,000 Allied planes ruled inner Germany's skies, ferrying parachute troops, scattering the ground defenders with bombs, bullets and rockets, or heaping fresh destruction on already battered enemy communication lines to the flaming front.

Eisenhower had committed possibly 1,250,000 men to the battle of the west with this latest offensive, and to the south Lt. Gen. George S. Patton, Jr., crossed the Rhine personally to direct the Third army's offensive into middle Germany, now powered by tanks.

Rhine Bridged By Pontoons

The Rhine had been bridged by pontoons both in the Ruhr and the Third army's middle Rhine crossings and the big and final push was on to knock Germany quickly from the war.

Alarmed German broadcasts said that more Allied troops of the air were descending tonight over a broad front north of the Ruhr, whose loss will rob the enemy of power to resist.

German forces, stunned by the terrible drum fire of 1,100 guns massed on the Rhine's west bank, began surrendering by the hundreds as the first waves plunged out on the east bank from naval landing craft like those used on Normandy's beaches.

Smashing into open country 290 miles from Berlin the troops of Field Marshal Sir Bernard L. Montgomery were told by the 21st Army group commander that "the enemy is driven into a corner."

"It will be interesting to see how much longer the enemy can stand it; the complete and decisive defeat of the Germans is certain," declared Montgomery.

The long-rested British Second army, out of action since last September, opened the attack by crossing on the north flank at 8 p. m. last night. An hour later waves began moving across on the south flank.

In the dark of 2 a. m. went the U. S. Ninth army, and at 10 a. m. went the Allied First Airborne army—possibly 40,000 strong—leaping into the struggle from a fleet of 1,500 troop planes and trains of gliders 500 miles long in its first invasion of the Reich.

Canadians Also Attack

Elements of the Canadian First army also were committed to the attack, and thus the Allies of the west put at least six of their nine armies beyond the broken line of the Rhine—where German strategists had hoped to ward off the blows that could mean quick defeat for Hitler's Reich.

The U. S. Third army, with its surprise crossing of the middle Rhine, was fanning out rapidly on the mid-German plain that is a natural avenue to Berlin, hammering back feeble counterattacks.

The U. S. First army, between the Third and the four Allied armies storming the Ruhr, was speeding southward along the Rhine's east bank after shattering the Wied river line and was also ready now to turn its power northward to pinch off the Ruhr.

The Ruhr, arsenal of German military power, was already a land of death and destruction from one of the greatest aerial onslaughts in history.

Enemy military spokesmen, facing the blackest hour in the history of German arms, declared the Nazi high command "adopts the supreme principle of continuing the battle no matter what the circumstances," but admitted time was badly needed to prepare.

Montgomery declared the flower of four German armies already had been destroyed west of the Rhine.

Churchill Visits Montgomery

Prime Minister Churchill, who was at Montgomery's headquarters for the start of the drive, declared that "once the river line is pierced and the crust of German resistance is broken, the decisive victory in Europe will be near."

Eisenhower, unmasking a German secret order to execute captured Allied airborne troopers, warned the enemy by radio that retribution would await any officer, soldier or civilian who obeyed and no excuses would be accepted.

The first intimation to Germany's 35 waiting divisions that the decisive hour was at hand came Friday night when Montgomery's big guns, wheeled up to the very edge of the Rhine, opened up with a barrage which rocked the countryside for miles.

Then behind a 65-mile smoke screen so impenetrable that even the Allies had to use tracer bullets and powerful searchlights to mark a path, the first assault waves began to cross.

They moved in alligators and water buffalos—the sea-going craft common to the Pacific—in tank and infantry landing craft with landing ramps, manned by Navy men especially trained on the Maas in secret for a naval operation never before carried out so far from the sea.

the offensive was launched, declared:

"Once the river line is pierced and the crust of German resistance is broken, decisive victory in Europe will be near."

Wesel, an industrial railhead of the Ruhr Basin and a city of 25,000, is 32 miles northwest of Duesseldorf. Rees, a town of 4,500, is 11 miles down river to the northwest. Bislich is half a mile east of the river and nearly halfway between Wesel and Rees.

Strongest Nazi Forces Not Yet Encountered

The tremendous artillery barrage that preceded the assault and air landings across the Rhine made "opposition relatively light," Montgomery's headquarters said.

"Enemy forward positions were not strongly held, and more powerful forces and more mobile reserves have yet to be met," it was added.

The French 1st Army was in the Palatinate and along the upper Rhine. The whereabouts of the United States 15th Army was not yet reported.

The Brussels radio quoted an unconfirmed news agency report today that the French had crossed the Rhine in the area of Rastatt, 15 miles southwest of Karlsruhe.

Another Breakout Seen Near Below The Ruhr

Below the Ruhr, 1st and 3d Army troops of Lieut. Gen. Omar N. Bradley's 12th Army Group were bulging out their bridgeheads swiftly in what appeared to be a prelude to a breakout.

There seemed every reason to be optimistic over the success of the new crossing north of the Ruhr where Allied troops were throwing everything in the book of war at Field Marshal Albert Kesselring's staggered Wehrmacht.

British Commandos were the first across the ½-mile wide lower Rhine. Americans and others followed speedily in the moonlight. American engineers started throwing bridges across the river at the first light of dawn.

The whole offensive was mounted behind a 65-mile smoke screen, perhaps the greatest artificial fog ever produced.

Whole German Towns Are In Flames

The devastating aerial assault laid a scourge of fire and explosions on the battlefront, snapping German communications to the rear and vastly complicating the Nazis' problems of supply and deployment. Channel watchers said the thousands of planes leaving England were the greatest forces they had ever seen, and thousands more rose from airfields on the Continent closer to the battlelines to strafe and bomb and burn.

Whole towns on the German plain were burning—that plain is as broad as Kansas and as long as Pennsylvania.

Fifteen hundred transport planes and gliders set Brereton's airbone fighters down behind the German lines.

It was nine and a half months after D-day.

Hope was bright at supreme headquarters that victory might be measured in weeks.

This was the greatest amphibious operation since Normandy. The Rhine, indeed, was the greatest obstacle since the English Channel.

The new Rhine crossings employed the same technique as the Normandy landings. Artillery was placed right against the river. Guns of all caliber thundered at the Germans over open sights.

Large quantities of armored troops had been trained to cross the river in the profusion of LST's, Ducks, Alligators and Buffalos—secretly brought in by the United States and Royal navies. Sailors dropped their familiar blue garb for the olive drab of the infantry. Various classes of rafts and assault boats were used. Pontoons were constructed. Stormboats plied the Rhine in great strength.

The Rhine in the new crossing area has a five-mile current and low gravel banks.

The airborne troops came down against only moderate flak opposition.

Only Three Large Rivers Ahead

Beyond the Rhine, only three large north-south rivers cut through the flatland farms and dairying lands of Prussian Westphalia before Berlin. These are the Ems through Emden, the Weser through Bremen and the Elbe through Hannover.

Thaws are past and the ground is hardening under a blazing spring sun.

The operation threatened to cut off the whole Dutch territory south of the Zuider Zee, where the V-bombs have been launched against Britain. A slash to the sea would liberate such great Dutch cities as Amsterdam, Rotterdam, The Hague, Utrecht and Haarlem.

Dutch Patriots Told To Be Ready

Prince Bernhard, of the Netherlands, called on Dutch forces of the interior to be ready for orders.

The British 2d Army, commanded by Lieut. Gen. Sir Miles C. Dempsey, was in the van of the fresh attacks and on all its front the advance was going "according to plan," Associated Press Correspondent Pugh Moore reported.

The first British units across the Rhine were from the British 50th Royal Tank Regiment.

The Navy Men's Role

Units of the American Navy were secretly moved inland months ago to assist in the new battle, Associated Press Correspondent J. W. Gallagher reported from the Rhine. Nearly every type of landing craft and amphibious vehicle developed in the American and British armies in the past few years was used, and these were operated by sailors.

Riflemen of one of the most famous divisions of Lieut. Gen. William H. Simpson's 9th Army were among the first across. They sped across the river's dark waves in craft powered by outboard motors, at 25 miles an hour. Two engineers handled each boat.

gave this account of the Rhine

The second wave of Americans rode the same boats that were used to cross the Roer a month ago. Alligators and Buffalo craft like those used in the Pacific negotiated the Rhine.

Special Communique

Gen Eisenhower issued a special communiqué telling of the offensive, launched by the United States 9th, British 2d, Canadian 1st and Allied 1st Airborne armies. It said:

"The Allied forces today are crossing the Rhine river on a wide front north of the Ruhr.

"Elements of the 1st Allied Airborne Army have also landed east of the Rhine.

The German Account

"Operations are being assisted by Allied navies and air forces, following an intensive aerial preparation."

The German DNB news agency crossing in a broadcast:

"Last night strong British formations on both sides of Wesel began the long-awaited major offensive with a large-scale attempt to cross the river.

"A furious cannonading split the deceptive silence.

"A dense artillery barrage hailed down on the attackers. Dozens of assault boats drifted, shot to pieces, along the wide river or on the sand within a few minutes. Volleys were fired at British assault squads from hundreds of guns. According to information so far available, assault columns which reached the east bank were immediately mowed down in close combat.

"A gigantic battle is to be expected here immediately."

1st Army Pushes Ahead

The 1st Army advanced up to 2½ miles east from its original Remagen-Bonn front beyond the Rhine against a mystifying lack of opposition.

Hodges's northernmost troops were within a dozen miles of the southern boundary of the Ruhr.

Beyond Hennef, the 1st cut the road to Altenkirchen in a 2-mile advance. The troops beat down a small Nazi attack southeast of the village.

Along the eastern rim of the Remagen front in the wild Westerwald country, there was but slight contact with the foe. On the southern end of that front the infantrymen pushed 2 miles east of the breached Weid River line and captured Rengsdorf and Kurtscheid, both within easy artillery range of the fortress of Ehrenbreitstein, towering on the east side of the Rhine opposite captured Coblenz.

YANKS HOPEFUL VICTORY IS NEAR

Rhine Assault 'Beginning of the End,' Doughboys Feel.

By WES GALLAGHER

ON THE RHINE, March 24—(AP) For the first time the always-pessimistic American foot soldier feels tonight that this is the beginning of the last great battle which will bring the war to a quick end.

Everything the Allies have, including some weapons still on the secret list, has been thrown into this battle to crush the most powerful German fighting force left in the west, and amazing progress is being made by a combination of British and American skill and guts.

Many Prisoners Taken

Despite the enormity of the stake, German resistance at first was spotty and prisoners were taken in abnormal numbers in the opening hours of the attack.

I followed the Doughboys and Tommies from their secret assembly areas to the Rhine over moonlit roads and watched the attack develop from a front line regimental command post. Then I crossed the Rhine, and finally flew in a cub spotter plane to watch thousands of parachutists and glider troops drop into Germany.

The most impressive sight of all, as always, was that of long lines of silent infantry walking across the fields and along the roads. The sight always brings a tightness to one's throat.

Among the hundreds of factors contributing to the success of the vast, intricate attack was the icy courage of British commandos who lay within a mile of Wesel while 300 RAF Lancasters destroyed the town in 15 minutes of night precision bombing, then rushed into the flaming rubble and crushed the garrison of tough German parachute troopers.

Too, there was the bravery of American transport pilots who flew their cumbersome ships with heavy gliders in tow through a wall of flak and dropped grim airborne troops. Some returned in flames. Some did not return.

Yesterday afternoon a curtain of smoke blanketed the entire Ruhr and the Rhine from Duesseldorf to Arnhem. Most of it rose from the flaming buildings of the Ruhr and the impact of thousands of American and British bombs. The rest came from chemicals set off to screen Allied troop dispositions.

Men and machines lay silent until dusk. But with the darkness the Allied front stirred to life.

Convoys Rumble Forward

In the forests there came a rumble of tanks and trucks, and on the roads long convoys sprang forth loaded with every conceivable piece of equipment, including thousands of tons of bridging material and huge landing craft on giant trailers.

It seemed impossible that this vast assortment could be untangled and moved to the right place at the right time. But most of it got there.

Near the river dike a barrage from mortars kicked up dust and steel whistled about the veteran regimental command post in a ruined house.

In the cellar the commanding colonel—a short man with a 45 slung on his hip—was just getting his communications in order. It all had to be done by telephone for this division had been moved to the front secretly and could not use the wireless for fear of advertising its presence to the Germans.

"The worst thing about this period," he complained, "is that you have to sit and wait. There is nothing you can do, just sit and wait. You can't stop all this stuff from going on, nor can you help it any until the battle starts."

At the colonel's side was Lt. John F. McGee of Charleston, S. C., at 22 he is one of the youngest regimental operations officers in the business. He used to be a platoon leader and is thankful for his present job, declaring "it's safer" just as a mortar shell takes off the top of the house next door.

Another operations officer finds the jump-off time especially fitting as it is the exact hour he was born 32 years ago. He is Capt. Arne Nielsen, Oakland, Calif.

British Begin Barrage

Shortly after dark there is a thunder to the north from the big guns. The British have begun their preliminary barrage, a barrage that is to go on for four hours.

The jump-off was staggered, with the British northern flank launching its attack at 8 p. m., the southern flank at 9 p. m. and then the Ninth army to the south at 2 a. m.

From the time those guns opened up the front was a continuous roar, reaching such a crescendo at times that plaster fell from the walls. The concussion of the guns pulled at your clothes.

Just north of this command post British commandos slipped across the river in the darkness at 10 p. m. and sliced through the river defenses. Then they hid out a scant 1,500 yards from the key German stronghold in Wesel.

At 10:20 p. m. there was a heavy droning in the sky and more than 300 Lancasters with blockbusters labored overhead with railway schedule precision. It was their job to find the town in the dark and flatten it without hitting the commandos.

Standing in the backyard I could see the attack. The first bombs hit and for 15 minutes the town flamed and jumped under the explosions. Overhead, almost in a funnel straight into the sky, burst hundreds of flak flashes. These flashes were mute testimony that every bomb was hitting in the target area for they funneled directly up over the town.

Planes Thunder By

Plane after plane thundered by. Some were less than 1,000 feet up. When they finished the town appeared to be just a red glow.

Twenty minutes later in the cellar command post came the first report from the commandos.

"Our only trouble is in taking care of the number of prisoners we are getting," it said.

Outside the command post the infantry marched by, followed by tanks, buffaloes and a hundred other kinds of instruments of war. Occasionally a mortar or tank shell hit nearby, but no one paid any attention.

There is no excitement but an undercurrent of worry always seizes command posts just before a big attack.

"I just hope we get the boats in the water before they spot us," says operations officer, Maj. Julius

W. Singleton of Morgantown, W. Va.

Dozens of young officers come in and out of the command post with a thousand assignments, demonstrating the tremendous complications of modern war and particularly of this attack.

One of these is Lt. Henry L. Hatherman, Providence, R. I. His job is to get three bulldozers down to the river. If alligators can't climb the dike, he is to rip it down with his bulldozers, then hide them as much as possible. Later he is to load them on three Navy landing craft and take them to the other side where they will go to work building landing ways for other equipment.

Down on the river, cranes are trying to lift huge U. S. Navy boats off their trailers. The cranes break under the strain and the cumbersome vessels are manhandled off into the water.

Later, infantry waves carried other 1,000-pound assault boats down to the river on their backs so that the first waves could climb aboard and land on the other side fresh.

The river was covered with smoke and you could scarcely see your hand before your face. To mark the navigation lanes across the river tracers were being fired in lanes.

In other places big flashlights were tied in bundles on the east bank and used to guide later arrivals.

Motorboat hobbyists, who were recruited from all over the army, were transferred weeks ago to handle the storm craft with their outboard motors. One of these was Pfc. James L. Killingsworth of Longview, Tex.

"I had a hell of a time on my trip," Killingsworth said as he trudged up the bank guarding some German prisoners brought back by returning boats. "My motor conked out in midstream and I had two wounded men on board, including the assistant operator. I still don't know how I got it started again and got to shore."

Nazis Mortar Boats

The Germans tried to mortar the boats as they crossed the river, but casualties were surprisingly light for the magnitude of the operations. All up and down the river for miles the scene at this beachhead was repeated.

Back at command posts, lines on the maps ranged deeper and deeper into the Reich as battalion after battalion landed and pushed inland. In this sector they encountered few mines. Apparently the Germans had not had time to plant them.

Many German soldiers gave up after only a brief struggle. More than 250 were lying face downward just behind the dike under guards. They already had been ferried back across the river. Many were young and sullen but the fight was all gone out of them.

The Navy boats, alligators and ducks made repeated trips across the river. But the storm boats which carried the first waves were left scattered on the opposite shore, their purpose achieved.

Many motor boat operators said long practice and close study of sand table relief maps saved their lives as they got lost in the smoke and did not know where they were on the river.

Nazis Hurled Back

With the coming of daylight the Germans had been pushed back out of smallarms range of the river in some sectors.

When this was accomplished the stream of traffic changed to heavy bridging equipment. Thousands of engineers forced their way to the sloping bank with hundreds of pieces of gear.

They had the biggest short-term engineering job of the war, the building of enough bridges across one of the largest rivers in Europe to move three full armies.

The task is comparable to building enough bridges across the Hudson to move the entire Bronx population and its household equipment in a few days.

The engineers have to work under fire for days in one of the war's roughest tasks. One engineer was seen in a truck going upstream with an arm in a sling. When asked what he could do thus injured, he raised the other hand and said, "I still have another arm left."

Battle Most Intricate Yet, Eyewitness Says

By J. W. Gallagher

On the Rhine, March 24 (AP)—Fighting the most intricate battle ever planned by American and British soldiers, elements of three armies were making amazing progress today after crossing the Rhine by a combination of skill and guts.

To get a ringside view of the greatest co-ordinated attack ever staged on the Western front I followed the doughboys and Tommies from their secret assembly areas to the Rhine over moonlit roads, watched the attack develop from a front-line regimental command post, went across the river and finally took a flight in a cub airplane for a 3,000-foot-high seat over the great Rhine for the air drop by thousands of paratroopers and glider troops.

"Beginning Of Last Battle"

I will try to draw into one view the tremendous overall significance of the attack by the ordinary men of Britain and America turned soldier.

There is not a man, American or British, from generals to privates, who does not feel that this is the beginning of the last major battle that will bring the war to a quick end.

It is the first time that this feeling has permeated into the hearts of the always pessimistic GI's who have to do the fighting.

Everything the Allies, amateurs to begin with, have learned in three years of war has been thrown into this battle against the most powerful German fighting force left on the Western front.

What Nazis Stand To Lose

German defeat now means loss of the Ruhr, opening of the gate to Berlin, an eventual linkup with the Russian armies and loss of the war for the Germans.

Despite these stakes, German resistance at first was spotty. Abnormal numbers of German prisoners were taken in small attacks. One division alone had nearly 1,000 before the morning was over.

It was the same type of feeble resistance that was encountered at the Roer last month, when German soldier morale slid down and the front collapsed.

But the Allied attack was succeeding primarily not because of German morale.

Wesel Flattened In 15 Minutes

It was because of these factors and hundreds like them:

The calm, icy courage of British Commandos who lay within 1,500 yards of Wesel while the RAF put on one of the greatest night precision attacks of the war. Three hundred Lancasters flattened the town in 15 minutes.

The Commandos rushed into the flaming rubble and crushed the resistance of tough German parachute troopers.

The bravery of American transport pilots who flew their cumbersome ships with heavy gliders in tow into a storm of flak to drop airborne troops. Sometimes they came back across the Rhine in flames, sometimes not at all.

How Battle Developed

But these are only snapshots in the great battle. Here is how it developed:

Yesterday afternoon a pall of smoke hung over the entire Ruhr and the Rhine from Duesseldorf to Arnhem. Some of it was the result of Allied smoke pots along the river, but most of it was from flaming buildings of the Ruhr and the impact of thousands of American and British bombers and fighters.

There was little movement behind the front late yesterday afternoon as the 9th Army and the British 2d Army lay quiet.

But with darkness, the front stirred to life. From the forests came the rumble of tanks and trucks, and on the roads long convoys sprang forth like magic with loads of every conceivable weapon, thousands of tons of bridging material and huge landing craft on their giant trailers.

Some Weapons Still Secrets

Some of the weapons were still on the Allied secret list.

You wondered how this vast assortment of equipment could get untangled and arrive at the right place at the right time. Most of it did. When it did not or failed of its purpose American or British ingenuity found a way to do without it.

But far more impressive, as always, were the long lines of silent infantry hiking across the fields and along the roads. The sight brought a tightness to one's throat.

Near the river dike a barrage from mortars kicked up dust, and steel whistled about the veteran regimental command post in a ruined house.

Moved Secretly To Front

In the cellar the commanding colonel—a short man with a .45 slung on his hip—was just getting his communications in order. It all had to be done by telephone, for this division had been moved to the front secretly and could not use the wireless for fear of advertising its presence to the Germans.

"The worst thing about this period," the colonel complained, "is that you have to sit and wait. There is nothing you can do, just sit and wait. You can't stop all this stuff from going on, nor can you help it any until the battle starts."

At the colonel's side was Lieut. John F. McGee, of Charleston, S.C. At 22 he is one of the youngest regimental operations officers in the business.

"It's Safer," He Says, Bang!

He used to be a platoon leader and is thankful for his present job, declaring "it's safer," just as a mortar shell took off the top of the house next door.

Another operations officer finds the jumpoff time especially fitting as it is the exact hour he was born 32 years ago. He is Capt. Arne Nielsen, of Oakland, Cal.

Shortly after dark there is a thunder to the north from the big guns. The British have begun their preliminary barrage, a barrage that is to go on for four hours.

Attack Is Staggered

The jump-off was staggered, with the British northern flank launching its attack at 8 P.M., the southern flank at 9 P.M. and then the 9th Army to the south at 2 A.M.

Just north of this command post, British Commandos slipped across the river at 10 P.M. and sliced through the river defenses. Then they hid out a scant 1,500 yards from the key German strong point in Wesel.

Planes On Schedule

At 10.30 P.M. there was a heavy droning in the sky and more than 300 Lancasters, with blockbusters, labored overhead with railway schedule precision. It was their job to find the town in the dark and flatten it without hitting the Commandos.

First Report Received

Twenty minutes later, in the cellar command post, came the first report from the Commandos.

Tremendous Complications

To Go Across Later

Later he is to load them on three navy landing craft and take them to the other side where they will go to work building landing ways for other equipment.

Engineers Take Over

When this was accomplished the stream of traffic changed to heavy bridging equipment. Thousands of engineers forced their way to the sloping bank with hundreds of pieces of gear.

They had the biggest short-term engineering job of the war, the building of enough bridges across one of the largest rivers in Europe to move three full armies.

The task is comparable to building enough bridges across the Hudson to move the entire Bronx population and its household equipment in a few days.

The engineers have to work under fire for days in one of the war's roughest tasks.

Wounded, But Keeps On

One engineer, an arm in a sling, was seen in a truck going upstream. When asked what he could do, he raised his other hand and said, "I still have another arm left."

"We are going to break all records," declared Lieut. Walter Dannenberg, of Cambridge, Mass., who had a surveyor's pole in hand.

As the morning advanced there came a new crisis in the battle raging along the entire front under a canopy of Allied planes. That was the task of dropping airborne troops.

To watch it I had a seat in a cub plane piloted by Capt. Odell Williamson, of Charlotte, N.C.

1,500 Planes Drop Troops

A slight wind had come up, blowing the smoke away from the river and leaving the left bank of the Rhine in clear view. The Cub had to fly high to keep out of the way of some 1,500 transport craft dropping troops from 10 A.M. to 1 P.M.

The drop was one of the most complicated feats of arms thus far in the war. It was being made in daylight in one of the heaviest flak belts in Europe by slow transports towing gliders—sitting targets for ground gunners.

To meet this threat of the German anti-aircraft defense, British gunners at 9 o'clock fired shells which burst in the air just above known German flak positions, trying to knock out the personnel.

Half-Hour Assault

At the same time scores of fighter-bombers hit at German flak positions deeper in the battle zone. That assault continued for half an hour. Then it had to stop so that the drop areas would not be covered with smoke and dust.

No Allied guns could fire in or near the area during the drop because of the danger of hitting Allied planes or troops.

Thus the drop, at the peak of the battle, came in a lull in the battle's roar.

Plenty Of Flak Remained

Some flak positions may have been knocked out, but there were plenty left as two streams of C-47's crossed the river to the north, dropped their passengers and then swung out to the south.

The cub flew high above the scene at the point where the C-47's came out. We could see the planes going straight into the flak as though craft and crews were armor-plated. Smoke obscured the drop, but not the planes.

In 14 minutes some planes flamed orange from direct hits. They trailed long streams of fire as the pilots fought desperately to hold control until they had crossed the Rhine where their crews could jump in safe territory.

Two Side By Side In Flames

Some exploded in flight. Others fell at the river's edge.

Two were seen flaming almost side by side as they streaked for the Rhine.

"Look," shouted Williamson, pointing. "Look at those poor devils. You've got to hand it to those C-47 pilots, just sitting there and taking it."

Williamson whipped his cub about and cut in close to the two flying coffins. There was nothing to do but just sit there and watch helplessly. One plane had its motor on fire and the pilot was trading altitude grudgingly against time in an effort to make a crash landing in an open field.

Pilots Stay With Planes

The other was burning from the wings. Suddenly parachutes—two of them—billowed out. The pilot apparently stayed with his plane to give the crewmen a chance to bail out.

Suddenly the plane dived toward the ground. But before it hit it exploded with a smoky, reddish glare.

The first pilot must have seen his companion go down, but he stayed with his ship. He skimmed a row of trees and crash landed in the field. For a moment it looked as if he was safe. But the crash apparently broke open the gas tanks.

Ship A Red Glare

The entire ship was engulfed in a red glare. No one was seen to get out.

While this was going on a stream of transports plunged across the Rhine like a relentless tide.

The big picture of war went on, but some of the little actors were gone.

EISENHOWER HITS AT THE VITAL SPOT

Eyewitness, Describing Opening of Attack, Says Armies Believe Its Success Will End the War.

By WES GALLAGHER.

On the Rhine With United States Ninth Army, March 24 (A.P.).—Field Marshal Montgomery's forces have crossed the Rhine in great strength north of the Ruhr onto the great flat plain leading to Berlin where a breakthrough would leave Germany at the mercy of Gen. Eisenhower and promote a collapse of the eastern front at the same time.

This probably is the most vital spot in all Germany. It offers the greatest possibility for mobile warfare. The plain opens the way to Denmark and the northern ports of Hamburg, Bremen and Emden, as well as Berlin.

The Germans know this well and have been making frantic efforts since the collapse west of the Rhine to strengthen their northern front, but it is doubtful if they have had either the time or the materials to develop sufficient fortifications.

Virtually every weapon of war was thrown into the attack by this northern group of Allied armies — amphibious craft of every description, airborne troops, elements of three armies, long artillery preparation and days of heavy air attacks to isolate the battlefield.

Greatest Operation Since D Day.

When the Ninth Army went across at 2 A. M. it was part of the greatest amphibious attack since the Normandy invasion. The Rhine is the widest inland water barrier yet faced in the campaign by any army.

British Commandos crossed the river first in the north. They were followed by other waves of Allied troops under cover of darkness. Later in the day thousands of airborne troops in their brightly colored parachutes and gliders came down a short distance across the river.

With the first light of day, engineers rushed to the river bank under clouds of smoke put up by Negro troops in chemical units and started putting a bridge across. The several days of intense aerial bombardment had knocked out German communications leading to the battle zone.

No strategic surprise was hoped for. It was a straight power thrust. The Germans knew Montgomery's group of armies was planning to cross and knew where the best crossing spots were. All that was hoped for was to surprise them as to the exact time.

Not Much Germans Can Do.

The main question was what the Germans could do about it. The best estimates of the situation are that they cannot do a great deal. Despite reinforcements they certainly are weaker than when the Ninth Army crossed the Roer in the drive to the Rhine, having lost at least half of their western front strength in that offensive.

It is just one month and one day since the Roer offensive was launched. It is two weeks since the last elements of the German Army gave up the Wesel bridgehead, their last hold west of the lower Rhine.

Since that time extremely favorable weather has allowed Allied air forces to smash daily at German communications, and every attempt of the German general staff to build up protection for the Ruhr has been met by a deluge of bombs.

British Had Long Rest.

Montgomery built up this blow with his usual meticulous care. Nothing was left to chance. Every opportunity was taken to bring every ounce of Allied power into the play, even at the expense of some delay. A winter of preparation has gone into the assault and months of accumulation of men and material.

The Ninth Army is one of the most powerful and experienced striking forces on the front, with every division composed of seasoned veterans. The Second British Army is in action really for the first time since Arnheim last September, and is backed by reinforcements and months of rest.

RHINE WRITERS PROTEST

Correspondents in Battle Curbed by Ninth Army Censor

WITH THE UNITED STATES NINTH ARMY, in Germany, March 24 (AP)—Nearly fifty American and British correspondents with the United States Ninth Army protested tonight against Supreme Headquarters' handling of the news release of the Rhine-crossing offensive, which left many of them stranded on an event they had risked their lives to cover, while correspondents many miles from the scene wrote the story second-hand.

United States Ninth Army correspondents were not notified that censorship on the offensive had been released until fifteen minutes after the story had been given to correspondents in Paris and Brussels. Up to the last moment, censors at the Ninth Army, acting on information, told correspondents that the story of the offensive could not be released until 4 P. M.

Third's Rhine Grip Called Secure

By Edward D. Ball

With the United States 3d Army Across the Rhine, March 24 (AP)—The 3d Army rapidly expanded today the Rhine bridgehead which it established yesterday after crossing the stream in one of the boldest strokes of the European war.

Lieut. Gen. George S. Patton's troops continued to pour across the river, steadily strengthening the force on the eastern shore. The bridgehead has been expanded so swiftly that it was regarded at supreme headquarters as secure. Opposition remained light.

Crossed At Two Places, Nazis Say

The Germans said Patton's troops burst across the river at two places—near Oppenheim, 10 miles south of conquered Mainz, and near Worms, 10 miles farther south. The river opposite Oppenheim is 265 miles southwest of Berlin and 302 miles from Russian troops menacing the capital from the southeast.

If the German account of the crossing locale was correct, open country was ahead of Patton on the road to Berlin. Ahead straight to the northeast lies the rolling Frankfurt Plain, unbroken in its whole 302 miles across the narrowest waist of the Reich to the Red Army assault lines near the Oder southeast of the ravaged capital.

Nazi Blows Repulsed

A news blackout prevented correspondents from reporting additional information. We were permitted to say that the Germans, who were utterly surprised by the doughboys' initial thrust, reacted late yesterday with one small counterattack that was repulsed.

Another small counterattack was smeared easily last night, and our artillery broke up a third as it was being organized. Two Nazi tanks were destroyed.

The record prisoner bag by the 3d Army yesterday totaled 11,699 processed through the cages. It was estimated that an additional 3,000 were taken during the day.

New Juncture Made

In the fighting outside the bridgehead area, armored units of the 3d and United States 7th armies made an additional juncture southwest of Landau, and the 10th Armored Division cleared the last enemy remnants from Ludwigshafen.

In addition the 10th cleared Gossenweiler, 16 miles southwest of Neustadt. Other armored elements reached the vicinity of Westheim, 7 miles southwest of Speyer.

In the bridgehead area the months of preparation and rehearsal paid off as the doughboys, reinforced by a steady flow of men and supplies, maintained pressure on the enemy.

Crossing Area Strafed

The astounded Nazis failed to fire even one burst as the initial waves stormed across the Rhine in assault boats Thursday night. It was two hours after the crossing that the enemy fired his first heavy artillery salvo.

By late yesterday, however, the Germans were shelling, bombing and strafing the crossing site.

Trucks Line Roads For Miles

It was at 10.25 P.M. that Patton's doughboys started to cross the Rhine.

By dawn the first waves of doughboys had pushed inland. Assault craft, including amphibious ducks, were plying back and forth across the calm water.

The Rhineland had never witnessed such an amazing sight. For miles back the roads were lined with vehicles struggling up the hills. For months these trucks, with their tons of assault boats, had been edging toward the front at night and hiding out by day.

For months these columns of trucks with their assault boats had been edging toward the front at night and hiding out by day. The men began assembling in groups of twelve along the tree-lined west bank at nightfall. A quiet command was issued shortly after 10 P. M. The first wave moved out of the shadows, carrying their assault boats with six men on each side. They slipped the boats into the water.

Yanks Get Across.

At 10:25 P. M. came this message from a walkie-talkie radio on the Rhine's east bank: "—— Blank company across. No fire received at all. Everything quiet."

More men started across. About that time the picnic ended. German burp guns on the other side cracked. That was twenty minutes after the first doughboys pulled ashore. Things began popping then all along the Rhine. A couple of machine guns fired blue tracers our way. They didn't last long.

From the east bank came blood-curdling screams as the doughboys charged two enemy nests.

"That was a Heinie," commented Pfc. Evans Huffstetler of Charlotte, N. C. "They all do that when they get it—like stuck pigs."

West Bank Operations.

In the fighting outside the bridgehead area armored units of the Third and Seventh made an additional juncture southwest of Landau, and the Tenth Armored Division cleared the last enemy remnants from Ludwigshafen.

In addition the Tenth cleared Gossenweiler, sixteen miles southwest of Neustadt. Other armored elements reached the vicinity of Westheim, seven miles southwest of Speyer.

3d's Crossing Planned 3 Months In Advance

Twelfth Army Group Headquarters, March 24 (AP)—The United States 3d Army crossing of the Rhine Thursday night was no fluke. It was planned three months ago for the very place where it occurred.

Lieut. Gen. George S. Patton, Jr., got the go-ahead from the group commander, Lieut. Gen. Omar N. Bradley, at a conference on an airfield Tuesday.

'This Is It,' GI's Feel Sure

U.S. 1st Army Across the Rhine, March 24 (AP)—Powerful Allied assaults on the Western front have wiped out Rhine River defenses and General Eisenhower's armies now stand on the threshold of complete victory over Germany.

This is the feeling along this Army's front tonight.

Not in two and a half years of war has such optimism prevailed among troops and officers as that which is cheering soldiers hearing news of new crossings of the Rhine against light enemy resistance.

There is a growing feeling that "this is it."

Everywhere there is that sense of an impending finish to a long conflict—the feeling that this time the Germans cannot muster enough strength to stop the powerhouse drives of the Allies.

Eisenhower at the Rhine, Watches 9th Go Across

With Simpson, He Keeps Vigil in Ruined Church Tower

AT THE RHINE, in Germany, March 24 (AP).—General Eisenhower watched the 9th Army assault over the Rhine last night and early today from a ruined church tower overlooking the river.

With the 9th's commander, Lieutenant General William H. Simpson, Eisenhower watched the bombardment which opened the assault, and this morning witnessed the air-borne operations.

While watching the air-borne show he saw one plane catch fire, and exclaimed: 'I pray the crew gets out." At that instant, parachutes blossomed from the doomed plane and Eisenhower said: "That's a relief."

Ride Across Rhine Is Denied Churchill

With the British Army on the Rhine, March 24 (AP)—Prime Minister Churchill, with the usual cigar clamped in his teeth, watched the Rhine crossing operations today from a spot overlooking the great river's banks.

Accompanied by Field Marshal Montgomery and Field Marshal Sir Alan Brooke, chief of the imperial general staff, the 70-year-old Prime Minister chaffed when officers turned thumbs down on his plea to ride across the river.

The British leader's unexpected visit caught the troops by surprise. Those who saw him cheered.

Huge Paratroop Planes Drop Men From 2 Doors

C-46 Commandos Carry 36 Each in Rhine Action

For the Combined Allied press

WITH THE ALLIED 1ST AIRBORNE ARMY, March 24 (AP).—The C-46 Commando, a giant troop-carrying aircraft, made history over Germany today by tumbling 1st Air-Borne Army paratroops from both sides at once.

The new drop technique, used for the first time in the co-ordinated Allied assault east of the Rhine, revolutionizes air-borne operations by doubling the fire and fighting power each transport plane can take into battle. On D Day, and in southern France and at Arnhem, eighteen paratroopers dropped from one door of each C-47 carrier. Today thirty-six sky men fell from two doors of each C-46.

This American-produced super-transport has a range of 1,800 miles which it flies at more than 250 miles an hour. It is fitted with radar and can carry almost four tons. Twin engines give it 4,000 horsepower. A further development is a four-bladed propeller instead of the usual three.

Gen. Quesada in Germany

9th Tactical Air Command Leader Escorts Allied Sky Train

ADVANCED HEADQUARTERS, United States 9th Air Force, March 24 (AP).—The Allied sky train which streamed into Germany today was escorted by at least one two-star pilot—Major General Elwood R. Quesada, leader of the United States 9th Tactical Air Command.

After seeing that fighter-bomber patrols were properly disposed, Quesada then shepherded two planes and gliders to the dropping areas. Quesada and his wingman, Colonel Gilbert L. Meyers, operations chief of the 9th Tactical Air Command, took off from a former German airfield and were aloft more than four hours.

With U.S. Airborne Troops, March 24 (AP)—A sky-sweeping fleet of C-47 transport planes—some laden with parachute troops, others towing gliders—launched the first aerial invasion of Germany today with a series of daring daylight landings east of the Rhine.

Thousands of battle-tested 'chutists and glider infantrymen swarmed over the sunlit plain shortly before noon, a few hours after Field Marshal Montgomery's forces began pouring across the Rhine on the left flank of the Western front, some 300 airline miles from Berlin.

Some Fought In Bulge

I am flying in with a glider load of men, some of whom are going into this fight with a score to settle. These were men who had fought the Germans in the Ardennes bulge.

Seated in the flimsy canvas and wood box around me are ten other fellows, including Sergt. James Keeney, of 2603 Francis street, Baltimore, and Pfc. Walter Myers, of 326 West Washington street, Hagerstown.

"Now it's our turn," said Lieut. Col. J. W. Paddock, veteran of North Africa, Sicily, Italy, southern France and the Ardennes, whose parents live in Portland, Ore., and whose wife and son live in Virginia Beach, Va.

Full Of Explosives

"All I hope is that the wings don't come off this thing," declared the 30-year-old tank and artillery expert as he climbed into the glider. "We ought to paint 'V-3' on the side of it, it's so full of explosives."

This outfit is spoiling for a fight. We moved off this morning after a 5 A.M. breakfast of steak, eggs and cherry pie. The weather is warm and sunny. There is not a cloud in the sky to keep the Thunderbolts, Mustangs and Typhoons from helping in this show.

Record In Numbers

Never before have so many troops been entrained from the skies on so small an area and in such a brief space of time.

For the first time the C-47's have gone into combat with two gliders instead of one in tow. Most of the transports now have self-sealing gasoline tanks and they won't blow up like giant firecrackers if incendiary bullets strike vulnerable spots.

500-Mile Train Of Planes Drops Huge Sky Army

Fighters Dive on Flak Guns as Gliders and Chutists Descend East of Rhine

By Alex H. Singleton

ABOARD A GLIDER TUG, East of the Rhine, March 24 (AP).—I saw history's mightiest air armada—officially 500 miles long—soar triumphantly across the placid Rhine today and deposit thousands of battle-toughened American and British air-borne troops in an enemy defense zone plastered in advance by an unprecedented artillery and bomb barrage.

The size of the air-borne army was not announced—although some said it ranged up to 40,000 men. But from a bird's-eye view in the co-pilot's seat of a Royal Air Force Stirling transport I saw thousands of American paratroopers spill into the air and descend to the smoke-shrouded battlefield.

Simultaneously, gliders carrying British troops cut loose and swooped gracefully to the shell-pocked ground. Sharp fire bursts around gliders showed the troops promptly wheeled into action.

There were men of the British 6th and United States 17th Air-borne Division, specially trained for the hazardous assignment designed to pick the rear lock of the German river defense.

For a few breathless minutes it was an aerial traffic jam made doubly hazardous by bursts of flak which brought down at least one transport tug and one glider.

Swirling, darting and curving in a dance of the sky to the tune of engines of 1,500 transports, overtoned by those of hundreds of fighters, the air armada poured out at least 16,000 to 18,000 men in one area alone.

Below, only a few miles from the scene of the British air-borne stand at Arnhem, the flat fields of defenses which Adolf Hitler once vowed never would be breached were dotted with multi-hued parachutes and gliders pouring out troops and equipment.

Above, the air armada curved in a gigantic "U" as the 500-mile stream of planes came in two abreast, methodically dropped their tows, banked in sharp turns, and soared methodically back across the Rhine.

German planes gave no opposition.

Allied Batteries Silenced

The long procession, streaming out from bases in Britain and France, served as the signal to silence the smoke-screened batteries of Field Marshal Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's big guns as the first plane nosed across the Rhine.

In broad daylight under a powder-blue sky the fleets flowed over the landing area, across gray-green valley lands once planted for potatoes but now plowed by tank tracks and furrowed by shells.

From the dark patches of timberland stripped and torn by shell fire, from bomb-battered cellars of skeleton-like farmhouses, poured bursts of intermittent anti-aircraft fire as the reeling Germans attempted to recover from the pre-zero hour barrage to meet the challenge.

But when puffs of smoke betrayed the presence of flak batteries, rocket-firing fighters swooped down from the prowling air cover to blast their positions and take over where the west-bank guns had left off.

In the hundreds of transport tugs—as in the Stirling in which I flew—crews tensely rode up the run in freight-train fashion to deliver their tows and drop their human cargoes.

Soon after our Stirling crossed the Rhine going in, a glider pilot called out over the intercom: "Release now?"

"No," said the Stirling's skipper.

A few seconds later again came the urgent cry, "Now? Now?"

"No, no, no!" shouted the skipper. "I swear I'll wait until we reach the marker."

Then as the marker—Railroad Line 66 was approached—came back his signal, "Release now."

Suddenly the Stirling lunged forward, free of the tow.

Little Enemy Movement Seen

"We're getting flak up here now," the tail gunner reported calmly.

Swiftly the pilot banked, circled, dodged a darting fighter by what seemed to be only a few yards and headed back for England.

Below in this section were hundreds of parachutes lying discarded on the ground as the paratroopers dug in. Along the road near by were a dozen burned-out, wrecked vehicles, one of them a tank. Half a dozen smoked in a field in which several gliders were sprawled.

Airborne Units Fight As Soon As They Land

New York, March 24 (AP)—Herbert Clark, Blue network correspondent, reported that 40,000 airborne troops were used in today's invasion across the Rhine.

By Alex H. Singleton

Aboard a 1st Allied Airborne Army Glider Tug, March 24 (AP)—A powerful Allied airborne force—American parachute troops and British glider troops—landed east of the Rhine today in support of a major crossing by Field Marshal Montgomery's forces.

In history's biggest operation of its kind—in which about 1,500 transports and hundreds of fighters participated—the airborne troops struck in broad daylight.

The German Air Force failed to rise in opposition. Only light flak was encountered.

Out To Build Bridgehead

The task of the airborne troops was clear-cut—to carve out a bridgehead on the east bank until Montgomery's men could cross the river in force and join them for a drive into the heart of Germany.

From the copilot's seat of a Stirling four-engined transport, I watched hundreds of United States parachute troops spilling earthward while gliders, some of them laden with jeeps and with guns as big as 75's, dived toward their assignment of shattering completely the German defense on the Rhine.

Softening-Up Well Done

But apparently the task of softening up the defenses had been done well. The tremendous artillery barrage ended minutes before the first of the troop carriers crossed the Rhine.

Rocket-firing fighters had roared in to soften up anti-aircraft defenses.

Below the haze was the smoke-shrouded fighting on terrain pocked by thousands of shell and bomb craters.

Bursts of smoke beside the newly landed British gliders offered quick evidence the airborne forces had gone into action immediately.

Gliders From England

The airborne army had formed at dawn in columns stretching scores of miles. The glider troops assembled "somewhere in England" and the parachute troopers "somewhere in France." The new American C-46 Commandos, each of them towing two gliders, brought in the Americans.

The operation, timed to the minute, went off with clockwork precision.

The traffic situation in the sky above the landing area, packed with darting fighters, lumbering transports and graceful gliders, resembled Times Square on New Year's Eve or Picadilly Circus in London during the theater hour.

Hitting Hitler Keystone

High Royal Air Force officers declared the airborne operation, if successful in its purpose of giving Montgomery a chance to consolidate his crossing, would dynamite a keystone of Hitler's defense and prove a decisive blow toward ending the war quickly.

The operation was planned differently from that at Arnhem or in the original invasion.

This time, the landing spots for each group were worked out carefully so that when the gliders reached the ground the troops were able to go into action immediately, rather than arranging in advance for a rendezvous and a regrouping to obtain a balanced-fighting force.

Airtroops Eager To Settle Score For Belgian Bulge

MAR 25 1945

MAR 25 1945

Everything that could fly was in the air today, according to Major Robert M. Blackburn of Des Moines, Iowa, who said that the parachute and glider troops moved in after an intense artillery barrage. "They were catching plenty of ack-ack," he added.

Lieut. Roy A. Burns Jr. of Bryte, Cal., said that the German artillery blasting at the invaders was intense and that the roads were jammed with civilians frantically attempting to escape the combat area.

Major Terry M. Lusby of Owenton, Ky., said that there were so many boats on the Rhine that they looked like ducks on a pond. "The Allies seem to have four to five times as much artillery as the Germans," he said.

Air Army Trained For Climax Blow

[By the Associated Press]

Allied airborne forces which spilled out of the sky today behind the German defenders of the Rhine were organized specifically for just such a task—injection into a climactic situation with lightning speed.

Lieut. Gen. Lewis H. Brereton's 1st Allied Airborne Army, composed chiefly of British and American parachute troops and glider-borne troops, first went into action as an army last September when an attempt was made to seize a series of crossings of the various branches of the lower Rhine in Holland.

Germans Overpowered

American airborne forces succeeded in overpowering the German defenders of a bridge over the Nijmegen, but the British 1st Airborne Division, the "Red Devils," were forced to withdraw from across the Neder Ryn at Arnhem. They had been dropped 50 miles behind the enemy lines, the weather closed in, and they were unable to receive reinforcements necessary to hold their bridgehead.

Previously, however, Allied airborne forces were employed in great strength in the Normandy landings.

These forces contributed greatly to the success of the D-day invasion.

Designed For Mobility

Supreme headquarters in announcing the establishment of the force on August 10 described it as "approximating an army in size and importance." An army may have from six to nine divisions, with more than 10,000 men in each division.

Welded together in the new unit are airborne ground combat troops and the men who fly them, an innovation designed to give this airborne army unprecedented coordination and mobility.

Heretofore airborne soldiers have been strictly a part of the ground forces while the men who flew them were attached to various air forces.

Former Air Force Head

The dual nature of the airborne army is reflected in the record of its commanding officer. Brereton formerly commanded the United States 9th Air Force based in Britain, whose troop carrier command flew American parachute troops and glider infantry in the invasion.

General Brereton, fifty-four ears old, was an air leader in the hilippine, Indian and Egyptian ampaigns in this war. His mili-ry career began with an Annap-is naval commission. Before the rst world war he served in both e Army Signal Corps and the rtillery.

England

PARIS, [illegible] 24 (AP)—The American and British naval forces that ferried Field Marshal Montgomery's troops and heavy equipment across the Rhine today rehearsed for months in England to perfect their amphibious technique.

It was long apparent that the armies would need ferry service across the Rhine between the time bridgeheads were started and bridges were thrown across. A number of exhaustive experiments were carried out on rivers in the United Kingdom having banks and current similar to those of the Rhine.

Instead of operating through waves and surf to beaches constantly changing with the tide, the crews had to learn to maneuver their craft to and from pinpoint landing spots in strong currents running at right angles to their courses.

The armies needed fast craft sturdy enough to carry tanks, bulldozers and mobile guns safely. It was finally decided that LCM's [Landing Craft, Medium], which weigh twenty-six tons, and LCVP's [Landing Craft, Vehicles and Personnel], which weigh nine tons, were the largest types suited to the Army's requirements that could be carried overland.

Both craft have bows that lower to form ramps for loading and unloading, making mechanical loading devices unnecessary.

The crews learned to launch these heavy craft from muddy river banks and to transport them over hundreds of miles of damaged roads. The 50-foot, all steel LCM on its carrier is 77 feet long, 14 feet wide and 20 feet high. Yet many of them were moved to launching sites over shell-pitted roads, make-shift bridges and through narrow village streets.

The LCVP is a 36-foot boat manned by a crew of four with a speed of about twelve miles per hour. Over smooth water it can carry about fifty soldiers or such loads as one bulldozer, one 105mm gun and one 57mm anti-tank gun, two 75mm howitzers or 1,000 gallons of gasoline.

The LCM carries a crew of five with a speed of about 13½ miles per hour. It can carry any armored vehicle up to the size and weight of a Sherman tank or bulk loads such as 7,500 gallons of gasoline.

United States naval units participating in today's action were under the general command of Vice Admiral Alan G. Kirk, head of American naval forces in Europe, and directly commanded by Comdr. William J. Whiteside. The senior officer of the British naval units was Capt. P. G. H. James.

Sailors Wearing Army Uniforms Man Landing Craft Across Rhine

WITH U. S. NAVAL FORCES ON THE RHINE, March 24—(AP) Allied armies crossed the last great water barrier to the heart of Hitler's Germany this morning in another [illegible]-Day, for United States and allied amphibious forces.

The "small boat men"—in alligators, buffalos and other amphibious craft—repeated the daring landings of the Pacific, from Tarawa to Iwo Jima, and the daring operations from North Africa to Normandy and Southern France. This time it was behind a barrage laid down by field artillery and under skies filled with fighter planes, transport planes, and gliders—200 miles from the nearest ocean.

Never before in history has the Army called upon the Navy to help it cross an inland river, a barrier second only to the channel in the march on Berlin. The mission of the sailors, far from the sea, was to build up with all possible speed the masses of infantry, weapons and ammunition necessary to support the first assault troops smashing into the industrial Ruhr.

They have turned into naval history the plans carefully prepared over the past months under Admiral Harold R. Stark, U. S. N., Commander of U. S. Naval forces in Europe, and Vice Admiral Alan G. Kirk, U. S. N., Commander of U. S. Naval Forces in France.

Weather conditions were ideal for the operation.

Presence of the naval forces in Europe was a closely guarded secret. They trained for months with Army combat engineers on the smaller rivers of France and Belgium. To insure secrecy, the sailors wore Army field uniforms and Army helmets. In training, these men of the sea trudged through mud along with the doughboys.

Even the boats they were to use were disguised. The blue hulls were painted olive drab. The Navy's proud white symbol was covered as part of the plan. To any peering enemy reconnaisance, the naval boats to all appearances were part and parcel of the equipment of the Army forces in Europe.

Delivery of the boats at the scene was a miracle of modern military transport, a job placed in the capable hands of the Army engineers.

Only the heaviest of the Army's tank conveyors could m[illegible] the big LCM's (landing craft, m[illegible]anized), which are 50 feet long and 14 feet wide, nearly the width of the average roadway and wider than many European roads. When loaded, the LCM's made units 77 feet long and 20 feet high.

Despite the problem they presented, many of the LCMs were brought more than 300 miles over war-ravaged roads, makeshift bridges and through battered, narrow village streets.

On the Rhine the Navy reversed the task. Today it was the Navy's turn to move Army vehicles. LCMs and smaller craft raced back and forth across the Rhine, picking up Army equipment on the west bank and rushing it to the east bank, where over the bow-ramps hustled

Navy Mans Landing Craft In 9th Crossing

With the United States 9th Army East of the Rhine, March 24 (AP)—Lieut. Gen William H. Simpson's victory-bound troops crossed the Rhine under fire in Navy landing craft manned by sailors today and established a bridgehead on the east bank.

Riflemen from one of the war's most famous divisions, which beat the Germans first in the Normandy hedgerows and later chewed its way through the Siegfried Line, made the thrust under an ear-splitting bombardment.

The bombardment came from massed land artillery instead of from a ring of battleships and cruisers—otherwise the crossing was like a MacArthur landing in the Pacific.

25 Miles An Hour

The first wave ripped across the Rhine at 25 miles an hour in storm boats powered by 55-horsepower outboard motors. Two engineers handled each boat. The second wave came in assault boats that were used in the Roer River crossings a month ago. These were motor driven this time, not paddled as in the Roer crossing.

Alligators and water buffaloes—just like the ones that stormed ashore on Leyte, Luzon and Iwo Jima in the Pacific—followed next with their amphibian tracks churning up the Rhine.

Right after the alligators hit the beach, Navy-manned landing craft started barging in, loaded with men, tanks, jeeps and bridge supplies.

Trained With Soldiers

The navy task force, commanded by Lieut. Com. Willard R. Patrick, of Newark, N.J., had been training with soldiers in the rear areas.

Combat engineers strung a pontoon bridge across a 1,000-foot stretch of the river.

Patrick's task force came into the 9th Army picture four months ago, but forsook its blue jackets for olive drab while mingling with land troops on the Maas River in Holland.

Known as the "9th Army's Navy," the sailors practiced the assault landings with spearhead divisions, and trained the infantrymen for the Rhine D-day.

Unloaded At Antwerp

Landing craft were unloaded in December at Antwerp and moved up the Albert Canal to the training grounds, where they were pounded against banks of the peaceful Maas in many a mock landing.

Much reconnaissance was required to select the route to get the landing craft to the banks of the Rhine, but they were on the right spot at the right time, and they delivered the doughboys into the heart of Hitlerland.

NAVY SAILS RHINE TO AID CROSSINGS

Landing Craft Were Trucked to River From English Channel After Tests in Britain

THIRD ARMY'S BRIDGEHEAD ON THE RHINE, March 24 (AP)—United States Navy men sailed the Rhine 250 miles from the nearest ocean today and helped put the Third Army on its bridgehead in Hesse.

[A dispatch from the First Army's Remagen front said the United States Navy also had gone into action there, as on the Montgomery Ruhr front, and was helping shuttle troops, tanks, guns, supplies and material across the river in unprecedented operations. Navy amphibious craft began operations there forty-eight hours after the Ludendorff Bridge was seized at Remagen.]

Fleet 36-foot LCVP's [landing craft, vehicles and personnel] capable of transporting forty men were trucked from the English Channel to the Rhine for the operations and were in action soon after the first waves of infantry hit the shore in Army assault boats Thursday night. The Navy also brought along power launches and other craft.

The landing craft, similar to those used to land in Normandy, are manned by Navy men wearing khaki uniforms and helmets like the Army's. The name given the Navy's operation with Lieut. Gen. George S. Patton's men was appropriately "U.S.S. Blood and Guts."

The combined amphibious operation, which is much like Omaha Beach in Normandy on a modified scale, went off perfectly, with the seamen and infantrymen working together as if they had been doing this all their lives.

The general beamed at the ease with which the Rhine was conquered. He called it the easiest river crossing out of a score accomplished by his bridgehead makers since Normandy.

Rhine Boats Were Built Less Than a Month Ago

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 24—Hundreds of the small storm boats used by the Third Army to steal across the Rhine were only stacks of plywood in American factories less than a month ago.

The War Department said today the boats were rushed to completion and many were flown directly to the battle zone.

The order for 669 boats was received on Feb. 1. Material was speeded to factories and builders began what the Army called "a production miracle."

Maj. Gen. Eugene Reybold, Chief of Army Engineers, has sent letters of commendation to each of the four companies—the Sentry Boat Company at Manistee, Mich.; Minnetonka Boatworks at Wayzata, Minn.; the Foster Boat Company, Charlevoix, Mich., and the Pine Castle Boat Company, Pine Castle, Fla.

Commandos In Berets Mop Up Blasted Post

New York, March 24 — Eric Sevareid, of CBS, who was with British Commandos, gave this broadcast account today of the Allied crossing of the Rhine:

"At 5 last night Montgomery and Simpson gave the word to go ahead as scheduled.

"The moon was bright, the skies cleared of clouds and this morning it was like a day of June. There was more luck. The Rhine in this northern sector was the lowest it had been in twenty years at this time of the year.

"Allied power was almost beyond belief.

Barrage Without Break

"Our artillery simply drenched and saturated the German defenses. It began early last evening, and when I left the front two hours ago (7 A.M. Eastern War time) it was still thundering without a break.

"I spent the night with a group of British Commandos. They gathered toward evening in the flat meadowland just back from the river.

"Then at 5.30 began the pounding across the river; the place the Commandos were to take on foot, by night. The commander turned to a man and said: 'Corporal Smith, I don't think you'll find billets in town tonight.'

No Helmets, Just Berets

"It became quite dark, and we walked to a village crossroads to watch the Commandos form up.

"They wore no helmets, just their berets, and a few had blackened their faces. A major spoke quietly. He said, 'I get a funny feeling in my throat at a moment like this.'

Horses Break Into Ranks

"They drew up at the side of the road. The men ate and sprawled in the barnyards for a last moment's rest. Then they filed down the road quickly, singing quietly as they marched towards the river's edge beneath a shrieking canopy of tracers, which flowered over from our rear.

"Three horses, crazed by the noise, ran wildly between their ranks. Minutes went by and the men disappeared toward the bank, to climb into assault craft.

"At 10.25 Pathfinder planes of the RAF dropped showering flares into the area the Commandos must take. Then the RAF heavy bombers came—200 of them. The whole sector grew slowly pink and the blue-black was mottled with dirty white puffs of ack-ack.

"By now the men were across and racing for the objective. They gave the Germans no time to recover from the stunning bombardment. From the control van down the road the first messages came back. First unit across in 20 minutes. Forty prisoners taken at once. At seventy minutes the last of the units were across. They met light opposition, a few mortars as they embarked. The men were into the area and fighting a few remaining Germans among the smoking heaps of rubble.

Colonel Captured

"At dawn more reports. A colonel captured. And 200 prisoners now. The morning wore on. At 10 o'clock the airborne assault began on the high-wooded ground.

"There semed no end to the lines of planes which streamed slowly in from the west. I saw one's wing break off from a direct hit. It plunged to the ground. Another trailed fire from one engine and settled slowly behind the trees.

"Into the pall of smoke and haze on the opposite side the parachutes were drifting, thousands of men.

"When I drove back to this transmitter, every roadway, every house, every pasture contained little knots of men staring into the sky, unspeakingly, enthralled with one of the greatest spectacles of this or any war.

"They know now that all's going very well—very well indeed."

IT'S 40 AND 8 AGAIN, JUST LIKE LAST WAR

With the American Airborne Troops, March 24 (A. P.).—The Yanks have had an idea that things in this war were mighty different from those in the last war. But the men of one glider outfit were disillusioned when they entrained for the base from which they dropped north of the Ruhr today.

The French box cars into which they piled were marked "40 hommes, 8 chevaux."

SCOTS CROSS RHINE, SING 'ANNIE LAURIE'

ON THE RHINE, March 24—(AP) Scottish troops of the 51st Highland division, singing "Annie Laurie," crossed the Rhine last night under a terrific barrage from Field Marshal Montgomery's guns, and the battle of the Ruhr bridgehead had begun.

In the gigantic ground and airborne operation, Montgomery's forces by today had gained up to 3,000 yards and had secured bridgeheads from Wesel to north of Rees.

Prime Minister Churchill came to see borne out his recent assertion that "no river has ever proved an insurmountable barrier to a crossing." Tonight he slept somewhere in Germany.

Montgomery used everything at his disposal, British and American naval, air and ground forces, and more than 1,000 guns.

As troops fought into Wesel and Rees, reports said that there were few casualties in the early stages. Hundreds of Germans, stunned by bombs and artillery, were moving into the prison stockades.

2 Nazis Also Cross Rhine

WITH UNITED STATES 9TH ARMY, March 24 (AP).—Two prisoners were taken on the east bank of the Rhine today at exactly H hour. Private Morris Molitz, of Newark, N. J., brought them back to the west bank at 3:05 a. m.

Brilliant Weather Aids Allies in Rhine Crossing

Elements Change Sides; Have Usually Aided Nazis

LONDON, March 24 (AP).—The weather finally turned against Adolf Hitler in one of the Allies' big offensives.

Brilliant sunshine favored the Allies as they struck across the Rhine into the plain north of the Ruhr.

In the big operations heretofore, Hitler was able to count on weather—bad weather—as an ally when the occasion was crucial.

But today it was different.

35 DIVISIONS

OPPOSE PUSH

Kesselring Believed To Have That Many Under Him

Allied Headquarters, Paris, March 24 (AP)—Field Marshal Albert Kesselring, who, prisoners say, has succeeded Field Marshal Karl Gerd von Rundstedt as German commander in the west, is believed to have elements of 35 divisions facing Field Marshal Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's 21st Army Group which smashed across the Rhine north of the Ruhr today.

They comprise the German 25th Army and 1st Parachute Army which form army group "H" now believed to be under the command of Field Marshal Johannes Blaskowitz. Marshal Blaskowitz has been succeeded as commander of army group "G" in the south by Gen. Wolfgang Houser.

The 1st Parachute Army holds the front east of the Rhine extending from the vicinity of Emmerich t. a point opposite Krefeld. The 25th Army holds the sector from Emmerich west to the sea, virtually all in Holland.

Ten Parachute Divisions

At least ten divisions facing Montgomery are in the parachute army, but their present strength probably is equivalent to no more than four or five American divisions.

They include Panzer divisions as well as parachute infantry, and they have massed a large number of guns. Blaskowitz has a Panzer corps in reserve behind the 1st Parachute Army, but the problem of moving reinforcements into the line has been made extremely difficult by the continuous aerial bombardment of rail lines and highways by the Allies.

A field dispatch said that although there was tough fighting ahead in the Ruhr, the question was what the Germans can do about Allied strength. The best estimates are that they can't do much.

11,000 PLANES JAR GERMAN HOMELAND

Berlin Raid Caps History's Mightiest Aerial Blow

London, Sunday, March 25 (AP)—Mosquitos lashed Berlin last night for the thirty-third consecutive night, continuing unchecked the mightiest aerial offensive in history, which yesterday saw 11,000 planes join the assault across the Rhine in support of troops charging toward the heart of the Reich.

The huge airmada, which converged on the Rhine-crossing area from England and Continent-based airdromes, laid a protective wall of fire in front of the Allied troops.

Nazis Run Down Like Rabbits

Incomplete returns from yesterday's blow at the Reich showed at least 53 German planes were shot down by American fighters—exclusive of the bag for last night's Berlin raid which was not yet tabulated.

The harried Luftwaffe offered only spotty opposition. Almost half of the kills were scored as the Nazis were run down like rabbits by American fighters. Twenty enemy planes were blasted out of the sky over one field from which they were trying to escape.

40 American Planes Missing

Announced American losses for the day were 26 heavy bombers and fourteen fighters or fighter-bombers. The 8th and 9th Air Forces each lost seven fighters or fighter-bombers.

Twenty of the missing bombers were from a group of 240 Liberators which plowed through heavy ground fire at tree-top level to drop supplies to airborne troops across the Rhine.

The United States 8th Air Force flew about 1,750 bomber and 1,250 fighter sorties on Saturday as Flying Fortresses and Liberators bombed sixteen German airfields and dropped supplies immediately after the landings east of the Rhine by the airborne army.

"Good To Excellent" Results

United States Army Air Force headquarters reported all 8th Air Force operations were carried out "with success" in favorable weather with crews reporting "generally good to excellent results everywhere."

Saturday's airfield attacks culminated a campaign begun last Wednesday to make German bases, particularly those for jet-propelled aircraft, temporarily unservicable, the USAAF communiqué said.

Since Wednesday 25 different airfields have been attacked, most of them bases for jet planes or fields which could be used by these new Nazi fighters.

With Nazi defenses thrown into turmoil by this tremendous attack from the west, American heavy bombers from Italy leaped the Alps and smashed a tank factory in Berlin in a 1,600-mile round trip, the longest escorted mission ever flown over Europe.

Dawn-To-Dusk Air Parade

From dawn to dusk one great procession of bombers and fighters swept across the Channel to be joined over the Continent by thousands of other warplanes streaming up from advanced bases in Belgium, Germany, Holland and France.

Each phase of the mammoth operation was run off with split-second timing, with as many as five layers of planes roaring toward their objectives at the same time or criss-crossing at different altitudes.

Sixty seconds after a group of transports towing gliders filled with combat troops passed over one Belgian city there came the roar of 200 swift American fighters diving into the fray. A total of 1,500 transports and gliders showered fighting men into the battle east of the Rhine. A force of 240 Liberators dropped 600 tons of supplies to the airborne troops.

In the crucial hours before daybreak 1,900 American bombers and fighters beat up a dozen Nazi airfields around the battle zone and made searing attacks on German positions near the Rhine. Late in the day another 450 Flying Fortresses and Liberators smashed four enemy night fighter bases in Germany and Holland. And on Friday night RAF Lancasters smashed the German garrison in Wesel, paving the way for British commando assaults.

Pilots said the whole great Muenster box north of the Ruhr was a land of death, with no sign of movement among the blazing towns and cities.

history today.

Air fleets joined in the spectacular hurdling of the Rhine and laid a protecting wall of fire, rockets and bombs around the charging Allied troops, while heavy bombers from Italy hit a Berlin tank factory in a 1,600-mile round trip, the longest escorted operation ever flown over Europe.

A total of 1,500 transport planes and gliders dropped a great army to the ground east of the Rhine.

The Italy-based 15th Air Force heavy bombers that attacked industrial targets in the "Berlin area" were escorted by Mustangs.

Tank Plant Bombed

[A dispatch from Rome reported that the Daimler Benz tank works on the southern edge of Berlin was bombed. The bombers reported good to excellent results. Mustangs shot down three German jet planes. Officers said the bombed works made tanks for the Eastern front.]

The flight of the huge sky-battle fleet from England, with the planes flying wingtip to wingtip, was one of the most awe-inspiring aerial operations of the war, and in the Ruhr Valley a devastating scourge was laid down.

20,000 In Action

Many of the parachute troop carriers and gliders—the number would indicate that from 20,000 to 30,000 men are taking part, the greatest number ever engaged in an airborne operation—soared out from Britain and thundered across the Strait of Dover. No sooner had the parachute troops landed than other planes began the job of supplying them with additional ammunition. The first batch of supplies was dropped across the Rhine at noon by some 250 United States 8th Air Force Liberators.

Thick layers of heavy bombers and fighters streamed monotonously across the Channel. Then came the gliders with their towing planes, and after them the troop-carrying craft, wing to wing and hundred after hundred, flying so low that every detail could be seen from below.

Towns Like Pyres

Before daybreak, swarms of medium and light bombers had worked over the Germans' defenses on the eastern Rhine bank. Even before that, pilots said the whole great Muenster box north of the Ruhr was a land of death, with towns blazing like funeral pyres and roads without a sign of movement.

After the first wave of transport planes sped over the southern English coast there was a pause, and then another huge wave of gliders came, towed by British Sterling bombers. Veterans of the cave cliffs of Dover, who had withstood bombings, shellings, robot bombings and the fear of invasion, watched the armada black out the sun. The thunder of bombers across the Channel shook houses.

Nazi Airfields Bombed

The United States 8th Air Force sent 1,050 Fortresses and Liberators and 850 fighters against the Nazi airfields and jet-plane bases ahead of Montgomery's operations. These were in the area of Achmer, Vechta, Lechtel, Rheine, Hesepe, Nordhorn, Steenwijk, Zwischenahn, Plantlunne, Varrelbusch and Varrel. Fighters fanned out, shooting up targets of opportunity.

A huge force of British heavy bombers smashed at the northern Ruhr during the night, and pilots declared whole towns and villages were "burning like torches."

Fifty-three spots in the Ruhr area hammered repeatedly during the last three days were blasted for more than an hour today, starting at 8 A.M. by 400 Marauders and Havocs of the United States 9th Bombardment Division.

Coastal observers said the sky was so full of aircraft that it was impossible to estimate the numbers.

Above the great procession of four-engined bombers hundreds of fighters crisscrossed in constant patrol, sweeping a path for the big planes.

The German warning service said bomber formations were south of Bremen, over the Wilhelmshaven area, south of Emden and near Cuxhaven. The enemy indicated that smaller forces were in the areas of Muenster, Vechta, Quakenbrueck and Oldenburg.

Seemed Wing-To-Wing

Watchers on the English east coast gave a graphic account of the great Allied air formations that streaked out this morning.

"The sky was packed with aircraft," said a coastal eyewitness. "Many formations seemed wing to wing and packed together.

"After more than an hour the great Allied aerial cavalcade still was going out. After the spearhead had reached the Continent, still more were coming from the heart of England, maintaining an unbroken line."

Thousands of persons went into the streets of southern England and watched with awe as the gigantic procession thundered overhead.

Perfect weather prevailed in Britain.

At 11 A.M. the German radio, unable to log all the Allied formations, reported that a stream of planes 150 miles long was stretching from the Dutch border to Hildesheim, southeast of Hannover.

German anti-aircraft batteries in and around the Ruhr were overwhelmed completely yesterday as more than 6,000 planes bomb-drenched the area until smoke and fire became so thick pilots were no longer able to locate their targets.

NAZIS WARNED ON EXECUTIONS

Face Punishment If They Kill Aireborne Troops

London, March 24 (AP)—Prime Minister Churchill, at Field Marshal Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's headquarters, told troops of the 21st Army Group today that the "decisive victory in Europe will be near" once the Rhine River line is pierced and the crust in German resistance broken.

A similar message of confidence in speedy victory was issued by Montgomery while Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower warned German officers, soldiers and civilians that the Allies would hold them to strictest account and punish them according to their deserts if they became involved in the execution of Allied airborne troops.

Be Prepared, Dutch Told

Prince Bernard, of the Netherlands, speaking under authority of the supreme Allied commander, warned Dutch patriot troops to take no action without orders, but alerted them to be prepared to coordinate their efforts with the new Allied offensive, which has carried across the Rhine.

In a message to the British 2d, Canadian 1st and United States 9th armies, Churchill, who on March 4 predicted that "one strong heave will win the war," said:

"I rejoice to be with the chief of the Imperial general staff (Field Marshal Sir Alan Brooke) at Field Marshal Montgomery's headquarters of the 21st Army Group during this memorable battle of forcing the Rhine.

A Superb Task

"British soldiers, it will long be told how, with our Canadian brothers and valiant United States allies, this superb task was accomplished. Once the river line is pierced and the crust of German resistance is broken, the decisive victory in Europe will be near.

"May God prosper our arms in this noble adventure after our long struggle for King and country, for dear life and for the freedom of mankind."

Drive Will Bring V-E Day Near: Churchill

London, March 24 (AP)—The "decisive victory in Europe will be near" once the Rhine River line is pierced and the crust of German resistance broken, Prime Minister Churchill declared today in a message to Field Marshal Sir Montgomery's armies.

Churchill's message said:

"I rejoice to be with the chief of the imperial general staff (Field Marshal Sir Alan Brooke) at Field Marshal Montgomery's headquarters of the 21st Army Group during this memorable battle of forcing the Rhine.

Praises Armies

"British soldiers, it will long be told how, with our Canadian brothers and valiant United States allies, this superb task was accomplished. Once the river line is pierced and the crust of German resistance is broken, the decisive victory in Europe will be near.

"May God prosper our arms in this noble adventure after our long struggle for King and country, for dear life, and for the freedom of mankind."

Monty Addressed Troops

Montgomery addressed this message to all 21st Army Group troops:

"1. On the 7th of February I told you we were going into the ring for the final and last round: There would be no time limit. We would continue fighting until our opponent was knocked out. The last round is going very well on both sides of the ring—and overhead.

"2. In the West the enemy has lost the Rhineland, and with it the flower of at least four armies—the parachute army, 5th Panzer Army, 15th Army and 7th Army. The 1st Army, farther to the south, is now being added to the list.

Russ 35 Miles From Berlin

"In the Rhineland battles, the enemy has lost about 150,000 prisoners and there are many more to come. His total casualties amount to about 250,000 since the eighth of February.

"3. In the East the enemy has lost all of Pomerania east of the Oder, an area as large as the Rhineland, and three more German armies have been routed. Russian armies are within about 35 miles of Berlin.

"4. Overhead Allied air forces are pounding Germany day and night. It will be interesting to see how much longer the Germans can stand it.

"5. The enemy in fact has been driven into a corner, and he cannot escape.

"Events are moving rapidly.

"The complete and decisive defeat of the Germans is certain: there is no possibility of doubt on this matter.

"6. The 21st Army Group will now cross the Rhine.

"The enemy possibly thinks he is safe behind this great river obstacle. We will agree it is a great obstacle: but we will show the enemy he is far from safe behind it. This great Allied fighting machine, composed of integrated land and air forces, will deal with the problem in no uncertain manner.

"Over The Rhine Let Us Go"

"7. And having crossed the Rhine, we will crack about in the plains of northern Germany, chasing the enemy from pillar to post. The swifter and more energetic our action, the sooner the war will be over. And that is what we all desire: to get on with the job and finish off the German war as soon as possible.

"8. Over the Rhine, then, let us go. And good hunting to you all on the other side.

"9. May the 'Lord Mighty In Battle' give us the victory in this our latest undertaking, as He has done in all our battles since we landed in Normandy on D-day."

Don't Execute Airborne Men, Nazis Warned

London, March 24 (AP)—Allied radio stations broadcast a message from General Eisenhower to the German Army and the Waffen SS disclosing that the Allies had captured a German secret order calling for the execution of Allied airborne troops and warning the enemy that severe punishment would be dealt to any troops carrying out the order.

Eisenhower disclosed that the secret order, dated at Hitler's headquarters, October 18, 1942, with an additional order dated October, 1944, commanded the execution of Allied airborne forces and parachute troops.

"With particular emphasis it is pointed out that such troops are not terrorists," the broadcast said. "They are soldiers who are fulfilling their military duties in an orderly way."

LONDON, March 24 (AP)—The text of Prime Minister Churchill's message to troops of the Twenty-first Army Group:

No Fraternizing: Montgomery

London, March 24 (AP) — Field Marshal Montgomery, warning his invading troops against fraternization with the enemy, said today it was too soon "to distinguish between 'good' and 'bad' Germans" and that the soldiers had a "definite part in winning the peace by a definite code of behavior."

"Peace does not exist merely because of a surrender," he said in a letter to each soldier. "Nazi influence penetrates everywhere, even into children's schools and churches."

Last War's Attitude

Asserting that the Germans "remained unrepentent and attached to their worship of brute force" after occupation by the Allies in the last war and that their general staff prepared for a new war, Montgomery said:

"Our occupation of Germany is an act of war of which the first object is to destroy the Nazi system. There are Allied organizations whose work it is to single out, separate and destroy dangerous elements in German life.

"Keep Clear Of Them"

"In streets, houses, cafes, cinemas, etc., you must keep clear of Germans, man, woman and child, unless you meet them in the course of duty. You must not walk out with them, or shake hands or visit their homes, or make them gifts, or take gifts from them.

"You must not play games with them, or share any social event with them. In short, you must not fraternize with Germans at all."

Instructions to Troops

LONDON, March 24 (AP)—Text of a letter from Field Marshal Montgomery to troops of the Twenty-first Army Group:

(1) Twenty-seven years ago the Allies occupied Germany, but Germany has been at war ever since. Our army took no revenge in 1918. It was more than considerate and before a few weeks had passed many soldiers were adopted into German households. The enemy worked hard being amiable. They believed that the occupation was due to treachery and that their army had never been beaten. They remained unrepentant and attached to their worship of brute force.

(2) The fight was continued by the German General Staff, who concealed war criminals and equipment, built up armaments and trained a new striking force, to evade the armistice terms they had to find sympathizers and "organizing sympathy" became a German industry.

So accommodating were occupying forces that the Germans came to believe we would never fight them again in any cause. From that moment to this their continued aggression has brought misery or death to millions, always under a familiar smoke screen of appeals for fair play and friendship, followed by a barrage of stark, brutal threats.

This time the Nazis have added to the experience of the last occupation. They have learned from the resistance movements of France, Belgium, Holland and Norway. These are types of instructions they are likely to give to their underground workers:

"Give the impression of submitting. Say you never liked the Nazis. They were the people responsible for the war. Argue that Germany has never had a fair chance. Get the soldiers arguing. They are not trained for it. And you are. Use old folks, girls and children. And 'play up' every case of devastation and poverty. Ask troops to your homes. Sabotage or steal equipment, petrol or rations. Get troops to sell these things, if you can. Spread stories about Americans and Russians in the British zone, and about the British to the other Allies."

Too Early to Distinguish

(3) Because of these facts, I want every soldier to be clear about "non-fraternization." Peace does not exist merely because of a surrender. Nazi influence penetrates everywhere. Even into children's schools and churches.

Our occupation of Germany is an act of war of which the first object is to destroy the Nazi system. There are Allied organizations whose work it is to single out, separate and destroy dangerous elements in German life.

It is too soon for you to distinguish between "good" and "bad" Germans. You have a positive part to play in winning peace by a definite code of behavior. In streets, houses, cafes, cinemas, etc., you must keep clear of Germans, man, woman and child, unless you meet them in the course of duty. You must not walk out with them, or shake hands, or visit their homes, or make them gifts, or take gifts from them. You must not play games with them, or share any social event with them. In short, you must not fraternize with Germans at all.

(4) To refrain from fraternization is not easy. It requires self-discipline. But in Germany you will have to remember that laughing and eating and dancing with Germans would be bitterly resented by your own families, by millions of people who have suffered under the Gestapo and under the Luftwaffe's bombs, and by every ally that Britain possesses.

You will have to remember that these are the same Germans who a short time ago were drunk with victory, who were boasting what they, as the master race, would do to you as their slaves, who were applauding utter disregard by their leaders of any form of decency or of honorable dealings, the same Germans whose brothers, sons and fathers were carrying out a system of mass murder and torture of defenseless civilians. You will have to remember that these same Germans are planning to make fools of you again and to escape the loathing which their actions deserve.

(5) Our consciences are clear. "Non-fraternization" to us implies no revenge. We have no theory of master races. But a guilty nation must not only be convicted, it must realize its guilt. Only then can first steps be taken to re-educate it and to bring it back into the society of decent humanity.

(6) German discipline, though not our sort, is thorough. The people will judge you with no amateur eyes. And any slackness will be the cue for resistance movements to intensify their efforts.

(7) Be just. Be firm. Be correct. Give orders and don't argue. The last time we won the war and let the peace slip out of our hands and this time we must not ease off—we must win both the war and the peace.

GERMANS ADMIT ALLIES HAVE HOLD ON LOWER RHINE

LONDON, March 24—(AP) The German radio told the home press today that Heinrich Himmler had ordered all civil authorities in evacuated or Allied-occupied territory to "cease functioning for the time being," another sign of the chaos inside Germany.

From dispatches have told of thousands of Germans fleeing the invaded areas along the Rhine, and this latest German broadcast said Himmler had established "interim offices" to help the heads of rural districts, mayors and other local officials to "administer, or if necessary to liquidate existing institutions."

"Their files and other official property will be brought to safety", the broadcast said.

German radio commentators meanwhile conceded frankly that Allied troops had sizable foothold across the lower Rhine, said the "bulk" of the First U. S. army was striking eastward from the Remagen bridgehead, and expressed anxiety over the "surprise establishment" by Lt. Gen. George S. Patton, Jr., of a U. S. Third army bridgehead in the south.

"The German command endeavors to delay a decision until the moment when the employment of additional German material and tactical means is advisable," said one broadcast.

Capt. Ludwig Sertorius of the Transocean agency said a synchronized operation by the U. S. Ninth and First armies may develop soon between Cologne and Duesseldorf, forming the lower part of a pincers movement with the British and Canadian forces farther north in an effort to envelop the Ruhr.

Discussing the Allied airborne landing Sertorius said it was further evidence that Field Marshal Montgomery is "more than keen to get to the rear of the Ruhr as quickly as he can."

"The main goal of Eisenhower's decisive offensive, which now has entered the third phase, is still the north German plain," he added.

"It is clear that with this aim in mind the enemy certainly will attempt to overcome the Rhine barrier between Bon and Emmerich before attempting to cross over the lower reaches. This explains why we should not overestimate the importance of the bridgehead established surprisingly by U. S. (Third army) amphibious tanks at Oppenheim."

Berlin said its troops were trying to prevent a link-up between Marshal Montgomery's British and Canadian and the Allied parachute and glider troops on the north side of the Ruhr. It claimed that "large parts" of the airborne troops were wiped out, adding:

"But at some points airborne troops succeeded in forming nests of resistance and they are under attack."

Reports from Sweden meanwhile said mutiny had broken out among puppet Hungarian troops in Denmark Friday afternoon and that there had been "lively" street fighting in Copenhagen.

NAZIS SAY THEY WILL FIGHT ON

MAR 25 1945

See Nation Which Keeps Nerve Longest Winning.

London, March 24 (A. P)—A German broadcast declared today that the German high command "adopts the supreme principle of continuing the battle no matter under what conditions."

A Nazi military spokesman, after announcement of the Rhine crossing, asserted that new German fronts were being formed in the east and west and that the battle would go on.

"All the means at our disposal are being employed," he said. "It is the aim of the German command to inflict upon the enemy, during his advance, losses as high as possible."

Frankly declaring that the Germans needed more time to develop additional troop deployments and establish new positions, the commentator said: "The race for time is the most important fact at present, as the Allies are considerably pressed. The German command endeavors to delay a decision until the moment when the employment of additional German material and tactical means is advisable."

Calls for 'Sacrifices.'

Today's German communique said the expected battle for the lower Rhine had begun between Rees and Wesel. Southward on the United States Third Army front, the German garrison of Mainz had fallen back to the right bank of the Rhine, it said.

A Berlin political commentator called on the people of the Reich for more sacrifices.

"The nearer the decision, the more dramatic will developments be, the more sacrifices will be demanded," he said. "It is not the first year that matters, it is the last. The nation which keeps its nerve during the last has won, and that is why the Allies try to destroy German morale."

RUSSIANS SWEEP ACROSS HUNGARY, DRIVE ON VIENNA

Smash Within 40 Miles of Austrian Border in Giant Offensive.

76,000 NAZIS KILLED

Red Troops Advance in Upper Silesia; Seize Neisse, Loebschuetz.

LONDON, Sunday, March 25—(AP) Russian tanks and infantry, smashing within 40 miles of Austria and 81 miles southeast of Vienna, have surged 43 miles across western Hungary along a 62-mile front in a great new offensive timed with the Allied assault in the west, Premier Stalin disclosed last night.

Moscow said 76,000 Germans had been killed or captured recently in Hungary.

Smash Toward Reich

The massive breakthrough in Hungary, thrusting toward southern Germany's "mountain redoubt," where the Nazis are expected to make their last-ditch stand, came as Berlin reported a savage, swaying battle raging in the Nazi capital's outer defenses 31 miles east of the city.

The Vienna-bound offensive exploded as the enemy said the Red army had built up a 17-mile long, six-mile deep bridgehead across the Oder river before Berlin and had hurled new powerful forces into the assault.

At the same time, Moscow announced that Soviet forces in Upper Silesia had captured the industrial cities of Neisse and Loebschuetz and were probing the Sudeten mountain defenses leading from Silesia to Brno, Prague and Hitler's Czechoslovak arsenal.

Far to the north, the battle for the twin isolated Baltic ports of Danzig and Gdynia was drawing to a close as Russian forces ground to within three miles of Danzig and less than two miles from Gdynia.

In Hungary, Marshal Feodor I. Tolbukhin's Third Ukrainian army captured the great rail city of Veszprem and swept up more than 350 other towns and villages, Marshal Stalin announced.

Tolbukhin's troops took the offensive after smashing to a standstill counter-attacks by 11 German tank divisions which in the last three months had recaptured some territory west of Budapest taken by the Russians last December.

hin's troops killed 70,000 and captured more than 6,000, Moscow said. Soviet communiques during the last three days have announced the capture or annihilation of 121,000 enemy troops. Some 745 German tanks and 800 guns were destroyed in the Hungarian drive.

The Russians recaptured the great rail center of Szekesferhvar, 32 miles southwest of Budapest, then rolled forward as much as 27 miles beyond their December positions. They captured Mor, 38 miles southwest of Budapest, and pushed across the Bakony hills to break into the open plains leading to Vienna.

Reds Flank Danube Fort

At the northern end of the front, Tolbukhin's troops outflanked on the south the Danube river fortress of Komarom, and cut its communications with Veszprem, beyond the west shore of Lake Balaton.

They seized Bakonyszentlaszlo, 40 miles from the Austrian frontier and 81 miles southeast of the Austrian capital, and thus moved to within 22 miles southeast of Gyor, the greatest communication center in Western Hungary and one of the outer defense fortresses of Vienna.

This surge cut a 10-mile stretch of the Gyor-Veszprem highway and railroad between Bakonyszentlaszlo and Sircs and assured the fall of Veszprem. Other Soviet units then stormed into Veszprem and pushed on another four miles to the west to win Marko, 113 miles east of the Austrian mountain city of Graz.

At Zircs, the Russians who were under command of 60 generals were within 57 miles east of the big communications hub of Szombathely, near the Austrian-Hungary frontier.

Ten miles east of Veszprem and 18 miles southwest of Szekesfehervar, the Russians reached the north shore of Lake Balaton at Balatonkenese. There were indications a sizeable enemy force that had driven east toward the Danube south of Budapest had been trapped and wiped out there.

The enemy said that Tolbukhin's forces, who were within 57 miles east of the great rail city of Szombathely near the Austro-Hungarian border, were battering at the approaches to Komarom, key Danube city citadel 84 miles east of Vienna.

Berlin Battle Rages

The battle before Berlin—which Moscow has not yet announced and which the Nazis called a bloody preliminary to an impending all-out Russian frontal assault on the capital—was "now raging to a climax," the Nazi DNB agency said.

The Nazis said that Marshal Gregory K. Zhukov's First White Russian army troops had been at least temporarily held at Golzow, six miles west of captured Oder fortress of Kuestrin, and 31 miles from the bomb-gutted capital.

Eight miles to the south the Germans said massed tank forces of Zhukov's army had broken into Klessin, 33 miles east of Berlin, and there the Germans reported bitter house-to-house fighting.

Klessin is two miles beyond the Oder and seven miles north of the river fortress of Frankfurt. The Germans said fighting had extended 10 miles northwest of Kuestrin to a Soviet west bank bridgehead at Kleinitz and enemy reports indicated Zhukov had established a solid bridgehead 17 miles long west of Kuestrin from Kleinitz to Klessin.

The reports indicated that at least three Soviet bridgeheads across the Oder had been linked and the enemy said fighting was ensuing at Lebus, three miles south of Klessin, where Zhukov reportedly has established still another foothold across the Oder defense line.

Russians Joining 2-Way Squeeze Upon Berlin

London, March 24 (AP)—Marshal Stalin announced a new Russian offensive in Hungary tonight and said Soviet forces had advanced 44 miles on a front of more than 63 miles and captured numerous communications points, including Szekesfehervar.

London, March 24 (AP)—The Germans said today that Marshal Gregory Zhukov had attacked "with strongest forces" from his Oder bridgeheads as part of a decisive drive on Berlin.

With perhaps 1,200,000 men massed along the Oder and ready to join in a multiple east-west Allied assault to crush the last breath out of the Reich, Zhukov threw six infantry divisions, waves of tanks and a tremendous artillery barrage into the new attack on both sides of Kuestrin and succeeded in reaching a point only 31 miles from the German capital, German broadcasts reported.

Claims 204 Red Tanks Lost

The German high command said that the stubborn German defense had taken a toll of 204 Soviet tanks in two days of battle there.

The Russians reached Golzow, 6 miles west of the Oder and 31 miles from Berlin, radio dispatches from the Reich said, and broke into Klessin, 8 miles south of Golzow and 34 miles from Berlin.

The Germans, who claim still to hold a small part of the old city of Kuestrin just south of the Warthe River and east of the Oder, despite official Soviet announcements of the capture of the ancient fortress, said: "The battle for Kuestrin has reached its climax. The Red Army is throwing in all its material, regardless of losses of men and tanks."

"Still In German Hands"

"This present offensive must be taken in connection with the long-planned Russian attack on Berlin," declared a DNB broadcast from Berlin.

"Kuestrin has been cut off from all communications to the west for some time. These have, however, been re-established. The fortress still is in German hands. Furious fighting continues in this sector."

There was no confirmation from Moscow of the opening of a new Zhukov attack, but the Russian High Command announced that the German defenders of the Baltic ports of Gdynia and Danzig had been split by the capture of Zoppot, on the coast between those two cities, and that the Russians were clamping a huge pincers on the inner German fortress area of Moravia, Bohemia and Vienna in the south.

Moscow dispatches said the Russians had driven into Moravia in Czecho-Slovakia at several points.

DUCE MAKES PLEA TO ITALIAN PEOPLE

London, March 24 (A. P.).—A Fascist broadcast, apparently emanating from northern Italy, carried a speech last night purporting to be by Benito Mussolini exhorting the Italians to "think of where we were and where we intend to return."

The speech was read by an announcer, who said Mussolini had returned to his headquarters. Mussolini was quoted as saying:

"History has got us by the throat and confronted us with difficult problems. Five years ago the Tricolor was flying at Addis Ababa. Today Negroes stand on the soil of Tuscany. It would be better to die than to bear this. We must convince our enemies there are many Italians who will never submit to treachery."

Bombing Brings Apology.

London, March 24 (A. P.).—The British Government expressed regret to the Netherlands today for the "deplorable" accidental bombing of a residential area of The Hague by the R. A. F. in a March 3 attack on German rocket sites. The British promised that disciplinary action would be taken against flyers responsible for what was described as an "error of judgment."

Huizinga, Dutch Resistance Chief, Dies

London, March 24 (AP)—Dr. Johan Huizinga, 73, historian and a leader of Dutch resistance forces, died recently in Holland, according to word reaching here today.

Huizinga, who was the author of several books on America, previously had been reported held for some time in a Nazi concentration camp, but his death was said to have resulted from natural causes.

NEW ENEMY TRENCHES ARE SIGHTED IN ITALY

ROME, March 24 (AP)—Reconnaissance patrols reported today that the Germans apparently were constructing new defense positions on the central Italian front south of Bologna. Only minor activity by small Eighth and Fifth Army units was reported by Allied headquarters.

Scouts said the enemy was digging a new system of trenches and constructing strongly fortified positions, apparently in a further move to block any drive on Bologna, which is the key to German defenses in northern Italy.

The Germans stepped up their artillery action along the battle-front and sharp clashes between opposing patrols occurred on the Eighth Army's Adriatic sector.

Some casualties were inflicted on the Germans by strong American raiding parties which attacked a group of fortified buildings near Furcoli on the central front.

ITALIAN FRONT ACTIVE

Rome, March 24 (A. P.).—Aggressive patrols of the Fifth and Eighth armies, probing the enemy positions all along the Italian front, reported today that the Germans were constructing large-scale defense works at several points—and also, apparently, a new network of trenches across the north of Italy.

German artillery action was stepped up along the front and there were sharp patrol clashes along the Eighth's front. Strong American raiding parties attacked a large cluster of buildings near Furcoli, on the central front, and inflicted some casualties on the enemy.

15th's Strike at Berlin Effective

ROME, March 24 (AP) — Flying Fortresses of the United States Fifteenth Air Force, striking from bases in Italy in a record 1,600-mile round trip, attacked the Daimler-Benz tank works in the Marienfelde district of Berlin today in their first strike at the Reich capital. The plant has been making armor for the Nazis' Eastern Front.

Returning crewmen reported good to excellent results. The Germans threw up a number of their jet-propelled planes in an effort to ward off the Fifteenth's bombers and escorting Mustangs. Three of these were shot down by our fighters.

Record Flight From Italy.

Rome, March 24 (A. P.).—Fortresses flying from Italy smashed the Daimler Benz tank works on the southern edge of Berlin today on a 1,600-mile mission, the longest reported heavy bomber flight in the records of the European war.

The bombers reported good to excellent results. Mustang fighters shot down three German jet planes.

Umberto Denounced By Woman During Mass

Rome, March 24 (AP)—A woman with a baby in her arms denounced Crown Prince Umberto, lieutenant general of the realm during solemn mass today commemorating the first anniversary of the Ardeatin Caves atrocity and was taken out of the church by carabinieri and priests.

The woman, who arrived at Santa Maria Degli Angeli Church after the mass had started, sighted Umberto among the officials.

"Get out," she shouted. "We don't want you. Nobody wants you."

She was a member of a group, some of whom were identified as relatives of the Ardeatin victims, who arrived at the church after the doors were closed. The women succeeded in entering but the others remained outside, demonstrating throughout the service.

Work was suspended for five minutes during the day throughout Rome as the city observed the anniversary of the execution of more than 300 hostages by the Nazis in the Ardeatine Caves near the ancient Appian Way, in reprisal for the bombing of a Nazi SS column in Rome.

Pope Receives Flynn In Second Audience

Vatican City, March 24 (AP)—Pope Pius XII received Edward J. Flynn today for a second audience since the former Democratic National Committee chairman arrived in Italy.

The audience, which lasted fifteen minutes, was attended also by Myron Taylor, President Roosevelt's personal representative to the Vatican.

Yank Court Gives German 7-Year Term

Cologne, Germany, March 24 (AP). A seven-year prison sentence imposed on a Hitler Youth leader convicted of obstructing United States occupation authorities impressed upon Rhineland Germans today that the American administrators mean business.

The defendant, Joseph Mingles, 25, was the first prominent German to be brought to trial before an American court in the Rhineland. He was accused of concealing important Hitler Youth records.

Sentence was imposed by Major James D. Clemens, of Bowling Green, Mo., presiding judge at the trial at which Mingels was defended by a German attorney.

NAZIS SET UP VAST UNDERGROUND UNIT

Constance, Switzerland, March 24 (A. P.).—The Nazis have intensified their preparations to fight on in the mountain fortresses after formal military defeat and to carry on a huge secret organization built to keep the party alive and prepare for the next conflict, reliable frontier reports said today. Heavy dynamite explosions can be heard regularly along Lake Constance, where the Germans are reported building shelters and tunnels into the surrounding mountains. Many such strongholds have already been built throughout south Germany. Even more important, the Nazis are counting on a newly-organized secret party, the reports declare.

Here is the picture they give of the movement:

More than 100,000 persons, mostly youths under 18, have just completed in eighty different centers, sixty-day courses in Nazi ideology and illegal activity. On completing the course, each new agent gets a blank passport and some money, and is sent underground—to be sought immediately by the Gestapo. Those who are caught are sent to the front as useless for the post-war program. Diplomatic reports from Berlin say that fewer than 10 per cent are caught, however.

The remaining members are assigned to carry the Nazi creed across the transition period after defeat until a new party can emerge openly under a new name—perhaps ten years hence. This secret organization for underground work is led by Gauleiters and Reichsleiters whose names are more carefully guarded than even those of the most secret Gestapo reports. Only a select committee of the highest present-day Nazis was appointed to the new hierarchy, according to the border advices.

Probably a number of Nazis whose deaths were announced in the last year have in fact only joined this movement under false names. The Nazi command is said to expect to wage a new war of revenge two generations from now.

Nazi Plane-Building Chief Arrested for Jet Failure

Richthofen-Approved Fighters Fell Apart in Flight

MADRID, March 24 (AP).—Field Marshal Baron Wolfram Von Richthofen, Luftwaffe production chief and cousin of the German World War ace, has been arrested on Adolf Hitler's personal order because of the failure of a rocket-propelled fighter type, according to a German military source. Seven members of Richthofen's staff also were reported arrested.

The German source here said nearly 5,000 of the new planes were assembled after a test of models proved satisfactory. Many were sent to air command areas before it was found that the planes not only lacked speed but sometimes disintegrated in the air.

Richthofen formerly was commander of the Luftwaffe in northern Italy but quarrelled with Field Marshal Albert Kesselring and late last year took command of Luftwaffe production.

SPANISH DROP JAP MISSIONS

Atrocities Denied By Tokyo; Argentina Impressed

Madrid, March 24 (AP) — Spain, backing up her protest over the bayoneting of Spanish civilians by Japanese fleeing Manila, announced today all Spanish diplomatic missions abroad had been ordered to cease representing Japanese interests.

[The Japanese news agency Domei quoted Sadao Iguchi, spokesman of the Board of Information, in a Tokyo broadcast, as "categorically" denying that Japanese troops had committed atrocities against Spaniards in the Philippines.]

Armour Presents Papers

The Government's announcement, which came as the new United States Ambassador, Norman Armour, presented credentials to Generalissimo Franco, said Spain also had dispatched an "energetic demand for satisfaction" to the Tokyo Government for attacks on the Spanish nationals, which it termed "premeditated murder." A note protesting the attacks was sent to Tokyo Monday.

Thursday night the Government announced that 172 Spanish men, women and children had been bayoneted to death by Japanese troops while American divisions were seizing Manila.

Germany, it was reported reliably, has presented a note to Spain saying that any Madrid action against Japan would be considered by the Reich as an unfriendly act.

Ceremony Notably Brief

[Spain's decision to abandon representing Japanese interests created a profound impression in Argentine diplomatic circles, a dispatch from Buenos Aires said. Argentina's military government currently is debating whether to declare war on the Axis and any Spanish move in that direction certainly will be considered. Many Argentine nationalists who have opposed any war declaration long have looked to Madrid for inspiration.]

The ceremony in which Armour presented his credentials to Franco was notably brief. There were no speeches in the ten-minute function. Afterward the new Ambassador talked only a few minutes with Franco.

Armour, who formerly served in Buenos Aires, was accompanied to the palace by Walton Butterworth, chargé d'affaires military, air, naval and commercial attaches and six embassy secretaries.

United States Ambassador, Norman Armour, presented his credentials to Generalissimo Franco in a colorful ceremony at the Madrid Royal Palace.

Armour was escorted to the palace by the chief of protocol Baron de las Torres, in a flag decked automobile surrounded by Franco's gayly-costumed Moorish guards.

Spaniards Lie, Jap Says

San Francisco, March 24 (AP)—Sadao Iguchi, spokesman of the Japanese Board of Information, "categorically denied" today that Japanese military forces had performed atrocities on Spaniards in the Philippines, the Japanese news agency Domei asserted.

The "allegations" against the Japanese troops, said the broadcast intercepted here, were made by "Spanish papers."

Iguchi said he "took the trouble to relay these reports to the Japanese authorities in the Philippines" and "it has been definitely established that there is absolutely no single fact as alleged by the Spanish press."

Spain Grants Air Transit to U.S.

MADRID, March 24 (AP).—The Spanish government granted transit privileges across Spain today for American planes carrying "vital supplies," the Foreign Ministry announced.

Spanish Missions Stop Serving Jap Interests

Madrid, March 24 (AP)—The Spanish Government announced today that it had ordered all Spanish diplomatic missions abroad to cease representing Japanese interests.

Its communiqué said Spain also had sent an "energetic demand for satisfaction" to Tokyo in connection with the execution of Spanish nationals and the destruction of Spanish property in the Philippines.

Reich Warns Spain

The Spanish Government said Thursday night that 172 Spanish men, women and children had been bayoneted to death by Japanese troops while American soldiers were seizing Manila. The communiqué termed the attacks "premeditated murders."

Free Press Committee On Way to Chungking

Editors Stop in New Delhi; To Return to India Later

NEW DELHI, March 24 (AP).—A committee of the American Society of Newspaper Editors, visiting allied nations to aid the post-war exchange of news, passed through New Delhi tonight en route to Chungking.

The committee members, Wilbur Forrest, assistant editor of the New York Herald Tribune; Ralph McGill, editor of "The Atlanta Constitution," and Carl W. Ackerman, dean of the Columbia University School of Journalism, plan to return in ten days to tour India.

"We are gratified at the reception given us in Russia and feel that progress has been made for the exchange of free news between America and Russia," Ackerman said. "Several Russian newspapers are planning to send correspondents to the San Francisco (world security) conference.

"The Russian government gave us special permission to hold round table discussions with Russian editors. For the first time in eighteen months the American Ambassador in Moscow received permission to talk with Russian editors while we were there."

Mr. Forrest said the committee members were anxious to talk to editors of Indian newspapers on the return trip to India before continuing to Australia.

Burma Escape Routes Cut

CALCUTTA, March 24 (AP).—Pitched battles between hard-driving British armor and Japanese troops caught in the Myingyan - Meiktila - Mandalay triangle were reported today as the enemy fought to escape from central Burma. The enemy force was originally estimated at 30,000.

Allied occupation of Meiktila has cut the Japanese escape routes to the south, and unless the enemy can break through there only narrow trails eastward to Thailand still remain open.

In the last forty-eight hours, field dispatches said, more than 1,000 Japanese troops have been killed in the Meiktila area, with 200 slain at a road block midway between Meiktila and Thazi, fifteen miles to the east.

Burma Allies Press On Meiktila

Calcutta, March 24 (AP) — Sharp fighting surged around the approaches to Meiktila today as Allied armored forces driving southward from Mandalay hunted down Japanese troops attempting to flee a potential trap in central Burma.

Field dispatches said more than 1,000 of the enemy had been killed in the last 48 hours by the hard-driving Allied units, which were disclosed yesterday to have captured the towns of Pindale and Wundwin, 19 miles north and 18 miles northeast of Meiktila.

Tanks Smash Road Block

Two hundred Japanese were killed when tankmen smashed a roadblock midway between Meiktila and Thazi, some 15 miles to the east. Another roadblock was smashed on the Wundwin-Meiktila road with heavy enemy casualties.

The armored column which captured Wundwin killed 190 of the enemy garrison of 200.

The Wundwin column, pushing north along the Mandalay-Rangoon railway, captured a 16-car train loaded with field guns and ammunition.

The British 36th Division, meanwhile, completed occupation of Mong Long, 70 miles northeast of Mandalay, after a thrust southward from captured Mogok.

Demoralization Pictured

A large number of disorganized enemy stragglers east and southeast of Mandalay were being systematically mopped up, the number surrendering apparently pointing to the increasing demoralization of the forces trapped in the Myingyan-Meiktila-Mandalay pocket.

Myingyan, 50 miles southwest of Mandalay on the Irrawaddy river, was completely cleared of Japanese troops and the enemy in that area was compressed eastward.

HAN RIVER TOWN SEIZED BY JAPS

Drive Of Enemy In Central China Gains Momentum

Chungking, March 24 (AP)—The Chinese high command announced tonight loss of Icheng, Han River town 145 miles northwest of Hankow, as the new Japanese offensive in Central China gained momentum.

Icheng is only 55 miles from Laohokow, a United States 14th Air Force base.

The high command also announced that Japanese striking southwestward in Honan province on a 90-mile front stretching from Lushan to the Peiping-Hankow railroad town of Chumatien had made further advances. This drive is aimed at seizing wheat crops and other resources. The communiqué said Japanese had advanced as much as 25 miles in some sectors of this front.

Japs Open Honan Drive

At the same time the communiqué said the enemy had started a drive in northwestern Honan Province westward from Loning in the general direction of Shensi Province. This action, however, was believed to be more of a diversionary move rather than the beginning of a general offensive.

In Kiangsi Province fighting continued in the outskirts of the lost air-base city of Kanhsien and in the suburbs of the wolfram mining center of Tayu, 50 miles southwest.

Chinese Enter Yuhsien

The high command said that in Hunan Province Chinese smashed into the eastern suburbs of Yuhsien, important highway center 45 miles east-northeast of Hengyang.

A communiqué from the United States 14th Air Force said fighters and bombers had attacked Japanese troops and transport in Honan Province in support of Chinese. No enemy air opposition was encountered.

U.S. Planes Smash At New Jap Drive

Chungking, March 24 (AP)—United States 14th Air Force planes, including Liberator bombers, have been hurled against the new Japanese offensive west of the Peiping-Hankow railroad which is aimed at seizing the area's wheat crop, an American communiqué announced today.

Without encountering opposition in the air in two days of operations, fighters and bombers hammered Japanese troop columns and concentrations, supplies and equipment west of the railroad and south of the Yellow River, in wide sweeps through Honan and Hunan provinces. Rail yards and rolling stock were lashed.

The Liberators, escorted by P-51's, knocked out one span of a Yellow River bridge, and another mission hit rail yards south of Tientsin, the communiqué announced.

BIG BOMBERS HIT FORMOSA

Planes Strike Cebu Island; Jap Shipping Feels Blow

Manila, Sunday, March 25 (AP)—Heavy bombers dropped 145 tons of bombs on airdromes and a naval airbase on Formosa Friday, raided Cebu Island in the central Philippines with 116 tons, and destroyed or damaged nine freighters and tankers in the China and Sulu seas.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur said the Liberators, "continuing destruction of the enemy air force on Formosa," hit the Tainan airdrome and the Oakayama naval airbase.

Many planes were put out of action, gun emplacements were silenced and fires and explosions were observed in hangars, warehouses and rail yards.

General Advances Reported

On Cebu the big bombers flew with attack planes and fighter-bombers to attack installations around Cebu City, midway along the east coast. MacArthur said fires and explosions indicated destruction of stores and ammunition.

Meanwhile, elements of the 11th Airborne Division advanced 9 miles south of Batangas to clear the shores of Batangas Bay on the Verde Island passage, vital shipping lane into Manila.

General advances on the northern Luzon fronts also were reported. MacArthur said the fighting was difficult in the 1st Corps sector where the 25th and 32d divisions were reducing enemy strong points in the Balete Pass and Villa Verde corridors.

Heavy rains and fog hampered operations.

Five Freighters Sunk

Patrol bombers damaged a small freighter in the Okinawa Islands and two others south of Hong Kong. Off Swatow a direct hit was scored on a 10,000-ton tanker, previously damaged, and its complete destruction was certain.

Five small freighters were sunk off the northwest coast of Borneo.

Americans clamped down today on Baguio, Philippine summer capital and prewar outlet for one of the world's richest gold-producing regions.

The 33d Division, closing in from two directions on the city of 25,000 normal population, was sealing Japanese off into the wild Kalinga "head hunter" country.

General MacArthur's Saturday communiqué announced one force of Yanks had captured Naguilian town and airport. Naguilian is some 12 air miles from Baguio.

Other 33d troops were some 8 miles southwest of the city limits.

The only escape route left for Gen. Tomoyuki Yamashita's Japanese garrison, which may include Yamashita himself, was by the unfinished Bontoc road and jungle trails through the wild Kalinga country.

2-Pronged U.S. Drive Nears Baguio

Manila, March 24 (AP)—American 33d Division doughboys moved closer to the Philippine summer capital of Baguio from the northwest today as elements of the same division continued artillery-range pressure from the southwest.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur announced the 33d had captured Naguilian town and airfield in its latest advance on Baguio, reported to be the Benguet Mountain headquarters of Japanese Gen. Tomoyuki Yamashita.

This placed the Americans, moving along the Naguilian road southwest from the Lingayen Gulf port of San Fernando, within 16 air-miles of Baguio.

Others 8 Miles From Baguio

Other 33d Yanks, who have battled for days along the tortuous Kinnon road from the southwest, were in the vicinity of Camp Three, about 8 miles from the objective.

Philippine-based heavy and medium bombers, continuing their air blockade of the South China Sea, struck again at Japanese ships off the China and Indo-China coasts.

The communiqué said they sank five ships, including two destroyers, and damaged eight or ten others, possibly sinking some.

MacArthur reported the 32d and 25th Divisions, converging southeast of Baguio on Balete Pass and Santa Fe, had beaten off four counterattacks. The pass leads into Luzon's Cagayan Valley.

The only escape route still open for Japanese at Baguio was northeast along the guerrilla-menaced mountain trail to the Cagayan Valley and the port of Aparri, where they started their Philippine invasion in 1941.

Naguilian was captured by the 130th Infantry Regiment after other troops had swept aside Japanese in a pitched battle 4 miles northwest.

Prized Manila Books Burned By Japanese

Manila, March 24 (AP)—More than 2,000,000 books—including the National Library's priceless, irreplaceable 70,000 Filipiniana collection of books and documents—were destroyed during the Japanese burning of Manila, Otley Beyer, of the University of the Philippines, said today.

The professor is saving the remains of the Philippine Cultural Institute's libraries.

The Filipiniana collection, considered the world's best, was in the basement of the wrecked Legislative Building, used as a Japanese strong point.

MacArthur Confident

Canberra, Australia, March 24 (AP)—Nelson T. Johnson, American Ambassador to Australia, said today after a flying visit to the Philippines, that Gen. Douglas MacArthur is "most optimistic" as to the outcome of the war. Ambassador Johnson had several talks with the five-star General.

Johnson said the destruction at Manila beggars description and undoubtedly was wrought under instructions from Tokyo.

FLEET SHELLS RYUKYU GROUP

Battleship Action Is Closest Yet To Jap Mainland

Guam, Sunday, March 25 (AP)—The 16-inch guns of United States battleships bombarded the Ryukyu islands Friday and Saturday in the closest surface action of the war to the Japanese mainland while carrier planes of Vice Admiral Marc A. Mitscher's Task Force 58 struck co-ordinating blows.

The Navy disclosed in a communique today the latest phase of the most extensive carrier task force action of the war.

In Action 6 Out Of 7 Days

Mitscher's two-way strike at the Ryukyus, destroying enemy shipping and smashing airdromes within 300 miles of Japan, was delivered with only a day's interval—likely for refueling—between it and a heated four-day operation against southern Japan.

Thus for six out of seven days Mitscher's task force was in action, crippling Nippon's home fleet in Inland Sea hideouts of Japan, cutting deep into the enemy's home-based airforce and neutralizing enemy airbases in the very heart of the empire over a stretch of more than 300 miles.

Mitscher's force braved bad weather to hit four islands in the Ryukyu area, chief of which was the naval and airbase of Okinawa. Sunday and Monday his planes had pounded southern Japan, then took on the enemy home-based air fleet in sky battles raging on through Tuesday and Wednesday.

Minami Daito Hit

Headquarters did not specify the islands bombarded by the battleships, but one was known to be Minami Daito Jima, 3 miles wide and 4 miles long, 200 miles east of Okinawa. Minami Daito has airfields and other facilities.

Pacific Fleet units in the past have bombarded Paramushiro and other islands in the Kuriles leading down to Japan from the north, but this was the first time any American naval force had turned its tremendous fire power on land targets within the immediate defense orbit of the mainland.

The two days of shelling constitute the best evidence yet as to how thoroughly the Japanese imperial fleet, once third ranking in the world, has been weakened by losses in two battles in the Philippines Sea and damage wrought on it in carrier raids earlier this week.

Heavy Toll Taken

Today's communiqué said a heavy toll, as yet not completely assessed, was taken during the sky fights of Mitscher's carrier air arm Tuesday and Wednesday with enemy planes based on Kyushu, Shikoku and Honshu islands of Japan proper.

The communiqué said the attacks included the big naval and air base of Okinawa, Minami Daito to the east of Okinawa and Kerama to the west.

The fourth target was Ie Shima immediately west of Okinawa.

Planes from Gen. Douglas MacArthur's command also have been hitting the Ryukyus.

In an obviously sketchy report, Nimitz said the carrier planes "destroyed some enemy shipping and damaged numerous small craft" in the Ryukyus attacks.

The new report on the four-day action off southern Japan also was preliminary, suggesting the figure of 731 enemy planes destroyed or damaged announced yesterday by headquarters was in for revision upward.

"Although complete details are not yet available, reports show that large numbers of Japanese aircraft were shot down, both by the fire of the Hellcat and Corsair fighters of the fleet and by its anti-aircraft guns," the communique said.

The destroyer and the larger warship were damaged during the period when 50 planes were shot down out of an enemy force ganging up on units of the fleet.

Today's communique also reported new raids on the Bonin islands, north of conquered Iwo, on enemy-held islands in the Palau group and on Wake and the Marshalls.

It added 51 more Japanese killed and 16 taken prisoner on Saipan, Tinian and Guam—American air and naval bases where organized enemy resistance ended last Summer.

In the attacks, a destroyer of the task force was seriously damaged and a heavier warship suffered some damage.

Adm. Chester W. Nimitz, who previously had disclosed that 17 enemy warships were crippled and more than 700 enemy planes destroyed or damaged in the raid on southern Japan, said the March 21 action was so intense that in one phase alone 50 enemy aircraft were downed at a cost of three American fighters.

In the Friday-Saturday assaults in the Ryukyus, the targets included the big naval and air base of Okinawa, Minami Daito to the east of Okinawa and Kerama to the west.

The fourth target was Ie Shima immediately west of Okinawa.

Planes from Gen. Douglas MacArthur's command also have been hitting the Ryukyus.

Carrier Planes Bomb Okinawa

Jap Radio Reports U. S. Attacks on Big Air and Navy Base Second Straight Day.

United States Pacific Fleet Headquarters, Guam, March 24 (A. P.).—Tokyo radio said today that American carrier planes were bombing the big naval and air base at Okinawa in the Ryukyus, midway between Japan and Formosa, carrying the assault into the second straight day.

Admiral Chester W. Nimitz offered no confirmation of this in his official reports today which disclosed the loss of the escort carrier, Bismarck Sea, in the battle for Iwo. Admiral Nimitz's reports also increased from 575 to 731 the bag of enemy planes during carrier attacks earlier this week on southern Japan.

Tokyo said that 230 planes, presumably from Vice-Admiral Marc A. Mitscher's Task Force 58, which crippled Nippon's home fleet and heavily damaged major enemy naval air stations Sunday and Monday, opened up on Okinawa yesterday afternoon. Okinawa is 400 miles southwest of Kyushu, prime target of the earlier attack.

Damaged Seventeen Warships.

Such a two-day raid damaged seventeen Nipponese warships in hide-outs of Japan's inland sea and smashed the big naval air stations at Kanoya, Omura and Saeki on Kyushu Sunday and Monday. Today Admiral Nimitz said sky fights between the enemy home-based air force and Admiral Mitscher's carrier planes raged on through Tuesday and Wednesday, with eighty-one more of the foe shot down.

The Bismarck Sea, reported by the Navy in Washington to displace 10,200 tons, was sunk by Japanese planes off Iwo on February 21, the third day of the bloody invasion of that island.

[Associated Press Correspondent Robert Geiger reported a second unidentified carrier was damaged.]

After the flaming Bismarck Sea had to be abandoned, the enemy raiders strafed and killed several of the crew bobbing in the water while awaiting rescue. Admiral Nimitz said that most of the ship's personnel, including the captain, John Lockwood Pratt of Milford, Del., and Coronado, Cal., were saved.

Captain Is Rescued.

Capt. Pratt, who later spent forty-five minutes in the water, ordered the ship abandoned after the fires "became so terrific we couldn't surround them." The sea was rough and several men drowned.

The carrier was hit during an attack by a flight of Japanese fighters and bombers that one naval officer said "looked like a swarm of flies on a boarding house table." Three of these attacked the Bismarck Sea. One was shot down for sure and another probably. Admiral Nimitz previously announced that American fighters and naval gunners brought down at least seven of the attacking flight.

The Bismarck Sea was the eleventh carrier the United States is known to have lost in the war, all but one in the Pacific.

out of the "four or six regular carriers" as damaged or sunk in the unconfirmed surprise attack off Ulithi, western Carolines, March 11, as the "Randolph and Cowpens."

Added to these claims, the Blue Network intercepted a broadcast today claiming that 18,000 United States naval officers and men were lost—apparently pilots from the 180 planes claimed downed and the eleven major United States warships claimed sunk—during Vice Admiral Marc A. Mitscher's recent blow against the homeland.

Tokyo filled out its "bag" today by claiming a Japanese submarine damaged an "enemy" transport in the Mindanao Bay area of the Philippines Tuesday. A realistic touch was added: "Extent of damage could not be determined in the face of violent enemy depth charges."

S.S. Bismarck Sea Sinking Told

By Robert Geiger

Pearl Harbor, March 24 (AP)—The Japanese sent over so many planes in the attack which sank the Bismarck Sea, an escort carrier, off Iwo Jima February 21, "that they looked like a swarm of flies on a boarding-house table."

That's the description given today by Lieut. Com. Carl L. Estes, Longview, Texas, newspaper publisher assigned as public relations officer to jeep (escort) carriers. He saw the sinking from another small flattop only 1,000 yards away.

Press Correspondent, reported in a February 26 interview—released only last night—that Capt. John Lockwood Pratt, Milford, Del., and Coronado, Cal., told him several explosions and fires caused loss of the ship after several aerial torpedoes tore into her.)

"Soon she listed to starboard, then rolled over and went down.

"Destroyers and other ships (the Navy said Coast Guard boats) picked up survivors. Some of the Bismarck Sea's planes were in the air at the time she was sunk. So were planes from another ship that was damaged."

"We took some of those planes aboard our carrier. Other ships also took some of the Bismarck's planes."

Estes said the crew of the Bismarck Sea crowded to the fo'c's'le and went over the side before she went down.

11TH CARRIER LOST

San Francisco, March 24 (A. P.).—The U. S. S. Bismarck Sea, disclosed last night as sunk off Iwo Jima on February 21, was the eleventh American aircraft carrier lost in the war. The eleven were:

Carrier.	Where Sunk.	Date Sunk.
Lexington	Coral Sea	May 8, 1942
Yorktown	Midway	June 7, 1942
Wasp	Solomons	Sept. 15, 1942
Hornet	Santa Cruz	Oct. 26, 1942
*Liscome Bay	Gilbert Is.	Nov. 24, 1943
*Block Island	Atlantic	May, 1944
†Princeton	Philippines	Oct. 25, 1944
Gambier Bay	Philippines	Oct. 25, 1944
Saint Lo	Philippines	Oct. 25, 1944

New Carrier Force Hitting Ryukyus, Japs Report

San Francisco, March 24 (AP)—Radio Tokyo reported today that a "new" carrier task force was pushing home a second day's attack upon the near-by Ryukyu Islands.

The broadcast, intercepted here, said a carrier plane force, with "two or three aircraft carriers as its nucleus," attached Okinawa Island Friday with 230 planes and returned today to raid both Okinawa and Miyako. The former is 350 miles from Japan and Miyako is an additional 180 miles.

The second day's raids lasted at least eight hours. No damage to United States forces was claimed.

Earlier Damage Claims

Other broadcasts identified two

"Japs On All Sides"

"Our ships were shooting Japs down on all sides, but two got through," Estes related. "Our destroyer escort shot down one of the pair, but the other headed right for us.

"Just as it reached us, it turned and banked and hit the Bismarck Sea (with a torpedo).

"There was a huge puff of orange flame. The Bismarck Sea steamed forward for a while—then stopped dead. Then there was a tremendous explosion and everything was dark."

NAGOYA SMASHED BY 200 SUPERFORTS

Big Bombers Drop Fire Bombs on Giant Aircraft Factory.

21ST U. S. BOMBER COMMAND HEADQUARTERS, Guam, Sunday, March 25 — (AP) More than 200 Superfortresses swung in daringly low over the mammoth Mitsubishi aircraft engine factory near Nagoya in darkness early today and set at least 15 fires in the greatest demolition raid yet to hit Japan.

Giving Nippon no pause, the sky behemoths from the Marianas touched off flames and explosions in one of Japan's most important plants the day after a big American carrier task force shelled and bombed the Ryukyu islands, 300 miles southwest of the enemy home-lines southwest of ... land.

The B-29s, which in five recent incendiary raids have dropped more than 11,000 tons of fire bombs on Japanese cities, switched to demolition bombs in an effort to knock out a factory whose engines are used by virtually every type of enemy plane.

Sgt. Donald L. Schubert of Westbrook, Conn., a gunner on one B-29, counted five fires in the plant when his plane began its run and "three times that many" when i was leaving."

A B-29 officer said destruction o the Mitsubishi factory near Nagoya spreading over 6,990,000 square feet would have a serious and lasting effect on the strength of Japan's hard hit air force.

Tokyo radio said the raid continued for two hours and incendiaries as well as demolition bombs were dropped.

It was estimated unofficially at headquarters that at least 225 B-29s made the low level attack on the industrial outskirts of Nagoya, which itself has been hit nine times since last mid-December by Superfort raids. Two of the former attacks, March 12 and 19, were mass incendiary blows.

Pre-raid weather reports indicated that conditions over the target would not permit visual bombing even at low level.

While the incendiary raids were made by 300 to 350 planes, the previous demolition attacks have been delivered by perhaps less than half that number of Superforts. Headquarters has never stated the exact number, confining its announcements that the raids were delivered by a "sizeable force."

(Twentieth Air force headquarters at Washington said "a very large task force of Superfortresses" hit major industrial targets at Nagoya. The preliminary announcement said "today's mission was accomplished by precision bombing against specific targets.")

The Mitsubishi plant was bombed through fierce anti-aircraft fire for the fourth time last Feb. 15. It is one of the two biggest factories of its type in Japan.

With the Nakajima plant at Musashino, near Tokyo, the Mitsubishi Nagoya factory accounts for around three-fourths of the Japanese air force's combat plane engines.

The Nakajima plant was first bombed last Thanksgiving Day in the first large raid on Japan by Superforts based at Saipan. The factory has been repeatedly blasted by U. S. Navy carrier planes as well as by B-29s since then.

B-29 in Night Take-Off at Iwo

GUAM, March 24 (AP).—The first B-29 crew to make a successful night take-off from Iwo Jima after an emergency landing is back at its Saipan base after four days on Iwo. The crew included Staff Sergeant, F. P. Dannunzio, of 723 East 182d Street, the Bronx, and Sergeant R. I. Ettenhigh, of Landmills, N. Y.

Argentine Minister Quits Over War Issue

Buenos Aires, March 24 (A. P.).—Romulo Boneo Escheverry, Minister of Justice, resigned today in a dispute with the rest of the Argentine Cabinet over matters of foreign policy.

Before he resigned, conversations had been under way among military leaders seeking a basis of agreement for a decision on a declaration of war against the Nazis. The newspaper El Mundo said that Boreo had proposed that a plebiscite on the matter be held, a procedure which has been indorsed by the Nationalists. Boneo's action indicated that the Government would probably accept the responsibility of a declaration without a referendum.

Tokyo Order Issued For 'Volunteer Army'

San Francisco, March 25 (AP)—Tokyo today announced Government orders for formation of a "people's volunteer army" and quoted Premier Kuniaki Koiso: "The time is here for the 100,000,000 people of Japan to man their posts and participate."

Tokyo domestic broadcasts and Domei News Agency dispatches, recorded by the Federal Communications Commission, said the question of martial law for all of Japan was before the House of Peers.

The martial-law proposal of Koiso's Cabinet would empower armed forces to confiscate any or all "land, buildings and material" and assign any or all citizens to "military works."

Named by Roosevelt to Nelson Rockefeller Post

WASHINGTON, March 24 (AP).—Wallace K. Harrison, of Huntington, L. I., was named today by President Roosevelt as Director of Inter-American Affairs. Mr. Harrison has been acting executive officer of the agency since Nelson A. Rockefeller was named Assistant Secretary of State. His new post pays $10,000 a year.

Mr. Harrison will operate under the direction of the President and in accordance with the foreign policies as defined by the State Department and administered through the Assistant Secretary of State in charge of Inter-American Affairs, the office now held by Mr. Rockefeller. Thus, Mr. Rockefeller will keep a finger on the agency as far as policy-making goes.

In an executive order the President changed the name of the agency from the Office of Coordinator of Inter-American Affairs to simply the Office of Inter-American Affairs. Mr. Rockefeller was its first chief.

Mr. Harrison, born in Worcester, Mass., Sept. 28, 1895, is a co-architect of Rockefeller Center in New York City.

FAVORS BRETTON PLAN

San Francisco, March 24 (A. P.).—Indorsement of the Bretton Woods monetary principles by the Allies is paramount for success of the World Security Conference in April, United States Assistant Secretary of State Dean Acheson said last night.

Addressing a pre-conference institute, Mr. Acheson urged the United Nations to "put aside the devices and tricks of monetary warfare which they learned so well before and during this war . . ."

World trade, and peace itself, is threatened, he said, by high tariffs "and more recent devices—quotas, prohibitions, preference systems, subsidies . . . by which governments force exports, prevent imports, and solve their business problems at the expense of foreigners."

Vice-Admiral McCain Gets His Second D.S.M.

Gold Star Awarded Leader of 2d Carrier Task Force

SAN FRANCISCO, March 24 (AP).—Vice-Admiral John S. McCain today wore the Gold Star in liue of a second Distinguished Service Medal, a tribute to the manner in which he hurled his 2d Carrier Task Force against the Japanese.

In commenting on the decoration, 12th Naval District headquarters said the admiral's Carrier Task Force in the last three months had accounted for 2,962 Japanese planes destroyed or probably destroyed.

Admiral McCain, who also wears the blue and white ribbon symbolic of the Navy Cross, was commended for "indomitable courage, sound judgment and inspiring leadership," in air strikes in the Philippines, at Formosa and in the China Sea. The Distinguished Service Medal was presented here yesterday by Admiral Royal E. Ingersoll, commander of the Western Sea Frontier.

Jonathan Daniels Gets Press Post

Washington, March 24 (AP)—President Roosevelt said today Jonathan Daniels will become the White House secretary in charge of press relations.

Mr. Roosevelt is asking Stephen Early, who held the press job for years, to stay on as a White House secretary temporarily, pending the choice of a secretary in charge of appointments.

Maj. Gen. Edwin M. Watson, who had the appointments assignment, died on the return trip from the Yalta Big Three conference.

Mr. Roosevelt said in a statement that "I hope to be able by early June to name a permanent secretary in charge of appointments. At that time Steve will be free to enter private employment, in accordance with the wishes he has expressed to me."

Daniels, 42, is a former Raleigh (N.C.) newspaper man. He has written several books, the best known being "A Southerner Discovers the South" and "A Southerner Discovers New England."

CHEVIGNY KILLED ON IWO

Former Notre Dame Football Star Was Captain in Marines

SOUTH BEND, Ind., March 24 (AP)—Capt. Jack Chevigny, former Notre Dame football star and collegiate and professional coach, was reported today to have been killed while leading a marine charge on Iwo Jima, Feb. 19. Mrs. H. H. Weinert said at Seguin, Tex., that she had received the news from Captain Chevigny's sister, Mrs. Joe Gaffney of Washington.

Captain Chegivny was born at Hammond, Ind., thiry-nine years ago, played on the 1926, 1927 and 1928 football teams at Notre Dame and then joined the coaching staff. He became head coach of the Chicago Cardinals professional football team in 1932. A year later he was named head football coach at St. Edward's University, Austin, Tex. He served as head football coach at the University of Texas from 1934 to 1937.

He was in the oil business before entering the Marine Corps two years ago.

Ex-Grid Star Killed In Action On Carrier

Washington, March 24 (AP)—Lieut. Com. Mercer McCall Tharpe, former star tackle at Georgia Tech and subsequently line coach there, was killed in action on the escort carrier Bismarck Sea.

The carrier's loss in the Iwo Jima invasion was announced last night by Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, Pacific Fleet commander. The Navy disclosed today Tharpe was among the navy personnel whose lives were lost.

Tharpe was commissioned in the Navy early in 1942 and reported for duty as aviation cadet instructor.

DRAFT VIOLATORS FREED TO AID WAR

They Are Going Into Combat Service or Useful Work, Agencies Declare

WASHINGTON, March 24 (AP)—The Selective Service and the Federal Bureau of Prisons is speeding the release from prison of some draft violators in order to put them in the armed forces or in useful work. James V. Bennett, Federal prisons director, said in his annual report, issued today, that the revised procedure worked this way:

A draft violator, 18 through 37 years of age, who had served sixty or more days of his sentence, was classified by a special draft board as available for combat military service, as a conscientious objector available for non-combat military service, or as a conscientious objector available for civilian work of "national importance."

The prisoner then receives an opportunity to apply for voluntary induction or, if a conscientious objector, for release to a civilian public service camp or to special-service assignment.

Whether or not he has applied for induction he has a chance to receive a pre-induction physical examination. If he is found suitable for military service and is willing to be inducted, the special draft board recommends to the Attorney General, through the director of prisons, that he be released for induction.

If for physical, mental or moral reasons he is unfit for military service he is reclassified 4-F and the special draft board then considers him for release other than to the Army, provided, however, that before he took his physical he had applied for induction or some other type of release.

Navy Raises Sub Sunk At Boston Pier

Boston, March 24 (AP)—A recently completed submarine, which sank accidentally at its Boston Navy Yard pier March 15 when a civilian worker opened a torpedo tube, was raised yesterday, 1st Naval headquarters announced today.

The Navy said the interior of the submersible was cleared of water after divers from the salvage ship, Falcon, closed all valves and hatches.

Her ballast tanks were then blown, the Navy added, and the craft surfaced normally. She had been resting on an almost even keel in about 54 feet of water.

Ice Cream and Fruit Follow Invading Yanks

New York, March 24 (AP)—Pacific fighters now can enjoy ice cream and fresh fruit and meat a few hours after invasion landings.

The Army's new all-concrete refrigerated barge, first of its kind, does the trick.

It is towed behind an invasion flotilla and moored off the beachhead. It can send ashore 1,000 tons of ice cream, fruits and choice beef cuts.

AMERICAN CONTROL OF ISLANDS URGED

Journal Opposes Trusteeship For Bases Won From Japs

Washington, March 24 (AP)—The Army And Navy Journal said today "no one doubts" that the United States will retain unilateral control of the mandated islands captured from Japan despite any proposals for international trusteeship.

Admirals Chester W. Nimitz and William F. Halsey, in their recent conferences at Washington, expressed belief that the mandated islands should be retained under the American flag, the unofficial service publication said.

As Bases For Our Protection

President Roosevelt's attitude regarding the islands has not been disclosed, the Journal said, but added:

"In the interest of the long-range protection of the United States, most of our army and navy and especially our air strategists, feel that the islands of the Pacific we have taken from the Japanese shall be acknowledged by our allies as American and, therefore, be transformed as we wish into bases for our protection."

The Journal said that Great Britain, Australia, New Zealand, France and the Netherlands "never would accept a trusteeship for the islands we helped them to regain—Guadalcanal and Tarawa are two that cost us heavily—and others which they hold under mandate, and upon a number of which we have built war installations to increase their security."

BIG WAR NEEDS TO CONTINUE

Krug, WPB, Emphasizes Size Of "Pacific Supply Line"

Washington, March 24 (AP)—Filling the supply pipeline to the Pacific theater will demand continued high war production well into the period following German collapse, J. A. Krug said today.

The WPB chairman in an interview helped to clarify the running controversy whether the troops shifted from Europe to the Orient would leave most of their equipment behind and be rearmed for the war against Japan.

Wallace K. Harrison Appointed Inter-American Affairs Director

Agency's Executive Officer

Mr. Acheson advocated acceptance of the Bretton Woods proposals, the trade agreements program, Mexican water treaty, postwar sale of United States ships to war-depleted countries, and civil aviation conference freedoms.

MAR 25 1945

MAR 25 1945

30. 24 — 24175

Krug agreed with his vice chairman, William L. Batt, who said the Army and Air Forces would have to be "pretty completely re-equipped," since it would be "simply not practicable" to reassemble, repair and transport materiel from Europe along with the troops—the men will be moved too fast.

No Contradiction, He Says

This does not contradict the Army's repeated claim that it will salvage "as much equipment as possible" for use against the Japanese, Krug stated.

"We have a big job of filling the supply pipeline to the Pacific theater with the new equipment, to have it ready for the big movements of troops and expanded scale of the Pacific fighting.

"The equipment from Europe, after it is repaired, packed and shipped, can be fed into the tail end of the pipeline.

Calls Result The Same

"But the net result on production is the same—the manufacture of new equipment for the transferred troops will require sustained, heavy effort by industry for months after Germany's fall."

The prospect of paying for new arms for the Pacific has alarmed some congressmen. Representative Engel (R., Mich.) demanded an explanation from Henry L. Stimson, Secretary of War, serving notice that he would seek to cut the Army's next appropriation to the extent of any duplicated production.

Stimson replied by letter that the War Department's policy was to make "maximum transfer" of all equipment which could be "effectively used" against the Japanese. Batt's statements, in a New York speech March 1, revived the issue.

Robert P. Patterson, under secretary of war, took up the issue this week, telling reporters that the Army already has made estimates of the amounts expected to be salvaged, and that the percentage would run high on artillery and other durable items.

Army Stand Explained

There was no War Department denial, however, that the transferred men would have to be substantially re-equipped.

On the contrary, the Army feels growing concern over the amount of shipping needed to bring large forces to bear against the Japanese in the months following the Nazi collapse.

This made it appear unlikely that precious shipping space on the long haul from Europe to the Pacific would be used for material which, at the start at least, could be furnished more quickly from the American arsenal.

PLANS PROBE FOR VETERANS

House Rules Unit Sidetracks Full Inquiry, However

Washington, March 24 (AP)—The House Rules Committee today temporarily sidetracked a full-scale investigation of the treatment of war veterans but approved a check-up of the Veterans' Administration.

The committee action came after Brig. Gen. Frank T. Hines, veterans' administrator, announced the agency would investigate itself and Representative Philbin (D., Mass.) offered a resolution for a "sweeping, independent, complete and fearless" probe of veterans' affairs by a special committee.

Without an all-inclusive congressional investigation, Philbin said, Congress is in for "a national scandal that will shock the country to its roots." He made public letters from patients who said inmates are being tortured and beaten in veterans' hospitals.

Demand Put Aside

But the Rules Committee—which guides the course of House legislation—put aside Philbin's demand and approved instead a resolution by Representative Rankin (D., Miss.) authorizing the House Veterans' Committee to investigate "the efficiency of the administration and operation of Veterans' Administration facilities."

Philbin called for the resolution "limited in scope" and said he will renew his demand for a thoroughgoing investigation when the subject reaches the House floor, possibly next week.

The Massachusetts Representative said a torrent of complaints from veterans and their families have come to him of mistreatment accorded patients in veterans' hospitals.

Thinks Smoke Means Fire

"It brings a clear indication that where there is so much smoke there must be some fire," he said.

General Hines, appearing before the Veterans' Committee voluntarily at Rankins's invitation, said many attacks on the agency are based on "gross distortions of the facts, or misrepresentations." He said he has started one investigation and would welcome another by Congress.

LEGION ISSUES JOBS PROGRAM

It Gives Veteran First Call On Business And Industry

Washington, March 24 (AP)—The American Legion made puolic today what it called "a simple, clear cut program" for the employment of returning war veterans.

Its four-point proposal was built around these basic elements:

1. Welcome them back as men with a sincere greeting, an honest assurance that a job is awaiting them fitted to their abilities.

2. Make a realistic analysis of the jobs available and of the veterans' aptitude, interests, ambitions, tastes and training.

3. Fit jobs and veterans together as the result of such realistic appraisal.

4. Co-operate intelligently with the veteran after he is placed in a job; with a ready willingness to make adjustments as actual experience on the job makes those adjustments advisable.

The program was prepared by the Legion's national employment committee.

Not Based On "Sentiment"

The job of carrying it out was assigned to Ralph H. Lavers, the organization's national employment director. It was made public by Edward N. Scheiberling, national commander, who declared it was based on "sound business efficiency and necessity" and not on "sentiment."

"These are the veterans, the cream of America's human resources," a foreword read. "They are the men we must employ first, not because of duty, not out of sentiment, but because we cannot do without their courage, skill and initiative . . . We cannot let their fresh leadership become embittered and disillusioned."

Scheiberling said the Legion prepared the program after consultation with American business.

Veteran Has First Call, But—

"By every rule of ability, of economic necessity, by law and sentiment," the Legion said, "the veteran has first call upon American business and industry."

"But we should do the veteran an ill favor if we employed him and left other millions of workers out of jobs. That way lies economic collapse, state socialism or state capitalism."

The problem, it said, is one of the fullest possible employment—a job for every man and woman seeking one."

The Legion estimated that 55,000,000 postwar jobs must be found "if we are to preserve our free America."

It emphasized that "a one-armed man is not handicapped on a job requiring only one arm; a blind man is not handicapped on a job which does not require sight."

Iwo Flag Photo To Be Symbol of 7th War Loan

Mt. Suribachi Picture Will Be Used on 3,500,000 Posters Throughout U. S.

WASHINGTON, March 24 (AP).—The Associated Press photo of marines raising the flag on Mt. Suribachi has been chosen as the official symbol of the Seventh War Loan. Treasury officials said today they will display it more widely than any other picture has been displayed in history.

Joe Rosenthal, Associated Press photographer, snapped the photo on Iwo Jima. To get it he followed a heroic band of marines up the slopes of Mt. Suribachi while the battle raged.

Mr. Rosenthal was on assignment with the still-picture pool.

For war bond purposes there will be two versions of the picture. One is an oil painting done by C. C. Beall, noted artist, for color reproduction in large posters and other advertising media. Mr. Beall said he did not change a line of the photo; he merely re-did it in color.

The other is a simplified version lacking some of the figures for more general use in smaller space, prepared by an advertising agency.

Here's how it will be used in the Seventh War Loan drive, which starts May 14:

1. It will be the main poster of the drive, and 3,500,000 copies will be displayed by 1,000,000 retailers, 16,000 theaters, 15,000 banks, 200,000 factories, 30,000 railroad stations and in many other public places.

2. It will be spread across 15,000 big outdoor panels.

6,000 AT MEMPHIS QUIT TIRE PLANT

Halt Firestone's War Output in Dispute Over a Guard's Altercation With Janitress

MEMPHIS, March 24 (AP)—The Firestone Tire and Rubber Company's plant here was idle tonight after 6,000 workers left their jobs in protest, a union official said, against transfer to another department of a guard who struck a Negro woman employe.

The plant makes tires, life rafts and other equipment for the armed forces. Most of the workers are members of the United Rubber Workers of America (CIO).

R. H. Routon, president of the CIO local, declared that the strike was not authorized.

"The union has no jurisdiction over the guard force, as it is not part of the union," he said. "The action was taken by the company and therefore our people have no business engaging in work stoppage over it."

Company and union officials said that no demands had been presented by the workers who walked off their jobs yesterday and failed to report to shifts today.

Mr. Routon asserted that the walkout grew out of an incident during a bus line-up at one of the plant's gates Wednesday afternoon.

A Negro janitress, he said, refused to go to the foot of the line as directed by a guard, who took her to the guardhouse inside the gate to summon police. He quoted the guard as saying that he struck the woman in the mouth when she cursed him.

The union official asserted that the guard was transferred by the company to another department and that the walkout was in protest against this move.

Cliff Reynolds, plant labor superintendent, said:

"The jobs are waiting for the men if they want them."

The work stoppage was the second in ten days at the plant. About 500 maintenance men left their jobs last week in what the union said was an unauthorized walkout over a wage dispute. They soon returned.

DN536AEW

BY JOHN A.PARRIS, JR.

(ADVANCE) LONDON, MARCH 24-(AP)-ADOLF HITLER HAS COMPLETED MILITARY AND POLITICAL PLANS FOR AN ATTEMPT TO KEEP NAZIISM ALIVE ON THE GAMBLE THAT ALLIED VICTORY IN EUROPE WILL BE FOLLOWED AFTER A SHORT INTERLUDE BY TREMENDOUS CHAOS, IT WAS REPORTED TODAY ON THE BASIS OF RELIABLE ADVICES FROM INSIDE GERMANY.

THE SOURCES WERE ANTI-NAZI GERMAN REFUGEES AND INTELLIGENCE AGENTS OF MILITARY AND POLITICAL AUTHORITIES IN EUROPE'S EXILED GOVERNMENTS.

HITLER WAS DECLARED INTENDING TO USE BERCHTESGADEN AS A FOUNTAINHEAD TO FLOOD THE WORLD AGAIN WITH NAZIISM.

TO CARRY OUT THE POLITICAL SIDE OF HIS PLAN, HITLER IS REPORTED TO ALREADY HAVE 20,000 MEN AND WOMEN BETWEEN THE AGES OF 16 AND 35 TRAINED AS SECRET AGENTS FOR DUTY AT HOME AND ABROAD. LARGE NUMBERS OF HIS AGENTS NOW ARE IN NEUTRAL COUNTRIES AND IT IS NOT UNLIKELY MANY OF THEM ARE POSING AS REFUGEES.

ON THE MILITARY SIDE, HE IS UNDERSTOOD TO HAVE TURNED THE BERCHTES-GADEN-SALZBURG AREA INTO A GIGANTIC FORTRESS WITH SUBTERRANEAN AIRCRAFT FACTORIES, HANGARS AND AIRFIELDS, SYNTHETIC FUEL PLANTS, MOTOR AND BALL-BEARING FACTORIES AND STOCKS OF FOOD AND MUNITIONS FOR A THREE-YEAR SIEGE.

THE NEW PLAN, WHICH NO LONGER HAS VICTORY BUT DEFEAT AS ITS POLITICAL AND MILITARY BASIS, IS NOT LESS GRANDIOSE THAN THAT WHICH HITLER WORKED OUT IN CASE OF VICTORY OVER RUSSIA--WHICH WAS AIMED TO CARRY HIM TO INDIA.

IT APPEARS TO BE BASED PURELY ON THE BELIEF--AND HOPE--THAT THE ALLIED VICTORY WILL RESULT IN QUARRELS AMONG THE SMALL NATIONS OF EUROPE AND WRANGLING AMONG THE BIG THREE.

ALREADY GERMAN PROPAGANDISTS HAVE BEEN MAKING THE MOST OUT OF THE ALLIED FOOD SITUATION AND THE PLIGHT OF LIBERATED EUROPEANS, TELLING THE PEOPLE ON THE CONTINENT THAT UNDER THE NAZI "NEW ORDER" THEY DID NOT STARVE OR FACE FAMINE.

HITLER'S PLAN, HOWEVER, CAN ONLY SUCCEED IF EUROPE IS SWEPT BY SOCIAL UNREST, ECONOMIC CRISIS AND CIVIL WARS. TO THE ARCHITECTS OF PEACE AND SECURITY AT SAN FRANCISCO WILL FALL THE JOB OF PREVENTING THIS.

BUT IF CHAOS DID FOLLOW SHORTLY AFTER GERMANY'S DEFEAT, THEN IT WOULD BE FERTILE SOIL FOR A REVIVAL OF NATIONAL SOCIALISM.

MILITARY, POLITICAL AND ECONOMIC EXPERTS, HOWEVER, CONTEND THAT SUCH A DEVELOPMENT WOULD ONLY BE POSSIBLE IF THE GERM CELL OF NATIONAL SOCIALISM SURVIVED THE DARK INTERIM PERIOD.

APPARENTLY HITLER IS BANKINGHTHAT IT WILL. REALIZING THAT THE WAR IS LOST, THAT EVENTUALLY--PERHAPS SOON--MOST OF GERMANY WILL BE OCCUPIED, HE MAY WITHDRAW AS MANY OF HIS FORCES AS POSSIBLE TO THE MOUNTAINS TO CARRY ON GUERRILLA FIGHTING.

MANY MILITARY OBSERVERS BELIEVE THAT HITLER WILL TRY TO HOLD OUT IN THE BERCHTESGADEN-SALZBURG AREA AS LONG AS POSSIBLE. REPORTS FROM INSIDE GERMANY INDICATE THAT HE HAS HEAVILY FORTIFIED THE AREA AND MADE IT SELF-SUSTAINING.

THERE ARE TWO VARIATIONS OF THE "FORTRESS OF BERCHTESGADEN" PLAN, BOTH OF WHICH ARE POSSIBLE.

ONE IS THAT HITLER, HIMMLER AND THEIR IMMEDIATE COLLABORATORS WILL GIVE THEIR ORDERS FROM THE STRONGLY FORTIFIED BERGHOF OR ALDERHORSTZ--HITLER'S TWO RESIDENCES ABOVE BERCHTESGADEN--BY WIRELESS TO THEIR UNDERGROUND FIGHTERS IN THE REST OF GERMANY.

THE OTHER, WHICH WELL INFORMED OBSERVERS EMPHASIZE MUST BE TAKEN MORE SERIOUSLY AND WHICH IS MORE FEASIBLE, IS THAT HITLER MAY USE THIS SAME FORTRESS AS A POWER CENTER OF A REDBOUT COMPRISING PARTS OF BAVARIA AND SALZBURG. IT WOULD HAVE THE ADDED ADVANTAGE OF NOT BEING TOO FAR FROM THE SWISS FRONTIER.

BUT IT IS AGREED GENERALLY HERE THAT THE DECISIVE THING IS NOT THE MILITARY VALUE OF BERCHTESGADEN BUT ITS POLITICAL SIGNIFICANCE. FOR WITH HIS AGENTS ALREADY SPREAD THROUGH EUROPE AND THE WORLD, HITLER COULD MAKE BERCHTESGADEN THE LAST BATTLE.

A211

SOME GERMAN SOURCES HERE BELIEVE HITLER WILL DO THIS SO THAT BERCHTESGADEN WOULD PERSIST AS A SYMBOL TO THE GERMAN PEOPLE. THEY BELIEVE IT PART OF THE PLAN TO MAKE A LEGEND OF HITLER AND NATIONAL SOCIALISM--A PLAN NEVER TO LET THE GERMAN PEOPLE FORGET HITLER OR NAZIISM.

THERE HAVE BEEN NUMEROUS REPORTS THAT HITLER AND HIS HENCHMEN PROVI-DED FOR THEIR POSTWAR STRUGGLE BY SENDING MONIES ABROAD.

BUT STILL MORE IMPORTANT THAN THE FINANCIAL PREPARATIONS FOR CONTINUING THE WAR UNDERGROUND ARE THE GERMAN PREPARATIONS FOR CREATION OF AN IDEOLOGICAL UNDERGROUND MOVEMENT.

THE NUCLEI OF THIS MOVEMENT ARE REPORTED TO BE 200,000 MEN AND WOMEN TRAINED AS SECRET

HENTS. IT IS BELIEVED THE NAZIS HOPE IN THE POST-WAR PERIOD, WHEREVER THERE IS A THREAT OF C

THE NUCLEI OF THIS MOVEMENT ARE REPORTED TO BE 200,000 MEN AND WOMEN TRAINED AS SECRET AGENTS. IT IS BELIEVED THE NAZIS HOPE IN THE POST-WAR PERIOD, WHEREVER THERE IS A THREAT OF CHAOS IN EUROPE TO BE ABLE WITH HELP OF THEIR RELIGION--THE BASIC PRINCIPLE OF WHICH IS ORDER--TO FIND FOLLOWERS WHO HAVE HAD ENOUGH OF DISORDER.

THUS, IT WOULD APPEAR THE NAZIS DO NOT INTEND TO PREACH NATIONAL SOCIALISM IN THE OLD SENSE ANY LONGER, BUT INTEND TO STRESS THE CREDO OF ORDER.

HITLER'S PLANS TO KEEP NATIONAL SOCIALISM ALIVE MAY, ACCORDING TO SOME REPORTS, BE ATTEMPTED BY MEANS OF BRIBING PERSONS OR INFLUENCING

THEM IDEOLOGICALLY TO ACQUIRE INFLUENCE IN THE PRESS, RADIO, AND POLITICS IN ALL COUNTRIES.

THESE REPORTS ADD TTHAT HITLER'S PLAN ENVISAGES SETTING UP RELIEF AND CHARITABLE ORGANIZATIONS TO WORK IN COLLABORATION WITH AMERICAN WELFARE ORGANIZATIONS TO PROMOTE NATIOONAL SOCIALISM.

THERE ALSO IS THE POSSIBILITY THAT THE NAZIS WILL TRY TO WORK THEIR AGENTS INTO ANY INTERNATIONAL POLICE FORCE AFTER THE OCCUPATION OF GERMANY.

AGENTS OF EUROPE'S EXILED COUNTRIES HAVE REPORTED THAT MANY NAZIS --PARTICULARLY GESTAPO AGENTS AND ARMY MEN--HAVE BEEN PLANTED IN CONCENTRATION CAMPS IN THE REICH WITH APPROPRIATE DOCUMENTS SHOWING THEM TO BE ANTI-NAZIS SO THEY WILL BE ABLE TO ESCAPE DOOM AND OPERATE AGAINST THE ALLIES AFTER THEIR RELEASE.

ACTION WITH MORE RESERVES, AND NEVER HAVE THE GERMANS HAD SO FEW. WE ARE MEETING THE LAST OF THEIR FIRST-CLASS TROOPS."

FOR DAYS THE MEN HAD BEEN "SEALED" IN THEIR CAMPS. MILITARY POLICEMEN STOOD GUARD. THE HIGHEST AUTHORITY WAS NEEDED TO ENTER OR LEAVE THE ENCLOSURES.

EARLY TODAY THE ROADS IN THE VICINITY OF THESE CAMPS SUDDENLY BEGAN SWARMING WITH TRAFFIC. BUMPER TO BUMPER WERE MOTOR CONVOYS LOADED WITH PARACHUTE TROOPS BOUND FOR AIRFIELDS. SOME MEN SANG AND JOKED, OTHERS RODE SILENTLY.

AMONG THE CRACK PILOTS WAITING TO FLY THE TROOPERS ACROSS THE RHINE WERE LT.COL.SIDNEY WOODS OF SOMERTON, ARIZ., WHO RECENTLY SHOT DOWN FIVE NAZI PLANES IN ONE DAY, AND MAJ.FRED GLOVER OF ASHEVILLE, N.C., WHOSE SCORE IS 23 GERMAN PLANES AND WHOSE AWARDS INCLUDE TWO DISTINGUISHED FLYING CROSSES, A BRONZE STAR AND NINE OTHER MEDALS.

LONDON, MARCH 24-(AP)-CREWMEN OF MORE THAN 1,050 FLYING FORTRESSES RETURNED TODAY FROM BLASTING 12 GERMAN AIRFIELDS CLOSE BEHIND THE FRONT WITH GRAPHIC DESCRIPTIONS OF THE GREAT BATTLE RAGING ALONG THE RHINE.

"THE INSTANT WE HIT THE RHINE WE KNEW THE BRITISH HAD GONE ACROSS," SAID CAPT.LOUIS C.WIESER OF HAMMOND, IND., "A TREMENDOUS BATTLE WAS RAGING JUST EAST OF THE RIVER. WITH LITERALLY HUNDREDS OF FIGHTERS STRAFING AND DIVING AND WITH GUN FLASHES EVERYWHERE."

SGT.AMBROSE G.LUCIDI OF STOVE, PA., A TAILGUNNER, SAID: "THE SKIES WERE FILLED WITH ALL TYPES OF AIRCRAFT, FROM HEAVY BOMBERS TO GLIDERS. FIGHTERS WERE DIVEBOMBING AND STRAFING EVERY GROUND TARGET IN SIGHT. ALL THAT PART OF GERMANY LOOKED AS THOUGH IT WAS AFIRE."

CAPT.EDWIN H.MILLER OF CARSON CITY, NEV., A MUSTANG PILOT, SAID: "I HAVE NEVER SEEN SUCH COMPLETE DEVASTATION. THE RUHR VALLEY LOOKED LIKE A GIANT HAND HAD SWEPT ACROSS IT, TUMBLING BUILDINGS AND FACTORIES LIKE DOMINOES."

A U.S.EIGHTH AIR FORCE BOMBER BASE, ENGLAND, MARCH 24-(AP)-LIBERATOR CREWS RETURNING TODAY FROM SUPPLYING AIRBORNE TROOPS ACROSS THE RHINE REPORTED THAT STRETCHES OF THE RHINELAND WERE ENGULFED IN SMOKE AND FLAMES AND THAT MANY GERMANS WERE SURRENDERING.

"WESEL AND NEARBY SMALL TOWNS WERE ALL ABLAZE," SAID LT.COL. WILLIAM H.STRONG, 2541 SIXTEENTH ST., GREAT BEND, KANS., PILOT OF A LIBERATOR WHICH PARACHUTED FOOD, MEDICAL SUPPLIES, AND AMMUNITION TO AIRBORNE TROOPS 2 1/2 MILES NORTHEAST OF WESEL.

"WESEL WAS THE WORST PILE OF RUBBLE I EVER SAW. THERE WERE NO STREETS. EVERYTHING HAD COLLAPSED. THE WHOLE TOWN IS ALL KNOCKED TO HELL. SMOKE STRETCHED FOR MILES AROUND.

"WE COULD SEE PLENTY OF ACTIVITY, DESPITE THE SMOKE. OUR LONG LINES OF GERMAN PRISONERS WITH THEIR HANDS UP WERE WINDING BACK TOWARD THE RHINE. THE ENTIRE EAST BANK OF THE RHINE IS LINED WITH LANDING CRAFT."

SGT/FRANK B.COLLINS OF 65 NEWTON ST., SOMERVILLE, MASS., MEMBER OF ANOTHER LIBERATOR CREW, SAID HE SAW ONLY A FEW GERMAN SOLDIERS WHO WERE NOT PRISONERS.

"THEY WERE SO BUSY SURRENDERING TO THE YANKS ON THE GROUND THEY DIDN'T PAY ANY ATTENTION TO OUR PLANES," HE SAID. "SOME GERMANS WERE WITHOUT HELMETS OR PACKS, AS IF THEY HAD BEEN TAKEN COMPLETELY BY SURPRISE."

THE LIBERATORS, WHILE ENCOUNTERING NO FIGHTER OPPOSITION AND ONLY WEAK FLAK, WERE FORCED TO FLY SO LOW TO DROP THEIR BUNDLES THAT THEY WERE BIG TARGETS FOR GERMAN GROUND GUNNERS, WHOSE FACES EASILY WERE DISTINGUISHABLE.

NOTWITHSTANDING, CAPT.ROBERT C.SEXTER, FORAKER, OKLA., COMMENTED "IT WAS JUST LIKE A PRACTICE RUN."

SGT.RICHARD TROUSDALE OF DUMONT, IOWA, SAID: "THE BRITISH REALLY ARE GOING TO TOWN. IT WAS A SIGHT."

SGT.MARION SCARBERRY, 1404 NORTH BECKLEY ST., DALLAS, TEX., SAID THE BIG PLANES DREW RIFLE FIRE FROM THE GROUND, "BUT WE GOT IT DOWN TO OUR BOYS JUST WHERE THEY WANTED IT."

"WE COULD SEE THEM RUNNING AND PICKING UP THE BUNDLES," HE SAID. "ON THE WAY BACK WE SAW A COMPLETE MESS KITCHEN IN ACTION ON THE EAST BANK OF THE RHINE WITH A CHOWLINE FORMING. WE ALSO SAW THOUSANDS OF TRUCKS AND TROOPS CROSSING THE RHINE ON PONTOON BRIDGES AND IN BARGES."

LT.JOHNNY RIGGS, PONCA CITY, OKLA., SAID THAT "EVERYWHERE THERE WAS DESOLATION, SHELL HOLES ALL AROUND, TREES STARK AND STRIPPED."

COL.ROY W.CRAWFORD, EL PASO, TEX., A BOMBER GROUP COMMANDER DESCRIBED THE OPERATIONS OF THE LIBERATORS AS "EXCELENT." CRAWFORD BEFORE THE WAR WAS AN ARMY INSTRUCTOR AND AMONG HIS PUPILS WAS LT.GEN. OMAR N.BRADLEY.

MAJ.EDWARD SHELLY, KANSAS CITY, MO., SAID "EVERY FARMHOUSE IN THE AREA WAS BURNING AND WE COULD SEE GERMAN CIVILIANS THROWING FURNITURE OUT OF WINDOWS."

"THERE WERE SCORES OF BLAZING GLIDERS AND CARRIER PLANES ON THE GROUND," HE SAID. "I WAS AT THE OPERATIONS AT ARNHEIM AND NIJMEGEN, BUT THIS TIME THINGS WERE DIFFERENT. IT WAS MUCH ROUGHER."

THE SEA. (Use Jons W Front (Beatmen) for these.

THERE WERE LCM'S CAPABLE OF HAULING A SHERMAN TANK OR 60 MEN, AND LCVP'S WITH THE CAPACITY OF 35 MEN OR A BULLDOZER.

LT.GEN.MILES C.DEMPSEY'S BRITISH SECOND ARMY HAD THE SEAT IN THE FRONT LINE OF ATTACK.

TOUGH COMMANDOS CROSSED AND CROUCHED ON THE RIVER'S EAST BANK WHILE LESS THAN A MILE AHEAD RAF NIGHT BOMBERS PLASTERED WESEL. THEN THEY STORMED INTO THE FLAMING RUINS, KILLING CRACK NAZI PARACHUTE TROOPS WITH GRENADE AND BAYONET.

SOUTH OF WESEL, THE U.S.NINTH ARMY OF LT.GEN.WILLIAM H.SIMPSON PLOWED ACROSS INTO THE RUHR, ADVANCED FROM THREE TO FOUR MILES ON A NINE-MILE FRONT AND OVERRAN A NUMBER OF TOWNS.

ENGINEERS CAME RIGHT BEHIND THE TROOPS AND BEGAN THE CONSTRUCTION OF PONTOON BRIDGES TO KEEP THE LONG LINES OF WAITING TROOPS AND THE MOUNTAINS OF SUPPLIES FLOWING ACROSS THE RHINE.

ON THE NORTH FLANK, HIGHLANDERS LINKED TWO LANDINGS AND SURROUNDED REES, 12 MILES NORTHWEST OF WESEL, THEN FOUGHT INTO ITS STREETS.

HEAVY FIGHTING RAGED FOR BISLICH, MIDWAY BETWEEN REES AND WESEL, WHERE FORCES CROSSING OPPOSITE XANTEN RAN INTO CRACK TROOPS OF GERMANY'S EIGHTH PARATROOP DIVISION, CAPTURING HUNDREDS OF THEM.

THESE FORCES SPEARED NEARLY TWO MILES INLAND AND THE LUXEMBOURG RADIO SAID THEY HAD MADE CONTACT WITH THE ALLIED FIRST AIRBORNE ARMY, WHICH HAD LANDED NORTHEAST OF XANTEN AND WAS LOCKED IN FIERCE FIGHTING.

THE ALLIES WERE STRIKING FOR IDEAL TANK FIGHTING COUNTRY NOW THAT THE THAWS ARE PAST AND A BLAZING SPRING SUN IS HARDENING THE GROUND.

IT WAS A SCENE OF UTTER DESOLATION--RAILWAYS WRECKED, BRIDGES SMASHED, AND SMOKE COLUMNS MARKIN G THE FUNERAL PYRES OF WHOLE TOWNS WIPED OUT IN AN UNPRECEDENTED 10,000-PLANE AERIAL BOMBARDMENT THAT HAD PARALYZED AND ISOLATED THE RUHR.

MONTGOMERY, REPORTING GOOD PROGRESS, SAID THAT THE ENEMY FORWARD POSITIONS WERE NOT STRONGLY HELD AND THAT MOBILE RESERVES HAD YET TO BE MET, BUT IT WAS OBV_OUS THE GERMANS WOULD HAVE DIFFICULTY GETTING THEM INTO ACTION WITH THE SPEED REQUIRED.

THE GERMANS COMPLAINED THAT ALLIED AIR COVER WAS SO TIGHT THAT "AS SOON AS ONLY ONE GERMAN PLANE APPEARS A WHOLE SQUADRON OF ENEMY FIGHTERS GOES INTO THE AIR."

ALONG THE ROADS AND THE BATTLE-LINE GERMAN INFANTRY SCATTERED UNDER HAIL OF BOMBS AND GUNFIRE. ROCKET-FIRING FIGHTERS PROWLED THE SKIES, PROTECTING THE GLIDERS AND TRANSPORTS AND BLASTING AT TARGETS OF OPPORTUNITY.

THE ALLIED DRIVE MIGHT WELL SEAL OFF UNLIBERATED HOLLAND AND DENMARK, CUTTING OFF THE V-BOMB BASES FROM WHICH THE ENEMY HAS BEEN BLASTING ENGLAND.

THE TRANSIT CENTER OF MUENSTER WAS SEALED OFF AERIALLY IN WHAT PILOTS SAID WAS A LAND OF DEATH, WITH NO SIGN OF ROAD MOVEMENT.

THE FLAT LANDS OF PRUSSIAN WESTPHALIA ON THE WAY TO BERLIN ARE BROKEN ONLY BY THREE NORTH-SOUTH RIVERS, THE EMS, THE WESER AND THE ELBE.

THE BRITISH AND CANADIANS HELD ALMOST UNDISPUTED CONTROL OF 12 MILES OF THE RHINE'S EAST BANK BETWEEN REES AND WESEL. THEY CAPTURED THE GERMAN COMMANDER OF WESEL AND KILLED MAJ. GEN.DEUTSCH, COMMANDER OF FLAK FORCES IN THE AREA.

THE BOLDLY-SEIZED RHINE BRIDGEHEADS OF THE AMERICAN FIRST AND THIRD ARMIES 75 AND 165 AIRLINE MILES SOUTHEAST OF THE NEW RHINE

CROSSING WERE BURGEONING STEADILY, BUILDING UP AMERICAN POWER FOR APPARENTLY IMMINENT BREAKOUTS.

LT.-GEN.GEORGE S.PATTON'S THIRD ARMY SMASHED ACROSS THE RHINE IN THE MAINZ-WORMS AREA, A FRONT DISPATCH DISCLOSED, AND IN THE FIRST 16 HOURS CARVED OUT A BRIDGEHEAD FOUR MILES DEEP. AT LEAST FOUR TOWNS WERE SEIZED.

U.S.NAVY CRAFT WERE SPED UP AND USED TO FERRY THIRD ARMY TROOPS OVER THE RHINE, JUST AS IN THE LOWER RHINE CROSSING TO THE NORTH. STREAMS OF MEN AND SUPPLIES WERE POURING INTO THE BRIDGEHEAD WON THURSDAY NIGHT WITHOUT THE LOSS OF A MAN.

ADVANCE UNITS WHIPPED BACK NAZI COUNTERATTACKS AND KEPT FANNING OUT. BERLIN PLACED THE CROSSINGS NEAR OPPENHEIM 10 MILES SOUTH OF MAINZ, AND NEAR WORMS, SOME 10 MILES FARTHER SOUTH.

SOME 35 MILES DOWNSTREAM WAS THE SOUTHERN EDGE OF LT.-GEN.COURTNEY HODGES' REMAGEN BRIDGEHEAD NOW 35 MILES LONG AND 10 WIDE, AND THESE AMERICANS STRUCK FORWARD 4,000 YARDS---NEARLY 2 1/2 MILES--- ALONG THE RHINE NORTH OF COBLENZ AGAINST "A MYSTIFYING LACK OF ENEMY RESISTANCE," BATTLEFRONT DISPATCHES SAID. THEY ADVANCED ANOTHER TWO MILES EAST OF THE WIED RIVER, AND CAPTURED RENGSDORF AND KURTSCHEID.

AT THE NORTHERN END OF THEIR CROSS-RHINE CLAMP, THE AMERICANS SLICED THE HENNEF-ALTENKIRCHEN HIGHWAY TWO MILES SOUTHEAST OF HENNEF. A NAZI COUNTERATTACK NEAR HENNEF WAS REPULSED.

PATTON'S TROOPS---SOME OF THEM MAKING THEIR 20TH RIVER CROSSING--- SMASHED THREE DESPERATE GERMAN TANK-SUPPORTED COUNTERATTACKS, AND GRABBED 500 PRISONERS BY NOON SATURDAY. HUGE STORES OF GERMAN MATERIEL WERE CAPTURED.

THIRD ARMY ADVANCE ELEMENTS EXPLOITED THE SURPRISE CROSSING THAT CAUGHT SOME GERMANS ASLEEP AT THEIR WATCH ON THE RHINE, AND DIVISIONS FAMED FOR THEIR LIGHTNING THRUSTS WERE ROLLING OUT ONTO THE OPEN COUNTRY LEADING 265 MILES TO BERLIN AND ACROSS A VIRTUALLY UNBROKEN ROLLING PLAIN STRETCHING OVER THE WAIST OF GERMANY.

BY NAZI ACCOUNT, PATTON'S TROOPS WERE BUT 20 MILES SOUTHWEST OF FRANKFURT.

GERMAN PPLANES TRIED FRANTICALLY BUT UNSUCCESSFULLY FRIDAY NIGHT TO REDUCE THE THIRD ARMY BRIDGEHEAD, STRAFING AND BOMBING EVERY 15 TO 30 MINUTES.

THE THIRD ARMY BROKE ITS OWN ONE-DAY RECORD FOR PRISONERS BY PROCESSING 11,699 FRIDAY, AND AN ESTIMATED 3,000 MORE WERE SEIZED DURING THE DAY. THE FIRST ARMY COUNTED 1,642 ON FRIDAY. MAR 25 1945

A240

THE LAST GERMANS HAD BEEN VIRTUALLY CLEARED FROM THE WEST BANK OF THE RHINE, BUT ONE STUBBORN POCKET STILL HELD OUT IN THE BIENWALD FOREST EAST OF WISSEMBOURG ON THE U.S.SEVENTH ARMY FRONT.

SPEEDING THE CLEANUP, THE THIRD AND SEVENTH ARMORED DIVISIONS OF THE THIRD ARMY MADE A NEW JUNCTION SOUTHWEST OF LANDAU, AND THE 10TH ARMORED CLEARED FOSSENWEILER 16 MILES SOUTHWEST OF NEUSTADT AND ADVANCED EIGHT MILES SOUTH OF NEUSTADT.

THE 36TH DIVISION OF THE SEVENTH ARMY STRUCK EASTWARD 12 MILES, SEIZING HALF A DOZEN TOWNS, AND REACHING THE RHINE IN THE AREA EIGHT TO 10 MILES NORTHWEST OF KARLSRUHE. THE 14TH ARMORED DIVISION, MEETING ONLY REARGUARD OPPOSITION, SURGED AHEAD FOUR MILES AND CLEARED KANDEL, FIVE MILES FROM THE RHINE.

THE FIRST NAZI CAPTIVES TOLD LT. STEPHEN DUKE, CLEVELAND, OHIO, THAT THEY HAD BEEN DUMPED ON THE RIVER BANK TWO DAYS AGO AND THEY DID NOT EVEN KNOW THE NUMBER OF THEIR REGIMENT. ASKED WHY THEY DID NOT SHOOT THEY REPLIED; "WE WERE EATING."

TWO HOURS AFTER THE CROSSING THE GERMANS OPENED UP WITH MORTARS AND ANTI-TANK SHELLS THAT BEGAN SLAMMING INTO AMERICAN POSITIONS ON THE BANKS. A MORTAR TORE A CHUNK OUT OF THE COMMAND POST COTTAGE AND SHELLS CRASHED INTO THE YARD, COVERING WITH DEBRIS THE MEN WHO HAD HURRIED OUTSIDE.

OUR ARTILLERY ERUPTED INTO ACTION -- AND GAVE THE GERMANS A HUNDRED FOR ONE.

EXANDER

U.S.FIRST ARMY--SECOND ADD FIRST ARMY (BY WHITEHEAD) XXX THE ALLIES.

IT IS BECOMING MORE EVIDENT DAY BY DAY THAT THE BATTLE OF THE WEST HAS BEEN WON WEST OF THE RHINE.

THE GERMANS LOST MORE THAN 200,000 TROOPS AS PRISONERS OF WAR ALONE DURING THE PAST 30 DAYS--MORE THAN THREE FULL STRENGTH ARMIES. WITH THE RUSSIANS THREATENING THE REICH FROM THE EAST, THE GERMANS CANNOT STAND SUCH LOSSES AS THESE.

THERE WAS GREAT OPTIMISM ABOUT THE END OF THE WAR DURING THE DRIVE ACROSS FRANCE. BUT EVEN THAT EXPECTANCY DID NOT REACH THE HEIGHTS OF THE PRESENT OUTLOOK, WHICH ENVISAGES WITHIN A SHORT TIME THE COMPLETE COLLAPSE OF ORGANIZED EFFECTIVE OPPOSITION.

EVEN THE MORE RABID PESSIMISTS ADMIT THE SITUATION IS BRIGHTER THAN IT EVER HAS BEEN. GERMAN STRENGTH WHICH WAS MASSED BEFORE THE ALLIES WEST OF THE RHINE HAS BEEN SHREDDED UNDER TERRIFIC ONSLAUGHTS.

PRISONERS HAVE FLOWED INTO PRISON CAGES BY THE TENS OF THOUSANDS. MILLIONS OF DOLLARS WORTH OF EQUIPMENT AND SUPPLIES HAVE BEEN CAPTURED.

AND THAT FORMIDABLE BARRIER--THE RHINE--HAS BEEN CROSSED WITH SUCH EASE THAT EVEN THE ALLIED HIGH COMMAND CAN HARDLY BELIEVE IT HAS HAPPENED.

GREAT SECTIONS OF GERMANY'S INDUSTRIAL MIGHT HAVE BEEN SEIZED BY THE ALLIES OR ARE UNDER SHELL FIRE OR HAVE BEEN WIPED OUT BY MASSED AIR RAIDS.

THE GERMANS ARE DIPPING INTO THE BOTTOM OF THE BARREL FOR MANPOWER BECAUSE OF THE TERRIFIC LOSSES THEY HAVE INCURRED IN RECENT WEEKS.

THERE IS NO DOUBT THAT THE WEHRMACHT IS ON THE ROPES AND THAT THE ALLIES ARE WADING IN FOR THE KNOCKOUT PUNCH.

THE ENEMY IS TRYING DESPERATELY TO MUSTER AND JUGGLE RESERVES TO MEET THE THREATS WHICH ARE GROWING DAILY ALL ALONG THE LINE FROM LT.GEN.ALEXANDER M.PATCH'S SEVENTH ARMY IN THE PALATINATE TO THE BRITISH AND CANADIANS IN THE NORTH.

THE FIELD CORRESPONDENTS' PROTEST WAS FORWARDED TO SUPREME HEADQUARTERS AND THE OFFICE OF WAR INFORMATION. IT POINTED OUT THAT A FUNDAMENTAL PRINCIPLE LAID DOWN BEFORE THE NORMANDY LANDINGS WAS THAT SPOT NEWS WOULD BE RELEASED BY THE ARMY IN THE FIELD TO CORRESPONDENTS WHO ACCOMPANIED THE ARMY TO OBTAIN IT FIRST-HAND, THAT THIS COMMITMENT WAS ENTERED INTO BY SUPREME HEADQUARTERS AFTER MONTHS OF NEGOTIATIONS, AND THAT IN ADDITION EVEN THE EMBARGO ITSELF WAS BUNGLED IN THE RUSH BY SUPREME HEADQUARTERS AND 21ST ARMY GROUP HEADQUARTERS TO MAKE THE ANNOUNCEMENT.

RADIO CORRESPONDENTS SUFFERED MOST HEAVILY BECAUSE THEY WERE ON LIMITED TIME. LIKE THE OTHER CORRESPONDENTS, THEY HAD BEEN UP ALL NIGHT WITH ASSAULT TROOPS AND MADE THEIR WAY BACK TO THE PRESS CAMP AT NOON, WHERE THEY WERE TOLD THE STORY WOULD NOT BE RELEASED UNTIL 4 P.M. WITH THIS ASSURANCE, MANY STOPPED TO EAT BEFORE PREPARING THEIR SCRIPTS, ONLY TO DISCOVER THAT THE NEWS HAD BEEN GIVEN OUT IN PARIS.

OTHER CORRESPONDENTS, ALSO LABORING UNDER THE BELIEF THAT 4 P.M. WAS THE DEADLINE, DID NOT RETURN TO FILE THEIR STORIES UNTIL NEARLY THAT HOUR, AND FOUND THAT THEY WERE HOURS LATE.

THE 21ST ARMY GROUP, WHEN ASKED ABOUT THE SUDDEN SHIFT IN THE RELEASE HOUR, ATTRIBUTED IT TO SUPREME HEADQUARTERS.

TO ADD TO THE CONFUSION, THE BRITISH SECOND ARMY, IN AN UNPRECEDENTED "LIBERAL" POLICY, RELEASED THE CROSSING SITES AND TOWNS TAKEN ABOUT MIDDAY, WHILE NINTH ARMY OPERATIONS DETAILS WERE WITHHELD FOR THE USUAL 24 HOURS.

CORRESPONDENTS HAD GOTTEN A FOREWARNING OF THE NEW BRITISH POLICY, HOWEVER, WHEN A 21ST ARMY GROUP STAFF OFFICER IN A RECENT "BRIEFING" MADE IT CLEAR THAT THE LONG-UNHERALDED BRITISH SECOND ARMY INTENDED TO FIND A PLACE IN THE WORLD NEWS SPOTLIGHT.

JUST AS WE GOT TO THE BOATS TO CROSS THE RIVER, SGT. ROBERT E. CHAPMAN OF 241 STATE ST., BATAVIA, N.Y., SAID:

"WE ARE GOING TO DRIVE THE GERMANS BACK. THIS RIVER IS MOSTLY A MENTAL HAZARD."

"IT IS IMPOSSIBLE FOR GERMANY TO DEFEND ADEQUATELY THE VAST FRONT THAT SHE NOW HAS," SAID LT. CHARLES E. DARMENT OF 5120 KENWOOD AVE., CHICAGO, ILL. "WITH ALL THE ARTILLERY AND AIR SUPPORT, WE HAVE, IT CAN'T BE TOO ROUGH."

"IT'S GOING TO BE ROUGH--BUT WORSE ON JERRY," WAS THE OPINION OF MAX A. THOMPSON (NO RANK GIVEN) OF LANSING, MICH.

"ONCE WE GET A TOEHOLD, WE'LL BE SET," ADDED SGT. FRANK GHELLA, JR., OF PRYOR, COLO.

PVT. JAMES C. HUDMAN OF 2741 NORTHWEST 24TH ST., OKLAHOMA CITY, OKLA., ADMITTED "I AM SCARED AND I HOPE THE CROSSING IS OVER QUICK--BUT IT WILL BRING THE WAR TO A CLOSE THAT MUCH QUICKER."

SGT. RAY SWARZBACK OF BALTIMORE, MD., SAID: "THIS SHOULD BE THE BEGINNING OF THE END AND THE SOONER WE CROSS AND GET THE JOB DONE, THE BETTER."

FROM PFC. LLOYD BUSKIRK OF BOX 451, WOODLEY, PA., CAME THE COMMENT: "FROM WHAT I SEE, THIS IS THE MOST IMPORTANT CROSSING SINCE D-DAY AND WE ARE RARING TO GO."

PFCS. HALL AND HOLLOWAY (NO FIRST NAMES GIVEN) OF TACOMA, WASH., DECLARED: "ONCE WE GET ACROSS AND ESTABLISHED THE WAR WILL BE OVER IN THREE WEEKS."

SGT. DONALD L. HONEYCUTT OF 2530 SOUTH 15TH ST., ST. JOSEPH, MO., SAID: "THIS IS THE MOST IMPORTANT MISSION WE EVER HAD. I WISH WE HAD CROSSED SOONER WHEN THE GERMANS WERE MORE DISORGANIZED. THESE DAYS OF WAITING WERE THE TOUGHEST JOB AN INFANTRYMAN HAS."

PFC. BETHUEL STARK OF UNION, WASH., DECLARED: "THIS IS THE GREATEST RIVER CROSSING IN HISTORY AND WE HAVE BEEN BRIEFED ON EVERY DETAIL. THE MEN LAUGH AND JOKE BUT DEEP DOWN THEY HAVE DOUBTS HOPES AND FEARS AND PRAYERS. I FEEL IT WILL NOT BE AS BAD AS THE SIEGFRIED LINE.

WITH GOD'S HE , THIS WILL BE THE KILLING BLOW TO GERMANY."

B43

SGT. MERLE JACOBSEN OF 3518 VALLEY ST., OMAHA, NEB., SAID: "I HAVE BEEN SWEATING OUT THE FORTHCOMING ASSIGNMENT AND IT IS GOING TO BE THE TOUGHEST WE EVER HAD BUT WE ARE GOING TO MAKE A SUCCESS OF IT."

PFC. GENE TUEFEL OF 3624 NORTH BRANCE AVE., ALTOONA, PA., ASSERTED: "WE WELCOME THIS JOB BECAUSE IT'S GOING TO MEAN THE END OF THE WAR. THE WAR WILL BE OVER A MONTH AFTER THIS CROSSING IS MADE."

SGT. CHESTER B. ALLEN OF 3320 GRAND BLVD., BROOKEFIELD, ILL., SAID: "THIS ATTACK IS FINDING US READY AND ABLE AND WE THINK THAT WHEN WE BEAT HIM THIS TIME THE WAR WILL BE OVER."

T-5 JOHN L. WOODS OF PLYMOUTH, MICH., SAID: "AFTER WE WIN THIS BATTLE F THE RHINE, THE WAR WILL BE NEARING ITS LAST STAGE AND IT SHOULD BE ONLY A MATTER OF MONTHS WHEN THE ENTIRE GERMAN MILITARY MACHINE WILL COMPLETELY COLLAPSE."

SGT. THOMAS VILLALOVIS OF AUSTIN, TEXAS, SAID: "I THINK THIS ATTACK WILL BE OUR LAST AND FINAL BLOW AGAINST HITLER."

PFC. M. L. BREZNEN OF 2161 RICHLAND AVE., LAKEWOOD, OHIO, SAID "TWICE BEFORE WE MET THE BEST THE GERMANS HAD TO OFFER AND WE ARE READY TO DO IT AGAIN."

CPL. WILLIAM F. ROSSELOT OF SHARON, PA., SAID "THIS CROSSING IS ON SUCH A SCALE THE GERMANS CAN'T HALT IT."

SGT. CHARLES P. TREMAINE OF GIOGA, PA., SAID: "ALL YOU HAVE TO SWEAT OUT IS THE BOAT RIDE."

RP749PEW

PARIS, MARCH 24-(AP)--ALLIED AIRBORNE TROOPS HAVE LINKED UP WITH GROUND ASSAULT FORCES WHICH AFTER LANDING THREE TO FIVE MILES EAST OF THE RHINE, JUST NORTH OF WESEL.

MAR 25 1945

BRIG.GEN.FLOYD L.PARKS, CHIEF OF STAFF OF THE ALLIED FIRST AIRBORNE ARMY, SAID THE GERMANS APPARENTLY WERE CAUGHT BY SURPRISE. THEY HAD EXPECTED AN AIRBORNE ATTACK, BUT THE AIR DROP USUALLY PRECEDES THE GROUND ATTACK, AND WHEN THE ALLIES POURED ACROSS THE RHINE FOR HOURS WITHOUT SIGN OF AN AIRBORNE ARMY, THE NAZIS PRESUMABLY FIGURED THEY HAD NO PART IN THE SHOW.

EVEN IF THEY STILL WERE WARY, THEY PROBABLY EXPECTED LANDINGS 15 TO 30 MILES OR MORE BEHIND THE RHINE, FOR AIRBORNE TROOPS USUALLY STRIKE THAT DEEP.

THE AIRBORNE ATTACK WAS MADE BY THE BRITISH SIXTH AIRBORNE DIVISION--WITH ARNHEM ON ITS RECORD--AND THE U.S. 17TH AIRBORNE, WHICH SAW ACTION FOR THE FIRST TIME WHEN THROWN IN WEST OF BASTOGNE TO HELP CHECK THE GERMAN ONRUSH THROUGH THE ARDENNES.

CHUTISTS AND GLIDER TROOPS ALL CAME DOWN IN THE SAME GENERAL AREA. HARDLY HAD THEY LANDED WITH THEIR SUPPLIES, SOME OF THEM RELATIVELY HEAVY WEAPONS, THAN LIBERATORS WERE DROPPING SUPPLIES TO KEEP THE OPERATION SUSTAINED.

PARKS SAID A PRELIMINARY CHECK SHOWED THAT CASUALTIES WERE RELATIVELY LIGHT THOUGH THEY MIGHT RUN SLIGHTLY HIGHER THAN WHEN THE DROPS WERE MADE IN THE RACE ACROSS THE NETHERLANDS.

NOT A SINGLE PLANE OF THE 500-MILE-LONG SKY TRAIN WAS LOST TO ENEMY FIGHTER ATTACK. PARKS CREDITS THAT TO THE EFFECTIVE SEAL-DOWN OF THE GERMAN AIR FORCE BY ALLIED BOMBERS ATTACKING AIRFIELDS AND BY THE CLOSE FIGHTER SCREEN PUT AROUND THE OPERATION.

THE ENEMY'S JET PLANE FIELDS WERE GIVEN A TERRIFIC BOMBING TO KEEP THESE FAST PLANES FROM MAKING HIT-RUN ATTACKS ON THE HELPLESS TOW PLANES AND GLIDERS.

ALLIED LOSSES WERE DUE TO ANTIAIRCRAFT FIRE. GERMANY HAS ONE OF ITS MOST CONCENTRATED FLAK NESTS IN THE RUHR AND NORTH OF THE RUHR ZONE.

THE OPERATION CONSTITUTED THE LARGEST LIFT OF AIRBORNE TROOPS EVER ACCOMPLISHED BEING AT LEAST FOUR TIMES GREATER THAN THE BIGGEST LIFT OF THE HOLLAND OPERATION. OVER 3,000 AIRCRAFT CARRYING PARACHUTE AND GLIDER TROOPS AND THEIR EQUIPMENT PARTICIPATED, AND THIS FIGURE DID NOT INCLUDE THE ALLIED FIGHTER PLANE GUARD.

NEW C-46'S WERE USED FOR THE FIRST TIME TO CARRY PARACHUTE TROOPS. THESE PLANES CARRY TWICE AS MANY MEN AS THE DAKOTAS AND DROP THEM FASTER BECAUSE OF THE JUMP DOORS ON EITHER SIDE.

TWO "HITCH HIKING" AMERICAN GENERALS MADE PARACHUTE JUMPS. ONE OF THEM HAD NEVER MADE A JUMP BEFORE. OTHER GENERALS JUMPED TOO, BUT THESE TWO JUST WENT ALONG TO TRY IT. THEIR NAMES COULD NOT BE DISCLOSED.

WITH AN AMERICAN COMBAT COMPANY OF THE FIRST ALLIED AIRBORNE ARMY, MARCH 23-(DELAYED)-(AP)-PRIMROSES, LEMON-WINGED BUTTERFLIES, LATRINES, TENTS, GLIDERS, KNIVES, POWDER TO KILL "INSECTS OF THE BODY," STEAK AND JAM AND DOUGHNUTS, CIGARS AND BARBED WIRE--THESE ARE LAST MINUTE IMPRESSIONS BEFORE THE FIRST AMERICAN AIRBORNE FORCE FROM LIBERATED EUROPE TAKES OFF TO STRIKE AT GERMANY.

THE HOURS ARE NUMBERED NOW BUT THE "JUMPING JOES" AND "GLIDER RIDERS" ARE TAKING IT EASY. CORPORAL TOMMY CONNERS OF SYRACUSE, N.Y., GOT "ALL HEPPED UP" WHEN HE MADE HIS FIRST GLIDER RUN IN OCTOBER THREE YEARS AGO. BUT HERE TONIGHT WHERE THE STORM LANTERNS FLICKER NOBODY REALLY SEEMS TO BE SWEATING IT OUT. THE STARS TWINKLE AND THE MOON RIDES HIGH AND CLEAR. THE MEN TALK, OR READ, OR SCRIBBLE NOTES, OR PLAY CHESS, OR SLEEP.

WE HAD STEAK FOR DINNER AND WE'RE HAVING STEAK FOR BREAKFAST--

A MACHINE GUN HAS BEEN RAT-TAT-TATTING.

"STOP IT--I DON'T LIKE THAT NOISE," ONE GI TOLD HIS MATE.

GUNS HAVE BEEN OILED AND POLISHED. WEB BELTS HAVE BEEN TIGHTENED. THE AIR IS MUCH CLEARER THAN IT WAS ON THE EVE OF D-DAY.

I'VE SEEN NO NERVOUS TENSION, NO DELAYED JITTERS. SOMEONE ONCE SAID: "THE AMERICANS JUST DON'T KNOW." MAYBE THE AMERICANS DON'T BUT TAKE IT FROM ME IT'S THE BEST WAY. H-HOUR IS ALMOST ON TOP OF US AND THE BOYS ARE CHATTING OR BUSYING THEMSELVES WITH SUNDRY JOBS ABOUT THE CAMP. THE CAMP IS WORTH AN HONORABLE MENTION. IT'S A REAL HENRY J. KAISER JOB. THREE WEEKS AGO IT DIDN'T EXIST. IT'S GROWN LIKE A MUSHROOM. LESS THAN TWELVE HOURS FROM NOW WE WILL BE ON THE WAY TO GERMANY.

NIGHT LEAD NINTH ARMY

BY ROBERT EUNSON

WITH THE U.S. NINTH ARMY EAST OF THE RHINE, MARCH 24-(AP)-THE U.S. ARMY ENGINEERS WROTE THE GREATEST CHAPTER IN THEIR ALREADY COLORFUL SAGA TODAY WHEN THEY SET UP A FERRY SERVICE ON THE RHINE AND STARTED A BRIDGE ACROSS THE HISTORIC WATER BARRIER WHILE GERMAN 88S AND MORTARS HURLED FIRE AT THEM.

PARTICIPATING WITH THE ARMY ENGINEERS IN THE TASK OF TRANSPORTING TROOPS ACROSS THE RHINE WAS A NAVY TASK FORCE COMMANDED BY LT.COMMANDER WILLARD R.PATRICK OF 738 HIGH STREET, NEWARK,N.J. THIS TASK FORCE, KNOWN AS THE "NINTH ARMY'S NAVY," HAD BEEN TRAINED FOR ITS TASK WITH SOLDIERS IN REAR AREAS.

THE MAN WHO WROTE THAT SONG ABOUT THE ARMY ENGINEERS W... HAIRY EARS SHOULD DO ANOTHER ONE NOW ABOUT THEIR CROSSING OF ... LOWER RHINE. HE COULD WRITE ONE VERSE ABOUT THE OFFICER FROM PENNSYL-VANIA WHO LAUNCHED THE FIRST LANDING CRAFT, MEDIUM, IN THE RHINE AND LOADED IT WITH A TANK DESTROYER TO HURRY MORE FIREPOWER TO THOSE DOUGHBOYS ON THE OTHER SIDE. THE LAST LINE WOULD TELL HOW THE CRAFT WAS KNOCKED OUT BY AN 88 ON THE RETURN TIP.

"THAT'S THE LAST DAMN TIME I'LL EVER MENTION HAVING A HOBBY IN THIS MAN'S ARMY," SHOUTED A WET AND TIRED STORM BOAT OPERATOR, WHO ONCE WAS AN OUTBOARD MOTOR ENTHUSIAST. PAUSING FOR BREATH WHILE HIS BUDDY HELPED LOAD WOUNDED INFANTRYMEN.

THE ASSAULT WENT OFF IN SU... PERFECT FORM THAT AS SOON AS THE INFANTRY STARTED FIGHTING ITS WAY INLAND ALONG THE EAST BANK THE ENGINEERS BEGAN MOVING CRANES AND LANDING CRAFT TO THE RIVERS EDGE FOR LAUNCHING. BRIDGING MATERIAL WAS BROUGHT UP TO THE FERRY SITE AND SECTIONS OF BRIDGES BEGAN APPEARING AFTER DAYLIGHT.

BY 9 A.M. EQUIPMENT WAS BEING MOVED UP FOR BRIDGE CONSTRUCTION, ALTHOUGH MOST OF THE CROSSING SITES WERE STILL UNDER MORTAR AND 88-MM FIRE.

A COMMAND POST CAUGHT A DIRECT MORTAR HIT AND WENT UP IN SMOKE, SETTING OFF AN AMMUNITION DUMP. WHEN MAJ.FREDERICK HEWITT OF HAWTHORNE, RD., BALTIMORE, MD., TRIED TO RUN ACROSS A FIELD TO CHECK FOR CASUALTIES, HIS DRIVER, JOHN ROGERS, ROUTE 2, HARTSELL, ALA., HELD HIM BACK AND EVERYONE ELSE LAID LOW UNTIL THE 600 MORTAR SHELLS IN THE BUILDING WENT UP, ENGULFING THE AREA WITH THICK, DUSTY SMOKE. THE EXPLOSION KNOCKED THIS CORRESPONDENT SO FLAT THAT ROGERS HAD TO SHOVE HIM INTO A FOXHOLE. HUNDREDS OF PHOSPHORESCENT SHELLS SHOWERED FIRE ALL AROUND US.

DOWN ALONG THE RIVER BANK I TALKED TO SGT. CHARLES J. PURCELL OF 1212 EAST 40TH ST., AND CORP. HENRY LAWSON OF 3232 CHARLOTTE STREET, BOTH OF KANSAS CITY, MO; PFC. LEON SHETZ OF 1250 DOUGLAS STREET, BARBERTON, OHIO; PFC. NORBERT BABER OF 2848 ALKTON AVE., CHICAGO; AND PFC. ROBERT SHOTWELL OF 6719 MARBRISA ST., HUNTINGTON PARK, CALIF.

AN OFFICER SAID HE NEEDED A GUIDE TO LEAD A PLATOON ONTO HIGH GROUND ON THE OTHER SIDE AND PURCELL SAID, "O. K. LET'S GO." HE HOOKED ON HIS BELT AND STARTED ACROSS THE RHINE.

LT. WILLIAM TOMLINSON OF 44 BRADLEY AVE., EAST HAVEN, CONN., A PHYSICIAN, SAID CASUALTIES HAD BEEN REMARKABLY LIGHT. TWO ENGINEERS, PFC. JACK POWERS OF 1504 NEVADA ST., FLINT, MICH., AND PLATALAN WHITMAN OF WEYMOUTH, MASS., STOPPED TO CHANGE THEIR WET FOOTGEAR. THEY HAD MADE 10 SUCCESSIVE TRIPS IN A STORM BOAT.

STAFF SGT. WILLIAM CANADY OF HAMMOND, IND., SGT. WILLIAM J. CAFFNEY OF 1105 CEDAR AVE., SCRANTON, PA., AND SGT. HAROLD DARCEY OF MORRISTOWN, N.Y., WERE FISHED OUT OF THE RHINE AFTER THEIR BOAT CAPSIZED FROM THE WEIGHT OF ITS CARGO.

DURING AN ARTILLERY BARRAGE, COL. ELLSWORTH DAVIS OF 2426 PRYTANIA ST., NEW ORLEANS, STOOD IN A GROUP TALKING OF THE DRAMA OF THE ASSAULT WHICH SAW BRITISH, CANADIAN AND AMERICAN TROOPS HITTING THE GERMANS AT THE SAME TIME.

"CONEY ISLAND WAS NEVER LIKE THIS," SAID PFC. JACK COHEN OF 510 HEGEMAN AVE., BROOKLYN, N.Y. SGT. HAROLD RHEIN OF ROUTE EIGHT, 12TH ST., NORTH, GREAT FALLS, MONT., TOLD HOW GERMAN ANTIAIRCRAFT GUNNERS HAD OPENED UP ON FOUR AMERICAN AIRMEN WHO HAD PARACHUTED ONE AFTERNOON WHEN THEIR LIBERATOR BLEW UP ACROSS THE RHINE.

OTHERS IN THE GROUP WERE PATRICK R. FITCH OF 12 BROORLUN ST., CARBONDALE, PA. (NO RANK GIVEN); TECH. SGT. KIRILL FIETINGHOFF OF 143 SOUTH BERENDO ST., LOS ANGELES; PFC. GERALD LANGE OF BOX 284 EUREKA, CALIF., AND T/5 CLINTON POWELL OF ROCKLAND, TEXAS.

CAPT. EDWARD C. STERN OF NEW ROCHELLE, N.Y., HEADED A COMMUNICATIONS COMPANY WHICH PUT FOUR WIRES ACROSS THE RHINE IN 15 MINUTES BEFORE DAYBREAK.

WARRANT OFFICER EDWARD T. SULTE OF WYTHEVILLE, VA., REMINDED HIMSELF THAT A YEAR AGO TODAY HE WAS BACK IN THE UNITED STATES BIDDING HIS WIFE FAREWELL. SHE NOW LIVES IN LAFAYETTE, GA.

AMONG ENGINEERS GETTING MATERIAL ACROSS THE RHINE WERE CAPT. WALTER A. BODENWEISER OF ARLINGTON, N.J.; PFC. WILLIE ROMANO OF 2315 ST. CLAUDE AVENUE, NEW ORLEANS; CORP. GEORGE F. GALLINGER OF BOX 1573 GRAND COULEE, WASH.; TECH. SGT. STUART COLLIN OF 3216 DRUMMOND ROAD, TOLEDO, OHIO; PFC. LOUIS TYBONI OF 1235 EAST MARKET

NIGHT LEAD THIRD ARMY

MAR 25 1945

BY EDWARD D.BALL

WITH THE U.S. THIRD ARMY, MARCH 24-(AP)-A BRIDGE HAS BEEN THROWN ACROSS THE RHINE AT THE U.S. THIRD ARMY'S BRIDGEHEAD BETWEEN MAINZ AND WORMS, AND TONIGHT AMERICAN TANKS AND TANK DESTROYERS ARE IN ACTION EAST OF THE RIVER.

IT CAN BE DISCLOSED THAT THE BRIDGEHEAD NOW HAS BEEN EXPANDED TO MORE THAN FOUR MILES DEEP AND MORE THAN TWICE THAT WIDE AND AT LEAST FOUR TOWNS BEYOND THE RIVER HAVE BEEN CAPTURED.

THESE ARE ERFELDEN, 15 MILES SOUTHEAST OF MAINZ AND ONLY SEVEN MILES WEST OF THE BIG RHINE VALLEY CITY OF DARMSTADT; ASTHEIM, 11 MILES NORTHWEST OF DARMSTADT AND 17 MILES SOUTHWEST OF FRANKFURT-ON-THE-MAIN, GEINSHEIM AND LEEHEIN, 10 AND EIGHT MILES WEST OF DARMSTADT RESPECTIVELY.

THE ORIGINAL RHINE CROSSING WAS MADE BY THE TROOPS OF THE 12TH CORPS COMMANDED BY MAJ.GEN.MANTON S.EDDY. (BERLIN SAID THE FAMED FOURTH ARMORED DIVISION, WHICH MADE THE SAARLAND BREAKTHROUGH, WAS AMONG THOSE THAT CROSSED THE RIVER.)

ENEMY RESISTANCE STILL IS LIGHT AND SCATTERED.

AIDING THE ORIGINAL CROSSINGS WERE NAVY-MANNED CRAFT, INCLUDING A FLEET OF 36-FOOT LCVP'S (LANDING CRAFT, VEHICLES AND PERSONNEL) AND LCM'S (LANDING CRAFT, MECHANIZED), THE TYPE OF SHIPS THAT PLAYED A MAJOR ROLE IN THE NORMANDY INVASION.

APPROPRIATELY, THE NAVY'S PART IN THIS SHOW OF LT.GEN.GEORGE S. PATTON JR., WAS NAMED "U.S.S. BLOOD AND GUTS."

THE NAVY'S PART WAS AN AMAZING ONE, FOR THESE CRAFT WERE TRUCKED FROM THE ENGLISH CHANNEL.

NOW IT WAS D-DAY ALL OVER AGAIN. TROOPS, TANKS, GUNS, SUPPLIES AND MATERIAL WERE BEING SHUTTLED ACROSS, WITH NAVY MEN, WEARING THE ARMY'S KHAKI AND HELMETS, IN COMMAND.

THE NAVY MEN WHO TOOK PART IN THIS FRESH WATER OPERATION FOR THE FIRST TIME--200 MILES FROM THE OCEAN--PRACTICED FOR MONTHS ON BELGIAN AND FRENCH RIVERS.

THEY WERE VETERANS OF EVERY LANDING FROM NORTH AFRICA TO NORMANDY, AND THEY HAD TO LEARN THE NEW TECHNIQUE OF NAVIGATING THE RHINE'S TREACHEROUS CURRENTS, A HEADACHE COMPARABLE TO THE ROLLING SURF FOR WHICH THEY WERE TRAINED.

THE LCVP'S AND LCM'S. THE LATTER WEIGHTING 26 TONS, WERE BROUGHT TO THE RHINE OVER SHELL-CRATERED HIGHWAYS ON TRUCKS AS LONG AS A SEVEN-STORY BUILDING IN ONE OF THE MOST REMARKABLE TRANSPORT FEATS OF THE WAR.

THE ENGINEERS WHO BRIDGED THE RHINE IN AN ASTONISHINGLY SHORT SPACE OF TIME LIKEWISE WERE EIXPERTS. THEY DID NOT FEAR THE RHINE'S CURRENTS.

THEY HAD LEARNED THEIR TRADE BY MONTHS OF THROWING BRIDGES ACROSS THE TURBULENT COLORADO RIVER AND GEORGIA'S CHATTAHOOTCHEE BACK IN THE STATES.

WITH THE BRITISH SECOND ARMY, MARCH 24-(AP)-THE ANGLO-AMERICAN AIRBORNE ASSAULT OF UNPRECEDENTED CONCENTRATION IN A SMALL AREA TODAY SEALED THE SUCCESS OF THE BRITISH SECOND ARMY'S BOLD CROSSING OF THE RHINE AND GAVE MARSHAL MONTGOMERY A FIRM HOLD ON THE EDGE OF THE NORTH GERMAN PLAINS FOR A SWIFT CAMPAIGN TO FLANK THE RUHR AND DRIVE TO BERLIN.

BY LATE AFTERNOON SOME OF THE SEPARATE AMPHIBIOUS LANDINGS ON THE EAST BANK OF THE RHINE FROM WESEL NORTHWARD BEYOND REES WERE LINKED UP AND THE AIRBORNE BRIDGEHEAD, PLANTED DEFIANTLY IN THE BRILLIANT SUNLIGHT OF MID-DAY LONG AFTER THE FIRST RIVER CROSSINGS, ALSO HAD BEEN LINKED WITH THE LAND FORCES.

SEVERAL VILLAGES WERE CAPTURED DURING THE NIGHT AND MORNING AND BRITISH COMMANDOS WERE CLEARING THE GERMANS OUT OF WESEL IN SAVAGE STREET FIGHTING, WHILE HIGHLANDERS STORMED THROUGH THE STREETS OF REES AT THE OPPOSITE END OF THE SECOND ARMY'S BRIDGEHEAD.

LATE TODAY THE PRISONER BAG TOTALLED MORE THAN 1,500 AND AT THE DEEPEST PENETRATION THE BRIDGEHEAD EXTENDED UPWARDS OF 5,500 YARDS BEYOND REES.

ALTHOUGH THE ASSAULT FORCES AS YET HAD ENCOUNTERED ONLY SPORADIC COUNTERATTACKS AND HAD NOT MET THE PRESUMABLY STRONG GERMAN MOBILE RESERVES, ENEMY RESISTANCE WAS STIFFENING, PARTICULARLY IN THE TOWNS.

ENEMY ARTILLERY FIRE--ALMOST NON-EXISTENT DURING THE RIVER CROSSINGS LAST NIGHT--WAS BECOMING EXTREMELY HEAVY IN SOME SECTORS.

GERMAN MORTAR, ARTILLERY AND SMALL ARMS FIRE HAD NOT HALTED THE STREAM OF MEN AND SUPPLIES BEING FERRIED ACROSS THE RHINE TO BUILD UP THE BRIDGEHEAD, BUT WAS SLOWING THE SPEED OF THE OPERATION. FORCES ALREADY OVER WERE DELAYED BY LACK OF ARTILLERY SUPPORT FOR THREE HOURS BETWEEN 10 A.M. AND 1 P.M. WHEN ALLIED BIG GUNS STOPPED FIRING TO LET THE PARACHUTE TROOPS AND GLIDER INFANTRYMEN MAKE LANDINGS NORTHEAST OF XANTEN.

THE OPERATION WAS DESCRIBED AS GOING ACCORDING TO PLAN AND IN AT LEAST ONE RESPECT WELL AHEAD OF EXPECTATIONS--THE JUNCTURE OF THE AIRBORNE UNITS WITH OTHER FORCES NORTHWEST OF WESEL CAME ONLY A FEW HOURS AFTER THE LANDINGS INSTEAD OF UP TO TWO DAYS.

THE BRITISH ALSO HAVE PUT SOME TANKS ACROSS IN THE CENTER OF THE BRIDGEHEAD AREA WHERE THE 15TH SCOTTISH DIVISION LANDED IN TWO PLACES IN THE VICINITY OF XANTEN.

ON THE RHINE, MARCH 24-(AP)-WHEN THE U.S. NINTH ARMY BEGAN PREPARING TO CROSS THE RHINE, IT WAS FOUND THAT HUNDREDS OF AMATEUR BOATMEN WOULD BE NEEDED TO NAVIGATE ASSAULT CRAFT.

PERSONNEL RECORDS WERE COMBED HURRIEDLY TO FIND ALL MEN WHO HAD LISTED BOATING OR OUTBOARD MOTOR RACING AS A HOBBY.

ALL THOSE SO LISTED WERE GIVEN A QUICK RIVER TEST ON THE MAAS RIVER. THOSE WHO PASSED THE TEST FOUND THEMSELVES PURSUING THEIR HOBBY UNDER FIRE ON THE RHINE TODAY.

WITH THE BRITISH SECOND ARMY IN GERMANY, MARCH 24-(AP)-CAPT.CHARLES ROMINE OF 607 SOUTH ELM STREET, CHAMPAIGN, ILL., A PUBLIC RELATIONS OFFICER WITH U.S. TROOP CARRIER FORCES, CAME DOWN IN THE MIDDLE OF TODAY'S AIRBORNE LANDINGS BEYOND THE RHINE.

A FLYING FORTRESS IN WHICH HE AND SOME OFFICIAL ARMY PHOTOGRAPHERS WERE RIDING WAS SHOT DOWN AFTER FOUR TRIPS OVER THE LANDING ZONE. ROMINE AND THE OTHERS BAILED OUT.

THE 28-YEAR-OLD CAPTAIN LANDED IN A SECTION RECENTLY ABANDONED BY THE ENEMY AND ALREADY UNDER HEAVY MORTAR FIRE. AFTER DIGGING IN HE WAITED UNTIL THINGS BEGAN TO GET QUIET AND THEN DOZED OFF. HE WAS ROUSED BY A BRITISH VOICE CALLING "YOU ALL RIGHT CHUM?"

WITH ROMINE AT A HEADQUARTERS PRESS CONFERENCE WAS LT.BERNARD BERMAN OF 1550 SOUTH HAMLIN STREET, CHICAGO, THE PILOT OF A C-47 TRANSPORT PLANE WHICH CARRIED BRITISH AIRBORNE TROOPS TO THE DROP ZONE. AFTER THE TROOPS HAD JUMPED BERMAN'S PLANE WAS SET AFIRE BY GERMAN ANTIAIRCRAFT AND MACHINEGUN FIRE.

SENDING THE SHIP BACK ACROSS THE RHINE BERMAN ORDERED THE CREW TO JUMP. AFTER CHECKING TO BE SURE THAT ALL GOT AWAY HE JUMPED HIMSELF LANDING JUST OUTSIDE THE HEADQUARTERS OF A BRITISH ARTILLERY UNIT. SOME OF THE OFFICERS WHO WATCHED HIM TOLD HIM HE WAS LUCKY TO BE ALIVE. FIVE SECONDS AFTER HE BAILED OUT THE ENTIRE PLANE WAS ENVELOPED IN FLAMES.

WITH PATTON'S TANKS ACROSS THE RHINE, MARCH 24-(AP)-IT IS A LONG JEEPRIDE ACROSS COUNTRY TO THIS U.S. THIRD ARMY BRIDGEHEAD EAST OF THE RHINE.

WHAT SEEMS LIKE ONE OF THE LONGEST STRETCHES IS THE ACTUAL CROSSING AMID FORWARD ELEMENTS--BUT A WRISTWATCH SAYS IT TOOK ONLY THREE MINUTES.

THE MEN ON THE EAST BANK OF THIS FAMOUS RIVER ARE THRILLED TO BE HERE.

AMONG THEM ARE AIR FORCE LT. WARREN FORMA, 103 EAST 86TH ST., NEW YORK CITY, BOMBARDIER-NAVIGATOR WHO HAD COMPLETED 65 MISSIONS AND WAS SLATED FOR HOME LEAVE, BUT COULD NOT RESIST THE CHANCE TO ACCOMPANY TROOPS TO SEE HOW THE GREAT JOB WAS DONE. WITH HIM IS SGT. RUSSEL D. REDDING OF LUSK, WYO., GUNNER OF A MEDIUM BOMBER, WHO ALSO WAS EAGER TO SEE HOW GROUND TROOPS JUMPED THE BARRIER HE HAD SO OFTEN SEEN FROM HIGH ALTITUDES.

FORMA SAID "WE SAW PLENTY OF TRANS-RHINE GERMANY FROM THE AIR, BUT NEVER BEFORE FROM THE GROUND."

LUSK--JUST AS A COUPLE OF HIT-RUN ENEMY PLANES LOOSED SOME BOMBS--SAID, "YEAH, AND NOW WE ARE GETTING A WORM'S EYEVIEW OF THE BOMBARDIER'S JOB."

IN ONE VILLAGE ALREADY CAPTURED IN THE BRIDGEHEAD LT. COL. HOWE CLEDBETTER OF HOBBS, N.MEX., FORMER UNIVERSITY OF ARKANSAS HALFBACK, WAS EXPLAINING THE TACTICAL SITUATION.

HE SAID THE GERMANS TRIED HARD LAST NIGHT TO BOMB AND STRAFE THE BRIDGEHEAD OUT OF ACTION, AND STILL WERE TRYING TODAY. BUT TODAY THE GERMANS WERE MEETING DIFFICULTIES, FOR THERE WAS PERFECT WEATHER AND AMERICAN FIGHTERS AND FIGHTERBOMBERS MADE IT HOT FOR ENEMY SHIPS.

NEARBY, A SMALL GROUP OF GERMAN PRISONERS AWAITED TRANSPORT TO PRISONER OF WAR CAGES. THEY LOOKED NOT MORE THAN 16, AND ONE COULD HAVE PASSED FOR 15.

ANOTHER AMERICAN WHO WAS SOMEWHAT EXCITED TO GET OVER THE RHINE WAS LT. VICTOR KOVANICH OF CLEVELAND, WHO TRIED TO BRING HIS MILITARY GOVERNMENT DETACHMENT INTO THE NEWLY CONQUERED ZONE.

HE FOUND CROSSING PRIORITIES ESTABLISHED BY THE ARMY A BIGGER BARRIER THAN GERMAN RESISTANCE, BUT HE HITCH HIKED HIS WAY ALONG WITH A SET OF "WE COME AS CONQUERORS" POSTERS. THE REST OF HIS DETACHMENT AND THE REMAINDER OF THE MILITARY GOVERNMENT'S STOCK OF PROCLAMATIONS AND REGULATIONS WILL BE BROUGHT IN LATER.

KOVANICH ALREADY HAS PLASTERED THE WALLS OF THIS VILLAGE WITH POSTERS TELLING THE GERMANS WHAT TO DO UNDER THE NEW REGIME AND HAS REMOVED THE NAZI BURGOMASTER AND APPOINTED A SUITABLE SUCCESSOR.

U.S.THIRD ARMY BRIDGEHEAD ON THE RHINE, MARCH 24-(AP)-THIRD ARMY SOLDIERS FOUND THEIR BRIDGEHEAD A HOT PLACE TODAY.

"THIS IS ABOUT THE NOISIEST PLACE I EVER HAVE BEEN," SAID PVT. GEORGE PRIBBLE OF GRAND RAIDS, MICH. "THEY THREW EVERYTHING THEY COULD AT US, BUT WE STILL ARE HERE AND ARE GOING TO STAY."

PFC ROBERT HARTIGAN, 1704 WALLEN AVE., CHICAGO, ILL., SAID: "I SHOOK ALL NIGHT, BUT THEY AIN'T GOING TO RUN ME OUT."

CAPT. FAIRFIELD ROCK OF DAYTON, OHIO, SAID "I WAS UP AND DOWN MOST OF THE NIGHT, BUT FINALLY DECIDED TO HELL WITH THE JERRIES AND STAYED IN BED."

LT.COL.HOMER LEDBETTER OF HOBBS, N.M., SAID SOME OF THE SHELLS MAKING THE NOISE WERE DUDS.

CAPT.WILLIAM JONES OF ALEXANDRIA, VA., A REGIMENTAL CHAPLAIN, AND REUBEN BONDA OF CLEVELAND, OHIO, A RED CROSS FIELD DIRECTOR, ACCEPTED THE SURRENDER OF TWO GERMANS.

WITH THE ALLIED AIRBORNE TROOPS, MARCH 24-(AP)-WE'RE OFF IN 20 MINUTES. THERE'S HARDLY ENOUGH ROOM TO YAWN OR MOVE A MUSCLE

THERE'S A SOFT, SPRING BREEZE WHICH LIFTS THE DUST FROM THE FIELD. I'M IN GLIDER 39. IT'S CALLED "CHATTANOOGA."

PILOT LARRY WILT OF BRADFORD, ILL., SAYS "THIS IS THE BIGGEST LOAD I'VE EVER CARRIED. IT'S A PERFECT DAY FOR GLIDER CONDITION." LARRY HAS DONE THREE OPRATIONAL LANDINGS. HE IS REASSURING.

COPILOT LINTON WATERHOUSE CHRISTENED THE GLIDER AFTER HIS HOME TOWN IN TENNESSEE.

WE GOT UP AT 5:30 A.M. BREAKFAST WAS A GOOD MEAL.

THE MEN SAUNTERED IN RAGGED DOUBLE FILE THROUGH THE BARBED WIRE TO THE FIELD. THE GLIDERS ARE STACKED NOSE TO TAIL BETWEEN THE TUG PLANES THE MEN CARRIED BIG PACKS. SOME HAD GUNS, SOME GRENADES, SOME JUST KNIVES. THEY SWEATED UNDER THEIR COMBAT SUITS. SHAVING CREAM AND CARTONS OF CIGARETS SHOVED UNDER THEIR PACKS.

THE CHIEF OF STAFF READ FIELD MARSHAL MONTGOMERY'S MESSAGE. THE MEN SPRAWLED ON THE GRASS, CHEWING TOBACCO, CHEWING GRASS AND SMOKING.

"OVER THE RHINE, THEN, LET US GO. AND GOOD HUNTING TO YOU ALL ON THE OTHER SIDE," MONTGOMERY SAID.

THE MEN SHOWED NO EMOTION. WORDS NEVER MEAN MUCH TO MEN GOING INTO BATTLE. THE CHIEF OF STAFF ADDED:

"GOOD LUCK TO YOU ALL, LET'S GO GET 'EM."

THE GLIDERS AND TUG PLANES ARE NAMED "MOONSHINE MOOCHER," "SEEDY," "RUTH MARIE," AND "STEAMBOAT."

WE ARE TWO AMERICANS, A LONDONER AND A SCOT HERE.

THERE'S LT.BURTON E.ENGLISH OF OROVILLE, CALIF.

"HOPE IT'S A BOY," HE SAID. HIS WIFE EXPECTED A CHILD MARCH 16. HE LAST HEARD FROM HER MARCH 3. HE'S MORE WORRIED ABOUT THE SEX OF HIS BABY THAN THE NUMBER OF FLAK GUNS THE GERMANS WILL HAVE TO MEET US.

THERE'S CAPT.DON R.PAY OF BILLINGS, MONT. HE'S PUBLIC RELATIONS OFFICER WITH THIS AMERICAN OUTFIT.

THERE'S CPL.G.BARTLETT OF 12 BOLTON GARDENS, LONDON. HE'S ORDERLY IN CHARGE OF RADIO OPERATORS WHO WILL TRANSMIT ALL PRESS COPY FROM OUR LANDING AREA.

WE'VE ALL TAKEN OUR MOTION SICKNESS PILLS. WE'RE ALL SET.

WITH THE U.S. THIRD ARMY ACROSS THE RHINE, MARCH 24-(AP)-DOUGHBOYS OF LT.GEN.GEORGE S.PATTON'S THIRD ARMY WERE HEARTENED IN THEIR CHARGE ACROSS THE RHINE BY SOME "INSIDE" ADVICE THAT THE GERMANS HAD LITTLE ARTILLERY TO THROW AT THEM.

SHORTLY BEFORE THE CROSSING THE THIRD ARMY CAPTURED LT. GEN. EDWIN GRAF VON ROTHKIRCH UND TRACH, THE GERMAN GENERAL WHOSE TROOPS HAD SURROUNDED BASTOGNE--UNSUCCESSFULLY--IN THE ARDENNES BREAKTHROUGH.

EN ROUTE TO THE REAR, THE GENERAL AND THE AMERICAN OFFICER ESCORTI HIM WERE FORCED TO HIT THE DITCH WHEN THEY CAME UNDER A GERMAN ARTILLERY BARRAGE.

AS THEY LAY THERE, THE GENERAL TAPPED THE AMERICAN AND SAID:

"DON'T WORRY, THERE ISN'T MUCH LEFT."

BY [illegible] D.BALL
[illegible]TH THE U.S. THIRD ARMY, EAST OF THE RHINE, MARCH 24-(AP)-LT.GEN. GEORGE S.PATTON, JR., PULLED ONE OF HISTORY'S GREAT MILITARY DRIVES TO THE RHINE AND BEYOND ON A THIN SHOESTRING.

HE WAS LATE IN REACHING THE RHINE. HIS THIRD ARMY WAS THE FOURTH AMERICAN ARMY TO REACH THE RIVER AND THE SECOND TO CROSS, BUT IT COULD BE THE FIRST TO REACH BERLIN. AT LEAST THAT IS WHAT THE MEN IN THE RANKS ARE SAYING. TO THEM THE SENSATIONAL SPURT HAS BEEN A SHOT IN THE ARM AFTER THE FREEZING "BATTLE OF THE BULGE" IN BELGIUM.

WITH ONLY ONE NAVIGABLE ROAD PATTON'S TANKS RACED TO THE RHINE ON MARCH 7 TO START THINGS ROLLING. THE PISTOL-PACKING, CIGAR-CHEWING PATTON ADMITTED IT WAS A TERRIFIC GAMBLE BUT THE RED-HOT FOURTH ARMORED DIVISION MADE IT, FOLLOWED IN A FEW HOURS BY THE 11TH ARMORED DIVISION.

MEN OF THE FOURTH ARMORED DIVISION WERE TOLD ON MARCH 3 TO GET 10 DAYS' K-RATIONS AND HEAD FOR THE RHINE FROM THE KYLL RIVER--A DISTANCE OF 65 MILES. THEY WERE THERE IN 48 HOURS. AFTER THAT IT WAS ALL OVER BUT SOME MOPPING UP IN THE RHINE-MOSELLE-SAAR TRIANGLE.

WHAT TURNED OUT TO BE PERHAPS THE KEY POINT OF THE MOSELLE TO RHINE PUSH WAS A LITTLE PLACE CALLED SEINSFELD, EIGHT MILES NORTHEAST OF BITBURG.

AT SEINSFELD THE GERMANS HAD MINED A STONE BRIDGE ACROSS A STREAM WHICH WAS BULGING FAR BEYOND NORMAL FROM RAINGS AND MELTING SNOW. TO KEEP GOING AND OVERTAKE THE GERMANS RETREATING TOWARD THE RHINE OUR TANKS HAD TO HAVE THIS BRIDGE. THEY GOT IT.

ONE FORCE OF TANKS PEELED OFF AND KEPT UP A STEADY BARRAGE OF SHELLS TIMED TO EXPLODE IN THE AIR OVER THE TARGET TO PREVENT THE GERMANS FROM SETTING OFF DEMOLITION CHARGES. OTHER TANKS WENT THROUGH OUR OWN FIRE TO THE OTHER SIDE OF THE RIVER AND SECURED THE BRIDGE.

ANOTHER FIVE MILES UP THE ROAD IN THE VICINITY OF MEISBURG THE FOURTH ARMORED OVERRAN AND DESTROYED A GERMAN ARMY CORPS HEADQUARTERS CAPTURING ITS COMMANDING GENERAL, GRAF VON ROTHKIRCH UND TRACH.

NEAR KAISERSESCH THE RACING ARMOR GOT STYMIED MOMENTARILY BY A ROAD WHICH WAS SHOWN ON THE MAP AS GOOD BUT WHICH TURNED OUT TO BE BAD.

TANKS MIRED AND IT LOOKED LIKE THE DRIVE TO THE RHINE HAD COME TO A HALT. BUT ANOTHER PASSABLE ROAD WAS FOUND A SHORT WAYS BACK. THE TANKS TURNED AROUND AND MADE THE REMAINING 11 MILES TO THE RHINE THAT NIGHT.

BESIDES SEINSFELD ANOTHER IMPORTANT CONTRIBUTING FACTOR TO THE THIRD'S BRILLIANT EXPLOIT WAS THE CAPTURE OF PRUEM THE SECOND WEEK IN FEBRUARY. PRUEM'S CAPTURE FLANKED 19 MILES OF THE SIEGFRIED LINE RUNNING SOUTH TO BELOW BITBURG AND MADE POSSIBLE THE DRIVE FROM THE KYLL TO THE RHINE.

A121

EVEN BEFORE THE FALL OF COBLENZ PATTON'S ARMOR AND INFANTRY HAD JUMPED THE MOSELLE SOUTH OF THE RHINE CITY AND HEADED SOUTHEAST IN TWO SLENDER COLUMNS. FOR DAYS PATTON OWNED ONLY THE TWO ROADS DOWN WHICH THESE COLUMNS PLUNGED. UNTIL AMERICAN INFANTRYMEN CAME ALONG THE WOODS STILL WERE FULL OF GERMANS SOME OF WHOM WANTED TO FIGHT BUT MOST OF WHOM DIDN'T.

JEEP-RIDING CORRESPONDENTS TRYING TO KEEP UP WITH THE ARMOR FREQUENTLY ENCOUNTERED GROUPS OF GERMANS LOOKING FOR SOMEBODY TO SURRENDER TO.

UPON REACHING THE RHINE BETWEEN MAINZ AND WORMS THIS WEEK PATTON PICKED HIS SPOT TO JUMP THE RIVER--AND TWO DAYS AFTER HE GOT ON THE WEST BANK HE WAS ACROSS ON THE EAST SIDE. IT WAS A QUICK DECISION BY THE QUICK ACTING PATTON. THE GENERAL COMMANDING THE BRIDGEHEAD-MAKING DIVISION DIDN'T KNOW UNTIL MIDAFTERNOON THAT HE WAS GOING OVER THE RHINE THAT NIGHT.

PRECEDING THE KYLL-RHINE PHASE OF THE TRIANGLE-CLEARING OPERATION WAS THE CAPTURE OF 80 SQUARE MILES BETWEEN THE SAAR AND MOSELLE RIVERS WHICH STARTED ON FEB. 19. WHILE THIS WAS IN PROGRESS TRIER, THE OLDEST GERM[illegible]ITY NORTH OF THE JUNCTION OF THE SAAR AND MOSELLE RIVERS

LEIMERSHEIM ON THE RHINE, GERMANY, MARCH 24-(AP)-COMPANY K OF THE 143RD REGIMENT OF THE 36TH (TEXAS) INFANTRY DIVISION LAY DUG IN ALONG THE RHINE TONIGHT EXCHANGING HEAVY MACHINEGUN AND MORTAR FIRE WITH THE GERMANS ACROSS THE 200-YARD-WIDE STREAM.

LEIMERSHEIM FELL AT MIDNIGHT LAST NIGHT TO THE SECOND AND THIRD BATTALIONS OF THE REGIMENT. THE SURPRISE ATTACK WAS LED BY LT.ODEME COX OF 1214 CONNER STREET, WACO, TEXAS.

THE CAPTURE OF THE TOWN MARKED A 15-MILE SWOOP BY VETERANS OF THE DIVISION WHO SPED ACROSS COUNTRY FROM BERGZABERN YESTERDAY. THE GERMANS MANAGED TO GET THREE OF THEIR BIG TANKS ACROSS ON TWO FERRIES OPERATING FROM LEIMERSHEIM TO THE EAST SHORE BEFORE COX'S MEN REACHED THE FERRY LANDING, BUT IN THEIR HURRIED FLIGHT THE GERMANS LEFT LONG COLUMNS OF TRUCKS PACKED WITH EQUIPMENT AND PERSONAL BELONGINGS LINING THE ROADS TO THE FERRY LANDINGS.

THE TEXANS CLAIMED THEY REACHED THE RHINE BEFORE ANY OTHER DIVISION IN THE U.S. SEVENTH ARMY EXCEPT FOR THE SIXTH ARMORED DIVISION WHICH HAD SPEARED TO WORMS AND RHEINDURKHEIM WEDNESDAY.

THE GERMANS WERE IN HEAVY FORTRESSES ON THEIR SIDE OF THE RIVER. COX HAD HIS MEN WELL EMPLACED ALL ALONG THE WEST BANK. BACK OF COX'S POSITIONS OUR HEAVY ARTILLERY WAS LAYING SHELLS INTO THE GERMAN POSITIONS JUST EIGHT MILES NORTHWEST OF KARLSRUHE. GERMAN ARTILLERY WAS SILENT BUT THERE WAS OCCASIONAL PLANE STRAFING.

COX IS ONE OF THE FEW ORIGINAL WACO, TEXAS, MEN LEFT IN COMPANY K WHICH HAD LED THE 36TH DIVISION'S INITIAL THRUST ACROSS THE MODER RIVER A WEEK AGO AT BITSCHHOFFEN. ITS OPERATION THERE PAVED THE WAY FOR THE DRIVE CRACKING AND FLANKING ONE OF THE TOUGHEST POSITIONS OF THE SIEGFRIED LINE. A LIEUTENANT BY BATTLEFIELD PROMOTION, COX CAME UP FROM PRIVATE.

MAJ.MARK ADAMS OF WHITESBURG, KY., AND DAYTON, OHIO, A BATTALION EXECUTIVE OFFICER, SAID ONE REASON THE GERMANS PUT UP SUCH A STIFF FIGHT AHEAD OF THE 36TH DIVISION WAS TO ALLOW THEM TO GET THEIR 72-TON GIANT TANKS BACK ACROSS THE RIVER.

LT.COL.THEODORE ANDREWS OF CALDWELL, TEXAS, A BATTALION COMMANDER, SAID THE GERMANS WERE ALMOST COMPLETELY SURPRISED AT THE FERRY.

"THEY WERE ACTING AS IF NO ONE WAS NEAR WHEN COX AND HIS MEN GOT AROUND ON THE RIGHT FLANK," HE SAID. "IT SOUNDED LIKE THE FERRY BOAT WAS OPERATING ACROSS THE MISSISSIPPI RIVER. THEY HAD THE FERRY HORN BLOWING ALL THE TIME. YOU COULD HEAR THE GERMANS TALKING WHILE THEY LOADED TRUCKS.

MAR 25 1945

"COX ALSO CAPTURED THREE MORTARS AND 2,000 ROUNDS OF AMMUNITION USING THEM AGAINST THE GERMANS."

COX SAID THE SITUATION QUITED ENOUGH THIS MORNING SO THAT THE AMERICANS WERE ABLE TO STAND ON THE FERRY LANDING WITHOUT ANY REACTION FROM THE GERMANS.

DESPITE THE CONSTANT EXCHANGE OF FIRE LATER SGT.HAROLD HIRT OF 1502 NORTHWESTERN STREET, LIMA, OHIO, FOUND TIME TONIGHT TO PACK A BOX WITH CAPTURED SOUVENIRS WHICH HE WAS SENDING HOME TO HIS WIFE.

OTHERS MANNING GUNS IN EMPLACEMENTS ALONG THE RIVER INCLUDED PFC. JAMES MIDWARD OF SEARCY, ARK., SGT.ORBY ROSE OF MCKINNEY, TEX.; AND PFC.JAMES GEIGEL OF 5703 CHRISTIAN STREET, SOUTH CHICAGO.

THROUGH ALL OF TODAY'S ACTION K COMPANY'S MESS SERGEANT, ELMORE MOORE OF WACO, TEXAS, KEPT HOT MEALS GOING TO THE MEN. ADAMS RECOUNTED HOW MOORE WHO HAD BEEN WOUNDED TWICE CARRIED FOOD ON HIS BACK TO HIS MATES IN THE RAPIDO RIVER ACTION IN ITALY.

SGT.CLIFTON ROGERS OF ITASCA, TEXAS., BATTALION SERGEANT MAJOR, SAID PROUDLY, "MOORE FEEDS HIS MEN ALL THE TIME UNDER THE MOST EXTREME CIRCUMSTANCES. HE IS THE BEST MESS SERGEANT IN THE BUSINESS."

THE PATH TO THE RHINE LED THROUGH VILLAGE AFTER VILLAGE LINES WITH WHITE FLAGS HUNG BY CIVILIANS AND FOR THE MOST PART THE VILLAGES HAVE NOT SUFFERED MUCH.

THE CIVILIANS STILL ARE TRYING TO SHOW CORDIALITY BUT THE SOLDIERS ARE HAVING NONE OF IT SO FAR AS PHOTOGRAPHER JAMES PRINGLE AND I COULD SEE.

NORTH OF THE TEXAS DIVISION THERE WAS ACTION BY THE 103RD INFANTRY DIVISION CLEANING UP TOWNS AROUND OFFENBACH. CORP.JOHN RICHARDS OF 859A MAIN STREET, WILMINGTON, MASS., AND CORP.FRANK FRUZEN OF 149 OAK GROVE AVENUE, GREEN BAY, WIS., CAME ROLLING UP WITH AN ARROGANT GERMAN LIEUTENANT THEY HAD FOUND SUN BATHING.

THERE WAS ANOTHER ARROGANT LIEUTENANT IN THE 36TH DIVISION'S PRISONER PEN BACK IN BERGZABERN WHERE CAPT.HANS WAGNER OF 498 ELM ROAD AMBRIDGE, PA., HAD PROCESSED MORE THAN 2,000 PRISONERS IN LESS THAN 24 HOURS. THE PRISONER STOOD IN A STOCKADE STIFFLY AT ATTENTION REFUSING TO ANSWER QUESTIONS.

WAGNER SAID GERMANS HAD BEEN WANDERING ALL OVER THE COUNTRYSIDE TO GIVE THEMSELVES UP.

ONE BATCH OF 15 SURRENDERED TO THE PILOT OF A CUB PLANE. TRUCK LOAD AFTER TRUCK LOAD ROARED BACK TO THE CORPS CAGES. THE PRISONERS WERE TAGGED BY A CREW WHICH INCLUDED PVT.SAM DROWOS OF 2096 DALY

PARIS, MARCH 24-(AP)-A FRENCH MILITARY TRIBUNAL ACQUITTED THREE FRENCH NEWSPAPER OFFICIALS OF COMPLICITY IN THEFTS OF AMERICAN ARMY GASOLINE TONIGHT AFTER HEARING A DEFENSE PLEA THAT THE FUEL WAS USED TO DISTRIBUTE NEWSPAPERS.

ARISTIDE SANTINOVER BLANK, GENERAL DIRECTOR OF THE FRANCE SOIR AND A MEMBER OF THE CONSULTATIVE ASSEMBLY; GEORGES BENOIT DIRES, DIRECTOR OF THE NEWSPAPER FRANC-TIREUR AND PRESIDENT OF THE NATIONAL NEWSPAPER DISTRIBUTION ASSOCIATION, AND JEAN BOCH-MICHEL, ADMINISTRATOR OF THE NEWSPAPER COMBAT WERE FREED ALONG WITH 21 OTHER DEFENDANTS MOST OF WHOM WERE EMPLOYES OF THE PAPERS. TWO OTHER DEFENDANTS CONVICTED OF TRAFFICKING IN STOLEN GASOLINE WERE SENTENCED TO PRISON TERMS AND FINED.

WHEN IT WAS SHOWN THAT THE NEWSPAPER OFFICIALS HAD NOT DEALT IN THE GASOLINE FOR PROFIT, THE PROSECUTOR URGED LENIENCY TOWARD THEM, DECLARING THAT THE DISTRIBUTION OF NEWSPAPERS WAS IN THE NATIONAL INTEREST.

THE FRANCE SOIR DIRECTOR SAID THAT WHEN HE LEARNED HE HAD BEEN USING AMERICAN ARMY GASOLINE HE GAVE ORDERS TO STOP THE PURCHASES. THE DEFENSE ATTORNEY DECLARED THAT IF AMERICANS HAD MORE COMPREHENSION OF THE NEEDS OF THE FRENCH PRESS "THESE MEN WOULDN'T HAVE HAD RECOURSE TO SUCH METHODS."

ROME, MARCH 24-(AP)-THE U.S.15TH AIR FORCE TODAY RELEASED THIS STORY OF AN INCIDENT DURING YESTERDAY'S BOMBING RAID ON RUHLAND, GERMANY:

TOP-TURRET GUNNER SGT.HENRY KOTTLE, 1822 WEST VOLKERN ST., PHOENIX, ARIZ., ASKED PERMISSION TO LEAVE HIS TURRET FOR A MOMENT "JUST ON A HUNCH," AND THE PILOT GRANTED THE REQUEST.

JUST AS KOTTLE STEPPED AWAY, A FLAK FRAGMENT TORE THROUGH THE SIDE OF THE FUSELAGE AND SMASHED THROUGH THE TURRET.

"I CAN'T EXPLAIN IT," KOTTLE SAID LATER. "I JUST HAD A FEELING SOMETHING WAS GOING TO HAPPEN."

ANOTHER LIBERATOR WAS LIMPING BACK FROM A RAID ON THE VIENNA AREA. OVER HOME BASE THE PILOT ORDERED HIS CREW TO BAIL OUT, BUT WARNED THEM NOT TO PULL RIP CORDS WHILE THEY COULD FEEL STRONG AIR CURRENTS FROM THE PROPELLERS.

RADIOMAN-GUNNER SGT. ROBERT SUGHES (CABLE COPY), 1314 4TH AVE., ABERDEEN, S.D., CONTINUED TO FEEL AIR CURRENTS UNTIL HE LOOKED DOWN AND SAW HE WAS PRACTICALLY AT THE ROOFTOPS. HE LANDED SAFELY, BUT WITNESSES SAID THE 'CHUTE HAD OPENED ONLY 20 FEET ABOVE THE GROUND.

AN ADVANCED AIRFIELD IN ITALY, OCT. 30, 1944-(DELAYED BY CENSOR) (AP)-FRESH AMERICAN REINFORCEMENTS CARRIED NEARLY 1,000 MILES IN HUGE TRANSPORT PLANES FROM CHERBOURG, FRANCE, TO ITALY, ARE LANDING AT THIS AIRDROME AND SPEEDYING AWAY IN TRUCKS TO REINFORCE LT.GEN.MARK W. CLARK'S FIFTH ARMY BATTLING GRIMLY ON THE APPROACHES TO THE PO VALLEY.

I MADE THE ROUND TRIP, RETURNING TODAY WITH A CHEERFUL PLANELOAD OF NEWLY-TRAINED SOLDIERS WHO HAD BEEN STATIONED IN BRITAIN WHERE THEY NEVER HAD EXPECTED TO PARTICIPATE IN THE BITTER FIGHT IN THE SNOWCAPPED MOUNTAINS OF ITALY.

A TRUCK DROVE THEM AWAY FROM THE MUDDY FIELD AND TOMORROW THEY ARE SLATED TO GO TO THE FRONT FOR THEIR FIRST ACTION.

THE SWIFT TRANSFER OF TROOPS FROM THE COMMAND OF GEN.EISENHOWER IN FRANCE TO THE ITALIAN THEATER WAS MADE BY C-47 TRANSPORTS OF THE 64TH TROOP CARRIER GROUP, A FAMED OUTFIT WHICH EARLY LAST SPRING MOVED TWO DIVISIONS 900 MILES IN INDIA, FROM CALCUTTA TO DIMAPUR WHERE THE BRITISH WERE ENGAGED IN REPELLING A JAPANESE INVASION OF THE IMPHAL PLAIN.

THE GROUP IS KNOWN AS THE "CERNEY CIRCUS" FROM ITS COMMANDER, COL. JOHN CERNEY OF HARRISON, IDAHO.

MY PLANE WAS PILOTED BY LT.EUGENE T.FICHTLER, 74 PONCE ST., ST. LOUIS, MO.

TWENTY-TWO OTHER PLANES CAME IN WITH TROOPS YESTERDAY.

THE TROOPS BOARDING THE PLANE AT CHERBOURG WERE UNCERTAIN WHERE THEY WERE BOUND.

"IS IT TRUE WE ARE GOING TO ITALY?" ASKED ONE SOLDIER. "I WAS SUPPOSED TO HAVE A DATE WITH A GIRL IN ENGLAND TONIGHT."

TROOPS IN THE PLANE INCLUDED PVTS.ALBERT V.BOTTS OF FALLS CREEK, PA., COLEMAN H.BIRMINGHAM OF MAN, W.VA., CHARLES BLACKNICK OF 44 EAST END AVE., NEW YORK CITY; FRED BIANCHINI, 258 CENTER ST., BRIDGEWATER, MASS.; ELWOOD W.BRUCE, ASHLAND, VA.; JOE BROUGHTON, SPARTANBURG, S.C., LESLIE BROWN, R.F.D. NO. 2, LYNCHBURG, VA.; GEORGE BRYAN, NORTH PLATTE, NEB.; EDWARD BRAZZELL OF PLATEAU, ALA.; DAVID H.BUCKALOO, 3408 SHERMAN ST., HOUSTON, TEX.; ALFRED J.BOWYER OF RHINELANDER, WIS.; WALTER L.BOURGOINE, 203 CUMBERLAND ST., RUMFORD, ME.;

LT.PATRICK H.O'DONNELL, 505 EAST 40TH ST., AUSTIN, TEXAS, WAS CO-PILOT ON OUR PLANE, CORP.ATTILIO LOSPINOSO, 925 FLORA ST., ELIZABETH, N.J., WAS RADIO OPERATOR. THE CREW CHIEF WAS SGT.WILLIAM F.LINDSY OF BARIUM SPRINGS, N.C.

MOSCOW, MARCH 24-(AP)-A PURGE OF ROMANIAN NEWSMEN AND EDITORS WHO SERVED NAZIISM HAS BEGUN IN THAT BALKAN COUNTRY WITH THE CLOSING OF NINE PROVINCIAL PAPERS BY ORDER OF THE ROMANIAN MINISTRY OF PROPAGANDA, IT WAS ANNOUNCED HERE TODAY. THE RUSSIAN TASS NEWS AGENCY REPORTED THE ACTION.

MOSCOW, MARCH 24-(AP)-IZVESTIA, OFFICIAL SOVIET GOVERNMENT PAPER, DECLARING THAT THE "GERMAN OF DUAL CITIZENSHIP IS ONE OF THE MOST DANGEROUS FACTORS EXISTENT FOR PEACE LOVING PEOPLES," SAID TODAY THAT HITLERITES LEAVING A LOST WAR ARE "TRYING TO HIDE ABROAD UNDER THE CLOAK OF FOREIGN CITIZENSHIP."

ASSERTING THAT THE PROBLEM OF SETTLING GERMAN DUAL CITIZENSHIP DESERVES SERIOUS ATTENTION, THE NEWSPAPER SAID THAT MANY GERMANS WHO HAVE BECOME AMERICAN, BRITISH, FRENCH, ROMANIAN AND HUNGARIAN CITIZENS ARE GERMAN AT HEART AND ARE REGARDED AS GERMAN BY HITLER.

"GERMAN DUAL CITIZENSHIP IS THE LEGAL MEANS FOR HIDING A MASS OF GERMAN AGENTS IN ALL PARTS OF THE WORLD," IZVESTIA SAID. "THIS IS ONE OF THE MEANS OF SPREADING GERMAN IMPERIALISM IN PREPARATION FOR A THIRD WORLD WAR."

HELSINKI, MARCH 24-(AP)-A DANGEROUS INFLATION AND A SPREADING SERIES OF STRIKES HAS PLACED FINLAND TODAY IN A CRITICAL ECONOMIC STATE AS THE PEOPLE STRUGGLE TO DISCHARGE THEIR ARMISTICE TERMS AND REBUILD THEIR WAR-TORN NATION.

ALL OVER THE COUNTRY EVERY HOTEL DINING ROOM AND RESTAURANT IS CLOSED BY A STRIKE OF WAITERS AND COOKS. POSTAL AND TELEGRAPH EMPLOYES, RAILWAY MEN AND CIVIL SERVANTS ALL HAVE PETITIONED THE GOVERNMENT FOR HIGHER WAGES WITH IMPLIED THREATS THAT STRIKES WILL FOLLOW IF THEIR DEMANDS ARE NOT MET. ALL HELSINKI BAKERIES CLOSED FIVE DAYS AGO AS THE EMPLOYES STRUCK FOR MORE PAY. THE CITY VIRTUALLY WAS WITHOUT BREAD TODAY.

THE WHOLESALE PRICE INDEX IS NOW AT 326, OR THREE TIMES THE PRE-WAR 1939 LEVEL, AND THE BLACK MARKET IS FLOURISHING. THE AVERA

CAPT. FRED T. BLAKELY, WHOSE WIFE LIVES AT (1544 CAPITAL AVE.) OGDEN, UTAH, SAW ONE "BIG INTENSE FIRE PLUS SMALL ONES" AS HIS PLANE SWUNG AWAY FROM A CONE OF SEARCHLIGHTS AND EVADED BURSTING ANTI-AIRCRAFT SHELLS.

BIG EXPLOSIONS WERE NOTED BY LT. JOSEPH H. ALLEN, OF CHAMPAIGN, ILL., BOMBARDIER ON ANOTHER PLANE.

MASTER SGT. PRESTONE THORNBURG, PALMETTO, GA., A GUNNER, SAW THE FIRES "GROUPING UP."

FIRST LEAD CARRIER EYEWITNESS (100)
BY HAMILTON FARON

WITH ADM. MITSCHER'S CARRIER TASK FORCE OFF JAPAN, MARCH 20-(DELAYED)-(AP)-LATEST PILOT REPORTS, STILL INCOMPLETE, INDICATE THAT 53 SHIPS WERE SUNK OR DAMAGED IN VICE ADM. MARC A. MITSCHER'S SMASHING CARRIER PLANE ASSAULTS ON THE JAPANESE FLEET AND HOMELAND MARCH 18 AND 19.

FIGURES COMPILED TODAY LIST EIGHT NAVAL AUXILIARIES AND MERCHANT SHIPS AS SUNK, 12 PROBABLY DESTROYED AND 16 DAMAGED. THESE WERE IN ADDITION TO THE 17 WARSHIPS PREVIOUSLY LISTED AS DAMAGED BY PILOTS.

ALL THIS DAMAGE WAS INFLIITED DESPITE ATTEMPTS OF THE IMPERIAL FLEET AND AIR FORCE TO FLEE FROM THEMIGHT OF AMERICAN NAVAL FORCES.

DISCOVERED IN THE INLAND SEA OF JAPAN BY CARRIER-BASED PLANES, A LARGE CONCENTRATION OF THE IMPERIAL FLEET, INCLUDING BATTLESHIPS, CARRIERS, CRUISERS AND DESTROYERS, SCURRIED FOR NEW HIDING PLACES --UNWILLING TO RISK AN ENGAGEMENT.

AT THE SAME TIME, JAPANESE ARMY AIR FORCE PLANES SCAMPERED AWAY FROM BASES BUILT ON KYUSHU, SOUTHERNMOST OF THE JAPANESE HOME ISLANDS, WHEN U.S. CARRIER PLANES BEGAN A TWO-DAY SERIES OF SLASHING RAIDS ON MARCH 18.

DESPITE THE FLIGHT, SUFFICIENT DAMAGE WAS INFLICTED ON THE RUNNING FOE TO INDICATE THE FLEET AGAIN WAS BADLY CRIPPLED AND HIS AIR STRENGTH SEVERELY CURTAILED FOR THE TIME BEING, AT LEAST. THIS DAMAGE INCLUDED BOMB AND TORPEDO HITS ON A SCORE OF WARSHIPS, DESTRUCTION OF MORE THAN 500 ENEMY AIRPLANES.

A144FX

(ADM. NIMITZ ANNOUNCED IN COMMUNIQUES THAT 731 JAPANESE PLANES WERE DESTROYED OR DAMAGED MARCH 18-21 AND AN UNKNOWN NUMBER OF ADDITIONAL CRAFT WERE SHOT DOWN SUBSEQUENTLY. HE ALSO LISTED 15 SHIPS DAMAGED AND TWO PROBEBLY CRIPPLED.)

EXTENT OF THE DAMAGE TO THE JAPANESE FLEET REMAINS TO BE FULLY DETERMINED BUT AT LEAST TWO CARRIERS AND ONE CRUISER APPEAR LIKELY TO BE OUT OF ACTION INDEFINITELY.

HUGE FLAMES SPURTED FROM ONE LARGE CARRIER HIT OFF KURE NAVAL BASE. SHE WAS BLAZING AMIDSHIPS WHEN PILOTS TURNED BACK TO THEIR FLATTOP BASES.

ANOTHER LIGHT CARRIER LAST WAS SEEN SETTLING AT [illegible]RN IN WATERS NEAR KURE, WHERE ONE CRUISER ALSO WAS BATTE[illegible]IX BOMBS.

APPARENT EFFORTS OF THE JAPANESE TO BUILD UP A [illegible]SO WERE BLASTED. CARRIER PILOTS REPORTED HITS ON AT LEAST [illegible]D POSSIBLY TWO CARRIER HULLS IN NAVAL YARDS AT KOBE, WHERE THEY ALSO BOMBED A CARRIER ESCORT WHICH WAS BEING REFITTED.

ROUNDING OUT THEIR HEAVY BLOWS ON REMNANTS OF THE JAPANESE FIGHTING FLEET, AMERICAN PLANES ALSO SCORED TORPEDO AND BOMB HITS ON TWO BATTLESHIPS, ONE OF WHICH HAD BEEN CONVERTED FOR CARRIER OPERATION; ONE LIGHT CARRIER, ONE LIGHT CRUISER AND FOUR DESTROYERS OFF KURE; TWO CARRIER ESCORTS OFF KOBE, AND A DESTROYER ESCORT AND ONE SUB-MARINE ELSEWHERE IN THE INLAND SEA.

AUXILIARIES WERE NOT SPARED BY HARD-HITTING PLANES FROM VICE ADM. MARC A. MITSCHER'S FAST CARRIER TASK FORCE.

THREE OILERS, OF MAJOR IMPORTANCE IN KEEPING SURFACE CRAFT IN OPERATION, WERE ATTACKED. ONE WAS SUNK; THE OTHERS PROBEBLY DESTROYED.

PRELIMINARY REPORTS INDICATE SEVEN SMALL SHIPS WERE SUNK, FOUR LARGE CARGO VESSELS, SIX SMALL CRAFT PROBABLY SUNK; ONE [illegible] ONE SMALL MEDIUM TRANSPORT, TWO MEDIUM CARGO SHIPS, ONE OILER, ONE SMALL FREIGHTER, TWO FREIGHTER-TRANSPORTS, ONE LARGE CARGO SHIP AND EIGHT SMALL SHIPS DAMAGED.

A148FX
LESS SPECTACULAR BUT PROBABLY OF GREATER IMPORTANCE, BLOWS WERE DEALT TO AIRFORCE INSTALLATIONS ON KYUSHU WHICH HAD BEEN CONVERTED INTO A MAJOR AIR CENTER, WITH AIRCRAFT FACTORIES AS WELL AS TRAINING AND OPERATIONAL FIELDS AND SEAPLANE BASES.

RANGING THE LENGTH AND BREADTH OF THIS ISLAND, AMERICAN PILOTS TURNED BOMBS, ROCKETS AND BULLETS ON ALL TYPES OF INSTALLATIONS, INCLUDING SHOPS, HANGARS AND ARSENALS AT OMURA, BUILDINGS OF ALL KINDS AT KANOYYA AND THE OITA AIR DEPOTS. THEY INFLICTED DAMAGE THAT MAY KEEP THE FIELDS INOPERATIVE INDEFINITELY.

THEY ALSO STRUCK AIR INSTALLATIONS NORTHWARD, BATTERING THE NAVAL ARSENAL AT KURE, WHERE THEY ALSO HIT OIL STORAGE TANKS AND A POWER SUB-STATION.

IN ALL OF THESE ASSAULTS, THE OPPOSITION VARIED. ON OCCASION, AN AMERICAN FLIGHT WOULD REPORT VIRTUALLY NO OPPOSITION, WHILE OTHERS RETURNED TO SAY ANTI-AIRCRAFT FIRE WAS SO HEAVY "WE COULD WALK ON IT."

FIGHTER OPPOSITION ALSO WAS SPORADIC. MANY FLIGHTS FAILED TO SIGHT A SINGLE AIRBORNE ENEMY PLANE. HOWEVER, ONE SQUADRON RAN INTO HEAVY OPPOSITION, POSSIBLY ENCOUNTERING A GROUP OF JAPANESE SEEKING TO LEAVE THE AREA. THEY SHOT DOWN 13 OF 20 JAPANESE PLANES.

"WE SAW OSSIBLY 30 ZEKES AND FRANKS (TYPES OF JAPANESE PLANES) CLIMBING UP ON US. WE STARTED QUITE A DIVE AND THEY ROLLED OVER, HEADING FOR THE DECK (GROUND.) THEN THEY STARTED BACK UP. I WENT AFTER A ZEKE IN FRONT. HE STARTED TO TURN RIGHT AND I OPENED UP WITH A LONG BURST. I COULD SEE PIECES EXPLODING ALL AROUND.

"WE TURNED AROUND AND TOLD THE REST OF THE PLANES TO RENDEZ-VOUS AT TOMITAKA FIELD (THEIR ATTACK TARGET.) WE HEADED THERE AND FOUND ABOUT 20 MORE ZEKES, FRANKS AND TONIES. NEXT, ONE MET US HEADON--UNUSUAL FOR A JAP--AND I SHOT WHEN HE WAS GOING DOWN UNDER ME. TWO MORE CAME IN SIDE BY SIDE AND MY WINGMAN (1ST LT.DON G.MACFARLANE, MISSOULA, MONT.) AND I CAME IN, BOTH SHOOTING.

"ONE MADE A HEADON RUN, BUT STARTED TO BURN BEFORE HE GOT TO US. (MACFARLANE GOT HIM.) I SAW ANOTHER ONE START IN ON THE BOYS BELOW AND CAME DOWN ON TOP OF HIM. I WAS KIND OF SCARED THAT MY PLANE WAS GOING TO CATCH FIRE FROM HIM. ALL OF THE BOGIES PULLED OFF SHORTLY AFTER THAT. THEY PROBEBLY SAW THEIR BUDDIES BURNING AND GOT TIRED OF IT."

ABOARD ADM.MITSCHER'S FLAGSHIP OFF JAPAN,MARCH 18-(DELAYED)-(AP)-LANDING ON HEAVY SEAS ONLY TEN MILES OFF THE JAPANESE COAST, NAVY LT.WILLARD ETHRIDGE, OF KANSAS CITY, MO., RESCUED A MARINE FIGHTER PILOT WHO HAD BEEN FORCED DOWN BY ANTIAIRCRAFT FIRE AFTER STRAFING AN ENEMY AIRFIELD TODAY.

THEY WERE PARTICIPATING IN THE TASK FORCE STRIKES AT JAPAN.

"HE LANDED HIS SEAPLANE IN THE SEA WHEN HE REALLY SHOULDN'T HAVE BECAUSE IT WAS TOO ROUGH," SAID 1ST LT.RALPH O. GLENDINNING, (64 YALE AVE.) AVENAL,N.J., THE RESCUED MARINE PILOT, IN TELLING OF ETHRIDGE'S FEAT.

GLENDINNING SPENT SIX HOURS IN A RAFT JUST OFF THE SHORE WHERE OTHER AMERICAN PLANES WERE BATTERING A JAPANESE AIRFIELD.

GLENDINNING SAID ETHRIDGE "CAME UP BESIDE ME AND SAID 'WELL, WE ARE HERE BUT THIS IS AS FAR AS WE GO. I DON'T THINK I CAN GET THIS THING OFF.'"

GLENDINNING DIDN'T THINK SO, EITHER, BUT AFTER FIVE ATTEMPTS, THE UNGAINLY SEAPLANE FINALLY ROSE FROM THE CREST OF A HIGH WAVE.

"THAT WAS ONE OF THE MOST BEAUTIFUL JOBS I EVER SAW," THE MARINE SAID.

GLENDINNING'S PLANE WAS HIT BY FLAK ON HIS SECOND RUN OVER MIYAZAKI AIRFIELD ON THE EAST COAST OF KYUSHU, SOUTHERNMOST OF THE JAPANESE HOME ISLANDS.

"A-A WENT THROUGH THE COCKPIT AND ENGINE. I SAW PARTS OF MY RADIO GEAR BEGIN TO FALL OUT. I MADE IT ABOUT 10 MILES OFFSHORE AND LANDED ON THE WATER. THE PLANE WENT DOWN IN A FEW SECONDS BUT I GOT INTO A RAFT. ANOTHER PILOT DROPPED ME ANOTHER RAFT. I TURNED ONE OVER AND PEEKED OUT OF THE CORNER TO WATCH THE SHORE. YOU SHOULD HAVE SEEN THAT PLACE BURN!"

WASHINGTON, MARCH 24-(AP)-GERMANY'S CHOICE NOW IS BETWEEN UNCONDITIONAL SURRENDER AND PULVERIZATION, AND IF THEY CHOOSE PULVERIZATION, THEY WILL HAVE ONLY THEMSELVES TO BLAME FOR FOLLOWING VICIOUS LEADERSHIP, A GOVERNMENT OFFICIAL SAID TONIGHT.

THIS POINT IN ALLIED POLICY TOWARD GERMANY WAS OUTLINED IN A RADIO BROADCAST BY ASSISTANT SECRETARY OF STATE JAMES C.DUNN, ROBERT MURPHY, POLITICAL ADVISER TO GENERAL EISENHOWER, AND ASSISTANT SECRETARY ARCHIBALD MACLEISH.

"THIS TIME," SAID MURPHY, "THE GERMANS WILL NOT BE ABLE TO CLAIM THAT THEY WERE DUPED INTO LAYING DOWN THEIR ARMS. THEY ARE NOW WITNESSING THE THING THEY UNDERSTAND BEST--SUPERIOR FORCE OF ARMS."

OTHER POINTS OF ALLIED POLICY TOWARDS GERMANY THE SPEAKERS OUTLINED WERE:

1. MURPHY, RECENTLY RETURNED FROM EUROPE, DISCLOSED THAT THE ALLIED MILITARY GOVERNMENT IN GERMANY "IS ENCOURAGING THE TRADE UNIONS TO ORGANIZE AGAIN."

"THE TWO MOST IMPORTANT ASPECTS OF THE LONG RANGE TREATMENT OF GERMANY," HE DECLARED, "ARE THE REEDUCATION OF THE GERMANS AND THE REESTABLISHMENT OF THE RIGHTS OF LABOR."

2. HITLER AND OTHER AXIS LEADERS WILL BE PUNISHED FOR THEIR WAR CRIMES, AS WELL AS THEIR HENCHMEN WHO ACTUALLY CARRY OUT ATRO-

CITIES.

3. GERMANS WILL BE PUNISHED FOR CRIMES AGAINST THEIR COMPATRIOTS, INCLUDING GERMAN JEWS AND ANTI-NAZIS.

4. NO IMPORTANT NAZIS HAVE ESCAPED TO NEUTRAL COUNTRIES YET, SO FAR AS THE DEPARTMENT KNOWS, BUT IT "IS NOT ENTIRELY SATISFIED" WITH ASSURANCES FROM NEUTRALS.

5. "IT WILL BE NECESSARY TO KEEP GERMANY UNDER CONTROL FOR A GREAT MANY YEARS," DUNN DECLARED BUT IT REMAINS UNCLEAR OW LONG ACTUAL MILITARY OCCUPATION WILL BE NEEDED.

6. DUNN SAID "AUSTRIA WOULD NOT BE COMBINED WITH GERMANY IN ANY WAY, WITHIN THE FORSEEABLE FUTURE."

7. THE ALLIES WILL HAVE TO SUPERVISE REEDUCATION OF GERMANY. "WE'LL HAVE TO FIND OR TRAIN GERMANS TO DO THE MAIN JOB," DUNN SAID.

MAR 25 1945

8. IT WILL BE NECESSARY TO CONTROL THE WHOLE GERMAN ECONOMY AFTER MILITARY CONTROLS TAPER OFF.

THE SAME POLICIES OF COMPLETE DEMILITARIZATION WILL BE APPLIED TO JAPAN, THE OFFICIALS AGREED.

SAN FRANCISCO, MARCH 24-(AP)-FIRST RETURNING NAVY FLIER AMONG THOSE WHO PARTICIPATED IN THE INITIAL U.S. CARRIER TASK FORCE STRIKES AGAINST TOKYO FEB. 16, 17 WAS HERE TODAY.

OFT-DECORATED LT. LOUIS A.MENARD, 23, OF (1902 FOURTH STREET) PALMETTO, FLA., SAID THE SIGHT OF BURNING TARGETS IN THE TOKYO WAR PLANT DISTRICT AND HIS BAG OF A JAPANESE TORPEDO BOMBER ON HIS FIRST MISSION AGAINST NIPPON WERE THRILLS THAT TOPPED THE CRIPPLING OF HIS PLANE AND RESCUE BY A U.S. DESTROYER THE FOLLOWING DAY.

MEMBER OF VICE ADM. MARC A.MITSCHER'S FAMOUS TASK FORCE 58, MENARD FLEW HIS FIGHTER-BOMBER IN THREE ATTACKS AGAINST THE ENEMY CAPITAL DURING THE TWO-DAY ASSAULT.

TARGET OF HIS GROUP ON THE FIRST RAID WAS AN AIRCRAFT ENGINE FACTORY, WHICH WAS "BURNING SWELL" FROM THE BARRAGE OF ROCKETS LOOSED BY WAVES OF F6F'S (GRUMMAN HELLCATS).

IT WAS WHILE FLYING "HIGH PROTECTIVE COVER" FOR THREE HOURS OVER HIS TARGET THAT MENARD SPOTTED TWO ENEMY TORPEDO BOMBERS AND GAVE CHASE WITH HIS WINGMAN. ONE PASS SET THE ENEMY PLANES AFIRE AND CRASHING INTO THE WATER.

THE FOLLOWING DAY JAPANESE ANTI-AIRCRAFT FIRE, WHICH THE YOUNG FLIER TERMED "HOT AND ACCURATE" SMASHED THE RIGHT WING OF HIS CRAFT AT 4500 FEET. MENARD MANAGED TO FLY HIS CRIPPLED FIGHTER BACK TO HIS TASK FORCE WHERE HE BAILED OUT.

MENARD, HOLDER OF THE SILVER STAR, DISTINGUISHED FLYING CROSS, AIR MEDAL WITH FOUR OAK LEAF CLUSTERS AND PURPLE HEART, HAS SEEN 16 MONTHS OF COMBAT SERVICE.

Americans Win Main Bridge In 27 Mile Advance

Kennedy
NIGHT

PARIS, Monday, March 26.—(AP) Three U. S. armies surged toward Berlin in breakthroughs yesterday, with Third Army tanks setting the pace in a 27-mile sweep that carried 40 miles beyond the Rhine and across a captured bridge over the river Main possibly 235 miles from the enemy capital.

The U. S. Ninth Army broke out into the open through the enemy's Rhine line, crashed eight miles or more beyond the Rhine, was within reaching distance of a Berlin superhighway, and was but 10 miles from Essen, industrial heart of the Reich.

The U. S. First Army burst the bonds of its Remagen-Erpel bridgehead between these two fronts in a general assault on a 35-mile front that ground nine miles east in a massive attack on the road to Berlin and was roaring on unchecked.

The Third Army sprang at least two new crossings of the Rhine south of Coblenz and was nearing a junction with the First Army forces beyond the river. They last were reported only 11 miles apart.

British Cut Superhighway

The British Second Army heightened the power of the grand Western Front offensive by pushing eight miles north of the Rhine onto the German plain, hurdling one river barrier on the Berlin route and slashing across a superhighway running to northern Holland.

The British cleaned out the stronghold of Rees.

While the Germans still were unable to deal a counterblow here, they made their first big blow at the First Army's bridgehead in heavy force and were smashed back just before the Americans kicked off in their own drive.

With four firm lodgments along 200 miles of the Rhine's east bank from Rees to Worms, German resistance was disintegrating almost everywhere in this spectacular day of gains.

It was Lt. Gen. George S. Patton's famed Fourth Armored division which speared the breakthrough along Germany's waist and cut across the formidable river Main by capturing a bridge intact somewhere southeast of Frankfurt-on-the-Main.

(This might have been the bridge at Aschaffenburg, which is 20 miles southeast of Frankfurt and is about 38 miles west of the Rhine).

The Fourth was divided into two lightning-fast combat commands and at latest reports it still was going strong under a security blackout to keep its movements from the bewildered enemy.

A front dispatch said the surge beyond the Rhine was going even faster than Patton's drive up to the Rhine, and it was sweeping up German soldiers by the thousands.

Frankfurt itself was only 10 miles in front of the Fifth Infantry division, which made the Third Army's original Rhine crossing, and the industrial city was reported being evacuated tonight of its 546,649 population.

Nazis Evacuate Ruhr

The Paris radio reported a high Nazi official had announced over the German radio that all civilians in the Ruhr between Duesseldorf and Dortmund would have to be evacuated immediately. That might include Essen, since the Duesseldorf-Dortmund sector embraces most of the Ruhr industrial valley.

The Third Army, brushing past scattered resistance, expanded its Mainz-Worms bridgehead to a width of 12 miles. Knifing nine miles inland, it swept up 11 more towns within five miles of Darmstadt and 11 miles of Frankfurt-on-the-Main, two centers of enemy war industry.

Farther south, the U. S. Seventh Army drove up all along its front to the Rhine, putting a firm period to Gen. Eisenhower's orders to destroy every enemy soldier west of the river by liquidating the last German stand. Only enemy stragglers remained on the west bank.

Lt. Gen. William H. Simpson's Ninth rmy was driving east with the same blazing tactics in the Ruhr that broke German power west of the Rhine in the Roer river offensive. Infantrymen clambered aboard tanks in swift pursuit of the retreating enemy.

The Ninth's 30th infantry division, breaking the German Rhine line, was nearing the superhighway to Berlin where it swings eight miles east of the river a mile northeast of Bruckhausen.

Field officers declared that the 30th had gone clear through the organized German defense lines and "broken into the open country of the northern Ruhr," with enemy resistance appearing to be completely disintegrated.

Airmen Blast Enemy Transport

Airmen who during the day destroyed or damaged 99 pieces of armor and 117 motor transport declared German armored forces in the path of the Ninth were milling around in a state of confusion.

On the south flank, the 79th infantry, which with the 30th forces the Ninth's crossings, had captured the Ruhr city of Dinslaken with a population of 24,000.

Then driving four miles east of the Rhine, they pushed a mile beyond Hiersfeld, where they were 10 miles northwest of Essen, Germany's sixth city with a population of 659,871. It is the home of the great Krupp munitions works.

These forces also were less than four miles from Duisburg, Europe's greatest inland port standing at the mouth of the Ruhr river.

Northward, the British Second rmy welded the 30-mile bridgehead firmly with the capture of the Ruhr gateway city of Wesel, and drove eight miles out on the north German plain across six bridges on the Issel river captured by the Allied First Airborne army.

Elements of the Canadian First army were 12 miles or more west of Wesel and battling beyond Rees, half of which was in the hands of Scottish troops, who had struck the toughest resistance.

Nazis Unable to Attack

With the crossings now secure, with the enemy yet unable to mount a major counterattack, and with tanks streaming across the river in growing numbers, Field Marshal Sir Bernard L. Montgomery crossed the Rhine to direct operations, accompanied by Prime Minister Churchill.

The Rhine was alive with naval landing craft pouring men, tanks and guns into the four-army bridgehead, and Allied sky trains landed great stores of freight uninterrupted.

Both the British Second army and the U. S. Ninth had thrown bridges across the stream (the Brussels radio said 20 had been completed) and were swiftly building up power for a knock-out blow. Lt. Gen. Miles C. Dempsey, the British commander, was in the field east of the Rhine.

30.24-24199

More than 8,000 prisoners already had been taken, 3,500 of them by the airborne forces which seized nearly every objective and joined up with the British at two or more points.

The first German mobile reserve to enter the battle clashed with Scottish troops in the northern part of the bridgehead, and AP Correspondent William Frye said the enemy obviously was not yet ready to commit the bulk of his forces.

The point of deepest penetration on the British front was nearly eight miles northwest of Wesel. Farther west, the fighting Scots captured Haminkeln, seven miles beyond the Rhine, and pressed on beyond near the Issel.

The junction of the British Second and U. S. Ninth armies came near the Lippe river, south of Wesel, where the locks of the Lippe canal were taken.

Ninth Takes 7 Towns

Among the towns falling to the Ninth army were Lohnen, Mollen, Overbruch, Walsum, Linden, Lipperdorf and Slockum.

The massive First army drive breaking out of its bridgehead on the road to Berlin battered into German lines before dawn, and shot forward three miles in the first six hours with whooping, dust-covered Doughboys riding on tanks.

Lt.-Gen. Courtney Hodges' men captured Asbach, controlling an important road network, and Kircheip 13 miles east of the Rhine on the Henee-Altenkirchen highway.

Supported by a heavy artillery concentration, the First army troops shattered the crust of enemy resistance built around the bridgehead, born of seizure of the Remagen bridge, and rolled eastward on roads leading to the heart of the Reich.

off."

Likened To Roer Break

Every element of a breakthrough —such as characterized the armored-infantry gallops after the Roer River crossing and in dashes through France—was indicated.

Field officers of the 30th said the division had gone clear through organized German defense lines and "broken into the open."

The 30th's surge carried it to the head of all other advances in the 21st Army Group.

79th Also In Spearhead

The 79th Division on the 30th's flank made almost as good progress, but encountered some spotty German armored pockets which held it up slightly behind the 30th.

These two veteran outfits formed the spearhead of the 9th Army's burst across the Rhine, and the 30th had a bridge over the historic river just 14 hours and 15 minutes after it launched its attack.

Resistance in front of the 30th dwindled to almost nothing as the morning progressed and cooks, bakers and all sorts of odds and ends which characterize rear areas flowed into the prisoner cages.

Believe Nazi Unit Destroyed

With more than 2,000 prisoners taken up to noon, officers of the 30th reckoned the German 180th Division, which faced them, was destroyed.

The forward surge carried the bridges, which the 9th Army threw over the Rhine in record time, out of artillery range The engineers were so little bothered today that some sat in pontoons, fishing in the Rhine while fighters circled over barrage balloons on the lookout for German planes which never showed up.

Regimental command posts were moving so fast they were almost impossible to find.

"There is no doubt about it, we have a breakthrough," declared Major Robert Hewitt, of New York. "We achieved surprises in that the Germans did not expect a large crossing south of the Wesel."

Hit Soft Spot, Says Officer

At the regimental command post of the 120th Regiment, the assistant operations officer, Lieut. Ralph Simon, of Vincennes, Ind., said:

"We hit a soft spot and went right on through."

The division's operation, though, was something more than that. It may be studied in war colleges in the future.

Attacking three regiments abreast after a terrific artillery barrage, the 30th hit everywhere at once along 6 to 7 miles of the river. First one spot gave way before the 120th where the going was rough in the center during the early hours.

The 120th, under its regimental commander, tiny, energetic Col. Walter Johnston, of Missoula, Mont., who wears a .45 slung on his leg like a Western gunman, caught up with the flank regiments and spurted ahead.

About 7 miles from the river all artillery and mortar fire almost ceased. There was no organized line and the infantry hopped on tanks and drove to exploit the breakthrough.

Along the river every town was crushed under the weight of barrages of artillery and there was a scattering of German dead in some towns.

Few Makeshift Trenches

Two to 3 miles inland, houses here and there were intact and farther on they were more numerous. Along the river there were a few makeshift trenches but nothing which could be described as a formidable defense.

The only sign of a front was from a hidden tank which took pot shots here and there but to which the troops hurring forward paid no attention. They left it for "rear echelons" to deal with.

The 29th Tactical Air Command swarmed all over the area with Thunderbolts and reported Germans milling around in great confusion ahead of the 79th and 30th divisions. The pilots claimed the destruction or damaging of 99 German tanks and armored cars in the battle area.

Not A Tank Lost

Major J. J. Eberhardt, of San Antonio, 120th's supply officer, said the 30th Division had not yet lost a single tank in enemy action. Nor had the Germans been able to launch a single counterattack against the 30th—which they always do if organized.

About 200 prisoners of odd shapes and mentality were laying around. To complete the picture, four bedraggled Italian slave laborers wandered up and asked for something to eat.

The 30th kicked off an hour ahead of the 79th. Its 120th Regiment quickly smashed 6 miles across the Rhine, the 117th Regiment went 3 miles beyond the River and the 119th 2½ miles in.

The 30th has met and defeated the best the Germans had to offer. It missed the Normandy beachhead landings, but it held the vital Mortain elbow in Normandy.

But perhaps the 30th's finest performance came in the Ardennes at Stavelot when the division under Maj.-Gen. Leland S. Hobbs was rushed down from the Ninth army front and collided head-on with Hitler's personal First SS division. The 30th ripped the Nazi division to pieces and helped hold the gap at the most critical period.

The 30th was hauled back later and made the Roer river crossing across the worst piece of river, but led other attacking divisions to the objective. It had earned the reputation of "crossers" even before entering battle because its 117th regiment used to stage model crossings at Fort Benning, Ga.

The 79th division under Maj.-Gen. Ira T. Wyche is holding the right flank of the Ninth army's Rhine attack. Its 315th regiment took Dinslaken, and its 314th regiment quickly pushed three miles beyond the Rhine.

Wyche's standing order to his aggressive outfit is "close with the enemy and exterminate him."

U.S. 9th Army

MAR 26 1945

London, Monday, March 26 (AP)—The German armed forces radio reported today that new Allied airborne landings were made Sunday on the east bank of the Rhine River. This report said landings were made "north and southeast of Wesel" and described the airborne forces as "strong."

With U.S. 9th Army, March 25 (AP)—The "Old Hickory" 30th Division broke clear through Hitler's Rhine defenses into open country north of the Ruhr today in one of the most brilliant infantry successes of the war.

The 30th troops found German resistance apparently completely disintegrated at a point 8 miles from the Rhine, and jumped on tanks shortly after noon and "took

First Army Repeats 'St. Lo' In Cracking Nazi Defenses

By HAL BOYLE AND DON WHITEHEAD

WITH THE U. S. FIRST ARMY, March 25—(AP) U. S. First army armored columns smashed forward as deep as six miles today in a massive pre-dawn assault, breaking out of their Rhine bridgehead on the road to Berlin.

Whooping, dust-covered Doughboys rode tanks in a series of leapfrog attacks.

Nazis Pushed Back

The push by powerfully-reinforced divisions rolled the Germans back eastward all along the line. One column speared six miles into Flammersfeld, 14 1-2 miles east of the Rhine. Another attack carried four miles at the southern end of the bridgehead into Vallendar, three miles north of Coblenz.

This is another "St. Lo" for the First army. The whole scene is reminiscent of the lash-out which broke German resistance at the base of the Cherbourg peninsula last July.

"We haven't been given any orders to stop," grinned one lean, gray-haired commander, "and we don't intend to slow up until we put on the brakes to keep from skidding into Berlin."

Task forces cracked the first thin wall of Nazi mobile guns and ditch defenses and rolled through beautiful Rhineland hills along roads leading east.

The assault caught the Germans building up forces to launch a counterattack against the northeastern end of the bridgehead.

Censorship permitted disclosure that the famous First Infantry division had joined the bridgehead forces, along with the Ninth, 78th, and 99th infantry. The First division smashed back 14 German counterattacks in 24 hours yesterday, took 500 prisoners, and moved ahead two miles to get set for today's push.

These combat groups moving forward now are mobile, and prepared to move swiftly.

"We are ready to move fast if this thing breaks," said Maj. Marshall Garth of Alexandria, Va., whose wife lives at Long Beach, Calif.

Armored columns began moving up at 4 a. m., and at 6 a. m. passed through infantry lines to strike the first blows.

Armored elements drove through the flaming village of Asbach, an important road hub, and seized Kircheib 13 miles from the Rhine on the Hennef-Altenkirchen highway.

Endless columns moved up along dusty roads on this warm spring day through the hills in which began the legend of Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs. German engineers blew every bridge, chopped down trees, and planted mines as thick as birdseed along every road, slowing the pace of the drive.

Children Watch Columns

At places children stood along the roadside and chattered excitedly, watching long columns moving forward.

A long column swung through Asbatch, with disciplined power in its line of light and medium tanks, tank destroyers, half-tracks, gas trucks, and jeeps winding in and out like fox terriers trotting around a column of Percheron horses.

A dozen fires burned in Asbach, caught for one epic moment in the flaming vortex of battle.

A number of its ancient plaster and timbered homes, set afire by shells blazed hotly. Debris littered the streets—as in the streets of dozens of Allied cities taken by the Germans in their day of power.

Householders hid meekly in their cellars, or pulled treasured belongings from burning homes. Cows wandered at will.

A house near the center of town has burned almost to street level, but a man kept running frantically a block and a half to fill two pails with water. Then he hurried back with the water slopping against his trousers, and hurled it into the fire.

It was like trying to put out a college bonfire with a siphon bottle. But this little black-booted man with the queer old-world cap and red sunburned neck kept up the hopeless struggle. His white shirt was wilted with sweat, and his small eyes gleamed with stubborn fanaticism through his thick-lensed glasses.

He reminds one of his nation's leader—trying to put out a fire that spread too far.

Standing by his radio jeep, munching "K" ration and sipping coffee, one task force commander told how Asbach was captured, and of the hard fight for a ridge flanking it, of Doughboys killed and a few tanks lost but the assault always hitting forward.

As he paused to drink coffee, his two sub-commanders, Lt.-Col. William Orr of Albuquerque, N. Mex., an infantry officer, and Lt.-Col. Jack B. Boles of Fort Smith, Ark., a tank officer, prepared to pull out toward the next objective.

Trap Nazi Tank

"Our boys had a good game with one German tank they cornered in this village when we first came in," Orr said. "They cut it off from behind. It milled around the streets among our Doughboys trying to get away.

"Finally the crew bailed out and tried to escape. Some of them are prisoners—and others are what we call good Germans. No bother to anybody now."

Engineers quickly bulldozed away the last of a score of fallen trees that blocked a highway into the town.

"The Germans niched them first, and then blew them down with explosive charges just before they ran," said Lt. Leslie Pearce of Peabody, Mass., one of the first officers into the town.

This soldier-tank team, preceded by rocket-firing Thunderbolt fighters assigned to break up any German attempt to mass armor in its path, wasn't much impressed with the calibre of the Nazi soldiers opposing it.

"They are throwing in everything from panzers to labor troops," said Maj. Robert Lowry of Newton Center, Mass. "In our first batch of 100 prisoners this morning we caught one who had been in uniform only one day, and others who had been in the army only one week. And they aren't fighting any longer than they have to. As soon as we crack their anti-tank defenses, the enemy infantry comes in with hands up."

The First division troops and guns knocked out more than 23 tanks and self-propelled guns in beating back the German attacks yesterday. In that northeast sector, the enemy had superiority in numbers of guns and troops, but could not budge the first division. Troops under Lt. Col. Watler Grant of Dorchester, Mass., were in the thickest of the fighting and gave the Germans a beating.

"They had the stuff there, but they lacked teamwork and coordination," said Maj. John Lawton of Berkeley, Calif. "There's no doubt we beat 'em to the punch, because they were getting ready to hit us with everything they could get together."

British 2d Army

With British 2d Army, March 25 (AP)—A lancing thrust by elements of the 15th Scottish Division drove Field Marshal Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's bridgehead 8 miles inland today at a point northwest of Wesel—the deepest penetration on the British front.

The thrust from the Xanten crossing area bowled over enemy opposition, including a small tank detachment which got in the way near a forest crossroads.

It carried the Scots around high ground between the Rhine and the Issel rivers. The town of Haminkeln was captured and troops have advanced beyond that place.

A linkup of Commandos with the United States 9th Army's 30th Infantry Division near the Lippe River south of Wesel gave the 21st Army Group a continuous line as masses of men and equipment poured across Rhine pontoon bridges and ferries in the buildup for the eastward lunge at the heart of Germany.

Smoke Rises Over Rees

Tall columns of smoke rose over shattered Rees, 12 miles west of Wesel, as units of the 51st Highland Division slugged house-to-house in the final close-in fighting to clear the last fanatically-resisting enemy troops.

The roar of guns shook the air as the holdouts took a pasting before the Highlanders began clawing through the burning, battered streets.

Three miles northwest of Rees, Canadians fought into the outskirts of Bienen, after wiping out the last enemy resistance in Speldrop.

North of Rees, other units ran into stiff fighting. Both there and at Bienen, enemy troops were units of the 15th Panzer Grenadier Division.

Farther south, the Scots beat off elements of the German 7th Parachute Division, and that sector was beginning to loosen up a bit.

Nazi Guns Knocked Out

While gains elsewhere were not spectacular today, headquarters finally permitted disclosure that the phenomenally successful airborne attack yesterday carried Montgomery's forces east of the Issel River over six bridges snatched and held firmly by the paratroopers.

Despite clouds in the spring skies and a haze of smoke and dust hanging over the placid Rhine, fighters and medium bombers flew close support to the ground sluggers.

Mediums flying precisely directed attacks knocked out all but two of more than 40 enemy guns which had been smacking the Rees crossing.

Fighters keeping a canopy over the whole bridgehead against a possible blow by the German air force shot up what little enemy transport was found moving on the roads and pounced on any groupings that looked like the beginnings of enemy counterattacks.

Pilots Shoot Up Tanks

Only one small group of enemy fighters was encountered, and four of its planes were shot down. Fighters destroyed four tanks and damaged four more.

The bridging program in the crossing areas now is well ahead of schedule, and the ferrying of men, equipment and supplies delighted Lieut. Gen. Miles C. Dempsey, the British commander, and Montgomery, by delivering staggering totals to the bridgehead.

For miles west of the Rhine, crisscrossing ribbons of dust mark the paths of columns of equipment funneling into the ferries and bridges in endless streams.

Apathetic crowds of German civilians stood outside their broken homes, dressed in their Sunday best, watching the vehicles roar and clatter through the village streets, bringing up reinforcements for the 2d Army.

Many Nazis Giving Up

Prisoners have not been counted since the 8,000 reported up to last midnight, but one case was reported of a surprising willingne of many German field troops to give themselves up, particularly since Montgomery's forces are up against regulars—not Volkssturm troops.

Some troops are making determined resistance, however, and opposition may grow as the Germans commit more veteran reserves to battle.

Reporter Tells How Paratroops Battled Germans Behind Lines

(Robert C. Wilson, 29-year-old Associated Press correspondent covering the Allied airborne operation across the Rhine, was aboard a plane which was shot down Saturday. Parachuting to earth from 600 feet, he fell inside German-held territory and found himself in the thick of the ground fighting. Eventually he made his way out and, still wearing his dress uniform, arrived in Paris last night and wrote the following account of his adventure.)

By ROBERT C. WILSON

PARIS, March 25—(AP) During the Allies' mighty cross-Rhine offensive I was forced to parachute at 600 feet from a burning troop carrier plane six or seven miles east of the river. Once I got on the ground, British troops in their huge gliders came banging down almost on top of my head.

The 29 parachute troops in the huge C-46 troop carrier had jumped just before the plane was hit yesterday. I made the ground with five of the six crew members who were aboard when the enemy flak struck.

On the ground I spent a brutal 24 hours. Some British troops and I were attacked by German tanks and self-propelled guns which set afire a house in which we took refuge. Then, after running a gantlet of Nazi machine gun fire, we wandered three or four hours in the darkness, seeking friendly troops.

Our Odyssey started at 9 a.m., Saturday March 24, when the long line of C-46's, used for the first time in carrying parachutists, took off on the 200-mile trip to the drop zone across the Rhine.

Three minutes after we crossed the smoke-obscured Rhine the parachute troops hurled hemselves out of the plane. We were at 600 feet then, doing 110 miles per hour, and were a good target for the scores of flak guns the Germans were firing at us.

Suddenly the plane shuddered. A wing spurted flame. We had been hit. The plane shuddered again from another hit. Flames seared my eyebrows. I ran toward the tail of the plane and yanked frantically at the string which was supposed to release my chain mail flak vest.

It didn't work. One of the crewman, whom I didn't recognize in the excitement, gave a tug and the vest, weighing 36 pounds, fell off. We both jumped into space. It all happened in a few seconds. I hit the ground with a terrible jar. I was in the middle of a field all alone. There was a farmhouse 100 yards away.

The parachute troops had jumped at 10:16 a.m. Nineteen minutes later I had taken off my parachute and was crawling in a plowed field when swarms of British gliders swooped in. One struck power wires, burst into flames and crashed sickeningly. Another headed straight for me, skimmed inches overhead, and nosed into the earth 20 feet away.

I though everyone was killed in it, but within five minutes a half-dozen Tommies spilled out and looked cautiously around. Soon they spotted me. One pointed a gun at me. I waved a white handkerchief frantically shouting, "I'm an American. Don't shoot!"

Later Lt. James Leadson Formby of Liverpool told me he was just about to fire as he had figured that my unorthodox uniform was something new in German dress uniform. I was wearing U. S. "Paris-type" clothes—a dress uniform, instead of combat uniform.

At 11 a.m. the British soldiers took a house in which there were six German soldiers, two Italian workers, a German farmer and his wife, daughter and young son.

There were nearly a dozen men wounded from the landing of the gliders. These men were collected in a shed. Machineguns were chattering nervously and sniper bullets were whining sporadically.

I was with a unit of the British Sixth Airborne division. We had 29 men to hold the house. Some of the British dug in around the hedges. We were about six miles from the Rhine between Hamminkeln and Rangenburg.

Ultimately these British airborne soldiers and I had a "little Arnhem" all our own.

"So far there isn't much opposition, eh"? asked the platoon leader, Sgt. Richard Rolfe of Wootton-Underwood, with typical British cheerfulness.

I made these notebook entries: "1:50 a.m.: still no heavy fire directly at us; flak guns going off all around; platoon from D company arrived, thought our farmhouse was their objective. Turns out it was, but our company, C, landed wrong place yet has taken objectives, three railroad bridges.

"Noon: we have an anti-tank gun set up, also another artillery piece in place. Whole battalion is spread out in one-square-mile area. Somebody says regiment has had 50 per cent casualties from glider crashes. Pilots say our own smoke screen hampered their landings. Jeep arrives to get wounded. Have lunch—one apple. Long while since breakfast at 6 a.m. in France.

"1:35 p.m.: Liberator bombers come in at suicide height—100 feet—drop supplies. None land our area. 'We're not going be here long,' says Flight Officer Tony Spicer of East Molsey. He means he hopes British Second army soon will drive through. We only have three mortars and three anti-tank guns for whole regiment.

"3 p.m.: We're still waiting. For what? Excitement flares up as Tiger tank is spotted on road across field to our left. Seventeen-pounder opens up three times. Tank goes up in flames. Pvt. Red Hartley of Dunlaoghairie, Erie, singing 'Does Your Mother Come from Ireland'—Piper Cub appears over our heads, lifts our spirits. Looks like seagull to ocean liner passengers.

"4:50 p.m.: Montgomery's artillery from west of Rhine pouring thousands shells over our heads into German positions. Englishmen get out their tea. German farmer comes up from cellar to feed 10 cows.

"6:30 p.m.: Jeep returns to get rest of our wounded. Nobody knows anything accurate about military situation. Birds singing in dusk. Reminds me of bluebird back in Vermont. Lance Corp. William Edwards of Hereford fries some eggs. Sgt. K. C. Cooper of Lancaster serves us some sour German wine in silver liquor tray.

"10:30 p. m.: Bright moonlight. R.A.F. carrying out huge bombing not far in front of us. Ground heaves as bombs fall for 45 minutes. Then another tremendous artillery barrage roars over our heads. It sounds like long roll on some giant drum. Kept up nearly an hour. Eight-man patrol went out to raid German ack-ack position; two come back.

"2 a.m., March 25: Germans coming in after us. We radioed for mortar fire. Answer was 'not enough ammunition.' We're crouching in cellar. I'm shaking all over. Can hardly write. It's waiting that gets you. A machine-gun chatters outside. Rifles crack. Tremendous roar of a field gun shakes whole house. Glass shatters to floor. Our hearts sink. I feel panicky. Another shell hits house. House afire. Barn attached to house is full of hay.

"We rush upstairs, flames crackling. Germans overrunning our positions outside. Half dozen of us run to back bedroom. Kick out window. Flames light farmyard. Nobody wants be first out window. Germans yelling. One man jumps out window. Rest follow.

"2:15 a.m.: They made it. I am alone in bedroom. If I jump I'll hit ground hard. My legs sore and stiff. Can't run. Decide try surrender and take chance they won't shoot me. Mortar lands outside window, showering glass all over me. Bullet crashes through door. Searing my sleeve. So scared my mind won't function. Expect Germans. Flames crackling more fiercely.

"2:30 a.m. Nothing has happened. I get out of window, drop close to house, hug ground. Fire lightening up everything like daylight. Don't think can run fast enough to get across open court in general direction our lines like others. Turn to crawl other way. Hear German shouting. I fell 'Kamerad'. No answer. Burning wood falling around me. There's semi-darkness 25 yards away if I can dash across yard through apple trees. It's the only chance.

"2:40 a. m.: Fifty yards away from burning house, I hug fence in field, shells whining all over the place. Have I made it? Another house blazing in distance. Maybe that's our company. I roll through fence and move toward what I think is our rear.

"4 a.m.: I've crawled and run so far without seeing friend or foe. Am I going in right direction? Think so. Two huge searchlights are way off in distance in front of me. Must be British searching for Nazi planes.

"5 a. m.: Passed some German town at my left where fighting is going on. Can hear machine guns. It is showing signs of getting light. Artillery and other guns going off on both sides of me. Been passing through field after field of gliders. All British.

"6:25 a. m.: Spotted field of American gliders. Know American drop zone supposed be in rear of British. It too light be skulking in fields. Liable be shot by Americans as much as by Germans. Come on, deep foxhole! Fall into it. Few yards away couple of American helmets pop up. 'I'm American,' I yell quickly. I walk over. They are from engineer battalion of Capt. James A. Olson, Kansas City, Kan. I've made it!"

Skytroops Find Nazi Marksmen Awaiting Them

Reporter Lands in Glider, Passes 1st Hour in Ditch; Non-Stop Battle Rages

By Howard Cowan

For the combined American press.

BEHIND THE GERMAN LINES, north of the Ruhr, March 24 (Delayed) (AP).—As a war correspondent with the United States 17th Air-Borne Division, I landed in a glider smack up against a fence and within easy reach of a nest of German sharpshooters at 11:30 a. m. today.

Thirteen of us, including two men wounded after the landing, lay in a shallow ditch with red water and slimy weeds up to our chins for more than an hour until additional glider infantry came down and helped clean out the hundred Germans scattered near by.

It is now almost 2 p. m., and we have made our way a couple of miles to the command post of Colonel James Pierce, of Troy, Pa. Several hundred German prisoners, including a regimental commander, and hundreds more German civilians had been herded into wire stockades outside.

Non-Stop Battle Rages

The battle to secure this patch of ground east of the Rhine and north of the Ruhr has proceeded without pause since the first glider touched the ground. Doughboys are spreading out along roads, rivers, and natural obstacles while ack-ack guns boom out, machine guns sputter, and bullets whine through leafless trees.

So far as can be learned now the German air force put up no opposition at all to the daring daylight invasion of the Reich by big transport planes towing pairs of gliders, or packed full of paratroopers.

Our glider, piloted by Lieutenant Gene Davies, of Richmond, Va., and Lieutenant James Keisling, of Knoxville, Tenn., wasn't fired upon until about four or five minutes before we landed. Then shrapnel rocked the flimsy plywood-and-canvas craft, and machine-gun slugs tore through the fabric.

No one was hit until we got on the ground. Then two men were wounded, one with a bullet crease in his scalp and the other with a slug through the calf of his leg.

Liberators Drop Supplies

Since we landed, dozens of Liberators have been skimming in over the treetops, dropping supplies in chutes of red, yellow, blue, and green silk. German anti-aircraft batteries have gone into action on a large scale and I have seen three planes go down in smoke and flames.

Just down the road about thirty minutes ago one man tried to bail out when the ship was little more than 200 feet off the ground. He fell in a crumpled, lifeless heap; his chute hadn't opened.

Just outside this command post a splintered glider hangs from the top of a sturdy-limbed oak. The bodies of two men still lie in the wreckage—one of them that of the pilot.

Every vacant field for miles around, however, is littered with craft, and few show more than a bashed-in nose or a cracked fuselage. Casualties in the landing have been low.

SHELL THREAT TO CHURCHILL

Strikes Near By As Prime Minister Inspects Wesel

EUROM

With Allied Forces East of the Rhine, March 25 (AP)—Prime Minister Churchill crossed the Rhine today for an inspection of British and American bridgeheads and came within 50 yards of being struck by a German artillery shell while standing on the shattered western end of the bridge at Wesel.

Churchill, described as looking

"extremely well and pleased," during his tour of part of the British front entered positions occupied by the enemy as recently as 36 hours previously.

The Prime Minister spent a quarter of an hour with United States 9th Army troops on the east bank of the river, being guided by Lieut. Gen. William H. Simpson, commander of the 9th.

While Peering At Wesel

Later, while he was peering through binoculars at the battered remains of Wesel, a German shell crashed 50 yards away. Other enemy fire landed in the river as he watched from the western end of the bridge.

Churchill, Field Marshal Sir Bernard L. Montgomery, Field Marshal Sir Alan Brooke, chief of the British Imperial Staff; Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, Allied supreme commander, and Gen. Omar N. Bradley, chief of 12th Army Group, met at the headquarters of Maj. Gen. John Anderson, commander of the American 16th Corps. Eisenhower was called away before the party crossed over to the east bank of the Rhine.

While Churchill was in the bridgehead sniper fire could be heard a few hundred yards downstream.

Crossed In Landing Craft

The Prime Minister made the crossing in an American landing craft.

While on the east bank the British leader was persuaded by Simpson not to walk to the nearest village because it had not yet been cleared of mines.

Churchill praised 9th Army engineers, who a few hours earlier had completed bridges across the Rhine in record time.

"Churchill seemed more perturbed about lighting his cigar in the wind than he was about the shellfire," said Lieut. Ellsworth Karrigan, of Aberdeen, S.D. Karrigan is a member of the American 30th Division, in whose sector the Prime Minister crossed the Rhine.

Finally Lit Cigar

"He finally lit that big cigar and walked away as if nothing had happened," the lieutenant added.

Walking along the American battlefield Churchill discussed yesterday's fighting for the bridgehead with Maj. Gen. L. S. Hobbs, Washington, D.C., commander of the 30th Division. Hobbs pointed out German emplacements along the dike behind the Rhine.

Shortly after a noon lunch of fried chicken Churchill looked out of the window of a building on the west bank, and mused:

"The last time I was on the Rhine was at Cologne during the last war. We cruised 50 miles upstream in a British gunboat.

"I would like very much to get across."

General Eisenhower, who still was with the party, shook his head.

Shortly after the supreme commander had gone, Churchill began urging again and finally talked the others into letting him go.

Wire Snatches Churchill Cap

London, March 25 (AP)—Prime Minister Churchill, in the uniform of a colonel of the Royal Essex Regiment, forgot to duck when he paid a surprise visit to headquarters of the British 3d Infantry Division today and a signal wire whipped his cap off his head.

"Better my hat than my head," he said.

GERMANS PREDICT NORTH PLAIN DRIVE

Center Of Gravity Of War Shift To West, Foe Says

London, March 25 (AP)—The German press observed today that "the center of gravity of the war has shifted to the west" and sought to prepare the home front for further reverses.

Hitler's own Voelkischer Beobachter predicted an Allied drive into the great northern plain and more airborne landings.

"Germans may expect the Allies to increase the scope of their airborne landings," said Hitler's newspaper as quoted in a broadcast by the Transocean agency. "The 21st Army Group is looking toward the northern German plain as its next operational objective. The battle will expand in both violence and scope in the next few days."

Significance Of Gains Admitted

The Deutsche Allgemeine Zeitung, commenting on the Rhine crossings of the United States 1st and 3d armies, said "it would be senseless to shut one's eyes to the significance of the successes achieved by the Americans in the last few days. They are in a favorable starting position, especially because of synchronization with the Russian actions.

"But they will not take German defenses by surprise by their drive across the middle Rhine—which has shifted the center of gravity of the war to the west."

...w Eisenhower Warning

Nazi Troops Told to Shield Fleeing Civilians From Party

LONDON, March 25 (AP).—In another of a series of broadcasts of messages by General Dwight D. Eisenhower to Germany, soldiers of the German Army were urged tonight to help civilians leave the Ruhr, Frankfurst am Main and Mannheim areas and to protect them from Nazi party and S. S. (Elite Guard) persecution.

The broadcast reminded the troops of General Eisenhower's earlier warnings to evacuate battle zones, and admonished them, "as soldiers, you know that instructions of the supreme commander are no idle threat."

Too Slow for German Captives

WITH THE UNITED STATES NINTH ARMY, March 25 (AP)—The gall of German prisoners captured by the Ninth Army drew caustic comment today from an American officer. "These prisoners have shell of a nerve," said Capt. Albert Gerould of Berkeley, Calif. "They complain we do not go fast enough so the war will end."

Foe Seized Running Home To Don Civilian Clothes

By The Associated Press.

WITH THE UNITED STATES NINTH ARMY, March 25—One German prisoner bagged by the Ninth Army today was particularly doleful.

He was captured twenty yards from his home where he apparently had been rushing to get out of the war by getting into civilian clothes.

"He better take a good look at his house, now," commented Sgt. Frank Hayes of Los Angeles, Calif., "He won't see it again for some time."

...oric 1918 Flag ...es On 1st Tank Over Rhine

London, March 25 (AP)—A brown, red and green silk flag which flew on the leading tank in the victorious Allied march across the Rhine over the Hohenzollern bridge at Cologne in 1918 flew on the first tank across the Rhine in the current British offensive.

The flag, displayed at a training center in England, recently was sent to Field Marshal Sir Bernard L. Montgomery.

Fourth Messerschmitt Spotted by New Jersey Flier Got Away

FIRST TACTICAL AIR FORCE, France, March 25 (AP)—Lieut. Robert Perry of Westfield, N. J., is a P-51 photo reconnaissance pilot who is trained to avoid combat. But he shot down three out of four Messerschmitt 109's five miles north of Bensheim today when he saw them going after United States Seventh Army troops on the ground. Lieutenant Perry bored right in and got the first Nazi plane with two short bursts, exploding it in the air. He sent the second plane to the ground in smoke and used five bursts before he downed the third, whose pilot bailed out. The fourth got away.

Patton Calls Offensive 'Treason in Reverse'

By The Associated Press.

WITH THE UNITED STATES THIRD ARMY, March 25—Lieut. Gen. George S. Patton Jr. calls his Third Army's power drive through the Saar and Palatinate and now across the Rhine "treason in reverse," it was disclosed today.

He explained in a letter to Maj. Gen. Otto P. Weyland, Nineteenth Tactical Air Force commander, that "the Nineteenth Tactical Air Force and the Third Army have been committing treason in reverse, as we did so happily in August and September. By this I mean that instead of giving aid and comfort to the enemy, we have been giving him plain discomfort and doing it in a big way. Let's keep it up!"

General Weyland posted General Patton's letter to all TAC units with a note that said: "With apologies to Patrick Henry, I say if this be treason, let us make the most of it."

ENGINEERS SPAN RHINE IN 9 HOURS

By WES GALLAGHER

ON THE RHINE, March 25—(AP) The general estimated it would take 48 hours.

The colonel said maybe it could be done in 36.

The lieutenant colonel thought it might be done in 24.

But a bunch of determined engineer GI's and their junior officers, sweating and swearing, did it in nine hours.

They built the longest treadway pontoon bridge in the world, 1,146 feet across the Rhine here south of Wesel, breaking every existing bridge building record to do it.

No army in the world ever built a bridge any faster—but the 202nd group of engineers and the 17th Armored Engineers did it. And under fire.

"I guess we just were scared and wanted to get out of here in a hurry, said Lt. William N. Doyle of Kansas City, Mo.

The engineers standing around the chow line at noon did not look scared. They just looked tired.

The known record for this type of bridgebuilding is 250 feet in three hours. And these are under ideal conditions. Building a short bridge is nothing like building a long span across the Rhine. By this standard it should have taken at least 13 hours.

The bridge was built with only one casualty, an engineer who was wounded slightly in the shoulder.

It was finished far ahead of the rest of the bridges on the river, including those being built by the British and Canadians in a sector farther down.

But the 202nd and 17th had to hurry because just 1,000 yards upstream, the 554th and 180th Engineers were making time with pontoons which carried traffic in 20 hours.

Both sets of engineers said the tiny Roer river was a worse job than the mighty Rhine.

124 CARD PLAYERS SURRENDER TO BRITON

WITH THE BRITISH EAST OF THE RHINE, March 25 (AP)—A Royal Air Force Wing Commander delivered 124 card-playing prisoners to the British Second Army today after convincing an enemy officer that surrender was better than annihilation.

Wing Commander North-Lewis flew airborne troops across the Rhine yesterday and was shot down on the Rhine bank just south of Wesel. He was just getting his bearings when a German non-commissioned officer came up.

"What do you think of surrendering?" Commander North-Lewis asked smartly.

"I think it a good idea," said the German, and invited the wing commander into a dugout to convince the commanding officer. At first the German officer asserted, "it just isn't the thing to do." All the while the officer's men were playing cards and ignoring the war.

The officer decided to take Commander North-Lewis to Wesel. The pilot said Wesel was in British hands. The German officer was unconvinced and they proceeded some fifty yards when the officer abruptly changed his mind. He would surrender in the morning, he said, and meanwhile Commander North-Lewis could have the best bed in the dugout.

In the morning, after bathing in the river and packing their belongings, the German troops said they were ready to surrender and gave the pilot a boat to so inform the British west of the Rhine.

Sentries Nip Crossing Of Rhine By Germans

With U.S. 9th Army, March 25 (AP)—Alert American sentries blasted a German attempt to land on the west side of the Rhine River, south of the 9th Army's new east bank bridgehead today.

An advance party of 33 Nazis led by a lieutenant who was killed crossed the Rhine in darkness but were discovered by the sentries. The Americans laid down such a blistering fire that the entire party was killed or surrendered.

NAZI HEADQUARTERS BLOW

Castle Used by von Rundstedt Wiped Out in March 19 Bombing

ADVANCED HEADQUARTERS, United States Ninth Air Force, March 25 (AP)—An eastern Rhineland castle that, until recently at least, was Field Marshal von Rundstedt's headquarters has been turned into a total shambles by Ninth Air Force fighter-bombers, this headquarters announced today.

The castle was a showplace in the Taunus Mountains, west of Bad Nauheim and north of Frankfort on the Main. When spotted it was a beehive of German military administration.

Col. Edwin E. Chickering of Oil City, Pa., plotted a three-wave bombing mission. In the attack last Monday Lieut. Allen J. Diffendorff of Pittsburgh said he "laid two 1,000-pound bombs on the front porch," which he believed must have been fatal to almost everyone inside.

Field Marshal von Rundstedt was reported Thursday to have been succeeded as German West Front commander by Field Marshal Gen. Albert Kesselring.

5th Infantry Division First Over Near Mainz

East of the Rhine, March 23 (AP). [Delayed by Censor]—The 5th Infantry Division under Maj. Gen. Leroy S. Irwin was the United States 3d Army outfit that established the Rhine bridgehead between Mainz and Worms, it was disclosed today.

The first units across were the 11th Regiment's K and I companies, commanded by Lieut. Irwin R. Jacobs and Capt. John Link (home towns unavailable). Col. Paul S. Black, of San Francisco, commands the regiment.

The famed "Red Diamond" bridgehead makers, who have jumped twenty rivers, were aided in the crossing by engineers of Maj. Gen. Manton S. Eddey's 12th Corps, of which the 5th Division is a part.

German Gunners Lead U. S. Planes to Targets

By The Associated Press.

UNITED STATES NINTH AIR FORCE HEADQUARTERS, March 25—"Trigger-happy" German anti-aircraft gunners unwittingly guided American airmen to a juicy target today—100 ammunition trucks, which were exploded with such concussion that the strafing planes were rocked 4,000 feet overhead.

Lieut. Col. Leo C. Moon of Kamiah, Idaho, leader of the squadron, said that the American planes were working over a train thirty miles northeast of Cologne when the German guns two miles away opened up prematurely. From the violence of the bursts Colonel Moon suspected that the guns were screening a far juicier target than the train, which was caught as it emerged from a tunnel.

Signaling his squadron, he led the way in a dive through the heavy fire and exploded the ammunition trucks.

NAZI CIVILIANS REPORT TO GI'S

Thousands Finger Printed; Fear Hitler, Allied Wrath

Cologne, March 25 (AP)—Thousands of Germans stand patiently

MAR 26 1945

in long lines in the American-occupied Rhineland, waiting to sign registration blanks and be fingerprinted.

This mass registration will show how many Germans are passing temporarily under the rule of the American Military Government.

They stand in docile crowds. Their greatest fear is that Hitler will turn his wrath on them for yielding to foreign authority. Their most frequently expressed hope is that the fighting will end somehow and they will be able to do the spring planting and sweep up the debris of their smashed villages and cities.

The German passion for orderliness will be stretched to the utmost to remake this desolate countryside.

Fear Allied Vindictiveness

There are many lesser fears, such as apprehension that the liberated foreign workers might strike in revenge, concern for relatives who fled across the Rhine, and the general conviction that the conditions of the coming peace will be severe.

The registration is going on virtually without disturbing incident; authorities hope to complete it by mid-April so as to form an idea of the size and nature of their administrative tasks.

There are considerable stores of food, for instance, but no census showing how far the food must reach. What is on hand is being distributed sparingly. The registration also is expected to show how many Germans are in the wrong communities and what crafts are available among them for the mammoth task of reconstruction.

GAFFEY WINS PROMOTION

Head of 4th Armored Is Raised to Corps Commander

WITH THE UNITED STATES THIRD ARMY, March 25 (AP)—Maj. Gen. Hugh J. Gaffey, whose Fourth Armored Division made history in the plunge of Lieut. Gen. George S. Patton's forces to the Rhine, was promoted today to corps commander.

General Gaffey, long one of General Patton's right-hand staff officers, has commanded the Fourth Armored since last December, when it smashed through to the relief of the encircled American garrison at Bastogne during the German Ardennes counter-offensive.

He was commended by Lieut. Gen. Omar N. Bradley, Twelfth Army Group commander, on March 17 for the break-throughs his tank division had scored in the Saar-Palatinate offensive.

General Gaffey was succeeded by Brig. Gen. William Hoge, who is leading the division's current sensational drive beyond the Rhine.

Belgian Town Honors First Liberating Yanks

Hasselt, Belgium, March 25 (AP). This homey little town paid tribute yesterday and today to the United States 2d Armored Division which it has adopted because the outfit was the first into Belgium and liberated Hasselt from Nazi rule September 6, 1944.

Yesterday there was a band concert and last night the men of the division danced with the most beautiful women in town. Today the more serious side of the ceremony included presentation of an elaborate silk pennant to the division's commander by the Burgomaster.

First United States troops to enter the 700-year-old city were the men of Company A, 82nd Armored Reconnaissance Battalion. A detachment from this group, commanded by Lieut. George Brooks, of Brooklyn, N.Y., acted as an honor guard.

Russian Armor Smashes To 36 Miles From Austria

London, Monday, March 26 (AP). Red Army tank spearheads raced to within 36 miles of Austria and 77 miles southeast of Vienna yesterday as a second mighty Soviet Army joined Russia's Vienna-bound offensive that was sweeping across industrial western Hungary on a 90-mile front.

While Marshal Fyodor I. Tolbukhin's 3d Ukraine Army gained up to 16 miles overnight, Premier Stalin announced the 2d Ukraine Army under Marshal Rodion Y. Malinovsky had joined the battle and gained 28 miles in the initial phases of an offensive along the south bank of the Danube.

Near Danube Key To Vienna

The two powerful armies were within 6 miles southeast of Komarom, Danube River key to Vienna and Bratislava, had outflanked the great rail city of Gyor and were battering through Nazi defenses only 4 miles from the key communications center of Papa, Moscow disclosed.

Malinovsky's new offensive erupted as the vast Eastern front appeared to be blazing into a full-scale spring offensive synchronizing with Anglo-American drives from the west.

Berlin spoke of a new Soviet drive in southwestern Poland aimed at the Moravian Gap leading into Czechoslovakia and on to Prague and Vienna.

At the same time, Premier Stalin, in a second order of the day, announced the fall of Heiligenbeil, last big enemy stronghold in East Prussia southwest of Koenigsberg.

Danzig, Gdynia Periled

The Baltic ports of Danzig and Gdynia, shelled and bombed by Russian artillery and planes, faced capture as the Russians took a suburb of Danzig and pushed closer to Gdynia.

Malinovsky's army, which until its present offensive had been poised on the north bank of the Danube, joined Tolbukhin's forces on the south bank after recapturing the ancient Hungarian capital of Esztergom, 18 miles northwest of Budapest.

The Germans had retaken Esztergom in their January attempt to relieve Budapest.

Malinovsky's army, under 27 generals and a rear admiral of the Danube River Naval Flotilla, swept over all territory lost to the recent German counteroffensive, regained Malinovsky's troops captured Csaszar, 16 miles south of Komarom and 5 miles east of Kisber rail center menaced by Tolbukhin's troops.

At this point the two armies linked to build up a solid 90-mile front stretching from the Danube to the west shore of Lake Balaton.

Tolbukhin's tanks and infantry, meanwhile, captured Papateszer, 20 miles south of Gyor, cutting the Kisber-Papa railroad and highway protecting Gyor on the south, while 10 miles to the southwest his advance elements tore out a 16-mile gain that carried them within 4 miles southeast of Papa.

Tapolczafoe Captured

Seizing Tapolczafoe on the approaches to the eleven-way junction of Papa, the Russians at this point were closest to the Austrian frontier and to Vienna. They also were 62 miles southeast of Wiener Neustadt, much-bombed aircraft manufacturing center south of the Austrian capital.

Szombathely, key rail city near the Austro-Hungarian border, lay 42 miles to the west of Tolbukhin's spearheads.

Meanwhile, enemy broadcasts said Marshal Ivan S. Konev's 1st Ukrainian Army was attacking in southwestern Poland on a 10-mile front toward Moravska-Ostrava, industrial city guarding the Moravian Gap.

The Germans conceded Konev's forces had torn deep breaches in Nazi lines between Zary, 23 miles northeast of the Czechoslovak guardian city, and Strumien, 21 miles east.

Along the Moravian border, Konev's troops, which threatened to break into the mountain fastnesses of Czechoslovakia, also extended their attacks to the area of Strehlen, due south of Breslau, the Germans said.

Konev's attacks and the great new Soviet offensives in Hungary constituted a massive pincer against Hitler's Czechoslovak arsenal and against Vienna.

Mountains Lie Beyond

Beyond these are the mountains in which the Nazis may attempt to make their last stand.

At the south end of his front, Tolbukhin's troops captured Szekesfehervar, 23 miles southwest of Lake Velencze, and Polgardi, 18 miles southwest of Szekesfehervar, and rich oil and coal deposits in the Vertes Mountains west of Budapest, and swept forward 28 miles.

200 Towns Fall

More than 200 communities and 7,000 enemy troops were captured, boosting to 83,000 the enemy's losses in the two-army offensive.

Pushing west on a 20-mile front, the 2d Ukrainian Army swept along the Danube's bank as far as Duna-Almas, 11 miles east of Komarom, while spearheads a few miles south of the river drove on further to win Mocsa, 6 miles southeast of the key stronghold, which lies astride both banks of the river.

These forces were 59 miles southeast of the Slovak capital of Bratislava and 24 miles east of Gyor, great sixteen-way road and rail center considered an outer fortress of Vienna and northern anchor of the enemy's Raba River defense line protecting the approaches to Austria and its capital.

Moscow dispatches said, however, that the drives were a subordinate phase of the Red Army's spring operations which when launched on a maximum scale may carry over northern and central Germany for a juncture with the Allies.

Dispatches said that the elimination of Berlin as the core of the enemy's defense still was the greatest single task confronting the Red Army in the east.

Enemy broadcasts said that Marshal Gregory K. Zhukov's 1st White Russian Army was continuing to storm Berlin's fortifications along the Oder River beyond captured Kuestrin and acknowledged that Soviet assault teams of infantry and tanks were wedging deeper into a mass of steel and concrete defenses.

German reports indicated, however, that Zhukov's attacks were not a major offensive but apparently were designed to widen and link up all bridgeheads across the Oder River in preparation for a lunge to the capital.

JAPANESE CLAIM ATTACK STARTED NEAR MAINLAND

LACKS CONFIRMATION

Foe States Huge Battle Fleet Aiding Drive after Long Bombardment.

U. S. PACIFIC FLEET HEADQUARTERS, Guam, Monday, March 26—(AP) Radio Tokyo reported today that U. S. troops were "attempting" a landing [redacted] the Ryukyu islands just south of Japan.

The report highlighted a weekend of developments in the Western Pacific in which carrier planes continued strong attacks and B-29s blasted Nagoya with a heavy tonnage of demolition and incendiary bombs.

Warships Blast Island

Without Allied confirmation, Tokyo asserted landing attempts were made Monday after earlier reporting that U. S. warships three times Saturday bombarded Okinawa with their big guns.

Fleet Adm. Chester W. Nimitz yesterday announced fast battleships shelled Minami Daito, about 200 miles east of Okinawa.

Today, he reported destruction of an eight ship Japanese convoy west of Amami Jima, in the northern Ryukyus.

The Tokyo broadcast of a Domei News agency dispatch said that Okinawa was bombarded three times by part of a task force which sent aircraft against it Friday.

These actions followed carrier strikes Vice Adm. Marc A. Mitscher began against the southern Japanese homeland's airfields and navy bases March 18.

Domei said the landings began at 7:30 a.m. on Akajima and Tokashiki islands near the main island of Okinawa.

"The enemy landing attempted was made," Domei said, "after continuous aerial bombing attacks and navy bombardments by the enemy task force since the morning of March 24 against Okinawa, main island of the Ryukyu group, as well as Miyakjima and Kerama Jima."

Tokyo radio reported that a large American task force was in the waters just southwest of Okinawa, and described the fleet as containing 15 aircraft carriers, 11 battleships, 10 cruisers, 32 destroyers "as well as innumerable other auxiliary vessels."

Jap Forces Attack

Domei said the Americans tried the invasion in "approximately 100 barges," and the Nipponese garrisons were "now fiercely intercepting" the Yanks.

Twenty-first bomber command headquarters here announced that Sunday's strike by more than 200 B-29s against Nagoya destroyed or damaged five of the Japanese city's war industry plants. They were the huge Mitsubishi aircraft engine factory and the Asashi pottery works, Kurema textile plant and Mitsubishi electrical company, all producing war material, and the Nagoya arsenal.

Headquarters also announced that the "first adequate photo coverage" of March 12 and 19 incendiary raids on Nagoya showed five square miles in the heart of the city burned.

The Sunday raid was the first big demolition bomb raid on a Japanese city since the superfortresses began their large scale assaults.

The carrier plane attack sank three large cargo vessels, two destroyers and three other escort vessels—possibly destroyer escorts or gunboats.

Nimitz said the action occurred west of Amami, which would place the attack in the East China sea, less than 500 miles from the coast of China.

Amami Gunto is one of the most important of the Ryukyu chain of islands linking the Japanese homeland with Formosa to the south.

Navy search Liberators attacked a medium cargo ship in the northwestern Ryukyus the same day and on Sunday Navy search Venturas strafed two small cargo ships north of the Bonis, leaving one ship dead in the water and the other damaged.

Avenger torpedo plans and Helldiver bombers from Vice Adm. Marc A. Mitscher's fast carrier task force destroyed the eight-ship convoy off Amami. The attacking aircraft were escorted by Corsair and Hellcat fighters from the carrier force.

No Aerial Opposition

The attack may have been without opposition other than the destroyed ships' gunfire, however, as Nimitz made no mention of any aerial fighting.

The action extended Mitscher's concerted bombing of the Japanese homeland and adjacent Okinawa and Ryukyu islands to the south into the seventh day of the last eight, the most damaging and extended carrier action of the war against the Pacific enemy's homeland.

Nimitz also reported Seventh Army Air force Liberators bombed Chichi Jima's airfield March 23. On the same date, Army Mustang fighters bombed and strafed Japanese naval installations and air facilities on the same island. Other Army Liberators bombed Marcus island storage areas.

Fourth Marine aircraft wing pilots, attacking through intense anti-aircraft fire, destroyed a bridgehead, a large building and started fires on Babelthuap in the Palaus on Sunday. Marine Corsair fighters on the same date bombed installations on Yap in the Western Carolines.

Has Seaplane Base

Amami Jima, largest of the Amami group with a population of 180,000, is one of the most important in the entire Ryukyu chain because of its size and military installations. It also has a seaplane base.

Amami Jima is about 35 miles long and 18 miles at its widest. It is 445 miles from northern Formosa and only 440 from Shanghai. It has a population of 80,000. Naze, chief town of the island, is the second largest in the Ryukyus and is the seat of government for the Amami group.

Saturday's bombardment of Minami Daito was the first reported attack on that island, although on March 2 carrier planes bombed and strafed Okino Daito, just a few miles away.

Plane Saves Pilot Off Japan

Navy Flyer Alights 10 Miles From Coast in Heavy Seas

ON BOARD VICE-ADMIRAL MITSCHER'S FLAGSHIP OFF JAPAN, March 18 (delayed) (AP).—Alighting in heavy seas only ten miles off the Japanese coast, Navy Lieutenant Willard Ethridge, of Kansas City, Mo., rescued a marine fighter pilot who had been forced down by anti-aircraft fire after strafing an enemy airfield today. They were participating in the task force strikes at Japan.

"He landed his seaplane in the sea when he really shouldn't have, because it was too rough," said First Lieutenant Ralph O. Glendinning, of 64 Yale Avenue, Avenel, N. J., the rescued marine pilot, in telling of Ethridge's feat.

BOMBERS PACE ALLIED SMASH

6,000 Nazi Vehicles Knocked Out, Berlin Hit 34th Night

London, Monday, March 26 (AP)—Mosquitos and American night-prowling planes joined in hammering Germany last night after German strongpoints and reinforcement centers in front of Field Marshal Montgomery's drive north of the Ruhr were pulverized in daylight by thousands of Allied planes.

The Mosquitos hit Berlin for the thirty-fourth consecutive night.

Striking from bases in England and the Continent, American and British planes flew more than 6,500 sorties from dawn to dusk yesterday in support of the ground offensive and knocked out 6,000 enemy vehicles of all types.

Flying Fortresses and Liberators of the Italy-based United States 15th Air Force struck German airfields near Prague from which the Germans have been oper against Russian troops.

Ships Blasted In Balt

British planes also against enemy shipping ye and Friday night, the Air M announcing effective attac night on six U-boats, twelv ers and three armed esco Western Baltic and in I Norwegian waters. Eigh ships received direct hits.

Mosquitos of the Coastal Command followed these forays with offensive patrols in Norwegian waters yesterday.

One Mosquito formation was met by enemy fighters, three of which were shot down by escorting Mustangs.

Medium bombers, flying in close support of the Allied ground offensives, claimed to have knocked out 40 guns in a 42-gun concentration which had been shelling the Allied crossings yesterday.

741 Sorties Flown

The 29th Tactical Air Command, in its biggest day of operations, flew 741 sorties yesterday, mostly in support of the United States 9th Army's Rhine crossing. This command also hit seven rail yards north of the Ruhr, including switch yards at Hannover.

The 9th Air Force flew 2,734 sorties and lost fourteen planes while destroying thirteen German planes, 674 motor vehicles, 875 rail cars and 119 tanks and armored vehicles.

A strong force of Britain-based RAF Lancasters and Halifaxes, with a fighter escort—approximately 800 planes in all—smashed at Hannover, Osnabruck and Muenster, main enemy rail centers ahead of the advancing British and Americans.

Well over 3,000 tons of bombs were dropped. Pilots reported all three cities were left in flames.

Oil-Storage Depots Blasted

Two hundred and fifty United States 8th Air Force Liberators escorted by an equal number of fighters attacked three underground oil-storage depots at Ehmen, 12 miles northeast of Brunswick; Buchen, 25 miles east of Hamburg, and Hitzacker, 50 miles southeast of Hamburg.

The task force was challenged by ten German jet-propelled planes and fighter pilots shot down four of them. Several got through and shot down six of the attacking bombers and one fighter.

Upward of 1,500 other 8th Air Force heavies blasted sixteen scattered enemy airfields, climaxing a four-day campaign during which at least 25 different German airdromes, most of them jet bases, have been attacked.

Luftwaffe In Background

Continent-based 9th Air Force medium bombers and fighter-bombers were out at dawn, attacking German defenses and supply routes, and by noon had made 1,100 trips with a loss of four planes.

The incessant mauling of German airfields in northwestern Germany kept the Luftwaffe in the background both before, during and after the Allied crossing of the Rhine north of the Ruhr.

Yesterday, with more than 10,000 Allied planes darkening the skies over northwestern Germany, total Allied losses were 35 planes, including 28 heavy bombers.

The 15th Air Force in its record bombing flight to the Berlin area from Italian bases knocked down thirteen German jet planes, the largest single-day bag of these high-speed ships thus far, while losing ten heavy bombers.

Bavarian Airfields Raided

In addition, two conventionally powered German fighters were shot down during the 1,600-mile round-trip mission. Other jets were destroyed on the ground during Liberator attacks on two airfields in Bavaria.

The 15th continued its attack against jet installations today, showering thousands of fragmentation bombs over the runways of the Letnany and Kbely airdromes near Prague.

Liberators also blasted factories in Czechoslovakia, where tanks and jet planes are being constructed, with excellent results.

Bullard Workers' Torpedo Sinks Nazi Vessel

LONDON, March 25—(AP) An RAF Beaufighter fired a torpedo yesterday which helped sink a German armed merchant vessel off the north coast of Holland, and thus fulfilled the mission for which the weapon was sponsored by 3,000 Bridgeport, Conn., factory workers, the Air Ministry announced today.

In a recent war bond drive employes of the Bullard company of Bridgeport bought more than a half million dollars worth of bonds. All signed their names on the casing of the torpedo they had made, and with it they sent this message to the RAF Coastal Command:

"This torpedo represents our work, hopes and money. With it go our fervent hopes it will accomplish all the destruction for which it was designed and help in bringing the war to a quick and successful conclusion."

Kallay Reported Slain By Nazis

London, March 25 (AP)—The Moscow radio, quoting Budapest press reports, today said the Germans had killed Dr. Nicholas Kallay, former Hungarian Premier.

The account said Kallay, 58 and a veteran politician, probably had been taken to Sopron, a town on the Austro-Hungarian frontier, when the Red Army beseiged Budapest, and that he was slain in the prison there.

Kallay had been deposed when the Germans occupied Hungary in March last year and installed a puppet regime. He had balked at Hitler's demands for Nazification of the country and further Hungarian war commitments.

JEWISH BRIGADE FIGHTING IN ITALY

ROME, March 25—(AP) The first and only completely Jewish brigade is operating with the British Eighth army in Italy, Allied headquarters announced today as patrol raids continued along the stalemated front.

Lt. Gen. Mark W. Clark, commander of Allied ground forces, said he "was delighted" to have the Jewish outfit fighting under his command and pleased that "the Jewish people who have suffered so terribly at the hands of the Nazis should now be directly represented by this frontline fighting force."

Members of the brigade wear blue and white arm insignia with the Star of David superimposed on a shield.

The brigade is led by Brig. Gen. Frank Benjamin, a Jew in the regular British army. It has been involved in patrol actions since the early part of March and several Germans were killed recently by a patrol leader who is a German refugee whose family disappeared after being deported to Poland.

Many of the brigade's members previously were held in Nazi concentration camps in Europe. Their family origins are spread over 37 different countries and at least 50 per cent have lost parents or relatives through German persecution.

The brigade is a self-contained unit consisting of artillery, infantry, engineering, signal, transport, ordnance and medical units. The men were drawn from 35,000 volunteers and although it is estimated 1,000,000 Jewish soldiers are fighting on the Allied side this outfit is the only group specifically designated as a Jewish unit.

Typical of the men's background is that of one 24-year-old soldier. He was born in Berlin where he lived until 1938. A brother and sister were seized by the Gestapo and deported to Poland. He fled to Vienna where he was arrested by the Germans. He managed to escape down the Danube and eventually arrived in Palestine where he volunteered for the brigade.

The brigade also includes Jews who fought with the French Maquis.

15TH'S BERLIN STRIKE JERSEY MAN'S IDEA

ROME, March 25 (AP)—The United States Fifteenth Air Force reported today that yesterday's record 1,600-mile round trip attack on Berlin, during which thirteen German jet-propelled planes were knocked down, was a last-minute idea.

Friday night, headquarters said, the fliers were being briefed for an attack on a target some 100 miles closer to Italy than Berlin when Maj. John Hogan of 167 Summit Avenue, Jersey City, N. J., came up with the idea.

Major Hogan, a graduate of Rutgers and a wing navigator, noticed there would be enough reserve fuel and good enough weather to switch the objective to Berlin. At first his suggestion was greeted as a gag, but Major Hogan sold it to the commanders and they went to work on it.

Two bomber gunners each knocked down a pair of Nazi "jets" during the mission. They were Sgt. Howard Wehmer of Closter, N. J., and Sgt. Lincoln F. Broyhill of Arlington, Va.

Among the escort pilots scoring single victories over the "jets" were three members of the Negro 332d Mustang Group, Lieuts. Bos-coe C. Brown Jr. of 770 St. Nicholas Avenue, New York; Earl R. Lane of Wickliffe, Ohio, and Flight Officer Charles V. Brantley of St. Louis.

The 463d Bomber Group was the first Fifteenth Air Force unit over Berlin. The lead plane was piloted by Capt. Robert C. Ball of Winona, Minn.

STRICKEN OVER BERLIN

Fortress Co-Pilot Seized With Appendicitis, but Gets Home

ROME, March 25 (AP)—Lieut. Joe O. Busick, Flying Fortress co-pilot, of Point Pleasant, Pa., was stricken with appendicitis over Berlin yesterday when Italy-based American bombers raided the capital for the first time.

The pain was so severe that Lieutenant Busick could not work the rudder with his right foot. To add to the trouble, the plane was hit by ground fire and the supercharger started acting up.

But the bomber got back safely and Lieutenant Busick was rushed to the hospital for an operation. He was reported to be getting along fine today.

20,570 Fliers Lost In Year

Rome, March 25 (AP)—Lieut. Gen. Ira Eaker, commander of the Mediterranean Allied Air Force, disclosed today that the United States 15th Air Force had lost 2,057 heavy bombers and 20,570 men in a year's operations. The previous total six weeks ago was 2,000 bombers and 20,000 men lost.

Mussolini Apparently Recognizes End Is Near

Chiasso, Switzerland, March 25 (AP)—Benito Mussolini apparently recognizes now on the twenty-fifth anniversary of the founding of the Fascist party that the end is in sight. In a speech before Italian Fascist and German authorities he praised those who died for fascism and thanked German soldiers for defending Italy.

The Fascist press did not say where the speech was given.

REVOLT IN REICH SEEN IMPROBABLE AT PRESENT TIME

Jaderlund

STOCKHOLM, March 25 — (AP) Revolution from below still looks highly improbable in Germany, unless starvation drives the people into the streets or a beaten army floods back in a state of disintegration.

The first signs of a real collapse of the Nazi food ssytem will cause more panic in the Reich than the worst military defeat. So far the German food rationing and supply systems have functioned extremely well although rations have been short, particularly fats.

Revolt Hinges on Food

But Allied bombing of food factories and storehouses and the crippling of the transport system plus the loss of Germany's richest agricultural lands in the east have changed the situation. The Germans now associate the duration of the war with the food supply.

"The war will end," Berliners say, "when Goering can put on Goebbels' trousers."

(A new German order forbids the planting of flowers even for use in cemetries. The Berlin correspondent of the Stockholm newspaper Dagens Nyheter reported Sunday that parks and sports fields were being plowed under throughout the Reich for the planting of potatoes and vegetables. The dispatch said officials estimated that each square kilometer of land in the Reich now must support 304 persons instead of 147.)

Although foreign agents have attempted to form so-called troicas after the Baltic pattern—groups of three men each as a basic cell for a wider resistance movement — it was not until the Red army invaded Germany that Berliners began inquiring of one another about the chances of joining an "organization."

In addition to war prisoners and Jews who have become "divers" there are army deserters. Remnants of the beaten Vistula army were the first to go underground in Berlin. It was estimated their number reached 30,000 and later 40,000.

MAR 26 1945

MAR 26 1945

Each time soldiers under the impact of retreats believe a breakdown is imminent, the area behind the front is overrun with deserters. Many soldiers obtain civilian clothes and mingle with refugee columns. In recent weeks the Gestapo made frequent roundups in Berlin and other cities, finding even officers who had deserted.

It is not advisable for a single policeman to demand identification papers of a suspect. Frequently of late the questioned has pulled out a pistol instead of papers and shot down the policeman.

Underground Fears Capture

Those who have gone underground now live in constant fear of capture since Hitler summarily commandeered the entire nation for war service.

Living underground in Germany is limited mainly to efforts to stay hidden, although here and there sabotage groups blow up bridges.

Ever since Hitler came into power the German people have been used to the organized rationing of food. Herefore food has been adequate while strictly controlled, but now supplies are deteriorating rapidly. The giant evacuation from the east was stopped because of the shortage of food within the Reich proper.

After the Vistula retreat the first thing done in Berlin was to stretch eight weeks rations to nine.

The first serious breach of the rationing discipline occurred with well-informed party men and wholesalers informing one another secretly of extra sales several days before the public was notified. As a result when the public lined up all the best things were gone.

This has become more and more brazen in the past year and the public has become aware of it.

When the Russians reached the Oder and Berliners thought the capital might be besieged within hours they suddenly found tradesmen no longer had anything to sell.

On the following day goods reappeared. This was the most serious sign of disintegration on the rationing front. When everything begins to collapse and the people of Berlin see nothing ahead but siege or flight, then not even the strictest measures by authorities will prevent the remaining stocks from vanishing among relatives, friends and favorite customers. The less fortunate faced with starvation will take to the streets in search of food.

15,000 CREMATED AT STRUTHOF CAMP

Nazis Mixed Modern Efficiency With Medieval Torture

Natzweiler, Alsace, France, March 25 (AP)—Until France's liberation by the Allies Heinrich Himmler's Gestapo added Twentieth Century efficiency to medieval torture methods at the Struthof concentration camp atop a Vosges Mountain peak just above this village, French officials said today.

Statistics found by the French when they took Struthof showed 19,103 persons of various nationalities were domiciled in fifteen barracks on August 20, 1944. Their compound was surrounded by electrically charged barbed wire so that only one person, a Russian, ever escaped.

Dr. Alan Dubourg, a French sanitation officer now in charge of the health of the present inmates, consisting chiefly of French collaborationists, estimated that from October, 1941, some 15,000 persons had been cremated.

Three Methods Of Execution

French officials give this account:

Russian and Poles were hanged from two gallows within sight of all inmates. Inmates of other nationalities if condemned to death were either gassed of shot through the neck.

Bodies were hauled to the ground floor, in the center of which was the cremation oven.

The Gestapo did a flourishing business with ashes—selling them in two types of urns to relatives. Earthen urns were cheaper than metal urns.

In another section of the barracks was the lethal chamber. Condemned victims were placed in there 32 at one execution.

Premium For Killers

The Gestapo offered premiums to the young SS men who did the killing. For each they received six extra cigarettes, one pint of schnapps and 60 grams of sausage. After killing ten they were given a two-day furlough.

The torture chamber resembled those of the Spanish Inquisition, except the modern tile bathtub in one corner which enabled the Gestapo to throw a tortured person into icy water until he revived.

Dubourg said cancer was given as the cause of death "in hundreds of cases."

The biggest execution day appears to have been September 2, 1944. That night 392 bodies were cremated.

DEFEATISM HITS GERMAN PEOPLE

Fear of Gestapo Prevents Uprisings as Enemy Awaits the End.

BERN, Switzerland, March 25—(AP) The Allied smash across the Rhine has started the greatest wave of defeatism and despair yet recorded in Germany.

Frontier reports today generally agree that the Germans have lost hope and are waiting only for the war's end—although few are courageous or energetic enough to do anything to hasten it. Fear of the Gestapo still is so strong that few serious Allied observers here look for any real revolution or effective public anti-war demonstrations.

Must Break Organization

It appeared more likely that a breakdown of the Nazi organization, spreading confusion and chaos would be the most effective factor behind the front in bringing about an apathetic surrender.

An example is Ludwigshafen, where the Nazis were caught short. Factories and shops remained open through last Monday with none expecting an invasion. Everything closed down suddenly Tuesday and the people fled as best they could.

A frontier correspondent for the newspaper Der Bund quoted eyewitnesses as saying "German troops on the front are overtired. Their physical and mental state is bad. Many don't want to fight any long. Everywhere one meets refugees with suitcases. They are in a pitiable condition. Organization seems to function no longer. People flee without any definite goal. German troops in the West and the population of the West and south Germany generally count on an early end to the war."

People Confused

Confusion was noted also in the Duesseldorf sector where only last night the German army radio suddenly ordered the entire area evacuated. The Nazis urged an orderly evacuation and warned individuals against trying to flee by themselves.

Bremen was reported so badly battered that no hotel rooms were available and camp beds had been set up in communal bedrooms. Nazi tailors were reported drafted for weekly service to repair clothes of workmen conscripted for war industry.

Nazi Casualties 45,000 In Battle At Danube

Kreuzlingen, at the German-Swiss Frontier, March 25 (AP)—The German Army's effort to recapture the western shore of the Danube in Hungary caused 45,000 casualties among Nazi troops including about 25,000 killed, Austrian underground reports said today.

These advices said eleven German divisions were engaged in three attacks and that six of these divisions had to be re-formed.

60,000 Austrians Said To Have Fled Into Hills

Buchs, Switzerland, March 25 (AP). Sixty thousand Austrians were reported today to have fled to the hills to avoid conscription for Volkssturm duty as a general wave of anti-Nazi sabotage swept the country.

Frontier reports said police were seeking these thousands who had disappeared after receiving mobilization orders. Throughout Austria opposition to the Nazis was increasing. Leaflets and posters were secretly spread through Vienna, urging inhabitants to demonstrate against the Nazis.

Travelers quoted one German leader as saying, "we made a terrible mistake when we listened to the advice of our Austrian friends and let Austrian officials remain in office."

BRUENING AS HITLER'S HEIR

Pravda Says Former Chancellor Is Backed By Catholics

Moscow, March 25 (AP) — Ilya Ehrenburg, writing in Pravda, asserted today that Dr. Heinrich Bruening, Hitler's predecessor as Chancellor of Germany, has put forth "his candidacy as the heir of Hitler.

[Bruening now is professor of government at Harvard University. He held the German Chancellorship from March, 1930, until May, 1932. A stanch Catholic, he was a foe of Hitler's policies.]

"In East Prussia," Ehrenburg wrote, "I met a Catholic vicar who explained a plan to creat 'a strong Catholic German power.' Other priests spoke of the same thing. We have before us not dreamers but representatives of a disciplined organization.

Reich Salvation To Catholics

"The salvation of German imperialism has been turned over to the Catholic center. The führer of German Catholics, Bruening, now living in the United States, has spoken, now that the route of Zhukov and Eisenhower has become clear. In articles for German Social Democratic newspapers he speaks about the past but thinks about the future. He puts forth his candidacy as the heir of Hitler.

"It is easy to understand, if the führer of German Catholics can peacefully express such abominable opinions in the United States. This means he has supporters and defenders.

"Bruening is not a dreamer. The Catholic newspapers of the United States are busy now with the rehabilitation of Germany. If one could forget these newspapers were published in the English language, one might take them to be German newspapers.

Vatican Also Attacked

"Like the Germans living in America or the Americans who think in German, the Roman Pope is also busy with one thing—how to save Germany from retaliation. All this has not any relation to religion—this is politics. The Vatican does not want to save German children but the German Army from the Stormoviks.

"The Catholic religion as such is not at fault. The Catholics of France, Belgium and Poland courageously fought against the German invaders. These Catholics can only be surprised at seeing how the Vatican is attempting to whitewash the criminals. The Vatican is afraid that with the doom of Fascism there will be a rebirth of light, wisdom and freedom."

Jap Leaders Alarmed At War, Pravda Says

Moscow, March 25 (AP)—Pravda said today that the Japanese w[ar] situation "calls forth no s[pecial] amount of alarm in Japanese ruling circles."

"The Japanese place great significance on the loss of Iwo Jima because the struggle for this island showed what a powerful war effort the Allies are capable of," Pravda said.

"In addition to this, the Japanese ruling circles cannot but take into account the tenseness which characterizes the internal situation in Japan and the Japanese empire."

U. S. SABOTEURS FOUND

5 Dropped in Sweden by Mistake En Route to Norway

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, March 25 (AP)—Reports here tonight said five American saboteurs mistakenly dropped into Sweden instead of Norway Saturday night.

Early Sunday Swedes found quantities of munitions and explosives that had been parachuted onto a frozen lake. In the neighborhood five men were found hiding in the belief they were in Norway.

This was the first indication that American sabotage experts were being dropped in Norway. Early this month the Germans announced that saboteurs, munitions and other equipment were being scattered in some sections of southern Norway.

Greece Marks 124th Year Of Independence

Athens, March 25 (AP) — All Athens turned out today in surging, cheerful crowds to watch ceremonies marking the 124th anniversary of Greek independence.

The Regent, Archbishop Damaskinos and Lieut. Gen. R. M. Scobie, along with members of the diplomatic corps, reviewed a two-hour parade of Greece's renewed military strength.

It was the first full-fledged celebration here in five years. One newspaper marked the occasion with a front-page picture dated two years ago which showed mounted police scattering crowds which had gathered for the anniversary.

Haifa, Palestine, March 25 (AP)—Nine hundred Jewish refugees from Central Europe who were liberated in Italy in 1943 arrived in Haifa today by ship.

2 Jap Columns Near Yank Airbase In China

Chungking, March 25 (AP)—Two Japanese columns striking west in the new Hupeth province offensive have hammered out gains in the direction of Laohokow, important United States 14th Air Force base some 200 miles northwest of the central China city of Hankow, the Chinese High Command announced tonight.

Enemy spearheads have thrust about 49 miles southeast and 55 miles south of the base, the high command said. United States planes were hurled against positions and bases of the advancing Japanese over a wide area.

At the same time the enemy was pushing westward in the adjoining province of Honan, aimed at eliminating airbases and seizing the crop harvest.

Some 80,000 Japanese troops were committed to the twin offensives, the high command estimated.

BRITISH ARMOR SEIZES KUME

14th Army Units Take Key Mandalay Road Town

Calcutta, March 25 (AP)—British 14th Army armor, slashing northward through defenses of pocketed Japanese between Mandalay and the Meiktila area, have occupied Kume, important town on the main Mandalay truck road, 15 miles south of Kyaukse, and have taken Langwa, some miles farther northeast, an Allied communiqué announced tonight.

With the capture of the road station, just south of Myittha, which is about 35 miles from Mandalay, the Allies won control of road and rail lines to Thazi, highway town just east of Meiktila, with the exception of a 20-mile segment between Kume and Kyaukse.

liquidation.

About 500 Japanese were slain when the Allies repulsed a fresh and desperate attack on the perimiter of British positions at captured Meiktila airfield. Meanwhile, Allied troops pushing southward from the Irrawaddy area steadily narrowed the pocket.

Southwest of Mandalay in the area of captured Myingyan, British armor probed forward a dozen more miles into positions of the pocketed Japanese.

BOMBS WRECK HUGE DYNAMO

5th Air Force Showers 145 Tons On Formosa Plant

Manila, Monday, March 26 (AP)—Fifth Air Force heavy bombers delivered a crippling blow against southern Formosa Friday, wrecking the big Jitsegutsu hydroelectric plant with a concentrated shower of 145 one-ton bombs, headquarters announced today.

Other bombers softened up Cebu Island in the central Philippines with 210 tons of explosives while patrol bombers blockading the China Sea sank or damaged nine freighters and a destroyer escort.

More than 50 Liberators and Lightning fighters so effectively pounded the Formosa power plant that a 5th Air Force spokesman said war production would be "seriously hampered" in the southern two thirds of the big Japanese Island.

Reconnaissance photographs showed all transformer stations wrecked, generator buildings demolished and water pouring through ruined penstocks.

The blow directly affected two large aluminum plants at near-by Takao and Karenko. Their estimated 40,000-ton capacity is believed fifteen per cent of Japan's aluminum supply. Southern Formosa also has many other war industries.

"All southern Formosa will suffer an enforced blackout and its industry an enforced layoff," said the spokesman for 5th Air Force commander, Maj. Gen. Ennis C. Whitehead.

One American plane was lost to anti-aircraft fire.

Jap Counterblows Fail

On Luzon, meantime, six Japanese counterattacks were repulsed as the 25th and 33d Infantry divisions converged on the important Balete Pass, leading into the extensive Cagayan Valley, and the 1st Cavalry Division began a drive into the long peninsula of southeastern Luzon.

Bombers patrolling the blockaded China Sea sank a 3,000-ton freighter-transport and probably another of the same size, sent four smaller freighters to the bottom and damaged three other small freighters plus a destroyer escort.

Cebu City Is Target

The attack on Cebu was centered on targets in the vicinity of Cebu City, midway along the east coast of the narrow island, one of the two major Philippine islands still in enemy hands.

Attack planes strafed and bombed the area from low level.

Bombers and fighters also attacked coastal defenses and supply dumps at Legaspi and Infanta on the southeastern tip of Luzon, and supported all ground operations on the island.

Air Base Bombed

General MacArthur's Sunday communiqué, covering action of last Friday, said Yank heavy bombers "continuing the destruction of the enemy air force on Formosa" unloaded 145 tons of explosives on Tainan army airdrome and Okayama naval air base. The American flyers hit many planes, silenced gun positions and left fires and explosions in hangars and warehouses. Rail yards also were blasted.

Troops of the 11th Airborne Division operating far south of Manila gained another 9 miles and completely cleared the shores of Batangas Bay on the northern flank of the vital Verde Island ship passage.

DECOYS LURE JAPANESE

Liberator Bombers Tantalize 5 Planes to Invite Death

THIRTEENTH UNITED AIR FORCE, Philippines, March 25 (AP)—American Liberator bombers became decoys to lure wily Japanese fighter pilots to destruction in a recent air battle in the South Pacific.

For weeks the Japanese fighters had preyed on unprotected Allied patrol and bomber planes over the Macassar Strait between Borneo and the Celebes. Finally the Liberators went in and lured five Japanese fighters from their field.

As soon as the Japanese took the air, Lightning fighters limping behind the bombers came down on them. Four of the Japanese crashed in flames. The fifth, trailing smoke, was listed as probably destroyed.

JAPS STRAFED YANKS IN SEA

Their Bullets Killed 100 of Bismarck Sea's Crew.

Iwo Jima (Delayed) (A. P.).—Six veteran aerial observers of the Fourth Marine Division, today told their most harrowing experience of all—the methodical Japanese strafing and killing of 100 of their shipmates swimming helplessly in icy seas after the sinking of the Bismarck Sea, an escort carrier.

All six of the Marine air men were rescued, but a pilot of the Fifth Marine Division, who came aboard the Bismarck Sea just five minutes before she sustained two mortal blows about thirty miles off shore, was reported among the more than 300 casualties. He is believed to have been a victim of the Japanese strafing.

Lieut.-Col. Charles F. Duchein, United States Marine Corps, of Baton Rouge, La., had returned from missions over the Japanese lines and was aboard the Bismarck Sea only a short time before she was hit. He went over the side with another observer, Capt. Norman Goulet of South Milwaukee, Wis., and together they were about 1,000 yards away when the Bismarck Sea sank.

Both told of the merciless strafing. Duchein said that the Japanese repeatedly attacked swimmers near the sinking carrier. He said he saw at least one rubber raft riddled by enemy fire and its occupants hit. He credits Capt. Goulet with the rescue of one of the carrier's officers.

"He was an elderly man, and he was badly scared," the lieutenant-colonel said. "He was ready to give up. Norm kept him encouraged by telling him he'd see a raft over the next wave. It was a lie, but it worked."

Duchein and Goulet praised the skipper of a tiny destroyer escort who encouraged men throughout their peril in the water by shouting to them through a loudspeaker that help was on its way.

First Lieut. Harold Crump, Hughes Springs, Tex., ordinarily a tank officer with the Fourth Marine Division, came in from an aerial mission over Iwo almost at the moment that the Bismarck Sea was fatally attacked. Crump went over the side but was unable to clear the sinking ship. While he was still perilously close to the carrier an explosion lifted him fifteen feet out of the water. He was not injured.

Capt. H. Grady Gatlin of Nashville, Tenn., had just returned from a mission and was entering the wardroom of the Bismarck Sea for a meal when the carrier was hit. He was thrown under a table. Ten minutes later he went over the side.

The other two Marine observers who were rescued are: Second Lieut. John F. Sutkus of Toledo, Ohio, and Capt. Edward H. Statton of Waco, Tex.

CANADIAN CORVETTE SUNK

One Dead, 5 Missing, 95 Safe in Torpedoing of Trentonian

OTTAWA, March 25 (AP)—The Canadian corvette Trentonian has been torpedoed and sunk with one officer killed and five ratings listed as missing, Navy Minister Angus Macdonald announced tonight. There were ninety-five survivors.

The corvette, the tenth lost by Canada since the war started, was on daylight convoy duty and sank in fourteen minutes. The announcement did not give the location nor the time of the sinking. The corvette was commanded by Lieut. Colin S. Glassco of Hamilton, Ont.

JAPS REPORT LANDING BID IN RYUKYUS

U.S. Carrier Flyers Sink 8-Ship Jap Convoy In Island Group

San Francisco, March 25 (AP)—The Japanese Domei news agency tonight reported American troops had "attempted a landing" at Okinawa Island in the Ryukyu chain Monday morning (Japanese time). There was no Allied confirmation.

The broadcast, beamed to the United States, was picked up by the Federal Communications Commission.

Main Island Of Ryukyus

Okinawa is the main island in the Ryukyu chain, which stretches between the southernmost Japanese mainland island of Kyushu and the big island of Formosa to the south. It has airfields and several good harbors suitable for warship anchorages.

Okinawa is about 325 air miles southwest of Kyushu and 365 miles northeast of Formosa, the pivotal base guarding Japan's southern flank.

Domei said the Americans attempted the invasion at 7.30 A.M., Monday (Japanese time).

Crash Kills U.S. Flyers

New York, March 25 (AP)—The Stockholm radio said two American flyers were killed today when a Liberator bomber crashed near Falsterbo on the southern tip of the Scandinavian peninsula. Eight flyers survived and were taken into custody, the broadcast added.

ALLIES SEEK TO BOOST PRODUCTION IN FRANCE

WASHINGTON, March 25—(AP) High civilian officials are pressing for creation of an Anglo-French-American production board in Paris which would tie French industry more closely into the Allied war effort.

Without it, these sources claim, the badly needed French textile output may go uncontrolled save for such military orders as it can be persuaded to accept, while United States and British textile production goes overwhelmingly to war use and civilian shortages worsen.

A production man with strong backing from this government should head the U. S. representation, it is argued, rather than to leave the situation in the hands of army officers who are primarily concerned with their own on-the-spot needs.

FROZEN FUNDS TO BE TAPPED

U.S. Creditors To Collect From Foreign Firms

Washington, March 25 (AP)—The Treasury opened the way today for American creditors to collect debts out of certain frozen funds in this country.

Funds involved are those belonging to firms and individuals in France, Belgium, Greece, Finland, Poland, Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania.

All of those European areas have been virtually cleared of the enemy and are no longer classed as enemy territory. Postal communication has been restored with each country.

Treasury Is Ready

The Treasury said it is now prepared, "in appropriate cases," to grant licenses for payments to creditors from the blocked accounts.

Treasury officials said the action was particularly designed for American creditors.

Although this Government has permitted the French and Belgian governments to use their own blocked funds practically without restriction, very few licenses have been granted for use of the private funds. Those were in cases of extreme hardship.

From now on the United States is willing to consider claims for debt payment on their merits. It was indicated unofficially that, generally speaking, any American creditor who can get a payment instruction from the debtor will be given a license except in unusual circumstances.

Evidence To Be Required

Licenses may be issued without such payment orders where there has been a court judgment in favor of the creditor (a number of such judgments are on file now). But in such cases the Treasury will require evidence that the debtor has received actual notice of the proceedings and has had a reasonable chance to appear.

The Treasury said it had no figures on the amount of debts owed out of the frozen funds. The funds themselves are in the hundreds of millions of dollars.

The action does not change the status of funds owned by persons in any country which the United States has declared war.

REHABILITATION, AIM OF FILIPINOS

Finance Minister Declares Independence Irrelevant

Washington, March 25 (AP)—Jaime Hernandez, Finance Minister of the Philippine Government, said tonight it is not necessary to delay independence in order to rehabilitate the islands.

Postponement was suggested last week by Paul V. McNutt, former high commissioner to the Philippines.

Said McNutt: "If the Filipinos defer the question of independence they are more likely to get a sympathetic reaction from Congress on rehabilitation measures."

Hernandez told an interviewer he regarded rehabilitation entirely separate from the political question.

The latter already has been settled, he said.

Independence Set For 1946

Under existing legislation independence is fixed for July 4, 1946. An amendment permits the President to advance the date if he deems proper.

If Congress would wish to help the islands with rehabilitation, the political relationship of the two nations should not be a barrier, Hernandez contended.

McNutt said if the islands "step off into an uncharted sea" they are headed for trouble.

Senator McKellar (D., Tenn.) also took the view today that rehabilitation should be pursued before the Philippines become independent.

Island Survey Approved

He disclosed that the Senate Appropriations Committee has approved legislation to survey the islands' economic problems, pending a grant of freedom.

"I do not mean that we should not give the Philippines their independence. We should and we shall. But while we are talking about it, we should give them what they need," McKellar observed.

He said the Appropriations Committee has approved an amendment to the deficiency appropriation bill for $80,000 to pay salaries and expenses of a new high commissioner and technical assistants to survey island conditions.

The Tydings Amendment

Under the amendment, sponsored by Senator Tydings (D., Md.), the commissioner would be sent to the Philippines immediately and report back to the Philippines' Rehabilitation Commission which is currently seeking to determine Philippines needs.

A two-thirds vote or unanimous consent is needed to write such legislation into an appropriations bill, but McKellar predicted it would be accepted.

TAFT BACKING MEXICAN PACT

Favors Approval Before Security Parley Begins

Washington, March 25 (AP)—The promise of Republican support today bolstered the high-stake hand the Administration is playing for Senate ratification of a Mexican water treaty before the San Francisco world security conference begins.

Senator Taft (R., Ohio), chairman of the minority steering committee, said he hoped the treaty would be approved, possibly with some reservations which Senator Connally (D., Texas), chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, already has indicated he would draft.

Taft told a reporter he thought it would be a "bad thing" for the Senate to fail to ratify the international agreement just before the United Nations delegates meet, April 25, to begin drafting a world peace-keeping organization.

Speaks Of Criticism

"Aside from the merits of the treaty itself," he said, "I think any such action would give rise to criticism in the country that the Senate is incapable of coming to a two-thirds agreement on international matters."

Taft said he would oppose any effort to make a partisan matter of opposition or support of the pending treaty or others that may come before the Senate subsequently. Senator Hawkes (R., N.J.) reportedly attempted to rally GOP forces against the Mexican agreement last week but failed.

Risks Involved

Administration leaders concede there are heavy risks involved in their efforts to win approval of the Mexican treaty before the United Nations delegates meet.

Connally informed a reporter he thought the American delegation, of which he is a member, couldn't afford to go to San Francisco without the water treaty having been ratified. Other nations, Connally explained, might interpret this failure as endangering the fate in the Senate of any international organization agreement that might be drawn there.

For that reason, he obviously is ready to accept some reservations to the Mexican agreement which should help clear it through the Senate. He cannot, however, agree to a downward revision in the 1,500,000 acre-feet of water Mexico is promised from the Colorado River without completely junking the treaty.

Dangerous Precedents Feared

Connally and other leaders recognize, too, that dangerous precedents may be established in the minds of some Senators if they permit too many reservations to the Mexican treaty or lose their fight against actual amendments that may be offered.

When the world security treaty comes before the Senate, opponents apparently will avoid a frontal assault upon it, concentrating their efforts on attempts to attach to it reservations and amendments.

If they can point to a long line of such changes in the Mexican agreement, they may claim a psychological advantage that the Administration leaders certainly don't want them to have.

FOREIGN NEWS FACILITY URGED

Wheeler Says Sending Unit Should Not Be Monopoly

Washington, March 25 (AP)—Senator Wheeler (D., Mont.) contended today that facilities for bringing in foreign news to the American press should operate independently of any postwar international communications monopoly.

The chairman of the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee asserted that preservation of Press Wireless, Inc., is essential to American policy in the field of communications.

His committee began hearings last week with a view to laying the groundwork for a legislative program. Sessions will resume Tuesday.

"The committee is getting all the factual information and all the recommendations it can," he said.

Wheeler Opposes Plan

Wheeler added that he was personally opposed to a navy proposal calling for a private communications corporation with five of its twenty directors drawn from the Cabinet, with inclusion of Press Wireless in the vast American monopoly.

"Press Wireless was set up as a nonprofit organization to handle news for the newspapers of this country," Wheeler said. "A continuation of its independent service is important to our free press."

Inquiries so far, he said, raise the question whether the demand for postwar radio frequencies by the various companies will be so great that there will not be a sufficient for all.

Problem Termed Technical

"That is a technical problem," he continued. "If it is apparent that there aren't enough to meet demands for Government and commercial uses, the question arises whether it is desirable to do away with competition and consolidate existing service organizations."

Both the Navy and the Federal Communications Commission insisted last week that unification is necessary, but Paul V. Porter, FCC chairman, said he was not ready to offer definite proposals.

He, like Wheeler, opposes Cabinet members on the board of directors of a private corporation.

No Voting Control

"It seems to me that under the Navy's proposal the Government would be held responsible for the actions of a monopoly over which it had no voting control," Wheeler said today.

"Another plan would be a completely private monopoly adequately regulated by the Government."

He said he would favor Government ownership over a private monopoly if the Government had to subsidize the latter.

"I am doubtful in my own mind whether we should turn over the Government's wartime investment of $250,000,000 in communications facilities abroad to a private monopoly," Wheeler said.

C. OF C. AGAINST LENDING PLAN

Accepts Bretton Woods Stabilization Objectives

Washington, March 25 (AP)—The United States Chamber of Commerce today recommended this country's participation in the international bank planned at Bretton Woods, but urged deferment of action on the companion international monetary fund.

The chamber, through a report to its Finance Committee approved by its board of directors, expressed "complete agreement" with the stabilization objectives of the Bretton Woods proposals. But, like the American Bankers Association, it criticized the proposed lending procedure under the monetary fund.

The report suggested that the $9,100,000,000 bank could be set up independently of the $8,800,000 monetary fund by a "slight amendment" to the articles of agreement and the bank could then study monetary stabilization and submit recommendations to the member nations."

"Ultraliberal Conditions"

The finance committee is headed by Robert M. Hanes, of Winston-Salem, N.C., a former president of the A.B.A.

The A.B.A. made a report last month calling proposed lending methods under the stabilization fund "novel and contrary to accepted credit principles." The U. S. C. of C. report referred to "ultraliberal conditions applying to credits."

The question of United States participation in the 44-nation postwar stabilization setup is now before Congress. The Administration has expressed opposition to such severing of bank and fund

Four Recommendations

The Chamber's specific recommendations:

1. That the United States participate in the international bank for reconstruction and development.

2. That the board of governors of the bank make a study of the question of monetary stabilization with a view to submission of recommendations to the nations concerning (A) any necessary broadening of its powers to include the negotiation of stabilization loans, (B) the international monetary fund, or (C) some other mechanism, with operations of the fund or other agency properly integrated with those of the bank.

3. That the bank assume such interim stabilization activities, including agreements and loans, as may be permitted by its articles of agreement, which give definite authorization for loans and guarantees in special circumstances for purposes other than specific projects of reconstruction and development.

4. That Congress defer action on the participation of the United States in an international monetary fund pending submission of recommedations by the board of governors of the bank with regard to the stabilization of exchanges

The Committee urged "full disclosure of proposed postwar loans and other international financial undertakings of the United States as a means of gaining a proper perspective."

It stressed "the importance of sound management of experienced officials, if an international institution, whether intended for monetary stabilization or long-term credits, is to be successful."

U.S. to Enter Coal Dispute Unless Deadlock Ends Soon

Nation-Wide Strike Vote Set for 400,000 Bituminous Miners Wednesday.

WASHINGTON, March 25—(AP) The government reluctantly prepared today to step into the soft coal wage conferences if the next few crucial days do not end the deadlock between operators and John L. Lewis.

By next Saturday at midnight the present contract is due to expire and if Lewis has not agreed to extension, spasms of work interruption or a halt on a "no-contract, no-work" basis might well follow.

On Wednesday the National Labor Relations Board will conduct, as a result of notice by Miner President Lewis that a dispute existed, a nationwide strike vote among the 400,000 bituminous miners.

The U. S. Conciliation Service intends to hold off as long as a ray of light emanates from the present negotiations between committees representing operators and United Mine workers.

War Labor Board Chairman George W. Taylor says "it's up to the conciliation service to move first; we have no immediate plans."

Neither Secretary of Labor Perkins, who directs the Conciliation service and must therefore take the initiative among all government agencies, nor Secretary of Interior Ickes, who took over the mines and wrote the agreement ending the controversy two years ago, has been eager to act thus far.

Miss Perkins was reticent about her plans and one source close to Ickes said "he's not reaching" for the mines.

There was no guaarntee that if President Roosevelt finds it advisable to order government seizure that he would again assign the job to Ickes. This time that task might go to the Army. In any event, government operation is not expected to be ordered until after the strike vote has been completed Wednesday, at the earliest.

PARIS--~~INSERT AFTER 26TH GRAF~~ WESTERN FRONT ORIGINAL ENDING X X X OF THE REICH.

CENSORSHIP PERMITTED DISCLOSURE THAT THE FAMOUS FIRST INFANTRY DIVISION WAS IN ACTION ON THE BRIDGEHEAD, ALONG WITH THE NINTH, 78TH AND 99TH INFANTRY DIVISIONS.

THE FIRST INFANTRY CAUGHT THE BRUNT OF SATURDAY'S MAJOR GERMAN ATTACKS, HURLING BACK 14 IN 24 HOURS AND DESTROYING 23 TANKS AND SELF-PROPELLED GUNS.

ONE ARMORED DIVISION, PUSHING EAST SIX MILES TODAY, CAPTURED FLAMMERSFELD, 14 MILES EAST OF THE RHINE. ON THE SOUTH FLANK, TROOPS SPEARED THROUGH BENSDORF AND CAPTURED VALLENDAR, THREE MILES FROM COBLENZ AND ABOUT 11 MILES FROM THE THIRD ARMY'S NEW CROSSINGS.

THE GERMANS WERE KNOCKED BACK ALL ALONG THE LINE. THE LUNGE CAUGHT THE NAZIS AS THEY WERE BUILDING UP TO LAUNCH A MAJOR COUNTERBLOW AGAINST THE NORTHEASTERN FLANK OF THE BRIDGEHEAD.

ENDLESS COLUMNS OF TROOPS AND ARMOR PUSHED AHEAD IN A SERIES OF LEAPFROG ATTACKS.

"WE HAVEN'T BEEN GIVEN ANY ORDERS TO STOP, AND WE DON'T INTEND TO SLOW UP UNTIL WE PUT ON THE BRAKES TO KEEP FROM SKIDDING INTO BERLIN," ONE COMMANDER SAID.

A FRONT DISPATCH DECLARED THIS WAS ANOTHER "ST.LO" FOR THE FIRST ARMY, WHICH BROKE FROM THE NORMANDY BEACHHEAD.

ON THE THIRD ARMY FRONT, EVENTS WERE MOVING FASTER THAN HAD PATTON'S DRIVE TO THE RHINE. DUE TO THE CONFUSION IN ENEMY RANKS, TOTAL GAINS FOR THE DAY WERE BLACKED OUT BY CENSORSHIP.

IT WAS PERMITTED TO DISCLOSE, HOWEVER, THAT OTHER THIRD ARMY ELEMENTS HAD MOVED 12 MILES NORTHWEST OF DARMSTADT, AND THE FIFTH INFANTRY IN ADVANCES UP TO TWO MILES WERE 10 MILES SOUTHWEST OF FRANKFURT-ON-THE-MAIN.

FORCES PUSHING OUT SOUTH AND WEST OF DARMSTADT WIDENED THE BRIDGEHEAD TO MORE THAN 14 MILES, CAPTURING EBERSTADT, PFUNGSTADT, GODDELAU, JUGGENHEIM AND HANN.

THE THIRD SEIZED ASTHEIM, WALLERSTAEDTEN, BAUSCHEIM, KOENIGSSTAEDTEN, NAUHEIM, GROSS GERAU AND KLEIN GERAU, FIVE TO 10 MILES WEST AND NORTHWEST OF DARMSTADT, AND BUETTELBORN, DORNHEIM AND GREISHEIM, IN AN ARC FIVE MILES FROM DARMSTADT.

PATTON'S TROOPS PROCESSED A NEW RECORD BAG OF 18,818 PRISONERS SATURDAY, RAISING ITS TOTAL SINCE LAST AUGUST TO 297,950--THE GREATEST NUMBER CAPTURED BY ANY WESTERN FRONT ARMY.

IN ONE TOWN, ERFELDEN, CAPTURED SATURDAY, GERMAN CIVILIANS AND POLICEMEN FOUGHT THE AMERICANS WITH BAZOOKAS AND RIFLES.

WITH SEIZURE OF LUDWIGSHAFEN, PATTON GOT THE BIGGEST PLANT YET TO FALL IN ALLIED HANDS--THE THREE-MILE LONG I.G.FARBEN ESTABLISHMENT WHICH IS A CENTER OF CHEMICAL PRODUCTION AND RESEARCH AND A MAJOR SOURCE OF THE REICH'S SYNTHETIC OIL. IT WAS ONE OF FIVE MAIN FARBEN PLANTS. THREE OTHERS ALREADY ARE DESTROYED OR IN ALLIED HANDS.

THE U.S.SEVENTH ARMY STILL WAS PILING UP PRISONERS AS ARMY HEADQUARTERS ANNOUNCED IT HAD WON ALL THE WEST BANK OF THE RHINE IN ITS ZONE. THE 101ST DIVISION CLEANED OUT A SMALL NAZI POCKET WEST OF KARLSRUHE. GERMANS BLEW THE LAST RHINE BRIDGE AT GERMERSHEIM SATURDAY. GERMAN ARTILLERY WAS SILENT EXCEPT TO COVER TROOPS ATTEMPTING TO ESCAPE OVER THE RHINE IN THE BERG AREA.

LT.GEN.JACOB L.DEVERS, SIXTH ARMY GROUP COMMANDER, TOURED THE FRONT, AND AT A CONFERENCE WITH MAJ.-GEN.JOHN E.DAHLQUIST, 36TH DIVISION COMMANDER, EXPRESSED SATISFACTION WITH THE RAPID WAY IN WHICH THE SAAR AND PALATINATE HAD BEEN CLEANED UP.

THE SEVENTH'S SOLDIERS FREED A NUMBER OF FRENCH TROOPS IMPRISONED BY THE GERMANS FOR FIVE YEARS, ALONG WITH FRENCH, RUSSIAN, AND GREEK CIVILIANS.

IN THE MOP-UP, THE SEVENTH ARMY BAGGED ABOUT 9,000 PRISONERS UP TO SATURDAY MIDNIGHT, INCLUDING COL.SCHREIBER, COMMANDER OF THE 12TH SS (ELITE) MOUNTAIN REGIMENT.

THIS BROUGHT TOTAL PRISONERS FOR TEN DAYS SINCE THE SEVENTH JUMPED OFF TO 30,000.

FEW OFFICERS WERE TAKEN, INDICATING THAT MOST OF THEM HAD FLED ACROSS THE RHINE. SCHRIEBER WAS NABBED TRYING TO CATCH A FERRY.

SHOWING THE EXTENT TO WHICH THE GERMAN FIRST AND SEVENTH ARMIES HAD BEEN SHATTERED, THE 409TH REGIMENT OF THE 103RD INFANTRY DIVISION COUNTED PRISONERS FROM 14 DIFFERENT DIVISIONS IN ONE DAY.

THE 79TH WAS THE FIRST OUTFIT TO ENTER CHERBOURG. THEN FOLLOWED BATTLES ACROSS FRANCE. THE 79TH, WHEN IT WAS PART OF THE U.S. 7TH ARMY, CLAIMED TO BE THE FIRST U.S.DIVISION TO REACH THE RHINE IN DECEMBER. THE REGISTRATION CATCHES SOME NAZIS OF DUBIOUS RECORDS AND THEY ARE HELD FOR CLOSER SCRUTINY FOR POSSIBLE WAR CRIME GUILT. IT ALSO CATCHES NUMEROUS RECENT DESERTERS FROM THE GERMAN ARMY, WHO ARE HUSTLED OFF TO WAR PRISONER CAMPS.

ALSO, IT ALMOST AUTOMATICALLY CATCHES MANY YOUNG WOMEN. VIRTUALLY ALL HAD BEEN MEMBERS OF THE BDM (SOCIETY OF GERMAN MAIDENS). BOYS OF THE HITLER YOUTH ARE MOSTLY IN THE ARMY OR EAST OF THE RHINE BUT MANY GIRLS STAYED HOME. THE GIRLS' USUAL EXPLANATION IS THAT THE GERMAN GIRL HAD NO CHOICE IN MEMBERSHIP. MOST INSIST THEY DIDN'T LIKE IT. SUCH AN EXPLANATION USUALLY IS ACCEPTABLE.

THE WORD IS GETTING AROUND THAT THE REGISTRATION ISN'T SO BAD, ONLY NAZI REDHOTS HAVE TO WORRY.

THERE ARE NAZIS ABOUT, OF COURSE, BUT A GUILELESS PERSON WOULD NOT KNOW IT FROM TALKING TO THESE PEOPLE. THE UNANIMOUS ANSWER OF A DOZEN GERMANS ENGAGED IN SEPARATE CONVERSATIONS WAS THAT THE WAR IS LOST AND WHILE THE PRICE IS HIGH, IT IS ALMOST WORTH IT TO BE RID OF HITLER.

THE FIFTH INFANTRY'S CROSSING WAS ONE OF THE SMOOTHEST AMPHIBIOUS OPERATIONS ON RECORD DUE IN LARGE PART TO THE THOROUGH PLANNING OF LT.COL. RICHARD L.MCKEE OF WILLIAMSPORT, PA., DIVISION SUPPLY AND TRANSPORTATION OFFICER.

MCKEE HAD ONLY ONE DAY AND A HALF TO SET UP A TRAFFIC PLAN AND DISTRIBUTE INSTRUCTIONS TO THE VARIOUS UNITS. HE QUICKLY WORKED OUT A LAN WHICH RESULT

A PLAN WHICH RESULTED IN MINIMUM CONFUSION AT CROSSING SITES.

WHEN SOME BOATS DID NOT ARRIVE QUICKLY ENOUGH, MCKEE IMPROVISED RAFTS AND FERRIED TANKS ACROSS. HE INSTITUTED AN AREA SYSTEM WHEREBY VEHICLES WERE CALLED UP FOR CROSSING AT CERTAIN INTERVALS, ENABLING A SMOOTH FLOW OF TRAFFIC AT ALL TIMES.

THE DOUGHBOYS WHO TOUCHED THE FIRST ASSAULT BOAT AGAINST THE EAST BANK OF THE RHINE THE NIGHT OF MARCH 22 REPRESENTED A ROLL CALL OF SEVEN STATES.

THEY WERE FROM "K" COMPANY AND INCLUDED THE COMPANY COMMANDER, LT. IRVIN S. JACOBS OF HAYES, KANS., LT. JOHN A. MANNAW OF RENSSELAER, IND., CPL. RICHARD E. ROSE OF KALAMAZOO, MICH., PFCS ARTHUR H. INFANTRYMEN IN THE NORTHERNMOST ASSAULTS WERE CAUGHT BY GERMAN CROSSFIRE.

OF ALL THE RHINE CROSSING SITES PROBABLY NONE WERE MORE FORBIDDING THAN THOSE ASSIGNED TO THIS INFANTRY UNIT, DEEP IN A GORGE WHERE THE RIVER IS 1,500 TO 1,800 FEET WIDE. SEMI-PERPENDICULAR HILLS TOWER 900 FEET OR HIGHER ON BOTH SIDES.

UNLIKE THE TERRAIN IN THE BRIDGEHEAD SOUTH OF MAINZ, THE GROUND IN THIS AREA EAST OF THE RHINE IS DIFFICULT FOR ARMORED OPERATIONS FOR ABOUT 15,000 YARDS AND THEN LEVELS OUT.

ALTHOUGH THE CROSSINGS STARTED JUST AFTER MIDNIGHT, BRILLIANT MOONLIGHT REFLECTED ON THE BROAD, SWIFT RIVER PREVENTED MUCH SURPRISE OR SECRECY.

INDEED, JUST BEFORE ONE UNIT STARTED ACROSS, THE GERMANS FIRED RED FLARES SIGNALLING EACH OTHER TO BE ON THE ALERT.

LT.GILBERT PROCTOR OF NOGALES, ARIZ., WHO WATCHED THE CROSSINGS FROM AN OBSERVATION POST HIGH OVER THE AREA, SAID:

"FOR A WHILE THERE WERE FIREWORKS EVERYWHERE WITH TRACERS CUTTING CRAZY PATTERNS AGAINST THE NIGHT SKY. THE GERMANS ON TOP OF AN EASTERN CLIFF OF THE RHINE GORGE DEFLECTED ACK-ACK GUNS ONTO OUR BOYS AND ALSO LIBERALLY USED BURP GUNS AND SMALL ARMS. THEN THEY OPENED WITH ARTILLERY, LETTING IT FLY HARD AND HEAVY."

SPORADIC ARTILLERY FELL IN THE AREA UNTIL ABOUT NOON TODAY, ALONG WITH HARASSING SNIPER FIRE FROM GERMANS HIDDEN IN THE EASTERN CLIFF.

THE DOUGHBOYS HAD TO FIGHT HARD IN THE GORGE ACROSS THE RIVER BEFORE THE GERMANS WERE DRIVEN OUT.

SOME BOATS THAT TOOK THE FIRST TROOPS ACROSS HAD DIFFICULTY RETURNING BECAUSE OF AN EIGHT TO TEN MILE PER HOUR CURRENT AND INTENSE ENEMY FIRE.

INFANTRYMEN IN ONE CROSSING ALONE TOOK MORE THAN 200 PRISONERS IN THE FIRST 13 HOURS OF OPERATION.

ONE OF THE MOST STRIKING FEATURES IS THE NUMBER OF PRISONERS MOVING REARWARD. THE JEEP IN WHICH PVT.PAUL POISSON OF FLINT, MICH., AND THIS CORRESPONDENT TRAVELED TOWARD THE FRONT PASSED 3,000 OF HITLER'S SOLDIERS STANDING DEJECTEDLY IN AN OPEN FIELD--WITHOUT BARBED WIRE--QUIETLY AWAITING THE NEXT MOVE TO THE REAR.

FROM THERE ON TO THE BRIDGEHEAD, IT ALMOST SEEMED AS THROUGH THERE WERE MORE GERMAN SOLDIERS THAN AMERICANS ON THE ROAD WINDING THROUGH PICTURESQUE MOUNTAINS, VALLEYS AND STREAMS. I COUNTED MORE THAN 100 TRUCKS, EACH CARRYING 60 PRISONERS, IN A FEW HOURS.

GERMAN CIVILIANS WATCHED THEM PASS BEGRIMED, DUST COVERED, CLOSE PACKED IN OPEN TRUCKS.

IN EVERY VILLAGE, WOMEN AND CHILDREN WERE OUT TRYING TO CATCH A GLIMPSE OF A REMEMBERED FACE, AND TOSSING CIGARETS, FRUIT, COOKIES AND OTHER SMALL GIFTS TOWARD EACH TRUCKLOAD.

IN TOWNS RELATIVELY UNTOUCHED BY BOMBING OR ARTILLERY, THE PHENOMENALLY MILD SPRING WEATHER HEIGHTENED THE IMPRESSION THE WAR WAS OVER AND PEACE REALLY WAS HERE. THE DOMINANT EXPRESSION ON CIVILIAN FACES IN SUCH TOWNS WAS RELAXATION AND RELIEF.

THERE WERE OTHER PLACES, HOWEVER, WHERE THE WAR WAS STILL TOO RECENT, TRACES STILL TOO GRUESOMELY EVIDENT, FOR RELAXATION OF THE LONG STRAIN. ROADS CLUTTERED WITH THE WRECKAGE OF GERMAN TRANSPORT, THE TORN CARCASSES OF HORSES, DEAD GERMAN SOLDIERS IN FIELDS AND DITCHES TOLD THE STORY OF THE WHIRLWIND OF WRATH THAT PASSED.

BUT IN MANY PEACEFUL FIELDS FARTHER ON, SPRING PLOWING WAS IN PROGRESS.

THE SIXTH AIRBORNE DIVISION--RED BERETED BRITISH TROOPS WHO DROPPED ON THE NORMANDY BEACHES ON D-DAY-- QUICKLY ORGANIZED AND SWARMED OVER ALL ITS OBJECTIVES WITHIN FOUR HOURS.

THE 17TH AIRBORNE DIVISION PARTICIPATED IN ITS FIRST OPERATIONAL JUMP AND GAINED ITS OBJECTIVES WITHIN EIGHT HOURS, ALTHOUGH SOME OF THE AIRCRAFT HAD OVERSHOT THE DROPPING ZONE AND TROOPS AFTER LANDING HAD TO MAKE THEIR WAY BACK THROUGH ENEMY-INFESTED COUNTRY.

THE 17TH'S MISSION WAS TO CAPTURE HIGH GROUND AND FORESTED AREA NORTHWEST OF WESEL, AND THE BRIDGES OVER THE ISSEL RIVER.

THE 17TH OCCUPIED ITS HIGH GROUND AND CAPTURED SIX BRIDGES INTACT ALTHOUGH IT TANGLED IN BITTER FIGHTING WITH GERMAN PARATROOPERS AND ELEMENTS OF THE 84TH DIVISION.

THE GERMANS SINCE HAVE BROUGHT UP TANKS AND TRIED TO BREAK THROUGH AND DESTROY THE BRIDGES, BUT THEY HAVE FAILED.

ALTHOUGH SOME GERMANS FOUGHT WELL AGAINST THE AIRBORNE TROOPS, MANY WERE HAPPY TO SURRENDER AND BE OUT OF THE FIGHTING.

PRISONERS SAID THEY HAD BEEN BRIEXED ON PROBABLE AIRBORNE LANDINGS BETWEEN WESEL AND EMMERICH, AND THEREFORE WERE NOT SURPRISED WHEN PLANES FILLED THE SKY. MANY THOUGHT GERMANY WAS THOROUGHLY BEATEN.

"EVERY WOMAN AND CHILD IN GERMANY KNOWS WE ARE DEFEATED," SAID ONE OFFICER, "AND YET WE ARE ORDERED TO FIGHT ON."

PRISONERS STREAMING INTO CAGES ACTED AS AS THOUGH THEY WERE HOLDING A REUNION. AS THEY RECOGNIZED FRIENDS, THEY WOULD BACKSLAP ONE ANOTHER AS THOUGH SAYING "HEY, JOE, GLAD TO SEE YOU GOT HERE."

WITH U.S.THIRD ARMY MARCH 25-(AP)-THE FOURTH ARMORED DIVISION RACED 27 MILES EASTWARD OF THE THIRD ARMY BRIDGEHEAD AND CAPTURED A MAIN RIVER BRIDGE INTACT WHILE THE 90TH DIVISION CLEARED OUT DARMSTADT. SEVERAL NEW RHINE CROSSINGS HAVE BEEN MADE BETWEEN COBLENZ AND BOPPARD.

THE FOURTH ARMORED'S DASH REPRESENTED A ROAD DISTANCE OF 40 MILES FROM THE RHINE'S EAST BANK IN THE BRIDGEHEAD AREA BETWEEN WORMS AND MAINZ.

DARMSTADT, HESSIAN CITY WITH A PRE-WAR POPULATION OF 115,526, IS AN IMPORTANT RAILWAY JUNCTION POINT. A CENTER FOR THE MANUFACTURE OF MACHINERY AND CHEMICALS, IT ALSO BOASTED A GOOD AIRPORT.

FORMERLY THE CAPITAL OF THE GRAND DUCHY OF HESSE, IT IS LOCATED AT THE ENTRANCE TO THE ODENWALD, A FOREST AREA.

IN THE SURGE FROM THE BRIDGEHEAD BETWEEN WORMS AND MAINZ, THE THIRD ARMY CAPTURED 700 RAILROAD CARS INTACT. ALL THE CARS WERE FILLED WITH NEW ORDNANCE AND OTHER SUPPLIES, INCLUDING MOTOR VEHICLES, UNIFORMS AND AMMUNITION.

THE MAIN RISES IN THE FFICHTELGEBIRGE, A MOUNTAINOUS AREA IN NORTHERN BAVARIA, AND FLOWS TORTUOUSLY WESTWARD, JOINING THE RHINE OPPOSITE MAINZ, WHERE IT IS 700 FEET WIDE.

IT IS 300 MILES IN LENGTH, AND 240 MILES ARE NAVIGABLE.

THE PRINCIPAL CITIES ON THE RIVER ARE FRANKFURT AND WUERZBURG.

THE FOURTH ARMORED, WHICH REGISTERED ITS 27-MILE GAIN BEFORE NOON, SENT BACK AN APPEAL FOR TRANSPORTATION FOR THOUSANDS OF PRISONERS TAKEN. THE AMERICAN TANK MEN WERE GOING TO FAST TO BOTHER WITH THEM.

BEHIND THE LIGHTNING ADVANCE OF THE TANKS, THE 90TH INFANTRY MET VERY LIGHT RESISTANCE IN DARMSTADT.

ANOTHER FOURTH ARMORED DIVISION COLUMN SWEPT THROUGH THE SUBURBS ROUGHLY FIVE MILES SOUTH AND WEST OF DARMSTADT, INCLUDING PFUNGSTADT, GODDELAU, JUGGENHEIM, HAHNLEIN AND EBERSTADT, AND ENTERED OBERDARMSTADT. TWO MILES SOUTH OF THE CITY.

SPEARHEADING THE FOURTH ARMORED DIVISION'S SPREE WAS LT.COL.CREIGHTON ABRAMS OF COMBAT COMMAND B, OF WHICH LT.COL.HAROLD COHEN'S TENTH ARMORED INFANTRY IS A PART--WHICH WITH THE 37TH TANK BATTALION MADE THE ORIGINAL DASH TO THE RHINE.

AN ENORMOUS AMOUNT OF BOOTY IN FULLY-LOADED RAILWAY CARS WAS TAKEN BY THE FOURTH NEAR JUGGENHEIM, FIVE MILES SOUTH OF DARMSTADT. ANOTHER BIG HAUL WAS MADE AT ZIMMERN, SEVEN MILES EAST OF DARMSTADT.

THE FIFTH INFANTRY CAPTURED TWO COMPANIES OF GERMAN CONVALESCENTS, THROWN FRANTICALLY INTO LINE AS FIGHTING INFANTRY.

IN THE FIRST 36 HOURS, 2,500 PRISONERS WERE TAKEN IN THE BRIDGEHEAD, WITH THOUSANDS MORE TAKEN SINCE. THE FIFTH INFANTRY ALONE SEIZED 2,700, OF WHICH 1,806 FELL TO THE ELEVENTH REGIMENT WHICH MADE THE INITIAL CROSSING.

WITH THE OCCUPATION OF DARMSTADT, THE 90TH INFANTRY TOOK OVER A CITY WHICH ONCE WAS THE CAPITAL OF THE GRAND DUCHY OF HESSE. IT IS A MACHINERY, CHEMICAL AND MANUFACTURING CENTER, AN IMPORTANT RAILROAD JUNCTION AND HAS A GOOD AIRPORT. IT IS LOCATED AT THE ENTRANCE TO THE PICTURESQUE ODENWALD FOREST.

THIRD ARMY ADVANCE ELEMENTS ARE NOW LESS THAN 260 MILES FROM BERLIN.

IF, AND IT'S JUST AN IF, THEY KEEP GOING AT THE PRESENT RATE THEY COULD REACH THE GERMAN CAPITAL IN EIGHT DAYS. ENTHUSIASM IS BOILING OVER IN THE THIRD ARMY, BUT THESE FIGURES ARE JUST ARITHMETIC AND ARE NOT NECESSARILY THE EXPECTATIONS.

WITH THE U.S. NINTH ARMY, MARCH 25-(AP)-ABOUT 15,000 CIVILIANS WHOSE HOMES WERE OVERRUN BY THE NINTH ARMY ON THE EAST SIDE OF THE RHINE REMAINED COWED IN THEIR BATTERED HOMES TODAY, SEEMINGLY DAZED FROM THE 600-SHELL-PER-MINUTE BARRAGE AND INCESSANT BOMBING THAT PRECEDED THE AMERICAN ATTACK.

THE NARROW, DUSTY STREETS IN SOME 25 VILLAGES THE DOUGHBOYS HAVE CAPTURED ARE BEREFT OF CIVILIAN TRAVEL. NOT A MOVING PERSON COULD BE FOUND ALONG THE RHINE--EXCEPT AN OCCASIONAL MILITARY POLICEMAN DIRECTING TRAFFIC UP TO THE FRONT.

THE ONLY AUDIBLE FIRE IN ONE SECTOR WAS THE BARK OF A RIFLE IN THE HANDS OF SGT. FRANK LAVORKA, FORMER YODER, WYO., COWBOY, WHO POTTED ANYTHING HE SAW FLOATING TOWARD A NEWLY-MADE BRIDGE.

TWO MILITARY POLICEMEN DISCUSSED WHICH AMERICAN ARMY WOULD REACH BERLIN FIRST. IF THE RUSSIANS DIDN'T. PFC. RUBEN OSHINSKY OF 22 FAYETTE ST., BROOKLYN, N.Y., AND PVT. ROBERT TAFURI OF 2452 WASHINGTON AVE., THE BRONX, N.Y., DECIDED IT REALLY DIDN'T MATTER WHO WON THE "BERLIN SWEEPSTAKES" AFTER ALL.

ONE BRIDGE WAS OUT OF LINE BECAUSE A POWERLESS LANDING CRAFT HAD FLOAT DOWNSTREAM. CAPT. NORMAN CUSICK OF 829 CASCADE ST., WENATCHEE, WASH., BROUGHT HIS CREW OUT ABOARD ANOTHER CRAFT AND PUSHED THE PONTOON BRIDGE BACK INTO SHAPE.

ATOP A DIKE ON THE EAST BANK, SGT. MORRIS OWENS OF 1122 NORTH SHORE AVE., CHICAGO, SAT ON HIS BLANKET AND CLEANED HIS RIFLE.

IN LOHNER, SGT. EDWARD PICKERING OF 192 SOUTH MAIN ST., BRATTLEBORO, VT., LOOKED FOR A GERMAN SNIPER THE DOUGHBOYS HAD OVERLOOKED.

T-5 DANIEL SMALLEY OF 3216 DOUGLAS ST., SAGINAW, MICH., WENT THROUGH A GERMAN COMMAND POST IN AN ANCIENT CASTLE. THE CLOTHES AND RECORDS LEFT BEHIND INDICATED THE ENEMY DIDN'T TARRY LONG WHEN THE AMERICANS STRUCK.

PFC. ARTHUR FITZPATRICK OF ROUTE ONE, BOX 807, JOPLIN, MO., DUG A PERFECT SLIT TRENCH IN THE RICH RUHR VALLEY SOIL.

WITH THE 17TH AIRBORNE DIVISION, MARCH 25-(AP)-A LINK-UP BETWEEN FIELD MARSHAL MONTGOMERY'S GROUND FORCES AND TROOPS OF THE FIRST ALLIED AIRBORNE ARMY WAS ACCOMPLISHED THIS MORNING WHEN THREE BIG TANK DESTROYERS RUMBLED INTO THE PINE WOODS HIDING THE AIRBORNE'S COMMAND POST.

BRITISH CREWS OPERATING THE 90-MILLIMETER DREADNAUGHTS DIDN'T STOP LONG--JUST SUFFICIENT, IN FACT, FOR THE HILARIOUS AIRBORNE TROOPS TO DO SOME BACK-POUNDING AND HANDSHAKING. THEN THEY THUNDERED ON EASTWARD TO LEND A NEW VOICE OF AUTHORITY TO THE ALLIED DRIVE BEYOND THE RHINE.

THE BRIDGEHEAD THIS MORNING EXTENDS ALONG THE EAST BANK OF THE RHINE FROM WESEL TO A POINT ABOUT TWO MILSMDOWNSTREAM FROM REES. AT THIS TIME THE DEEPEST PENETRATION OF THE BULGE WAS SOMETHING MORE THAN FIVE MILES.

A VALIANT BAND OF GLIDER PILOTS--DOUGHFOOTS CALL THEM G-P'S--HELD OFF THE BIGGEST COUNTERATTACK THE GERMANS COULD MUSTER LAST NIGHT AND IN THE HOURS BEFORE DAWN TODAY.

THAT WAS DOWN ON A SECTOR HELD BY THE 194TH REGIMENT. THEY STOOD FIRM, AS A LONE MARK FOUR TANK AND ABOUT 150 GERMAN INFANTRYMEN APPROACHED. THE MOON WAS STILL BRIGHT AND IT WAS EASY TO SEE EXCEPT IN THE SHADOWS. THAT'S WHERE THE G-P'S WERE CONCEALED WITH BAZOOKAS, ANTITANK GUNS, CARBINES, GRENADES AND ANY OTHER WEAPONS THEY COULD FIND.

WHEN THE HEAD OF THE ENEMY COLUMN WAS A LITTLE MORE THAN 100 FEET AWAY, THE PILOTS CUT LOOSE WITH A DEAFENING BARRAGE. THE SMOKING TANK TURNED TAIL AND THE JERRIES FOLLOWED SUIT.

THEREAFTER IT WAS STRICTLY A RACE BETWEEN GERMAN TANKS AND DAYLIGHT. WE KNEW AND THEY KNEW THAT SWARMS OF MUSTANGS AND TYPHOONS WOULD BE UP WITH THE DAWN, SCOURGING GERMAN TARGETS. WITH A MUCH-APPRECIATED ASSIST FROM THE G-P'S, DAYLIGHT WON.

TODAY THE SKIES ARE SLIGHTLY HAZY, BUT THERE IS THE CONSTANT DRONE OF FIGHTER PLANES OVERHEAD AND WE ARE GETTING ALMOST NO TROUBLE FROM GERMAN ARTILLERY AND NONE AT ALL FROM THE GERMAN AIR FORCE.

NAZI NIGHT FIGHTERS WERE BUSY LAST NIGHT. ONE WAS SHOT DOWN BY GROUND GUNNERS OF THE 194TH. A JUNKERS 88 CRASHED INTO A FIELD JAMMED WITH WRECKED GLIDERS AND SET THE WHOLE LOT BLAZING.

NOW WE ARE WAITING FOR MORE AMMUNITION, MORE JEEPS AND MORE CHOW. THEY HAVE PROMISED US SOME BY AIR AND MORE SHOULD BE COMING OVERLAND SINCE THE JUNCTION WITH THE GROUND FORCES.

WITH THE U.S.SEVENTH CORPS IN GERMANY, MARCH 25-(AP)-DIRECTED BY A BOMB DISPOSAL OFFICER, AN ARMY SURGEON TODAY SUCCESSFULLY REMOVED AN UNEXPLODED ROCKET PROJECTILE FROM A SOLDIER'S THIGH.

THE SOLDIER WAS STRUCK DURING A TEST-FIRING OF A CAPTURED WEAPON YESTERDAY. THE PROJECTILE BURIED ITSELF FIN-DEEP IN HIS FLESH ABOUT SEVEN INCHES ABOVE THE KNEE. THE MAIN EXPLOSIVE CHARGE HAD BEEN REMOVED, BUT THE ROCKET STILL HELD A BOOSTER CHARGE EASILY STRONG ENOUGH TO HAVE BLOWN OFF HIS LEG.

GENTLY THE SOLDIER WAS LIFTED INTO AN AMBULANCE WHICH CREPT TO A HOSPITAL AT SNAIL'S PACE.

X-RAY EXAMINATION DISCLOSED THE ROCKET STUCK AGAINST THE BONE. A BOMB DISPOSAL OFFICER FROM CENTERVILLE, MISS., WHOSE NAME MAY NOT BE DISCLOSED, ACCOMPANIED A SURGEON INTO THE OPERATING CHAMBER AND USED THE X-RAY IN DIRECTING WHERE TO MAKE THE INCISION.

THE BOMB DISPOSAL MAN CARRIED THE PROJECTILE AWAY AS A SOUVENIR, WHILE THE PATIENT, SURGEON AND EVERYBODY ELSE IN THE HOSPITAL SIGHED WITH RELIEF.

BERN, SWITZERLAND, MARCH 25-(AP)-FEAR FOR THE ULTIMATE SAFETY OF ALLIED WAR PRISONERS AND CONSCRIPTED FOREIGN WORKERS IN GERMANY IS INCREASING AS THE EASTERN AND WESTERN OFFENSIVES CLAMP A PINCERS TIGHTER ON THE REICH.

THE INTERNATIONAL RED CROSS HAS LOST CONTACT WITH HUNDREDS OF THOUSANDS AMONG THE 15 MILLION PRISONERS AND WORKERS IN GERMANY.

ALTHOUGH THE RED CROSS RECENTLY USED ALLIED ARMY TRUCKS FOR A DASH TO SOME CAMPS WITH FOOD PARCELS, THE GENERAL SITUATION IS CONFUSED AND CRITICAL.

THOUSANDS ARE BELIEVED TO HAVE BEEN RESCUED BY THE RUSSIAN ADVANCES AND OTHERS TO HAVE BEEN RESCUED OR TO HAVE ESCAPED AS THE BRITISH AND AMERICANS PUSHED ACROSS THE RHINE. YET THE FATE OF HUNDREDS OF THOUSANDS IS IN DOUBT. THEY MAY HAVE BEEN LEFT TO SHIFT FOR THEMSELVES AS THE NAZIS TURN THEIR WHOLE ENERGY TO TRYING TO SAVE THEMSELVES.

WHAT HAPPENED TO MANY WILL NOT BE KNOWN UNTIL LONG AFTER THE WAR--JUST AS IN THE LAST WAR CONTACT WAS LOST IN THE FINAL PERIOD OF CONFUSION.

ASIDE FROM THE NORMAL PRISONERS THERE ALSO ARE "BIG NAMES" WHO MAY BE HELD AS HOSTAGES--LEON BLUM, EDOUARD DALADIER, KURT SCHUSSNIGG OF AUSTRIA, PREMIER STALIN'S SON.

THE ESTIMATED 15,000,000 FOREIGN WORKERS AND PRISONERS OF WAR IN GERMANY INCLUDE ABOUT 2,000,000 FRENCH AND ABOUT 3,000,000 POLES, WITH THE REMAINDER LARGELY RUSSIANS.

RED CROSS NEGOTIATIONS ON TREATMENT OF PRISONERS HAVE NOT YET OBTAINED SOLID RESULTS.

(SAN FRANCISCO, MARCH 25-(AP)-) THE RECONVENED SESSION OF THE JAPANESE DIET WAS REPORTED BY RADIO TOKYO SUNDAY TO HAVE WOUND UP ITS ONE WEEK OF WORK AND TO HAVE SCHEDULED CLOSING CEREMONIES FOR MONDAY.

PREMIER KUNIAKI KOISO APPEARED BEFORE THE HOUSE OF PEERS AND "CLARIFIED THE RESOLUTE ATTITUDE OF THE GOVERNMENT TO CARRY OUT FORCEFUL MEASURES WITHOUT DELAY." THIS CAME ON THE HEELS OF THE PREMIER'S ORDER FOR FORMATION OF A PEOPLE'S VOLUNTEER ARMY IN WHICH THE ENTIRE POPULACE WILL BE ENLISTED IN ANTI-INVASION AND OTHER WAR WORK.

TOKYO SAID THE DIET DURING THE WEEK "CARRIED ON SERIOUS DEBATE WITH REGARD TO TAKING THE INDISPENSABLE STEPS TOWARD STRENGTHENING THE DOMESTIC FRONT FOR THE DECISIVE BATTLE IN VIEW OF THE NEW PHASE OF THE WAR CREATED BY THE FALL OF IWO JIMA."

THE JAPANESE RADIO ALSO REPORTED THAT THE ENTIRE CABINET MET WITH KOISO SUNDAY IN SPECIAL SESSION TO TALK OVER "CURRENT PROBLEMS."

(SAN FRANCISCO,MARCH 25-(AP)-) JAPAN'S DOMEI NEWS AGENCY REPORTED WITHOUT CONFIRMATION TONIGHT (SUNDAY) THAT AMERICAN TROOPS, SUPPORTED BY INTENSIVE BOMBARDMENT, HAD "ATTEMPTED A LANDING" IN THE STRATEGIC RYUKYU ISLANDS SUNDAY MORNING (JAPANESE TIME) (CORRECT) AND FIERCE ENGAGEMENTS WERE TAKING PLACE.

DOMEI SAID THE LANDINGS BEGAN AT 7:30 A.M. ON AKAJIMA AND TOKASHIKI ISLANDS NEAR THE MAIN ISLAND OF OKINAWA.

"THE ENEMY LANDING ATTEMPTED WAS MADE," DOMEI SAID, "AFTER CONTINUOUS AERIAL BOMBING ATTACKS AND NAVY BOMBARDMENTS BY THE ENEMY TASK FORCE SINCE THE MORNING OF MARCH 24 AGAINST OKINAWA, MAIN ISLAND OF THE RYUKYU GROUP, AS WELL AS MIYAKJIMA AND KERAMA JIMA."

A216FX

TOKYO RADIO REPORTED THAT A LARGE AMERICAN TASK FORCE WAS IN THE WATERS JUST SOUTHWEST OF OKINAWA, AND DESCRIBED THE FLEET AS CONTAINING 15 AIRCRAFT CARRIERS, 11 BATTLESHIPS, 10 CRUISERS, 32 DESTROYERS "AS WELL AS INNUMERABLE OTHER AUXILIARY VESSELS."

DOMEI SAID THE AMERICANS TRIED THE INVASION IN "APPROXOMATELY 100 BARGES," AND THE NIPPONESE GARRISONS WERE "NOT FIERCELY INTERCETPING" THE YANKS.

THE NATIONAL BROADCASTING COMPANY PICKED UP A TOKYO RADIO ANNOUNCEMENT THAT 2,000 AMERICAN TROOPS HAD ATTEMPTED TO LAND ON OKINAWA ITSELF.

"AS YET ON MONDAY MORNING NO TRANSPORT FLEET HAS BEEN SIGHTED," TOKYO RADIO REPORTED.

AKAJIMA AND TOKASHIKI ISLANDS, BOTH TINY, ARE ABOUT A MILE APART AND FOUR MILES OR SO WEST OF THE SOUTHERN TIP OF OKINAWA.

(SAN FRANCISCO, MARCH 25-(AP)-) RADIO TOKYO PREDICTED SUNDAY THAT AMERICAN FORCES "WILL SHORTLY TRY TO LAND" IN THE RYUKYU ISLANDS, BETWEEN THE JAPANESE HOMELAND AND FORMOSA.

THE BROADCAST, BEAMED TO GERMANY AND RECORDED BY THE FCC, SPECIFICALLY NAMED OKINAWA AS A POSSIBLE LANDING POINT. IT BOASTED THAT LANDING FORCES WOULD "INDEED EXPERIENCE THE FEROCITY OF THE FORCES MANNING OUR INNER DEFENSE LINES." TOKYO ADDED THAT A TYUKYU INVASION WOULD BE MET BY JAPANESE AIR FORCES BASED IN CHINA, FORMOSA AND ON KYUSHU ISLAND, SOUTHERNMOST OF THE MAIN JAPANESE CHAIN.

TOKYO ASSERTED THAT "OUR AIR FORCE UNITS STATIONED ON KYUSHU AND FORMOSA HAVE MAINTAINED THEIR UNSHATTERABLE FIGHTING STRENGTH."

THE U.S. PACIFIC FLEET OFFICIALLY ANNOUNCED SATURDAY THAT AMERICAN WARSHIPS SHELLED RYUKYU COASTLINES WHILE CARRIER PLANES BLASTED THE ISLANDS LAST FRIDAY AND SATURDAY, JAPANESE TIME. PHILIPPINE BASED BOMBERS HAVE BEEN HITTING FORMOSA ARMY AND NAVY AIR BASES DAILY FOR MANY WEEKS.

7th Army Crosses Rhine To Join Race Into Reich; Spearhead Of 1st Dashes 35 Miles From Bridgehead

NEWS BLACKOUT COVERS SWEEP OF PATTON'S TANKS

Hodges' Forces Smash Into Limburg in 22 Mile Thrust.

FRANKFURT ENTERED

Allied Armies Using New Arms, Tactics, Enemy Reports.

PARIS, Tuesday, March 27.—(AP) The American Seventh army hurdled the Rhine early yesterday, joining six other Allied armies in the drive on Berlin. The Germans reeled back from a series of breakthroughs, in one NIGHT the U. S. First army drove 35 miles.

A bulletin from the First army front said powerful tank forces of Lt. Gen. Courtney H. Hodges had penetrated to the highway town of Heckholzhausen in a 35-mile thrust out of the Remagen-Erpel bridgehead, while other armored units smashed into the junction city of Limburg in a 22-mile thrust.

A front dispatch said the Seventh army's operation was going according to plan several hours after Lt. Gen. Alexander M. Patch's troops had crossed the Rhine.

Allies Use New Weapons

(German advices to Madrid said the big push was the greatest in size and intensity ever mounted by the Allies in Europe and declared the British and American armies were using new arms and tactics.)

Seventh army veterans struck without artillery or air preparation in a surprise assault at an undisclosed point. Earlier the Germans had said the Americans were hammering at the gates of the big traffic center of Karlsruhe, on the south part of the front.

Power-laden U. S. First army tank teams raced unchecked into the city of Limburg. Other armored forces smashed 15 miles eastward, trying to crush the Germans before they could escape a pincers being formed by the First and U. S. Ninth armies.

The U. S. Third army's original breakthrough forces of the Fourth Armored division were ripping into the middle of Germany under a security blackout, probably well beyond positions reported yesterday, when they were 40 miles east of the Rhine.

Mop-up forces swung north into Frankfurt-on-Main, 32 miles from the First Army tanks in Limburg.

Threaten to Split Nazis

As these twin drives threatened to split all German armies in the west, the British Second and U. S. Ninth armies struck with such force in the Ruhr and on the north German plain that a high officer of the First Allied airborne army said "there is nothing to halt a breakthrough."

That was the same sort of word which came from the U. S. First army front, where a field dispatch said "there is no solid line in front of the First army now."

The radio at Frankfurt, Germany's ninth largest city with a peacetime population of 546,000, was heard calling Nazi leaders to report to field commanders "to help round up split German troops."

The U. S. Ninth army drove 17 miles beyond the Rhine against bewildered resistance, fought into the northern suburbs of the Ruhr port of Duisburg, and was by-passing Essen, biggest arsenal city in the Ruhr.

The British Second army had spilled out 15 miles onto the north German plain, and was driving east of Wesel.

(The BBC heard by NBC said the American-British bridgehead had been doubled in size in 24 hours, and another BBC report said the Ninth army was only about three miles from Essen.)

Third Dashes Past Frankfurt

The Third army dashed on 10 miles east of Frankfurt to the river Main opposite Hanau and 13 miles northwest of where tanks seized the river Main bridge at Aschaffenburg on Sunday.

Aschaffenberg is 22 miles southeast of Frankfurt, 235 miles from Berlin, 140 miles from the Czechoslovak border, and 250 miles from the Russians closing in from the east.

As the Allies in the west rolled up sensational successes in a supreme bid to bring war in Europe to a swift conclusion, a "significant conference" was held east of the Rhine by four top American generals.

Gen. Eisenhower met with Lt. Gens. Omar N. Bradley, commander of the 12th army group; and Courtney H. Hodges and George S. Patton, Jr., whose First and Third armies were tearing into the heart of the Reich.

German military spokesmen, declaring that the west and not the east was now the Reich's critical front, said fighting also was raging outside Karlsruhe, indicating that the U. S. Seventh army had become the Seventh Allied army east of the Rhine.

The First army's power-laden breakthrough column was headed east with such bewildering speed that tanks rumbled on past towns where German troops were garrisoned.

The armored forces first fought out onto a road somewhere northeast of Coblenz, broke a German stand and began the race eastward.

This unidentified "mystery column" had broken through the crust of German resistance. The enemy north of its rumbling treads was in swift retreat to avoid being ground to bits between the First and Ninth armies.

The only things slowing the thrusts were debris and demolished bridges. Engineers were in the vanguard, clearing a path with bulldozers.

Nazis Quit Altenkirchen

In the northeastward withdrawal, the Germans gave up the strategic road center of Altenkirchen, 30 miles east of the Rhine and 255 miles southwest of Berlin. The Americans then pressed on east of that city, while other forces reached Herpleroth, two and a half miles to the southeast.

Drives on the north and south of the bridgehead had chopped up the enemy crust into isolated pockets. The principal resistance was offered by disorganized German infantry braced by self-propelled guns and artillery.

Associated Press Correspondent Don Whitehead said the push was much like the Normandy breakthrough, and Correspondent Hal Boyle said, "Hodges men are back in the running with Patton's charging Third army Shermans in the great Allied Berlin derby."

On the north flank the First Infantry division, beating back two successive days of strong German counterattacks, drove forward more than two miles in Eitorf, on the Sieg river 14 miles east of the Rhine.

The Germans were desperately disengaging armor and infantry lest they be overrun. The First army took 3,147 prisoners yesterday.

Patton's Third army probably was accepting this First army challenge the race eastward, but the Third's front-running Fourth Armored division, which hurled the river Main yesterday, was under a news blackout.

Behind it, other armored columns moved into the ruined streets of Frankfurt, birthplace of Goethe. The bridgehead now was 30 miles wide and more than 30 miles deep.

Simultaneously, other 3d Army troops crossed the Rhine somewhere south of Coblenz.

The Germans said Patton was sending down parachute troops in front of his columns to speed the advance.

Northward, where earlier 3d Army crossings of the Rhine had been made six miles south of Coblenz, the 87th Division struck harder resistance, but last was reported about six miles from a junction with the 1st Army pressing south along the river's last bank. The 87th Division had pushed three and a half miles east of the Rhine beyond Boppard, which is seven miles south of Coblenz.

Behind Patton's armor, infantry cleared Hassloch, seven miles east of Mainz, overran several towns between the captured city of Darmstadt and Frankfurt, and pushed on into Frankfurt's outskirts.

The 26th Infantry Division was disclosed to be operating in the 3d Army's original bridgehead along with the 5th and 90th Infantry, the 4th Infantry and 4th Armored Divisions.

The 3d Army took 5,214 prisoners Sunday.

The Germans threw their crack 116th Panzer Division into the path of the 9th Army as it drove through the forests of the Ruhr. A tank battle raged five miles southeast of Dorsten, which is seventeen miles from the Rhine due east of Wesel.

The 30th Infantry Division was in action nine miles north of Essen after a four-mile advance up to late afternoon (Monday). Other 9th Army forces crossed the Lippe River to protect the 30th's north flank, since the British 2d had been unable to keep pace. Forces fighting along the Lippe were twelve miles east of the Rhine and were engaged in another tank battle, south of Gahlen.

The 79th Division, to the south, likewise ran into tank opposition and found the going slower, but it was fighting in Wehoven, a northeastern suburb of Duisburg, a Ruhr port with a pre-war population of 31,000. The 79th captured Heisfeld and pressed two and a half miles east, where it was nine miles northwest of Essen.

The superhighway to Berlin had been cut in at least three places as the British, Americans and Canadians struck out through northern Germany from a solid bridgehead now more than thirty-one miles long.

American air-borne forces north of Wesel, in concert with the British 6th Air-Borne Division, advanced through broken and disorganized enemy forces for extensive gains against opposition so light it was almost non-existent.

Sweeping out of their positions along the Issel River, British parachute troops drove to within a half-mile of Bruenen, which is three miles beyond the Issel north of Wesel. The American air-borne forces made similar gains eastward, and by last accounts both forces still were advancing.

Only on the northwest was resistance still fierce, but British 2d Army headquarters predicted it would weaken there, too, in view of the German retreat east of Wesel.

The whole story of the British advance could not be told because of a partial news blackout.

Scottish troops gave the British 2d Army a bridgehead fifteen miles deep at an undisclosed point.

The Canadians at the western end of that front were making slow but steady progress. They captured Millingen, four miles north of Rees, where the Germans had tried to anchor a line, and likewise took Bienen, four miles northwest of Rees, and then advanced one-fourth of a mile beyond.

NAZI LINES CRUMBLE BEYOND THE RHINE

Patton Enters Suburbs of Frankfurt—Ninth Smashes Enemy Defenses in the Ruhr—British Speed Toward Berlin.

Paris, March 26 (A. P.).—An armored column of the American First Army drove twenty-two miles out of the Remagen bridgehead today while Third Army tanks further south broke into Frankfurt, Germany's ninth city. Details of the First Army's sensational sweep northeast of Coblenz were not disclosed immediately, but a front-line dispatch declared that Gen. Hodges was lashing out with "one of the greatest tank forces ever assembled on the western front," and that the advance, sprung from the north end of the First Army bridgehead, had carried past Altenkirchen, a highway hub twenty miles from the Rhine and 257 from Berlin.

Near the north end of the western front, meanwhile, the American Ninth Army cracked through the Nazi defenses on the Lippe River east of Dorsten, seventeen miles from the Rhine.

Gen. Patton's armor smashed into Frankfurt from the southwest after seizing a Main River bridge intact in a two-column sweep from the Third Army bridgehead over the Rhine. They found miles of ruins in what had been a city of 547,000 and one of Hitler's most important war arsenals.

Nazi Resistance Disorganized.

Patton's Fourth Armored Division was already far beyond Frankfurt, and had dashed across the Main at Aschaffenburg, 235 miles southwest of Berlin, after winning a bridge there.

German resistance in the west was largely broken and disorganized.

Late today, however, the Third Army armor ran into heavy resistance in the Langen area seven miles south of Frankfurt. The Fourth Armored Division reached the Main opposite Hanau, ten miles east of Frankfurt.

American and British Airborne divisions were driving through the broken and disorganized enemy for huge gains against light opposition in the northern sector.

The Ninth Army's Thirtieth Infantry Division, breaking through Nazi defenses on the Lippe River, collided with infantry of the German 116th Panzer Division, and a field dispatch said a heavy battle was raging.

All Set for Breakthrough.

Sweeping out of their positions along the Issel River, British parachute troops drove to within little more than a half-mile of Brunen, six miles northeast of Wesel, and were still advancing.

"There is nothing to halt a breakthrough," the commander of an American airborne unit said tonight.

The spectacular First Army drive was timed with other tank drives farther north in the First Army sector.

"One of the oddest things about it was the way the tanks whipped on past villages where German troops were garrisoned," an officer said. Resistance in some sectors apparently depended on the temperatment of the enemy commander.

The Third Army was racing along unchecked in its drive across the Mainz.

The Fourth Armored Division again had broken loose forty miles beyond the Rhine in a sweep so swift that the Germans were caught without time to blow up the Aschaffenburg Bridge, twenty-two miles southeast of Frankfurt. The division's coup was so complete that Frankfurt was hopelessly outflanked.

"The decisive fighting of the whole war now is unequivocally under way in the west," a German military spokesman said by radio from Berlin, 235 miles from vanguards of Patton's army.

In Suburbs of Duisburg.

The Ninth Army fought in the northeast suburbs of Duisburg, inland port of 431,000 population, and within ten miles of Essen, where the Krupp works have been rebuilt seven times after Allied raids.

The Germans reported fighting outside the Baden capital of Karlsruhe, suggesting yet another crossing by the Seventh Army, which had cleared the Palatinate and routed the last Germans west of the Rhine between Switzerland and Holland.

The whole western front was becoming fluid.

Nearly eighty-five miles of the east Rhine banks were firmly in Allied hands. The final campaign to crush Germany was scoring victories all the way from Wesel to below Frankfurt. Nowhere was the Wehrmacht able to check the Allied attack. Gen. Eisenhower had 1,250,000 combat troops available for the offensive.

With troops already 136 miles deep in the heart of Germany and the Rhine crossed at seven places, the Third Army threw yet another bridgehead across the upper Rhine at an undisclosed place where the river runs rapidly through a gorge. The river was being crossed virtually at will.

The Berlin radio said Patton was using parachute troops in the Darmstadt-Frankfurt area and that infantry had joined airborne troops at Hanau and Aschaffenburg. Although Third Army rampages were partly hidden by censors, the German communique said one of the new Rhine crossings was made between Worms and the captured chemical capital of Ludwigshafen.

British Under Blackout.

At nightfall, a security blackout was imposed on most movements of the British Second Army ten miles beyond the lower Rhine, the same sort of censorship which has prevailed during all important developments.

Duisburg, port of the Ruhr basin, was by-passed as Field Marshal Montgomery's armies moved within grasp of several other big industrial cities. At last reports, Essen (population, 660,000) was ten miles away; the Duisburg suburbs were entered; Mulheim (136,805) was five miles distant; Oberhausen (191,305) four; Dortmund (539,000), twenty-nine, and Muenster (143,748) forty-eight.

Nazis Quit by Thousands.

Germans were surrendering by the thousands. The Twenty-first Army Group in the north, engaging the bulk and best of the sixty or so undersized German divisions in the west, has taken more than 10,000 captives. The total Third Army bag bulged with many more than 300,000 since D day. The First Army took 3,147 yesterday alone. Supreme Headquarters said 248,882 Germans had surrendered since March 1.

Upward of 60,000 more had been killed or wounded seriously.

The enemy army, deprived of more than 300,000 effectives in the west alone since the start of this month, had neither the force nor the mobility to recover from the multiple blows Gen. Eisenhower was striking in increasing numbers and strength.

A light rain fell this morning, but it was neither bad enough to interfere seriously with the armored onslaught nor to cancel out the aerial attacks on the enemy fleeing through blazing villages and cities behind the lines.

At least six armies had been identified fighting beyond the Rhine. Sixteen divisions have been named and a high percentage of these were striking with armored power, growing hourly across numerous Rhine pontoon bridges.

EISENHOWER, GENERALS MEET

Army Chief Confers With Bradley, Patton, Hodges

With U.S. 1st Army, March 26 (AP). General Eisenhower and Lieutenant Generals Omar N. Bradley, George S. Patton, Jr., and Courtney H. Hodges met today in United States Army territory east of the Rhine in what was described officially as "a significant conference."

There was a feeling of victory in the air as Eisenhower, the supreme Allied commander, rode in a jeep across a pontoon bridge.

Eisenhower met his generals at the sprawling Petersberg Hotel—where Prime Minister Chamberlain stayed during his conferences with Adolf Hitler at Bad Godesburg in 1938.

Eisenhower Jubilant

His conference with the commanders of the 12th Army group and its two component forces, the United States 1st and 3d armies, came as Allied troops gained along the Western front. Obviously jubilant, Eisenhower laughed and joked with his generals.

Declaring he expected Hodges's 1st Army "to lick everybody they come up against," Eisenhower said: "They did it all the way across France, and I see no reason why they should stop on the road to Berlin."

Looked Down On Battlefield

Bradley, the 12th Army group commander, chatted with his old friends of the 1st Army. Eisenhower and Hodges huddled at one of the maps showing the progress of the 1st Army's breakout drive from the bridgehead since its attack began before dawn Sunday.

The hotel overlooks the Rhine from atop the 1,086-foot high Petersberg mountain. From its windows Eisenhower could look down on the valley where Hodges's men had fought in from the river, built up a strong force and then struck out eastward.

Eisenhower was accompanied by his aide-de-camp, Lieut. Col. Ernest R. Lee, of San Antonio, Texas. The supreme commander had lunch at 7th Corps headquarters with Maj. Gen. Joseph L. Collins, corps commander.

Ike Visits 1st Army Bridgehead

By Don Whitehead

With the U.S. 1st Army, March 26 (AP)—Smiling and in excellent spirits, General Eisenhower visited the United States 1st Army east of the Rhine today, and declared he expected the 1st Army "to lick everybody they come up against."

"They did it all the way across France, and I see no reason why they should stop on the road to Berlin," the supreme commander said.

There was a feeling of victory in the air as Eisenhower rode in a jeep across a pontoon bridge, and for the first time inspected this bridgehead seized by the 1st Army.

He Looked Younger

Eisenhower obviously was jubilant over developments all along the line. He looked much younger and less careworn than the last time I saw him just before the invasion of Normandy, and he laughed and joked with his generals as they met at the sprawling Peterberg Hotel which overlooks the Rhine from atop the 1,086-foot-high Peterberg Mountain.

It is the same hotel where Prime Minister Chamberlain stayed during his conferences with Hitler at Bad Godesberg in 1938.

With Eisenhower were Lieutenant Generals Omar N. Bradley and Courtney Hodges.

Studied Maps

In the hotel's red plush carpeted terrace restaurant, staff officers had set up maps at one end, while a cheerful wood fire burned in an open fireplace at the other. Bradley chatted with his old friends of the 1st Army, while Eisenhower and Hodges huddled at one of the maps showing the progress of the 1st Army's breakout drive from the bridgehead since the powerhouse attack exploded before dawn Sunday.

From windows of the long room, Eisenhower could look across the beautiful mountains and down into the valley where the Rhine stretched like a broad silver ribbon under gray skies. It was the valley of decision, for down there Hodges's men had fought in from the river, built up a strong force and then struck out eastward.

THIRD ARMY RIPS INTO FRANKFURT

WITH THE U. S. THIRD ARMY, March 26—(AP) Frankfurt echoed tonight to the rumble of U. S. Third army tanks prowling through its ruined streets.

It is not known here how much opposition was found in the southern part of the city, often called the cradle of German democracy. Most of Frankfurt lies on the north bank of the Main river.

Tankmen reported they had seen miles of ruins, testimony to the treminduous beating this ninth largest German city with a normal population of 546,000 took from Allied bombers.

For historic Frankfurt-on-Main, birthplace of Goethe, was one of Hitler's most important arsenals.

It was in Frankfurt that Carl Schurz and his compatriots in 1848 tried to overthrow the monarchy.

Elements of the Fourth Armored division reached the river Main opposite Hanau, 10 miles east of Frankfurt and 13 miles northwest of where tanks seized the bridge at Aschaffenburg yesterday.

The bridgehead between Mainz and Worms now is 30 miles wide and at least 30 miles deep.

The Fourth met and repulsed heavy counter-attacks south of Hanau and in the area of the bridge itself. Armor also was engaged in heavy fighting in the area of Langen, seven miles south of Frankfurt.

Armor captured Moerfeldon, seven miles north of Darmstadt, and entered Walldorf, two miles farther north. Walldorf is about six miles southwest of Frankfurt.

The 87th infantry deepened its bridgehead south of Coblenz to three miles, clearing Lykerhausen and Filsen, north and south of Boppard.

The Third army also made a new crossing of the Rhine, cleared two towns and gained a foothold one mile deep. (This new crossing was not located).

The Fifth infantry now dominates a seven-mile stretch of the river main east of the city of Mainz after capturing Gustavsburg at the junction of the Rhine and Main rivers.

U.S. Tanks Running Rampant Within 247 Miles Of Berlin

With the U.S. 1st Army, March 26 (AP)—Lieut. Gen. Courtney H. Hodges's 1st Army, advancing with the greatest tank force ever assembled on the Western front, crashed through German lines tonight within 247 miles of Berlin.

The farthest point of penetration was the village of Heckholzhausen, 8½ miles northeast of Limburg and 35 miles from its starting point.

The tank forces swept into Limburg on the Lahn River and to the northeast drove through Steinbach and then swung on another 2½ miles to Heckholzhausen.

Many Prisoners Captured

Limburg was reached at 3.45 P.M. by a tank column which started rolling at dawn from positions 5 miles northeast of Coblenz and swept down the broad Frankfurt-Cologne superhighway. Doughboys moved from street to street tonight in Limburg, cleaning out the last feeble German resistance.

North of Heckholzhausen another column reached Hueblingen, 12½ miles north of Limburg and also 247 miles from Berlin.

Hundreds of German prisoners were captured in the armored thrusts. Advanced elements radioed back that they were unable to handle all the prisoners and asked for military police to rush forward and take charge of a column of captives which had reached Steinbach. It was reported 1,000 to 1,500 prisoners were taken.

American tanks were running rampant as they did in the great breakthrough across France.

For hours the column which entered Limburg was a "mystery," with its movements cloaked in secrecy on grounds the enemy did not know where the leading elements of the 1st Army were in their surprise dash to the east.

Tonight the security blanket was lifted to pin-point this advance as tankmen and doughboys gripped one of the most picturesque towns in western Germany. It is a town of some 12,000 population, with its big cathedral standing on the summit of a cliff overlooking Limburg, which sits on the left bank of the Lahr.

Machine Guns Silenced

The only thing that slowed the tanks were demolished bridges and debris piled on roads. Engineers quickly cleared paths with bulldozers and the armor kept driving on.

An officer who flew over the line of advance from Montabaur to Limburg said that as tanks approached a factory on the outskirts of town, enemy machine guns opened up.

"Then I saw a spout of flame and a cloud of dust and guns in the factory stopped firing," he said. "A little farther on, machine guns fired on the tanks again and the Yanks blasted houses from which the fire came," the officer said.

South of Limburg, vehicles were racing to get away from the advancing Shermans. The towns of Openrod and Nentershousen, which straddle the road to Limburg, were left in flames. And in Obererbach north of Nentershousen, civilians were in the streets waving white flags.

Likened To Normandy

This was a day much like the Normandy breakthrough, with tanks plowing forward hell-for-leather and infantry closing behind to mop up bypassed opposition.

There was no solid line in front of the 1st Army. Drives on north and south of the Remagen bridgehead have chopped up the opposition into isolated pockets and the principal trouble comes from self-propelled weapons, artillery and small units of disorganized infantry.

The attack is rolling forward with tremendous power and Hodges is pouring his massed might into the breaches.

To the north, fingers of armor plowed forward against their toughest resistance to a point east of Altenkirchen and the Herpleroth, 2½ miles southeast of Altenkirchen, and to the vicinity of Hasselbach. The Nazis tried to stem the tide with mortars, artillery and self-propelled weapons, but they lacked a fixed position on which to stand.

In Outskirts Of Eitorf

The 1st Infantry Division, which had beaten back strong enemy counterattacks for two days, finally smashed forward for gains of 4,000 yards and had elements in the outskirts of Eitorf on the Sieg River.

Ahead of the 1st Division, German troops pulled back to disengaged troops and armor before being swept up by this tide, which was grinding out steady gains and rounding up hundreds of prisoners. A total of 3,147 prisoners was captured yesterday.

In the center of the attacking line, the 9th Infantry Division ran into heavy small-arms fire and shoved in to clean out the dug-in Germans.

The 99th Division closed in behind the speeding spearhead to consolidate gains, while other units reached Hohr, Grenzhausen and Mallendar, north of Coblenz.

Nazis Ask Prisoners To 'Capture' Them

With U.S. 17th Airborne Division Across the Rhine, March 26 (AP)—Capt. Walter Rudolph, Jr., Pittsburgh, Pa., and his crew probably had as exciting a time as any of the crews forced down in the aerial invasion north of the Ruhr.

He and Copilot Frank Morlis, Jr., Pocatello, Idaho, and radio operator, Sergt. Harold Hisley, Brownsville, Pa., rode a burning C-47 into the ground.

They helped an injured man out of the plane and stumbled into the arms of a group of German soldiers who captured them.

"They took us down to a house, fed us and treated us as nice as they could," Rudolph related. "The more gliders that circled in, the nicer they got. It wasn't an hour until things got hot around them. They asked us to take them prisoner and we did."

Writer Describes 'Little Arnhem'

By Robert C. Wilson

Paris, March 26 (AP)—Twenty-nine parachute troops hurled themselves from the C-46 troop carrier on which I was a passenger at 10.16 A.M. Saturday—just three minutes after we crossed the smoke-masked Rhine at an altitude of 600 feet.

Suddenly the huge plane shuddered. A wing spurted flames. There was a sickening thud as Nazi flak ripped into the ship. A few minutes later I was crawling out of my parachute in a plowed German field 4 miles east of the river.

Things Happen Fast

Things had happened fast—it seemed only a matter of seconds as the crewmen and I plunged from the burning plane. I was too stunned by the terrific jar I got when I landed to recall much detail. Moreover, I was too occupied with getting out of the paths of swarms of British gliders that were swooping into the field.

One of the ships struck power wires, careened past me and crashed with a big burst of flames. Another headed straight for me, skimmed inches over my head and then nosed into the earth 20 feet away.
